PREFACE.

THE work now offered to the public necessarily implies that, in the opinion of the author, the common version of the Holy Scriptures admits of improvement. Nor is he singular in this opinion, if any reliance is to be placed on the professions of Commentators. They generally assure the public, that the object which they have in view is to correct the mistranslations, to reconcile the real or apparent contradictions, to explain what is difficult and abstruse, and, in fine, to render the Scriptures more intelligible to the reader. How far these professions are realized, in most instances, it is for the public to decide. As works of this kind meet with liberal and general countenance, the public so far seem to coincide in the opinion, that some parts of the present version are obscure, and that mistranslations do exist.

The following are some of the causes of the imperfections of the common version, and may be regarded as so many reasons for the present attempt to improve it. First: THE COMMON VERSION IS TOO VERBAL AND LITERAL TO BE IN ALL INSTANCES FAITHFUL AND PERSPICUOUS. To a person unacquainted with various languages it may seem most natural and most faithful to translate word for word; and in case the terms and idioms of one language exactly corresponded with those of another, a verbal and literal version would be the only proper one. But the smallest acquaintance with different languages is sufficient to prove, that in no two languages does such an exact correspondence exist. Every language is modified and varied by a thousand different circumstances, and its idioms and its phrases cannot be rendered literally and verbally without often conveying either no sense, or a wrong one.

Another cause of obscurity and of imperfection in the common version is, the FREQUENT CHANGE OF PERSONS which the Hebrew language admits. In some places, in the same sentence, we have both the singular and the plural numbers, and the third and second persons used, when the obvious sense and connexion prove that the same persons are intended. This idiom abounds chiefly in the book of Deuteronomy; and I have ventured to neglect it, and to render as perspicuity and the propriety of our own language demand.

A third cause is, FOLLOWING THE ORDER of the original text too closely. ‘Like the land of Egypt as thou comest to Zoar,’ Gen. xiii. 10. The English reader will conclude that Zoar was a city in Egypt, and yet it is certain that it was one of the cities of the plain of Sodom. Compare Gen. xx. 1; Exod. xxx. 29; Mark iv. 34, and xi. 13; and many other passages in the common version where, from the same cause, a wrong sense is suggested.

Another cause is, mistaking the sense of AMBIGUOUS terms or phrases. A word in Hebrew may be ambiguous when it may be derived from various roots, or when it has many significations. In the first respect many verbs are ambiguous in some of their persons, tenses, and conjugations : compare Gen. i. 15 and the note ; and 1 Kings xii. 2. Some Hebrew words, as pronounced, are either nouns or verbs. Thus נָמַן, Gen. iv. 7, may be either a noun or a verb in the second person. Our translators considered it as a verb : ‘ shalt thou not be accepted ?’ Many of the best critics consider it as a noun, without any change in the sense of the clause. As many Hebrew words have various significations, it is manifest that if a translator render nearly always by the same term, he will not give the sense of his author. Nor is this a difficulty peculiar to the Hebrew, but one which is found in all living or dead languages. The particular sense is to be ascertained by the subject of which a writer or speaker is treating, and by the connexion of the word with others. Compare Deut. viii. 3, and the note. They considered ‘ what came from the mouth of God’ to signify a word, instead of ‘ what he appointed,’ or commanded.

Another cause of obscurity and frequent mistake is, an attempt to render the TENSES and CONJUGATIONS of Hebrew verbs in a manner nearly uniform. The Hebrew has only the perfect and future tenses, and the present and past participles. This paucity of tenses necessarily introduced great latitude in the use of them, the perfect being used for the present and imperfect of other languages, and sometimes for the preterperfect ; and the future for the first and second futures, and with certain particles for the optative, potential, and subjunctive moods of other languages. In certain cases the future is used for the past ; and it was the opinion of Michaelis, and is that of other distinguished Oriental scholars, that the Hebrew future is, in reality, an Aorist. Their conjugations, according to the Masorets, are four : Kal, Pihel, Hiphil, and Hithpahel. The three first have the active and passive moods, and the fourth is reciprocal. The Hiphil signifies to cause or suffer another to do a thing, the Pihel renders the signification of Kal more intense ; for verbs which are neuter in Kal become active and transitive in Pihel. Every Hebrew scholar has found difficulties, both in respect to the tenses and conjugations of Hebrew verbs, and it is not wonderful if our translators have frequently erred in rendering them. The oldest translation extant, the Greek, is in this respect often obscure and erroneous. The translators being Jews who had acquired and who spoke the Greek tongue, considered it an imperative duty to render the Hebrew as literally as possible into that language, and hence they rendered most frequently the Hebrew future by the Greek future, and the perfect by the Aorist. We gain one advantage from this, that we can ascertain more clearly how those translators read, and their version becomes of great use so far as it is correct in detecting the errors of the Hebrew text. This mode of translating it is easy to perceive will often obscure, and not unfrequently pervert the sense of the sacred writers. For proofs of this I must refer to the notes on the Psalms.

By rendering the Hiphil conjugation very generally to cause another to do a thing, some sentiments, equally at variance with the real sense of the text, and with all sound notions of the Divine nature, obtain in the common version. God’s hardening the heart, and other things of this kind, have given occasion to the scoffs of infidels, and have tortured the minds of some good men. When we take the other sense which this conjugation is allowed to have, of suffering or permitting a thing to be done, nothing is asserted but what is equally agreeable to reason, and to what we actually see in the administration of Providence, that men, blinded by their passions and hardened by their crimes, are permitted to go on till they receive the due reward of their deeds.

One of the chief causes of many errors in the Old Testament is, THE STATE OF THE ORIGINAL TEXT from which it was made. The numerous instances of various readings introduced in this work in preference to the printed text, and their evident propriety and suitableness to the context, sufficiently prove the errors of that text, and the necessity of correcting it from the legitimate sources of the manuscripts, old versions, and a comparison of parallel places.

In the Pentateuch and historical books, considerable transpositions are made, for the sake of order and connexion ; and the reader has just reason for the inquiry, on what grounds they have been made. In some cases, such transposition is warranted by the Samaritan copy of the Pentateuch, and by the Greek version ; but in others, on that of internal evidence, and the state of most existing Hebrew manuscripts. Kennicott found that the manuscripts which he and others collated, contained transpositions of whole verses, and sometimes of chapters ; the former of which occurred from the same word beginning several verses or periods, and a wrong verse or period catching the writer's eye. After having written a period or two, and comparing his manuscript with his copy, he discovered that he had made an omission, and inserted it with a reference. Thus transpositions of periods or verses were frequently made ; and those of whole chapters most probably arose from the skins of parchment being, by some accident, stitched together improperly. In this manner the prophecies of Jeremiah have been transposed, the whole order from the 26th chapter to the end being confused. As a transposition makes no change in the text, when it restores coherence and propriety to a narrative, it is adopted.

The change which has occurred in the English language, since the period at which the common version was made, is considerable, and forms another reason for an attempt towards its improvement. Archbishop Newcome has observed, that ' many words or phrases which occur in the received version, are become unintelligible to the generality of readers ; and many which are intelligible, are so antiquated and debased as to excite disgust among the serious, and contempt and derision among libertines. The strength of the argument from this topic rises in proportion to the frequency of such expressions, and to the importance of the book throughout which they abound.' In proof of the justness of this observation, the author refers to the Preface of the First Volume of the Family Bible, where a large collection of improper or idiomatical terms may be found.

The great object has been to give the sense of the sacred authors, without, on the one hand, rendering verbally, or, on the other, being too diffuse or paraphrastic. The rules laid down by Archbishop Newcome have been followed, as not only founded in good sense and an intimate acquaintance with the subject, but as paying that deference to the authorized version which its general fidelity and its long use demand. Hence the language of this version is uniformly preferred, and rarely are any terms introduced but what are already sanctioned by Biblical use. Even in rendering the Hebrew particles, though varied considerably from the common rendering in innumerable places, yet in the common version the same particles will be found rendered in some place or other in the same manner. Preserving as much as possible the language of the common version, that language is arranged in such a manner as to endeavour to secure precision, harmony, and strength ; and it is hoped that every reader of taste will find that these ends have, in some degree at least, been attained.

The work is now committed to the public in this condensed form, at the request of many esteemed friends, in the hope that it may be more extensively useful. In this edition the author has availed himself of the many valuable and critical works issued from the press since the publication of his Family Bible and Improved Version. By a repeated perusal of the original texts, he has been induced to vary the arrangement of the language, and occasionally the sense of some ambiguous terms and phrases. He has preferred the rendering of בני ישראל (sons or children of Israel) Israelites ; and so sons of Levi, Levites, &c. But when בנות or בנים, sons or daughters, are used for the inhabitants of a city or country, the common version is retained, as being more appropriate to the style of poetry and prophecy.

In the New Testament various corrections have been made as to the arrangement and punctuation ; and in some few places as to the sense. The great object has been to present to the reader the sense of the original in as clear a manner as possible. Hence idiomatic phrases and Hebraisms have been rendered equivalently—as disobedient for sons of disobedience, and the idiomatical phrase is given in the note. Convinced, by the reasoning of Dr. Campbell, that the term mystery has by use acquired a sense very different to its original import, the term secret, or unknown truth, or other words which the context suggests, have been adopted.

Considering how difficult it is to transfuse the sense and spirit of writings so ancient as those of the Scriptures into another language, differing in its structure and idioms, it can scarcely be expected that any version will give complete satisfaction to every scholar or critic. The author has not the vanity to think that his labours are so perfect as to admit of no correction or improvement. If he has succeeded so far as to remove numerous errors and to give the sense more fully and clearly to the reader, his object has been in some degree attained. He indulges the hope that the work will aid Biblical scholars in their studies, and lead to a more accurate exposition and statement of Divine truth in the ministry, and to a more comprehensive knowledge of it among judicious readers.

INTRODUCTION.

PART I.

CHAPTER I.

On the Genuineness and Authenticity of the Books of the Old and New Testaments.

THERE are now, in various parts of the world, a numerous body of people called Christians; and others denominated Jews, who are scattered among the various nations of the earth. When we inquire into the reason of these denominations, we find the former are so called from their belief in, and adherence to, a divine teacher, called Christ; and the latter, from their being the descendants of Judah, one of the twelve Patriarchs, sprung from Jacob. The former maintain certain opinions which were taught by Christ; they observe certain rites appointed by him; and they meet on the first day of the week to worship the Deity by prayer and praise. They have among them written books which they account sacred; and one part of their worship is, for a person properly qualified to read some portion of these books, and to explain to them the various duties which man owes to his Creator, himself, and his neighbour.

In every country where Christians are numerous, they erect edifices for the purpose of divine worship; and where they are few, they assemble in some house with the same design. For public worship is essential to Christianity; and one day in seven has been, and is now, kept sacred, and spent in the exercises of devotion. When we inquire into its origin, the most authentic history carries us back near eighteen centuries; and, from the testimony of those who then lived, we are sure that there were persons at that period denominated Christians, and that they had among them the same sacred books which we now have, and that they observed the same rites, and believed the same doctrines. Happily we have not only the testimony of Christian writers, but of polytheists who were the avowed enemies of Christianity.

Tacitus, writing the life of Nero, who set the city of Rome on fire, the report of which rendered him odious, tells us, that Nero imputed it to a set of people called Christians. The founder of that name was Christ, who suffered death in the reign of Tiberius, under his procurator Pontius Pilate. This pernicious superstition, thus checked for a while, broke out again; and spread not only over Judea, where the evil originated, but through Rome also, whither every thing bad upon earth finds its way and is practised. Some, who confessed their sect, were first seized, and afterwards, by their information, a vast multitude were apprehended, who were convicted, not so much of the crime of burning Rome, as of hatred to mankind. Their sufferings at their execution were aggravated by insult and mockery; for some were disguised in the skins of wild beasts and worried to death by dogs; some were crucified; and others were wrapt up in pitched shirts, and set on fire when the day closed, that they might serve as lights to illuminate the night.

This testimony proves, first, that the founder of Christianity was put to death: secondly, that, in the same country in which he was put to death, the religion, after a short check, broke out and spread: and, thirdly, that it so spread that, within thirty-four years from the author's death, a very great number of Christians were found at Rome. This testimony from a heathen historian establishes the leading facts of the Christian records. His opinion of this sect is what we might expect from his habits and principles. Suetonius gives the same account of the sufferings of Christians at that period.

On examining the books held as sacred and divine by Christians, we find that four of the disciples of Christ wrote narratives of his life. They differ in their manner, style, and in the order they observe, but agree in a most wonderful manner as to the facts they record. They write like persons who had heard and seen what they relate, or who had received information from such as had; and through the whole of their narratives an artless simplicity prevails which strongly prepossesses the mind in favour of their veracity. Another book contains a history of the persecutions of Christians, and the progress of Christianity, during a period of about thirty years. The remaining books are letters directed to different Christian societies; and were evidently written on particular occasions, either to oppose some error, or to explain and enforce some part of Christian truth. One book is so peculiar in its style, imagery, and design, that it has been considered prophetic, and as emblematically setting forth the events, whether adverse or prosperous, of the Christian church till the consummation of all things.

It is generally admitted that Matthew wrote his gospel for the use of the church in Jerusalem, and of the Jews in Palestine. According to the testimony of antiquity, it was written in Hebrew,* or the language the Jews then spoke; and of course it would be accessible to the whole Jewish nation. The time when this gospel was composed has not been precisely ascertained. Dr. H. Owen thought that it was written as early as Anno Domini 39 or 40, or about six years after our Lord's ascension. Lardner, however, supposes it was not written till the year 64. It is most probable that Matthew wrote his gospel while Peter and Mark were in the northern part of the Lesser Asia, which might be while Paul was preaching in Greece, about the year 54. Peter, we know, was at Antioch about this period; and might, with Mark, thence go to Pontus and Bithynia.

On the establishment of Christian societies beyond the boundaries of Judea, it is natural to suppose that an authentic narrative would be given in Greek, the language then most generally spoken. Accordingly, the gospel of Mark is said to have been the second narrative presented to the church; but when published is uncertain. He was the companion and attendant of Peter, as the Christian fathers relate: and, with the greatest probability, is supposed to be the person he mentions in his first epistle, chap. v. 3, and calls his son.

It is not improbable that, while Paul was at Rome, Peter again visited Antioch, and afterwards the churches in Pontus, Galatia, &c.; and Mark, his convert and attendant, as the fathers relate, might write his gospel for the use of those churches; and as it would have the approbation of Peter, it would often be called the gospel of Peter, as in fact it was called; Peter afterwards going to Rome, and communicating a copy of Mark's gospel to that church, the tradition might arise that it was written for that church. After weighing the statements of the fathers and the opinions of learned men, this seems the most probable hypothesis.

The evangelist Luke has given to the church the fullest history of its founder and head. There is no ground for doubt but that he is the person who accompanied Paul, and who wrote afterwards the Acts of the Apostles. Paul has mentioned him with the highest respect in his epistles, Col. iv. 14; 2 Tim. iv. 11; Phil. 24. From Acts, it appears that he regularly attended Paul, from his voyage into Macedonia till he was carried prisoner to Rome, whither the evangelist also went with him. Compare Acts xx. 5, where Luke speaks of himself as with Paul, and he ever after uses the same mode of speaking.

The style of Luke proves that he was a Jew by descent; and most probably one early converted to the faith. It does not appear, from what he says, that he had personally seen Christ, but had derived his knowledge from the apostles, who had been eye and ear witnesses of what our Lord did and taught; and especially from Paul, to whom the gospel had been communicated by special revelation, Gal. i. 11, 12. Dr. Campbell thinks it highly probable that he was a native of Antioch, the capital of Syria, where the Greek language had been long cultivated, and was generally spoken by the higher classes. If Mark wrote his gospel while Paul was a prisoner at Rome, whither Luke had accompanied him, and where he continued till the release of the apostle, as is nearly certain from Paul's mentioning him in the epistles which he there wrote, Colos. iv. 14, he could not, I think, have written his gospel sooner than A. D. 63, and most probably in Greece.

It has been observed that the language of Luke is more pure and copious, and there is more of composition in his sentences than in those of the other evangelists. From his profession as a physician he might have received a superior education; and from his intercourse with men might have derived his superior accomplishments in the Greek language. In relating the same facts which Matthew and Mark had related, he uses, in some instances, the same expressions, and in others there is but little variation. From him we learn whatever relates to the birth of John the baptist, the annunciation, and other important circumstances concerning the nativity of the Messiah; the occasion of Joseph's being then in Bethlehem; the vision granted the shepherds; the early testimony of Simeon and Anna; the wonderful manifestation of our Lord's proficiency in knowledge when only twelve years old; his age at the commencement of his ministry, connected with the year of the reigning emperor.†

* Eusebius has preserved the testimony of Papias to this fact, who informs us that 'Matthew wrote his divine oracles in the Hebrew tongue, and every one interpreted them as well as they were able.' Euseb. lib. 3, chap. 39. Irenæus and the following fathers give us the same account.

† These facts he might learn from some of the kindred of our Lord, or from John, with whom his mother Mary dwelt after the crucifixion, who had preserved and would not fail to communicate them to him and to the church.

He has given us also an account of several memorable incidents and cures which had been overlooked by the rest; the conversion of Zaccheus the publican; the cure of the crooked woman, of the dropsical man, the cleansing of the ten lepers, the repulse he met with when about to enter a Samaritan city, and the instructive rebuke he gave, on that occasion, to two of his disciples for their intemperate zeal: also the affecting interview he had, after his resurrection, with two of his disciples, in the way to Emmaus, and at that village. Luke has likewise added many edifying parables to those which had been recorded by the other evangelists. Of this number are the parable of the creditor who had two debtors; of the rich fool who hoarded up his increase, and, when he had not one day to live, vainly exulted in the prospect of many happy years; of the rich man and Lazarus; of the reclaimed prodigal; of the pharisee and the publican praying in the temple; of the judge who was prevailed on by a widow's importunity, though he feared not God, nor regarded man; of the barren fig-tree; of the compassionate Samaritan; and several others; most of which so early a writer as Irenæus has specified as peculiarly belonging to this gospel.

On comparing these three gospels, it is clear that one was not copied from another; for in this case there would have been not only the same facts, but the same order. It is equally clear that the two latter could not be translations of Matthew's Hebrew original; we must then deem them independent testimonies to the same facts, and account for the coincidences and verbal agreement from the materials they possessed; and for the variation of the order and arrangement, from the judgment of each writer, and from the circumstances and design he had in view.

Luke also wrote the Acts of the Apostles, which contains the history of the church till Paul obtained his liberty, about the year 63. He has traced the most material occurrences during this period, and the history may be considered as a continuation of his own gospel. His information was derived from the best sources: and, in regard to many transactions, he was personally concerned. This book is of the greatest value, as it shows the manner in which the apostles fulfilled their commission and propagated the gospel abroad.

The gospel of John is uniformly stated to have been written the last; and he has designedly omitted most of what the others had related, with whose writings he was acquainted; and has given many interesting discourses of our Lord at great length. It is generally admitted that John lived to an advanced age; and that one design of his gospel was to refute the errors which had already sprung up in the church. John himself mentions the Nicolaitans, Rev. ii. 15, a sect of the Gnostics. They introduced into the Christian church the most absurd, speculative doctrines respecting the person of the Saviour, his works, sufferings, and resurrection. John, in consequence, begins his gospel with establishing his glory as God and the creator of all things. He is wonderfully simple and artless in his style and manner; and every where discovers the most amiable and affectionate temper. From internal evidence he is supposed to have written previously to the destruction of Jerusalem, see chap. v. 2. In the year 70, this city was taken, and in a great measure destroyed; and had John written after that event, it is natural to think he would have referred to it.

The epistles of Paul have been generally admitted genuine. When considered in connexion with the Acts of the Apostles, there is such an undesigned coincidence of persons, circumstances, and facts, as not only proves their genuineness, but their truth. It is concluded, from evidence contained in the Acts and epistles themselves, that they were written in the following order, according to Dr. Wall. 1. The first epistle to the Thessalonians, A. D. 54, from Corinth. 'The copiers at the end of this epistle say it was written from Athens; and the English have thought that note of theirs worth translating: but whoever reads Acts xviii. 5, will see that it was at Corinth that Silas and Timothy came to Paul; and they join in the epistle.' 2. The second epistle to the Thessalonians, in the same year 54, from the same place. 3. The epistle to the Galatians from Ephesus, A. D. 55. 4. The first epistle to the Corinthians from Ephesus, A. D. 57. 5. The second epistle to the Corinthians from the same place, in the following year. 6. The epistle to the Romans from Corinth, A. D. 60, Usher; 58, Pearson. 7. The epistle to the Philippians from Rome, during his imprisonment, A. D. 62. 8, 9, and 10. The three epistles to the Ephesians, Colossians, and Philemon were written from the same place, and sent by the same person, Tychicus, during the same period. From internal evidence, it is now generally admitted that the epistle to the Ephesians is the same as that to the Laodiceans, and Paley considers that the true reading is, 'Laodicea.*' 11. The epistle to the Hebrews, soon after the former, in the opinion of Wall, but whether sent to the church at Jerusalem, or some other church of Judea, is not known.† 12. After Paul obtained

* See Griesbach's Greek Text.

† This epistle was not so soon known or admitted into the canon as the rest. As it was written to the Hebrews, and his liberty, he travelled into various parts ; and having left Timothy at Ephesus, he sent from Laodicea the first epistle to Timothy, about A. D. 65.* 13. About the same time, he wrote the epistle to Titus, whom he left the year before in Crete. 14. Paul was again a prisoner at Rome when he wrote the second epistle to Timothy. This last letter of the great apostle contains intimations that he considered his course as now run, and that he was ready to be offered up as the victim of persecution.

The first epistle of John and the first of Peter are, by the consent of antiquity, admitted to be genuine. The second and third of John, and the second of Peter, as well as of James and Jude, were not so generally received. They possess, however, such internal evidence as must satisfy any impartial inquirer, and, accordingly, they have been admitted into the canon. The book of Revelation was for some time undisputed, and, as far as external authority goes, it is better supported than most others.

James is called the brother of our Lord, i. e. kinsman ; and is said to have been the first stated bishop or pastor of the church at Jerusalem. He was eminently pious, and was called James the just. Josephus has mentioned the manner in which Herod, to please the Jews, put him to death, in the latter end of the year 62, or the beginning of 63. The epistle might be written the year before. It is directed to the twelve tribes of Israel, or to those who dwelt among the Gentiles ; but I consider it as particularly referring to such as had embraced the gospel. It is wholly practical.

The first and second epistles of Peter were addressed to believing Jews and Gentiles scattered through Pontus, Galatia, Cappadocia, Asia, and Bithynia. It is evident, from the design of the first epistle, that those to whom it is directed were in a state of suffering and persecution : and some think it was written about the same time with the above. The second is supposed to have been written just before the breaking out of the Jewish war, A. D. 66.

The epistle of Jude is thought to refer to the second of Peter, v. 17, and of course was written after it. He calls himself the brother of James. It might be written soon after the above, about the year 70. The epistles of John are thought to have been written as late as the year 90. The first breathes the spirit and manner of the evangelist ; the two latter are directed to two pious individuals, and the sameness of style would justify us in considering John the author, had we no other testimony.

The Revelations were communicated to John in the isle of Patmos, and contain the last divine revelations given to the church. They are, with the greatest probability, supposed to have been given about the year 96.

The four gospels and the epistles were communicated by one church to another, and were most of them read and commented on in the churches on the Lord's day. Some of them are quoted or alluded to by Clement of Rome, by Hermas, by Ignatius, by Polycarp, disciples and contemporaries with the apostles, and by every Christian writer that followed in the next age ; by Justin Martyr, Irenæus, Theophilus, Clement of Alexandria, Tertullian, and others. Tertullian refers to the churches as then possessing the very letters which Paul addressed to them. He bids ' any one, who is willing to exercise his curiosity profitably in the business of his salvation, to visit the apostolical churches, in which their very authentic letters are recited, ipsæ authenticæ literæ eorum recitantur.' Then he goes on : ' Is Achaia near you ? You have Corinth. If you are not far from Macedonia, you have Philippi, you have Thessalonica. If you can go to Asia, you have Ephesus ; but if you are near to Italy, you have Rome.'

Little more than seventy years after the death of our Lord nearly the whole of the canonical books were translated into Syriac, which still remains. The accurate Lardner observes, ' In the remaining works of Irenæus, Clement of Alexandria, and Tertullian, there are perhaps more and larger quotations of the small volume of the New Testament, than of all the works of Cicero, in the writings of all characters for several ages.'

Having stated, according to the best evidence extant, the manner and the time when the books of the New Testament were published, we may justly infer that nothing can be brought to invalidate either their genuineness or authenticity.† As far as the authority of external testimony goes, it is wholly in their favour, without any direct opposing testimony.

chiefly respected them, it is natural to infer, it might be some time before it was communicated to the Gentile churches. On having examined the testimonies of the fathers, Lardner observes, " It is evident that this epistle was generally received, in ancient times, by those Christians who used the Greek language, and lived in the eastern parts of the Roman empire. Professor Stewart, in his valuable critical examination of this epistle, has made it probable that it was composed and sent to the Christian church at Cæsarea, where Paul had resided as a prisoner more than two full years. Acts xxiv. 27, see vol. i.

* Bishop Pearson, Paley, and others, have justly observed, that the epistle to Timothy and that to Titus must have been written subsequent to Paul's imprisonment at Rome, recorded in the Acts. See Horæ Paulinæ, page 320—2.

† Bishop Watson has pertinently observed, that there is an important distinction between the genuineness and authen

There is strong reason to believe that, within forty years after the ascension, the evangelists and the chief part of the epistles were collected together, and read and commented on in the Christian churches, as the law and the prophets were in the Jewish synagogues. Ignatius contrasts the gospel with the prophets. 'Ye ought,' says he, 'to hearken to the prophets, but especially to the gospel, in which the passion has been manifested to us, and the resurrection perfected.'

Supposing the books of the New Testament the mere invention of men, and the facts they relate respecting the person of Jesus Christ to be without foundation, it is difficult, nay impossible, to account for the rise, spread, and duration of Christianity in the world. General experience supports the remark, that on no subject are men, in general, more indisposed and disinclined to entertain and cordially receive a new sentiment than on religion.

Were the Christian records merely the invention of artful and designing men, how could it have been possible to persuade either Jews or heathens to become Christians? It cannot be denied that these books contain doctrines and precepts wholly opposed to the known prejudices, sentiments, and practices of both those classes of men. By the doctrine of Christ their religious ritual and ceremonies were represented as of no intrinsic importance, and, unless accompanied with faith, purity of heart, and integrity of life, unavailable in the sight of God. Another part of the Christian doctrine was equally opposed to Jewish pride and prejudices, that the Gentiles should enjoy equal privileges with them under the Messiah's reign.

In the same manner was the Christian doctrine opposed to the opinions and prejudices of the heathens. They had gods many and lords many; and were ready to admit any new god to a place in their pantheon. The Christian doctrine on this point was opposed to every article of their mythology; it denied the very existence of every object of their worship. It taught that an idol was nothing but an imagination. It is evident that such a sentiment must have tended to overthrow every statue, altar, and temple in the world; and how could a doctrine like this prevail, unless founded in truth, and supported by such evidence of its divine origin, as must have been most convincing to those who embraced it?

Were men induced to become Christians by the prospect of temporal gain? Were riches and honours the consequence of embracing Christianity? No; this was a sect every where spoken against; and Christians had nothing to expect but reproaches, insults, and persecutions. During a considerable part of the first three centuries, Christians had to endure whatever the malice of Jews and heathens could inflict. The civil power was exerted in every way to induce them to renounce Christianity, and to conform to the established and prevailing superstition. They were plundered of their property, many were banished, many immured in prisons, and great numbers tortured and put to death in the most painful manner.

The arguments in proof of the reality and certainty of the Christian doctrine, derived from these sufferings, undergone only on account of their testimony to Jesus, and their adherence to him, are strong and decisive. When was it found that men, without any temporal interest, and in the face of the most formidable difficulties, persisted in a scheme of falsehood? The Christian records only assign adequate causes of the effects, which are acknowledged to exist; and from them we see why the first Christians chose rather to suffer than to be silent, or to deny their Lord. The objects then which usually influence the human mind are here out of question; and it must be admitted, either that the first Christians acted contrary to the known principles of human nature, or that the facts they believed, on the evidence of their own senses, were true. To admit the former supposition is to admit a miracle; for what is a miracle, but a fact above, or contrary to, the usual course of nature? To admit the latter, is to admit that Christianity is founded in truth.

The facts contained in the New Testament were the continual topics on which the apostles of our Lord dwelt in their public ministry; and if these facts were not true, their enemies would not have failed to expose them; as they could not have wanted either the inclination or the opportunity. The books of Christians were not locked up, but alike accessible to friends and to foes. Curiosity, as well as a desire to invalidate their authority, must have stimulated the latter to peruse them; and had they not been supported by the most decisive evidence, we should have had refutations without end. After a lapse of more than a century, an attempt was made, not to prove that the Christian records were a mere fiction, but to account for the miracles they contained from the supposed powers of magic. The Christian records could not, therefore, be a cunningly devised fable, but must have been allowed to contain a faithful narrative of facts, which courted the strictest scrutiny, and which did not admit of refutation.

These three circumstances support both the genuineness and authenticity of the books of ticity of any book. 'A genuine book is that which was written by the person whose name it bears, as the author of it. An authentic book is that which relates matters of fact as they really happened. A book may be genuine, without being authentic; and a book may be authentic, without being genuine.'

the New Testament. First, the recognition of the facts, doctrines, and precepts they contain, by a series of succeeding writers; secondly, the total absence of any account of the origin of Christianity substantially different; thirdly, the early and extensive prevalence of rites and institutions, founded on the facts and doctrines contained in the Christian records.

Admitting the authenticity of the New Testament we cannot reasonably doubt that of the books of the Old. The evangelists and apostles appeal to them, and often quote largely from them. We have in their writings references to most of the books of the Old Testament: to the five books of Moses, to Joshua, Judges, Samuel, Kings, Chronicles, Job, the Psalms, Proverbs, and the Prophets. Independently of this evidence, we have a translation of these books into the Greek language, made, at least in part, in the time of Ptolemy Philadelphus, more than two hundred and fifty years before the Christian æra. The Samaritans, who were opposed to the Jews in many things, retained the law, or the five books of Moses, in the old Hebrew character, which the Jews used prior to their captivity in Babylon. This carries us back a considerable period; and the existence of the Samaritan Pentateuch, and the version of the Seventy, incontestably prove that the authenticity of the books of the Old Testament were then admitted.

The books of Moses contain the civil and religious institutions of the Jewish nation, and the body of their laws; and it cannot admit of doubt that their civil polity and religious ritual and conduct were regulated by these laws. Their whole history proves this; and the unvarying testimony of Greek and Roman writers corroborates the fact. All the subsequent writers of the Old Testament refer to the facts and laws contained in the five books of Moses; the state of the earth when created—the primeval darkness—the division of time into weeks, which has obtained among the most ancient nations—the creation of man, and the happiness of the paradisiacal state—his fall and consequent depravity and misery—the longevity of the Antediluvians—Noah's flood, and the manner in which he and all with him were saved in the ark—the increase of mankind and rise of ancient nations, have been either more expressly or more obscurely referred to by the most ancient heathen historians and poets. Josephus refers to Berossus, Manetho, Hesiod, Hecætæus and others in proof of what Moses relates. Ant. l. i. c. 8.

The history of Abraham, and of his posterity, is so full of particulars and incidents that it may be regarded as a family memorial. The promises and predictions made to him, we find subsequently fulfilled. His posterity increased wonderfully on their having gone down to Egypt, and were afterwards enslaved and greatly oppressed. Moses was raised up, by a special providence, to be their deliverer, law-giver, and ruler. God furnished him with talents and power to do what he designed; and by a series of miracles and judgments Pharaoh and his people were compelled to permit the Israelites to depart from Egypt. The events which followed the Exodus, the passage of the Red Sea, journey to Sinai, the giving of the law, the idolatry of the people, erection of the tabernacle, the pillar of cloud and of fire, the manna, &c. are clearly described, and by one who was eye-witness of what he relates. The historians and prophets of after-times borrow their language and imagery from the facts Moses relates.

On the whole, there is no ground for doubt as to the genuineness or authenticity of the Old any more than of the New Testament. The external evidence is as complete as could be expected in respect to writings by far the most ancient in the world. The internal evidence arising from the style, foreign terms, simplicity, brevity, sublimity, and grandeur, the pure morality, elevated views of the divine nature, of the works of God, of his providence, his universal dominion, power, and glory, not only prove the truth of the Old Testament, but its inspiration and divine authority.

The scriptures are not only genuine and authentic, but inspired. Inspiration consisted in a supernatural influence on the human mind, elevating and directing its natural powers, and imparting such truths, and such knowledge of God's will, as could not be otherwise attained. Inspiration must, from its very nature, have been personal, and the inspired person must have been fully assured of it from his own consciousness. Inspiration included both the divine influence, and the effect of it, in the communications or discoveries made; and these communications and discoveries, when embodied in language, constituted a divine revelation. A revelation indeed might be made without inspiration. God might, and from scripture we know he actually did, assume some form, and make known his will to men; or without any form speak in human language, as at the giving of the law, and on many other occasions. In these cases, the discoveries made would be of the same nature and deserve the same regard as truths directly inspired.

From this statement, it appears that inspiration was miraculous. An uncommon influence was exerted, and knowledge imparted, without the intervention of the usual means. How was it possible for the inspired person to convince others that God had inspired him; and that the truths he announced were divine revelations? Such a pretension would be regarded with suspicion, as being contrary to general experience; and, without some sensible, evident proof of divine power and influence, would command no respect, nor produce any beneficial effects. If the inspired person should work miracles, or should miracles be wrought at his word, this must with all reasonable men, establish his claim; for it would be absurd to suppose the God of truth would give his sanction to falsehood and imposture. As a miracle is an effect above the power of created beings to produce, and a deviation from the laws or course of nature, it is the strongest and most convincing proof of the agency of God. Nicodemus reasoned justly, when he said to our Lord, 'We know that thou art a teacher come from God: for no man can do these miracles that thou doest, except God be with him.'

1. Inspiration has been properly divided into that of superintendence and that of suggestion. 'The former implies such a divine influence on the mind, as to secure the person who speaks or writes from error in the statements of facts, or the declaration of any doctrine.' It cannot be denied that such an influence is possible. Such an influence as this is also consistent with the free exercise of the person's own faculties: so that he would express himself in his own usual manner, in words and phrases to which he had been accustomed. Such an inspiration, the writers of the historical books of the holy scriptures enjoyed; so that what they wrote contained only truth, though expressed in their own style. And though they availed themselves of well-authenticated documents, and the oral testimony of honest and competent witnesses, yet, in arranging these materials, and stating circumstances, they enjoyed this superintending inspiration.

From the Acts, it is evident that the apostles and other disciples were in a most wonderful manner inspired by the Holy Spirit. They were originally Galilean fishermen; and their circumstances must have precluded any literary advantages. They attended the ministry of Jesus, but they had no opportunity of acquiring the knowledge of any foreign language. How then was it possible for these men to speak at once in various languages, unless they had been inspired? Whoever reflects on the nature of language must be sensible that there could, in this, be no collusion. When the multitude heard the disciples speaking and praising God each in his own tongue, well might they be amazed, and say, 'Are not all these who speak Galileans?' The gift of tongues was essentially necessary in their circumstances to spread the doctrines of their Lord and Saviour; and the power of conferring this gift seems to have been bestowed on the apostles. Hence, those who went forth to preach the gospel were, by this supernatural gift, qualified for the work, and with the strictest truth the apostle might say, that the gospel was preached, 'not in the enticing words of human wisdom, but in demonstration of the Spirit.'

If inspiration were necessary to those who first preached the gospel, and if the preachers assert that they enjoyed it, it is not reasonable to suppose that those apostles and evangelists, who wrote the life, and stated and illustrated the doctrines of our Lord, should be considered as having been unaided in this important work. The interests of Christianity were involved in the accuracy, faithfulness, and truth of their writings, and had they not enjoyed as full an inspiration as was necessary, their writings would have been of less authority than their oral testimony. Examine their writings, and, unless I am greatly deceived, their agreement in the facts they record, their harmony in doctrinal sentiments, in moral precepts, directions, cautions, and exhortations to duty, will produce the fullest conviction that they wrote under the influence of the same Spirit. In short, the excellence of the doctrines delivered in their writings, their elevation, holiness, and spirituality, their obvious tendency to raise the moral state of man, and to promote his happiness, demonstrate their divine origin.

As the miracles which the Saviour wrought demonstrated his divine mission, so those of the apostles and disciples support the inspiration and truth of their writings. Those to whose writings we are most indebted wrought miracles, and by this clearly evinced that they were under a special divine influence. Acts iii. 7; v. 5—10; ix. 32—43.

Think of the lustre of those astonishing works which were wrought by Paul wherever he went, and of those wrought in his favour, which showed him so eminently the care of heaven: demons ejected, distempers cured, sometimes with a touch, and sometimes without, by a garment sent from him to the patient; his motions guided from place to place by a divine oracle; Elymas struck blind for opposing him; his bands loosed by an earthquake; his strength and vigour instantaneously restored, when the rage of the mutable and barbarous populace at Lystra had stoned him and left him for dead; and, to add no more, his safety in a shipwreck, with that of near three hundred more in the same vessel for his sake, promised by an angel, and accomplished without the loss of a single person.

John is associated with Peter in the cure of the impotent man, Acts iii. 3, 4; and to him Jesus appeared in the isle of Patmos, and made use of him as his amanuensis, expressly dictating to him the letters he was to send to the seven churches of Asia. Is it possible then to think, that he was not under an inspiration of superintendency, or of suggestion, when he wrote his gospel and his epistles?

The sacred writers expressly assert such a divine inspiration, 1 Cor. ii. 10, 12, 13; iii. 21—23; Gal. i. 11, 12; Eph. iv. 11, 12; 1 Peter i. 12; 1 John iv. 6. They represent their Lord and Saviour, while he was yet with them, as giving them power to effect miraculous cures and other wonders, in his name; and also as promising that, after his departure from them, he would send them the 'Spirit of truth,' John xiv. 26, 27; xvi. 7.

If the apostles and evangelists did not receive this Spirit, and were not divinely inspired in their preaching and writing, they furnished their enemies with an argument to prove that Jesus was a deceiver; but their writings show us that our Lord fulfilled, in the most ample manner, the promises which he had made. Under the influence of this 'Spirit of truth,' their mistakes respecting the nature of our Lord's kingdom were corrected, their timidity was converted into a holy boldness, and they displayed, through the whole course of their ministry, a wisdom truly heavenly, a fortitude, patience, meekness, love, and zeal suitable to the cause they advocated, and according with the example of their Lord and Saviour.

Collateral proof of the inspiration of the New Testament may be derived from a comparison of these writings with the spurious writings handed down to us under the name of the apostles. Let any man read the gospel of Nicodemus, of the Egyptians, or the remains of that of the Ebionites, and compare them with those of Matthew, Mark, Luke, and John: and if he possess any judgment, he will not hesitate to conclude that, while the latter possess all the characters of truth, and are worthy of the high claims which they maintain, the former contain ridiculous stories, in language and style below notice.

The belief of the first Christians in the divine authority of the scriptures, the regard they paid to them, and the care with which they read and transcribed them, furnish a strong presumptive proof of their genuineness, authenticity, and inspiration.* They found here recorded the facts and doctrines taught them by the apostles and the first Christian preachers; and thus their faith would be strengthened. On the doctrines taught by our Lord and his apostles, and contained in the writings of the New Testament, the Christian church was founded; and on the preservation of these, its purity, perpetuity, and safety depended. If our Lord intended that his kingdom should continue among men, that the great purposes of his divine mission, sufferings, and death should be accomplished, it was necessary, either that the power of miracles should be continued to his disciples, or, that they should leave behind them written records of whatever was requisite for faith and practice, and that these records should contain nothing but the truth; or in other words, that they should be sanctioned by divine authority. Such authority was at first admitted, and on the same authority Christians now build their faith and their hopes.

2. The second kind of inspiration is that of suggestion, in which God by his Spirit speaks directly to the mind, making such discoveries as could not otherwise be in any manner known. Thus, if a man was to give a just account of what another did at a distance, at any given moment, it must be evident that this was given to him by an inspiration of suggestion. In like manner, if a man declare what will come to pass in any future period, and the event happen accordingly, he must be under the influence of the same kind of inspiration. For instance, should a man inform us that a person of such a name shall exist a hundred or a thousand years hence, that he shall obtain power, and reign over such a kingdom, and vanquish the surrounding nations, and should it happen accordingly, who could doubt but that this had been revealed to him? In the New Testament we have many instances of this inspiration. Indeed, every prediction of future events, and every revelation of doctrines and truths, which unfold what are the designs of the divine wisdom and mercy, come under this species of inspiration. When the inspired person was to commit such discoveries to writing, that of superintendence was necessary to preserve him from mistake or error. Hence both kinds were often united.†

* 'The attachment of the early Christians to the word of God was exceedingly strong, and manifested itself in various ways, according to the circumstances and inclinations of different persons. Women wore it hanging at their necks. Children were trained up from their infancy to repeat it by heart. Most persons carried it about with them. Some washed their hands before they took it up to read. And many have been found buried with the gospel lying on their breasts.' (Fleury, Mœurs des Chrétiens, sec. 7.)

† God, in communicating his will, spoke at various times and in various manners to the fathers, by the prophets. Sometimes in a dream. Compare Gen. xv. 12—15, and xxviii. 12—17, and other places. Sometimes in a vision. By this term is meant, such a representation to the mind of things, distant or future, as occupied and abstracted it from all other things. In a dream, the person was asleep; but in a vision, awake. The prophets in general received the divine will in the latter method, compare Ezek. viii. Sometimes the word of Jehovah came to the prophet in an audible voice, and he was expressly told what to speak or do, compare 1 Sam. iii. 1, &c. It is probable that this was the case when the prophets assert that, 'Thus saith the Lord.'

The marks and evidences of inspiration, in the books of the New Testament, are equally manifest in those of the Old. The prophetic books contain many singular predictions of events which were to happen at distant periods, and which in the New Testament are said to be fulfilled. In the writings of the prophets there is a frequent reference to the future Saviour; his incarnation and his miraculous birth, his family, his poverty, his miracles, his sufferings, his death, his resurrection, his kingdom and glory are described with an accuracy which defies misapplication. Circumstances the most minute are noticed; and though the Jews have rejected our Lord as the Messiah, they still apply the same prophecies to him whom they expect. Of the inspiration of the prophets, in the highest sense, there can be no doubt; unless it can be proved that they wrote after the events which it is pretended they predicted; but this is impossible, as the Jews would never have supplied arguments in favour of Christianity.

In regard to the Psalms, some are prophetic, others didactic, and others only commemorative. The Proverbs and Ecclesiastes contain maxims of prudence and wisdom. The evident design and tendency of these writings establish their claim to a divine inspiration, either of superintendence or suggestion. The same view may be taken of the historical books. We may also add that our Lord affirms their divine authority, and he directs his hearers to search them. As to the writings of Moses, they have the highest authority. God spoke to him with an audible voice, 'as a man speaketh with his friend.'

Considering the laws of Moses, in respect to civil polity or religion, they are so peculiar that little doubt can be entertained of their divine origin. On these laws the Jewish state was founded, and continued with little interruption for a period of more than fifteen hundred years. The prophets refer to these laws as of divine origin, and our Lord and his apostles in like manner. We may then conclude that the writings which Jews and Christians deem sacred are not only genuine and authentic, but, in the sense explained, divinely inspired. They mutually illustrate and support each other.

We may fairly, and in all reason, incontrovertibly infer, the inspiration of the holy scriptures from a comparison with the writings of the most enlightened and polished heathens. The Jews were never celebrated for their attainments in science or literature. We have reason to believe that they never carried the arts to any high degree of perfection. Solomon, in erecting the temple, and in accomplishing his other works, availed himself of the superior skill of the Tyrians, and probably of other neighbours. The Jews were employed in agriculture, a calling which, while it furnishes the means of subsistence, does not require or call forth the active and inventive powers of the human mind. A people devoted to the labours and toils of agriculture have neither leisure, means, nor inclination to indulge in speculation, to investigate the laws of matter or the properties of mind. Content with the produce of their lands and flocks, their vine-yards and olive-yards, they remain nearly stationary in the arts and speculative sciences.

Such being the general state and character of the Jews, from their origin down to their dispersion, the question forces itself on the mind, how did this people attain such just notions of the divine nature, of the unity, spirituality, omnipotence, omniscience, and other natural and moral perfections of God? How did they discover the Creator in his works, and inform others that he made the world and governed it? Are these things so evident that men in the lowest state of mental culture perceive and understand them? Why then has not pure theism every where prevailed? It is well known that the reverse is the fact, and that men have, in every age and country where divine revelation has not been enjoyed, worshipped the creature and not the Creator. Will it be said that they received these just and noble sentiments from Abraham? The question still recurs, whence did he receive them? To say, by tradition from his fathers, will not satisfy the inquirer after truth. For why did not others secure and retain the same truths in the same manner?

Will it be said that Moses, by the force of his own genius, aided by the learning of Egypt, discovered these truths, and, founding his civil and religious polity on them, perpetuated them among that people? It may readily be granted that Moses possessed great powers of mind, and that these were improved by the literature of Egypt: but this supposes that the Egyptians also possessed great powers of mind; and how is it that, so far from acknowledging the unity and perfections of the divine nature, they were the most degraded, for worshipping the vilest idols? Had Moses received no instruction but from the Egyptians, from the penetration, genius, and force of his mind, he might, like Homer, have written an epic poem, and converted the Egyptian pantheon into the machinery of it: but there is no reason to think that his ideas would have excelled those of the Grecian bard.

In short, the just sentiments respecting the divine nature, good and evil, providence, the state and condition of man, his civil, social, and relative duties, his accountableness, and final state, scattered through every part of the holy scriptures, clearly prove that the authors were inspired ; or else we must admit, what must be deemed altogether miraculous, that shepherds, herdsmen, and Galilean fishermen, without literature, possessed wisdom, and made discoveries in moral science unattained, and, it may be said, unattainable by all the heathen sages of the east and west, north and south. It has already appeared that the sacred writers ascribed all their knowledge to divine influence, they asserted that Jehovah spoke by them, and that his word was on their tongues. It remains for those who deny their divine inspiration to account for their attainments, which has not yet, and on their principles, never will be done.

Another argument may be derived from the harmony of the sacred writers. From Moses to the close of revelation elapsed a period of above fifteen hundred years ; and the sacred authors lived and wrote at successive intervals. In matters of opinion, we find one writer differing from another, and each controverting the reasoning of his antagonist. The sentiments of one age are exploded by the following ; and on a variety of interesting subjects the human mind is kept in suspense. The schools of philosophers were only the arenas where the masters and scholars exercised their powers in opposing one another ; and after an impartial person has read all that they have said on religion and morals, he will be constrained to admit that they have done little more than ‘darken counsel by words without knowledge.’

Go to the sacred scriptures, examine them closely and critically. Can you find one writer controverting the statements or opinions of his predecessor?—one historian who disputes any fact which another had stated? Is there in the prophets any discrepancy in doctrines, precepts, or predictions? However they vary in style or manner of illustration, the sentiment and the morality is the same. In their predictions they exceed one another in particularity and clearness : but where is there any contradiction? The same remarks apply to the New Testament. Whence then arises this harmony of scripture? Had the writers been under no peculiar divine influence, they would have reasoned and speculated like others, and their writings would have opposed each other. But if they were inspired, if they all spoke and wrote under the influence of the same Spirit, then is this harmony accounted for, and it is impossible to account for it on any other principle. Hence we may conclude that all scripture is not only genuine and authentic, but divinely inspired, ‘and is profitable for doctrine, for reproof, for correction, for instruction in righteousness : that the man of God may be perfect, thoroughly furnished unto all good works.’

CHAPTER II.

On the Formation of the original Texts, and the means of improving them.

IN proportion to the intrinsic excellence, relative importance, and high claims of the holy scriptures, should be our care to obtain as correct original texts as present circumstances and means will admit. The Hebrew scriptures are unquestionably the most ancient extant, and they must have undergone many transcriptions previously to the Christian æra. It is natural to conclude that the five books of Moses, as containing the law given to the Israelites, detailing their history, recording events the most interesting to them as a nation, would be most frequently transcribed and copied. The ten commandments were written or cut in stone, and deposited in the ark, which from this was called the ark of the testimony. It is most probable that the whole of the books were written on skins prepared for the purpose : for the account of the tabernacle proves that the Israelites then understood the art of tanning and preparing skins for various purposes. Valuable Hebrew manuscripts, written on skins or leather, are still in existence.

In transcribing any work of such a length as the Pentateuch, it is next to impossible to avoid errors of various kinds ; and unless the manuscript should be most carefully revised and corrected, these errors would be transmitted to posterity. There is every reason to believe that the Jews used great care in transcribing their sacred books, and that previously to the Babylonish captivity, and while the Hebrew language continued to be their native tongue, they were preserved in a considerable degree of purity and perfection. In a living language errors committed in writing are sooner perceived and more easily corrected than in a dead language.

During the captivity they gradually lost their own language and acquired the Chaldee, that of the people among whom they lived. This may be considered as a kindred dialect of the Hebrew, having many words in common, but its inflections and structure are different; so that a person speaking the Chaldee would not understand one speaking the Hebrew. On the return of the Jews from Babylon to their own country, and the restoration of their civil and religious polity, it became necessary for their learned men to translate the Hebrew scriptures into the language which the people then spoke; and in reading the law, they first read a verse or sentence in Hebrew, and then gave the sense in Chaldee. It is supposed that this gave origin to the full point, called soph passuck.

Ezra, the priest and scribe, or one most skilful in the Hebrew language, and distinguished by his knowledge of the law, is said to have collected and revised the books of Moses, the prophets, and other sacred writings. On this occasion the holy scriptures were most probably written in the Chaldee square character, to which the Jews had become accustomed, and which they have continued to use ever since. Their old alphabet, now called the Samaritan, fell into pretty general disuse among them, while the Samaritans still retained it, and have transmitted it down to posterity, together with the Pentateuch, which book they only received as divine.

It has been supposed that Ezra inserted some of those remarks in the Pentateuch and historical books, which appear explanatory; such as giving the modern names of places, when the old ones had become obsolete; and occasionally adding after a new name, which is so called to this day.* See Prid. Con. vol. ii.

On the resettlement of the Jews in their own land, a plan was adopted for the general instruction of the people. Synagogues were built in the towns, and on the sabbath the people assembled there to hear the law read. The law, or five books of Moses, was divided into fifty-four sections, and one of these was read every sabbath. 'This division many of the Jews hold to be one of the constitutions of Moses from mount Sinai. But others with more probability attribute it to Ezra. And this, we are assured in the Acts of the Apostles, was done amongst them, Acts xv. 21, of old time, which may well be interpreted from the time of Ezra. They ended the last section with the last words of Deuteronomy, on the sabbath of the feast of tabernacles, and then began anew with the first section from the beginning of Genesis the next sabbath after, and so went round in this circle every year. The number of these sections was fifty-four, because, in their intercalated years, (a month being then added,) there were fifty-four sabbaths. On other years they reduced them to the number of the sabbaths which were in those years, by joining two short ones several times in one: for they held themselves obliged to have the whole law thus read over in their synagogues every year. Till the time of the persecution of Antiochus Epiphanes, they read only the law. But then being forbid to read it any more, in the room of the fifty-four sections of the law they substituted fifty-four sections out of the prophets, the reading of which they ever after continued. So that, when the reading of the law was again restored by the Maccabees, the section which was read every sabbath out of the law served for their first lesson, and the section out of the prophets for their second lesson; and so it was practised in the time of the apostles.'

Another division of the sacred scriptures was into the law, the prophets, and the hagiographæ. The first contained the five books of Moses, the second included Joshua, Judges, Ruth, Samuel, Kings, Isaiah, Jeremiah, Ezekiel, and the twelve minor prophets, Job, Ezra, Nehemiah, and Esther. The third, the Psalms, Proverbs, Ecclesiastes, and the Song of Solomon. This division obtained in the time of our Lord, Luke xxiv. 44. And Josephus makes mention of this same division. For he says, in his first book against Apion, 'We have only two and twenty books which are to be believed as of divine authority; of which, five are the books of Moses. From the death of Moses to the reign of Artaxerxes, the son of Xerxes, king of Persia, the prophets, who were the successors of Moses, have written in thirteen books. The remaining four books contain hymns to God and documents of life for the use of men.'

The general practice of reading the law and the prophets in the synagogues would necessarily multiply the copies of the Hebrew scriptures; and owing to the common casualties and

*As the authors of several books of the Old Testament are not mentioned, we are left to form our opinion, either from internal evidence, or from the hints or the direct testimony of subsequent writers. In reading the first four books, it is manifest, that there is a striking similarity in style; the same terms, the same idioms, the same figures occur. The least attention to the books of Exodus, Leviticus, Numbers, and Deuteronomy, must satisfy the candid and impartial that the author must have been an eye-witness of the facts which he narrates, and a principal agent in the occurrences which he describes. From a careful and repeated examination, I am satisfied that the first four books are both genuine and authentic; they were written by Moses, and contain a true account of events and circumstances as they happened. It is, however, certain that some few explanatory terms have been subsequently introduced; and it is also admitted that the account of the death of Moses was added by some later writer; but these additions cannot invalidate either their genuineness or authenticity. The book of Genesis may be considered as necessary to inform mankind of the origin of all things and of man, his happy state, his apostacy, the growing wickedness of mankind, the deluge, increase of mankind after, and the rise of the various ancient nations; but especially as giving the history of Abraham and of his descendants.

mistakes errors would creep in, omissions, repetitions, and the misspelling of words, would frequently, and, without a miracle, unavoidably occur. As many of the Hebrew letters are nearly alike, mistakes might arise from this cause; and as many of those who made transcripts might know but little of the language, they were in danger of forming words according to the language they spoke. The subversion of the Jewish state, the banishment of the people into other countries, the loss of their learned men, would all tend to the deterioration of the sacred volume; and notwithstanding the utmost care of such as remained, errors would multiply and become inveterate.

Some various readings of manuscripts had been early noticed, and it was usual to write them in the margin. These were called Keri, that is, the reader was admonished to read the word in the margin instead of that in the text, to which there was a reference. It is allowed that there are upwards of a thousand of these Keri. In the copies used by the eastern Jews who lived in Babylonia, there are found above two hundred variations from the copies used by the western Jews of Europe; and the collation of the existing Hebrew manuscripts by Kennicott and De Rossi has added a vast number to those before noticed. One thing contributed greatly to multiply and propagate errors in the manuscripts. The writers, when they found they had committed mistakes, suffered them to remain, lest they should injure the beauty of their copies, and thus diminish their value.

From the time of their dispersion, some of the learned Jews had employed themselves in writing their ancient customs and traditions, others in commenting upon them. In the second century these traditions and comments had increased to a mass, and Rabbi Judah, called hak-kodosh, or holy, methodized and digested them under certain heads, in six books, each containing several tracts. This work the Jews call Mishna, or the second law, which they pretend was orally delivered to Moses, by whom it was transmitted down through the elders till it was written. On this second law their learned men at Babylon, and in Judea, wrote comments, and produced what are called the Jerusalem and Babylonish Talmuds. These comments they call the Gemera, or complement, because by them the Mishna is explained and completed. The Mishna is the text, the Gemera the comment, and both together they call the Talmud. That of Babylon consists of twelve folio volumes. This work now forms the study of their learned men, and the law and the prophets are in a great degree neglected.

While the Hebrew scriptures were exposed to some unavoidable errors, divine providence appeared, both in preserving them and affording means for correcting them. Near three centuries before the Christian æra, a valuable Greek version of the Hebrew scriptures was made, at least of that part called the Pentateuch. And after this other persons translated the rest of the scriptures for the private use of the same people, and so the whole version, called the Septuagint, was completed. And after it was finished it was made use of among all the Hellenistical Jews, wherever they were dispersed among the Grecian cities. That this translation was made at different times, and by different persons, the various styles in which the several books are found written, the many ways in which the same Hebrew words and the same phrases are translated in different places, and the great accuracy to be observed in the translation of some of the books above others, are a full demonstration.

A translation of the books of the Old Testament, as well as those of the New, was made in the latter part of the first century, or the beginning of the second, into the Syriac, and another into the Latin. The former is a very literal version of the Hebrew, the translator rendering, as nearly as the idioms of the two languages would admit, word for word. De Rossi prefers this version to any other, on account of its purity. This old Syriac version is called the Peshito, or literal version, to distinguish it from another made by Philoxenus, about A. D. 508, and from him called the Philoxenian. This old version does not contain the second epistle of Peter, the second and third of John, Jude, and the Apocalypse. This proves that it was made before the canon of the New Testament was completed.

The old Latin version is now called the Itala, and is thus distinguished from the revision of it by Jerom. Some have supposed that it was made from the Septuagint; and in this view can only be brought to prove the readings of that version. The Vulgate, made up of the old Itala and Jerom's version, has preserved numerous valuable readings, and is now justly regarded as of the greatest importance in sacred criticism.

These versions of the Hebrew scriptures contributed much to prevent the introduction of material alterations, and had such been made they would have been detected and exposed. Another work ought also to be mentioned as equally important in this view, the Hexapla of Origen. This work consisted of six columns, the first containing the Hebrew text, in the Hebrew letters, the second in Greek characters, the third and fourth the Greek versions of Aquilla and Symmachus, the fifth the version of the Septuagint, and the sixth that of Theodotion. In this work he carefully distinguished the places where the Hebrew was deficient, or had nothing to answer the readings found in the Septuagint, and how the Septuagint differed from it in the readings retained. He supplied from the other versions where the Hebrew contained any word or words not found in the Septuagint. According to Montfaucon, this work was finished in the year 231. This important work was deposited in the library of the church of Cæsarea, in Judea, and is supposed to have perished when the city was taken by the Arabs in the year 653. Transcripts had been made of the old Septuagint, and of that, with the additions and alterations, made by Origen. One by Lucian was nearest the Koiné or old version, and was used at Constantinople, and as far as Antioch. Hesychius formed another, which was adopted at Alexandria and in all Egypt, and a third was formed by Pamphilus and Eusebius, which was adopted in Judea. It is probable that the edition of Hesychius was nearest the amended text of Origen, and in that of Pamphilus only some of the additions of that father were adopted. From these Editions we have received the two most celebrated manuscripts of the Greek version of the Old Testament, the Alexandrian and the Vatican. The former comes nearest to the Hexaplar copy, and the latter to the old version.

The Chaldee paraphrases or Targums next claim our notice. As the Jews in Alexandria and other Greek cities made and constantly used the Greek version, so the Jews who dwelt in Judea, Syria, and Babylon, made and used in their worship the Chaldee paraphrases. That of Onkelos on the Pentateuch is the most valuable, as it is a literal version of the Hebrew into the Chaldee. That of Jonathan is the most diffuse and paraphratical, but often of great use, as it gives us the opinion of the author, and probably that of the learned Jews of his own time, on many passages of the scriptures. These are both printed in the London Polyglott.

On the invention of the art of printing, the Hebrew psalter first issued from the press. This psalter is dated 1477, and is without points; the text is accompanied with the commentary of Kimchi. De Rossi describes another also without points, and which he supposes was printed in the same year as the former, or perhaps even earlier. The Pentateuch, printed at Bononia, with points, followed in the year 1482, and in the year 1486 the former and the latter prophets, without points, at Soncino, and the Hagiographæ at Naples, with points, the year following. These three formed a complete edition of the Hebrew scriptures, printed, as is nearly certain, from different manuscript copies.

In the year following, 1488, was published a complete edition in folio, at Soncino, with points, and in 1494, another at Brescia. In 1518 Felix Pratensis edited an edition which was printed by Bomberg, at Venice, and in 1526 Ben Chaim edited another edition, which issued from the same press. A second edition was published in 1549, and this last is considered as the standard edition, according to which all the later ones have been formed, with some few and trifling variations. That of Vander Hooght, printed at Amsterdam, in four volumes octavo, 1705, has been justly deemed the most correct of those which have followed that of Ben Chaim, though Kennicott and others have noted some typographical errors.

The accuracy of the printed text depends on the manuscript or manuscripts which the editor used, and on his fidelity in following them. If these were imperfect, so must the printed edition. The Jews indeed asserted, and most Christians too credulously admitted the truth of their assertion, that their Hebrew manuscripts were uniform, and without any various readings. Some learned men, however, soon observed that there existed considerable difference between the Samaritan copy of the Pentateuch and the printed text, and that in many instances the Greek version agreed with the former. Morinus attacked this singular opinion, Capellus followed, and exhausted the subject in his Critica Sacra. He compared the printed Hebrew with the old versions, and, in a manner the most satisfactory, proved that errors had obtained in the former, and ought to be corrected.

At length Kennicott commenced his important work of collating all the Hebrew manuscripts which he could obtain. De Rossi followed him, and has nearly done all that we can expect. From these collations the general opinion among the learned is, 'first, that all Hebrew manuscript copies now extant may, in some sort, be called Masoretic copies, because none of them have entirely escaped the rude hands of Masorets: secondly, that the most valuable manuscripts, generally speaking, are those which are oldest, written at first without points or accents, containing the greatest number of real vowels, or matres lectionis, exhibiting marks of an accurate transcriber, and conforming most to the ancient versions, and, with regard to the Pentateuch, conforming most to the Samaritan exemplar and the Greek un-interpolated version: thirdly, that the Masoretic copies often disagree, and that the further they go back the greater is their disagreement from the present printed copy: fourthly, that the synagogue rolls disagree the least with the printed copies, so that they are of little value in ascertaining the text. From all this they conclude, that the surest sources of emendation are a collation of manuscripts and parallel places, a comparison of the text with the ancient versions, and of these with one another ; grammatical analogy, and, where all these fail, even conjectural criticism.'

The Greek manuscripts of the New Testament suffered by the mistakes of transcribers, in the same manner as those of the Old. Cardinal Ximenes printed an edition of the whole Bible in several languages, and in this edition was contained a copy of the Greek Testament. This is called the Complutensian edition. This was printed in the beginning of the sixteenth century, but not licensed for publication before 1522. The manuscripts from which it was published were modern, and are now considered of little value. In 1516 Erasmus printed his first edition of the Greek Testament, from a few manuscripts he met with at Basle in Switzerland. He published three other editions, in the last of which he introduced many of the readings of the Complutensian.

Next appeared the edition of Robert Stephens, at Paris, in which he mostly followed Erasmus, introducing a few readings from some Greek manuscripts in the royal library. He was the first who divided the New Testament into verses. In 1558 Beza published an edition with many various readings, from some excellent manuscripts which he possessed. From this edition the English version was made. In 1624 an edition was printed at Leyden, by the Elzevirs, nearly after Stephens, with a few readings from that of Beza, and this is now considered the received text.

The same means have been adopted to correct the received text of the New Testament which have been noticed respecting that of the Old. The most valuable, because the most ancient, manuscripts have been accurately collated, and every variation from the received text noticed and stated. The old versions of the Syriac, the Coptic, the Ethiopic, the Arabic, and the Vulgate have been examined, and quotations from the New Testament by the Greek fathers have been compared and applied to illustrate and improve the received text. Mill, after thirty years' application, printed his Greek Testament, with various readings, in 1707. Kuster, at Amsterdam, republished Mill's work, with some additional readings, in 1710. Bengel published at Tubingen, in 1734, a valuable edition, with some select various readings taken from Mill, and some from manuscripts examined by himself.

In the year 1751, 1752, Wetstein published his most valuable edition of the Greek Testament. He was indefatigable in his labour, and examined with the greatest accuracy the most valuable manuscripts. 'Underneath the various readings in this edition are printed his notes. These are numerous and invaluable. They are philological, critical, and explanatory. They contain a great number of parallel passages from the classics, and of quotations from the Talmudists, which tend to elucidate the idioms of the language and the customs of the Jews. They are accompanied with many judicious observations, and supply an inexhaustible fund of theological and critical information.'

Three other critical editions followed ; that of Matthai, in twelve volumes octavo, containing all the various readings of the Moscow manuscripts, some of which are of great antiquity. Alter, of Vienna, published an edition from a manuscript in the Imperial library, in 1786, and professor Birch of Copenhagen the four gospels in folio and quarto. At length the Greek Testament, by Dr. J. J. Griesbach, was published. The first edition in 1775 and 1777, in two volumes octavo, the second edition, very much enlarged and improved, in 1796 and 1806. 'In the construction of this admirable work the learned editor had two objects in view. The first was to exhibit to the public a text of the Greek Testament as correct and as nearly approximating to its original purity as it could be made by the assistance of that immense quantity of critical materials which had been accumulating during the last century ; and, secondly, to compress a great mass of critical information into as narrow a compass as possible, in order to bring it within the reach of those who could not afford either the time, the labour, or the expense which would be necessary to collect it from those numerous and expensive volumes in which it was diffused.'

From the sources mentioned, the learned are now furnished with a nearly correct text of the New Testament, and with ample means of correcting that of the Old in most cases of importance. Of what use to the world are these stores of sacred literature, unless applied to their legitimate purpose, the improvement of the authorized version ? Men of the first talents for piety and learning have long desired it, but as yet nothing has been done by authority ; and from the present state of public opinion it is to be feared nothing will be done.

CHAPTER III.

On the various English Versions of the Holy Scriptures.

THE first English versions were made from the Latin Vulgate only. Such were the Saxon versions and that of Wickliffe, for the original scriptures were then unknown. William Tyndale* was the first who undertook to translate the scriptures into English at the reformation. He published the New Testament at Antwerp in 1526, and the Dutch reprinted three editions of it, with some alterations by George Jaye, an English refugee, in 1527, 1528, 1530. Tyndale printed a second edition in 1534, and having translated the Pentateuch and the historical books as far as Nehemiah, they were printed at Halle, 1552, 1553. Coverdale at home laboured to complete what Tyndale had begun, and in the year 1535 the whole Bible was finished at the press. In 1547 another edition was published abroad, with some few corrections, under the feigned name of Matthewe. In 1540 archbishop Cranmer published a new edition, which he had corrected in some places, and to which he wrote a preface. This is called Cranmer's Bible.† In 1553 Edward the sixth died, and was succeeded by Mary, who immediately restored the popish service and sacraments, and persecuted the friends of the reformation with such cruelty that many of them fled into foreign countries, among whom was Coverdale, who, in Edward's reign, had been made bishop of Exeter. He and some others fixed their residence at Geneva, where they employed themselves in making a translation of the Bible. They began with the New Testament, which they published in duodecimo, printed with a small but beautiful letter. In 1557. This is the first printed edition of the New Testament in which the verses of the chapters are distinguished by numeral figures and breaks.

Strype, in the annals of the reformation, tells us, that the Geneva brethren, after publishing their New Testament, proceeded to revise the Old. But not having finished it when Elizabeth came to the throne, some of them staid behind the rest to complete their design. And having finished the Old Testament, they published the whole Bible at Geneva, in quarto, in the year 1560, printed by Rowland Hill. This is what is commonly called the Geneva Bible. The Geneva Bible was so universally used in private families, that there were above thirty editions of it, in folio, quarto, and octavo, printed from the year 1560 to the year 1616.‡

* He was born towards the close of the fifteenth century on the borders of Wales, but nothing is recorded of his family. He was educated at Magdalen-hall, Oxford, where he read private lectures in divinity to some of the students. He afterwards removed to Wolsey's New College of Christ Church, whence he was expelled for embracing the doctrines of Luther. He then became a private tutor in Sir John Welsh's family, and occasionally preached in the city of Bristol. He uniformly avowed his principles, and was much persecuted by the popish clergy. This obliged him to go to London, where he seems to have formed the design of translating the New Testament into English, and which, with unwearied diligence, he soon accomplished. It is certain that Tyndale was as good a Greek scholar as the most of his age, and had made some progress in the knowledge of Hebrew. In his preface to the second edition of his New Testament, he says, 'If ought seme changed (from the former) or not altogether agryng with the Greke, let the finder of the fauie consider the Hebrue phrase or manner of speeche left in the Greke words, whose preterperfect tense and present tense, is oft both one, and the future tense is the optative mode also, and oft the imperative mode in the active voice, and in the passive even. Likewise, person for person, number for number, and interrogation for a conditional, and such like, is with the Hebrues a common usage.'

Tyndale particularly offended the clergy by translating what were called the sacred terms. He uniformly rendered congregation instead of church, senior for priest, love for charity, repentance for penance. These renderings were considered full of heretical pravity, as they divested the subjects to which they related of that mystery with which priestcraft had surrounded them. The learned but bigoted Sir Thomas More was induced to write down Tyndale's translation, and defend the existing superstitions; but Tyndale vindicated his work, and showed that, if he had not the wit of Sir Thomas, he had sound sense, genuine piety, and the truth on his side. This version of the New Testament was the basis of all that followed, down to that of James's, and in many instances is more just to the text, and more simple and perspicuous than our present authorized one. Tyndale, after passing his life in perils, was seized at Antwerp, by order of the emperor of Austria, and at length was condemned, for his heresy and sin in translating the holy scriptures, to be strangled and burnt. He displayed, during his imprisonment and in his last moments, the power and influence of divine truth.

† The book of Psalms now used in the liturgy is after Cranmer's Bible, which differs from Coverdale's in very few places.

‡ The persons employed in this work, besides Coverdale, were Anthony Gibby, William Whittingham, Christopher Woodman, Thomas Sampson, and Thomas Cole. They enjoyed at Geneva the friendship, and occasionally the society, of Calvin, Beza, and other learned men. They were all men of learning, and zealous for the spread of divine truth. They pursued their important work with diligence, and produced the best English version, take it throughout, which has yet appeared. It is more literal than Tyndale's or Coverdale's, but scarcely any where so absurdly literal as the version now in use. The authors tell us, that "where the Hebrew speech seemed hardly to agree with ours, we noted in the margin, using (in the text) that which was more intelligible." Some thousands of passages might be produced where this version excels in propriety, noble simplicity, and perspicuity the authorized one. What chiefly offended James and the high church party in this version were the notes, which indicated a strong but just sense of freedom. They Queen Mary dying in November, 1558, was succeeded by Elizabeth, who, treading in the steps of her brother Edward VI., suppressed the Romish superstition in all her dominions, and filled the sees with Protestants. After this, archbishop Matthew Parker, having represented to the queen that many churches either were without Bibles, or had incorrect copies, she resolved that a revival and correction of the former translation should be made, in order to publication. The archbishop therefore appointed some of the most learned of the bishops and others to revise the Bible commonly used, and to compare it with the originals; and to each of them he assigned a particular book of scripture, with directions not to vary from the former translation except where it was not agreeable to the original, and to add marginal notes for explaining the difficult texts, reserving to himself the oversight of the whole. A revival of the English Bible on the same plan had been proposed by Cranmer, but it was never undertaken. Parker was more successful in his attempt. The persons employed by Parker performed their tasks with such cheerfulness, that the whole was ready for the press some time before the year 1563: for in that year the Bible of the bishops' revival was printed in a very elegant manner, with a beautiful English letter, on a royal paper, in a large folio, by Richard Jugge, the queen's printer. This Bible, on account of the corrections which the bishops made, was called the Bishops' Bible, and was authorized to be read in the churches.

In the year 1604, king James appointed a number of learned men to revise and correct the Bishops' Bible. From the injunctions or rules given respecting this work, it is clear that the learned men employed were not left to follow their own unbiassed judgment. The chief of these were, first, the ordinary Bible read in the churches, commonly called the Bishops' Bible, to be followed and as little altered as the original would permit. Third, the old ecclesiastical words to be kept: as the word church not to be translated congregation, &c. Fifth, the division of the chapters to be altered either not at all or as little as might be. Sixth: no marginal notes to be affixed, but only for explaining the Hebrew and the Greek words, which could not be expressed in the text without some circumlocution. Fourteenth: the translation of Tyndale, Coverdale, Matthewe, Whitechurch, (the great Bible,) and Geneva, to be used where they agree better with the original than the Bishops' Bible.

From this statement it is clear that the authorized version was only revised by the persons employed by James: but as this revision was made by some of the most learned men of that period, it is probable that it contains as faithful a representation of the original scriptures as could then be made. But when we consider, says Dr. Marsh, the immense accession which has been since made, both to our critical and to our philological apparatus, when we consider that the whole class of literature, commencing with the London Polyglott and continued to Griesbach's Testament, was collected subsequently to that period, when we consider that the most important sources of intelligence for the interpretation of the original were likewise opened after that period, we cannot possibly pretend that our authorized version does not require amendment.

spoke of tyrants as the instruments of God's wrath, but as having no right or title in reason or scripture to absolute power. They even justified the deposition of kings for misrule. These sentiments were opposed to the high notions of James, and it is probable that this alone gave rise to the present version. James was so afraid of marginal notes that he charged the persons he employed not to write any.

PART II.

CHAPTER I.

On the Principles and Form of the Hebrew Republic, and the Religious Polity of Moses.

WHEN the family of Abraham had become numerous, it was impossible that they could live together without some laws, or customs which obtained the force of laws. These customs had partly been handed down to them by tradition, and partly derived from divine communications to that Patriarch. On examining the laws of Moses there will be found a frequent reference to known customs or to an ancient consuetudinary law. The laws of Moses were not given in a systematic form, but occasionally, as circumstances demanded. There is one particular which cannot fail to strike an attentive reader; it is, that Moses gave laws to a people who were at the time without a country, and yet his laws, in a great degree, were designed for that country to which he was conducting them. He must then have been under a divine direction, and have been fully persuaded that God would accomplish the promises made to his fathers.

The fundamental principle of the Mosaic law was the maintenance of the worship of one God, and the proscription of polytheism. By the covenant made with Abraham and the ordinance of circumcision, the Israelites were in a measure already devoted to Jehovah, but Jehovah having miraculously delivered them from Egypt acquired a new right to their obedience and devotion. He became their peculiar sovereign and king: see Deut. xxxiii. 5, and 1 Sam. viii. 7. Hence he gave them laws, through the mediation of Moses, which were to be of perpetual obligation so long as their state endured. The judges, in administering these laws, were considered as holy persons, and as sitting in the place of God, Deut. i. 17, and xix. 17. The judges were principally taken from the tribe of Levi, and the chief expounder of the law was the high priest. In particular cases God made known his will by prophets, and the people were bound to hearken to their voice. And on some occasions God was consulted by Urim and Thummim. In all these cases God appears as king, ruling the people by his appointed ministers.

Another fundamental principle of the Mosaic law was the prevention of intercourse between the Israelites and foreign nations. The prevalence of idolatry among other nations rendered this necessary, to secure the great object of the Jewish law already mentioned, and many of the peculiar laws will, on this principle, be found wisely adapted to secure this end.

The form of the Hebrew republic was democratical. Moses, on giving his laws, convened the whole congregation of the Israelites, and he is said to have spoken to the whole congregation. It must, however, be observed, that he could not possibly be heard by six hundred thousand men; and from this circumstance we conclude that he only addressed a certain number deputed to represent the rest of the Israelites. These representatives are denominated, Num. i. 16, קראי העדה, those wont to be called to the assembly. In Numbers xvi. 2, they are styled נשיאי עדה קראי מיד, chiefs of the congregation, those wont to be called to the assembly. Who these persons were may be collected from Deut. xxix. 9, and Josh. xxiii. 2. They were heads of tribes and families, and judges and officers. The former seem to have a natural right to this honour, and the other to have a right from the office they discharged.

1. All the various branches of Abraham's descendants, like the ancient Germans or the Scottish clans, kept together in a body, according to their tribes and families, every tribe forming a small commonwealth with its own peculiar interests, and all of them at last uniting in one great republic. The tribes were subdivided into certain greater (משפחות) families, and less called (בתי אבות) houses of fathers; and each of these had their heads or chiefs. These are most probably the persons called elders in the two passages above referred to, Josh. xxiii. 2, and xxiv. 1; comp. also Deut. xix. 12, and xxi. 1—9. There is no hint how these heads or chiefs of families were chosen when any of them died. Most probably the honour was transmitted by descent. The princes or chiefs of tribes do not seem to have ceased with the commencement at least of the monarchy. I find them still subsisting in the time of David, 1 Chron. xvii. 16—22, and they must have proved a powerful restraint on the authority of the king.*

2. The judges had also a right from their office to be present in the convention of the state. Moses himself was, for some time, the sole judge in Israel; but from the advice of Jethro,

* It will now be easily conceivable how the Israelitish state might have subsisted, not only without a king, but even his father-in-law, he appointed judges of tens, of hundreds, and of thousands, allowing of an appeal from one to another and lastly to himself. Of the judges of tens there must have been sixty thousand, of the judges of hundreds six thousand, and of those of thousands six hundred. It is not probable that all these attended the convention of the state, or had a right to attend. From the use of the term אֵלֶּף it is not improbable that the judges of thousands only had this right, as it denotes a thousand and a leader or chief. After the Jews had entered Canaan, some difference in this respect was appointed by Moses. They were to constitute judges in every city, Deut. xvi. 18. And in their history we find frequent mention made of the elders of cities, who were, doubtless, persons of rank and authority. In the wilderness God commanded Moses to choose out seventy of the elders of Israel to assist him in the government. They do not seem to have formed a court of justice, but to have been a kind of council to Moses.

3. The persons named שֹׁטְרִים, and rendered scribes, also attended the convention of the Israelites. They were different from the judges, for Moses expressly ordained that they should not only appoint judges, but scribes in every city, Deut. xvi. 18. Officers thus called we find among the Israelites in Egypt, Exod. v. 6—14. They are with probability thought to have kept the genealogical tables of the Israelites, and to have had the duty of appointing the public burdens and services on the people individually. After the tribe of Levi was separated to the service of God, and by their profession bound to the cultivation of literature, these scribes were generally, if not always, chosen from that tribe. In time of war they seem to have had the duty of conveying the orders to the army, Deut. xx. 5; and in the second of Chronicles, xxvi. 11, we have the chief scribe, who in modern times would be called the master-master-general. Comp. also Deut. xxix. 10, and xxxi. 28; Josh. viii. 33, and xxv. 2.

4. The first head of this republic under God after Moses was Joshua, their military leader. He was divinely appointed to conduct the people to Canaan, and when he had accomplished this his office ceased, as we do not find that the Israelites chose any one in his room. Afterwards they had judges who seem to have been particularly raised up as leaders of the people. It was generally some remarkable deed of valour, which aroused the courage of his fellow-citizens and attached them to him, that led to this honourable office. Some seem to have been judges only over particular tribes*.

5. Moses allowed the Israelites to appoint a king at a future period, and gave laws for that purpose, Deut. xvii. 14—20. He supposed that the people would be desirous to follow the example of other nations. He left to the people the right of choice, but with this limitation, that they must never elect a foreigner. This was a patriotic law, but did not apply to the case of the nation being subjected to a foreign prince by the force of arms, as the Pharisees explained it in the time of our Lord. The king was, in some sense, to be chosen by God, ver. 15; which implied, at least, that he would make known his will respecting the person, by some prophet. Thus the first king was chosen by lot, 1 Sam. x. 17, &c. The family of Saul being rejected, David and his house were chosen, and the prophet anointed him to be king, during Saul's reign; but after his death he was chosen by all the tribes. The king was not to multiply horses, as cavalry would be of little use in a mountainous country like Judea; nor was he to amass private riches, lest the liberties of the people should be endangered. He was not to take many wives: no law was less regarded than this. The kings of Israel were by no means absolute. On the election of Saul, Samuel prepared a declaration of rights, according to which the king was to govern, 1 Sam. x. 25; and when the eleven tribes submitted to David, we again find express mention of a compact or covenant, 2 Sam. v. 3. The ten tribes proposed to Rehoboam some new stipulations, to which he refused to accede, and in consequence they revolted; nor are they blamed for this, but for their idolatry and defection from God.

occasionally without that magistrate who was denominated a judge, although we read of no supreme council of the nation. Every tribe had always its own chief magistrate, subordinate to whom again were the heads of families; and if there was no general ruler of the whole people, there were yet twelve less commonwealths who, in certain cases, united together, and whose general convention would take measures for their common interest.

* In many cases particular tribes acted as distinct and independent republics, not only when there was neither king nor judge, but even in the times of the kings. We find that wars were carried on by particular tribes: see Josh. xvii. 14—18; Judg. iv. 10; and chaps. xviii. xix. xx. But the most remarkable example, perhaps, is in 1 Chron. v. 18—23, where the two tribes and a half beyond Jordan, even during the reign of Saul, carried on a very important war by themselves, in which, indeed, the rest of the people of Israel took so little share, that Samuel has not so much as noticed it in Saul's history, although it was a far more splendid event than all his achievements put together. In 1 Chron. iv. 41—43, we read, in like manner, of wars carried on by the single tribe of Simeon, in the reign of Hezekiah.

* In perusing the book of Judges it has appeared to me as highly probable that some of the judges therein mentioned ruled not over all Israel, but merely over particular tribes. In the ninth chapter Abimelech is properly king of Shechem. In chap. xi. we see the Gileadites choosing Jephthah as judge, and general without troubling themselves about the concurrence of the other tribes. The Ephraimites, it is true, soon after commenced a war with them, but not on account of this election of Jephthah, but because they had not called for their aid against the Canaanites, thus treating them with contempt, and depriving them of their share of plunder, Judg. xii. 1—3. Whoever reads the history of Samson attentively will hardly be disposed to acknowledge him as a judge or consul of the whole nation of Israel, but only as a brave defender of the western tribes against the attacks of the Philistines. —Michaëlis' Comment, vol. i. p. 235.

CHAPTER II.

Religious Polity.—On the Tabernacle.

1. FROM Exod. xxxiii. 7, &c. it appears that Moses had pitched a tent in the midst of the camp of the Israelites, where he resided, heard causes, and inquired of God; but in consequence of the sin of the people in making the golden calf, he removed it without the camp, and called it the Convention-tent. The people went thither to consult God by him. It is not improbable that Moses offered sacrifice and performed other religious services here, until the tabernacle was made. Here God met with him, and spoke to him. Compare ver. 7—11.

2. The tabernacle was not the invention of Moses; the pattern of it, and all that belonged to it, were shown to him on the mountain. The design of it was, that God might dwell there as the king of Israel, and that the people might there offer their sacrifices, and perform the most solemn duties of religion. The form of it was an oblong rectangular figure, thirty cubits long, ten broad, and ten in height, which, according to Dr. Cumberland, who supposes it the Egyptian cubit, was fifty-five feet long, eighteen broad, and eighteen high. In what manner it was formed, and of what various and costly materials, we have a full account, Exod. xxvi. xxvii. xxxvi. See Witsius and Calmet on the Tabernacle.

3. The inside of the tabernacle was divided into two rooms, by means of a veil or curtain hung upon four pillars. This veil was made of the richest stuff, both for matter and workmanship, and adorned with cherubs and other ornaments curiously embroidered upon it. It does not appear, in the Scripture account, at what distance from either end of the tabernacle this veil was hung; but it is reasonably conjectured that it divided the tabernacle, in the same proportion in which the temple, afterwards built according to its model, was divided; that is, two-thirds of the whole length were allotted to the first room, and one-third to the second; so that the room beyond the veil, which was called the holy of holies, was exactly square, being ten cubits each way; and the first room, called the sanctuary, was twice as long as broad.

4. Round the tabernacle there was a spacious area, or court, of a hundred cubits long and fifty broad, surrounded with pillars, set in bases of brass, and filleted with silver, at the distance of five cubits from one another. So that there were twenty pillars on each side, and ten at each end of the court. These pillars had silver hooks, on which the hangings were fastened that formed the inclosure of the court. These hangings were of fine twined linen, Exod. xxvii. 9.

5. Within the court were placed the altar of burnt-offering and the brazen laver. The altar was five cubits square and three high, Exod. xxvii. 1. At the corners it had prominences, called horns, ver. 2; Ps. cxviii. 27. On this all the sacrifices were consumed; and the fire, which at first descended from heaven, was continually preserved. The laver is described in chap. xxx. 15—21. It was capacious, and designed for the priests to wash themselves in before they approached the altar.

6. In the sanctuary, or first room of the tabernacle, were placed, first, the altar of incense, Exod. xxx. 1—10; second, the golden chandelier, chap. xxv. 31—39; and third, the table of presence-bread, chap. xxv. 23—30. In the most holy place was put the ark, with its cover, called the mercy-seat, at the ends of which stood two cherubs with expanded wings, Exod. xxv. 10—22. In this ark were put the two tables of the law; and beside it the book of the law, Deut. xxxi. 26, the pot of manna, and Aaron's rod, which had budded. The temple of Solomon was built after the model of the tabernacle, only its dimensions were larger.

CHAPTER III.

On the Priests, Levites, and Prophets.

1. THE priesthood was given to Aaron and his sons in perpetuity. Aaron was consecrated by Moses, Levit. viii. 1, &c. as the first high-priest, and his sons officiated under him. Their office was to offer the sacrifices, burn incense, and bless the people. It was made a capital crime for any other to perform these offices, Num. xvi. 10; 2 Chron. xxvi. 16—21. The prophets might and did offer sacrifices, as Samuel, &c. The high-priest only was permitted to enter into the holy of holies, and that but once in the year, Levit. xvi. 1, &c.

2. The dress of the high-priest was most splendid. The following belonged to priests in common:—1. Fine cotton drawers, to cover their nakedness, Exod. xxviii. 42. 2. Tunics, made of the same material, Exod. xxxix. 27. It is thought that they reached down to the feet,

Rev. i. 13. 3. The girdle, also made of cotton, Exod. xxviii. 42. Josephus informs us that it went twice round the waist, and was tied in a knot before, with the ends hanging down. It was made hollow, and served for a purse as well as a girdle, Matt. x. 9. 4. The turban, made of cotton, Exod. xxviii. 40. The form of these varied at different periods. These priestly garments were all white, and designed to remind them of that moral purity which their office obliged them to cultivate. When Aaron went into the most holy place, he was clothed only in these white garments, Levit. xvi. 4; compare Rev. iii. 5, iv. 4, vii. 9, 13, &c. The following were peculiar to the high-priest—1. The blue robe, worn over the cotton tunic, Exod. xxviii. 31—34. The form and use of it are specified. 2. The ephod, which appears to have been like a modern spencer, and worn by persons of distinction, 1 Sam. ii. 18, xxii. 18; 2 Sam. vi. 14. This ephod of the high-priest was made of the richest materials, Exod. xxviii. 5, 6. It had two shoulder-pieces, in which were set two onyx-stones, and the names of the sons of Israel engraved thereon. 3. The breast-plate of judgment, Exod. xxviii. 15—29. This seems to have been designed to represent his office as supreme judge, that he should equally regard the interest of all the Israelites, and decide impartially. Compare Ephes. vi. 14, and Isa. lix. 17; 2 Cor. vi. 7, and 1 Thess. v. 8. 4. The mitre with its golden petal, on which was engraved קֹדֶשׁ לַיהוָה, HOLY TO JEHOVAH, emphatically expressing the honour and the duty of the high-priest. To the breast-plate belonged the Urim and Thummim, which the Septuagint renders ‘manifestation and truth.’ What these were, it is impossible certainly to decide. Some think the stones of the breast-plate are meant; others, teraphs inclosed in it; Geddes, images of justice and truth; and Michaelis, three sacred lots, one of which implied the affirmative, another the negative, and the third blank. He founds his opinion on the use of the word תְּמִימִים, 1 Sam. xiv. 41. Moses gives no direction for making the Urim and Thummim, which naturally suggests that they were well known, and tends to support the opinion of Michaelis.

3. The priests were solemnly consecrated to their office. 1. Both Aaron and his sons were to be purified by ablution, Exod. xxix. 4; comp. Matt. iii. 15. 2. They were anointed with the holy unction, Exod. xxx. 30; Num. iii. 3. It is clear that every high-priest was anointed on his entering on his office, Levit. iv. 3; but it does not appear that the ordinary priests were, after their first anointing with Aaron, their father. The holy unction is described, Exod. xxx. 23—25. 3. They were clothed with the holy garments. The high-priest and the other priests wore these garments only when they performed their sacred functions, Exod. xxviii. 43. 4. Their consecration was completed by offering certain prescribed sacrifices, Exod. xxix. and comp. with Levit. viii. In the time of David, the priests had become so numerous that, by divine direction, he divided them into twenty-four courses, each course serving by rotation for a week, 1 Chron. xxiv. Each course had its respective head or chief, of whom there were sixteen of the posterity of Eleazar and eight of Ithamar. These heads or chiefs are thought to be those called chief-priests by the Evangelists. Comp. Matt. xvi. 21, xxvii. 12, 41; John vii. 32, xviii. 3; Acts ix. 14, &c.

4. The Levites were divided, according to Levi's three sons, Kohath, Gershon, and Merari, into three classes; and their office, on the erection of the tabernacle, was to assist the priests, by slaughtering victims, and providing and preparing whatever was necessary for the service. They entered on their office at the age of twenty-five, and at thirty were deemed properly instructed to perform every part of it. At the age of fifty they ceased to wait on the service of the tabernacle. They were consecrated to this service, Num. viii. 5—22. 1. They were to be purified, their flesh shaved, and their clothes washed. 2. Aaron was to offer them to Jehovah as the offering of the Israelites. 3. They were to be set apart by the imposition of the hands of Israel, or as some think by them, through their elders or chiefs of their tribes. This ceremony was afterwards used at the appointment of a person either to a civil or sacred office, Num. xxvii. 18; Acts vi. 6, xiii. 2, 3. In the wilderness, like the priests, they dwelt around the tabernacle, and formed a kind of guard to it and to Moses. When the Israelites marched, they took down and carried the various parts of the tabernacle; and when they encamped they reared it up, Num. iv. &c. David divided the Levites into three classes: the first waited upon the priests, the sons of Aaron, 1 Chron. xxii. 28, 29; 2 Chron. xxix. 34, xxxv. 10—14; the second formed the choir of singers in the temple, and were divided into twenty-four courses, 1 Chron. xxv.; and the third class were the porters at the gates of the temple, and attended by courses, 2 Chron. xxxv. 15.

5. Neither the priests nor the Levites had any part of the land of Canaan. They had forty-eight cities with their suburbs assigned to them, thirteen of which belonged to the priests and thirty-five to the Levites, Deut. xviii. 1; Num. xxxv. 1—8; Josh. xxi. Dr. Lightfoot considers these cities as seats of learning, where the Levitical tribes studied the law, and diffused the knowledge of it through the nation. They were supported partly by the land around their cities, but chiefly by the tithe paid by the other tribes, Num. xviii. 21. This tithe consisted both of the produce of the land and of the live-stock, Levit. xxvii. 30; 2 Chron. xxxi. 5, 6. The Levites paid out of this tithe one-tenth to the priest, Num. xviii. 25—28. There was a second tithe, the produce of which the people were to employ in feast-offerings, Deut. xii. 17, 18, xiv. 22—27; Levit. xxvii. 31. To these feasts the Levites were invited. The priests had also certain parts of all sin and trespass offerings. The tithes of the field might be purchased by the owner, Levit. xxvii. 32, 33, but those of cattle could not.

6. Prophets were extraordinary characters whom God raised up from time to time, and to and by whom he revealed his will. In this sense the patriarchs were prophets, as to them he made the most interesting promises; but Moses is considered as the most eminent, because God spoke to him with an audible voice. He foretold that God would raise up a prophet like to him, &c., Deut. xviii. 15—22. The term prophet is applied to Aaron, because he delivered what Moses made known to him. Thus Heman and Jeduthun are said to prophesy on harps, &c., 1 Chron. xxv. 1; because they sung prophetic hymns, 1 Sam. x. 5, 10. Hence the schools of the prophets, where persons were taught sacred literature and sang the praises of God. Perhaps this may explain 1 Cor. xi. 5, as praising seems naturally connected with praying.

7. The true prophets were men of great piety, lived a mortified life, and were fervent in prayer, Gen. xx. 7. Their prayers had great efficacy, Jerem. xxvii. 18; comp. xv. 1 and xiv. 1. They generally wore rough garments, perhaps of camel's hair, like the Baptist. The history of Elijah and Elisha proves that they sometimes verified their character by working miracles; and all of them by the sanctity of their lives and the truth of their predictions. They were often persecuted for their fidelity; and not a few sealed their prophetic mission with their blood.

CHAPTER IV.

On Sacrifices, Offerings, and Feasts.

1. SACRIFICES and offerings were presented to God from the fall of man, and no doubt were of divine institution. It is impossible to account for the origin of sacrifices on any principles of reason; for what connexion is there in human reason between the slaughter and burning of an animal, and the forgiveness of sin? How can it be supposed reasonable that an offender should remove God's displeasure, and procure his favour, by killing, unauthorized, one of his creatures? The only proper view of this subject seems to be, that God appointed animal sacrifices strongly to represent the punishment due to sin; and graciously admitted the substitution of the victim for the offender, by the offering of which his anger was appeased, the offender pardoned, and admitted to his favour; and that such animal sacrifice had this effect, not for its own sake, but as typical of the Lamb, that victim which God, in infinite wisdom and love, had destined to be offered for the sins of the world. This view is clearly founded on the language of the New Testament; and it gives dignity and importance to the patriarchal and Mosaic sacrifices.

2. Sacrifices are divided into four kinds:—1. The burnt-offering, which was wholly consumed. This appears to be the first species of sacrifice offered, and all those of the patriarchs were most probably of this kind. This was regarded as the most excellent, Levit. i. 1, &c. 2. The sin-offering, Levit. iv. The term חטאת denotes both sin and a sacrifice to expiate it; so the Greek term ἁμαρτία, 2 Cor. v. 21; Rom. viii. 3. These sacrifices were offered for sins of ignorance, Levit. iv. 2, &c.; for legal pollutions, as cleansing a leper, ch. xiv. 19; purifying a woman after child-bearing, ch. xii. 6, and others, ch. xv. 19, 29, 30. Only certain fat pieces of these offerings were consumed on the altar; the rest was the portion of the priests. They were offered every new moon, during the passover week, at the feast of trumpets and of booths, Num. xxviii. xxix. Some sin-offerings, like the burnt-offerings, were wholly consumed, not on the altar, but without the camp; as those offered for the sin of the high-priest, for the sin of the whole congregation, and on the day of expiation, Levit. iv. 2—6. To the two last the offering of Christ is compared, 2 Cor. v. 21; Heb. xiii. 11, 12; Levit. xvi. 27. 3. The trespass or guilt-offerings. It is not easy to discover in what these differed from the former. Michaelis supposes the former refers to sins of commission, and these to those of omission; Geddes, that the guilt-offerings relate to offences of criminal carelessness, Levit. v. 1, &c. 4. The feast-offerings, the fat of the victims being consumed on the altar, a small part being given to the priests, the remainder was eaten by the offerer and his friends.

3. Sacrifices were limited to three kinds of cattle, the beeve kind, and sheep and goats. No wild beasts, though clean, and what might be slaughtered for food, were allowed to be sacrificed, Deut. xii. 15, 22, &c. All clean birds might be offered; but doves and pigeons were the most common, Levit. xiv. 4—7. These sacrifices were either offered for the whole people, as the morning and evening sacrifice, daily, and those of new moons and other feasts; or for individuals, as the paschal lamb, the high-priest's sin-offering for himself, and others for particular offences, vows, &c. With the sin and guilt-offerings and other sacrifices, wheaten-offerings and drink-offerings were presented. They are described in Levit. ii. &c.

4. These sacrifices and offerings were to be offered at the tabernacle only. This was the place to which they were to bring their gifts and oblations, Levit. xvii. 8, 9. The ark and tabernacle were long fixed at Shiloh, then at Kirjath-jearim, and afterwards in Zion. When the ark was taken out with the troops to battle, sacrifices were offered before it in any place, and when it was transferred into the temple then they were offered there. In every period of the Jewish history till the captivity we find them transgressing the law on this point. They sacrificed on the high-places, and frequently to idols, for which their historians and their prophets so often blamed them and denounced the most heavy judgments against them.

5. The feasts of the Jews were either weekly, as the sabbath, or monthly, as the new-moons, or annual, as the passover, the pentecost, the feast of ingathering or of booths, and the feast of trumpets, to which we may add the annual fast or day of expiation. Besides these there were others that returned once in a certain number of years, as the sabbatical year and the jubilee. On the sabbath they rested from their usual employments, and on that day four lambs were offered, Num. xxviii. 9, 10. Though they did not till after the captivity build synagogues and assemble on the sabbath day to read and hear the law, yet it is probable that the most serious of the people employed it in private reading and instruction, conversation and prayer. The new moons were not made days of rest unless they chose, except that of the seventh month, Num. xxxix. 11—15; comp. Levit. xxiii. 23, 24; Num. xxix. 1—6.

6. The three great feasts were distinguished from the sabbath and other holy days by this remarkable difference, that they lasted for seven, one of them indeed for eight, successive days; and that all the males in Israel were then obliged to assemble at the place where the sanctuary stood, Exod. xxiii. 14—17. Their attendance, however, was not so rigidly exacted on the other two festivals as on the first, which was the feast of the passover, kept in remembrance of their departure from Egypt. This festival was to commence on the evening subsequent to the 14th day of the first moon of the year, with eating what was called the paschal lamb, and it was to continue seven whole days, that is, until the 21st. On the 16th day, the first fruits of the ripe ears of corn were to be presented to God, Levit. xxiii. 9—14; and from that day they were permitted to begin harvest, which commonly was not completely finished till seven weeks after. After the first day was over, which was holy, every one was at liberty the very next morning, of course, while the festival still lasted, to return to his home, if he pleased, Deut. xvi. 17.

7. After the conclusion of the seven harvest-weeks now mentioned, or, in other words, on the 50th day, reckoned from the 16th of the first moon, the festival of pentecost was to be celebrated, and it continued in like manner for seven whole days. This was properly the harvest festival, in which they were to offer thanksgivings to God for the bounties of harvest, and to present unto him the first fruits thereof, in bread baked of the new corn, Exod. xxiii. 16; Levit. xxiii. 14—21; Num. xxviii. 26—31. The feast of booths, which was the festival of gratitude for the fruitage and vintage, commenced on the 14th day of the seventh moon (about the month of October) and continued until the 22nd. During these eight days the Israelites dwelt in booths, formed of green branches interwoven together, which, in the warm region of Palestine, answered extremely well, because in October the weather is dry.

8. Another feast, or, as some call it, a fast, was the day of expiation, Levit. xvi. 16, xxiii. 27—32. This was called the day of atonement, because of the extraordinary sacrifices which were then offered. Of the victims, none were more remarkable than the two goats, which the high-priest was to receive from the congregation, and to set them before the tabernacle, casting lots which of the two should be immediately sacrificed, and which should be sent alive into the wilderness, after the sins of the people had been confessed over him, and laid as it were upon him. The rites attending the public service of this day were chiefly performed by the high-priest, who had more to do on this than on any other day of the year, or perhaps all the rest together. The grand peculiarity in the service of this day was the high-priest's entering into the holy of holies, which was not permitted at any other time, Lev. xvi. 2; Heb. ix. 7. And so it was his peculiar privilege thus to draw nearer to God, or to the tokens of his special presence, to the ark, to the mercy-seat, and to the shechina or divine glory, than any other mortal.

9. The feast of the dedication, John x. 22, was instituted by Judas Maccabeus, after Antiochus had been vanquished and the temple purified, 1 Mac. iv. 59. The feast of Purim, appointed by Mordecai, the Jews still observe as a day of mirth and jollity. An account of it is found in the 9th chapter of Esther.

CHAPTER V.

On their Division of Time.

1. THE most natural division of time is that of the succession of light and darkness, forming one complete day. And this is undoubtedly the first and oldest. See Gen. i. 3, and note. In the Old Testament, we find no mention of hours, at least before Daniel; the only terms which occur are the morning and noon, evening and night. Hence, after they began to reckon by hours, their third hour answered to our nine in the morning; their sixth to our noon; their ninth to our three in the afternoon; and their twelfth to our six in the evening. They divided the night in like manner; and each of the portions was called a watch, Lam. ii. 19; Judg. vii. 19; John xi. 9; Acts viii. 1, x. 9.

2. The division of days into weeks was, according to Moses, from the beginning, Gen. ii. 2; Noah divided his days by sevens, ch. viii. 10—13. The same division was used in the time of the patriarchs, ch. xxix. 27, comp. Judg. xiv. 12, 17. Months are clearly derived from the moon, containing the space between one new moon and another. The Jews were obliged, in order to observe their religious feasts, to notice the new moon; and their month consisted of twenty-nine or thirty days, corresponding to the moon. Their year consisted of twelve or thirteen months, in order to adjust the synodical period with the solar. The year was distinguished into civil and sacred, each of which had a different beginning. The civil year began at the equinoctial new moon in autumn; and the sacred with the equinoctial new moon in spring, Exod. xxiii. 1, xxiv. 22.

3. Every seventh year was distinguished from others by being a year of rest; and therefore called the sabbatical year. It is natural to infer that this year began in autumn, when all the fruits of the land had been gathered in, and when it was usual to prepare the land for the next crop, Levit. xxv. 3, 4. During the whole year the land lay fallow, the vine and olive-yards were not even pruned, nor was any game taken or destroyed. Whatever grew was the common right of all, Levit. xxv. 1—7. The fiftieth year, or every forty-ninth, beginning with the sabbatical, was called the year of jubilee, most probably from the blowing of the trumpets, and was a year of general release; debtors and prisoners obtained their freedom, and property sold returned to its owner or his heirs, Levit. xxv. 8, &c.

4. The Jews seem to have had, at different periods, different eras whence they dated, and to which they referred. Moses, at first, dated from the creation, by the birth of the patriarchs; and then more especially from the birth of Noah, in the hundredth year of whose life the flood or deluge occurred, Gen. vii. 11, viii. 13. The deliverance from Egypt formed a new and distinguished era to the Israelites; and after this period, Moses and subsequent writers dated from it, Num. xxxiii. 38; 1 Kings vi. 1. At length Solomon built the temple, the most splendid structure ever erected, and for some time they dated from it, by the reigns of the kings of Judah and of Israel. The captivity in Babylon afterwards furnished a new epocha, whence they computed their years, Ezek. xxxiii. 21, xl. 1. Since their dispersion, they have constantly used the era of the creation.

CHAPTER VI.

On the Objects of Idolatrous Worship, and various Superstitions mentioned in the Scriptures.

IDOLATRY early obtained in the world. In the early periods all the knowledge of the true God was derived from tradition, handed down from Noah and his sons, and through them to their descendants, in connexion with the works of nature. Tradition was soon corrupted, and though the worship by sacrifice every where continued, yet the forms of it were varied, and all just conceptions of the One infinite and eternal God were by degrees nearly obliterated. Perceiving the influence which the sun and other heavenly bodies had on the earth, these were first honoured as the emblems of Deity, and afterwards as so many different and independent gods. Next, perhaps, the elements, as connected with the great generating principle of nature, were deified; and then men, who had benefited others by their inventions, or who had founded empires, and whom affection or flattery raised to the rank of gods. On the principle of utility arose the worship paid to certain animals. Thus every country had its own gods, which were honoured by some peculiar rites, and individuals possessed little images of these gods to defend and prosper their families, and carried them about for their personal protection and safety. Some of these gods were considered as vindictive, and to pacify them human beings were immolated on their altars. Others were regarded as the patrons of pleasure, and acts of gross intemperance and licentiousness were considered as acts of worship paid to them.

1. Moses every where forbids the Israelites either to make images of any such gods, or to pay any respect to them. He assures them that, if they fell into this sin, Jehovah would give them up to their enemies, and that they should suffer as a nation every kind of calamity ; and which we see in their history they actually did suffer for this crime. Yet in the wilderness they made the golden calf, and worshipped Tammuz and Baal-peor ; and in Canaan they adored the host of heaven, and the gods of the surrounding nations.

2. Baal, in the Scriptures, seems to be a name attributed to any of the heathen gods, denoting Lord ; and it is not improbable that this was the original object to which this name applied, as 'lord of heaven.' Various epithets are given to this idol, as Baal-berith, Judg. viii. 33, 'lord of the covenant ;' Baal-zebub, 2 Kings vi. 3, 'lord of flies,' which some think the Jews so called out of contempt, and that the name among the Ekronites was not 'lord of flies,' but 'lord of hosts.' Baal-peor, Num. xxv. 3, called that shame 'open-mouthed Baal,' is justly thought to be the same as Priapus.

3. The sun, moon, and stars were directly worshipped, as appears from Job xxxi. 26 ; Ezek. viii. 16 ; Jer. xlv. 17, &c. compared with 2 Kings xxiii. 11, and 2 Chron. xxxiv. 4. From these passages, it is evident that images, horses, and chariots were devoted to the sun, and that acts of religious homage were paid to that luminary. The manner of serving the queen, or the regency of the heavens, also shows the ardour and the zeal of these deluded idolaters. The wheaten-offerings which Jehovah had commanded to be offered to himself, they offered to the host of heaven. The Baals, or the heavens which they worshipped, Jehovah made the instruments of their punishment, 1 Kings xvii. xviii. The Ashtaroth, or Astarte, the goddess of the Sidonians, 1 Kings xi. 23, is thought to be the moon, and, according to Cicero, was the same as Venus. This idol had the female form. Comp. Judg. ii. 13, and 1 Sam. vii. 3, xii. 10, xxxi. 10.

4. The idols which the people worshipped whom the king of Assyria placed in Samaria, after the captivity of Israel, are unknown. They are mentioned in 2 Kings xvii. 30, 31. They appear to have been nearly similar to the Baals or Molochs of the Canaanites. So also was the Nebo of the Babylonians, and the Rimmon, 2 Kings v. 18, of the Syrians. The Tammuz, Ezek. viii. 14, of the Egyptians, was the Adonis of the Phœnicians and Syrians, and Jerom so renders. She was the same as Venus. Dagon, the idol of the Philistines, was a compound image of a man united to a fish, Judg. xvi. 23. The learned editor of Calmet has rendered it probable that this idol was originally commemorative of the deliverance of Noah in the ark. The Diana of the Greeks and Romans had the form of a woman hung round with breasts, and was only the prolific powers of nature idolized, Acts xix. 24—35. Jupiter was the chief god of the heathen world, who is represented as wielding the thunder-bolts of heaven ; and Mercury was considered the god of eloquence and the messenger of the other gods. The inhabitants of Lystra considered Barnabas and Paul as these gods come down to them, Acts xiv. 12.

5. To these various idols sacrifices were offered, and different rites were observed in honour of them. To Baal and Moloch human victims were frequently presented ; and children were in some manner dedicated and devoted to them. They are said to make them pass through the fire ; denoting some rite of dedication and purification. This was forbidden the Israelites, without any penalty annexed, Levit. xviii. 20. Ahaz thus devoted his son, 2 Kings xvi. 2 ; but as Hezekiah afterwards reigned, and was one of the best kings, it is certain that he was not put to death. It is however clear that, after thus devoting and purifying them, many of them were sacrificed, Ezek. xvi. 21, xx. 26, 31 ; Ps. cvi. 36—40. The chief place of these horrid rites was Tophet, in the valley of Ben-Hinnom, near Jerusalem, Jer. vii. 31, 32. Josiah defiled this place, and it became a receptacle for dead carcasses and other filth, and where a fire was kindled to consume them. Hence, either from this or the burning of children there, the place was considered as an emblem of hell, or the future state of punishment, Is. xxx. 33, Matt. v. 22, &c. Jeremiah declared that the idolatrous Jews should there be slain in such numbers that the valley should be called the valley of slaughter, ch. xix. 11—13. The idols Tammuz, Ashtaroth, Baal-peor, and others, were the gods and goddesses of lust, and were served in a manner suitable to their character.

6. Connected with the worship of idols were the various superstitious practices of augury, divination, soothsaying, &c. The most general expression for divining, is opp. It denotes either to attempt to foretell events by some kind of arts, or to conjecture by prudence and experience. Comp. Deut. xviii. 10 with Prov. xvi. 10, and Is. iii. 2. The various kinds mentioned are—1. The observer of the clouds. By the appearance of the clouds and the sky the state of the weather may be often conjectured ; and from this, perhaps, arose the practice of pretending to foretell other events. 2. Inchanter, one who divined by serpents ; probably having tamed them, he divined by their motions. Bates renders Juggler. 3. Sorcerer, one who divined by using some kind of drugs. 4. A charmer, one who composed magical spells, to guide and protect. It is probable that they were composed in verse, and which the people repeated, Ps. lviii. 6. 5. A ventriloquist or pythonist. 6. A wizard. 7. A necromancer. The Greek translators uniformly render the first term as I have done; and I suspect that those who possessed this art were also denominated wizards, or the knowing ones, and necromancers as pretending to consult the dead, 1 Sam. xxiii. 7, &c. That persons possessing this art would be regarded as under some kind of divine influence by an ignorant race, is very natural, and it is not improbable that they might believe themselves to be so. Similar superstitious arts obtained among all the heathen nations, and still exist among them and among ignorant men in Christian countries.

7. To honour idols they often made little images of them, and placed them in their houses, and sometimes carried them along with them in their journeys. These were anciently called teraphs; and these were the gods which Rachel stole from her father Laban, Gen. xxxi. 19, 30. At Ephesus it became a considerable trade to make small silver shrines, or little temples, containing a small image of Diana, which were regarded in like manner, Acts xix. 24, &c. This also explains the prophet Amos, ch. vii. 25, and Acts vii. 43. They bore the little tent of Moloch, containing his image, and the star of Chiun or Remphan, an Egyptian idol. These were borne about for protection, as well as to pay homage to. They sometimes wore ear-rings in honour of their idols, Gen. xxxv. 4; Hos. ii. 13; and crescents, or figures of the moon. Judg. viii. 21; Job xxxi. 26; Is. iii. 18. They cut their hair round for the same purpose, and spoiled their beards and made incisions in their flesh, Levit. xix. 27, 28, xxi; Deut. xiv. 1; Jer. xvi. 6; Zech. xiii. 6. All superstitions of this kind were strictly forbidden the Jews; and they were threatened with sword, famine, pestilence, and captivity, as the consequences of complying with such practices.

CHAPTER VII.

On the Sects among the Jews.

1. THE Nazarites seem to claim some notice as a sort of sect among the Jews. There have been in all ages, as well from natural disposition as from the influence of religious principles, some persons more serious and devoted to God than others. Joseph is called by this term, Gen. xlix. 26, and Deut. xxxiii. 36, which I have rendered after the Septuagint, 'distinguished.' Some were devoted to Nazaritism all their lives, as Samson, Samuel, and John the Baptist. Two things distinguished them from others; they drank no wine or other strong fermented liquor, and their heads were never shaved, Judg. x. 5; 1 Sam. i. 11; Luke i. 15. These were not confined to the same strict rules as those who were Nazarites by a vow for a specified period. The Rechabites, the descendants of Jethro, lived in tents, and, like the Nazarites, abstained from wine. (Comp. 1 Chron. ii. 55, and Judg. i. 16, with 2 Kings x. 15—23, and Jer. xxxv. 1—7.)

2. After the captivity, the returned Jews began to speculate on various subjects, and, as a natural result, they differed in opinions and were divided into parties and sects. The first division seems to have been made respecting the authority of the laws of Moses and the prophets. Some maintained that these alone ought to be regarded as the foundation of faith and practice; while others contended for the traditions or opinions handed down to them as of equal authority. The former were called Karaites or Scripturists, and the latter Rabbinists. The Rabbinists or Traditionists obtained a complete ascendancy over them as to numbers, and the greatest part of the Jews are still of this sect.

3. The Pharisees were the Traditionists, and so called from the word פְּרוּשִׁים, separated, denoting that they pretended to a more than ordinary strictness in religion, Acts xxvi. 5. Josephus gives this account of them, 'that they valued themselves for their exact conformity to the law, and for their skill in the interpretation of it; and that they excelled all others in observing the customs of the fathers.' This sect existed in the time of the Maccabees, according to the same historian; and they gradually increased till they became the leading persons in the church and state, as appears from the Evangelists. Their distinguishing opinion was, 'their holding the traditions of the elders,' which they maintained had been handed down from Moses, to whom they were given on the mount, and were of equal, if not superior authority to the written law.

4. The doctrinal sentiments of the Pharisees were the following:—1. They held that all things were decreed, yet in consistency with the freedom of man's will in acting.—2. They believed the doctrine concerning the angels, and the existence of human spirits in a separate state.

—3. They also admitted the resurrection of the dead, Acts xxiii. 8. These opinions were rational, and supported by the law and the prophets; but their radical error was admitting the traditions as of equal authority with the inspired books. Hence sprung their practical errors. 1. They explained away the obvious sense of the divine law, Matt. xv. 3—6. 2. They attended to many uncommanded customs; such as frequently washing their hands, furniture, &c.—fasting twice a week—and, according to the Talmud, whipping themselves, lying upon flints and thorns, and enduring other mortifications, Mark vii. 1—4; Luke xviii. 12. 3. They made the whole of religion to consist in rites, and neglected its great principles, and became the most consummate hypocrites. Compare Matt. vi. 2, 5, 23, &c. They despised all others, expected respect from all, and distinguished themselves by broad phylacteries, or scrolls of parchment with some passages of Scripture written on them, and by broad fringes on their garments, Deut. vi. 8.

5. The Sadducees are supposed to have derived their name from a person named Zadok or Jadok, who first taught the errors which distinguished this sect. According to Josephus, they rejected the traditions of the elders. They denied the resurrection of the body, and the existence of the soul after death. They also did not admit the existence of angels, Matt. xxii. 23; Acts xxiii. 8. They are said to have denied all divine decrees; and to have attributed such power to the human will as to make man the disposer not only of his moral actions but of his temporal condition. They were generally the rich who were of this sect; and they may justly be regarded as the materialists, free-thinkers, and infidels of the day.

6. The Samaritans, as inhabiting a part of the country of Judea, and receiving the five books of Moses, may be considered as a sect among that people. Their origin is given us, 2 Kings xvii. 24, &c. On the reform effected by Nehemiah, Josephus informs us that a son of Jehoiada, the high-priest, who contrary to the law had married a daughter of Sanballat, being unwilling to quit his wife, fled to Samaria, and many others with him. Sanballat was then governor of Samaria, and afforded them protection. In the time of Alexander, the Samaritans obtained leave to build a temple on Mount Gerizim, like that of Jerusalem, where the same form of worship obtained. This became a source of the bitterest enmity between them and the Jews, John iv. 9; Luke ix. 52. They rejected the writings of the prophets.

7. Josephus and Philo mention a numerous sect called Essenes. They lived together, and were a kind of Jewish monks. By abstraction they pretended to understand spiritual things better than others. Some think that the apostle alludes to their opinions in Coloss. ii. 18, 23. The Herodians are mentioned, Matt. xxii. 16, 17; Mark iii. 6, and viii. 15. They are thought to have been rather a political than a religious sect, agreeing with Herod that it was lawful to obey the Romans, and, in some things, conform to them. An opposite political faction is that mentioned in Acts v. 37, called Gaulonites.

8. The Scribes, so often mentioned in both Testaments, were not a sect, but so called from their office as writers, secretaries, or teachers. They were of two sorts; some employed in civil affairs, and others in what respected religion. The former were of different ranks. Hence Seraiah, in the reign of David, 2 Sam. viii. 17, Shebna, in that of Hezekiah, 2 Kings xviii. 18, are mentioned among the chief officers. Hence the scribe of the host, 2 Kings xxv. 19. Others were in inferior offices, 2 Chron. xxxiv. 13. The scribes employed in reference to religion expounded the law and taught the people. They are styled 'doctors of the law,' Luke v. 17, and in the 21st verse they are called 'scribes.' They are also called 'lawyers.' Compare Matt. xxii. 35, with Mark xii. 28. They were generally of the sect of the Pharisees, and hence they are joined together. They taught the people, as we may infer from Mark i. 22. They had great power, and some of them were members of the Jewish sanhedrim, Matt. xx. 18. Some of them might be of the Levitical tribe; but it appears from the Gospel that any person of knowledge might teach the people, or expound the law and the prophets in their synagogues.

9. The Publicans were persons appointed to collect the taxes imposed by the Romans. Some of them were receivers-general for a large district, and inferiors of this order paid to them what they collected. Zaccheus appears to be one of the chief publicans or receivers, Luke xix. 9. Matthew was one who sat at the receipt of custom, where the tax on goods imported or exported was paid; for this was one source of the revenue: a second was a tax on cattle fed on lands which were considered as belonging to the Roman state; and a third was a tax on corn, amounting to one-tenth. These taxes the apostle calls 'custom or tribute;' the former seems to denote all imposts on merchandise, and the latter a tax on persons or estates. The publicans were generally rapacious and oppressive; and hence they are classed with sinners. They were particularly odious to the Jews, as reminding them of their subjugated state, and obliging them, according to their opinion, to act contrary to the precepts of their law, Deut. xvii. 15.

TABLE OF MEASURES, WEIGHTS AND MONEY, AND OF TIME, MENTIONED IN THE HOLY SCRIPTURES.

Measures of Length.

	Yds.	Pt.	In.
A finger-breadth, about	0	0	0 $\frac{1}{2}$
A hand-breadth, rather more than	0	0	3 $\frac{1}{2}$
A span, or half cubit, about	0	0	10
A cubit, the length of a full sized man's arm, from the elbow to the extremity of the middle finger	0	1	8

Feet. Inches.

N. B. Some compute the cubit to be	1	9
And others only	1	5

The computation here selected is, probably, rather too large. There seems no sufficient ground in scripture, for supposing different kinds of cubits; the only texts, which appear to imply this, being capable of another interpretation. (Note, Ezekiel xl. 5; xliii. 13.)

A fathom, 4 cubits	2	0	8
Ezekiel's Reed, by some computed to be	3	1	2
A stadium, or furlong, 400 cubits	223	0	8
A mile, 10 furlongs, being about one-fifth longer than an English mile	2,220	6	8

Measures of capacity, for Corn or Liquids.

The Log $\frac{1}{2}$ of an Ephah	0	0	0 $\frac{1}{2}$
The Cab $\frac{1}{10}$ of an Ephah	0	1	1 $\frac{1}{2}$
The Omer $\frac{1}{10}$ of an Ephah (about)	0	3	0 $\frac{1}{2}$
The Hin $\frac{1}{2}$ of an Ephah (about)	1	1	0

The Ephah, or Bath, or Batus, Lukc xvi. 6, (about)	7	2	0 $\frac{1}{2}$
The Chomer, or Homer, 10 Ephahs (This should carefully be distinguished from the Omer, which is only a hundredth part of it.)	75	2	1

Some think the Kor, or Koges, Luke xvi. 7, to be the same as the Chomer; but this is not fully agreed on.

The firkin, as mentioned John ii. 6, is differently computed. Some think it contained	0	3	1 $\frac{1}{2}$
--	---	---	-----------------

The measure, or Chænix, mentioned Rev. vi. 6, seems to have been the daily allowance made of corn to a slave, perhaps rather more than	0	1	0

That mentioned 2 Kings vii. 1, is supposed to have contained about	2	0	0

The Shekel	0	0	10	0
The Talent, 3000 Shekels	125	0	0	0

N. B. Some make the Shekel, according to which all other weights are computed, rather less than in this table; and others rather more.

Money in Value.

This is a subject of a very difficult nature: for money is mere relative property; and its value consists in the quantity of things useful to life which it will purchase. Now it is certain, that the same weight, either of brass, silver, or gold, will at one time, and in one place, purchase far more of these things, than in another time and place: and probably, an ounce of silver, in any of the times of which the scripture treats, would purchase as much as three, or four, or five ounces now would. All therefore that can be attempted on this head, is to show the relative value of the money mentioned in scripture, as computed in the money of this age and nation. An ounce of silver is generally, I believe, coined into something more than five shillings: but as minute exactness is not the object in this place, the computation will be made at that price.

A Talent of gold, (at 16 of silver to one of gold)	6000	0	0

N. B. Some learned men compute each of these lower, and some higher. But this appears to be about the mean between discordant opinions.

A Table of Time.

Learned men state the names of the months, and their relation to the months into which we divide the year, as follows; but all the names mentioned, are not found in scripture. Of those which are, a reference to some text, in which it is named, will be annexed.

1 Nisan, (Neh. ii. 1.) or Abib (Ex. xiii. 4.)	March, April.
2 Yif, (1 Kings vi. 2.) or Jyar	April, May.
3 Sivan, (Esth. viii. 9.)	May, June.
4 Tamuz, or Thamuz	June, July.
5 Ab	July, August.

12 Adar, (Ezra vi. 15.) { February,

13 Ve adar, or the second Adar.

This last month was added, or intercalated, from time to time, when the twelve lunar months, falling considerably short of a solar year, introduced such an irregularity in the seasons as was inconsistent with the observance of the sacred festivals at the proper time. This month being on those occasions added, between the end of Adar the twelfth month, and the beginning of Nisan the first month, brought back the computation of the year to some degree of regularity. It answered the purpose, in some measure, which the 29th of February every fourth year, does in our calendar: viz. to preserve a coincidence between the twelve months which constitute the year, and the actual yearly revolution of the earth round the sun. But the intercalated month by no means settled the calculations of the Israelites, in that degree of exactness to which astronomers have at present reduced it. The months of Israel as here stated are supposed to answer each to the closing half of the former and the first part of the latter of our months, and especially the absolute necessity which there was for them, must considerably deduct from accuracy in all these calculations. They are, however, sufficiently exact for all useful purposes.

The days of the week were numbered by the Israelites in their order, the first, the second, &c.; the seventh, or last day of the week, being the sabbath; but it does not appear that they had any names affixed to them.

Their days were generally reckoned from sun-set to sun-set, according to the original arrangement; 'The evening and the morning were the first day.'

Both the night, from sun-set to sunrise, and the day, from sun-rise to sun-set, were divided into twelve hours; which must have been unequal in their length at different seasons of the year. It should, however, be remembered, that the Land of Promise being situated much nearer the Equator, the difference in the length of the days in summer and winter, and of the nights, during winter, in proportion to the days, was far less than in this country. Some, however, think, with much probability, that the division of time into hours was introduced by the Romans. The word hour, as used in some places of the Old Testament, does not seem to denote a measure of time; but merely the coincidence of events.

The night likewise, from sun-set to sun-rise, was, among the Israelites, divided into four watches. Supposing the sun to set at six o'clock, according to our computation,—the first watch reached from 6 to 9; the second, from 9 to 12; the third, from 12 to 3; and the fourth, from 3 to 6, or sun-rising.

A TABLE OF THE STATES, OFFICES, AND DESCRIPTIONS OF MEN.

Apostles. Persons selected by Jesus Christ to be witnesses of his life, death, and especially of his resurrection, to mankind; the repositories of his holy doctrine, by whom it was to be communicated to the nations through their preaching and writings; so that to the end of the world their writings are to be appealed to, as the standard of truth and duty. They were twelve in number; and on the apostacy of Judas, Matthias was selected to fill up his place. Matt. x. 2—4; Acts i. 15—26.

Bishop. The same persons are called elders, bishops, and pastors; but as there were several in the larger Christian societies, order in the affairs of the church required that one should become the president or chairman; and the person of the greatest influence, whether arising from his age, experience, or talents, would naturally be appointed to this office. As the church increased in numbers and wealth, this president or chairman assumed the title of bishop, while his co-partners were called elders or presbyters; and from this humble beginning arose Episcopacy in one church, which extended its claims over neighbouring churches, then over provinces, until at length it reached its zenith in the spiritual monarchy of the pope.

Deacons. Persons appointed by the church, under the counsel and direction of the apostles, to take care of the poor, and the secular concerns of the churches; from whom, however, it seems evident that elders and evangelists were chosen and sent forth.

Evangelists. For many ages this word has been appropriated to denote the writers of the four narratives which have been transmitted to us, as of divine authority, concerning the miracles, life, doctrine, death, and resurrection of our Saviour; but in the New Testament it signifies preachers of the gospel; yet with a special reference to certain persons who, under the authority and by the direction of the apostles, were employed to regulate and establish the churches which they had planted, or to plant new ones. They seem to be distinguished from stated pastors or bishops, as modern missionaries are from resident ministers.

Elders. Used for persons advanced in years; but most frequently means the Jewish magistrates, who formed the council or court, called Sanhedrim, and after the gospel was promulgated, it means the stated and ordinary pastors of the church.

Epicureans. A sect of heathen philosophers, who ascribed all things and events to chance; and who accounted pleasure the chief good.

Hebrew. One lineally descended from Abraham; and not one who had been proselyted, or whose ancestors had been proselyted.

Herodians. Persons who paid their court to Herod, and, like him, conformed in many things to the Roman customs. They are supposed to have been Sadducees.

Israelites. This is the proper name of the whole nation, as descended from Jacob or Israel; but became appropriate to the ten tribes after their revolt from the house of David.

Jews. The descendants of Judah, with the Levites, Benjaminites, and others, who joined themselves to Judah, and adhered to the house of David after the revolt of the ten tribes. After the Babylonish captivity, the term is applied to all the people who returned, and is now used to denote any Israelite, from whatever tribe he may have descended.

Kings. These were not appointed at first, but God himself was considered as the king of Israel. The people desiring to be like the surrounding nations, a king was granted to them, Saul, a Benjaminite. For his disobedience to the divine will, he was rejected, and David chosen, in whose family the crown became hereditary, and continued, in respect to his own tribe, at least until the captivity.

Levites. The descendants of Levi, by Gershon, Kohath, and Merari, who were not of the race of Aaron; but in many respects they were servants to the priests, though some of them were teachers and rulers in Israel.

Nazarene. A name at first given to Christ, afterwards to his followers, and then to an heretical sect.

Nethinims. Servants to the priests and Levites, for the meaner and more laborious offices, being the descendants of the Gibeonites; and of others, who were devoted voluntarily to these services.

Nicolaitans. A corrupt sect of professing Christians, resembling, in their opinions and practices, the wicked Antinomians of modern times.

Patriarchs. Fathers and heads of families, who eventually became great and renowned in Israel; as the twelve sons of Jacob. The term also denotes the ancient worthies of the church, as Noah, Abraham, &c.

Pharisees. Separatists, who pretended to more than ordinary strictness in the externals of religion; and observed the traditions of the elders. See Introduction.

Priest, High. The priest of the race of Aaron, who was allowed to enter into the most holy place once in the year; and was constituted chief ruler of the Jewish church. In his office he was a special type of Christ.

Priest, The second. He, as is generally supposed, who was appointed to officiate, in case the high priest was by any circumstance unequalled.

Priests, Chief. The heads, or principal persons of the twenty-four courses, into which the sons of Aaron were divided by David, that they might minister by rotation.

Prophets. These were anciently called seers. They were extraordinary ministers of religion, whom God raised up to reform the church of Israel, to predict future events, and make known the divine will to mankind; especially to foretell the coming of the Messiah, his sufferings, and the glory that should follow.

Prophets, Sons of the. Persons educated in the schools of the prophets, from the days of Samuel, who instituted them; from whom God frequently called men to the prophetic office: and who on many occasions were extraordinary teachers of religion, when the priests and Levites neglected their duty.

Proselyte. A person from another nation, who was incorporated into the church of Israel, by receiving circumcision, and becoming obedient to the law of Moses. Learned men mention various kinds of proselytes, but the scripture does not.

Publicans. Tax-gatherers under the Romans. The principal publicans farmed large districts at an annual rent, and were aided by the Roman armies in obtaining their demands; and the inferior publicans were servants to them.

Rabbies, Doctors, Lawyers. Scribes, who had attained to certain degrees of eminency and reputation in their profession, and who were distinguished in a similar manner to that of learned men, who are honoured with degrees by modern universities.

Sadducees. A sect among the Jews, who at first adhered to the law of Moses, in opposition to the traditions of the elders, but by degrees degenerated, and became nearly infidels, denying the existence of angels and spirits, and the resurrection of the dead.

Samaritans. The descendants of those nations whom the kings of Assyria established in the country, from which they took away the ten tribes of Israel; and with whom were united some Jews and priests, who apostatized from the purity of their laws and religion. This produced the greatest enmity between them and the Jews, so that in the mouth of a Jew, a Samaritan was a most odious name.

Scribes. Learned men among the Jews, whose professed object was to explain and enforce the law of God, from the days of Ezra to those of our Lord. Under the kings of Israel and Judah, the word scribe means secretary, i. e. to the king.

Tetrarchs. Persons, each of whom were appointed by the Romans to govern a fourth part of the kingdom of Herod the Great.

Tershatu. The governor of the Jews, appointed by the Persian kings after the captivity.

SYMBOLS USED IN THIS WORK.

THE symbol a denotes an addition to the received text, and refers to a similar letter in the notes, showing the authority or authorities for such addition.

The symbol o denotes a word or words to be omitted.

The symbol v denotes a various reading, either admitted into the text or referred to.

The symbol t denotes a transposition of a word or words, and sometimes of verses.

The symbol " shows where the addition, variation, or transposition closes.

GENESIS.

INTRODUCTION.

The Holy Scriptures collectively are called the BIBLE, or the Book, by way of distinction and pre-eminence, from the Greek ΒΙΒΛΟΣ. The first five books are called the Pentateuch, from two Greek words expressive of their number, and are generally ascribed to Moses as their author. The first of these is called Genesis, from a Greek word which denotes generation; and was so called, because it relates the generation or production of the heavens and the earth, of man, and the various generations of mankind from Adam to the flood, and from the flood to the descent of Jacob into Egypt.

This is undoubtedly the oldest historical book extant in the world; and the events it relates are of the greatest importance to mankind. By giving us the history of the creation, by one infinitely wise and powerful God, Moses lays the foundation of religion and morals, and shows the folly of idolatry. From the defection and sin of Adam, and the promise of a Redeemer, he leads us to the source of our depravity, and the foundation of our hopes. Though this book was designed for the instruction of mankind at large, it was more especially written for the advantage of the Jews. Hence we have the call of Abraham, the covenant made with him, the glorious promises made to him, and the most circumstantial history of his life; which could not fail both to instruct and gratify his descendants. The promises made to Jacob, and the subsequent events of his life, with the interesting narrative of Joseph, are closely connected with the deliverance from Egypt and the giving of the law. This history begins, according to Usher, 4004 years before Christ, and comprises a period of about 2365 years.

CHAPTER I.

An account of the six days' creation.

- 1 IN the beginning God created the heavens
- 2 and the earth. And the earth was desolate
- and waste; darkness also was upon the face
- of the deep, and the Spirit of God agitated
- 3 the surface of the waters. And God said,
- Let there be light; and there was light.
- 4 And God saw that the light was good; and
- God distinguished the light from the dark-
- 5 ness; And God called the light Day, and
- the darkness he called Night.

And the evening had been, and the morn-

there be an expanse amidst the waters, and let it separate waters from waters; 'and so it was. For God made the expanse, and 7 separated the waters which were below the expanse, from the waters which were above the expanse; And God called the expanse, 8 Heavens; 'and God saw that this was good.'

And the evening had been, and the morning had been, a second day; And God said, 9 Let the waters below the heavens be collected into one place, that the dry land may appear; and so it was. 'For the waters

NOTES.

CHAP. I. 1. The sacred author takes for granted the being of God. He at once introduces him as the almighty Creator of all things; and leaves his readers to judge of his nature and perfections from the works of his hands. In the beginning] The sense of this passage, in connexion with what follows, obviously is, 'That God at first produced by his power the matter of the heavens and the earth, and that he gradually formed this matter into all that variety of animate and inanimate objects, of which the whole system of nature consists.' As our language admits the plural, heavens, as well as heaven, I have uniformly adopted it as expressing both the sense and idiom of the original.

2. And the earth was desolate and waste] The earth when first produced was, most probably, chiefly surrounded with water, and consequently unfit for animal or vegetable life; it was wholly desolate, which Moses forcibly expresses, by the תוהו ובוהו. Compare Jerem. iv. 23. And the Spirit of God] The words רוח אלודים may be idiomatical, and mean a strong wind, as they do Ps. civ. 7; cxlvii. 18; Is. xl. 7. In the Family Bible this sense was given for reasons stated; but if we consider the sacred writer intended to inform us that the material universe was then put in motion, and that our globe began to revolve on its axis, in consequence of which the waters were agitated, as they are to this day, the common version may be admitted. Motion through the whole system could only be produced by divine or creating agency.

4. And God distinguished] God at first doubtless distinguished them, as they are distinguished still, by the rotatory motion of the earth. Light was first formed, and being collected in the atmosphere, served the purposes of the heavenly luminaries during the three first days. On the fourth day this element was connected with the globe of the sun, which, according to some of our wisest astronomers, forms the atmosphere of that planet.

5. And the evening had been] It is clearly the design of the author, in this passage, to inform his readers that the first day began with the production of light, and ended when the evening had been; and when the morning had been, one day, a second day commenced; so that we are to understand each day mentioned as past, and the next as properly the day on which what follows was done. Thus one day was past when God said, 'Let there be an expanse,' &c.

6. An expanse] Most modern versions have adopted this term in preference to the firmamentum of the Vulgate, which our translators followed. The expanse is called the 'heavens,' which in scripture has three different acceptations. It denotes the air around us, where the birds fly, and the clouds are formed. 2. The whole visible sky, including the sun, moon, and stars. 3. The invisible residence of God, called by the apostle the third heavens, 2 Cor. xii. 2. It is in the first acceptation the word is used here. (†) Sept. from ver. 7.

8. (a) And God saw that] The Sept. has here preserved the integrity of the text; for after no other operation are these words wanting; and the want of them here destroys that harmony of composition, which the author so evidently intended. So also in the next verse, after, and so it was, we expect it to follow, as in other instances; For the waters, &c. which the Sept. retains.

9. The waters below the heavens, which as yet covered the globe, must have exceeded those separated by the expanse. For these receptacles are provided in the globe itself; and to these they gradually subside. Ps. clv.

below the expanse were collected into their 10 places, and the dry land appeared." And God called the dry land Earth; and the collection of waters he called Seas; and God saw that this also was good.
 11 And God said, Let the earth bring forth grass, the seed-bearing herbs "according to their kinds," and the fruit-bearing trees, whose seed is in them, according to their 12 kinds, upon the earth; and so it was. For the earth brought forth grass, the seed-bearing herbs, according to their kinds, and the fruit-bearing trees, whose seed was in them, according to their kinds; and God saw that this also was good.
 13 And the evening had been, and the morn-14 ing had been, a third day; And God said, Let there be luminaries in the expanse of the heavens "to give light upon the earth," and to distinguish the day from the night:
 15 And let them be for signs of stated times, and of weeks and of years; and so it was.
 16 For God made the two great luminaries, the greater luminary for the regulation of the day, and the less for the regulation of the 17 night, together with the stars. And God set them in the expanse of the heavens to 18 give light upon the earth, And to regulate the day and the night, and to distinguish the light from the darkness; and God saw that this also was good.
 19 And the evening had been, and the 20 morning had been, a fourth day; And God said, Let the waters abound with living reptiles; and let flying fowl fly over the earth, through the wide expanse of the heavens;
 21 "and so it was." For God created the great sea-monsters, and all the living reptiles with which the waters abound, according to their kinds; and all the winged fowl according to their kinds; and God saw that this also was good. And God blessed them, saying, Be 22 fruitful and multiply, and fill the waters of the seas, and let fowl multiply upon the earth.

And the evening had been, and the morn- 23
 ing had been, a fifth day; And God said, 24 Let the earth bring forth animals according to their kinds; and so it was. For God 25 made the wild-beasts according to their kinds, and the cattle according to their kinds, and every ground-reptile according to its kind; and God saw that this also was good.

And God said, Let us make man in our 26 own image, according to our own likeness; that they may have dominion over the fishes of the sea and over the fowls of the air, and over the cattle, and over the "wild-beasts," and over every reptile that creepeth upon the earth. So God created man in his own 27 image; in the image of God he created him; male and female he created them.
 And God blessed them, saying, Be fruitful, 28 and multiply, and fill the earth, and subdue it; have dominion also over the fishes of the sea, and over the fowls of the air, and over the cattle and the wild-beasts, and over every reptile that creepeth upon the earth.
 And God said, Behold, I give you every 29 seed-bearing herb which is on the face of the whole earth, and every tree, in which is a seed-bearing fruit; it shall be food for you,
 And for all the beasts of the earth, and for 30 all the fowls of the air, and for every reptile upon the earth, in which is the breath of life; even every green herb for food; and so it was. And God saw every thing that 31 he had made, and behold it was very good.

And the evening had been, and the morn- 1
 ing had been, a sixth day; and the heavens, and the earth, and all their hosts, were finished. For on "the sixth" day God finished 2 his work which he had purposed to do; and

11. Grass and herbs] Compare Deut. xxxii. 2, and 2 Kings xix. 26. In this verse, the productions of the earth are divided into three classes. 1. The grass, which clothes the earth. 2. Herbs, esculents of all kinds, and flowers, are included; and, 3. Trees, of every size and species. (a) Sept. For the text followed, see note Hebrew Bible. (Sam. Sept. 1 MS.)

14, 15. That office, which the light created on the first day had hitherto discharged, is henceforward to be discharged by the sun, moon, and stars. These are to be signs of stated times, weeks, and years, chap. xxiv. 55. On the first day God created light, אור; but on this he created luminaries, מאורות; which implies a luminous body, a body to which light is attached, or which has the power of exciting it.

20. Living reptiles] So the Latin translators render reptilia animantia. By these are meant all sorts of reptiles, which creep in the water, in opposition to such as creep on the earth, called ground-reptiles, ver. 25. (a) Sept.

21. Great sea-monsters] All the larger kinds of fishes are intended, but the word cannot denote the whale kind only. It is supposed often to denote the crocodile and other amphibious creatures.

25. The wild beasts] When חיות הארץ, the beast of the earth, is joined with בְּהֵמָה, cattle, it denotes wild-beasts. The animals of the earth, like the vegetables, are divided into three classes: 1. Wild-beasts; such as roam in the forests. 2. Cattle; by which all domestic animals seem to be meant; and, 3. All sorts of less animals which creep on the ground.

26. Let us make man] This mode of speaking certainly indicates that the author conceived the formation of man to be a work of peculiar importance and interest; so that a heavenly council is called, and this chief of the divine works, as it regards the earth, is at length brought into existence. The Father addresses the Son by whom all things, &c. Coloss. i. 16. (a) The wild-beasts, Syr. and in ver. 28. Several of the versions support what is added. In our own likeness, and according to] As this mode of speaking occurs chap. v. 3, where it denotes an exact resemblance, not only in nature, but, as I conceive, in moral qualities, it must have a similar sense here. The divine image and likeness, then, means the spiritual nature of the human mind, with its endowments of understanding, judgment, and reason; and its moral qualities of purity, righteousness, &c.

28. And subdue it] Subduing means such a power over it as a master has over his servant.

CHAP. II. 1—6. I entirely agree with some late critics, that these verses belong to the preceding chapter, and should not have been separated from it.

2. On the sixth day] So both the Samar. and Sept. read; and the sense of the passage requires this reading. Compare Exod. xx. 11. See note to Hebrew Bible on this com.

on the seventh day rested from doing any 3 of his works. And God blessed the seventh day and made it holy; because on it he rested from all his works which he had purposed to do.

4 This is the origin of the heavens and the earth when they were created; at what time God Jehovah made the earth and the 5 heavens. Then did not any plant of the field exist on the earth, nor could any herb of the field grow; for God Jehovah had not caused it to rain upon the earth, nor was 6 there a man to till the ground; Nor had a mist risen out of the earth, and watered the whole face of the ground.

CHAPTER II.

B. C. 4004. A more particular account of the creation of man; the garden of Eden described; appropriate names given to all kinds of animals; woman formed, and marriage instituted.

7 WHEN God Jehovah formed man out of the dust of the ground, he breathed into his nostrils the breath of life; and man 8 became a living person. And God Jehovah, having planted a garden eastward in Eden, there put the man whom he had formed. 9 For out of that ground had God Jehovah made to grow every tree that is pleasant to behold, or suitable for food; and, in the midst of the garden, the tree of LIFE, and the tree of the KNOWLEDGE of GOOD and 10 EVIL. And there issued a stream out of Eden to water the garden; and thence it was parted, and became four principal rivers. 11 The name of the first is Pison; which

3. And God blessed the What is meant by blessing the seventh day, is explained by the next term, hath made it holy, or set it apart as sacred in memory of the creation; as a day in which he is to be blessed and praised as the author of all being and the source of all happiness. As Adam and Eve were created towards the close of the 'sixth day,' their first whole day was the sabbath.

4. This is the origin of the heavens and Some render, 'this is the account,' &c. chap. vi. 9, and xi. 27; but as generation is the origin of the creature generated, this sense is as much implied in the term as the other.

5, 6. Then did not any plant This refers to the state of the earth as described chap. i. 9, 10, when the seas and land were not separated, and before those operations by which the earth was prepared as the abode of animals and men. Nor could At the time to which the writer refers, as the earth itself was not prepared to produce vegetables, so the two great means, the showers and dews of heaven and the labour of man, were wanting.

7. Formed man out He had stated particularly how man was formed as to his natural and moral qualities; he now describes of what matter his body was made, and whence came his noble intellectual powers. Living person This is doubtless the import here and in other instances of נפש and it is well known that נפש, not only denotes soul, but occurs frequently in the sense of person, and is often used instead of the reciprocal pronoun. He breathed Compare Eccl. 3. 21.

8. After having given a particular account of the formation of man Moses next describes the place provided for his residence. This was in the east, in a part of the district called Eden, in a garden planted by the Creator, and furnished with every desirable production. In the midst of the garden were two trees of a peculiar species; one called the tree of life, most probably, because it was appointed to boundeth the whole land of Havilah, where gold is found; And the gold of that land 12 is good: there also are found pearls and onyx stones. And the name of the second 13 river is Gihon; which boundeth the whole land of Cush. And the name of the third 14 river is Hiddekel; which runneth east of Assyria: and the fourth river is the Euphrates.

And God Jehovah took the man, [ADAM] 15 and put him into the garden of Eden, to cultivate and to keep it. And God Jeho- 16 vah commanded Adam, saying, Of every other tree of the garden thou mayest freely eat; But of the tree of the knowledge of 17 good and evil, thou shalt not eat; for at whatever time thou eatest, thou shalt surely die.

And God Jehovah said, It is not good 18 that Adam should be alone; I will make for him a suitable help-mate. For, although 19 God Jehovah had formed, out of the ground, every beast of the field, and every fowl of the air; and had brought them to Adam to see how he would call them; (that whatever Adam should call any animal, might be its name;) And although Adam had 20 given names to the cattle, and to all the fowls of the air, and to all the beasts of the field; yet for Adam there had not been found a suitable help-mate. God Jehovah 21 therefore caused a heavy sleep to fall upon Adam; and while he slept, took one of his ribs, and closed up the place with flesh; And the rib, which God Jehovah had taken 22 out of Adam, he formed into a woman; and be a natural mean of preserving man's life, and a divine pledge of its continuance; the other called the tree of the knowledge of good and evil; because made the test of man's obedience, and by eating of which, and transgressing the divine command, he would experimentally know the difference between good and evil both moral and natural.

10—14. The situation of Paradise is described with such geographical precision, that one would suppose it would be easily ascertained; yet on no subject are opinions more at variance. It has been placed in almost every part of the globe. Reland, one of the best scripture-geographers, places it in Armenia, where issue the heads of the rivers Tigris and Euphrates. This has been adopted as the most probable opinion by many late writers. Major Wilford, in the Asiatic Researches, has advanced and supported with much learning, another opinion; 'that the real situation of Paradise was in that mountainous tract, which extends from Candahar to the Ganges. In this district,' says he 'we find such a spot as answers minutely to the Mosaic description, a circumstance not to be met with any where else on the surface of the globe. A small brook winds through the district of Bamiyan, and falling into a small lake, divides itself into four heads, forming so many navigable rivers.' That somewhere in the east this delightful garden was situated, is unquestionable. In this garden, man, when formed, was placed, to cultivate and keep it.

18—20. It is not good Adam (or man) should be alone God had formed Adam a sociable being; and it was not fit, or becoming his nature, or suitable to the purposes and designs of his Creator, that he should be without a suitable companion.

21—24. For God Jehovah On presenting Adam with his lovely help-mate. God must have informed him how she had been made; and the reflections which follow, show the moral purposes God had in view. One flesh or one person,

- 23 he brought her to Adam. And Adam said, This is now bone of my bone, and flesh of my flesh: Woman shall she be called; because out of man she hath been taken.
- 24 Therefore, said Jehovah, shall a man leave his father and his mother, and cleave to his wife; and they two shall be one flesh.

CHAPTER III.

B.C. 4001. The history of the fall; sentence on the serpent, and the promise of a Saviour; the punishment of man, and his expulsion from the garden of Eden.

- 25 ALTHOUGH Adam and his wife were both naked, yet they were not ashamed.

- 1 Now the serpent was more subtle than any of the animals of the field, which God Jehovah had made; and he said to the woman, Hath God indeed said, Ye shall not eat of every tree of the garden? And the woman said to the serpent, Of the fruit of "all" the other trees of the garden we may eat; But of the fruit of "that" tree which is in the midst of the garden, God hath said, Ye shall not eat of it; nor shall ye touch it; else ye shall die. And the serpent said to the woman, Assuredly ye shall not die. 5 Yea, God knoweth that whenever ye eat of it, your eyes will be opened, and ye will become as gods, knowing good and evil. And when the woman saw that the tree was suitable for food, and that it was pleasing to the eyes; also a tree to be desired as giving knowledge, she took of its fruit and ate, and gave of it also to her husband with her; and 'he ate.' And the eyes of both were opened, and they knew that they were naked; and they sewed together fig-tree leaves, and made themselves waist-girdles.

And they heard the voice of God Jehovah resounding in the garden, in the cool of the day; and Adam and his wife hid themselves from the presence of God Jehovah amidst the trees of the garden. But God Jehovah called to Adam, and said to him, Where art thou? And he said, I heard thy voice in the garden, and I was afraid, because I was naked; and I hid myself. And who, said he, told thee that thou wast naked? Hast thou eaten of that tree, of which I commanded thee not to eat? And Adam said, The woman whom thou hast given me for a companion, gave me of that tree, and I ate. And God Jehovah said to the woman, 13

They shall be esteemed by themselves and by others, and be as entirely and inseparably united, and shall have as intimate communion, as if they were one person, one soul and body. So Poole explains.

CHAP. III. The history of the fall The observation is not more common than just, that the holy scriptures are their own best interpreter. What is obscure in one part, is frequently explained in another; so that by comparing different passages the attentive reader will find sufficient light to direct him in his inquiries, and to solve his difficulties. On the history contained in this chapter, much has been written; and different hypotheses have been assumed for the purpose of explaining it. Without discussing the merit of these, I also will state my opinion. 1. Who or what are we to understand by the tempter? Our Lord, I conceive, has answered this question, by a direct reference to this history, John viii. 44; 'Ye are of your father the devil, and the lusts of your father ye will do. He was a murderer from the beginning, and abode not in the truth, because there is no truth in him. When he speaketh a lie, he speaketh of his own: for he is a liar, and the father of it.' The tempter in his discourse with Eve 'abode not in the truth,' but boldly contradicted what Jehovah had said, 'Assuredly ye shall not die.' Thus he was 'a liar and the father of it.' And by the success of the temptation, he became a murderer: 'He was a murderer from the beginning.' The 'beginning' here most naturally refers to the transactions recorded in this chapter. Admitting the authority of our Lord, the principal agent in the temptation of our first parents was the devil or Satan. Compare 1 John iii. 8.

2. Why is he called נחש, the serpent? Did he appear in the likeness, or did he animate the body of a serpent, and make use of its organs? The most common opinion is, that Satan animated the body of a real serpent. The original word unquestionably signifies a serpent, and is so rendered by all the ancient translators. It must notwithstanding be admitted, that the word is ambiguous, and may denote one who uses serpentine arts, in order to beguile and deceive. Thus the word שרף, Seraph, denotes a species of serpents, and an order of angels, being both so denominated from the splendour of their appearance. Thus the tempter might be called serpent, not because he appeared in the form or animated the body of a serpent, but because he had imitated the subtlety of that creature, in alluring and deceiving the woman. For a similar reason our Lord called Herod 'a fox.' Hence I conceive the first verse of this chapter is the remark of the historian, and contains the reason why the tempter was called, 'the serpent.' I would thus paraphrase it. 'Now the natural serpent was the most subtle of any of the beasts of the field which Jehovah God had made.' And he, to whom the woman gave this name, said, &c.

Hence the sentence pronounced on the tempter is in language literally applicable to the natural serpent. 'As this animal is considered degraded because he crawls on his belly, and licks up dust together with his food, so shall the tempter be degraded; as the natural serpent when crushed on the head, perisheth; so the spiritual serpent shall be crushed and punished.' There is nothing unusual in this kind of play on the literal and figurative sense of a word. It is often found in the scriptures, and indeed abounds among the oriental writers in general. (a) Alt. Sept. Syr.

3. Admitting that the tempter was Satan, and that he did not appear in the form, nor animate the body of a serpent, it may be said in what form did he appear? As the holy scriptures are silent on this subject, nothing can positively be asserted. But if Satan sometimes 'transforms himself into an angel of light,' why might he not be suffered, for wise and holy purposes, to do so on this occasion? This was the opinion of pious Bishop Tenison, and the eloquent Saurin seems inclined to adopt it. (See his Diss. in loc.) But if we understand the conversation between Eve and the serpent, or Satan, as what the tempter suggested to her mind, and her own reflections on the reasons, why the fruit of that one tree was prohibited; and the consequent descent of Jehovah, and the sentence he pronounced on the tempter, and on Adam and Eve for complying with the temptation, as expressing, in an historical narrative, the revealed purpose of God to punish them for their offence, while yet in mercy he opens a door of hope; is there anything in this mode of interpretation, which is in the least degree improper, or repugnant to scripture usage? This mode of interpretation must be adopted in many instances, as in what Micah says to Ahab, 1 Kings xxii. 20, &c. in explaining the first three chapters of Job, and of the prophet Hosea. The attentive reader will observe a striking agreement between the history of the fall, and that of our Lord's temptation in the wilderness. If the latter be considered literally and historically true, so may the former; but if our Lord's temptation can be explained as what the tempter suggested to his mind, so may the temptation in Paradise. (a) That. Sam.

6 (v) The Sam. Sept. and they ate. Vulg. omits, with her,

- Why didst thou this thing? And the woman said, The serpent deceived me, and I ate.
- 14 And God Jehovah said to the serpent, Because thou hast done this, accursed shalt thou be above all the cattle, and above every other animal of the field; upon thy belly thou shalt go, and dust thou shalt eat
- 15 all the days of thy life. And I will put enmity between thee and the woman, and between thy seed and her seed; he shall bruise thee on the head, and thou shalt bruise him on the heel.
- 16 To the woman he said, I will greatly multiply thy breeding-sorrows; and in sorrow shalt thou bring forth children; and to thy husband thou shalt be in subjection, and he shall rule over thee.
- 17 And to Adam he said, Because thou hast hearkened to the voice of thy wife, and hast eaten of the tree, of which I commanded thee, saying, thou shalt not eat of it; accursed be the ground for thy sake; in sorrow shalt thou eat of its produce all the
- 18 days of thy life. Thorns also and thistles shall it bring forth to thee; and the herbs
- 19 of the field thou shalt eat. In the sweat of thy face thou shalt eat "thy" bread, until thou return unto the ground, out of which thou wast taken: for dust thou art, and unto
- 20 dust shalt thou return. And Adam called his wife's name Eve, [LIFE-GIVEN] because she was to become the mother of all the
- 21 living. And God Jehovah made garments of skins for Adam and his wife, and clothed them.

15. I will put enmity] As the woman was first in the transgression, this language strongly expresses that she was to be the honoured medium of bringing forth the Deliverer. We may reason on this passage as the apostle does on the promise made to Abraham; 'He saith not, and to seeds as of many,' but as speaking of one individual, 'her seed which is Christ,' Gal. iii. 16; iv. 4, &c. The last clause of this verse gives us the sense of the former. The woman is to have a seed and the serpent a seed, and mutual enmity is to subsist between them. They are to be opposed to each other. The woman's seed is to crush the serpent's head. The 'enmity' is more particularly to be between the tempter and this seed, and the woman is only mentioned as the instrument of bringing this seed into the world; as all nations are said to be blessed in Abraham, from whose loins the Messiah was to spring. When the woman's seed actually appeared, the enmity of the tempter and his seed, the wicked, was soon discovered; and our Lord continued to experience it, until by death he destroyed him that had the power of death, and laid the foundation of his own universal empire.

16. Thy breeding-sorrows] We have here the figure Hendyadis, and the meaning of 'thy sorrow and thy conception' is that given. As חֲשָׁדָה, here rendered 'desire' in the authorized version, is used in reference to Abel, chap. iv. 7, and appears to signify a disposition or readiness to obey another, no rendering appears more proper than that given; and the following words require this sense.

19 (a) Thy, Sept.

21. Coat of skins] It is probable, as animals were not used for food previous to the deluge, that sacrifices were now instituted, and that the skins with which our first parents were clothed, were those of the victims, which had been offered to God. We have no express mention, it is true, of this: but as we find Abel offering with acceptance the best and fattest of his flock, at no very distant period, it is clear that sacrifices must have been divinely appointed.

And God Jehovah said, Behold, Adam 22 would so become like one of us, as to know good and evil; and now possibly, he will put out his hand, and take also of the fruit of the tree of LIFE, that he may live for ever! Therefore, God Jehovah sent him out 23 of the garden of Eden, to till the ground, whence he had been taken. And he drove 24 out the man, and placed at the east of the garden of Eden cherubs, with flame-brandishing swords, to keep the way to the tree of life.

CHAPTER IV.

B. C. 4003. The birth of Cain and Abel; the murder of the latter, and the curse on Cain his murderer; the first polygamist, Lamech, and his address to his wives.

AND Adam knew Eve his wife; and she 1 conceived, and bare Cain, [ACQUISITION,] and said I have acquired a man-child from Jehovah. And she afterwards bare his 2 brother Abel, [VANITY.] And Abel became a keeper of flocks, and Cain a tiller of the ground. And at the appointed period, it 3 came to pass, that Cain brought of the fruit of the ground an offering to Jehovah. And 4 Abel also brought one of the choicest and fattest of the flock; and Jehovah had respect to Abel and his offering; but to Cain and his offering he had not respect. Cain was 5 therefore very wroth, and his countenance fell.

And Jehovah said to Cain, Why art thou 6 wroth; and why is thy countenance fallen? Is there not, if thou doest well, acceptance; 7 and if not well, a sin-offering lying at the

22. Behold the man that would become] In this version the principle is adopted, that the verb הָיָה here denotes, not what man actually 'became,' but what he 'attempted to become;' (See Glassius Canon 8 in verb.) and this version is more suitable to the character of God, as being the language of commiseration.

24. Cherubs] For a description of these see notes on Ezek. i. and x. To keep the way to the tree] Some, supposing the tree of life to be an emblem of Christ, contend that Moses meant to intimate that the office of the cherubs was to guide man to it, and not to keep him from it. But if this were the design, why expel man from Paradise? The opinion is unfounded and absurd.

CHAP. IV. 1. A man-child from Jehovah] Eve acknowledges that she had brought forth a man-child through the assistance of Jehovah.

3. Appointed time] Literally, 'end of days.' Whether this refers to the weekly sabbath or to the end of the year is uncertain; but that it refers to some stated time of worship seems most obvious and natural.

4, 5. In the matter of the offerings of Cain and Abel, there is a striking difference. The apostle tells us Abel's was a more excellent sacrifice (παισιον βελιον) than Cain's; it was so in the matter, as well as in the spirit of the offerer. It is most probable God testified his acceptance of Abel and his sacrifice, by consuming it with fire from heaven, as he did in after times.

7. The design has led to the version adopted. For it is evident that Cain was wroth on account of the preference given to his brother's offering; and God's address to him, is to show that the cause was in himself; in neglecting to make atonement, he discovered no sense of his own sin, nor any desire for pardon; but that if he would repent, and offer an atoning sacrifice, he also should be accepted. In this view the latter clause points out the method of acceptance, and implies a call to Cain to seek it in this method.

door? Still to thee shall he be in subjection, 8 and thou shalt rule over him. Nevertheless Cain said to Abel his brother, "Let us go into the field;" and it came to pass, when they were in the field, that Cain rose up against Abel his brother, and slew him.

9 And Jehovah said to Cain, Where is Abel thy brother? and he said, I know not: Am I my brother's keeper? And God said, What hast thou done? the voice of thy brother's blood crieth unto me from the 11 ground. And now accursed art thou by that ground, which hath opened its mouth to receive thy brother's blood from thy hand. 12 Shouldest thou till that ground, it would not henceforth yield to thee its substance; a fugitive and a wanderer shalt thou be on 13 the earth. And Cain said to Jehovah, My punishment is greater than I can bear. 14 Behold, thou drivest me out this day from the face of this ground; and from thy presence I shall be secluded, and shall be a fugitive and a wanderer upon the earth, and it will come to pass, that whosoever findeth 15 me will slay me. And Jehovah said to him, "Not so;" whosoever slayeth Cain, on him shall be taken sevenfold vengeance. And Jehovah gave a token to Cain that no one who might meet with him should kill him.

16 And Cain departed from the presence of Jehovah, and dwelt in the land of Nod, on 17 the east of Eden. And Cain knew his wife: and she conceived and bare Enoch; and as he was then building a city, he called the name of the city, after the name 18 of his son, Enoch. And unto Enoch was born Irad; and Irad begot Mehujael; and Mehujael begot Methusael; and Methusael begot Lamech. 19 And Lamech took unto him two wives; the name of the one was Adah, and the name of the other Zillah. And Adah bare 20 Jabal: he was the first of those who dwelt in tents, for the purpose of tending cattle. And the name of his brother was Jubel: 21 he was the first "who played on the harp and the pipe. And Zillah also bare Tubal-cain, 22 a skilful artificer in all sorts of brass and iron works: and the sister of Tubal-cain was Naamah. And Lamech said to his 23 wives, Adah and Zillah, hear my voice; Wives of Lamech! hearken to my speech. I, indeed, being wounded, have slain a man, And, being assaulted, a young man. If Cain shall be avenged seven times, 24 Certainly Lamech seventy and seven.

CHAPTER V.

B. C. 3760. The age and death of the patriarchs from Adam to Noah.

AND Adam again knew "Eve," his wife, 25 "and she conceived" and bare a son, and called his name Seth [A SUBSTITUTE:] for God, said she, hath substituted to me another seed instead of Abel, whom Cain slew. And to Seth also there was born a 26 son; and he called his name Enos. Then began men to be called by the name of Jehovah.

This is the genealogy from Adam. When 1 God created man, he made him after his own likeness. Male and female he created 2 them; and blessed them, and called their name Adam, on the day they were created.

And Adam lived one hundred and thirty 3 years, and begot a son after his own likeness, and according to his own image; and he called his name Seth. And the days 4 of Adam after he begot Seth were eight hundred years: and he begot sons and daughters. And all the days that Adam 5 lived were nine hundred and thirty years; and he died.

8. (a) Versions, MSS. and Ed.

13. Others would render, 'My iniquity is too great to be pardoned.' So all our first translators, and most of the ancient. Michaelis renders interrogatively, Is my sin too, &c.

15. Jehovah gave a token] For this version see the note Hebrew Bible. It is vain to inquire what was the token or sign which Jehovah gave, as Moses has not specified it.

16. The land of Nod] The land received its name from Cain being a wanderer from the place where Adam and his other children dwelt. It was called the land of the wanderer; and was east of Eden.

19. Lamech took unto him two wives] Thus early was the law of marriage violated; and the race of impious Cain were first in the transgression.

20. The first of those] Literally, the father. A Hebraism, which denotes one to be the inventor of an art, or the founder of a state.

21. (a) All, Sept.

23. Lamech said to his] Of this first polygamist Moses has preserved an address to his wives, without giving us the occasion of it. Whether he had been attacked for violating the law of marriage, or for some other cause, is not known; but it should seem he had slain a man, though in the contest he had been wounded. He contrasts the murder which Cain had committed, with his own justifiable homicide.

I, indeed, being wounded, have] Among the various renderings of this verse, the one given seems most probable. See Lowth's Lect.

25. (a) Sept. Syr.—ibid. and 1 MS.

26. Then began men to call] The devout and serious part of men were denominated 'the sons of God,' or the worshippers of Jehovah. The words קרא בשם are ambiguous, and will admit the common version, 'call on the name.' But as it is not probable that good men began then first to call on the name of the Lord, the version given is entitled to preference. Compare Gen iv. 17, Num. xxii. 42, Ps. xlix. 11, and Is. xliii. 7.

CHAP. V. 3. Adam lived one hundred and thirty years] The Septuagint has two hundred and thirty. And, in like manner, a hundred years is added to the age of Seth, Enos, Cainan, Mahalaleel, and Enoch, before the birth of their successors; but this sum is subtracted from the period they lived after. His own likeness.] There is clearly a contrast intended, between the image of God, in which Adam was created, and that of Adam as fallen, in whose image Seth was born; and it must imply that a change had been produced in human nature. Seth indeed was a pious son, and deserved to occupy the place of his pious brother Abel.

5. The extraordinary longevity of men, in those first ages of the world, appears not at all incredible, and is attested by the traditions of all the oriental nations.

6 And Seth lived one hundred and five 7 years, and begot Enos. And Seth lived after he begot Enos eight hundred and seven 8 years, and begot sons and daughters. And all the days of Seth were nine hundred and twelve years; and he died.
 9 And Enos lived ninety years, and begot
 10 Cainan. And Enos lived after he begot Cainan eight hundred and fifteen years, and 11 begot sons and daughters. And all the days of Enos were nine hundred and five years; and he died.
 12 And Cainan lived seventy years, and 13 begot Mahalaleel. And Cainan lived after he begot Mahalaleel eight hundred and forty 14 years, and begot sons and daughters. And all the days of Cainan were nine hundred and ten years; and he died.
 15 And Mahalaleel lived sixty-five years, and 16 begot Jared. And Mahalaleel lived after he begot Jared eight hundred and thirty 17 years, and begot sons and daughters. And all the days of Mahalaleel were eight hundred and ninety-five years; and he died.
 18 And Jared lived a hundred and sixty-two 19 years, and he begot Enoch. And Jared lived after he begot Enoch eight hundred 20 years, and begot sons and daughters. And all the days of Jared were nine hundred and sixty-two years; and he died.
 21 And Enoch lived sixty-five years, and 22 begot Methuselah. And Enoch walked with God after he begot Methuselah three hundred years, and begot sons and daugh-23 ters. And all the days of Enoch were three 24 hundred and sixty-five years. For Enoch walked with God, and was not; for God had taken him away.
 25 And Methuselah lived one hundred and 26 eighty-seven years, and begot Lamech. And Methuselah lived after he begot Lamech seven hundred and eighty-two years, and 27 begot sons and daughters. And all the days of Methuselah were nine hundred and sixty-nine years; and he died.

And Lamech lived one hundred and 28 eighty-two years, and begot a son; And he 29 called his name Noah, [COMFORTER,] saying This child shall be a comfort to us amidst our works and the toils of our hands, because of the ground which Jehovah hath cursed. And Lamech lived after he begot 30 Noah five hundred and ninety-five years, and begot sons and daughters. And all 31 the days of Lamech were seven hundred and seventy-seven years; and he died. And 32 Noah was five hundred years old; and ^{he} begot three sons, Shem, Ham, and Japheth.

CHAPTER VI.

B. C. 2448. The depravity of mankind; the flood threatened; and Noah ordered to make the ark.

AND it came to pass, when men began to 1 be numerous upon the face of the earth, and daughters were born to them, That the sons 2 of the chiefs saw that the daughters of men were beautiful; and they seized of them, for wives, whomsoever they chose. And Jeho- 3 vah said, My Spirit shall not always plead with man, on account of his errors; for he is flesh: yet his days shall be one hundred 4 and twenty years. In those days were lawless warriors upon the earth. For, after the sons of the chiefs went in to the daughters of men, to them they bare sons, who became mighty, the renowned men of antiquity.

And Jehovah saw that the wickedness of 5 man was great on the earth, and that the whole frame of the thoughts of his heart was only evil continually. And Jehovah repented 6 that he had made man on the earth; and was grieved in his heart. Jehovah then 7 said, I will destroy man, whom I created, from the face of the ground; and, together with man, the beasts, and the reptiles, and the fowls of the air; for I repent that I

18. Enoch] Jude mentions him as the seventh from Adam, and a prophet of God, ver. 14. From this we learn that religious instruction was divinely imparted to the antediluvians.

21. Methuselah] This is a prophetic name, and signifies he dieth, and water is sent forth. Job v. 10. And so it will intimate that Enoch, foreseeing the deluge, gave his son this name.

24. Enoch walked with God, and] Paul has explained Moses, Heb. xi. 5. He was taken up to heaven without tasting death; and if this event occurred on some public and solemn occasion, as is most probable, it would tend to confirm the doctrine of a future state, and to encourage pious men with the hope of it, when those calamities, of which he had prophesied, should come.

28. The period from the creation to the flood, according to the present Hebrew, is 1656, according to the Samaritan, 1307, and according to the Septuagint, 2242 years.

29. Comfort to us] In this version I have followed that of the Sept.

32. (o) Sam. omits Noah, and adds three sons.

CHAP. VI. 2. Sons of the chiefs] To understand בְּנֵי אֲדָמָה as denoting the pious, the worshippers of Jehovah, the sons of God, as opposed to the wicked, seems a forced interpretation. That such persons should act as these did, is equally inconsistent with the profession and spirit of the pious or sons of God; but that the sons of the chiefs should become profligate from indulgence, and seize whomsoever they would for wives, is probable in itself, and but too well supported by example in every age. Luke xvii. 27; Ps. lxxxii. 6; lxxxix. 27.

3. My Spirit shall not] The sense given is obvious, and supported by the use of the words in other places. Some of the versions read לֹא, 'shall not always abide or dwell in man.' The term בְּשָׁרָא is a verbal noun, signifying errors, sinful wandering from God and the path of righteousness. Compare Nehem. ix. 30, and Jerem. xxx. 13.

4. Lawless warriors] The word giant means a person of greater stature than others; but the term גִּימְלִים is not restricted to this signification. It denotes 'such persons as fall upon or attack others unjustly.' From the licentious intercourse of the sons of the chiefs with the daughters of the vulgar people, sprang this race of lawless warriors and plunderers, who were considered by a corrupt race as the renowned men of antiquity.

7. I repent] This, as well as the language in the preceding verse, is adapted to our capacity, and only means God's abhorrence of sin, and his resolution to punish it.

8 made them. But Noah found favour in the sight of Jehovah.

9 These are the events which occurred in the days of Noah. Noah was a just and upright man in his generation: and Noah walked with God. And Noah had begotten 10 three sons, Shem, Ham, and Japheth. But the earth was corrupted before God, and 12 was filled with oppression. And God looked upon the earth, and behold, it was corrupted; for all flesh had corrupted its way 13 on the earth. And God said to Noah, The end of all flesh is come before me; for the earth through them is filled with oppression. Behold, therefore, I am about to destroy them from off the earth.

14 Make for thyself an ark of gopher wood; rooms shalt thou make in the ark, and shalt 15 cover it within and without with pitch. After this form thou shalt make it. The length of the ark shall be three hundred cubits, the breadth of it fifty cubits, and the height of 16 it thirty cubits. A deck shalt thou make to the ark, and in a cubit shalt thou finish it above; and the door of the ark shalt thou place in its side; lower, second, and third 17 stories shalt thou make in it. For, behold! I am about to bring a flood of waters upon the earth to destroy all flesh, in which is the breath of life, from under the heavens; whatsoever liveth on the earth shall die. 18 But with thee will I establish my covenant; and thou shalt go into the ark; thou, and thy sons, and thy wife, and thy sons' wives 19 with thee. And animals of every kind, pairs of each, shalt thou bring with thee into the ark, to be kept alive; the male and 20 his female shall they be. Of fowls according to their kinds, and of cattle according to their kinds, and of all the reptiles of the earth according to their kinds; pairs of every kind shall go in with thee to be kept 21 alive. Take thou, therefore, of every sort of food, and store it up with thee, that it 22 may be food for thee, and for them. Thus did Noah; according to all that God commanded him, so did he.

CHAPTER VII.

B. C. 2349. Noah and his family enter the ark; the beginning, increase, and duration of the flood.

AND Jehovah said to Noah, Go thou and 1 all thy household into the ark; for thee have I seen to be righteous before me amidst this generation. Of 'all' the clean beasts thou 2 shalt take in with thee seven pairs, the male and his female; and of the beasts that are not clean, two pairs, the male and his female. Of the fowls of the air also 'that are 3 clean, seven pairs, the male and his female;' 'and, of the fowls that are not clean, two pairs, the male and his female;' to keep their seed alive upon the face of the 'whole' 4 earth. For, after seven days, I will cause it to rain upon the earth forty days and forty nights; and every living substance that I have made will I destroy from off the face of the whole earth. And Noah did according 5 to all that Jehovah commanded him. And Noah was six hundred years old when the flood of waters came upon the earth. 6

And Noah and his sons, and his wife, and 7 his sons' wives went with him into the ark, because of the waters of the flood. Of 8 clean beasts and of beasts that were not clean, 'and of clean fowls, and of fowls that were not clean,' and of reptiles that creep on the ground, Pairs went with Noah into the 9 ark, the male and his female, as God had commanded Noah. And it came to pass 10 after seven days, that the waters of the flood began to come upon the earth.

In the sixth hundredth year of Noah's life, 11 in the second month, the seventeenth day of the month, on that same day all the fountains of the great deep were broken up, and the flood-gates of the heavens were opened. And there was a heavy rain upon the earth 12 forty days and forty nights. On that self-13 same day entered Noah, and Shem, and

9. These are the events of the days of Noah] The words אלה חילית cannot mean here genealogy, for none is given; but an account of the events which occurred in his days.

13. From off the earth] The text has את הארץ, but one MS. reads בארץ; and the sense requires this reading. Gen. iv. 1; xlix. 25; 2 Kings xxiii. 35.

14. An ark] This term is not strictly proper; for an ark is a square coffer or chest, such as that in which the tables of the law were put. The Hebrew word is here different, and means a large vessel or ship. The term ark is retained, because from use it has become appropriated to denote this vessel. Gopher wood, some think was the pine tree; while others suppose osiers are meant.

15. Some unbelievers have objected that there was not room in such a vessel for all the beasts and birds and their provisions; but bishop Wilkins hath proved there was, and that a first-rate man of war would be capacious enough for the purpose. The original species of beasts and birds were but few; fishes are excepted. This account of the ark confirms the truth of the scripture; for its proportions are well adjusted, and it was of a suitable size, admirably adapted to the purpose designed. It has been computed to have been 81,062 tons burthen.

16. A deck] The common version is window; but Schultens has proved that the word means a roof or deck. The Hebrew word for a window is חלון, and not צד. What follows justifies this sense. It was to have an elevation of one cubit; most probably in the middle, so that the water might fall off on every side. There was a window in some part of the ark, as appears from chap. viii. 6, but this is called מלון.

CHAP. VII. 2. Of all the clean beasts thou] As animal food was not used before the flood, it is probable that the distinction of beasts and fowls into clean and unclean, had been made in reference to sacrifices; and that those called unclean, were such as were not offered, and those clean such as were. Compare chap. viii. 20.

3. The narrative requires the readings preserved in the Sam. copy and in the Septuagint; and so in the following verses, 4, 8.

11. The fountains of the deep] Compare Gen. i. 9, and note. The flood-gates] The Sept. renders cataracts.

Ham, and Japheth, the sons of Noah, and Noah's wife, and the three wives of his 14 sons with them, into the ark; And of all the animals according to their kinds, and of all the cattle according to their kinds, and of all the reptiles that creep upon the earth according to their kinds, and of all the fowls according to their kinds.*
 15 So pairs of all flesh, in which was the breath of life, went with Noah into the ark.
 16 And they that went in, went in thus; a male and a female, of all flesh, as God had commanded Noah: and Jehovah shut him in:
 17 And a flood of forty days* and forty nights* came upon the earth; and the waters increased, and bore up the ark, and it was 18 raised above the earth. And the waters prevailed, and were increased greatly upon the earth; and the ark floated upon the 19 surface of the waters. And the waters prevailed exceedingly upon the earth; and all the highest mountains, which were under 20 the whole heavens, were covered. Fifteen cubits did the waters prevail, above the 21 mountains, which they covered. And all flesh that moved upon the earth expired, both of fowls, and cattle, and animals, and every reptile that creepeth on the ground;
 22 and every man also: All in whose nostrils was the breath of life, all that was on the dry 23 land, died. Thus was destroyed every living substance which was upon the face of the ground; both man, and animals, and reptiles, and the fowls of the air; thus were they destroyed from off the earth: and Noah only, and they that were with him in 24 the ark, remained alive. And the waters prevailed upon the earth one hundred and fifty days.

CHAPTER VIII.

B. C. 2348. The waters decrease; Noah goeth out of the ark, offereth sacrifice and God's promise to him.

1 AND God remembered Noah, and all the 14—16. The different species of animals and birds must have been brought by divine power; their dispositions changed or controlled, so as for once to realize the beautiful language of the prophet; 'The wolf shall dwell with the lamb, and the leopard with the kid; the cow and the bear shall feed, and the lion and the ox shall lie down together.' (a) Every bird of every sort, Sept. Vulg.

17—24. And a flood of] According to Moses, the flood was universal; for the highest mountains under the whole heavens were covered, and whatsoever lived was destroyed. By this catastrophe the earth must have been greatly changed; some of the primeval hills and mountains must have been torn asunder, earth and rocks thrown together, so as to form new, and perhaps higher mountains than before; shells and lighter bodies might be carried to the tops of the highest mountains, where they are found at this day; and others might subside with the water into the earth, where they are still discovered. 'The whole face of the globe, and the most accurate investigation of its strata, continue to substantiate the Mosaic account of the deluge. In proof of what is stated, it may be observed, that the moose-deer, a native of America, has been found in Ireland; elephants, natives of Asia and Africa, have been found in England; crocodiles, natives of the Nile, and other African rivers, in the heart of Germany; and shell-fish, and the animals, and all the beasts, "and all the fowls, and all the reptiles" that were with him in the ark; and God caused a wind to pass over the earth, that the waters might be assuaged. The fountains of the deep and the flood-gates of the heavens also were stopped, and the heavy rain from the heavens was restrained; And the waters continually subsided from off the earth; and at the end of one hundred and fifty days the waters were much abated. So that in the seventh month, on the seventeenth day of the month, the ark rested upon one of the mountains of Ararat. And the waters were continually decreasing until the tenth month; and on the first day of the tenth month, the tops of the mountains were visible.

And at the end of forty days more, Noah opened a window which he had made in the ark; And let forth a raven, which 'went to and fro,' until the waters were dried up from off the earth. He also let forth a dove, to see if the waters were abated from off the face of the ground: But the dove found no resting-place for the sole of her foot, for the waters were on the face of the whole earth: and she returned to him unto the ark, and he put forth his hand, and took her, and drew her in to him into the ark. And he waited seven days more; and again let forth the dove out of the ark; And the dove came back to him towards the evening; and, lo! in her mouth was an olive leaf newly plucked: so Noah knew that the waters were abated from off the earth. And he yet waited other seven days; and let forth the dove; which returned to him no more. And in the six hundredth and first year* of the life of Noah,* on the first day of the first month, the waters were drying up from off the earth; and Noah removed the covering of the ark, and looked, and, behold, the face of the ground was drying.

skeletons of whales, in the inland counties of England, the former only known to live in the American seas, and the latter in the cold regions of the north. Waters prevailed] By the forty days' rain, and the breaking up of the fountains of the deep, the waters seem to have stood at the height of fifteen cubits, or twenty-two feet, above the highest mountains, for 130 days more.

CHAP. VIII. 4. In the seventh month] This regards not the year, but the flood; so that the waters prevailed five months from the time Noah had entered the ark, and on the seventeenth of the seventh month they had so abated, that the ark rested on Ararat. See Lightfoot's works. The greatest number of expositors consider mount Ararat as one of the mountains of Armenia. Jerom thus renders, super montes Armeniae. Shuckford contends that Ararat must have been situated much more to the east; and the editor of Calmet has adopted this opinion, and assigned strong reasons in support of it. See Calmet.

7. Which went to and fro] Some prefer the reading of the Sept. which 'went forth, but did not return.' This suits the habit of the raven, a carnivorous bird, who dwells on the tops of rocks and mountains. But she might fly around the ark, though she came no more into it.

10, 12. Seven days] Is there a reference here to the sabbath? Surely such an upright man as Noah would 14 And on the second month, on the twenty-seventh day of the month, the earth was 15 dry : And God spoke to Noah, saying, 16 Go out of the ark, thou, and thy wife, and thy 17 sons, and thy sons' wives with thee. Bring out, "also," all the animals of every kind that are with thee, both the fowls, and the beasts, and every sort of reptile that creepeth on the ground, "that they may be fruitful, and 18 multiply upon the earth. And Noah went forth, and his sons, and his wife, and his 19 sons' wives with him. And all the animals, and the "beasts," and the fowls, and the reptiles (that creep on the ground, according to their kinds, went out of the ark.

CHAPTER IX.

B. C. 2343. God blesseth Noah, forbiddeth murder, maketh a covenant with him, &c.

20 AND Noah builded an altar to Jehovah ; and took of every clean beast, and of every clean fowl, and offered burnt-offerings on 21 the altar. And Jehovah accepted the offerings ; and he said in his heart, I will never again curse the ground for man's sake ; although the frame of man's heart be evil from his youth ; neither will I again smite 22 every animal, as I have done. While the earth remaineth, seed-time and harvest, cold and heat, summer and winter, and day and night, shall not cease.

1 And God blessed Noah and his sons, and said to them, Be fruitful and multiply ; and 2 replenish the earth, and subdue it. And the fear of you and the dread of you, shall be upon all the beasts of the earth, and upon all the fowls of the air, upon all the reptiles of the ground, and upon all the fishes of the sea ; to you do "I make them subject." 3 Whatsoever moveth, and in which there is life, shall be to you for food, even as the 4 green herb : to you I give them all : Only flesh, with its life-blood in it, ye shall not eat. For surely of your life-blood will I 5 demand an account ; from whatsoever liveth will I demand it ; from every man's own brother will I demand an account of the life of man. Whoso sheddeth man's blood, by 6 man shall his own blood be shed : (for in the image of God made he man). And as 7 for you, be fruitful, and increase ; bring forth abundantly on the earth, and multiply upon it.

Moreover God spoke to Noah, and to his 8 sons with him, saying, Behold, I establish 9 my covenant with you, and with your seed after you ; And with all the animals that 10 are with you, with the fowls, with the cattle, and the wild-beasts ; with all the animals of the earth, that went with you out of the ark. Yea with you I establish my covenant, 11 that never again shall all creatures be cut off by the waters of a flood ; neither shall there again be a flood to destroy the earth. And God said, This is the token of the cove- 12 nant which I appoint between me and you, and all the animals that are with you, in all future generations. My bow in the cloud 13 do I appoint to be a token of the covenant between me and "all" the earth. So that 14 whenever I bring a cloud over the earth, and the bow appear in the cloud ; Then I will 15 remember my covenant, which is between me and you, and all kinds of animals "which are with you ;" and the waters shall not again become a flood to destroy all living creatures : For when the bow shall be in the 16 cloud I will look upon it, that I may remember the perpetual covenant between me and the animals of all kinds which are upon the earth. And God said to Noah, 17 This is the token of the covenant, which I establish between me and all flesh that is upon the earth.

regard it, as being originally appointed for divine worship ; and after a day spent in prayer and praise, it might become proper to see if the ground had become so dry as that he and those with him could with safety come out of the ark.

15. From comparing chap. vii. 11 with this verse, it appears that from the commencement of the flood till Noah came out of the ark, was one year and seven days. If the months were lunar, it would be one solar year or 365 days.

17. In the common text there is a manifest tautology ; and on the authority of the Sept. and Vulg. versions, the words וַיִּשְׂרָצוּ, and let them abound on the earth, should be omitted, as being included in the following words. The chapter ought to terminate with the 19th verse, as what follows is closely connected with the 9th chapter.

20. Builded an altar] This is the first express mention of an altar ; yet there can be no doubt but the altar must have been coeval with the rite of sacrifice. The sacrifice of Noah seems to have been an holocaust, the whole being consumed.

21. Jehovah accepted] This is the sense of the idiomatical phrase, 'Jehovah smelled a sweet savour, or the pacifying odour.' Onkelos has given the meaning, 'Jehovah accepted with pleasure his offering.' Said in his heart] i.e. purposed and determined.

22. The seasons vary according to climate ; and for this reason the promise here is general, applicable to all climates and countries. In Europe the year is divided into four quarters or seasons ; but here are six divisions, which the rabbins tell us obtained in Palestine, as it does now among the Arabs. This promise is our security ; and from the constant fulfilment of it, we have a striking proof of God's faithfulness.

CHAP. IX. 2. (v) Sam. Sept. the rest, they are subject. 3. Whatsoever moveth, and in which there is life] This general grant of the creatures for food, must be limited to all such as are in their nature suitable and fit for that purpose.

4. Life-blood] The reason of this prohibition seems to be that the life-blood of animals was appointed to make atonement for men's sins, and appropriated to the altar ; and perhaps to prevent cruelty to animals.

5. God intended by this to guard human life ; and he has authorized the Goel, the nearest kinsman of a person murdered, or the magistrate to slay the murderer.

9—17. This covenant was designed to encourage Noah and his posterity ; and the rain-bow was to be the constant token of it. We are not to suppose that the rain-bow had never appeared before. It is known to be the effect of the sun's rays, refracted by drops of rain ; and if the old world was blessed with fruitful showers, the bow must have been formed and seen. But it was now made a sign and pledge of God's purpose no more to destroy the earth with a flood. 13. (a) Many MSS. 15 (a) Sam. Sept.

- 18 And the sons of Noah, who had come out of the ark, were Shem, and Ham, and Japheth: and Ham was the father of Canaan.
- 19 These are the three sons of Noah; and from these was the whole earth overspread.
- 20 And Noah became an husbandman, and
- 21 planted a vineyard: And he drank of the wine till he was drunk; and he lay uncovered in his tent. And Ham, the father of Canaan, saw the nakedness of his father, and told of it to his two brethren, who were
- 23 without. Then Shem and Japheth took a mantle, and laid it upon both their shoulders, and went in backward, and covered the nakedness of their father, with their faces backward; and the nakedness of their father

Accursed shall Ham be in his son Canaan;
The most abject slave shall he be to his brethren.
And he said;

And to him also shall Canaan be a slave.

CHAPTER X.

B. C. 1993. The posterity of the sons of Noah.

- 1 Now these are the progeny of the sons of Noah; Shem, Ham, and Japheth: and to them were the following sons born after
- 2 the flood. The sons of Japheth were, Gomer, and Magog, and Madai, and Javan,

20—23. It is probable, that the venerable patriarch was overcome with the fruit of the vine from inexperience. The conduct of Ham was in the highest degree undutiful, and indicates a mind as void of delicate sensibility as it was of piety.

25. What is implied in the context is supplied; and it ought to be considered, that this curse on Ham in his posterity, was not the expression of anger, but, like the blessing on his two other sons, prophetic.

26. Archbishop Secker approves of this version as most natural and suitable. With many critics the second line of the next verse is transposed, as what evidently belongs to this; as it explains in what manner Shem should be blessed. Among his posterity, Jehovah dwelt by his visible presence: first in the tabernacle and then in the temple. Compare Deut. iv. 7, and 2 Chron. vi. 18.

27. Enlarge Japheth]. The name Japheth signifies enlarged; and there is evidently a paranomasia which cannot be given in a version. See Bishop Newton for the fulfilment of this prophecy.

CHAP. X. 2. Gomer is supposed to be the father of the Cimmerians, or the ancient Celts; Magog, of the Scythians or Tartars; Madai, of the Medes; Javan, of the Ionians, or more ancient Greeks; Tubal, of the Tihareni; Meshech, of the Moski, or Russians; Tiras, of the Thrasians.

3. Ashkenaz, and his sons, inhabited Phrygia Major; Riphath and his descendants, Paphlagonia; Togarmah, and Tubal, and Meshech, and Tiras. And 3 the sons of Gomer were Ashkenaz, and Riphath, and Togarmah. And the sons of 4 Javan were Elishah, and Chittim, and 'Rodanim.' From these sprang the insular 5 nations, who were distinguished according to their tongues and family descents.

And the sons of Ham were Cush, and 6 Mizraim, and Phut, and Canaan. And 7 the sons of Cush were Seba, and Havilah, and Sabtah, Raamah, and Sabtechah; and the sons of Raamah were Sheba and Dedan. And Cush begot Nimrod; and he 8 became mighty on the earth. He became 9 a mighty plunderer before Jehovah: hence it is said, Like Nimrod the mighty plunderer, before Jehovah. And the beginning of his 10 kingdom was Babel, and Erech, and Accad, and Calneh, in the land of Shinar. From 11 that land he went into Assyria, and built Nineveh, and Rehoboth, Ir, and Calah, And Resen between Nineveh (the great 12 city) and Calah. And from Mizraim (the 13 father of the Egyptians) sprang the Ludites, and Anamites, and Lehabites, and Naphthulites, And Pathrusites, and Cas- 14 luites, from whom came the Philistines and Caphtorites.

And Canaan begot Sidon his firstborn, 15 and the Hethites, And the Jebusites, and 16 the Amorites, and the Girgasites, And the 17 Hivites, and the Arkites, and the Sinites, And the Arvadites, and the Zemarites, and 18 the Hamathites: and afterward were the families of the Canaanites spread abroad. And the boundary of the Canaanites was 19 from 'the river of Egypt to the great river, the river Euphrates, and unto the western sea.' These were the sons of Ham, ac- 20 cording to their families, their tongues, their countries and their nations.

To Shem (the father of all the children 21

Phrygia Major, according to Josephus, but in the opinion of others, Armenia.

4. Elishah, or Elis, Achaia; Togarith, Tartessus in Spain; some Tarsus, in Cilicia; Chittim, first inhabitants of Italy, or of Macedonia; Rodanim, the inhabitants of Gallia Rhodensis, some, Rhodes, and others, following the common reading Dodanim, Epirus. (v) Sam. Sep. 1 Chron. i. 7.

6. The Hamites inhabited part of Arabia, Egypt, Lybia on the south and north-east, Babylonia, and probably Persia and Bactriana.

9. Nimrod signifies a rebel, and it is probable he was so called, from having rejected the laws of God and man, and supported by force, a tyranny over others. Before Jehovah, means, without any fear of his displeasure. Plunderer,] Literally, Mighty hunter.

11. The marginal rendering, which connects this verse with the preceding, and applies it to Nimrod, is preferable to the common version: 'And he went forth into Assyria, &c.' See Micah v. 6.

19. The Samaritan copy of the Hebrew in this verse, agrees with the boundaries of the land of Canaan given us Gen. xv. 19, and Exod. xxiii. 31, &c.

21. Shem was Noah's oldest son, and Ham the youngest. For the sake of perspicuity the text is transposed a little, or rather the genuine construction is given.

of Eber, the elder brother of Japheth,) were 22 sons also born. The sons of Shem were Elam, Asshur, and Arphaxad, and Lud, and 23 Aram. And the sons of Aram were Uz, 24 and Hul, and Gether, and Mash. And Arphaxad begot Salah; and Salah begot 25 Eber. And to Eber were born two sons;
 the name of the one was Peleg [division], because in his days was the earth divided; 26 and his brother's name was Joktan. And Joktan begot Almodad, and Sheleph, and 27 Hazarmaveth, and Jerah, And Adoram,
 28 and Uzal, and Diklah, And Obal, and Abi-29 mael, and Sheba, And Ophir, and Havilah, and Jobab. All these were the sons of 30 Joktan; And their residence extended from Mesha, unto Sephar, a mount of the east.
 31 These were the sons of Shem, according to their families, their tongues, their countries 32 and their nations. And these were the families of the sons of Noah, according to their national genealogies; and from these were the nations of the earth distinguished after the flood.

CHAPTER XI.

B. C. 2247. Babel built, language confounded, and the builders dispersed; the genealogy of Shem to Abram.

1 At first all the people of the earth had 2 but one language, and one speech. And it came to pass, as a part journeyed from the east, that they found a plain in the land of 3 Shinar; and they dwelt there. And they said one to another, Come, let us make bricks and burn them in the fire. And bricks had they instead of stone, and bitumen instead of mortar. And they said, Come 4 let us build for ourselves a city and a tower, whose top may be in the heavens; and let us make for ourselves a distinguished monument lest we be scattered over the face of the whole earth. But Jehovah came down 5 to see the city and the tower, which the children of men were building. And 6 Jehovah said, Behold the people are one, and they have all but one language; and this they begin to do; nor will they be restrained from doing whatsoever they have purposed. Come, let us go down, and there confound their language, so that they may 7 not understand one another's speech. Thus 8 Jehovah thence scattered them over the face of the whole earth; and they left off building the city and the tower." There- 9 fore was its name called Babel [CONFUSION]; because Jehovah there confounded the language of the people of the whole earth; and thence Jehovah scattered them over the face of the earth.

This is the genealogy from Shem. Shem 10 was one hundred years old, and begot Arphaxad, two years after the flood. And 11 Shem lived, after he begot Arphaxad five hundred years, and begot sons and daughters. "So all the days of Shem were six hundred years; and he died." And Ar- 12 phaxad lived thirty-five years and begot

22—29. Elam inhabited a part of Persia, between Susiana and Media. Asshur gave name to Assyria; Arphaxad, that part of Assyria called Arapachites; Lud, some think the father of the Lydians in lesser Asia. Michaelis considers the name corrupted, and suspects it was לוֹד or לוֹדִי, India, which the Arabs still call الهند. Compare Jer. xlv. 9, and Ezek. xxvii. 10. Aram, or Syria. It is most probable, that the descendants of these patriarchs dwelt as near their original seat as an increasing population would admit. Joktan and his descendants inhabited Arabia Felix down to the Indian sea.

24. Canaan; and Canaan begot Salah, Sept. and Lnk.

32. The accounts contained in this chapter descend to a long period after the flood; and the design of Moses seems to have been to preserve the memory of the origin of the different nations of antiquity.

CHAP. XI. 2. What has been said concerning the situation of Paradise, and the place where the ark rested, is supported by what we here read, They journeyed from the east. Armenia is north of Shinar; and the attempt of Bochart to remove this difficulty is sufficient to satisfy one, that the ark could not have rested on any of the mountains of Armenia, but on some of those which separate India from Persia. Some think the Hamites only departed, and settled in the plain of Shinar, attended by some of the race of Japheth and Shem; and what is said of Nimrod countenances this opinion.

4. The object men had in view in building a city and tower, was to make themselves a name, and prevent their dispersion. 'A tower whose top may reach unto heaven,' is a common orientalism for a high tower. Compare Deut. i. 28, and ix. 9. Distinguished monument. Literally, a name, which here must denote, the city and tower, as a centre of union.

6. What was their offence in building a city and a tower?

The mere wish to dwell together had nothing sinful in it. We must then suppose, either that a defection from the worship of God, or some change in civil and religious rites, was intended. This event happened most probably at the birth of Peleg, the fourth in descent from Noah, and agrees to the time of Nimrod's domination. That this confusion of tongues refers to sentiments and opinions, and not to articulate sounds, by which one language is distinguished from another, has been maintained by many celebrated critics and divines. It is most probable, that Nimrod aimed to unite all those who had journeyed from the east under a military despotism; and, to support his assumption of unjust and unlawful power, he began to build the city and the tower; and that, his design being discovered, many opposed it, and others sought freedom in new and distant settlements, Ps. lv. 10.

8. (a) Sam. Sept.

11. There is a considerable difference in the chronology from the flood to the time of Abraham, between the Hebrew text, the Samaritan, and the Septuagint. The two latter add a hundred years to the age of each before they begot children, which makes a difference of 700 years; and if Cainan be admitted, of 830 years. That the discrepancy arose either from design, in one of the copies, or from mistake in the numeral letters, cannot be doubted, but in which, it is difficult, if not impossible, to decide. The period from the flood to the birth of Abraham, according to the Hebrew text, is 292, according to the Samaritan, 942, and to the Septuagint, 1072 years. If Canaan should be admitted, it would make the period from the flood to Abraham, 422 years. The Samaritan text adds after each person named the sum of the years which he had lived. And as this is supported by the genealogy, chap. v. it should be deemed genuine.

12. (c) Canaan.

13 "Salah." And Arphaxad lived after he begot "Salah," four hundred and three years, and begot sons and daughters. "So all the days of Arphaxad were four hundred and 14 thirty-eight years; and he died." And Salah lived thirty years, and begot Eber.
15 And Salah lived after he begot Eber four hundred and three years, and begot sons and daughters. "So all the days of Salah were four hundred and thirty-three years;
16 and he died." And Eber lived thirty-four 17 years, and begot Peleg. And Eber lived after he begot Peleg four hundred and thirty years, and begot sons and daughters. "So all the days of Eber were four hundred and 18 sixty-four years; and he died." And Peleg 19 lived thirty years, and begot Reu. And Peleg lived after he begot Reu two hundred and nine years, and begot sons and daughters. "So all the days of Peleg were two hundred 20 and thirty-nine years; and he died." And Reu lived thirty-two years, and begot Serug.
21 And Reu lived after he begot Serug two hundred and seven years, and begot sons and daughters. "So all the days of Reu were two hundred and thirty-nine years;
22 and he died." And Serug lived thirty years, and begot Nahor. And Serug lived after 23 he begot Nahor two hundred years, and begot sons and daughters. "So all the days of Serug were two hundred and thirty years;
24 and he died." And Nahor lived "twenty"- 25 nine years, and begot Terah. And Nahor lived after he begot Terah one hundred and nineteen years, and begot sons and daughters. "So all the days of Nahor were one hundred and forty-eight years; and he died."
26 And Terah lived seventy years, and begot Abram, Nahor, and Haran.
27 Now these are the progeny of Terah. Terah begot Abram, Nahor, and Haran; 28 and Haran begot Lot. And Haran died before his father Terah, in the land of his 29 nativity, in Ur of the Chaldees. And Abram and Nahor married; the name of Abram's wife was Sarai; and the name of Nahor's wife, Milcah, the daughter of Haran, (the father of both Milcah and Iscah.) But 30 Sarai was barren; she had no child. And 31 Terah took Abram "and Nahor," his sons, and Lot, the son of Haran, his grandson, and Sarai "and Milcah his daughters-in-law, the wives of his sons, Abram and Nahor;" and he brought them from Ur of the Chaldees, to come into the land of Canaan; but when they came unto Haran, they dwelt there. And the days of Terah were "one 32 hundred and forty-five years;" and he died in Haran.

CHAPTER XII.

P. C. 1921. Abram called, goeth to Canaan; God blesseth him; his descent into Egypt.

Now Jehovah had said to Abram, Depart 1 from thy country, and from thy kindred, and from thy father's house, into a land which I will show to thee. For of thee will I make 2 a great nation, and I will bless thee, and make thy name great; and thou shalt become a blessing. Those who bless thee will 3 I bless; and those who curse thee will I curse: and in thee "and in thy SEED" shall all the families of the earth be blessed. So 4 Abram departed, as the Lord had spoken to him; and Lot also went with him; and Abram was seventy-five years old when he departed out of Haran. And Abram took 5 Sarai his wife, and Lot his brother's son, and all the substance which they had obtained, and "all" the servants which they had acquired in Haran; and they set out to come into the land of Canaan; and into the land of Canaan they came.

And Abram passed through the land as 6 far as the place of Shechem, to the Turpentine tree of Moreh. And the Canaanites were then in the land. And Jehovah ap- 7 peared unto Abram, and said, To thy seed

13. (r) Canaan. (a) And Canaan lived one hundred, &c. Sept. and Luke.

24. (r) Sam. seventy.

29. Iscah] Some contend she is the same as Sarai, but this is irreconcilable with what is said chap. xx. 12.

31. (a) One copy of Sept. and (v) Sam.

32. Kennicott, Geddes, and de Dieu, admit (the Sam. here in preference to the text. According to the text, Terah begot Abram when he was 70 years old, and died in Haran, aged 205. Abram departed from Haran in his 75th year, (chap. xii. 4.) and in Acts vii. 4, it is said that Terah died before Abram had departed from Haran. The age of Terah, when Abram was born, added to his age when he left Haran, makes only 145 years. From this it is evident, an error has crept into the text.

CHAP. XII. 1. Stephen informs us (Acts vii. 2) that God had revealed himself to Abraham when at Ur, in Chaldaea; and had given him the command here recorded.

2. Become a blessing] To thy friends and servants, by thy instruction and example; and to all nations, as the progenitor of the Messiah.

3. I will bless those] That is, I will enter into the closest friendship with thee; thy friends shall be my friends, and thine enemies I will regard as mine enemies. Thy seed] The apostle explains this promise of Christ, Gal. iii. 16. (a) Syr. see note chap. xxii. 18.

5. All the servants] The term עַבְדֵי is used in a collective sense, and here signifies servants or slaves bought with money. Compare Ezek. xxvii. 13, and Rev. xviii. 13. (a) Sept. 1 MS.

6. Shechem] i. e. to the place where Shechem was afterwards built, to the plain between the mounts Ebal and Gerizim. See Gen. xxxiv. 2, &c. Turpentine tree] Celsius has proved that מֵלֶךְ means the turpentine tree. See Hieroboton. And the Canaanites] Michaelis observes, that the descendants of Ham occupied the land of Palestine for the purpose of trade, and by degrees possessed nearly the whole of that country. Moses makes this remark to intimate that the land given to Abraham by promise, was then possessed by those people whom his descendants were going to expel.

7. Jehovah appeared] It is probable he appeared in the human form, attended often with some peculiar splendour. Compare chap. xvii. 1; xviii. 1, &c. His speaking to Abraham directly countenances this opinion.

will I give this land. And there he builded an altar unto Jehovah, who had appeared 8 unto him. And he removed thence unto a mountain on the east of Beth-el, and pitched his tent, having Beth-el to the west, and Hai to the east. There also he builded an altar to Jehovah; and called upon the name of 9 Jehovah. Abram again removed, still going on towards the south.

10 But there happened a famine in the land; so Abram went down into Egypt to sojourn there; for grievous was the famine in the 11 land "of Canaan." And it came to pass when they had come near to Egypt, that he said to Sarai his wife, Behold, I know that thou art a woman of a fair countenance;
 12 Therefore it may happen, that when the Egyptians shall see thee, that they will say, This is his wife; and they will kill me, that 13 they may keep thee alive. Say, I pray thee, that thou art my sister, that it may be well with me for thy sake; and that my life through thee may be preserved.

14 Now it happened, that, on Abram's coming into Egypt, the Egyptians beheld 15 that the woman was exceedingly fair. The princes also of Pharaoh saw her, and commended her to Pharaoh; and the woman 16 was taken into Pharaoh's house. And Abram was kindly treated for her sake; and had flocks and herds, "a very large possession;" and men-servants and maid-servants, and "he-asses," and camels.

17 But Jehovah afflicted Pharaoh and his household with great afflictions, on account 18 of Sarai, the wife of Abram. Pharaoh therefore called Abram, and said, What is this thou hast done to me? Why didst thou not 19 tell me that she was thy wife? Why saidst thou, She is my sister, so as to lead me to take her for my wife? Now here is thy 20 wife: take her and depart. And Pharaoh gave command to certain men concerning him, that they should send him away, and his wife, and all that he had, "and Lot with him."

CHAPTER XIII.

B. C. 1918. Abram and Lot return from Egypt; they separate; Lot takes up his abode near to Sodom; God reneweth the promise to Abram, who removes to Hebron, and builds an altar.

1 So Abram came out of Egypt, and his

11. Fair countenance] Though Sarai was now advanced in age, her complexion as a Syrian was much fairer than the Egyptians; and, on that account, more likely to attract notice and attention.

15. Pharaoh] This was the common name of their kings. According to Josephus and Jablonski, it signified, in the Egyptian language, king. It was not therefore a proper name.

16. (a) Sam.

17. In what manner Jehovah afflicted Pharaoh we are not informed, nor how it was known to him that it was for wife, and all that he had, and Lot with him, into the south part of Canaan. And he 3 went forward in his journeys from the south to Beth-el, to the place where his tent had been before, between Beth-el and Hai; To 4 the place where he had formerly made an altar, and there Abram called on the name of Jehovah.

"And Abram was very rich in cattle, in 2 silver, and in gold." And Lot also, who went 5 with Abram, had flocks, and herds, and tents, "in great abundance;" So that the land
 6 could not bear them to dwell together: for so great were their riches that they could not dwell together. There was, moreover,
 7 strife between the herdmen of Abram's cattle and the herdmen of Lot's cattle. (And the Canaanites and the Perizzites dwelt then in the land). And Abram said to Lot, Let 8 there be no strife, I pray thee, between me and thee, and between my herdmen and thy herdmen; for we are kinsmen. Is not 9 the whole land before thee? Depart, I pray thee, from me; either to the left hand, that I may go to the right; or to the right hand, 10 that I may go to the left. And Lot raised his eyes, and beheld that the whole plain of the Jordan, all the way to Zoar, (Jehovah not having then destroyed Sodom and Gomorrah,) was every where well-watered, like the garden of Jehovah, or as the land of Egypt; And Lot chose for himself all the 11 plain of the Jordan, and journeyed eastward. Thus they parted, one from another. Abram 12 dwelled in the land of Canaan; and Lot dwelled in the cities of the plain, and pitched his tents near to Sodom. Now the men of 13 Sodom were exceedingly wicked and sinful, before Jehovah.

Then Jehovah said to Abram, after Lot 14 had departed, Raise now thine eyes, and from the place where thou art, look northward, and southward, and eastward, and westward; For all the land which thou 15 seest, will I give to thee, and to thy seed for ever. And I will make thy seed nume-
 16 rous as the dust of the earth; so that if one can number the dust of the earth, thy seed also may be numbered. Arise, walk 17 through the land in its length and in its breadth; for to thee will I give it. Then 18 Abram removed his tent, and came and the sake of Sarai. It was perhaps in a dream that God imparted this to him.

CHAP. XIII. 2. This verse is transposed after the fourth, as evidently making a better connexion. The words added to the text in the first verse are necessary to the sense of the place.

5. Tents] This term seems here to be interpolated, though it is found in the versions and MSS. (a) Syr.

7. The wealth of the patriarchs consisted in their herds and flocks; and the pasture-grounds were now insufficient for them.

10. The garden of Jehovah] Here is a reference to para-dwelt at the Turpentine tree of Mamre, "an Amorite," which was by Hebron; and he there built an altar to Jehovah.

CHAPTER XIV.

B. C. 1914. The battle of the kings; Lot is taken prisoner; Abram rescues him; Melchizedek blesseth Abram, who gives tithe; his partners take their portions of the spoil, and the rest he restores to the king of Sodom.

- 1 AND in those days it was, that Amraphel king of Shinar, Arioch king of Ellasar, Chedorlaomer king of Elam, and Tidal king of the Goim, Made war with Bera king of Sodom, and with Birsha king of Gomorrah, Shinab king of Admah, and Shemeber king of Zebaiim, and the king of Bela, which is now Zoar. All these last met together in the vale of Siddim, which is now the salt sea.
- 4 Twelve years they had served Chedorlaomer, and in the thirteenth year they rebelled.
- 5 And in the fourteenth year came Chedorlaomer, and the kings confederate with him, and smote the Rephaites in Ashteroth Karnaim, and the Zuzites of Ham, and the
- 6 Emites of Shaveh Kiriathaim, And the Horites of the "mountains of Seir," unto Elparan, which is by the wilderness. And they turned and came to En-mishpat, (which is Kadesh,) and smote all the country of the Amalekites, and of the Amorites also, who
- 8 dwell in Hazezon-tamar. And the king of Sodom, and the king of Gomorrah, and the king of Admah, and the king of Zebaiim, and the king of Bela, (that is Zoar,) went out and joined battle with them in the vale
- 9 of Siddim; With Chedorlaomer the king of Elam, and with Tidal king of Goim, and Amraphel king of Shinar, and Arioch king of Ellasar; four kings with five. And the 10 vale of Siddim was full of bituminous pits; and the kings of Sodom and Gomorrah were defeated, and many fell there, and the rest fled to the mountains. And the victors 11 took all the riches of Sodom and Gomorrah, and all their provisions, and went away. And Lot, Abram's brother's son, (for he 12 dwelt in Sodom,) and "all" his riches, they took away, when they departed.

And one that had escaped, came and told 13 Abram the Hebrew, who dwelt at the Turpentine tree of Mamre, an Amorite, the brother of Eshcol, and of Aner, who were confederate with Abram. And when Abram 14 heard that his kinsman was taken captive, he mustered his tried servants, born in his own house, three hundred and eighteen, and pursued the enemy unto Dan. And he 15 divided his servants, and came against them by night, smote them, and pursued them unto Hobah, which is on the left of Damascus. And he brought back all the riches 16 of Sodom and Gomorrah; and also his kinsman Lot, and his riches he recovered; the women also, and the people.

On Abram's return from smiting Chedorlaomer, and the kings confederate with him, the king of Sodom went out to meet him, unto the vale, which is now called the king's vale. Melchizedek also, the king of Salem, 18 brought forth bread and wine; and being the priest of the most high God, He blessed 19 Abram, and said, Blessed be Abram of the most high God, possessor of the heavens dise, whence arose a copious stream to fertilize it, which became four rivers. Others consider Jehovah, used here, as a term to denote excellence, and render as a divine garden, or one fertile and beautiful.

12. Land of Canaan] The country from the Jordan to the Mediterranean sea, was called the land of Canaan; and within these boundaries Abram continued to dwell.

18. Hebron] In the days of Abram this city was called Keriath-Arba. See chap. xxiii. 3, and Josh. xiv. 15; but Moses might use its modern name, as better understood.

CHAP. XIV. 1. The king of Shinar was the chief of the kings mentioned; and they seem to have dwelt from the Euphrates to Palestine. Rosenmüller supposes that Tidal was king of Galilee, often afterwards called Galilee of the nations. As this is not certain, it is better to render כנעני, Goim, as a proper name.

4. Had served] i. e. they had paid tribute; but now they determined to assert and vindicate their independence and freedom.

5. The Rephaites] So called from their stature. Ashteroth was on the other side the Jordan, and given by Joshua to the tribe of Manasseh. Josh. xii. 4; xiii. 12. The others were neighbouring cities.

6. Horites] Michaelis has proved these were Troglodytes, who inhabited the caves of mount Seir, which they found formed by nature, or which they made for dwelling-places. The name of Paran still continues as the name of a plain in Arabia Deserta, reaching to the mountains of Idumea, as Niebuhr testifies. (v) Sam. the rest, their mount.

7. En-Mishpat] This place was afterwards so called, because God here judged the Israelites for murmuring. Numb. xx. 13.

10—12. The text here is ambiguous; but the version given is both just and perspicuous. (a) Sept.

13. The Hebrew] The Sept. understood this to signify 'one that had come from beyond the Euphrates,' i. e. Abram the transeuphratean. And this is more probable than that he should be so called as a descendant of Eber. See chap. xi. 14.

14. Mustered] So the Sept. and Vulg. render; and this reading is more apt than the textual. The learned reader may see note Heb. Bible.

15. Matthews in his Bible rendered, 'He set himself and his servants in array, and fell upon them by night.'

17. The king's vale] The opinion of Onkelos seems most probable, that this place was so called, because that there Melchizedek brought forth bread and wine, and there Abram, Melchizedek, and the king of Sodom, were refreshed with the friendly repast.

18. Melchizedek] Salem was the city afterwards called Jerusalem. It is mentioned by its ancient name Ps. lxxvi. 2. The name of this king describes his character; king of righteousness. He was also 'priest of the most high God;' worshipped and honoured the same God as Abram did. Paul says, Heb. vii. 3, 'Without father, without mother, without descent,' &c. i. e. without recorded father or mother, without any account of his birth or death. In reference to the priestly office of Melchizedek, as there is no mention of its termination, he is made like to the Son of God, a king, and a priest, for ever. In this respect he was an eminent type of Jesus, the king and priest of the church. He brought bread and wine to refresh Abram and those with him; and as a priest he blessed him, and God also, for giving him so signal a victory.

20 and the earth! And blessed be the most high God, who hath delivered thine enemies into thine hand. And 'Abram' gave to him 21 the tithe of all the spoil. And the king of Sodom said to Abram, Give me the persons; 22 and take the riches to thyself. And Abram said to the king of Sodom, I swear to Jehovah, the most high God, the possessor of the 23 heavens and the earth, That I will not take even a thread, or a sandal-string, of all that belongeth to thee, lest thou shouldst say, I 24 have made Abram rich! Excepting only what the young men have eaten; and the portion of the men who went with me, Aner, Eshcol, and Mamre; let them take their shares.

CHAPTER XV.

B. C. 1913. Abram encouraged; a son promised; justified by faith, and the promise of Canaan confirmed.

1 AFTER these things the word of Jehovah came to Abram in a vision, saying, Fear not, Abram! I am thy shield; and exceedingly great shall be thy reward. And Abram said, Lord Jehovah, what wilt thou give me, seeing I am going to die childless, and the son of my steward, Eliezer of Damascus, 3 will be my heir? For, behold, said Abram, to me thou hast given no seed; and lo, one 4 born in my house will be my heir. And, behold, the word of Jehovah came to him, saying, This shall not be thy heir; one 5 sprung from thine own body shall be thy heir. He then brought him forth and said, Look now towards the heavens, and number the stars, if thou be able to number them. Then said he to him, So shall be thy seed. 6 And 'Abram' believed in Jehovah; and he accounted it to him in order to righteousness. 7 And he said to him, I am Jehovah, who brought thee from Ur of the Chaldees, to give to thee this land for an inheritance. 8 But said he, O Lord Jehovah, by what shall

I know that I shall inherit it? And 'Jehovah' said to him, Bring to me a heifer of three years old, and a she-goat of three years old, and a ram of three years old; also a turtle-dove and a pigeon. And he brought 10 to him all these, and divided them into halves, and laid one half opposite another; but the birds he did not divide. And when 11 birds of prey came down upon the carcasses, Abram drove them away. And when the 12 sun was going down, a heavy sleep fell upon Abram; and, lo! horror 'and' great darkness fell upon him. Then Jehovah said to 13 Abram, Know for certain that thy seed shall be sojourners in a land not their own, the inhabitants of which will enslave them, and will afflict them, for four hundred years. But that nation, by whom they shall be en- 14 slaved, I will judge; and afterwards shall they come out of it with great riches. Thou, 15 indeed, shalt go to thy fathers in peace; thou shalt be buried in a good old age. And 16 they shall return hither in the fourth generation; for as yet the iniquity of the Amorites is not complete. And when the sun was 17 set, and it was dark, behold a smoke, like that of a furnace, and a flame of fire passed between those pieces. On that same day 18 Jehovah made a covenant with Abram, saying, To thy seed I give this land, from the river of Egypt unto the great river, the river Euphrates; The land of the Kenites, and 19 the Kenizzites, and the Kadmonites, And 20 the Hethites, and the Perizzites, and the Rephaites, And the Amorites, and the 21 Canaanites, and the Girgasites, and the Jebusites.

CHAPTER XVI.

B. C. 1911. Sarai giveth Hagar to Abram; her flight and return. The birth of Ishmael.

STILL Sarai, the wife of Abram, bare him 1 no child; and she had an Egyptian hand-

20. And Abram gave] Some would confine this tenth of the spoils as a mere present to Melchizedek, in return for his hospitality; but it seems given for a thank-offering to God, to be offered by Melchizedek as his priest.

22. I swear] Literally, 'I lift my hand,' because this was the form of taking a solemn oath.

CHAP. XV. 1. Shall be thy reward] All our old translations, and all the ancient versions, so render.

2. The sense given is supported by Theodotion and the Syriac version. The learned reader may consult note, Heb. Bible.

6. He accounted] The Sept. and St. Paul render passively, 'it was accounted.' The sense is the same, whichever rendering be adopted. He was thus justified by faith, not being yet circumcised. Rom. iv. 3, and Gal. iii. 6.

13. Will enslave them] So all the ancient versions render; and the context requires it. The people of the land in which they are to be sojourners, are understood as the nominative of the verb. Four hundred years] This period must be dated from Abram's arrival in Canaan; from which to the birth of Isaac was 25 years, Gen. xii. 4, and xvii. 1, 12; Isaac was 60 years old at the birth of Jacob, Gen. xxv. 26; Jacob was 130 at his going down to Egypt, which three numbers make 215 years; and the same period Jacob and his children dwelt in Egypt, Gal. iii. 7. Vid. Userii Sacra Chron. p. 40, &c.

15. Go to thy fathers] The Targums consider this as referring to a separate state, as they explain, in peace thy soul shall rest.

16. Four generations] In ancient times it was customary to reckon by generations, to which various periods were assigned by different nations, from twenty years to one hundred; and it is probable the last is intended here, which makes the period the same as the 400 years mentioned in ver. 13.

18. Made a covenant] We see from the manner in which covenants were made, the origin of this phrase, which occurs so frequently in the Hebrew Scriptures. Some animal suitable for sacrifice was cut into two pieces, and the confederating parties passed between them. So Jehovah, by causing the fire to pass between the parts of the victims, ratified the covenant with Abram; engaging to give him the land of Canaan.

18. River of Egypt] By this is meant, not a branch of the Nile, but most probably a stream between Gaza, and Rhinocalura. See Amos vi. 14. Some think it is the same as Sihor or Sicho, Josh. xiii. 3.

CHAP. XVI. 1. It is reasonable to believe that the con-

- 2 maid, whose name was Hagar. And Sarai said to Abram, Behold now, Jehovah permitteth me not to have children, go in, I pray thee, to my handmaid; it may be that I may obtain children by her. And Abram
- 3 hearkened to the voice of Sarai. And after Hagar had dwelt ten years in the land of Canaan, Sarai, the wife of Abram, took Hagar, her Egyptian handmaid, and gave her for a wife to her husband.
- 4 And he went in to Hagar, and she conceived, and when she saw that she had conceived, her mistress became contemptible in her eyes. Sarai, therefore, said to Abram,
- 5 My wrong lieth upon thee. Mine own handmaid have I given into thy bosom; and when she saw that she had conceived, I became contemptible in her eyes. Jehovah
- 6 judge between me and thee. Then Abram said to Sarai, Behold thy handmaid is in thine own power: do to her what thou seest fit.
- 7 Sarai then so humbled her, that she fled from her presence: And the angel Jehovah found her by a fountain of water in the wilderness; by that fountain which is on the
- 8 way to Shur. And he said, Hagar, handmaid of Sarai, whence comest thou? and whither art thou going? And she said, I flee from the presence of my mistress
- 9 Sarai. And the angel Jehovah said to her, Return to thy mistress, and behave submissively to her. The angel Jehovah also said
- 10 to her, I will multiply thy seed so exceedingly, that it shall not be numbered for multitude. For, behold, (again said the angel
- 11 Jehovah to her,) thou hast conceived, and shalt bear a son, and shalt call his name Ishmael [GOD-ATTENDETH]; because Jehovah hath attended to thy affliction. And a
- 12 wild and fierce man will he be; his hand against every one, and the hand of every one against him; and in the face of all his brethren will he dwell. And Hagar called the name of Jehovah who had spoken to her, EL-ROI [THE VISIBLE GOD]; for she said, Did I not here see him visible, by me? Wherefore the well was called Beer-lahai-roi [THE WELL OF THE LIVING VISIBLE ONE]. Behold, it is between Kadesh and Bered.

And Hagar bare to Abram a son; and Abram called the name of his son, whom Hagar bare, Ishmael. And Abram was eighty-six years old when Hagar bare Ishmael to him.

CHAPTER XVII.

B. C. 1898. God renews his covenant with Abram; his name changed; circumcision appointed, and Isaac promised.

AND when Abram was ninety-nine years old, Jehovah appeared to him, and said to him, I am God the Almighty; walk before me, and be thou perfect. And I will make my covenant with thee, that I will multiply thee exceedingly. And Abram fell on his face; and God again spoke to him, saying, Behold I make my covenant with thee, that thou shalt be the father of many nations; Nor shall thy name any more be called

5 ABRAHAM, but ABRAHAM shall thy name be; for a father of many nations I have purposed to make thee. And I will render thee exceedingly fruitful; and out of thee I will make nations; and kings from thee shall proceed. And I will establish my covenant with thee and thy seed after thee, throughout their generations, for a perpetual covenant: to be a God to thee, and to thy seed after thee. And the land in which thou art

8 a sojourner, the whole land of Canaan, I will give, for a perpetual possession, to thee and to thy seed after thee; and their God I will be.

And God said to Abraham, Thou shalt therefore keep my covenant, thou, and thy duct of Sarai in giving Hagar to Abram, was conformable to the prevailing custom of the age, and of the eastern nations. See Matt. xix. 4, 6. These secondary wives, or concubines, as they have been improperly called, were always considered as slaves, and might be dismissed at pleasure, the children either being retained, as in the case of the handmaids of Lea and Rachael, or sent away, portions being given to them. Sarai, having no hope of bringing forth children herself, intended to build up the family of Abram by Hagar. See Harmer, vol. iv. and Bruce's Travels, vol. iv. 8vo. edit.

6. Behold, thy handmaid] Sarai charges Abram as the cause of the injury she received, and as encouraging the insolence of Hagar towards her. He answers, that her handmaid was in her own power. Sarai, by the custom of the east, had power over her own slave; and in correcting her, did only what was proper. The design of Hagar appears to have been to return to Egypt, her own country.

7. An angel Jehovah] God, in those early times, often appeared to impart his will to men; and on such occasions he is called promiscuously 'Jehovah,' or the 'angel Jehovah.' Such appearances seem preludes of the Word becoming flesh, and dwelling among men. Perhaps when angel Jehovah is mentioned, it may denote some unusual phenomenon attending the divine presence. See ver. 10, 13, 14. Michaelis justly remarks, the common modes of explaining the terms are absurd. See on the word מלאך, angel.

12. And a wild and fierce man] Both wild and fierce are implied in the animal to which Ishmael is compared. The wild-mule is, according to Pallas, untameable. Such would Ishmael and his race be. See note, Job xxxix. 5. In the face of all] Brethren implies any kind of relations. By his mother's side, the Egyptians were his brethren, and on his father's, all the posterity of Abraham. To both the Ishmaelites were contiguous. They dwelt, and they continue to dwell, in the face of their brethren, unsubdued, a wild and unsettled race.

13. The visible God] For the reading adopted see note Heb. or Fam. Bible.

CHAP. XVII. 1. God, the Almighty] Some would render all-sufficient, and others all-bountiful; but the usual sense is most appropriate to all the places where the word occurs.

5. Abram, but Abraham] The former denotes high father, the latter the father of a great multitude. It has been, and it still is, the custom of the east, for persons to receive new names, expressive of some particular incident in the course of their lives, or suitable to the office they are called to discharge. See Gen. xxxii. 28, and xli. 45; Dan i. 7; Rev. ii. 17; Ruth i. 20; Matt. xvi. 18.

 10 This is my covenant between me and thee, and thy seed after thee, which ye shall keep: Every male child among you shall be circumcised. Yea, the foreskin of your flesh ye shall circumcise, that it may be a token 12 of the covenant between me and you. And every male child among you, eight days old, throughout your generations, shall be circumcised; both he that is born in the house, and he that is bought with money of any 13 stranger, who is not of thy seed. He that is born in thy house, and he that is bought with thy money, must needs be circumcised; that my covenant may be in your flesh for 14 a perpetual covenant. And the uncircumcised male-child, the foreskin of whose flesh hath not been circumcised, that person "being eight days old," shall be cut off from his people; for he will have broken my covenant.
 15 Moreover, God said to Abraham. As for Sarai thy wife, thou shalt not call her name
 16 Sarai, but Sarah shall her name be. And I will bless her, and by her I will give thee a son, "whom also I will bless." A mother of nations shall she be, and kings of nations 17 from her shall come. Then Abraham fell upon his face, and laughed, and said in his heart, Shall a son be brought forth to one a hundred years old; and shall Sarah, who 18 is ninety years old, bear? And Abraham said to God, O that Ishmael may live before 19 thee! And God said, Sarah thy wife shall indeed bear thee a son, and thou shalt call his name ISAAC [LAUGHTER]; and I will establish my covenant with him, and with his seed after him, for a perpetual covenant.
 20 As for Ishmael also I have heard thee: Behold I will bless him, and make him fruitful, and multiply him exceedingly; twelve princes shall he beget, and I will make of him a great nation. But my covenant I will establish with Isaac, whom Sarah shall bear to thee about this very time next year. Ceasing now to speak with him, God ascended from Abraham.

Then Abraham took Ishmael his son, and all that were born in his house, and all that were bought with his money, every male among his own servants, and circumcised the foreskin of their flesh, on that same day, as God had commanded him. And Abraham was ninety-nine years old when the foreskin of his flesh was circumcised. And Ishmael his son was thirteen years old, when the foreskin of his flesh was circumcised. On that same day was Abraham circumcised, and Ishmael his son. And all his male servants, whether born in the house, or bought with money of the stranger, were also circumcised."

CHAPTER XVIII.

B. C. 1898. Three angels visit Abraham; Sarah's laughter; destruction of Sodom revealed to Abraham, and his intercession.

AGAIN Jehovah appeared to Abraham at the Turpentine tree of Mamre, as he sat in the tent door in the heat of the day. For he raised his eyes and looked, and lo! three men stood over against him; and when he saw them he ran to meet them from the tent door, and bowed himself down to the ground, And said, My lords, if now I have found favour in "your" sight, pass not by, I pray, from "your" servant: Let a little water, I pray, be fetched, and wash your feet, and rest yourselves under the tree; And I will fetch a morsel of bread, that ye may refresh yourselves, and then pass on; for to this end are ye come to your servant. And they said, So do as thou hast said. Abraham then hastened into the tent to Sarah, and said, Quickly knead three measures of fine meal, and make hearth-cakes. And Abraham's affection for Ishmael. He prays for him, and is heard.

20. Twelve princes] For the fulfilment of this promise, see ch. xxv. 12, &c.

21. My covenant] My spiritual covenant, my everlasting covenant, chap. xii. 3. As for the temporal covenant, Ishmael was made as much a partaker of it as Isaac, and so was Esau as well as Jacob. This is the foundation of St. Paul's argument to the Galatians, and fully justifies his reasoning from these two covenants.

25. Thirteen years old] The Arabians, sprung from Ishmael, to this day circumcise their sons at this age, which custom all the Mahomedans also observe.

27. (o) With him. Sept. Vulg.

CHAP. XVIII. 1—5. We have here a beautiful delineation of oriental manners. A tent erected and the flocks and herds grazing around, Abraham reposing at the door of his tent, "during the heat of the day." He raises his eyes, and sees three strangers approaching him. He instantly rises and hastes to meet them; unsolicited, he admits them to all the rights of hospitality. Water is brought to wash their feet; ample provision is made; the table spread under the friendly shade of a tree, and Abraham performs the office of waiter! Compare Heb. xiii. 2. (e) Sam. the rest, My lord and thy servant.

11. The foreskin of your flesh] Luther, Matthews, and the Geneva, had the good sense so to render. The Hebrews used for the sake of modesty the term flesh, פֶּשֶׁת, for the pulenda, the foreskin of which was cut off in circumcision. This rite was to be the token or sign of the covenant, which God made with Abraham and his seed. Thus a peculiar people were separated to serve God, by such a distinction as evidently appeared to be of divine original; and was a proper emblem of purity and indifference to sensual enjoyments.

14. Eight days] This addition of the Sept. and Sam. is supported by the context and the exigence of the place. It must be understood as repeating the sentiment expressed in ver. 12. Cut off from] The punishment threatened, Michaelis contends, consisted in the uncircumcised person being cut off from the Jewish church and state. He who was uncircumcised, could neither inherit the property, nor join in the religious ceremonies of the Israelites. Fathers had the right to circumcise their sons, masters their slaves, and judges up grown persons.

15. Sarah but Sarah] i. e. not my princess, but a fruitful woman. So Ikenius explains it from the Arabic, which is most probably the sense, from what follows in the next verse.

16. (v) Sam. versions.

18. The promise of a son by Sarah, did not abate Abra-

- ham ran to the herd, and fetched a calf, good and tender, and gave it to a young 8 man, who quickly dressed it. He then took butter-milk and sweet milk, and the calf which had been dressed, and set them before the men under the tree; and he himself waited on them, and they ate.
- 9 And they said to him, Where is Sarah thy wife? And he said, Behold, here in the 10 tent. And one of them said, I will certainly return to thee according to the time of life; and, lo! Sarah thy wife shall have a son. And Sarah heard this; for she was behind 11 him at the door of the tent. Now Abraham and Sarah were old, and far gone in years; and Sarah was past the age for child-bearing.
 12 Therefore Sarah laughed within herself, saying, After I am worn with age shall I have pleasure in a son, my lord being old 13 also? And Jehovah said to Abraham, Why laugheth Sarah, saying, Shall I indeed bear 14 a child, who am so old? Is any thing too hard for the Lord? At the time appointed I will return to thee according to the time 15 of life, and Sarah shall have a son. Then Sarah denied, saying, I laughed not; for she was afraid. And he said, Nay; but thou didst laugh.
- 16 The men now rose up and thence departed towards Sodom; and Abraham went 17 with them to direct them on the way. And Jehovah said, Shall I conceal from Abraham "my servant" what I am about to do?
 18 Seeing Abraham shall surely become a great and mighty nation, and all the nations
 19 of the earth in him shall be blessed? For I know "that Abraham" will command his children and his household after him, to keep the way of Jehovah, by doing justice and judgment; that Jehovah may bring 20 upon Abraham that which he hath spoken concerning him. Jehovah then said, Because the cry of Sodom and Gomorrah is 21 grievous; I will now go down, and see, and know, whether or not they have done altogether according to the cry which hath 22 come to me. Two of the men now turned their faces thence, and went towards Sodom; but

Abraham yet stood before Jehovah. And 23 Abraham drew near, and said, Wilt thou also destroy the righteous with the wicked? Should there be fifty righteous persons 24 within the city; wilt thou destroy and not spare the place for the sake of the fifty righteous persons who are in it? Far be it from 25 thee to do after this manner, to slay the righteous with the wicked; and far be it from thee to treat the righteous and the wicked alike. Shall not the Judge of all the earth do right? And Jehovah said, If 26 I find within the city of Sodom fifty righteous persons, I will spare the whole place for their sakes. And Abraham added and 27 said, Behold now, I have taken upon me to speak to my Lord, though I am but dust and ashes; Should there be wanting five of 28 the fifty righteous persons; wilt thou, for the want of these five, destroy the whole city? If I find there forty-five, said he, I will not destroy it. And he spoke to him yet again, 29 and said, Should forty be found there? For the sake of forty, replied he, I will not "destroy" it. And Abraham said, Oh! 30 let not my Lord be angry, if I speak, Should thirty be found there? And he said, I will not "destroy" it, if I find thirty there. Again he said, Behold now, I have taken 31 upon me to speak unto my Lord, Should twenty be found there? And he said, For the sake of twenty I will not destroy it. Oh! let not my Lord be angry, if I yet 32 speak once more. Should ten be found there? And he said, For the sake of ten I will not destroy it. Jehovah now ceasing 33 to speak with Abraham, went away; and Abraham returned unto his place.

CHAPTER XIX.

B. C. 1898. Lot receiveth two angels; the vile conduct of the Sodomites; Sodom destroyed; Lot's wife punished; his incest.

AND two angels came to Sodom in the evening; and Lot was sitting at the gate of Sodom: and Lot, seeing them, rose up to meet them; and he bowed himself with his face to the ground; And he said, Behold 2 now, my Lords, turn aside, I pray, into the house of your servant, and wash your feet,

10. According to the time of life] That is, according to the time for bringing forth a living child. Others think that it means, at the same time next year. The former is more probable. Compare ver. 14, and 2 Kings iv. 16.

15. Sarah laughed] So did Abraham when a son was promised; but it seems, her laughter was from unbelief, his from surprise. The admission of the angel most probably removed her doubts, as we find the apostle commending her faith, Heb. xi. 11.

17. Jehovah spoke to the angels, who attended him, what is here noticed. (a) Sept. Syr. 19. (a) Sam.

21. I will go down] Onkelos, the Jewish paraphrast, explains, 'I will appear and judge.'

24-32. The intercession of Abraham for Sodom, displays the amiable qualities of his heart, and his just views of the divine character. He appears humble, fervent, and compassionate. The Jews say, he pleaded and reduced the number of the righteous, until he concluded the place would be spared. 29, 30. (v) Sam. and the versions.

CHAP. XIX. 1. From 2 Kings vii. 1, 18, it appears that the gate of cities was not only used as a place of judicature, but that markets were held there; and from Acts xvii. 18, Mark ix. 15, Matt. xxiii. 7, it appears that philosophers gave lectures to the people, and that they met there for conversation. Is it not most natural to suppose, that Lot had resorted to the gate or market, either for the purpose of imparting or receiving instruction? Compare Psa. lxi. 12, and Prov. viii. 3, and xx. 21.

and lodge; and rise up early, and go on your way. And they said, Nay; but we 3 will lodge in the street. But he urged them greatly; and they turned to him, and entered into his house; and he baked unleavened cakes, and made a feast for them; and they ate.
 4 But before they lay down, the men of the city, the men of Sodom, the whole people together, both old and young, surrounded
 5 the house; And they called to Lot, and said to him, Where are the men who came to thee this night? Bring them out to us, that we may know them. And Lot went 6 out of the door to them, but shut the door after him; And said, I pray you, brethren,
 8 do not so wickedly. Behold now, I have two daughters who have not known man; let me, I pray you, bring them out to you, and do to them what is good in your eyes; only to these men do nothing; for, therefore are they come under the shelter of my 9 roof. But they said, Stand back. They also said, Shall one who came in as a sojourner set himself up as a judge? We will now treat thee worse than them. And they pressed hard upon Lot, and came near to 10 break open the door. But the men put forth their hand, and pulled Lot to them
 11 into the house, and shut the door. And they smote the men who were at the door of the house, both small and great, with blindness; so that they wearied themselves in vain to find the door.
 12 Then the 'angels' said to Lot, Who else is there here related to thee? Thy sons and thy daughters, and whatsoever thou hast in the city, bring out of this place;
 13 For we are about to destroy this place. For great before Jehovah is the cry of their guilt; and Jehovah hath sent us to 14 destroy them. And Lot went out and spoke to his sons-in-law, who married his daughters, and said, Arise, get you out of this place; for Jehovah is about to destroy this city. But he seemed to his sons-in-law as one jesting.

And when the morning dawn arose, the 15 angels urged Lot, saying, Arise, take thy wife, and thy two daughters, who are here; lest thou be consumed in the punishment of the city. And while he lingered, the men 16 laid hold upon his hand, and upon the hand of his wife, and upon the hand of his two daughters; (Jehovah being merciful to them;) and they brought them forth and set them without the city.

And when they had brought them forth, 17 one of them said to Lot, Escape for thy life; look not behind thee, nor stay in all the plain; escape to the mountains, lest thou be consumed. And Lot said to one of 18 them, Oh, not so, my Lord. Behold now, 19 thy servant hath found favour in thy sight, and thou hast magnified thy mercy, which thou hast showed to me in saving my life; but I cannot escape to the mountains, lest some evil take me, and I die. Behold now, 20 that city is nearer to flee unto, and it is but a little one. Let me, I pray, escape thither, that my life may be saved: is it not a small one? 'Hence, its name was called ZOAR' (SMALL.) And he said to him, See, I have 21 accepted thee concerning this thing, so that I will not overthrow this city, for which thou hast spoken. Quickly escape thither; 22 for until thou art come thither, I cannot do any thing.

The sun had now risen upon the earth, 23 and Lot had entered into Zoar; When Je- 24 hovah himself rained from the heavens sulphur and fire upon Sodom and Gomorrah; And he overthrew those cities, and the 25 whole plain, with all the inhabitants of the cities, and the growth of the ground. And 26 Lot's wife also, looked earnestly back from

5. For the honour of human nature, one cannot help wishing, that this shameful vice had perished from the earth, together with the cities of the plain! The prohibitory and severe laws of Moses imply that it was practised in his day; and history unblushingly records it, as prevalent in the best days of Greece and Rome. See Rom. i. 24, 26, 27.

7. The conduct of Lot proves the sense he entertained of the rights of hospitality, and justifies the remark of Peter. See 2 Pet. ii. 7.

8. Lot's proposal of giving his two daughters seems to us strange and unwarrantable. But it was perfectly consonant with the usages of those times and countries, where the rights of hospitality were considered as the strongest of all laws; and a violation of them was accounted the greatest crime.

11. Blindness] Geddes supposes, that they were struck by a flash of lightning, which for a season deprived them of the use of their sight; others, more probably, with a vertigo, so that they knew not what they were doing.

12. (v) Sam. the rest, men.

16. Brought them] The next verse proves, that the pronominal affixes should be taken in a collective sense, and rendered in the plural. Lot lingered, being probably loath to leave the city, as he had great wealth in it.

20. Hence it was] Transposed from ver. 22.

24. Jehovah himself] Literally, 'Jehovah from Jehovah,' but the noun is used for the pronoun.—Sulphur and fire] mean burning sulphur, or a dreadful storm of lightning. Compare Psa. xi. 5, and Ezek. xxxviii. 23, 2 Kings i. 12, Jos. i. 16. The plain of Sodom was full of bituminous pits, which being kindled by the lightning, must have produced the most dreadful conflagration. This plain, Josephus informs us, was 72 miles long and 19 broad. It became, in consequence of this destruction, a receptacle of water, now called the Dead Sea, or sea of Sodom. Before this event it is probable that the Jordan flowed into the Red Sea; and some late travellers have ascertained its course. Its waters are now lost in the sea of Sodom.

26. Looked earnestly back] So the verb signifies; and it implies that she stood still, if she did not actually return. Our Lord seems to countenance the latter supposition, Luke xvii. 31, 32.—Like a pillar of salt.] If נָצִיב denote a pillar, the particle of similitude must be understood, as it is in many places: 'Ephraim is (like) a cake not turned.' And some kind of rock or metallic salt, which was durable, must be referred to. The meaning is, she was struck dead, and became a stiffened corpse, which might be crusted over with saline and bituminous matter.

behind him, and she became like a pillar of salt.
 27 Now Abraham rose early in the morning, and went to the place where he had stood before Jehovah; And he looked towards Sodom and Gomorrah, and towards all the plain country; and he saw, and lo! the smoke of the land went up as the smoke of a furnace. But when God destroyed the cities of the plain, he remembered Abraham, and sent away Lot from amidst the overthrow, when he overthrew the cities in which Lot dwelt.
 30 And Lot, together with his two daughters, went up out of Zoar, and dwelt in the mountains; for he feared to dwell in Zoar; and he and his two daughters dwelt in a cave. And the first-born said to the younger, Our father is old, and there is not a man in the country to come in unto us, according to the custom of all the earth;
 32 Come, let us make our father drink wine, and let us lie with him, that we may preserve seed to our father. And they made their father drink wine that night; and the firstborn went in, and lay with her father; and he perceived not when she lay down, nor when she arose. And on the morrow, the firstborn said to the younger, Behold, I lay last night with my father, let us make him drink wine this night also; and go thou in, and lie with him, that we may preserve seed to our father. And they made their father drink wine that night also; and the younger arose, and lay with him; and he perceived not when she lay down, nor when she arose. Thus were both the daughters of Lot with child by their own father. And the firstborn bare a son, and called his name Moab. The same was the father of the present Moabites. And the younger also bare a son, and called his name Ben-ammi. The same was the father of the present Ammonites.

30. In a cave] The mountains of Moab are full of caves, which are both dry, and so spacious, that thousands may inhabit them.

31—38. It is justly inferred from the circumstance of Lot's daughters having wine, that he had not lost all his property. For they would scarcely think of taking wine, if they had not other necessities. We may then conclude, that Lot and his two daughters had brought provisions with them from Sodom; and the conjecture of Michaelis, that a part at least of his flocks and herds, and slaves, might be so remote from Sodom and the other cities, on account of pasture, as to escape destruction. And if all had been destroyed it is natural to suppose he would have fled to his kinsman Abraham. As the power of masters over their female slaves was absolute, it is not improbable, that Lot, whose spirits had been raised by wine, might command one of them to be brought him, and that his daughters availed themselves of this circumstance, to go and lie with him. 'And he knew not,' &c. he did not know that she was his daughter. The conduct of his daughters, from whatever motive it arose, was as unwarrantable as it was singular. They were probably influenced by a regard to their

B. C. 1898. Abraham denieth Sarah his wife; Abimelech taketh her, but God admonisheth him, and he returneth her to Abraham.

AND Abraham removed thence towards the south country, and dwelled and sojourned in Gerar, between Kadesh and Shur. And Abraham said of Sarah his wife, She is my sister: "for he was afraid to say, She is my wife; lest the men of the city should kill him, on her account;" and Abimelech, king of Gerar, sent and took Sarah. But God came to Abimelech in a dream by night, and said to him, Behold, thou art but a dead man, on account of the woman whom thou hast taken; for she hath a husband. But Abimelech had not come near her, and he said, Lord, wilt thou slay also a righteous nation? Said he not unto me, She is my sister? and did not she herself also say, He is my brother? In the integrity of my heart, and in the innocency of my hands, have I done this. And God said to him in the dream, Yea, I know that in the integrity of thy heart thou hast done this; therefore I also have withheld thee from sinning against me; and for this cause I suffered thee not to touch her. Now, therefore, restore the man his wife; for he is a prophet, and he shall pray for thee, and thou shalt live; but if thou restore her not, know that thou shalt surely die; thou, and all that are thine.

And Abimelech rose early in the morning, and called for all his servants, and spoke all those words to them; and "all" the men were greatly afraid. Then Abimelech called for Abraham, and said to him, What is "this" thou hast done to us? And in what have I offended thee, that thou wouldst bring so great guilt on me and on my kingdom? Deeds which ought not to be done, hast thou done to me. Moreover Abimelech said to Abraham, What sawest thou, that own family connexions, out of which they thought it not right to marry, especially fearing the fate of their sisters, who had married men of Sodom, and had perished with them.

CHAP. XX. 1. Gerar] This was the most southern city in the land of Canaan, Gen. x. 19, situated between the two deserts of Kadesh and Shur; a fertile district surrounded it, which in the time of Jerom, was called the district of Gerar. Rosenmuller contends, that what is related in this chapter, must have occurred when Abraham returned out of Egypt; and that the historian has not followed the exact order of time. For Sarah was now ninety years old, and also with child of Isaac, if what is here said occurred after the destruction of Sodom; and it should seem from verse 18, that Abraham made some considerable stay in Gerar.

2. The addition of the Sept. is at least highly probable. The words occur in reference to Isaac, chap. xxvi. 7, in the Hebrew text; and they assign a reason for the patriarch's conduct.

4. (v) Arab. man. 8. (a) All, Sam. Sept.

9. (a) This, Sept. 2 MSS.

10. Dimock ingeniously conjectured, that we should read

- 11 thou hast done this thing? And Abraham said, "Because I was afraid." For I said, Surely the fear of God is not in this place; and they will slay me on account of my 12 wife. And yet indeed she is my sister, the daughter of my father, but not the daughter of my mother, though she is also my wife.
13 And when God caused me to wander from my father's house, "and from the land of my nativity," I said to her, This is the kindness which thou shalt show to me; to whatsoever place we come, say of me, He is my brother.
14 Then Abimelech took "a thousand pieces of silver," and flocks and cattle, and menservants and maid-servants, and gave them to Abraham; and he restored to him Sarah 15 his wife. And Abimelech said, Behold, my land is before thee; dwell where thou 16 pleasest. And to Sarah he said, Behold, I have given to thy brother a thousand pieces of silver, to purchase veils for thee, "and" for all who are with thee, even for every one; thus she was reproved.
17 Then Abraham prayed to God; and God healed Abimelech, and his wife, and his handmaids, so that they might bear children.
18 For every womb in the house of Abimelech Jehovah had wholly restrained from bearing, on account of Sarah, the wife of Abraham.

CHAPTER XXI.

B. C. 1898. Isaac is born; Hagar and Ishmael dismissed; Abimelech cometh and maketh a covenant with Abraham.

- 1 AND Jehovah visited Sarah as he had said; and he did for Sarah as he had spoken.
2 For Sarah conceived, and bare a son to Abraham in his old age, at the set time
3 which God had mentioned to him. And רָאָה, what didst thou fear, instead of what didst thou see. The reading of the Samaritan in the next verse, strongly supports this conjecture. 11, 13, 14. (a) Sam.

13. And when God caused us to wander] In the common text the verb is in the plural, as it is chap. xxxv. 7, and 2 Sam. vii. 23, whence some have deduced the doctrine of the trinity; but the various reading in each place, and the consent of the versions, shows, that the plural is a mere error of the scribes.

16. Veils for thee.] Hebrew 'a covering of the eyes.' Our old versions rendered this idiomatical phrase veils. That married women wore veils, when they went abroad, of a peculiar kind or colour, is certain; and by the present Abimelech made, it is implied that Sarah and others had not the veils appropriated to those married. Thus she was reproved] This version arises from the present text as printed, and supported by the Sam. Onk. and Syr. The Sept. seem to have considered the term נָכַר as denoting, 'telling or speaking what is right or the truth,' from נָכַר, of which some approve.

CHAP. XXI. 3. Isaac.] Many learned and judicious divines have maintained that Isaac was intended to be an eminent type of Christ. His birth was miraculous, as was that of Christ. He disputed not his father's will, though it was to cost him his life; Jesus Christ became obedient even to death. Isaac carried the wood on which he was to have been sacrificed; Jesus Christ carried the cross on which he was to be crucified. They both carried them to the very Abraham called the name of his son that was born to him, (whom Sarah bare to him,) Isaac, [LAUGHTER]. And Abraham 4 circumcised his son Isaac, when eight days old, as God had commanded him.

Now Abraham was a hundred years old, 5 when his son Isaac was born to him. And 6 Sarah said, God hath made me to laugh for joy; and every one that heareth will laugh for joy with me. And she said, Who will 7 now say to Abraham, Shall Sarah suckle children; for I have born to him a son in my old age.

And the child grew, and was weaned; 8 and Abraham made a great feast on the day that "his son" Isaac was weaned. And 9 Sarah saw the son of Hagar the Egyptian, (whom she had born to Abraham,) deriding "her son Isaac;" And she said to Abraham, 10 Cast out this bondmaid and her son; for the son of this bondmaid shall not be heir with my son; with Isaac. Now this thing 11 greatly displeased Abraham because of his son. But God said to Abraham, Let it 12 not be displeasing to thee on account of the boy, and on account of thy handmaid; in all that Sarah hath said to thee, hearken to her voice; for by Isaac shall thy seed be reckoned. And of the son of that 13 bond-maid also will I make a "great" nation; because he is thy seed. And Abra- 14 ham rose up early in the morning, and took bread, and a skin-bottle of water, and gave them to Hagar, (putting them on her shoulder,) and the child, and sent her away.

And she having departed, wandered in the wilderness of Beer-sheba, Until the 15 water in the skin-bottle was spent; and she placed the child under one of the shrubs.

same place, Mount Moriah; being the place where the Temple was afterwards built. These coincidences were designed by him who sees the end from the beginning.

7. My old age.] The variation found in the Sept. is most probable the true reading. The age of Abraham had been stated in the 5th verse, and it is natural for Sarah to glance at her own. 8. (a) Sam.

9. Deriding her son Isaac] Without the addition now happily preserved in the Sept. and Vulg. the object of Ishmael's resentment and ridicule could not be ascertained. It appears from comparing 1 Sam. i. 24, with 2 Macc. vii. 27, that it was usual for some to suckle their children till they were three years old; and if Isaac had attained this age, Ishmael was 16 or 17 years old. From the feast Abraham made, his jealousy was excited, and he saw in the child a formidable rival—hence his conduct.

10. However this language might displease Abraham, it was agreeable to the usages of the times; and on the birth of Isaac, Ishmael could have no just claim to the inheritance. Paul has adverted to this, to illustrate the nature of the Jewish and Christian dispensations. See Gal. iv. 30.

13. (a) Sam. Sept.

14. Took bread] By bread and water, is frequently meant provisions of every kind. Isa. iii. 1, and xxxiii. 16. Is it not probable that they are to be understood in this latitude here?—A bottle.] The bottles or casks of the east, are made of skin, and their dimensions are according to the size of the animal of the skin of which they are made.

16 And she departed about the distance of a bow-shot, and sat down over against him. For she said, Let me not see the death of the child. So she sat over against him. And the 'child raised his voice', and wept ;

17 And God heard the voice of the lad ; and an angel of God called to Hagar from the heavens, and said to her, What distresseth thee, Hagar ? Fear not ; for God hath heard the voice of the boy there where he lieth. Arise, raise up the lad, and support him with thine hand ; for of him I will make a great nation. Then God opened her eyes, and she saw a well of water ; and she went, and filled the bottle with water, and gave to the lad to drink. And God was with the lad ; and he grew up, and dwelt in the wilderness, and became an expert archer. He dwelt in the wilderness of Paran ; and his mother took for him a wife from the land of Egypt.

22 It was about this time, that Abimelech and Phicol, the chief captain of his host, spoke to Abraham, saying, God is with thee in all that thou doest. Now, therefore, swear to me, by God, that thou wilt not deal falsely with me, nor with my son, nor with my son's son ; but according to the kindness that I have done unto thee, thou wilt do unto me, and to the land in which thou sojournest. And Abraham said, I will swear. And Abraham expostulated with Abimelech concerning a well of water, which Abimelech's servants had violently seized. And Abimelech said, I know not who hath done this thing ; for thou never toldest me, nor did I ever hear of it until this day. And Abraham took sheep and oxen, and gave them unto Abimelech ; and both of them made a covenant. And Abraham set apart by themselves seven ewe lambs of the flock. And Abimelech said to Abraham, What mean these seven ewe lambs, which thou hast set apart by themselves ? Then "Abraham said," These lambs shalt thou take from my hand, that they may be a witness for me, that I digged this well. Wherefore, because they both of them there swore, that place was called BEER-SHEBA [THE WELL OF THE OATH] ; for at

Beer-sheba they made this covenant. Then 32 Abimelech, and Phicol, the chief captain of his host, arose and returned into the land of the Philistines.

And "Abraham" planted tamarisk-trees 33 at Beer-sheba, and called there on the name of Jehovah, the eternal God. And Abra- 34 ham sojourned many days, in the land of the Philistines.

CHAPTER XXII.

B. C. 1872. Abraham tried ; his obedience in offering up Isaac ; forbidden to slay him by an angel, and he is again blessed.

AND after these things it was, that God 1 proved Abraham, and said to him Abraham, "Abraham !" And he said, Behold, here am I. And he said, Take now thy son, thine 2 only son Isaac, whom thou lovest, and go to the land of Moriah ; and there offer him for a burnt-offering upon one of the mountains which I will mention to thee.

And Abraham rose early in the morning, 3 and having saddled his ass, and cloven the wood for the burnt-offering, took with him two of his young men, and Isaac his son, and set out to go to the place which God had mentioned to him. And, on the third 4 day, Abraham raised his eyes, and saw the place afar off. And Abraham said to his 5 young men, Abide ye here with the ass ; and I and the lad will go yonder and worship ; and then return to you. And Abra- 6 ham took the wood of the burnt-offering, and laid it upon Isaac his son ; and he took in his hand fire and a knife ; and they both of them went on together. And Isaac spoke 7 to Abraham his father, and said, My father ; and he said, Here am I, my son. And he said, Behold the fire and the wood ; but where is the lamb for a burnt-offering ? And Abraham said, My son, God will provide for himself a lamb for a burnt-offering. 8 So they both of them went on together ; And they came to the place which God had 9 mentioned to him.

And there Abraham built an altar, and laid the wood in order, and bound Isaac his son, and laid him on the altar upon the wood. And Abraham had stretched forth 10

16. The reading of the Sept. is supported by the next verse.

19. It should seem the want of water was the cause of the distress of Hagar and her son ; a spring being discovered, the lad was refreshed and revived.

22. The Sept. reads here, as chap. xxvi. 26, and Ahuz-zath his friend. Abraham's increasing prosperity led Abimelech to enter into this alliance with him.

30. (a) Sam. 32. (a) Sept.

33. Tamarisk-trees] Celsius and Michaelis have proved that this is the import of שֵׁט ; and that this species of tree is common in Egypt and the neighbouring countries.

CHAP. XXII. 1. (a) Sept. Vulg.

2. The land of Moriah] Wells, Reland, and others, consider it as certain, that Moriah was one of the mountains, on which Jerusalem afterwards stood. Maimonides says, that the place where David built his altar, on the threshing floor of Araunah, and where the temple was built, was the spot where Abraham built his, and bound Isaac. Others think it was Calvary.—The command given to Abraham, has been considered irreconcilable with the divine perfections ; and infidelity, on this ground, has raised objections against divine revelation. We answer, that the Giver of life has a right to take it away ; and to do or command it to be done in what manner he pleaseth. To offer a human victim to him, without his express warrant, would be to commit murder ; but to do so by his authority, would be an act of obedience. But the design of God in this command was to prove Abraham, that his faith, love, and obedience might be manifest, and not that he should, in fact, offer up Isaac.

his hand, and taken the knife to slay his 11 son, When the angel Jehovah called to him from the heavens, and said, Abraham, Abra-12 ham! And he said, Here am I. Stretch not forth thine hand, said he, against the lad, nor do to him any harm: for now I know that thou fearest God, since thou hast not withheld thy son, thine only son from 13 me. And Abraham raised his eyes, and looked, and, behold, a ram in a thicket was caught by his horns; and Abraham went and took the ram, and offered him up for a 14 burnt-offering instead of his son. And Abraham called the name of that place Jehovah-jireh [JEHOVAH WILL PROVIDE]; as it is said to this day, In the mount, Jehovah will provide.
 15 And the angel Jehovah called to Abraham from the heavens the second time, 16 And said, By myself have I sworn, saith Jehovah, because thou hast done this thing, and hast not withheld "from me" thy son, 17 thine only son, That I will abundantly bless thee, and exceedingly multiply thy seed; as the stars of the heavens, and as the sand which is on the sea shore; and thy seed shall possess the gates of their enemies; 18 And in thy SEED shall all nations of the earth be blessed; because thou hast obeyed 19 my voice. So Abraham returned to his young men, and they rose up and went together to Beer-sheba; for Abraham dwelt at Beer-sheba.
 20 And after these things it was, that one told Abraham, saying, Behold, Milcah hath also born children to thy brother Nahor.
 21 Huz his firstborn, and Buz his brother:
 22 and Kemuel, (the father of Aram,) And Chesed, and Hazo, and Pildash, and Jidlaph, and Bethuel. And Bethuel had begot Re-23 bekah. These eight Milcah had born to Nahor, Abraham's brother. And his con-24 cubine, whose name was Reumah, bare also Tebah, and Gaham, and Thuhash, and Maachah.

CHAPTER XXIII.

B. C. 1860. Sarah's age and death; a burying place purchased in Machpelah; Sarah buried there.

Now the years of the life of Sarah were 1 one hundred and twenty-seven; And Sarah 2 died in Kirjath-arba, (the same with Hebron,) in the land of Canaan. And Abraham came to mourn for Sarah, and to weep for her.
 And Abraham arose from mourning over 3 his dead, and spoke to the Hethites, saying, I am a stranger and a sojourner among you; 4 give me a burying-place-possession among you, that I may bury my dead out of my sight. And the Hethites answered Abra- 5 ham," saying, Nay, hear us my lord: thou 6 art a mighty prince among us; in the choicest of our sepulchres bury thy dead; none of us will hinder thee from burying thy dead, even in his own sepulchre. Then 7 Abraham stood up, and bowed himself to the people of the land, to the Hethites,
 And he spoke to them, saying, If it be your 8 mind that I should bury my dead out of my sight, hear me; and intreat for me Ephron the son of Zohar, "the Hethite," That he 9 may give me the cave which he hath in Machpelah, which is in the end of his field; for as much money as it is worth he shall give it to me, for a burying-place-possession among you. And Ephron, who was sitting 10

13. The versions read one or a ram, instead of behind. The common text is absurd, for how could he see behind him?

14. The name given to the place, evidently alludes to the reply Abraham had made to the question of Isaac, see ver. 8, and to the merciful substitution of the ram for a burnt-offering, instead of Isaac. It should seem, that this name given to the mount, had become a proverb in the time of Moses. 'As it is said at this day, in the mount, Jehovah will provide.' Others render, 'In the mount, Jehovah will appear,' or be seen; and refer it to the appearance and sacrifice of Christ. This version seems forced; the same word being rendered differently here, from what it is in the 8th verse. The birth and offering of Isaac were evidently typical of our Lord. 16, (a) Versions.

18. And in thy seed Paul applied this to Christ, Gal. iii. 16. To be blessed in any one signifies to expect, on his account, the favour of God, and the enjoyment of special blessings. On account of the seed of Abraham, all nations were thus to be blessed. By the seed of Abraham may be understood all his posterity; but all nations could not be blessed in them, for some nations were by them to be destroyed, as the nations of Canaan. Hence it follows that some One of his seed must be intended. This could not be Isaac, or Jacob, to whom the same promise was repeated, xvi. 4; xxviii. 14. Much less can it be referred to any of the sons of Jacob with any appearance of truth. The promise then did most assuredly refer to Jesus, and hath been fulfilled in him, in whom, and by whom all nations are blessed, as all may be enlightened by his instruction, and saved by faith in him, as the Lamb of God who hath taken away the sin of the world.

CHAP. XXIII. 1. The order of the common text has evidently suffered, and that given has the authority of the Sept. and Vulg. See Note Heb. Bible. It may be observed, that Sarah is the only woman whose age, death, and burial are distinctly noted in the sacred writings.

2. Kirjath-Arba Joshua informs us, that this city was so called from Arba, the father of Anak. Josh. xxi. 11. This city was very ancient, Numb. xiii. 22.—Abraham come It is usual with the Greeks, to place their dead near the doors of their houses, and to attend them there with mourning; and Harner thinks that a like custom might obtain in the days of Abraham. His coming to mourn for Sarah, seems to mean, his coming from his own tent, and placing himself near the door of her tent, where her corpse was placed, in order to perform the solemn rites, to which both decency and affection led him.

3. Arose from In the time of Abraham the custom of sitting on the ground when mourning seems to have been usual, as it was in after ages, Job ii. 13; Isa. xlvii. 1.

5. The Samaritan reading is adopted, which is supported by the Sept. and the text itself verse 11. So also verses 8, 15.

6. Mighty prince Literally 'a prince of God.' This shows that God, in the Hebrew scriptures, is used as an epithet to denote excellence, in the opinion of James's translators.

10. Who was sitting So the interlinear ver. Ainsworth, Purver, Geddes, and others, with the Sept. render.

among the Hethites, (for Ephron was an Hethite,) answered Abraham in the hearing of the Hethites, of every one that went 11 in at the gate of his city, saying, Nay, my lord, hear me; the field I give to thee, and the cave that is therein I give to thee; in the presence of the sons of my people I give 12 it to thee: bury thy dead. And Abraham bowed down himself before the people of 13 the land; And he spoke to Ephron, in the hearing of the people of the land, saying, But if thou wilt give it, I pray thee, hear me; I will give to thee money for the field; take it of me, and I will bury my dead there.
 14 And Ephron answered Abraham, saying, 15 "Nay," my lord, hearken unto me; the land is worth four hundred shekels of silver; what is that between me and thee? bury 16 therefore thy dead. And Abraham hearkened unto Ephron; and Abraham weighed to Ephron the silver, which he had named in the hearing of the Hethites, four hundred shekels of silver, current with the merchant.
 17 And the field of Ephron, which was in Machpelah, which was opposite Mamre, the field, and the cave which was in it, and all the trees that were in the field, and that were in all the borders round about, were 18 made sure To Abraham for a possession, in the presence of the Hethites, before all that 19 went in at the gate of their city. And after this, Abraham buried Sarah his wife in the cave of the field of Machpelah, opposite Mamre, (the same with Hebron,) in the land 20 of Canaan. For the field and the cave that was in it, were made sure to Abraham for a burying-place-possession, by the Hethites.

CHAPTER XXIV.

B. C. 1857. Abraham sendeth his servant to his own kindred, to take a wife for Isaac; God prospereth his journey, and Rebekah is sent, whom Isaac marries.

1 ABRAHAM was now old, and far advanced in days; (for in every thing Jehovah had blessed Abraham;) And Abraham said to the oldest servant of his house, who ruled over all that he had; Pnt. I pray thee, thy hand under my thigh; And I will adjure thee by Jehovah, the God of the heavens and of the earth, that thou wilt not take a wife for my son "Isaac," of the daughters of the Canaanites, among whom I dwell; But that thou wilt go unto my country, and 4 to my kindred, and thence take a wife for my son Isaac. And the servant said to him,

 5 Perhaps the woman will not be willing to follow me unto this land: must I then return with thy son unto the land whence thou
 6 camest? And Abraham said to him, Beware that thou return not with my son thither. Jehovah, the God of the heavens
 7 "and of the earth" who took me from my father's house, and from the land of my kindred, and who spoke to me, and swore to me, saying, To thy seed will I give this
 8 land; he shall send his angel before thee, and thence shalt thou take a wife for my son. But if the woman will not be willing 9 to follow thee, then thou shalt be clear from this my oath; only return not with my son thither. And the servant put 10 his hand under the thigh of Abraham, his master, and swore to him concerning that matter.

And the servant took ten of the camels
 10 of his master, and some of the best of his master's things with him, and he set out, and went to Mesopotamia, unto the city of Nahor; And he caused his camels to kneel 11 down without the city by a well of water, about the time of the evening, when the women went out to draw water. And he 12 said, O Jehovah, the God of my master Abraham, I pray thee, grant me this day success, and show kindness to my master Abraham. Behold, I stand here by this 13 well of water; and the daughters of the men of the city are coming out to draw water. Grant, therefore, that the damsel to whom 14 I shall say, Let down thy pitcher, I pray thee, that I may drink; and she shall say, Drink, and I will let thy camels drink also; may be she whom thou hast appointed for thy servant Isaac; and I shall know that thou hast by this showed kindness to my master "Abraham."

And before he had done speaking "thus to 15 himself," behold, Rebekah, who was born to Bethuel, son of Milcah, the wife of Nahor, Abraham's brother, came forth with her pitcher upon her shoulder. And the damsel 16

 16. It seems that in the time of Abraham, money was not coined, but weighed, which custom long continued. And even when coined it was still weighed, as it is yet in Syria, Egypt, and throughout Turkey.

CHAP. XXIV. 2. To his oldest servant] The Targums not improbably suppose, that this servant was Eliezer of Damascus. Compare chap. xv. 2.—Put thy hand under my thigh] The Jews explain this, as strictly signifying the part circumcised, the token of the covenant, God had made with Abraham, and, as expressing his faith in the promises. Had such a custom obtained on this account, it must have continued among the Jews, who were all circumcised; but we find no trace of it, except here, and chap. xlvii. 49. Whatever might be the origin of this mode of adjuration, it seems to signify a promise, faithfully to perform what was specified. 3. 7. (a) Sept.

10. For the text see note, Heb. Bible.—The city of Nahor] From chap. xxvii. 43, it is clear, that Laban, the brother of Rebekah, dwelt at Haran; and it is most probable, that by the 'city of Nahor,' Haran is meant, situated on a river of the same name, and called Charrae by the Romans; famous for the defeat of Crassus. 14. 15. (a) Sam. Sept.

16. This fountain or well seems to have been furnished with steps down to the water; but most wells in the east are deep, so that it is usual for travellers, to carry with them had a very fair countenance, a virgin, for no man had known her; and she went down to the well, and filled her pitcher, and came up. And the servant ran to meet her, and said, Let me, I pray thee, drink a little water out of thy pitcher. And she said, Drink, sir, and she hastened, and lowered her pitcher upon her hand, and let him drink. And when she had done letting him drink, she said, I will also draw water for thy camels, until they have all drunk. And she quickly emptied her pitcher into the trough, and ran again to the well to draw water, and drew for all his camels. And the man wondered at her, silently reflecting, that he might know whether or not Jehovah had prospered his journey. And when the camels had done drinking, the man took a golden pendant of the weight of half a shekel, "and put it on her face," and two golden bracelets for her hands of the weight of ten shekels; And he said, Whose daughter art thou? tell me, I pray thee. Is there room in thy father's house for us to lodge in? And she answered him, I am the daughter of Bethuel, the son of Milcah, whom she bare unto Nahor. She said moreover to him, We have both straw and provender enough, and room to lodge in. The man now bowed his head, and worshipped Jehovah; And said, Blessed be Jehovah, the God of my master Abraham, who hath not withdrawn from my master "Abraham" his kindness and his truth: Jehovah hath led me in the "right way, unto the house of my master's own kinsman.

The damsel then ran, and told her mother's household these things. Now Rebekah had a brother, and his name was Laban. And when he saw the pendant and the bracelets upon his sister's hands, and when he heard the words of Rebekah his sister, saying Thus spoke the man unto me; "Laban ran to the man, unto the well;" and when he came unto the man, behold!

he stood at the well by the camels. And 31 he said, Come in, thou blessed of Jehovah! Why standest thou without? for I have a house prepared, and room for the camels.

And he brought the man into the house; 32 and he ungirded his camels, and gave straw and provender for the camels, and water to wash his feet, and the men's feet who were with him. And food was set before him; 33 but he said, I will not eat until I have told my business. And "they said", Tell it. I 34 am, said he, the servant of Abraham; And 35 Jehovah hath blessed my master, and he is become very great; and he hath given him flocks and herds; silver and gold; man-servants and maid-servants; camels and asses. And Sarah, my master's wife, bare 36 a son to my master when she was old, and to him hath he given all that he hath. And my master adjured me, saying, Thou 37 shalt not take a wife for my son of the daughters of the Canaanites, in whose land I dwell; But thou shalt go unto my father's 38 house, and to my kindred, and thence take a wife for my son. And I said to my master, Perhaps the woman will not follow me. And he said to me, Jehovah, before whom 40 I have walked, will send his angel with thee, and prosper thy way; and thou shalt take a wife for my son from my own kindred, and from my father's house. But thou shalt be 41 clear from this my oath, if when thou comest to my kindred, they will not give thee one: then thou shalt be clear from my oath. Now 42 I came this day unto the well, and said, O Jehovah, the God of my master Abraham, if now thou makest my journey prosperous; Behold, I stand by this well of water, "and 43 the daughters of the men of the city are coming to draw water;" grant, therefore, that when a virgin cometh forth to draw water, and I say to her, Give me, I pray thee, a little water out of thy pitcher to drink; And she say to me, Both drink thou, 44 and I will also draw for thy camels, she may leathern buckets and cords, to draw up water, as an essential part of their travelling furniture. Hence may be explained, John iv. 12.

21. Silently reflecting] So the word מרחש here signifies. The Dowry version is to the same purpose, "musing he held his peace."

22. Pendant] So Jerom explains the word, as meaning a circular pendant, and not an ear-ring; and at this day the women of Arabia wear such pendants. The reading of the Sam. is confirmed by the 47th verse.—On her face] i. e. on the forehead. The pendant and the bracelets were worth about 20*l.*—a valuable present.

27. Hath not withdrawn] i. e. who does not cease to show his kindness, &c.—The right way] So the Sam. Vulg. Arab., which omit מצי, thus render. Compare verse 48.

28. Her mother's household] Whether they dwell in tents or in houses, it is the custom of the east for women to have their own apartments.

29. The latter part of this verse. is evidently out of its place, and renders the narrative confused. With Dimock, Houbigant, and others, it is transposed to the next verse.

32. And he brought the] This version arises, from considering the verb ברא in the co-active voice; and it is more probable, that Laban ungirded the camels, and brought water to wash the feet of his guests, than that Abraham's chief servant, should do this for himself and the other servants who were with him. In the days of antiquity, such acts of service were not thought too mean for a man of wealth to perform.

33. I will not eat] It was the custom of the ancients, after their visitants had partaken of refreshments, to inquire for what purposes they had come. It is so now among the Arabs. But Abraham's servant, having received such proofs of divine favour, would not eat until he had told his business, and had succeeded by gaining their consent to his proposal. (v) Sam. Syr.

43. And the daughters] This addition of the Sept. is so natural, that most critics admit its right to a place in the text; so also 46.

be the woman whom Jehovah hath appointed for my master's son. Now, before I had done speaking to myself, behold, Rebekah came forth with her pitcher on her shoulder; and she went down to the well, and drew water; and I said to her, Let me drink, I pray thee. And she quickly lowered her pitcher from her shoulder "on her arm," and said, Drink; and I will let thy camels drink also: so I drank, and she let the camels drink also. And I asked her, and said, Whose daughter art thou? and she said, The daughter of Bethuel, Nahor's son, whom Milcah bare unto him; Then I put the pendant on her face, and the bracelets on her hands; And I bowed my head, and worshipped Jehovah, and blessed Jehovah the God of my master Abraham, who had led me in the right way to take the daughter of my master's kinsman, for his son. So now if ye will do a true kindness to my master, tell me; and if not, tell me; that I may know what course to take. Then Laban and Bethuel answered and said, From Jehovah this matter hath proceeded; nor is it right for us to say any thing against it. Behold, Rebekah is before thee. Take her, and depart; and let her be the wife of thy master's son, as Jehovah hath ordained. And when Abraham's servant heard their words, he worshipped Jehovah, bowing himself to the earth. And the servant brought forth jewels of silver, and jewels of gold, and raiment, and gave them to Rebekah. He gave also to her brother, and to her mother, valuable presents. Then both he and the men who were with him, ate and drank and lodged all night.

When they arose in the morning, the servant said, Send me away unto my master. And the brother and the mother of Rebekah said, Let the damsel abide with us a few weeks; after that she shall go. But he said to them, Hinder me not; seeing Jehovah hath prospered my journey, send me away, that I may return to my master. And they said, We will call the damsel and inquire at her mouth. And they called Rebekah, and said to her, Wilt thou go with this man? And she said, I will go. They then sent away Rebekah their sister, and her nurse, and Abraham's servant, and his men. And they blessed Rebekah, and said to her, Mayest thou our sister become the mother of thousands and ten thousands; and may thy seed possess the gate of their "enemies." Then Rebekah arose, and her hand-maids, and they rode upon the camels, and followed the man. So the servant of Abraham took Rebekah and departed.

Now Isaac had come from Beer-lahai-roi; (for he dwelt in the south country.) Isaac had gone out to meditate in the field in the evening; and he raised his eyes, and saw, and behold the camels were coming. Rebekah also raised her eyes, and when she saw Isaac, she alighted off the camel; and she said to the servant, What man is this that walketh in the field to meet us? And the servant said, It is my master; therefore she took a veil, and covered herself. The servant then told Isaac all that he had done. And Isaac took Rebekah, and brought her into his mother Sarah's tent, and she became his wife; and he loved her; and Isaac was comforted after the death of his mother.

CHAPTER XXV.

B. C. 1853. The sons of Abraham by Keturah; division of his goods; age and death of Abraham; sons of Ishmael; Esau and Jacob born.

AND Abraham had taken another wife; 1 and her name was Keturah: And she bare 2 to him Zimran, and Jokshan, and Medan, and Midian, and Ishbak, and Shuah. And 3 Jokshan begot Sheba and Dedan. And

49. Do a true kindness] Literally, 'do a kindness and truth,' which is a frequent idiom, and signifies as rendered. — That I may know] Literally, 'that I may turn to the right hand or to the left.'

50. Then Laban and Bethuel] It is well known, that unmarried sisters are, in the east, as much under the protection of their brothers, as they are under that of the father. Here we find them jointly acceding to the proposal of Abraham's servant, without either consulting Rebekah or her mother. From the simple statement of facts, they justly concluded this affair was from God, and to his will and pleasure they cheerfully submitted. See note, Heb. Bible, for the reason of the version.

55. A few weeks] The ambiguous and uncertain terms of the text are so rendered as containing what is as probable as any of the versions given.

60. (v) So the versions read.

63. Isaac, acquainted with the journey of his father's servant, had come to visit his father at Mamre, and to wait for the return of the servant. It is probable, he went out for the purpose of devout meditation, and to implore the kind interposition of Jehovah, in an event so intimately connected with his future happiness.

65. Therefore she took a veil] It is still customary in that country, when a woman meets a man on the way, for her to alight, and sit down at a distance veiled, until he be past.

CHAP. XXV. 1. Had taken] On reconsidering what is here recorded, I feel satisfied that Abraham must have married Keturah soon after Isaac was born, as it seems from the narrative, that her sons were of an age to marry and form distinct settlements, while he was still living. The names of his other sons by the concubines are not mentioned.

2. Midian the third son of Abraham, by Keturah, most frequently occurs in the Mosaic history, and other parts of the scripture. Wells places him on the south-east of the lake of Sodom, adjoining the Moabites, Numb. xxii. 4, and xxv. 1—6. The other children are not noticed as heads of clans, and probably died without leaving a numerous posterity.

3. The two sons of Jokshan, Sheba and Dedan, became heads of people, and settled most probably in Arabia Petraea. Wells considers the Sabeans, mentioned Job i. the descendants of Sheba. Dedan was situated near to his brother. Isa. xxi. 13, Jer. xxv. 23, and xlix. 7.

the sons of Dedan were the fathers of the Ashurites, and Letushites, and Leummites.

4 And the sons of Midian were, Ephah, and Ephraim, and Hanoah, and Abidah, and Eldaah. All these were the offspring of Keturah.

5 Now Abraham gave all that he had to 6 "his son" Isaac. But to the sons whom Abraham had by his concubines, he gave presents; and while he yet lived, sent them away eastward from his son Isaac, to the

7 east country (Arabia). And these are the number of the years of the life of Abraham,

8 one hundred and seventy-five. And Abraham expired, and died in a good old age; and, being old and full "of days," was

9 gathered to his people. And his sons Isaac and Ishmael buried him in the cave of Machpelah; in the field of Ephron, the son of Zohar the Hethite, which is opposite to 10 Mamre; The field which Abraham had purchased of the Hethites. There was Abraham buried, and there Sarah his wife.

11 And after the death of Abraham, God blessed his son Isaac; and Isaac dwelt at Beer-lahai-roi.

12 Now these are the descendants of Ishmael, Abraham's son, whom Hagar, the Egyptian, Sarah's handmaid, bare to him.

13 And these are the names of the sons of Ishmael, according to their genealogies: the first-born of Ishmael was, Nebaioth; then

14 Kedar, and Adbeel, and Mibsam, And

15 Mishma, and Dumah, and Massa, And Hadar, and Tema, and Jetur, and Naphish,

16 and Kedemah. These were the sons of Ishmael, and these their names, according to their towns, and their strong-holds; twelve

17 chiefs of nations. And these are the years of the life of Ishmael, a hundred and thirty-seven years; and he expired and died, and 18 was gathered to his people. And "he" dwelt from Havilah, as one goeth towards Assyria, unto Shur, which is on the borders of Egypt, lying near to all his brethren.

5. (a) Sept. Syr.

6. To the east country] From other places it is evident, that this phrase here denotes Arabia; but in many passages, it seems to denote the east in general.

8. (a) Sam. Sept. Syr. Vulg. 5 MSS.

13. The sons of Ishmael were situated on the borders of Egypt, along the Red sea; and across the desert to the Persian gulf. From Nebaioth, we have the Nabatheans of profane writers. Kedar seems to have become one of the most powerful tribes, as he is most frequently mentioned by the prophets. Tema gave his name to that part of Arabia called Tehama. Dumah, Jetur, and Naphish are only once mentioned, Isa. xx. 11, and 1 Chron. v. 19; and the other sons of Ishmael are no more noticed.

18. Lying near] I consider Shur as a participle, and here denoting the land allotted to Ishmael, which lay near to the other sons of Abraham, by Keturah.

22. Is it usually so] i. e. with those pregnant.—To consult Jehovah] In what manner this was done, we are not informed. It is most probable it was by Abraham, her father-in-law, who is styled a prophet.

23. This answer to the inquiry of Rebekah is evidently

This is the account of Isaac the son of 19 Abraham. Abraham begot Isaac. And 20 Isaac when forty years old married Rebekah, the daughter of Bethuel, a Syrian of Padan-aram, sister to Laban, a Syrian. And Isaac 21 entreated Jehovah for his wife, because she was barren; and Jehovah heard his entreaty, and Rebekah his wife conceived. And the 22 children struggled together in the womb; and she said, Is it usually so? Why do I find it thus? And she went to inquire of Jehovah. And Jehovah said to her, 23

Two nations are in thy womb;

And two peoples from thee shall proceed:

The one shall be more valiant than the other;

And the greater shall be subdued by the less.

And when her days to be delivered were 24 fulfilled, behold, twins were found in her womb. And the first who came forth was 25 of a reddish colour, and was covered all over as with a hairy garment, and they called his name Esau [COVERED]. And after that, 26 came forth his brother, and his hand had hold on Esau's heel; therefore his name was called Jacob [SUPPLANTER]. Now Isaac was sixty years old when she bare them. And the boys grew up, and Esau became 27 an expert hunter, a man of the field; but Jacob was a mild man, dwelling in tents. And Isaac loved Esau, because he ate of his 28 venison; but Rebekah loved Jacob.

Now it happened, that Jacob was boiling 29 some pottage, when Esau came from the field, and was faint; And Esau said to 30 Jacob, Let me eat, I pray thee, some of that RED, RED, (hence his name was called Edom [RED].) for I am faint. And Jacob said, 31 Sell to me this day thy birthright. And 32 Esau answered, Behold, I am going to die; and what profit shall this birthright be to me? And Jacob said, Swear to me this day; 33 and he swore to him; and sold his birthright to Jacob. Then Jacob gave Esau bread 34 and boiled lentiles; and he ate and drank, poetic; and as such it is printed. The Idumeans were a numerous people, and became the most formidable enemies of Israel. They were, at last, under David, subdued, and then was this prediction fulfilled.

27 Mild man] The term seems used here in opposition to Esau, who was a wild man. Some render simple, and others virtuous.

34. Esau is called profane on account of this deed, Heb. xii. 16. In the family of Abraham, either the first-born, or one divinely appointed, was properly considered as standing in his place, and conveying to his posterity the blessings of the covenant, which God had made with the Patriarch. Esau did not suppose he had sold his right to the blessing of Abraham, with the birth-right. This blessing God conferred on whom he pleased. It was not withheld from Esau, or given to Jacob, on account of any particular demerit in the one, or merit in the other. God gave it to Isaac, rather than to Ishmael, to Judah and not to Reuben. See Rom. ix. Shuckford considers that Esau sold to Jacob the right of offering sacrifices; and on this account he might be justly deemed profane. Vol. ii. p. 7.

and arose and went his way. Thus Esau despised his birthright.

CHAPTER XXVI.

B. C. 1872. Isaac goeth to Gerar; God instructeth and blesseth him; he is reproved by Abimelech; grows rich; diggeth wells, and makes a covenant with Abimelech; Esau's wives.

- 1 AND there was a famine in the land: (besides the first famine which had been in the days of Abraham:) and Isaac went unto Gerar, to Abimelech, king of the Philistines.
- 2 For Jehovah had appeared to him, and said, Go not down into Egypt; dwell in the land which I mention to thee. Sojourn in this land, and I will be with thee, and will bless thee; for to thee and to thy seed, I will give all these lands, and I will confirm the oath which I swore to Abraham
- 4 thy father. And I will make thy seed as numerous as the stars of the heavens, and will give to thy seed all these lands; for in thy seed shall all the nations of the earth be blessed; Because Abraham "thy father"
- 5 obeyed my voice, and kept my charge, my commandments, my statutes, and my laws.
- 6 So Isaac dwelt in Gerar; And the men of the place asked him concerning his wife; and he said, She is my sister; for he feared to say, She is my wife; lest the men of the place should kill him on account of Rebekah; for she was a woman of a fair countenance. But when he had been there a long time, it happened that Abimelech, king of the Philistines, looked out at a window, and saw, and behold, Isaac was playing
- 9 with Rebekah his wife. And Abimelech called Isaac and said, That woman is certainly thy wife; and why saidst thou, She is my sister? And Isaac answered him, Because I thought I may perhaps be put to death
- 10 on her account. And Abimelech said, What is this that thou hast done to us? One of the people might readily have lain with thy wife, and thus thou wouldst have
- 11 brought guilt upon us. And Abimelech charged all his people, saying, He that toucheth this man or his wife shall be put to death.
- 12 Then Isaac sowed in that land, and received in the same year a hundred fold in
- 13 crease; for Jehovah blessed him. And the man increased in wealth, and continued increasing until he became very great: For 14 he possessed flocks, and herds, and a great number of servants; so that the Philistines became jealous of him. And all the wells, 15 which the servants of his "father" Abraham had digged, the Philistines stopped up, and filled them with earth. And Abimelech said 16 to Isaac, Depart from us; for thou art become much mightier than we.

And Isaac departed thence, and pitched 17 his tent in the valley of Gerar, and dwelt there. And Isaac digged again the wells 18 of water, which "the servants" of Abraham his father had digged; (for the Philistines had stopped them after the death of Abraham;) and he called their names after the names by which his father had called them. And Isaac's servants digged in the valley, 19 and found there a well of spring water. And the herd-men of Gerar strove with 20 Isaac's herd-men, saying, The water is ours! He therefore called the name of the well Esek [STRIKE]; because they strove with him. And they digged another well, and 21 they strove for that also; and he called its name Sitnah [OPPOSITION]. And he re- 22 moved thence, and digged another well; but for that they strove not; so he called its name Rehoboth [ROOM]. For now, said he, Jehovah hath made room for us, that we may be fruitful in the land. And thence he 23 went up to Beer-sheba; And Jehovah ap- 24 peared to him on that night, and said, I am the God of Abraham thy father. Fear not; for I am with thee, and will bless thee, and multiply thy seed for the sake of my servant Abraham. And there he built an altar, and 25 called upon the name of Jehovah; he also pitched his tent there; and there, his servants digged a well.

Then Abimelech came to him from Gerar, 26 and Ahuzzath "his friend," and Pichol the chief captain of his army. And Isaac said to 27 them, Wherefore come ye to me, seeing ye hate me, and have sent me away from you? And they said, We have clearly seen that 28 Jehovah is with thee; we therefore propose, that there may be a mutual oath between us and thee. Let us make a covenant with 29 thee, that as we have not touched thee, and have done nothing but good to thee, and CHAP. XXVI. 2. God fulfilled his promise to Abraham, by revealing his will to Isaac; and it could not fail to encourage him, when he heard the high commendation of his father.

5. (a) Sam. Sept.

10. The remon-trance of Abimelech shows, either that the strictest regard was paid to chastity; or else, that the memory of the calamity, or peculiar affliction, sent in consequence of Sarah's having been taken, now excited his fears. See Gen. xx. &c. The command given to the people, serves to justify the latter supposition

12. A hundred fold] This great increase must in some seasons and places have been usual. See Matt. xiii. 8.

15. All the wells] In those countries wells are of great value, and filling them up is one mode of injuring new settlers, or of distressing an enemy, even to the present time. The Vulg. joins Abraham to his father, and the Sept. omits, in the days. The common text is confused.

18. It is impossible not to see, how much preferable the Samaritan here is to the common text. So also Sept. and Syr. read.

26. Most of the versions regard Ahuzzath a proper name. (v) Sept.

have sent thee away in peace, so thou wilt do to us no harm, now thou art blessed by 30 Jehovah. And he made for them a feast, 31 and they ate and drank together. And they rose up early in the morning, and swore one to another; and Isaac sent them away, and they departed from him in peace.
 32 And on the same day it happened, that Isaac's servants came, and told him concerning a well which they had digged; and 33 said to him, We have found water. And he called it Sheba [THE SWEARING-WELL]; therefore the present name of the city is Beer-sheba.
 34 Esau was now forty years old, and he married Judith the daughter of Beeri, a Hethite, and Bashemath the daughter of Elon, 35 also a Hethite; And they were the cause of much grief both to Isaac and Rebekah.

CHAPTER XXVII.

B. C. 1796. Isaac sendeth Esau for venison; Rebekah instructeth Jacob to obtain the blessing, when he dissembles and obtains it; Esau bringeth Isaac venison, who trembles; Esau complaineth, and by importunity obtaineth another blessing.

1 ISAAC had now become old, and his eyes were so dim, that he could not distinctly see; and he called Esau his eldest son, and said to him, My son; and he answered him,
 2 Behold, here am I? And he said, Behold now, I am old; *and' the day of my death
 3 I know not. Now, therefore, take, I pray thee, thy weapons, thy quiver and thy bow; and go into the field and take for me some 4 venison; And make me savoury meat, such as I like, and bring it to me, that I may eat; that my soul may bless thee before I die.
 5 Now Rebekah heard when Isaac spoke to Esau his son. And Esau went out into the field to hunt for venison, to bring to his father. And Rebekah spoke to Jacob, her 6 "younger" son, saying, Behold, I heard thy father speak to Esau thy brother, saying, Bring me venison, and make for me savoury

 7 meat, that I may eat, and bless thee in the presence of Jehovah before my death. Now
 8 therefore, my son, obey my voice according to what I command thee, Go now to the 9 flock, and thence bring to me two kids "tender and good;" and I will make of them savoury meat for thy father, such as he 10 liketh; And thou shalt bring it to thy father, that he may eat, and that he may bless thee before his death. But Jacob said to Re-11 bekah his mother, Behold, Esau my brother is a hairy man, and I am a smooth man. My father perhaps may feel me, and I shall 12 seem to him a deceiver; and bring on myself a curse, and not a blessing. And his 13 mother said, Upon me be thy curse, my son; only obey my voice, and go bring to me the kids. And he went, and took, and 14 brought them to his mother; and his mother made of them savoury meat, such as his father liked. And Rebekah took the 15 choicest raiment of her elder son Esau, which she had by her in the house, and put them on Jacob her younger son; And the skins 16 of the kids she put on his hands, and on the smooth part of his neck. And she gave the 17 savoury meat, and the bread, which she had prepared, into the hand of her son Jacob. And he came unto his father, and said, My 18 father! And he said, Here am I! Who art thou, my son? And Jacob said to his father, 19 I am Esau thy firstborn; I have done as thou badest me; arise, I pray thee, sit and eat of my venison, that thy soul may bless

33. As the wells which Abraham had dug, were filled up by the Philistines after his death, it is probable this might be the same, or one near to it, as that before called by the same name. Gen. xxi. 31. Here was afterwards built a city, and which is mentioned as the boundary of Judea on the south.

CHAP. XXVII. 1, 2. Isaac had] Dr. Kennicott conjectures that Isaac was now about 117 years old, and Jacob about 57. (a) Sept. Syr. Arab. 1 MS.

3. Thy quiver] Mercer renders, thy sword, or faulchion; and I doubt, whether this is not the sense of the word.

4. That I may eat] The blessing which Isaac was to confer on his son, Dr. Clarke justly observes, was a species of divine right, and must be communicated with appropriate ceremonies. As eating and drinking were used on almost all religious transactions, especially on making and confirming covenants, it is natural to suppose something of this kind was necessary on this occasion, and that Isaac could not convey the right until he had eaten of the meat provided by him, who was to receive the blessing.—That my soul may bless thee] Here, as often, the term soul is used for the pronoun, 'that I may bless thee.' I have retained the idiom, because it cannot be misunderstood.—Isaac seems to have been influenced by a very low motive, in this instance; unless we suppose with Lightfoot, that he adopted this method in order to learn, whether Esau was the proper object of the blessing. Isaac knew, that in some way Esau was to be inferior to Jacob; he knew also, that he had sold his birth-right to Jacob; but seems not to have known, which of his two sons God had destined to enjoy the blessing, or to inherit the promise made to Abraham. It is evident he was partial to Esau, and, probably, secretly wished, that he might enjoy the blessing; yet when he found, that God had given it to Jacob, however criminal the method used to obtain it, he acquiesced. 9. (a) Sept.

13. The design of Rebekah might be good, being persuaded of the truth of the prediction, 'that the greater should be subdued by the less;' but the method she adopted was altogether unlawful. She ought to have informed Isaac, how she understood the prediction, and have prayed to God, to direct him in the bestowment of the blessing; and not to have been guilty of imposing on her husband, and teaching her son Jacob deliberately to tell a lie and persist in it. The principle that the goodness of the end sanctifies the means, ought to be held in abhorrence.

15. Choicest raiment] The Sept. render, a goodly stole, which was a long garment, that great men used to wear, Luke xv. 22; xx. 46. Some think it probable that this was a holy garment, which belonged to the first-born son, as the priest of the family; and only worn when ministering in holy things. It is clear this was kept with great care.

16. Skins of the kids] The hair of the Syrian goats is fine and soft as silk, and that of kids must be more so. Hence Isaac might be easily deceived, and think as stated, when he felt the hands of Jacob.

20 me. And Isaac said to his son, How is it that thou hast found it so quickly, my son? Because Jehovah thy God, said he, brought it to me. Again Isaac said to Jacob, Come near, I pray thee, that I may feel thee, my son, and know whether or not thou be my very son Esau. And Jacob went near to Isaac his father; and he felt him, and said, The voice is the voice of Jacob, but the hands are the hands of Esau. And he discerned him not, because his hands were hairy, like the hands of his brother Esau; so he blessed him. Yet he said, Art thou my very son Esau? And he said, I am. And Isaac said, Bring it near to me, and I will eat of my son's venison, that my soul may bless thee. And he brought it near to him, and he ate; and he brought him wine, and he drank. And his father Isaac said to him, Come near now, and kiss me, my son. And he came near, and kissed him; and Isaac smelled the smell of his raiment, and blessed him, and said, See, the smell of my son is as the smell of a "full grown" field which Jehovah hath blessed.

23 May God give thee of the dew of heaven, And of the fatness of the earth; Abundance also of corn, of wine and of oil! To thee may peoples be subject; To thee may nations bow down! Be thou Lord over thine own brethren, And let thy mother's sons to thee pay homage.

Accursed be he who curseth thee; And be he blessed who blesseth thee.

30 Now when Isaac had made an end of blessing Jacob, and Jacob was scarcely gone out from the presence of Isaac his father, Esau his brother came in from his hunting.

31 And he also had made savoury meat, and brought it to his father, and said to his father, Let my father arise, and eat of his son's venison, that thy soul may bless me. And Isaac, his father, said to him, Who art thou? And he answered, I am thy son, thy first-born, Esau. Isaac now, in the greatest fear, trembled and said, Who or where is he that hath taken venison, and brought it to me, of all which I have eaten before thou camest? for him I have blessed, and blessed shall he be. And when Esau heard the words of his father, he cried with a great and exceeding bitter cry, and said to his father, Bless me, even me also, O my father. And Isaac said, Thy brother came deceitfully, and hath got thy blessing. Is he not said Esau, rightly called Jacob [שֹׁרֵק PLANTER]? for twice he hath supplanted me. He before got my birthright; and behold now he hath got my blessing. Yet he said, Hast thou not reserved a blessing for me? And Isaac answered and said to Esau, Behold I have made him thy lord; All his brethren I have made subject to him; Corn, wine, and oil I have given for his support; And now my son, what can I do for thee? Again Esau said to his father, Hast thou but that one blessing, my father? bless me, even me also, O my father! And Esau raised his voice and wept. And Isaac his father answered and said to him, Behold, remote from the fatness of the earth, And the dew of the heavens, shall be thy dwelling: On thy own desert thou shalt live, And to thy brother thou shalt be subject; But the time will come, when thou shalt prevail, And break his yoke from off thy neck.

CHAPTER XXVIII.

B. C. 1760. Esau threateneth Jacob; Rebekah counselleth Jacob; Isaac blesseth him; Esau marrieth; Jacob's vision; the stone of Bethel, and Jacob's vow.

ESAU now hated Jacob, because of the blessing with which his father had blessed him. And Esau said in his heart, The days of mourning for my father will soon come; then will I slay my brother Jacob. But these words of Esau, her elder son, were told to Rebekah; and she sent and called

22. To the voice of Jacob] Mr. Scott observes, that the difference which there is between the faces and voices of the human species, is truly wonderful. Scarcely any two of the innumerable millions are exactly alike in either, and yet the difference cannot be defined or described. How should the power, wisdom, and kindness of God be admired and adored in this remarkable circumstance!

28. Of wine and of oil] The word חֵרֶשׂ is generally rendered in the common version, new wine. It denotes whatever is expressed from fruit; and here implies the juice of the vine and the olive.

38. Raised his voice and wept] The Sept. make Isaac raise his voice and weep, when he heard the language of Esau. Geddès supposes that they thus read יִתְעַבֵּב יִצְחָק אֲבִירָא וַיִּבְכֵּי וַיִּשְׁמַע יִשְׂרָאֵל וַיִּבְרַךְ — 'And Isaac his father was grieved, and answered and said.'

39. The version given, is that of Castalio, Le Clerc, Houbigant, and of Purver; and unless we understand the term משכני in this sense, there would be no contrast between the benediction of Jacob and that of Esau; nor was Idumæa, or the land of Edom, in fact, a fat, fertile soil, but a barren, mountainous country. Malachi i. 3.

40. The ambiguity of the word, חֶרֶב, as it is pronounced, makes the difference in the version. Had the word here meant a sword, it would have been בֶּרֶדֶב as it is usually expressed, and not, חֶרֶב; literally on thy sword. As the word often denotes 'dry, waste, barren places,' this sense is most apposite here, and explains the former verse. Bishop Newton contends for the common version, and maintains that Idumæa must have been a fertile country. That some parts were so is certain; but its general character was mountainous, and not very productive. See Reland. It is scarcely necessary to remind the reader, that these predictions refer more to the posterity of Jacob and Esau, than to themselves.

41, 42. Said in his heart] i. e. purposed. He had

Jacob, her younger son, and said to him, Behold, thy brother Esau comforteth himself in respect to thee, having resolved to 43 kill thee. Now, therefore, my son, hearken to my voice; arise, and flee thou unto 44 Haran, to Laban my brother; And abide with him for some time, until thy brother's 45 rage be over. When thy brother's anger towards thee is over, and he hath forgot what thou hast done to him; then I will send for thee and bring thee thence: for why should I be deprived of you both in one day?

46 And Rebekah said to Isaac, I am weary of my life, because of these daughters of Heth; should Jacob take for a wife, one of the daughters of Heth, one like these daughters of the land, what will my life be to me? Isaac then called Jacob, and blessed him, and charged him, and said to him, Thou shalt not take a wife of the daughters of Canaan. Arise, go to Padan-aram, to the house of Bethuel, thy mother's father; and thence take a wife from among the daughters of Laban thy mother's brother.

3 And may God, the Almighty, bless thee, and make thee fruitful, and multiply thee, that thou mayest become a multitude of people! And may he give to thee the blessing of 'thy father' Abraham, both to thee, and to thy seed; that thou mayest inherit the land in which thou sojournest, which 5 God gave to Abraham. So Isaac sent Jacob away, that he might go unto Padan-aram, to Laban, (son of Bethuel, a Syrian,) the brother of Rebekah, the mother of Esau and Jacob.

6 And Esau saw that Isaac had blessed Jacob, and sent him away to Padan-aram, thence to take a wife; and that, as he blessed him, he gave him a charge, saying, 'Thou shalt not take a wife of the daughters of 7 Canaan; And that Jacob had obeyed his father and mother, and was gone to Padan- 8 aram: Thus Esau seeing that the daughters of Canaan pleased not Isaac his father; He 9 went to Ishmael and took to be his wife (beside the wives which he had) Mahalath, the daughter of Ishmael, Abraham's son, the sister of Nebaioth.

Now Jacob had departed from Beer- 10 sheba, 'to go to Haran; And he lighted 11 upon a certain place, and lodged there, because the sun was set; and he took one of the stones of the place, and put it under his head, and lay down in that place. And he 12 dreamed, and behold, he saw a ladder set up on the earth, the top of which reached to the heavens; and lo, the angels of God were ascending and descending on it. And, be- 13 hold, Jehovah stood near to him, and said, I am Jehovah, the God of Abraham thy father, and the God of Isaac. This land on which thou liest, I will give to thee and to thy seed. And thy seed shall be as nume- 14 rous as the dust of the earth, and thou shalt spread abroad to the west, and to the east, and to the north, and to the south; and in thee, and in thy seed, shall all the families of the earth be blessed. And, behold, I am 15 with thee, and will keep thee wheresoever thou goest, and will bring thee back into this land; for I will not leave thee, until I have done what I have promised to thee. Jacob now awoke out of his sleep, and said, 16 Surely Jehovah is in this place, though I knew it not. And he was afraid, and said, 17 How awful is this place! This is nothing less than the house of God; yea, this is the gate of the heavens!

And Jacob arose early in the morning, 18 and took the stone which he had put under his head, and set it up as a pillar, and poured oil upon the top of it. And he called the name of that place Beth-el [THE HOUSE OF 19 GOD]; whereas the name of that city was at first Ulam-Luz. And Jacob made a vow, 20 saying, If thou, O God, wilt be with me, and keep me in the way I am going; and wilt give me bread to eat and raiment to put given some indications of his purpose, as his words were told to Rebekah. These verses are joined to the following chapter, as evidently making a better division.

45. Rebekah evidently feared, that in case Esau accomplished his design, it would be the death of both her sons, as Esau must have been punished as a murderer. See 2 Sam. xiv. 4-8.

46. This seem an expedient to induce Isaac to send away Jacob; and it does not appear, that Rebekah informed him of Esau's wicked purpose.

CHAP. XXVIII. 4 (a) Sam. 1 MS.

5. So Isaac sent Jacob] However Jacob was blessed as to temporal or spiritual prosperity, his sin was visited upon him during his whole life, in the trials which from this time befell him.

10, 11. The reading of the Sam. Sept. Arab. is adopted; and the manner in which Jacob lodged, is yet the custom of the Arabs. Wrapping their head in their mantle, they often sleep abroad with a stone for their pillow.

12. This vision represents the providence of God over all things in heaven or on earth; and that the angels are his servants to do his pleasure. Is there not an allusion to this ladder, in what our Lord says to Nathaniel, John i. 51? For it is by him, that all things in heaven and earth are reconciled; and by him, that divine intercourse is opened and maintained.

13. Near to him] The word עָלַי our translators referred to the ladder, and render, above it; and it may be so referred: but it will bear the version given, and it is much more probable, that Jacob saw Jehovah in the vision, not standing at the top of the ladder, which we are told, reached to the heavens, but at the foot of it, standing near to him. For this sense see Gesen. and comp. Gen. xvi. 7; xxiv. 30.

18. Poured oil on it] From this it appears, Jacob had taken provisions for his journey, and might have attendants, though no mention is made of any. Oil was an article of food; and by anointing the stone, he consecrated it, and called the place by a new name, to perpetuate the memory of his remarkable vision.

19. The Sam. and Sept. make Ulam, a part of the name of the place. Indeed it would be an useless pleonasm, viewed in any other light.

21 on, And 'bring me back to my father's house in peace;' and if thou Jehovah wilt 22 be a God to me, Then shall this stone which I have set up as a pillar be a House of God; and the tenth part of all which thou shalt give to me, I will surely devote to thee.

CHAPTER XXIX.

B. C. 1763. Jacob cometh to the well at Haran; is entertained by Laban; covenanteth for Rachel and is deceived with Leah; but afterwards marrieth Rachel.

1 THEN Jacob went on his journey, and 2 came into the eastern country. And he looked, and behold, a well in a field, and, lo, there were three shepherds with their flocks lying by it; for out of that well were the flocks watered. (Now a great stone 3 was upon the mouth of the well; But when all the 'shepherds' were there assembled, they rolled the stone from the mouth of the well, and watered the flocks, and then put the stone again in its place upon the mouth 4 of the well.) And Jacob said to them, My brethren, whence are ye? And they said, 5 Of Haran are we. Do ye know, said he to them, Laban the grandson of Nahor? And 6 they answered, We do know him. Again he said to them, Is he well? And they replied, He is well; and lo! yonder cometh 7 Rachel his daughter with the flock. Again he said, Lo, it is yet high day, nor is it time that the cattle should be gathered in; water ye the flocks, that they may go and feed. 8 But they said, We cannot until all the 'shepherds' are assembled, and have rolled the stone from the mouth of the well; that so we may water the flocks. 9 And while he was yet speaking with them, Rachel came with her father's flock; for she 10 was the shepherdess. And as soon as Jacob saw Rachel, the daughter of Laban, his mother's brother, and the flock of Laban his mother's brother, Jacob went near, and rolled away the stone from the mouth of the well, and watered the flock of Laban, his mother's brother. And Jacob kissed 11 Rachel, and raised his voice, and wept. And when Jacob had told Rachel that he 12 was her father's kinsman, and that he was the son of Rebekah, she then ran and told her father. And when Laban heard the 13 report of Jacob his sister's son, he ran out to meet him, and brought him to his house. And Jacob told Laban the whole matter, 14 respecting his journey. And Laban said to him, Surely thou art my bone and my flesh.

When Jacob had dwelt with him one full month, Then Laban said to him, Because 15 thou art my kinsman, shouldst thou therefore serve me for nought? Tell me what thy wages shall be. Now Laban had two 16 daughters; the name of the elder was Leah, and the name of the younger Rachel. Leah 17 was tender-eyed; but Rachel was beautiful, both in form and in countenance. And as 18 Jacob loved Rachel, he therefore said, I will serve thee seven years for Rachel, thy younger daughter. And Laban said, It is 19 better that I should give her to thee, than that I should give her to any other man: abide with me. So Jacob agreed to serve 20 seven years for Rachel; yet, through his love for her, they seemed to him as only a few days.

Now Jacob said to Laban, Give to me my 21 wife, for my days are full, that I may go in to her. And Laban assembled all the men 22 of the place, and made a feast. But when 23 the evening had come, he took his daughter Leah, and brought her to his apartment, that he might go in to her. And Laban 24 gave his maid-servant Zilpah, to his daughter Leah for a handmaid. But when the 25 morning came, behold, Jacob saw that it was Leah; and he said to Laban, What is this thou hast done to me? Did I not agree to serve thee for Rachel? Why hast thou deceived me? And Laban said, To give thee 26 the younger before the elder, must not be

21. And if thou Jehovah wilt be] Our common version makes this clause a part of the conditions annexed to the vow. 'Then shall the Lord be my God.' So the Vulg. Syr. and Persiau. The other ancient versions and many modern make it a part of the vow.

CHAP. XXIX. 2. The common text makes Jacob hold a conversation with three flocks of sheep; but the context and the Samaritan text, happily lead us to the true sense of the passage.

3-8. This verse and the close of the preceding, is parenthetic, relating the custom which the shepherds observed, when watering the flocks. The reason of this custom, Chardin has stated; for he says, 'In these arid climates, they cover their wells, lest the sand, which is put in motion by the least wind, should fill them up.' Hence, the propriety of the custom, of not removing the stone, till all the shepherds were assembled. And hence is also answered, the difficulty which some have started, that if three shepherds could not remove the stone, how could Jacob? It was not for want of strength, but they could not violate an established custom. Compare verse 8, and ch. xxiv. 25. (v) Sam.

8. (v) Sam. Sept. Arab.

13. The words added seem necessary to complete the sense; and it was natural for Laban to inquire, why he had left his father, and come so long a journey.

14. My flesh and my bone] A strong orientalism to express near relationship.

18. Serve thee seven years] Jacob, according to the custom of those times, purchased his wife; but considering the wealth of Laban, it should seem, he did not treat his daughters with becoming respect.

21. My days are full] This version conveys the ambiguity of the original. The sense I take to be, 'It is now time for me to marry; I am growing old.' Jacob was now more than sixty years old.

23. From the privacy of female apartments in the east, Laban might easily thus impose on Jacob.

26. Must not be done] Several commentators consider this as a mere artifice, designed to hide his governing motive. He knew the love Jacob had for Rachel, and considering it as certain, that he would serve him other seven years for her he makes the offer, which Jacob accepted.

- 27 done in our country. Complete this one's marriage-week, and 'I will give' to thee the other also, for the service with which thou shalt serve me yet other seven years.
- 28 And Jacob consented to do so; and when he had completed her marriage-week, Laban also gave to him his daughter Rachel for a wife. And Laban gave his maid-servant Bilhah, to his daughter Rachel, for a hand-
- 30 maid. And he went in also to Rachel; and he loved Rachel more than Leah, and served him for her yet other seven years.
- 31 And when Jehovah saw that Leah was not esteemed, he made her fruitful; but Rachel continued barren. And Leah conceived and bare 'to Jacob' a son, and she called his name Reuben [BEHOLD-A-SON]; for she said, Surely Jehovah hath beheld mine affliction; now, therefore, my husband will love me.
- 33 Again she conceived and bare a son; and said. Because Jehovah heard that I was not esteemed, he hath, therefore, given to me this son also; and she called his name Simeon [HE HEARETH THE AFFLICTED];
- 34 Again she conceived, and bare a son; and said, Now at length will my husband be attached to me, because I have born to him three sons; therefore was his name called
- 35 Levi [ATTACHMENT]. Again she conceived and bare a son; and she said, Now will I praise Jehovah; therefore she called his name Judah [PRAISE]. She then ceased to bear.

CHAPTER XXX.

B. C. 1762. Rachel, being barren, giveth to Jacob her maid; so also Leah giveth hers. Rachel at length bringeth forth Joseph. Jacob's wealth.

- 1 AND when Rachel saw that she bare to Jacob no children, she envied her sister, and said to Jacob, Give to me children, or else
- 2 I die. And Jacob was angry with Rachel; and he said, Am I in the place of God, who hath withheld from thee the fruit of the
- 3 womb? But she said, Behold my handmaid Bilhah; go in to her, that she may bear for my knees, that through her, I also may have children. So she gave to him
- 4 Bilhah, her handmaid, for a wife; and Jacob went in to her. And Bilhah, "the handmaid of Rachel," conceived, and bare
- 6 to Jacob a son. And Rachel said, God hath done justice to me; for he hath heard my voice also, and hath given to me a son; therefore called she his name Dan [HATH DONE JUSTICE]. And Bilhah, Rachel's 7 handmaid, again conceived and bare to Jacob a second son. And Rachel said, 8 With great wrestlings have I wrestled with my sister, and have prevailed. So she called his name Naphtali [MY WRESTLING]. When 9 Leah saw that she had ceased to bear, she took Zilpah, her handmaid, and gave her for a wife to Jacob; "and he went in to her." And Zilpah, the handmaid of Leah, 10 "conceived," and bare to Jacob a son. And 11 Leah said, I am prosperous; therefore she called his name Gad [PROSPERITY]. Again 12 Zilpah, the handmaid of Leah, "conceived," and bare to Jacob a second son. And 13 Leah said, Happy am I; for women will call me happy. So she called his name Asher [HAPPY].

Now Reuben went out in the days of 14 wheat harvest, and found mandrakes in the field, and brought them to his mother Leah. And Rachel said to Leah, Give to me, I pray thee, some of thy son's mandrakes. And she said to her, Is it so small a matter 15 that thou hast taken away my husband, that thou wouldst take away my son's mandrakes also? And Rachel said, 'Not' so; to-night he shall lie with thee, for thy son's mandrakes.

And when Jacob came from the field in 16 the evening, Leah went out to meet him, and said, Thou must come in to me "to-night;" for I have certainly hired thee with my son's mandrakes. So he lay with her that night. And God hearkened to Leah, 17 and she conceived, and bare to Jacob a fifth son. And Leah said, God hath given to 18 me my reward, because I gave my handmaid to my husband. So she called his name Issachar [A REWARD IS HE]. Again 19 Leah conceived, and bare to Jacob a sixth son. And Leah said, God hath endowed 20 me with a good endowment. Now will my husband delight in me, because I have borne to him six sons. So she called his name Zebulun [DELIGHT]. And she after- 21 wards bare a daughter, and called her name Dinah.

God now remembered Rachel; and he 22 hearkened to her, and made her fruitful.

27. Marriage-week] This proves the period of feasting, on account of marriage, which obtained in Judea, and throughout the east in remote ages. See Judg. xiv. 12. According to Chardin, the bride and bridegroom, with the friends of their own sex, kept the feast in their own apartments. Jer. xxvi. 10. (v) Sam. versions. 32. (a) Sept.

CHAP. XXX. 3. Bear for my knees] It appears from this, that when a woman gave to her husband one of her slaves, the children were reckoned hers; and in this way they consoled themselves, for the want of having children.

5. (a) Sept.

8. With great wrestlings] Literally, 'with wrestlings of God'; where the divine name is again used as an epithet. 9. 10. 15. Sept.

11. I am prosperous] Our old versions rendered, 'in good luck,' and Geddes adopts this version. Castel explains the word to mean, 'fortune, prosperity'; and this sense is adopted. The various reading is not inapposite, 'prosperity cometh.'

14. Mandrakes] All the versions thus render, and Haselquist and the Abbé Maxili describe the fruit as a species of melon, the size of an apple, of a beautiful colour, and of

- 23 And she conceived, and bare "to Jacob" a son; and she said, God hath taken away 24 my reproach. And she called his name Joseph [MAY HE ADD]; for she said, May Jehovah add to me another son.
 25 And it was about the time when Rachel bare Joseph, that Jacob said to Laban, Send me away, that I may go to my own
 26 place, and to my own country. Give to me my wives, for whom I have served thee, and my children, and let me go; for thou knowest
 27 what service I have done for thee. And Laban said to him, Let me, I pray thee, find favour in thine eyes. I have learned by experience that Jehovah hath blessed me 28 for thy sake. Appoint unto me, therefore, said he, thine own hire, and I will give it.
 29 And he said to him, Thou knowest what service I have done for thee, and what,
 30 through me, hath been thy acquisition. For the little which thou hadst before I came, is now increased into an abundance; for, through my labour, hath Jehovah blessed thee. And now, when shall I also provide 31 for mine own house? And Laban said, What must I give to thee? And Jacob said, Thou shalt not give to me any thing; but if thou wilt do this thing, I will again tend 32 and keep thy flock. 'Pass thou' to-day through thy whole flock, and remove thence every speckled and spotted beast "among the goats," and every brown beast among the sheep; then let the spotted and speckled among the goats, and the brown among the 33 sheep, be hereafter my hire. So shall my righteousness answer for me, when, in time to come my hire shall come before thee; let every one that is not speckled and spotted among the goats, and brown among the sheep, found with me, be accounted stolen.
 34 And Laban said, Behold it shall be according to thy own words.
 35 And he removed that day the he-goats that were ringstreaked and spotted, and all the she-goats that were speckled and spotted, (every one that had any white in it,) and all the brown among the sheep, and gave them in charge to his own sons. And he set three 36 days' journey between "them" and Jacob. And Jacob tended the rest of Laban's flocks.

"Now the angel of God spoke to Jacob in a dream, and said, Jacob. And he answered, Here am I. And he said, Raise now thine eyes, and see how all the rams that leap on the flocks are ringstreaked, speckled or grizzled! For I, the God of Bethel, (where thou anointedst a pillar, and where thou madest a vow to me,) have seen all that Laban hath done to thee. Arise now, and depart from this country; and return to the land of thy father; for I will prosper thee."

And Jacob took green rods of poplar, 37 and of the hazel and of the palm tree; and peeled white streaks in them, by making bare the white of the rods. And he set up 38 the rods which he had peeled by the gutters of the watering places, opposite the flocks, when they came to drink; that when they came to drink they might also couple. And 39 the flocks coupled before the rods, and brought forth ringstreaked, speckled, and spotted young. And Jacob separated the 40 young, and set aside from the flock all the ringstreaked, and all the brown among the flocks of Laban; and he set them apart for a flock to himself, and set them not among the flocks of Laban. And so it was, that 41 whensoever the stronger part of the flock were coupling, Jacob laid the rods before their eyes, in the gutters, that they might couple at the rods; But for the feebler part 42 of the flock he put in no rods. So the feebler part were Laban's, and the stronger Jacob's. Thus the man increased exceed- 43 ingly, and had much cattle, and maid servants, and man-servants, and camels, and asses.

a delicious taste. It grows in a valley near Nazareth and is ripe in May. The reasons why Rachel desired this fruit are not known.

23. It appears from this instance, that the idea of disgrace was attached thus early to barrenness. We find it obtained down to the times of the gospel.

30. Through my labour] Literally, 'through my feet;' but the word, Pilkington has proved, means metaphorically labour, and not 'coming,' as it is rendered. By the version given Isa. lviii. 13, may be explained, 'Blessed are they who employ the labour of the ox and the ass.'

32. The proposal of Jacob to Laban is uncommonly obscure. Nobilius observes, that Jerom thought the present text was corrupted. Happily the context, and the nature of the proposal, furnish aid in this exigence. By admitting two words into the text, the whole is clear; the first, indeed, is supported by one MS. and the second from verse 35. The various reading, 'pass thou,' is supported by the 35th verse, where it is evident it was Laban, not Jacob, who passed through the flock, and separated the spotted and brown from the rest.

36. That the long paragraph, only found now in the Sam., was once in the text, is most probable, if not absolutely certain, from the narrative of Jacob in the following chapter. Shuckford, and many of the best critics, consider the whole genuine. If this vision succeeded the bargain Jacob had made, as is most probable, it was evidently designed to assure him, that he should receive an ample reward.

37. The method Jacob used, by peeling rods, and placing them before the cattle in coupling time, has given rise to various opinions and warm disputes. The opinion of Shuckford seems the most rational. He supposes, that God, who had seen the injustice of Laban, determined to punish him and to reward Jacob; and that as he appeared to Jacob in a dream, and showed him the produce of his flock to be according to his wishes, he ordered him to make use of the rod as a trial of his faith, and as a test of his obedience;—that Jacob obeyed, not believing this to be any more a sufficient cause of the effect, than Naaman, that washing in the Jordan could cure the leprosy.

40. There is so much obscurity in the text and in the versions, that it is difficult to know what to select. Onkelos, Jonathan and Saad, read לל instead of נק, and Houbigant and Geddes adopt this reading. The text thus corrected, and giving to נק the sense of hence, apart from, the whole will yield the sense given.

CHAPTER XXXI.

B. C. 1739. Jacob departeth from Laban secretly; Rachel stealth his gods; Laban pursueth him; their covenant.

- 1 AND he heard the words of Laban's sons, saying, Jacob hath taken away all that belonged to our father; and of what belonged to our father, hath he gotten all this wealth.
- 2 Also Jacob saw the countenance of Laban; and behold, it was not towards him as in times past.
- 3 And Jehovah having said to Jacob, Return unto the land of thy fathers, and to thy kindred, and I will be with thee;
- 4 Jacob now sent and called Rachel and Leah to the field unto his flock; And said to them, I see that your father's countenance is not towards me as in times past: but the God of my father hath been with me.
- 6 And ye know that with all my might I have served your father. And your father hath deceived me, and hath, ten times, changed my wages; but God hath not suffered him to hurt me. If he said thus, The speckled shall be thine hire; then all the flocks brought forth speckled. And if he said thus, The ringstreaked shall be thine hire; then all the flocks brought forth ringstreaked.
- 9 Thus God hath taken away the substance of your father, and given it to me. For at the time when the flocks were coupling, it was, that in a dream I raised mine eyes and saw, and lo! the rams which leaped upon the flocks were ringstreaked, speckled, or grizzled. And the angel God spoke to me in the dream, saying, Jacob!
- 12 And I said, Here am I. And he said, Raise now thine eyes, and see how all the rams which leap upon the cattle are ringstreaked, speckled, or grizzled: for I have seen all
- 13 that Laban hath done unto thee. I am the God of Beth-el, where thou anointedst the pillar, and where thou madest a vow unto me. Now, arise, and depart from this land; and return unto the land of thy kindred. And Rachel and Leah answered and said 14 to him, Have we yet had any portion or inheritance in our father's house? Have we 15 not by him been accounted, "as strangers?" for he hath sold us, and our price he hath wholly devoured. Since, therefore, all that 16 wealth which God hath taken from our father, belongeth to us and to our children; now then do whatsoever God hath said to thee.

Then Jacob arose, and set his sons and 17 his wives upon camels; And he took away 18 all his cattle, and all his goods which he had gotten "in Padan-aram, purposing to go to Isaac his father, into the land of Canaan. Now Laban had gone to shear his sheep; 19 and Rachel stole the images which belonged to her father. Jacob also stole away un- 20 awares from Laban the Syrian, not giving any intimation of his flight. So he fled 21 with all that belonged to him; and he speedily passed over the river, and set his face towards mount Gilead.

And on the third day, it was told Laban, 22 that Jacob had fled. And he took his bre- 23 thren with him, and pursued after him a journey of seven days, and overtook him on mount Gilead. Now God had come to 24 Laban the Syrian in a dream of the night, and said to him, Take heed that thou speak not to Jacob either good or bad.

When Laban overtook Jacob, he had 25 pitched his tent on the mountain; and Laban, with his brethren, pitched also on mount Gilead. And Laban said to Jacob, 26 Why hast thou done this—stolen away un- awares from me, and carried off my daughters, as captives of war? Wherefore didst 27 thou flee away secretly, and steal away from CHAP. XXXI. 5. This justifies the paragraph now in the Sam. which is inserted in the preceding chapter, ver. 36.

7. Ten times] i. e. several times. Compare Numb. xiv. 22; Job xix. 3.

11. Angel God] This is manifest from what he says ver. 13, I am the God of Bethel.

14. Have we yet] This is the version of the Bishops' Bible. The meaning is, he has treated us not as daughters, but as aliens. He has not only made a traffic of our persons, but he has appropriated the price to his own use, instead of reserving it for ours.

15. Our price] Money is here improper. For Jacob had not paid for them in money, but in labour for fourteen years. Had Laban possessed any generosity he would have given to his daughters so much as he must have paid to a common labourer in this period. But it seems he allowed them nothing but food and clothing. (a) Sam. versions.

17. It has been thought a difficulty to account for the manner in which Jacob could collect his family together, and thus decamp, without the knowledge of Laban. Harmer has removed the difficulty, by adverting to the still prevailing custom of the shepherds of Mesopotamia. It is usual for them who dwell in houses to spend their summer in tents. Hence Jacob might, without any suspicion of his design, send for his wives and children, and the domestic articles that belonged to him. It was the season of sheep-shearing, a time of feasting, when Laban had gone to his flocks; and it is natural to suppose, that Jacob, having left the flock of Laban to him and to his sons, went to shear his, which, from the history, were removed some days' journey from those of Laban. Hence he might depart as mentioned, with all that he had, with the greater privacy. See Harmer vol. ii.

18. The cattle of his getting, which he had gotten] These words are evidently an interpolation. The authorities for omitting them are sufficient. See Kennicott's 1st Dissertation, p. 365.

19. Images] Hebrew Teraphs. These Teraphs were little images of the idols, which they had in their temples; these they kept in their houses, and called them household gods.

21. And speedily passed] The Sept. and Vulg. seem not to have read וַיֵּשֶׁב, and unless it be rendered adverbially, to denote the haste he made, it is improper. The river was the Euphrates.

26. Why hast thou done this] Rosenmuller observes that the words עשית רענבב are a Hebraism, and the former is pleonastic. Compare 1 Kings viii. 32; Judges ix. 16; and Dan. vii. 12.

me, and not tell me; that I might have sent thee away with mirth and songs; with 29 tabret and harp? Thou didst not even permit me to kiss my sons and my daughters.
 29 In thus doing thou hast acted foolishly. It is in my power to do "thee" hurt, but the God of "thy" father spoke to me last night, saying, Take heed that thou speak not to 30 Jacob, either good or bad. And now be it, that thou wouldst needs be gone, because thou greatly longedst after thy father's house; yet why hast thou stolen my gods?
 31 And Jacob answered and said to Laban, I fled because I was afraid; for I thought that thou wouldst perhaps take from me, by force, thy daughters, "and all that be-32 longeth to me." As for thy gods, with whomsoever thou findest them, let him die. In the presence of our brethren discern what is thine, with me, and take it. For Jacob knew not that Rachel, "his wife," had 33 stolen them. Laban then went "and searched" in Jacob's tent, and Leah's tent, and in the tents of the two handmaids; but he found them not. Then he went out of Leah's tent, and entered into Rachel's 34 tent. Now Rachel had taken the images, and put them in the camel-pillion, and she sat upon them. And Laban searched all 35 the tent, but found them not. And she said to her father, Let not my lord be displeased, that I cannot rise up in thy presence; for I am in the state of a removed woman. And he searched, but found not the images.
 36 And Jacob was wroth, and sharply reasoned with Laban; and Jacob spoke and said to Laban, What is my transgression, what is my sin, that thou hast so hotly pur-
 37 sued me? Seeing thou hast searched all my furniture, what one thing, of all thy household furniture, hast thou found? Set it here before my brethren and thy brethren, 38 and let them judge between us two. These twenty years that I have been with thee, neither thy ewes nor thy goats have cast their young; nor the rams of thy flock have 39 I eaten. What was torn by beasts I brought not to thee, I was accountable for it; at my hands didst thou require what was stolen 40 by day, or stolen by night. By day the drought consumed me, and by night the frost; and my sleep departed from mine eyes. Thus I have been twenty years in 41 thy house; fourteen years I served thee for thy two daughters, and six years for thy flocks; and thou hast changed my wages ten times. Except the God of my fathers, 42 the God of Abraham, and the REVERED ONE of Isaac, had been with me, surely thou wouldst have now sent me away empty. My afflictions and the labours of my hands God hath seen; therefore he rebuked thee last night.

And Laban answered and said to Jacob, 43 These daughters are my daughters, and these children my children, and these flocks my flocks; yea, mine is all that thou seest: and what can I now do to these my daughters, or to the children which they have borne? Come, now, let us make a covenant, 44 I and thou; and let it be for a witness between me and thee. And Jacob took a 45 stone, and set it up for a pillar. And Jacob 46 said to his brethren, Gather stones. So they took stones, and made a heap; and they ate "and drank" upon the heap. And 47 Laban called it Jegar-saha-dutha; but Jacob called it Galeed. For Laban said, Let 48 this heap be to-day a witness between me and thee. Therefore was the name of it called Gilcad [THE WITNESS-HEAP]; And 49 "the stone set up was called" Mizpeh [THE WATCH]; because Laban said, May Jehovah watch between me and thee, when we are absent one from the other. If thou shalt 50 afflict my daughters, or if thou shalt take other wives beside my daughters, (no one else being then present,) let God be witness between me and thee.

Again Laban said to Jacob, Behold this 51 heap, and behold this pillar, which "thou hast set up." Between me and thee, let 52 this heap be a witness, and this pillar be a witness, that I will not pass over this heap "and this pillar" to thee; and that thou wilt not pass over this heap and this pillar to me, for harm. The God of Abraham, and the 53 God of Nahor, "judge between us. And Jacob swore by the REVERED ONE of his father Isaac. Then Jacob slaughtered victims on the mountain, and called "all" his brethren to eat of the food; and they ate of the food, and abode all night on the mountain. And early in the morning Laban 55 arose, and having kissed his sons and his

29. Neither good nor bad] Literally, 'from good to bad'; i. e. say nothing to him so as to produce a quarrel. (v) Sam. Sept. 31, 32. (a) Sept.

33. The reading of the Sam. and Sept. is here necessary; and the word is found in the 35th verse. He went into the tent to search.

46. A heap] This practice of making leagues and commemorating them, by circular heaps of stones, was anciently general both in Asia and Europe, as our own druidical remains testify. Eccl. iii. 5.

49. The Arabic has preserved the words added; and they are supported by the 55th verse. 51. (v) Sam. Arab. 1 MS. 52. (a) Sept. Arab.

53. (a) The God of their fathers] These words are omitted with the Sept. and 2 MSS. See Kennic. 1 Diss. Though these are the words of Laban, who appears to have been guilty of some idolatry, as he mentions the God of Nahor, and of Abraham, he could not mean two Gods, but the God they both served. 54. daughters, and blessed them; he then departed, and returned unto his own place.

CHAPTER XXXII.

B. C. 1739. Jacob's vision; his present and message to Esau; he wrestleth with an angel; his name called Israel.

- 1 JACOB now went on his way; and "he raised his eyes and saw a great camp formed," and angels of God approaching towards him. And when Jacob saw them, he said, This is the camp of God. Therefore he called the name of that place Mahanaim [THE CAMPS].
- 3 Now Jacob had sent messengers before him, to Esau his brother, unto the land of Seir, (the country of Edom.) And he commanded them, saying, Thus shall ye speak to my lord Esau; Thus saith thy servant Jacob; I have sojourned with Laban, and stayed until now. And I have oxen, and asses, and flocks, and man-servants, and maid-servants; and I have sent to tell my lord, that I may find favour in thy sight.
- 6 And the messengers now returned to Jacob, saying, We came to thy brother Esau; and also he cometh to meet thee, and four hundred men with him. Then Jacob was greatly afraid and distressed; and he divided the people that were with him, and the flocks, and herds, and the camels, into two camps; And he said, If Esau come to one camp, and smite it, then the other remaining camp may escape.
- 9 Then Jacob said, O God of my father Abraham! and God of my father Isaac! Jehovah, who saidst to me, Return to thy own land, and to thy kindred, and I will deal kindly with thee. I am not in the least worthy of all the mercies, and of all the faithfulness, which thou hast showed to thy servant; for with my staff I passed over this Jordan; and now I am become the master of two camps. Deliver me, I pray thee, from the hand of my brother, from the hand of Esau; for I fear him, lest he come and smite me, and the mothers with the children. Yet thou saidst, I will surely deal kindly with thee, and make thy seed as the sand of the sea-shore which cannot be numbered for multitude.

And he lodged there on that night; and 13 took of what he had brought with him a present for Esau his brother; Two hundred 14 she-goats, and twenty he-goats, two hundred ewes, and twenty rams, Thirty milk-camels 15 with their colts, forty heifers and ten steers, twenty she-asses, and ten foals; And he 16 gave them in charge to his servants, each drove by itself; and said to his servants, Pass on before me, and put a space between drove and drove. And he commanded the 17 foremost, saying, When Esau my brother shall meet thee, and ask thee, saying, Whose servant art thou? And whither goest thou? And whose are these before thee? Then 18 thou shalt say; They are thy servant Jacob's; this is a present to my lord Esau; and, behold, he also is behind us. And so 19 commanded he the second, and the third, and all that followed the droves, saying, After this manner ye shall speak to Esau, when ye meet him; And say moreover, 20 Behold, thy servant Jacob is behind us. For said he, I will appease him with the present that goeth before me, and I afterwards will see his face; perhaps he will then accept me. So the present passed on before him; but he himself lodged that night in the camp. And on that night he arose, 22 and took his two wives, and his two handmaids, and his eleven sons to pass over the ford Jabbok. So he took them, and sent 23 them over the brook; he also sent over "all" that belonged to him.

Now Jacob was left alone on the other 24 side; and one wrestled with him until the rising of the morning dawn. And when he 25 saw that he could not prevail against him, he struck the hollow of his thigh; so that the hollow of Jacob's thigh was strained while he wrestled with him. And he said, 26 Let me go, for the morning dawneth. But Jacob said, I will not let thee go, unless thou bless me. Again the person said to 27 him, What is thy name? And he answered, Jacob! Thy name then, said he, shall not 28

CHAP. XXXII. 1. This is the camp of God [i.e. the place where his angels assemble together. God now honoured Jacob with this peculiar appearance of angels, to show him, that he was under the divine protection, and that he would still keep him. It is probable he saw something similar to what is related 2 Kings vi. 13—17. (a) Sept.

2. Mahanaim] The camps. Dath explains this as meaning his own camp and that of the angels. This was the place to which David fled on the rebellion of Absalom.

7. The approach of Esau, attended with 400 men, excited in Jacob's mind the most painful apprehensions. Conscious of his own guilt, and knowing the disposition of his brother, he trembled for his own safety. He adopted the wisest measure to secure it, by offering up fervent petitions to God, and selecting a noble present for Esau.

13—16. A present for Esau] This shows the wealth of Jacob; it was a noble and princely present. It showed the highest respect to his elder brother. The milk camels were very valuable. 23. (a) Sam. and all the versions.

24. Most critics consider this as what passed in a dream. It is not probable, that Jacob would have had the temerity really to have wrestled with an unknown man, in a solitary place, during a whole night! The text informs us that he remained alone on the other side of the river, and most probably wrapping his head in his mantle, reposed on the ground, and dreamed 'that some one wrestled with him,' &c.—Vide Saurin's Diss. Crit. et Hist. The person whom he thought wrestled with him, Hosea informs us, was God: 'By his strength he had power with God: yea, he had power over the angel and prevailed.' Perhaps, in the vision, if it was one, he appeared as an angel, as he often did.

only yet be called Jacob, but ISRAEL [ONE THAT HATH POWER WITH GOD]; for, as a prince thou hast power with God, and with 29 men also thou shalt prevail. And Jacob asked, and said, Tell me, I pray thee, thy name. And he said, Why dost thou ask after my name? And he there blessed him. 30 And Jacob called the name of the place Peniel [THE FACE OF GOD]; for I have seen said he, God face to face, yet my life is pre- 31 served. And as he passed over Peniel, the sun arose upon him, and he halted on his thigh; "for Jacob's thigh had been strained." 32 Therefore the Israelites eat not to this day the chief sinew, which is on the hollow of the thigh; because the hollow of Jacob's thigh had been struck on the chief sinew.

CHAPTER XXXIII.

B. C. 1739. Jacob and Esau meet; their mutual kindness; Jacob cometh to Shechem and buyeth a field, where he buildeth an altar.

1 JACOB now raised his eyes, and behold he saw "his brother" Esau coming, and with him four hundred men. And he divided the children to Leah and to Rachel, and to the two handmaids. And he put the hand- 2 maids and their children foremost, and Leah and her children after; and last of all 3 Rachel and Joseph. He then passed on before them; and bowed himself to the ground seven times, until he came near to 4 his brother. And Esau ran to meet him, and embraced him, and fell upon his neck, and kissed him; and they "both" wept. 5 And he raised his eyes, and saw the women and the children, and said, Who are these with thee? And Jacob said, The children 6 whom God hath given to thy servant. Then the handmaids with their children drew 7 near, and they bowed themselves. And Leah also with her children drew near, and bowed themselves; and after Joseph and Rachel drew near, and bowed themselves. And he said, What meanest thou by all that 8 drove which I met? And Jacob said, That "thy servant" may find favour in the sight of my lord. And Esau said, I have abund- 9 ance, my brother; keep what thou hast for thyself. But Jacob said, Nay, I pray thee, 10 if now I have found favour in thy sight, receive my present from mine hand; for on this account do I appear before thee, as I would appear before a prince, that thou mayest accept me. Take, I pray thee, my 11 gift which "I have brought" for thee: because God hath been gracious to me, and because I have every thing. So he urged him, and he took it.

Esau then said, Let us proceed on our 12 journey; and let me go before thee. But 13 Jacob said to him, My lord knoweth that the children are tender; and I have with me flocks and herds giving suck; and should "I over-drive, but one day, the whole flock will die. Let my lord, I pray thee, pass on 14 before his servant; and I will drive on gently according as the cattle and the children that are with me shall be able, until I come to my lord unto Seir. Then Esau 15 said, Let me, I pray thee, leave with thee some of the people, that are with me. But he answered, What need of this? let me only find favour in the sight of my lord.

So Esau returned that day, on his way, 16 unto Seir. And Jacob journeyed to Succoth, 17 and built for himself a house, and made sheds for his cattle; therefore the name of the place was called Succoth [SHEDS]. Thus 18 Jacob came safe to the city Shechem, which is in the land of Canaan, when he came from Padan-aram; and he pitched his tent before the city. And he bought a parcel of 19 a field, where he had spread his tent, at the

28. Onkelos has given the same version. This was designed to assure him, that as he had obtained the blessing of God, so he should prevail in his contests with men, and especially with Esau.

31. If what is related from the 24th verse be regarded as a vision, it is clear, that the sinew of Jacob had been really affected, and on his arising and attempting to walk, he halted. On the whole, what is here said cannot be understood literally. If this were not a vision, we must regard what is said, as figurative; and by wrestling, understand Jacob's fervent prayer to the person who had appeared to him; and as a proof of his ardour, he laid hold of the person, or on his robe, and would not let him go without a blessing. I incline to think this is the sense of the paragraph. On the first appearance of this divine person, Jacob might be satisfied, that he was some angel, one of those he had seen at Mahanaim, Hos. xii. 3, 4.

CHAP. XXXIII. 1. (a) Sept.

3. Seven times Some consider, that a definite number is here used for an indefinite; and that the sense is, that Jacob bowed himself often. Others think, that it might be the custom to show the highest degree of respect, to bow precisely seven times. 4. (a) Sept. Arab. 8. (a) Sept.

10. Receive my present To accept a present from an inferior was, and is still, in the east a pledge of friendship, but not to receive it, or returning it, was a token of disaffection. Hence Jacob was so urgent with Esau to receive his present. The common version conveys a meaning, not very suitable to the character and piety of Jacob. Give a passive sense to the verb נָתַן, and the whole is clear and consistent. "I would appear before thee, as I would appear before a chief;" i. e. a prince, an earthly god. See Harmer vol. ii. and compare Psalm xlii. 3: Prov. xviii. 16.

11. (v) Sam. 1 MS.

13. Giving suck Our translators have rendered with young; but as in 1 Sam. vi. 7, 10, it must signify cattle which have brought forth; it should here and in Psalm lxxviii. 71, and Isa. xl. 11, in which only places it occurs besides, be so interpreted. (v) Sam. and versions.

14. To Seir Jacob has been accused of insincerity in stating, that he meant to visit Mount Seir. Jacob might intend to comply with the friendly invitation of his brother, when he made the reply under consideration; but found it necessary, from other circumstances, to change his purpose. What man does not often thus act, without being in "the least suspected of insincerity"? So Paul acted, Rom. i. 13.

18. Safe The common version renders, Shalem as if a proper name, which is certainly improper. Coverdale, Matthews, Ainsworth, and Purver, render as an appellative.

hand of the sons of Hamor, Shechem's fa-20 ther, for a hundred pieces of money. And there he erected an altar, and called it the altar of El-elohe Israel [THE MIGHTY GOD OF ISRAEL].

CHAPTER XXXIV.

B C. 1739. Dinah is ravished; the Shechemites submit to circumcision on the proposal of an union with the sons of Jacob; they are slain by Jacob's sons and the city spoiled.

- 1 AND Dinah, the daughter of Leah, whom she bare to Jacob, went out to see the women of the land. And when Shechem, the son of Hamor, a Hivite, prince of the country, saw her, he took her, and lay with her by force. And his soul cleaved to Dinah the daughter of Jacob; and he loved the damsel, and spoke kindly to her. And Shechem spoke to his father Hamor, saying, Get me this damsel for a wife.
- 5 And Jacob heard that Shechem had defiled Dinah his daughter, but as his sons were with the cattle in the field, Jacob was silent until they were come. Now Hamor the father of Shechem went to Jacob to treat with him. But on hearing what had been done, the sons of Jacob had come out of the field; and the men were grieved, and greatly enraged that so base a deed should have been done against Israel, as lying with his daughter; for such a deed ought not to have been done.
- 8 Yet Hamor treated with them, saying, The soul of my son Shechem longeth for your daughter; I pray you give her to him for a wife. And make ye marriages with us; give ye to us your daughters, and take our daughters to you. And ye shall dwell with us; and the land shall be before you; dwell and trade in it, and get possessions therein. And Shechem said to her father and to her brethren, Let me find favour in your eyes, and what ye shall say to me I will give. The dowry and the gifts make ever so great; and according as ye shall say to me I will give. But the sons of Jacob answered Shechem and Hamor his father, and spoke deceitfully, because he had defiled Dinah their sister. And they said to them, We cannot do this thing, to give our sister to one that is uncircumcised; for that would be a reproach to us. But 15 on this condition will we consent to you. If ye will be as we are, so that every male of you be circumcised; Then will we give 16 to you our daughters, and we will take your daughters, and we will dwell with you, and we will become one people. But if ye will not hearken to us, to be circumcised; then will we take our daughter and be gone. And their words pleased Hamor, and 18 Shechem, Hamor's son. And the young man delayed not to do this thing, because he delighted in Jacob's daughter; and he was the most honourable person of all his father's house.

Now Hamor and Shechem his son went 20 to the gate of their own city, and spoke to the men of their city, saying, These men are 21 peaceable among us; therefore let them dwell in the land, and trade therein; for behold, the land is large enough for them. Let us take their daughters for wives, and let us give to them our daughters. But on 22 this condition only will the men consent to dwell with us, so as to become one people; that every male among us be circumcised, as they are circumcised. Shall not their 23 substance and their goods, and all their cattle be ours? Only let us consent to them, and they will dwell with us. And to Ha- 24 mor, and to Shechem his son, hearkened all that went out at the gate of his city; and every male that went out of his city, was circumcised. But on the third day, when 25 they were sorest, two of the sons of Jacob, Simeon and Levi, Dinah's brethren, took each his sword, and came upon the city secure, and slew all the males. And they 26 slew Hamor, and Shechem his son, with the edge of the sword, and took Dinah out of Shechem's house, and went out. The other 27 sons of Jacob came upon the slain, and spoiled the city, because they had defiled their sister. Their flocks, and their herds, 28 and their asses; both "all" that were in the city, and "all" that were in the field, They 29 took away, even all their wealth; and all their

CHAP. XXXIV. 2. By force] Literally, humbled. This is acknowledged to be the meaning of the text; and it exculpates Dinah from all blame. Josephus supposes that Dinah had gone to see the women of the land at one of their festivals. James's translators render force, 2 Sam. xiii. 12-14.

7. Against Israel] It is not probable, that this name had become, in so short a space of time, patronymic; so that the name ought to be considered as personal, and the sense of against, given to the preposition.

12. The dowry and gifts] From this it is evident that wives were purchased; and it is known to be a custom yet among the Arabs; so that daughters are considered as forming a part of the riches of a house.

13. Hamor] This name signifies an ass, which would be thought very improper among us to be given to a prince; but in the east they have other notions. As the ass there is both strong and swift, it is regarded as an example of vigour and activity.

14. The Sept. confine this address to Simeon and Levi, the uterine brothers of Dinah; the other versions agree with the text. The 25th verse seems to support the Sept.

24. Hearkened all] This shows that the people were either devotedly attached to their prince, or that they were in a state of slavery in some degree, as has been the situation of the subjects of Asiatic princes, from remote antiquity.

25. Upon the city secure] Not expecting any attack. This is the most natural sense of the text, and gives a reason for their success. Men unarmed, in a state of pain, might be soon dispatched. 28. (a) 1 MS.

little ones, and their wives, they made captives; and plundered every thing that was 30 in their houses. And Jacob said to Simeon and Levi. Ye have troubled me by making me abominable among the inhabitants of the land, among the Canaanites and the Perizzites; and as I am but few in number, they will assemble against me, and slay me;
and both I and my household will be de-31 stroyed. And they said, Should he deal with our sister as with an harlot?

CHAPTER XXXV.

B. C. 1732. Jacob sent to Bethel; he first purifieth his house from idols; goes to Bethel, and buildeth an altar there; death of Isaac.

1 Now God said to Jacob, Arise, go up to Bethel, and dwell there; and make an altar there to God, who appeared unto thee when thou fleddest from the face of Esau thy brother. Then Jacob said to his household, and to all that were with him, Put away the strange gods that are among you, and purify yourselves, and change your 2 garments; And let us arise, and go up to Bethel; and I will make there an altar to God, who answered me in the day of my distress, and was with me in the way which I
3 went. And they gave to Jacob all the strange gods which they had, and all the pendants which were in their ears; and Jacob hid them under a turpentine tree
4 which was by Shechem. They then removed "from Shechem:" and the terror of God was upon the cities that were round about them, so that they did not pursue after the sons of Jacob.
5 So Jacob came to Luz, (that is Bethel,) in the land of Canaan; he and all the people that were with him. And he built there an altar, and again called the place
6 "Bethel [HOUSE OF GOD]; because there

God had appeared to him, when he fled before the face of his brother "Esau." And 8 Deborah, Rebekah's nurse, died, and there was buried below Bethel, under a turpentine tree, and the name of it was called Allonbachuth [THE TURPENTINE TREE OF WEeping].

Again God appeared to Jacob, (after he 9 had come from Padan-aram) "in Luz," and blessed him. And God said to him, Thy 10 name is Jacob. Thy name shall not only yet be called Jacob, but Israel also shall be thy name. So he called his name Israel. And God said to him, I am God, the Al- 11 mighty; be fruitful and multiply. Nations, yea numerous nations, shall spring from thee, and kings from thy loins shall proceed. And the land which I gave to Abraham and 12 to Isaac, that same land I will give to thee, and to thy seed after thee. And God went 13 up from him, at the place where he had talked with him. And Jacob set up the 14 pillar in the place where he had talked with him, a pillar of stone; and he shed thereon a drink-offering, and poured oil upon it. Again Jacob called the name of the place 15 where God had spoken with him, Bethel.

And Jacob removed from Bethel, and 21 pitched his tent beyond the tower of Edar," And had but a little way to come to Ephrath, 16 when Rachel fell in labour; and she had a hard delivery. And when she was in hard 17 labour, the midwife said to her, Fear not; thou shalt have this son also. And as her 18 soul was departing, (for she died,) she called his name Ben-oni [THE SON OF MY SORROW]; but his father called him Benjamin [THE SON OF MY RIGHT HAND]. Thus Rachel 19 died, and was buried in the way to Ephrath, which is now Bethlehem. And Jacob set 20 a pillar upon her grave, which is called the pillar of Rachel's grave unto this day.

30. Jacob expresses his just abhorrence of the unprincipled conduct of his sons; and retained a deep sense of their injustice, even to his death. Wicked as their conduct was, the providence which permitted it may be justified, by considering, that the Shechemites were induced to submit to the rite of circumcision, through the hope of obtaining their flocks and their herds, and all their property.

CHAP. XXXV. 1. This address reminds us of Jacob's vow, in the 28th chapter. He had now been some time in the promised land, but had not yet fulfilled his vow.

2. Strange gods] He probably alludes to the idols found in Shechem, or among his Syrian servants.—Purify yourselves] This is the first time purification is noticed; and from the connexion seems to denote only simple ablution.

4. Strange gods] From this it is probable, little images were the objects of their superstitious regard, like to what are mentioned Amos v. 26; Acts vii. 43.—The pendants] Had these pendants or ear-rings been only used for ornament, they would have been retained, but as they were given up with the gods, they were doubtless worn in honour of them; as, according to Augustine, was the ancient custom.

5. Terror of God] This might be rendered 'a great terror'; but in this instance the writer not only intended to express the degree of terror, but the author of it. (a) Sept.

7. Bethel] El or God is wanting, Sept. Syr. Vulg. 1 MS.

To call the place, the God of Bethel, would certainly be strange. (a) Sept.

8. Rebekah's nurse] Who on her mistress's death, had probably been taken into Jacob's family, and regarded as a sort of mother. 9. (a) Sept.

10. The text is here uncertain. Thy name is Jacob, is wanting in Sept. and Syr. as is also the last clause, So his name was called Israel. The text seems perfect without these clauses, and the sense complete.

14. A pillar] It might be the same stone he had before anointed, which had been thrown down.

15. The order of the Sept. is adopted, which has here what is now found in the 21st verse of the Hebrew. This is clearly its proper place.

16. Ephrath] i. e. Bethlehem, called also Bethlehem-Ephrath, where our blessed Lord was born.

18. Benjamin] The Samaritan has Benjamin [SON OF DAYS]; and the remark of Jacob, chap. xlv. 20, supports this reading. Houbigant and others consider the present reading as a Chaldaism, and give the same sense. If the former be Hebrew, it must be rendered, son of my right hand, i. e. one dear to me. Compare Ps. lxxx. 18.

20. A pillar on her grave] Perhaps some unhewn stone, erected to perpetuate the spot where the ashes of one so dear were laid. 21. (a) Sept.

22 And while Israel dwelt in this country it was that Reuben went and lay with Bilhah, his father's concubine; and Israel heard it, *and was greatly displeased." Now the 23 sons of Jacob were twelve. The sons of Leah; Reuben, Jacob's firstborn, and Simeon, and Levi, and Judah, and Issachar, 24 and Zebulun. The sons of Rachel; Joseph 25 and Benjamin. And the sons of Bilhah (Rachel's handmaid); Dan and Naphtali. 26 And the sons of Zilpah (Leah's handmaid); Gad and Asher. These were the sons of Jacob, that were born to him in Padan-aram.
27 And Jacob came to Isaac his father, unto Mamre, "in the land of Canaan," the city of Arba, (which is Hebron,) where Abraham and Isaac had sojourned. And the days of Isaac were now one hundred and 28 eighty years. And Isaac expired and died, and was gathered unto his people, being old and full of days; and his sons, Esau and Jacob, buried him.

CHAPTER XXXVI.

B. C. 1796. Esau's wives; his removal to mount Seir; his sons.

1 Now these are the progeny of Esau, who 2 is Edom. Esau took for his wives, from among the women of Canaan, Adah the daughter of Elon the Hethite, and Aholibamah the daughter of Anah, the "son" of 3 Zibeon the 'Horite'; And 'Mahalath', 4 Ishmael's daughter, sister of Nebaioth. And Adah bare to Esau Eliphaz; and 'Mahalah' bare Reuel; And Aholibamah bare Jeush, and Jaalam, and Korah. These were the sons of Esau, that were born to 6 him in the land of Canaan. And Esau took his wives, and his sons, and his daughters, and all the other persons of his house, and his substance together with all his cattle; even the whole property, which he had got in the land of Canaan; and he went "from the land of Canaan" into the land of "Seir" 7 from the presence of his brother Jacob. For their wealth was so great that they could not dwell together; nor could the land in which they sojourned support them, on account of their substance. So Esau dwelt in mount 8 Seir. Esau is the same with Edom.

Now these are the progeny of Esau the 9 father of the Edomites, in mount Seir; "And" these are the names of Esau's sons; 10 Eliphaz, the son of Adah, the wife of Esau; Reuel, the son of 'Mahalath,' the wife of Esau. And the sons of Eliphaz were Te- 11 man, Omar, Zepho, Gatam, and Kenaz. And Timna was concubine to Eliphaz, Esau's 12 son; and she bare to Eliphaz, Amalek. These were the grandsons of Adah, Esau's wife. And these were the sons of Reuel; 13 Nahath, Zerath, Shammah, and Mizzah. These were the grandsons of 'Mahalath,' Esau's wife.

And these were the sons whom Esau's 14 wife Aholibamah, the daughter of Anah, the "son" of Zibeon, bare to Esau: Jeush, and Jaalam, and Korah.

These were the princes, sprung from the 15 sons of Esau: the sons of Eliphaz the first-born of Esau, were, prince Teman, prince Omar, prince Repho, prince Kenaz, "Prince 16 Gatam, prince Amalek. These were the princes, sprung from Eliphaz, in the land of Edom; and these were the grandsons of Adah.

And these were the sons of Reuel, Esau's 17 son, prince Nahath, prince Zerath, prince Shammah, prince Mizzah. These were the princes, sprung from Reuel, in the land of Edom; and these were the sons of 'Mahalath,' Esau's wife.

And these were the sons of Esau's wife 18 Aholibamah; prince Jeush, prince Jaalam, prince Korah. These were the princes that sprang from Esau's wife Aholibamah, the daughter of Anah. These were the sons of 19 Esau, (who is the same as Edom,) and these were their princes.

These are the sons of Seir the Horite, 20

22. Lay with Bilhah] Which base action brought a curse upon him; he forfeited the right of primogeniture and the priesthood; the one was given to Judah, the other to Levi. (a) Sept. Were twelve] Called afterwards the twelve Patriarchs, because they became the heads of numerous families. 27. (a) Sept. Syr.

CHAP. XXXVI. 2. That errors have crept into this genealogy, is generally admitted. It is impossible to reconcile this account of Esau's wives with Gen. xxvi. 24; unless from MSS. and the versions. Without recurring to conjecture, it is observable, that here we have only two wives of Esau, daughters of the Canaanites, as is stated chap. xxvi. Here, also, we have one sprung from Ishmael, as chap. xxviii. Hence, it may be inferred, that the error is only in the names. For new names might be imposed from some circumstances not mentioned, as in other instances. Or we may conjecture, that Judith dying, or having no children, is not noticed; and that Aholibamah, the daughter of Anah, was an Horite, whom Esau married, which seems most probable from verse 25.

3. Here the reading of Sam. and Sept. agrees with chap. xxviii. 9. 4. (v) Sam.

6. The additions of this verse are necessary to the sense; for what appropriate sense is there, in Esau "went into the country?" Had he lived in some city? The conduct of Esau in this instance was submissive; and according to the divine appointment, he left to Jacob Canaan, and departed to occupy his own inheritance. (a) Sam. Sept. (a) Syr.

10. (a) Sam. and (v) Sam.

13, 14, 17. I have followed the Sam. in these verses, as consistently retaining the proper name of this wife of Esau.

16. The two first words in this verse (prince Korah) are interpolated. Now it is certain from verse 4, that Eliphaz was Esau's son by Adah; and from verse 11, 12, that Eliphaz had but six sons—Teman, Omar, Zepho, Gatam, Kenaz, and (by his concubine Timnah he had) Amalek. It is also certain from verse 5 and 14, that Korah was the son of Esau (not of Eliphaz) by Aholibamah; and, as such, he is properly enumerated in verse 18. And these are the sons of Aholibamah, Esau's wife; duke Jeush, duke Korah.

20. Calmet considers it certain, that the posterity of Seir and of Esau were united. It might be so, but this account will by no means prove it.

who formerly inhabited the land; Lotan, 21 and Shobal, and Zibeon, and Anah, and Dishon, and Ezer, and Dishan. These were the princes of the Horites, the sons of 22 Seir, in the land of Edom. And the sons of Lotan were Hori and Heman; and the 23 sister of Lotan was Timna. And these were the sons of Shobal; Alvan, and Manahath, and Ebal, and Shepho, and Onam. 24 And these were the sons of Zibeon; Ajath, and Anah. It was this Anah that found the waters in the wilderness, as he fed the 25 asses of Zibeon his father. And these were the sons of Anah; Dishon, and Aholibamah, the daughter of Anah. And these 26 were the sons of Dishon; Hemdan, and Eshban, and Ithran and Cheran. And 27 these were the sons of Ezer; Bilhan, and Zaavan, and Akan. And these were the 28 sons of Dishan; Uz, and Aran. These were the princes of the Horites; prince Lotan, prince Shobal, prince Zibeon, prince Anah, prince Dishon, prince Ezer, prince 30 Dishan. These, among the princes in the land of Seir, were the princes that sprung from Hori.

CHAPTER XXXVII.

B. C. 1729.—Joseph hated by his brethren; his two dreams; his brethren conspire against him and sell him to the Ishmaelites, who carry him down to Egypt, and sell him to Potiphar.

- 1 AND Jacob dwelt in the land, in which his father had sojourned, the land of Canaan.
- 2 This is the history of what now befell Jacob. Joseph, when seventeen years old, fed the flock with his brethren; and the lad was with the sons of Bilhah; and with the sons of Zilpah, his father's wives. And Joseph brought to his father an evil report of them.
- 3 Now Israel loved Joseph more than any of his children, because he was the son of his old age; and he made for him a coat of 4 various colours. And when his brethren saw that their father loved him more than any of his sons, they hated him, and could not speak peaceably to him.

24. The waters] Perhaps some copious spring or lake. This is Jerom's version. Asses, as well as camels, are said to be very sagacious in discovering water, even under ground, and smelling it at a considerable distance. It might then be the asses, which Anah fed, that led him to the discovery of some copious spring, or perhaps lake, of water; which, in those arid regions, would be accounted a capital discovery, and recorded by the historian as an important event.

31. The following verses are evidently inserted from the 1 Chronicles; and a comparison of the two texts proves, that one is a copy of the other. That Moses could not write these is certain, and it seems most probable that some Scribe, to render the history of the Edomites complete, first inserted them in the margin of Genesis, and others admitted them into the text. See Kennicott's Diss. § 18. and Shuckford's Con. vol. ii. p. 260.

CHAP. XXXVII. 2. An evil report of them] Jacob's sons seem not to have been governed by any principle of virtue and honour; and it is probable, that Joseph told his father how evil their conduct was.

And Joseph dreamed a dream, and told 5 it to his brethren; and they hated him still the more. And he said unto them, Hear, 6 I pray you, this dream which I have dreamed! For behold, we seemed to be binding 7 sheaves in the field, and, lo, my sheaf arose, and also stood upright; and behold, your sheaves stood up around, and made obeisance to my sheaf. And his brethren said 8 to him, Shalt thou indeed reign over us? Or shalt thou indeed have dominion over us? And they hated him still the more for his dreams, and for his words.

He also dreamed another dream, and told 9 it to his father, and to his brethren, and said, Behold, I have dreamed another dream; and, behold, the sun and the moon and eleven stars made obeisance to me. But 10 when he told this to his father, and to his brethren, his father rebuked him, and said to him, What is this dream that thou hast dreamed? Shall I, and thy mother, and thy brethren, indeed come to bow down ourselves to the earth to thee? And his brethren 11 became jealous of him; but his father observed the saying.

Now his brethren had gone to feed their 12 father's flocks in Shechem. And Israel said 13 to Joseph, Do not thy brethren feed the flocks in Shechem? Come, and I will send thee to them. And he said to him, Here am I. Go see, I pray thee, said Jacob to 14 him, whether it be well with thy brethren, and well with the flocks, and bring me word again. So he sent him from the vale of Hebron; and he came to Shechem.

A certain man found him, and behold, 15 he was wandering in the field; and the man asked him, saying, What seekest thou? 16 And he said, I seek my brethren; tell me, I pray thee, where they feed their flocks. And the man said, they are departed hence; 17 for I heard them say, Let us go to Dothan. And Joseph went after his brethren, and found them in Dothan.

Now when they saw him afar off, even 18

3. Of various colours] It was probably formed of different pieces and of different colours. It was a coat of distinction; such as the unmarried daughters of kings afterwards wore. Vid. 2 Sam. xiii. 18; and Harmer vol. ii. p. 398.

4. The various reading is more apposite than the textual. Bishop Law would render the last clause, 'And they would not give him the salutation of peace.' So Rosenmüller. (v) Sam. Sept. 4 MSS.

9. Mele has selected from Achmet, in what manner the eastern nations were accustomed to interpret the objects which occur to the mind in dreams; and he applies their interpretation to explain the prophetic emblems. According to Achmet, 'the sun signifies a king, and the moon, the person next to him in dignity; the morning star, the third in rank, and the other stars, inferior nobles.' These images have a striking reference to Jacob and his family. (a) Sept.

10. Thy mother] Rachel being dead, Jacob must mean Leah, or one of his concubines.

before he had come near to them, they conspired against him to put him to death. And they said one to another, Behold this dreamer cometh. Come now, therefore, and let us slay him, and cast him into some pit, and let us say, Some wild beast hath devoured him: we shall then see what will become of his dreams. But when Reuben heard this, he contrived to deliver him out of their hands; and said, Let us not kill him. Again Reuben said to them, (purposing to deliver him out of their hands, and to send him back to his father,) Shed no blood. Cast him into that pit which is in the wilderness, but stretch not forth a hand against him.

Now when Joseph had come to his brethren, they stript off his coat, the coat of various colours which he had on; And they took him, and cast him into a pit; but the pit was empty, no water being in it. They had now sat down to eat bread, when they raised their eyes, and saw, and, behold, a company of Ishmaelites were coming from Gilead with their camels, bearing storax, balsam, and laudanum, which they were carrying down to Egypt. And Judah said to his brethren, what would it profit us, should we slay our brother, and conceal his blood? Come, let us sell him to the Ishmaelites, but let us not put him to death; for he is our own brother. And his brethren consented. And as the Midianite merchants then passed by, they drew up Joseph out of the pit, and sold him to the Ishmaelites for twenty pieces of silver; and they brought Joseph into Egypt.

And Reuben returned to the pit; and, behold, Joseph was not in the pit; and he rent his clothes. And he came back to his brethren, and said, The child is not; and I, whither shall I go? And they took Joseph's coat, and killed a kid of the goats, and stained the coat with blood; And they sent the coat of various colours, and commanded those who brought it to their father, to say, This we found: know whether it be thy son's coat or not! And he knew it, and said, "This" is my son's coat! Some wild beast hath devoured him! Torn, torn in pieces is Joseph "my son!" And Jacob rent his garments, and put sackcloth upon his loins, and mourned for his son many days. And all his sons and his daughters attempted to comfort him; but he refused to be comforted: and said, Surely I will go down to the grave mourning "for my son." Thus his father wept for him; But the Midianites had sold him in Egypt to Potiphar, an officer of Pharaoh, and captain of the guard.

CHAPTER XXXVIII.

B. C. 1729. Judah's sons, Er, Onan, and Shelah; Er married Tamar; Onan's sin and punishment; Judah's incest with Tamar.

DURING this period it was, that Judah went down from his brethren, and pitched his tent beside a certain Adullamite, whose name was Hirah. And Judah saw there a daughter of a certain Canaanite, whose name was Shuah; and he took her and went in to her. And she conceived, and bare a son; and "she" called his name Er. And she conceived again, and bare a son; and she called his name Onan. And she yet again conceived, and bare a son: and called his name Shelah. And Judah was in Chezib, when she bare him. And Judah took a woman, whose name was Tamar, for a wife to his first-born son, Er. And Er, Judah's first-born, was wicked in the sight of Jehovah; and Jehovah slew him. And Judah said to Onan, Go in to thy brother's

21. Purposing to deliver him] Though Reuben had been guilty of a most flagrant sin, chap. xxxv. 22. he appears to have had more humanity than the rest of his brethren. His grief, when they had sold Joseph, strongly denotes this, verses 29, 30.

23. Ishmaelites] In the 28th verse they are called Midianites. It is probable they were a mixed multitude; or as Harmer thinks, Ishmaelites by descent, and Midianites from the country they inhabited.

26. Judah appears to have also commiserated Joseph, and as he found he could not rescue him out of his brethren's hand, he made the proposal to sell him. They consented; and thus contributed (undesignedly on their part) to the accomplishment of his dreams.

27. Our own brother] Hebr. Our brother, our flesh. The two terms are of the same import.

28. Twenty pieces of silver] The weight is not specified, and it is not possible to decide of what value the pieces might be.

33. Here our language admits the strong expression of the original; and how must the venerable patriarch have felt when he thus spoke. (a) Sam. 35. (a) Sam.

36. Officer] Some would render Eunuch; but it means any chief officer, and was only appropriated to Eunuchs, as being generally the chief officers of the eastern courts.—

Captain of the guard] It was not his office to guard the king, but to execute his sentence, by slaying and putting criminals to death.

CHAP. XXXVIII. 1. During this period. Not at the precise time mentioned in the last chapter; but, indefinitely, during the time of Jacob's residence in the land of Canaan. Some think this historical fragment is out of its place, and would refer it to chap. xxxiii. 17. At any rate, it is an incidental history of Judah, and takes in a period of many years.—Hirah] Compare Josh. xv. i. 35. Some think, that he kept a kind of lodging-house, and that Shuah lodged with him; but she might be his relative, and under his protection. 3. (v) Sam. Chald. Arab. MSS.; the rest he.

5. Chezib] Ainsworth thinks this place was called Aczib. Josh. xv. 44. Micah i. 14.

7. Wicked] His crimes are not specified; but it is clearly denoted, that he was a great offender, and cut off by some signal judgment.

8. Here is the first instance of what was afterwards sanctioned by the law, of a brother marrying the widow of a deceased brother, who had no children, in order to raise up seed for him. It seems to have been an established custom, that the widow, in such a case, should marry some one of her late husband's family, and that she had a right to demand, that they would perform the office of kinsmen.

wife, and perform the duty of next kinsman to her, and raise up seed to thy brother.

9 And, as Onan knew that the seed would not be accounted his own; so, though he went in to his brother's wife, yet did he avoid raising up seed to his brother. But what he did was so wicked in the sight of Jehovah,

11 that he slew him also. Then Judah said to Tamar, his daughter-in-law, Remain a widow at thy father's house, till Shelah, my son, be grown up. For he thought, that perhaps he also might die, as his brethren had done. So Tamar went and dwelt in her father's house.

12 And after many days, the daughter of Shuah, Judah's wife, died; and Judah was comforted, and went up unto his sheep-shearers to Timnath; he and his friend

13 Hirah, the Adullamite. Now one told Tamar, his "daughter-in-law," saying, Behold, thy father-in-law goeth up to Timnath

14 to shear his sheep. And she put off the garments of her widowhood, and put on a veil; and she wrapped herself up, and sat at the gate of Enaim, which is on the way to Timnath. For she saw, that though Shelah was grown up, yet she was not given

15 to him for a wife. When Judah saw her, he thought her to be a harlot; for she had so covered her face, "that he did not know

16 her." And he turned aside to her from the way, and said, Come now, I pray thee, let me come in to thee. (For he knew not that she was his daughter-in-law.) And she said, What wilt thou give me, that thou

17 mayest come in to me? And he said, I will send thee a kid from the flock. And she said, Wilt thou give to me a pledge, until

18 thou send it? And he said, What pledge shall I give to thee? And she said, Thy signet, and thy bracelet, and thy staff that is in thy hand. And he gave them to her, and went in to her, and she conceived by

19 him. And she arose, and went away; and laid aside her veil, and put on the garments of her widowhood. And Judah sent the kid by his friend the Adullamite, to recover the pledge from the woman; but he found

21 her not. Then he asked the men of that place, saying, Where is that harlot, who was at Enaim by the way-side? And they said, there was no harlot in this place. And 22 he returned to Judah, and said, I cannot find her; and also the men of the place said, There hath been no harlot in this place. And Judah said, Let her keep what she 23 hath, lest we be ashamed. Behold, I sent this kid, and thou hast not found her.

Now about three months after, some one 24 told Judah, saying, Tamar, thy daughter-in-law, hath played the harlot; and also, behold, she is with child by harlotry. Then Judah said, Bring her forth, and let her be burnt. When she was brought forth to be 25 burned, she sent to her father-in-law, saying, By the man to whom these belong, am I with child. And she said, Discern, I pray thee, to whom belong this signet, bracelet, and staff. And Judah acknowledged them, 26 and said, She hath been more righteous than I, since I gave her not Shelah, my son. And he knew her again no more.

Now when the time of her labour was 27 come, lo! twins were found in her womb. And while she was in labour, one of them 28 presented the hand, and the midwife took and bound on his hand a scarlet thread, saying, This will be the first-born! But 29 when he drew back his hand, behold, his brother came forth; and she said, What breach is this thou hast made? Therefore his name was called Pharez [BREACH-MAKEN] And afterwards came forth his brother, who 30 had the scarlet thread about his hand; and his name was called Zarah.

CHAPTER XXXIX.

B. C. 1727. Joseph advanced in Potiphar's house; resisteth the solicitation of his mistress; is falsely accused and cast into prison.

Now Joseph was brought down to Egypt; 1 and Potiphar, an officer of Pharaoh, and captain of the guard, an Egyptian, bought him of the Ishmaelites, who had brought him down thither. And Jehovah was with 2 Joseph, so that he prospered, and was taken into the house of his Egyptian master. For his master saw that Jehovah was with 3 him; and that whatsoever he did Jehovah made to prosper. And Joseph found fa- 4

10. The sin of Onan was double, his refusing to raise up seed to his brother, and the manner in which he did it; and the Lord cut him off. 13. (a) Sam. Sept.

14. Enaim] The Sept. render as a proper name, so called from the springs found there. The conduct of Tamar appears to us highly blamable; but Judah afterwards acknowledges, that she was 'more righteous than he.' In failure of brothers, it is thought, widows might lawfully marry the father. We find such a custom, however singular it may appear to us, yet obtain in the east. Asiatic Researches, vol. iii. p. 35.

15. A harlot] It appears that, in those early times, harlotry was scarcely regarded as a crime, though adultery was severely punished. Indeed they had no written code of laws, and it would be wrong to judge them by our rules.

18. Bracelet] Geddes renders, riband, and explains it as a twisted silk cord, by which the signet or ring was suspended.

21. The word here rendered harlot, is קרשה, and is supposed to denote a person who prostitutes herself in honour of some god; but as it refers to the same person called in the 15th verse יונה, the same version is given.

24. Burnt] Tamar is considered as the wife of Shelah, though the marriage had not been consummated, and Judah adjudges her to suffer as an adulteress.

26. Acknowledged them] The pledges, especially his own signet, could not be denied.

CHAP. XXXIX. 3. The preposition בדי is an expletive in this construction, as it is in the 1st verse, and often elsewhere.

vour in the eyes "of his master" so that he waited on him; he made him also overseer over his house; and all that he had he put under his care. And from the time he had made him the overseer of his house, and of all that he had, Jehovah blessed the house of the Egyptian for Joseph's sake; and the blessing of Jehovah was upon all that he had, both in the house and in the field. And he left all that he had under the care of Joseph; and he concerned not himself with aught he had, except the food which he ate.

Now Joseph was beautiful both in form and in countenance. And after these things it was that his master's wife cast her eyes upon Joseph; and she said, Lie with me. But he refused, and said to his master's wife, Behold, my master concerneth not himself with aught I do in the house, and hath committed all that he hath to my care. No one is greater in this house than I; nor hath he kept back aught from me but thee who art his wife. How then can I do this great wickedness, and sin against God? And though she spoke to Joseph, from day to day, he hearkened not to her, either to lie with her, or to be with her. But on a certain day, it happened that "Joseph" went into the house to do his "household" business; and none of the other men-servants were within. And she caught him by his upper garment, saying, Lie with me. But he left his garment in her hand, and fled, and got away. And when she saw that he had left his upper garment in her hand, and had fled and got away, she called to her men-servants, and spoke to them, saying, See he hath brought in a Hebrew to us to mock us! He came in to me, to lie with me, and I cried with a loud voice. And when he heard that I raised my voice and cried out, he left his upper garment with me, and fled, and got away. And she laid up his upper garment by her, until his master came home; And she spoke to him according to these words, saying, The Hebrew servant, whom thou hast brought to us, came in to me, to mock me. And when I raised my voice and cried out, he left his upper garment with me and fled, "and got away." And when his master heard the words of his wife, which she spoke to him, saying, After this manner did thy servant to me; his wrath was kindled. And Joseph's master took him, and put him into the prison, the place where the king's prisoners were kept bound; and there was he in the prison.

But Jehovah was with Joseph, and showed him kindness, and gave him favour in the sight of the keeper of the prison. And the keeper of the prison committed to Joseph's care all the prisoners that were in the prison; and whatsoever they did there, Joseph directed to be done. The keeper of the prison looked not to any thing that was under Joseph's care; for Jehovah was with him; and "all" that he did Jehovah made to prosper.

CHAPTER XL.

B. C. 1720. Pharaoh's butler and baker cast into prison; Joseph interprets their dreams; they come to pass accordingly, but the butler forgets Joseph.

And after these things it was, that the "chief" butler and the "chief" baker of the king of Egypt, offended their Lord the king of Egypt. And Pharaoh was enraged against his two officers, against the chief butler, and against the chief baker. And he put them in custody in the same prison-house of the captain of the guard, where Joseph was prisoner. And the captain of the guard committed them to the charge of Joseph, and he attended on them; and they continued some time in custody.

And they both dreamed a dream (the butler and the baker of the king of Egypt, who were in the prison), each his own dream on the same night, and the dream of each admitted a proper interpretation. And Joseph came in to them in the morning, and looked at them, and, behold, they were

4. Waited on him] Pilkington has justly observed, that the verb שרר never be translated, to serve; but, minister unto, or attend upon; and the noun, not a servant, but, a minister, or attendant. See 2 Sam. xiii. 18. 2 Kings iv. 43.—vi. 15.—Under his care] This is the sense Noldius attributes to the word, and evidently more proper than 'in his hand.' (a) Sam. Sept. Vulg.

6. Beautiful] The beauty of Joseph has been celebrated throughout the east; and it is so to this day.

8, 9. This reply of Joseph is so just and proper, equally showing his gratitude to his master, and his humble, holy fear of God, that one would have thought it sufficient to have checked the criminal passion of his mistress.

11. 13. The readings of the versions complete the text, and seem necessary.—Upper garment] The Hyke or mantle, which, being loose, might easily be thus seized, and from which Joseph might as easily escape.

14. To mock us] The wife of Potiphar is thought by most, to speak as a woman of dignity, when she uses the plural for the singular. Perhaps she was afraid lest Joseph should expose her; and adopted this method to secure herself, as well as to avenge herself on him. Her language shows, that a Hebrew was then regarded with contempt in Egypt. 18. (a) Sept. Syr. 4 MSS.

20. Prison] Literally, 'The round house,' most probably because their prisons were built in this form.

22. He directed to be done] The former clause renders this version necessary. 23. (a) Sam. Sept. Syr. 3 MSS.

CHAP. XL. 1. Baker] The word signifies a cook, and is applied to preparing, or getting ready any sort of food. (a) Sept. Syr. Chald.

4. Some time] Some explain ימים a week, and others a year. As the time is doubtful, an indefinite expression is preferred.

5. Admitted a proper interpretation] So we must render; and the design of the remark is, to intimate, that these were not ordinary dreams, the mere ravings of a disordered fancy, but prophetic.

- 7 troubled. And he asked Pharaoh's officers, who were with him in custody, in his master's prison, saying, Why are your countenances so sad to day? And they answered him, we have each of us dreamed a dream, but there is no one to interpret it. And Joseph said to them, Do not interpretations come from God? Tell me your dreams, I pray. And the chief butler told his dream to Joseph, saying, In my dream, behold, a vine appeared before me; and on the vine were three branches; and they seemed to bud, and to shoot forth blossoms; and the clusters of grapes became ripe. And Pharaoh's cup was in my hand; and I took the grapes, and pressed them into Pharaoh's cup, and I gave the cup into Pharaoh's hand. And Joseph said unto him, This is the interpretation of it: The three branches are three days. Three days hence, Pharaoh will decide concerning thee, and restore thee to thy place; and thou shalt deliver Pharaoh's cup into his hand, in like manner as formerly, when thou wast his butler. But when it shall be well with thee, think on me, and show kindness, I pray thee, to me; and make mention of me to Pharaoh, and bring me out of this house: For indeed I was stolen away from the land of the Hebrews; nor have I done ought here, for which they should put me into a dungeon.
- 16 When the chief baker saw that the interpretation was favourable, he said unto Joseph, I, also, had my dream; and behold, there were on my head, three wicker baskets; And in the uppermost basket there were all kinds of pastry work for Pharaoh's eating; and the birds of the air ate them out of the basket upon my head. And Joseph answered and said, This is the interpretation of it: The three baskets are three days. Three days hence shall Pharaoh decide concerning thee, and will hang thee on a tree; and the birds "of the air" shall eat thy flesh from off thee.
- 20 Now on the third day, which was Pharaoh's birthday, he made a feast for all his servants; and he decided concerning the chief butler and the chief baker, among his servants. And the chief butler he restored to his butlership, that he might give the cup into Pharaoh's hand; But the chief baker he hanged, as Joseph had interpreted to them. Yet the chief butler did not remember Joseph, but forgot him.

CHAPTER XLI.

B. C. 1715. Pharaoh's dreams; Joseph interprets them; giveth Pharaoh counsel; is advanced next to Pharaoh; his sons Manasseh and Ephraim.

AND it happened at the end of two full years, that Pharaoh dreamed; and, behold, he seemed to be standing by the river. lo! there came up out of the river seven beautiful fat heifers; and they fed in a meadow. And, behold, there came up after them, seven other heifers, ill-looking and lean; and they stood by the other heifers on the brink of the river. And the ill-looking and lean heifers ate up the seven beautiful and fat heifers. Then Pharaoh awoke. Again he slept, and dreamed a second time; and, behold, there sprang up, on one stalk, seven ears of corn, plump and good. And, behold, after them, sprang up seven other ears, thin and blighted with the east wind. And the "seven thin and blighted" ears devoured the seven plump and full ears. And Pharaoh awoke, and, behold it was a dream.

But when the morning came, his spirit was troubled; and he sent and called for all the magicians, and all the wise men of Egypt; and Pharaoh told them his "dreams;" but none of them could interpret them to Pharaoh. Then spoke the chief butler to Pharaoh, saying, My fault I do this day remember. Pharaoh was enraged against his two servants, me and the chief baker, and put us in custody in the prison of the captain of the guard. And we dreamed, both I and he, on the same night, a dream; and we dreamed, each his own dream, admitting a proper interpretation. And there was with us a young man, an

8. Come from God] Joseph properly ascribes the right interpretation of prophetic dreams to God; i. e. it is only He who gives wisdom to interpret and explain them.

11. From this verse we find, that the juice of the grape, without any fermentation, was anciently drunk in Egypt, and perhaps in other countries.

12. Are three days] i. e. the three branches signify three days. The Hebrew language has no word answering to our terms, denotes, signifies, represents; but they say, such a thing is for signifies or denotes. Hence the words of our Lord are explained, 'This is my body; this cup is the,' &c. i. e. represents, denotes.

13. Decide concerning thee] Bishop Law proposes to render, 'I will call thee to account.' Others, 'I will bring thee to trial.' But, as the kings of Egypt were absolute, and their will the law, the version given is preferable.

16. Wicker baskets] So our old versions; for it is more natural to mention the material or sort, than the colour.

17. (a) Sept.

19. See Note, Hebrew Bible. The 22d verse explains this. (a) Sept.

CHAR. XLI. 1. Seemed to be standing] So the Sept. and Vulg. expressing the sense most clearly.

5. Seven ears on one stalk] It is probable, that abundant as this increase appears in the vision, it was not more than was usual in fertile years. There is a species of Egyptian wheat, which has a very strong stem full of pith, and which usually has seven full ears on one stalk.

6. East wind] All the mischief done to corn or fruit is said to be by the east wind. Compare Exod. x. 13; xiv. 21; Psa. lxxviii. 26; Ezek. xlvii. 10.

7. (a) Sept. Arab. 1 MS.

8. Magicians] These are thought to be persons, who understood hieroglyphics, and their sacred rites; and the wise men, such as studied the sciences, and the mysteries of nature. (v) Sam. Syr. Arab.

Hebrew, servant to the captain of the guard; and we told him, and he interpreted to us our dreams; to each man according to his 13 dream did he interpret. And as he interpreted to us, so it came to pass. Me Pharaoh restored to mine office, and him he hanged.

14 Then Pharaoh sent and called for Joseph; and they brought him hastily out of the dungeon. And when he had shaved himself, and changed his raiment, he went in 15 to Pharaoh. And Pharaoh said to Joseph, I have dreamed a dream, and no one hath been able to interpret it. Now I have heard say of thee, that when thou hearest 16 a dream, thou canst interpret it. And Joseph answered Pharaoh, saying, This belongs not to me; but may God give to Pharaoh an answer of peace. Then Pharaoh said to Joseph, In my dream, behold, I stood upon 18 the bank of the river; And, lo! there came up out of the river seven heifers, fat and 19 beautiful; and they fed in a meadow. And, behold, there came up after them, seven other heifers, poor, very ill-looking, and lean, such as I never saw in all the land of 20 Egypt, for bad. And the "seven" lean and ill-looking heifers, ate up the first seven 21 "beautiful" and fat heifers: And when they had swallowed them, it could not be known that they had swallowed them; for their appearance was as bad as before. Then I 22 awoke. Again, I saw in my dream, and, behold, there came up, on one stalk, seven 23 ears of corn, full and good. And, behold, there sprang up after them, seven other ears, withered, thin, and blighted with the 24 east wind. And the seven thin "and" blighted ears devoured the seven full, good ears. And I told this to the magicians; but no one could explain it to me. 25 Then Joseph said to Pharaoh, The dreams of Pharaoh have one design. God hath shown to Pharaoh, what he is about to do. 26 The seven good heifers, are seven years; and the seven good ears of corn, are seven 27 years "of plenty": the dream is one. And the seven lean and ill-looking heifers, that came up after them, are seven years; and the seven ears of corn, thin, and blighted with the east wind, are "seven years;" and they will be years of famine. This is the 28 thing which I have spoken to Pharaoh: What God is about to do, he hath shown to Pharaoh. Behold, there will come seven 29 years of great plenty, through the whole land of Egypt: But seven years of famine 30 will succeed them, so that all the plenty in the land of Egypt shall be forgotten; for the famine will consume the land. And the 31 former plenty will not be known in the land, on account of the succeeding famine; for very grievous will it be. And as for the 32 repetition of the dream to Pharaoh, it was, because the thing is established by God, and God will soon bring it pass. Now, there- 33 fore, let Pharaoh look out for a discerning and wise man, and set him over the land of Egypt. Let Pharaoh do this also; let him 34 appoint inspectors over the land, and take up the fifth part of the produce of the land of Egypt, during the seven years of plenty; And let them collect all the food of those 35 "seven" good years that come; and let them store up corn under the authority of Pharaoh, that food may be preserved in the cities. Thus shall there be food in store for 36 the people of the land, against the seven years of famine, which shall be in the land of Egypt; so that the people of the land may not perish through famine.

This counsel seemed good to Pharaoh 37 and to all his servants: And Pharaoh said 38 to his servants, Can we find another like this man, in whom is the spirit of God? Pharaoh then said to Joseph, For as much as God hath shown all this to thee, there is none so discerning and wise as thyself. Thou 40 shalt be over my house; and to thy word shall all my people be subject. Only on the throne will I be greater than thou. And 41 Pharaoh said to Joseph, See I have set thee over all the land of Egypt. And Pharaoh 42 took his ring from off his hand, and put it

14. Shaved himself] Herodotus informs us, that the Egyptians shaved as the Europeans now do. Joseph adopted their custom, that he might appear more decently before Pharaoh.

16. But may God] Joseph modestly denies, that he can of himself interpret dreams; and as properly directs Pharaoh to God, by praying, that he may answer him satisfactorily. 20. 24. (a) Sept.

25. God hath shown] The scene of these visions is the banks of the Nile, on the overflowing of which depends the fertility of Egypt. When the country is but partially overflowed, the consequence is, a failure of vegetation, and a famine. Joseph here intimates to Pharaoh, that God overruled natural causes, and could make them subservient to his designs; and that it was therefore his duty to worship him and not the Nile. 26. (a) Vulg. Arab. 27. (a) Sept.

34. The fifth part] A tenth part of ancient right belonged to the king, and it is probable he bought the other tenth; for it would have been great injustice to have sold that after, which he never paid for; besides Joseph, who had advised this, would have been hated by the people, which he was not, but extremely honoured. 35. (a) Sept.

38. The Spirit of God] They inferred this from his superior wisdom: and though idolaters, they considered the God he worshipped, as at least one among others. The next verse explains this.

40. Be subject] Secker justly observes that על פניו cannot signify 'to kiss the mouth.' Perhaps another meaning, equally probable, may be drawn from the same root, in the sense which we give to it, Gen. iii. 16. The Sept. and Vulg. must be so understood.

42. Muslin] Foster has proved, that this is the sense of the term; and Pliny describes it, and observes, that the priests preferred it for their robes on account of its softness and whiteness. The ring or signet was the badge of his authority.

upon the hand of Joseph, and arrayed him in robes of muslin, and put a chain of gold about his neck; And made him ride in the second chariot which he had; while one cried before him, ABRECH [BEND THE KNEE.] Thus he made him ruler over all the land of Egypt. Again Pharaoh said to Joseph, I am Pharaoh; and without thee shall no man lift up his hand or foot in all the land of Egypt. And Pharaoh called Joseph's name, Zaphnath-paaneah; and he gave him for a wife, Asenath, the daughter of Potipherah, priest of On.²

And Joseph was thirty years old when he stood before Pharaoh, king of Egypt. And Joseph departed from the presence of Pharaoh, and went through all the land of Egypt. And in the seven years of plenty the earth brought forth by handfuls. And he collected all the unused food of the seven years "of plenty," which was in the land of Egypt, and laid it up in the cities; the food of the field which was round about every city, he laid it up in the same. So Joseph collected corn as the sand of the sea-shore; so very much, that he ceased to number it; for it was without number.

Now before the "seven" years of famine came, to Joseph were born two sons; whom Asenath, the daughter of Potipherah, priest of On, bare to him. And Joseph called the name of the first-born, Manasseh. [MAKING-FORGETFUL]. For God, said he, hath made me forget all my toil, and all my father's house. And the name of the second, he called Ephraim, [FRUITFUL]. For God, said he, hath made me fruitful in the land of my affliction.

The seven years of plenty, that were in the land of Egypt, were now ended; And the seven years of famine began to come, as Joseph had said. And though the famine was in all other lands, yet in all the land of Egypt there was bread. And when all the people of Egypt began to famish, they cried to Pharaoh for bread; and Pharaoh said unto all the Egyptians, 'Go to Joseph; and what he shall say to you do.'

43. Abrech] This word is of Egyptian origin, and signifies, as given on the authority of Origen, 'a native Egyptian,' and of Jerom, who was well acquainted with the Oriental languages.

45. Zaphnath-paaneah] Jewish writers consider this name as Hebrew, and meaning, revealer of secrets. Forster regards it as an Egyptian word, and renders it, the scribe or priest of the eternal spirit. Jerom, the Saviour of the world, or country.—Priest of On.] This city is called Heliothis, or 'City of the Sun,' by the Greek translators; and Cyril, who lived in Egypt, gives the same sense. The last clause of this verse the Sept. omits. It is found in the next verse, where it is consistent and suitable. So also verse 56.

CHAP. XLII. 1. Understood] Literally saw; but this is an idiom of the language, to put the operations of the senses, for those of the mind.

And the famine was over the whole land; and Joseph opened all the storehouses, and sold corn to the Egyptians.³ And the people of all countries came into Egypt to Joseph to buy corn; for in every land the famine prevailed.

CHAPTER XLII.

B. C. 1708. Jacob sendeth his sons to buy corn; Joseph treats them as spies; sets them at liberty on condition of their bringing down Benjamin, and Simeon is kept as a pledge; Jacob refuseth to send Benjamin.

Now when Jacob understood that there was a sale of corn in Egypt, Jacob said to his sons, Why gaze ye one at another? And he said, Behold, I have heard that there is a sale of corn in Egypt. Go down thither, and buy for us 'thence,' that we may live, and not die. So ten of Joseph's brethren went down to buy corn in Egypt; But Benjamin, Joseph's own brother, Jacob sent not with his brethren; Lest, said he, some mischief should befall him.

Among those who came to buy corn, came also the sons of Israel: for the famine was in the land of Canaan. Now Joseph being the governor of the land, he it was that sold corn to all the people of the land. And Joseph's brethren came, and bowed themselves before him to the ground. When Joseph saw his brethren, he knew them; but he made himself a stranger to them, and spoke harshly to them, and said, Whence come ye? And they said, From the land of Canaan, to buy food. (For, though Joseph knew his brethren, yet they knew not him.)

Now Joseph remembered the dreams which he had dreamed in regard to them, and said to them, Ye are spies; to see the defenceless parts of the land ye are come. And they said to him, Nay, my lord, but to buy food are thy servants come. We are all the sons of one man; we are honest men; thy servants are no spies. And he said to them, Nay; but to see the defenceless parts of the land ye are come. And they said, Thy servants were twelve brethren, the sons of one man, in the land of Canaan; and, behold, the youngest is this day with our

2. (v) Sept. a little food.

6. Governor] The Chaldee renders Sultan, a name yet retained among the Mahomedans. Prostration is generally practised in the east, when inferiors approach kings or rulers.

7. He spoke harshly to them] He did this to awaken their consciences, and bring them to a sense of their sin against him; and it had that effect.

9. Their prostration before him, reminded him of his dreams. He saw them in some measure fulfilled.—Spies] Persons belonging to different tribes, who under the pretence of coming to buy corn, were intending to gain information as to the state of the country, and then to invade it either for the purpose of plunder or settlement. The Arabs of the desert constantly do this even to the present day. Their simple statement in what follows is a good answer to this charge.

14 father, and one is no more. Again Joseph said to them, This is what I have spoken 15 to you saying, Ye are spies. Hereby ye shall be proved. As Pharaoh liveth, ye shall not depart hence, unless your youngest 16 brother come hither. Send one from among you, and let him fetch your brother, and ye shall be kept prisoners, that, if there be any truth in you, your words may be proved; or else, as Pharaoh liveth, ye are indeed spies. "They then said, The lad cannot leave his father, for if he should leave his father, his 17 father would die." And he put them alto-
 18 gether in custody three days. And Joseph said to them on the third day, This do, that ye 19 may live; for I fear God. If ye be honest men, let one of your brethren remain bound in the house, in which ye are in custody; and go carry the corn purchased for the fami-
 20 mine at home. But bring next your youngest brother to me; that your words may be verified, and that ye may not die. And they 21 did so. And they said one to another, We are verily guilty concerning our brother; for we saw the anguish of his soul, when he entreated us, and we would not hear him; therefore is this distress come upon us.
 22 And Reuben answered them, saying, Did I not speak to you, saying, Do not sin against the lad; but ye would not hear me? Therefore, behold, an account of his blood
 23 is now demanded. And they knew not that Joseph understood them; for he spoke 24 to them by an interpreter. But he turned about from them, and wept; he then returned to them, and talked with them, and took from among them, Simeon, and bound him before their eyes.
 25 Then Joseph commanded their sacks to be filled with corn, and every man's money to be restored in his sack, and provisions to be given them for the way; and so his 26 servants 'did' to them. And they loaded their asses with the corn, and thence de-27 parted. And, as one of them opened his sack, at the lodging place, to give his ass provender, he spied his money! for, behold! it was in the mouth of his sack.
 28 And he said to his brethren, My money is restored; for lo! it is even in my sack.

15. As Pharaoh liveth] The Sept. understood this as an oath; but by a similar form, used on other occasions, it appears to signify only a strong asseveration. 1 Sam. i. 26; xvii. 55.

16. The clause now only found in the Sam. seems so consonant to the context, and forms so pertinent a reply, that it ought to be deemed genuine. Compare chap. xlv. 22.

24. Simeon] He had probably been the most guilty of all his brothers towards himself. That he was of a violent and sanguinary disposition is plain from the murder of the Shechemites. 25. (v) Vulg. Arab. 1 MS.

27. Lodging place] They have no inns in the east; nor frequently have travellers so much as a shed to cover them. They generally lodge in the open air, near some fountain;

Their hearts then failed them, and they trembled with fear, saying one to another, What is this that God hath done to us?

And they came to Jacob their father unto 29 the land of Canaan, and told him all that had befallen them; saying, The man, who 30 is the lord of the land, spoke harshly to us, and took us for spies of the country. But 31 we said to him, We are honest men; we are not spies. We were twelve brethren, the 32 sons of 'one' father; one is no more, and the youngest is now with our father in the land of Canaan. And the man, the lord of 33 the country, said unto us, Hereby shall I know that ye are honest men; leave one of your brethren here with me, and take 'the corn purchased' for the famine at home, and be gone. And bring next, your young- 34 est brother to me; then shall I know that ye are not spies, but honest men; so will I deliver to you your brother, and ye shall traffick in the land.

Now it was, that they emptied their sacks; 35 and behold, every man's bundle of money was in his sack; and when they and their father saw the bundles of money, they were afraid. And Jacob their father said to them, 36 Me have ye bereaved. Joseph is not; and Simeon is not; and ye would now take away Benjamin. All these things are against me. And Reuben spoke to his father, say- 37 ing, Slay my two sons, if I bring him not to thee. Give him to my charge, and I will bring him to thee again. But Jacob 38 said, My son shall not go down with you; for his brother is dead, and he only remaineth: if mischief should befall him by the way in which ye go, ye will bring down my grey hairs in sorrow to the grave.

CHAPTER XLIII.

B. C. 1707. Jacob, with reluctance, is persuaded to send Benjamin; Joseph entertaineth his brethren.

Now the famine was still grievous in the 1 land. And when they had eaten up the 2 corn which they had brought out of Egypt, their father said to them, Go again, and buy for us a little food. And Judah spoke to 3 him, saying, The man, 'who is lord of the land' did solemnly protest to us, saying, where there is pasture for beasts, and whence they may obtain a supply of water for themselves.

28. What is this] They seem now to be under the strongest impressions of their guilt, and every circumstance arouses their fears.

32. One father] The text has, 'our father,' but the Vulg. renders as I have done, which is obviously more proper. The true reading seems to have been מאב אחד and the latter word has been omitted, from its being immediately repeated. 33. (a) Sept.

36. All these things] Matthews renders, 'all these things fall upon me.' The preposition has various senses and may be rendered either upon or against.

CHAP. XLIII. 3. (a) Sept.

Ye shall not see my face, unless your brother be with you. If thou wilt send our brother with us, we will go down and buy food for thee; But if thou wilt not send him, we will not go down. For the man said, Ye shall not see my face, unless your brother be with you. Then Israel said, Wherefore dealt ye so ill with me, as to tell the man that ye had yet another brother? And they replied, The man strictly inquired concerning ourselves, and our kindred, saying, Is your father yet alive? Have ye another brother? and we told him according to the tenour of these words. Could we certainly know that he would say, Bring down your brother? And Judah said to Israel his father, Send the young man with me; and let us arise and be gone; that we may live and not die, both we, and thou, as well as our little ones. I will be surety for him; from me thou mayest require an account of him. If I bring him not back to thee, and set him before thee, then let me ever bear the blame. Surely if we had not lingered, we might have returned a second time. And their father Israel said to them, If it must now be so, do this; take of the best fruits in the land in your vessels, and carry down, as a present to the man, storax and laudanum, a little balsam, and a little wild honey, pistachio-nuts, and almonds. And take double money with you, and carry back the money that was returned in the mouth of your sacks; perhaps it was an oversight. Take also your brother, and arise, and return to the man. And may God, the Almighty, give you favour before the man, that he may send away your other brother, and Benjamin. But if I be bereaved, bereaved I must be.

And the men took the present, and they took double money with them, and Benjamin; and they set out, and went down to Egypt, and stood before Joseph. And when Joseph saw "his brother" Benjamin, "the son of his own mother" with them, he said to the ruler of his house, Bring these men home, and make ready; for these men must eat with me at noon. And the man did as Joseph bade; and he brought the men into Joseph's house. And the men were afraid, because they were brought into the house of Joseph; and they said to themselves, On account of the money that was formerly returned in our sacks are we brought in; that he may find some pretext against us, and fall on us, and make us bondmen, and take our asses. And they came near to the steward of Joseph's house, and they spoke with him at the door of the house, And said, O! sir, we indeed came down formerly to buy food. And when we had come to the lodging-place, it was, that we opened our sacks, and, behold every man's money was in the mouth of his sack, our money in full weight. But we have brought it back with us again; And other money have we brought with us to buy food. Who put our money into our sacks we know not. And he said, Peace be to you, fear not. Your God, and the God of your father, hath given you a hidden treasure in your sacks. I had your money. He then brought Simeon out to them. And the man brought them into Joseph's house, and gave them water, that they might wash their feet; and to their asses he gave provender. And they made ready the present against Joseph should come at noon; for they had heard that they were to dine there.

And when Joseph came home, they brought him the present, which they had with them, into the house, and bowed themselves to him, to the ground. And he asked them of their welfare, and said, Is your father well, the old man, of whom ye spoke? Is he yet alive? And they answered, Thy servant our father is well; he is yet alive. And Joseph said, Blessed of God be that old man! And they bowed their heads, and made obeisance. And he raised his eyes, and saw his brother Benjamin, the son of his own mother, and said, Is this your younger brother, of whom ye spoke unto me? And he said, God be gracious to thee, my son. And Joseph made haste, (for his bowels yearned towards his brother,) and sought where to weep; and he entered into his chamber, and wept there. He then washed his face, and came out, and restrained

7. These words] The Vulg. and Sept. give the sense, 'And we told him according to this inquiry:' i. e. We answered his inquiries.

9. I will be surety] It is plain, from other circumstances, that Jacob had more confidence in Judah than in the rest; and we shall soon see, that it was not without reason.

11. A present] This is now, and from the most remote antiquity has been, throughout the east, the method of introduction to the great. Prov. viii. 16.

14. The last clause is supported by a parallel idiom, Esth. iv. 16. 'And if I perish, I perish:' i. e. I will die in this cause, if it be necessary for the deliverance of my people. So Jacob, having prayed that God might restore his children, adds; 'But if I be bereaved, bereaved I must be;' i. e. Circumstances seem to demand this sacrifice of the objects of my affection, and I will submit to the dispensation. 16. (a) Sept.

18. House of Joseph] It is not the custom in the east for persons to be admitted into the interior part of the house, but into a kind of hall or court. Hence they were afraid, from this unusual circumstance, that some design was formed against them.

23. This steward seems to have known who they were; and what it was Joseph intended to do. His kind address must, in some degree, have soothed their agitated minds.

25. The clause, now found in the Sam. and Sept. as it is natural, so it seems supported by what Joseph says respecting Benjamin in the next verse.

32 himself, and said, Set on the dinner. And they set on for him, by himself, and for them, by themselves, and for the Egyptians, who ate with him, by themselves; for the Egyptians might not eat food with the Hebrews; that would be an abomination to Egyptians. And his brethren sat before him, the first born according to his birthright, and the youngest according to his youth; and they marvelled one at another. And he took and sent messes to them from what was before him; but Benjamin's mess was five times as much as any of theirs. And they drank with him, and were merry.

CHAPTER XLIV.

B. C. 1707. Joseph's contrivance to detain his brethren; Judah's admirable address to him; Joseph at length makes himself known to them and sends for his father.

1 Now he commanded the steward of his house, saying, Fill the men's sacks with as much food as they can carry, and put every man's money in the mouth of his own sack. 2 And put my cup, the silver cup, along with his corn-money, in the sack's mouth of the youngest. And he did according to the word which Joseph had spoken. As soon as the morning was light, the men were sent away, they and their asses. They had not yet gone far from the city, when Joseph said to his steward, Arise, pursue after the men; and when thou overtakest them, say to them, Wherefore have ye rendered evil for good? "Why have ye stolen my silver cup?" 5 Is it not that in which my lord drinketh, and for which, he indeed will make inquiry? Ye have done evil in so doing. 6 And he overtook them, and he spoke to them these same words. But they said to him, Why speaketh my lord these words? Far be it from thy servants to do such a thing. Behold, the money, which we found in the mouths of our sacks, we brought again to thee from the land of Canaan: how then should we steal out of thy lord's house, either silver or gold? With whom- 9 soever of thy servants, "the cup" shall be found let him die; and let us also be made bondmen to my lord. Then he said, Now, 10 be it so far, according unto your words. Let him with whom "the cup" is found become my slave; but ye shall be blameless. Then they speedily let down every man his 11 sack to the ground; and every man opened his own sack. And the steward searched, 12 beginning at the oldest, and ending at the youngest; and the cup was found in Benjamin's sack. Then they rent their garments, 13 and loaded every man his ass, and returned to the city.

And Judah and his brethren came to Joseph's house; (for he was yet there;) and they fell down before him on the ground. And Joseph said to them, What deed is 15 this that ye have done? Knew ye not that I should certainly make inquiry? And Judah 16 said, What shall we say to my lord? what shall we speak? or how shall we clear ourselves? God hath found out the iniquity of thy servants. Behold, we are my lord's bondmen; both we, and he also with whom the cup is found. And he said, Far be it 17 from me to do so! The man with whom the cup is found shall become my bondman; and as for you, go ye in peace to your father.

Then Judah came near to him, and said, 18 Oh! my lord, let thy servant, I pray thee, speak a word, in my lord's hearing, and let not thine anger burn against thy servant: for thou art even as Pharaoh. My lord 19 asked his servants, saying, Have ye a father or a brother? And we said to my lord, We 20 have a father, an old man, and a child of his old age, a little one; and his brother is dead, and he alone is left of his mother, and his father loveth him. And thou saidst to 21 thy servants, Bring him down to me, that I may set mine eyes upon him. And we 22 said to my lord, The lad cannot leave his father; for should he leave his father, his

32. Might not eat] Two reasons have been assigned; 1. Because they were shepherds; and, 2. because they ate cattle which the Egyptians worshipped.

34. Five times] It appears to be still the custom in Persia, and many other parts of the east, to honour a person of quality, by sending either a larger quantity of provisions, or a greater variety of dishes, than to others.

CHAP. XLIV. 5. Why have ye stolen] Without this addition to the text, the questions addressed to the sons of Jacob, must have been wholly unintelligible. (a) Sept. Syr. 9, 10. (a) Sept.

16. What shall we say] The language of Judah marks the greatest confusion, and proves that he thought Benjamin really guilty of the theft.

17. Joseph's great object was to detain Benjamin, to try the regard his brethren had to their father, and to ascertain how they were affected towards Benjamin his uterine brother. If they had retained the same spirit as they formerly possessed they would have given up Benjamin to captivity, and disregarded the sorrow of the old man their father. But on trial he found them attached to both; and then discovered himself to them.

18. Judah had become bound for the safe return of his youngest brother, and he properly pleads his cause. The whole of this speech has been deservedly admired, as the most perfect pattern of natural and affecting eloquence ever delivered: what gives it all its interest, is its truth. It is remarkable, that Judah does not acknowledge the crime, for that would have been to reflect on Benjamin; nor does he deny it, for that would have reflected on the justice of Joseph. All his efforts are directed to move his pity;—his pity for the old man their father, whose grey hairs would, if Benjamin was detained, "be brought down in sorrow to the grave." His filial affection, and his regard for his brother, in offering to become himself a slave in his stead, touches all our sympathies and melts the soul into pity. Joseph could no longer act a part in the melting scene; he felt for his father—he realized the heart-rending agony of the old man: he felt for his brethren, whom he now saw humbled at his feet; and having dismissed his attendants, he says, 'I am Joseph.'

23 father would die. And thou saidst to thy servants, Unless your youngest brother come down with you, ye shall no more see my face. Now when we came up unto thy servant, 'our' father, we told him the words 25 of my lord. And our father said, Go again 26 and buy for us a little food. But we said, We cannot go down. If our youngest brother be with us, then will we go down; for we may not see the man's face, unless our 27 youngest brother be with us. And thy servant 'our' father, said unto us, Ye know 28 that my wife bare to me but two sons. And the one went out from me, and I said He is torn, torn to pieces; and I have not since 29 seen him. And if ye take this one also from me, and mischief should befall him, ye will bring down my grey hairs in sorrow to 30 the grave. Now therefore, when I come to thy servant, 'our' father, and the lad be not 31 with us; It will be, when he seeth that the lad is not with us, that he will die: 'for his life is bound up in the life' of the lad. Thus thy servants will bring down the grey hairs of thy servant, our father, in sorrow to the 32 grave. For thy servant became surety for the lad to his father, saying, If I bring him not back to thee, then let me bear the blame 33 to my father for ever. Now therefore, I pray thee, let thy servant abide, instead of the lad, a bondsman to my lord; and let 34 the lad go up with his brethren. For how can I go up to my father, if the lad be not with me? lest I see the evil that will come on my father.

1 THEN Joseph could not refrain himself before all that stood by him; and he cried, Cause every man to go out from me. And there stood no one by him, while Joseph made himself known to his brethren. And he wept aloud; and the Egyptians, and the 3 house of Pharaoh, heard. And Joseph said to his brethren, I am Joseph! Is my father yet alive? But his brethren could not answer him, they were so confounded at his 4 presence. Again, Joseph said to his brethren, Come near to me, I pray you. And they came near. And he said, I am Joseph your brother, whom ye sold into Egypt. Now, therefore, be not grieved, nor angry 5 with yourselves, that ye sold me hither; for God sent me before you, to preserve life. For these two years hath the famine been 6 in the land; and there are yet five years to come, in which there shall be neither plowing nor reaping. Therefore, God sent me 7 before you to preserve to you a posterity on earth, and to save your lives by a great deliverance. So then, it was not you only 8 that sent me hither, but God: and he hath made me a father to Pharaoh, and lord of all his house, and ruler of all the land of Egypt. Haste ye, and go up to my father, 9 and say unto him, Thus saith thy son Joseph, God hath made me lord of all Egypt: come down unto me; tarry not. And thou 10 shalt dwell in the land of Goshen, that thou mayest be near to me; thou, and thy children, and thy children's children, and thy flocks, and thy herds, and all that thou hast. And there will I support thee, (for there are 11 yet to be five years of famine,) lest thou, and thy household, and all that thou hast, come to poverty. And, behold, your eyes 12 see, and the eyes of my brother Benjamin, that it is my mouth which speaketh to you. And ye shall relate to my father all my 13 glory in Egypt, and all that ye have seen; and haste ye and bring down my father, hither. And he fell on his brother Benjamin's neck, and wept; and Benjamin wept on his neck. Moreover, he kissed all his 15 brethren and wept on them; and afterward, his brethren talked with him.

And it was reported in the house of Pharaoh, saying, Joseph's brethren are come; and it was pleasing to Pharaoh, and to 'all' his servants. And Pharaoh said to Joseph, 17 Say to thy brethren, This do ye; load your beasts, and depart, and go unto the land of Canaan. And take your father and your 18 households, and come to me; and I will give you the best of 'all' the land of Egypt; and the fat of the land ye shall eat. Now 19

CHAP. XLV. 3. They were so confounded] Their injustice to him, his power and splendour, and the circumstances in which they were, naturally produced this confusion. The tumult of various conflicting passions totally deprived them of the power of speech.

5. This address of Joseph was admirably calculated to soothe and to calm the minds of his brethren; to awaken their confidence and cherish their hopes. He forgave their sin against himself, and piously attributed their base deed, to an overruling providence.

10. Goshen] This is, in chap. xlvii. 11, called the land of Ramesses; but what particular region of Egypt it was, has been much disputed. That it was a country fit for pasturage, and on the eastern border of Egypt, is clear from the context. The Greek Alexandrian translators, who must have been acquainted with the geography of Egypt, have Genes of Arabia; and it was this which partly induced Michaelis to place Goshen on the side of Arabia. He thinks it extended from Raphia, on the border of Palestine, to the vicinity of Heliopolis.

11. And I will support thee] By affording sufficient supplies of corn, during the remaining years of famine.

12. Your eyes see] You have the strongest evidence that you are not deceived—the evidence of your own eyes and ears.

14. Fell on his neck and wept] Joseph manifested the greatest affection to his uterine brother, and this burst of tears, after an absence of twenty years, is the genuine expression of nature. 16. 18. (a) (v) Sept. Arab. 2 MSS.

18. The best of the land] This must be understood to signify, not the best land, absolutely considered, but the best for them as shepherds and herdsmen.

19. Wagons] This intimates, that nothing of this kind was used as yet in Canaan. The sight of these wagons might very obviously make a strong impression on Jacob's mind, and satisfy him, that what his sons told him was true.

thou art commanded to say to them, do this, Take with you wagons from the land of Egypt for your little ones, and for your wives, and take up your father, and come 20 down. Also regard not your furniture; for the best of all the land of Egypt shall be 21 yours. And the sons of Israel did so: and Joseph gave them wagons, according to the command of Pharaoh, and gave them pro-22 vision for the way. To every one of them he gave two suits of raiment; but to Benjamin, he gave three hundred pieces of 23 silver, and five suits of raiment. And to his father he sent, likewise, ten asses loaded with the best things of "the land of" Egypt, and ten she asses loaded with corn, and bread, and meat, for his father on the way.
24 So he sent away his brethren, and they departed; and he said to them, See that ye quarrel not on the way.
25 So they went up out of Egypt, and came into the land of Canaan, to Jacob their 26 father. And they told him, saying, Joseph is yet alive, and he is governor over all the land of Egypt. And Jacob's heart palpi-27 tated; though he believed them not. But when they told him all the words of Joseph, which he had said to them; and when he saw the wagons which Joseph had sent to carry him, the spirit of Jacob their father 28 revived. And Israel said, It is enough.
Joseph, my son, is yet alive. I will go and see him before I die.

CHAPTER XLVI.

B. C. 1707. Jacob, by a vision, encouraged to go down to Egypt; the number of his family; Joseph meeteth them.

- 1 AND Israel removed with all that belonged to him, and came to Beer-sheba, and offered sacrifices to the God of his father Isaac.
- 2 And God spoke to Israel in the visions of the night, and said, Jacob! Jacob! And
- 3 he said, Here am I. He then said, I am the mighty one, the God of thy father; fear not to go down into Egypt, for I will there

20. Your furniture] This may refer more particularly to their earthenware, and other cumbersome things, which could not be so easily conveyed to so great a distance.

22. Two suits of raiment] Some understand, 'splendid and valuable raiment.' The term שְׁלֵמִים refers to the upper garment. 23. (a) Sam. Syr.

24. Quarrel not] Do not provoke one another by mutual recriminations respecting me; but as I have forgiven you, forgive ye one another, and maintain affection and peace.

26. Palpitated] Some render, became chill; but this is not probable. An event so unexpected, to which he could not give full credit, yet could not fail strongly to agitate the heart of an affectionate father, and almost deprive him of the full exercise of his reason.

CHAP. XLVI. 1. To Beer-sheba] This was to the south of Hebron, and on the way to Egypt. Abraham dwelt here and built an altar, and planted tamarisk trees, Gen. xxi. 23. Here also Isaac had dwelt; chap. xxvi. 32, 33; and here now Jacob offers sacrifices to the God of his father; and he appeared to him, and sanctioned his descent into Egypt.

3. The mighty one] So may אֱלֹהִים be rendered as an appellative, and as here giving a strong reason to encourage the patriarch to expect the fulfilment of his promise.

4. Bring thee up] That is, bring up thy posterity; for Joseph is to close his eyes or perform the last kind office to his dear father.
5. Daughters] Jacob had but one daughter; and all must admit either an enallage of number, or an error of some scribe.
6. Jacob and his sons] These words are omitted with 1 MS. and internal evidence. It is clear, that they form no part of the text, but have been added, as the head of the following genealogy.
7. Ohad] In the parallel places, Numb. xvi. 12, and 1 Chron. xiv. 24, this name is wanting.
8. And the sons of Pharez] These could not be born when they went down to Egypt; and must have been added afterwards.
9. Jashub] This is the true reading. Job in Arabic has the same signification; and this error might creep in, by some one using the Arabic instead of the Hebrew term. (v) Sam.

make of thee a great nation. I will go down with thee into Egypt; and I will also bring thee up again: and Joseph shall close thine eyes.
Jacob then set out from Beer-sheba; and the sons of Israel carried their father Jacob, and their little ones, and their wives, in the wagons which Pharaoh had sent to carry them. And they took their cattle, and their wealth which they had acquired in the land of Canaan, and went into Egypt; Jacob, and all his seed with him. His sons, and his grandsons, his daughters, and his granddaughters; even all his seed brought he with him into Egypt.

And these are the names of the sons of Israel, who went into Egypt. Reuben, Jacob's first-born. And the sons of Reuben; Hanoch, and Phallu, and Hezron, and Carmi. And the sons of Simeon; Jemuel, and Jamin, and Ohad, and Jachin, and Zohar, and Shaul, the son of a Canaanitish woman.

And the sons of Levi; Gershon, Kohath, and Merari. And the sons of Judah; Er, and Onan, and Shelah, and Pharez, and Zarah: but Er and Onan died in the land of Canaan. [And the sons of Pharez were Hezron and Hamul]. And the sons of 13
Issachar; Tolah, and Phuvah, and 'Jashub,' and Shimron. And the sons of Zebulun; 14 Sered, and Elon, and Jahleel. These were 15 the sons of Leah, whom she bare to Jacob in Padan-aram, with his daughter Dinah. All the persons, sons and daughters, who sprung from Leah, were thirty-three.

And the sons of Gad; Ziphion, and 16
Haggi, and Shuni, and Ezbon, and Eri, and Arodi, and Areli. And the sons of Asher; 17
Jimnah, and Ishuah, and Isui, and Beriah, and Serah, their sister; [and the sons of Beriah; Heber, and Malchiel.] These were 18 the sons of Zilpah, whom Laban gave for an handmaid to his daughter Leah. And these she bare unto Jacob, sixteen persons.

CHAPTER XLVII.

19 The sons of Rachel, Jacob's wife, were 20 Joseph and Benjamin. [And unto Joseph, in the land of Egypt, were born Manasseh and Ephraim, whom Asenath the daughter of Potipherah, priest of On, bare to him.]
 21 And the sons of Benjamin were Belah, his first-born, and Ashbel, Gera, and Naaman, Ahiram, Shupham, and Hupham, and Ard.
 22 These were the sons of Rachel, who were born to Jacob. All the persons were fourteen.
 23 And the son of Dan was Hushim. And the sons of Naphtali, were Jahzeel, and Guni, 25 and Jezer, and Shilem. These were the sons of Bilhah, whom Laban gave for a handmaid to Rachel his daughter; and she bare these to Jacob. All the persons were 26 seven. All the persons that came with Jacob into Egypt, (that had come out of his loins,) besides Jacob's wives, all the 27 persons were sixty-six. And the sons of Joseph, who were born to him in Egypt, being two persons, all the persons of the house of Jacob, who came into Egypt, were seventy.
 28 Now Jacob sent Judah before him to Joseph, to request that he would meet him in Goshen; for to the land of Goshen he 29 was coming." And Joseph made ready his chariot, and went up to meet Israel his father, to Goshen; and presented himself to him, and fell on his neck, and wept on 30 his neck a good while. And Israel said to Joseph, Now I can die, since I have seen 31 thy face! since thou art alive! And Joseph said to his brethren, and to his father's house, I will go up, and inform Pharaoh, and say to him, My brethren, and my father's house, that were in the land of Canaan, are come to me. And the men are 32 shepherds, (for their occupation hath been to rear cattle,) and they have brought their flocks, and their herds, and all that belong-
 33 eth to them. And when Pharaoh shall call you, and say, What is your occupation?
 34 Then ye shall say, Thy servants have been occupied about cattle from our youth even until now; both ourselves and our fathers; to the end ye may dwell in the land of Goshen; for every shepherd is an abomination to the Egyptians.

20. The Sept. adds here five descendants of Manasseh and Ephraim, and makes the total number 75 persons, as is mentioned, Acts vii. 14.—Seventy] including Jacob and Joseph. 28. (v) Sam. Sept.

34. It is probable, that the reason why the Egyptians detested shepherds, was, that they often suffered from the predatory attacks of their neighbours the Arabians.

CHAP. XLVII. 2. So the Sam. reading, and וַיָּבֹא here, means nothing but from among, as the Sept. renders.

3. (a) Sam. Sept. Syr.

4. No pasture] This shows the cause of the famine to be the want of rain; so that the pastures were parched up; and the same cause might operate in reference to that part of Egypt overflowed by the Nile.

6. Men of ability] Pharaoh desires they may be pro-

B. C. 1706. Joseph presenteth some of his brethren and his father to Pharaoh; Joseph's policy towards the Egyptians; Jacob's age, &c.

THEN Joseph came and told Pharaoh, 1 and said, My father and my brethren, and their flocks, and their herds, and all that belongeth to them, are come from the land of Canaan; and, behold, they are in the land of Goshen. Now he had taken "with him," 2 from among his brethren, five men; and he presented them to Pharaoh. And Pharaoh 3 said "to Joseph's" brethren, What is your occupation? And they said to Pharaoh, Thy servants are shepherds, both ourselves and our fathers. They said moreover to Pharaoh, 4 To sojourn in the land are we come; for, so grievous is the famine in the land of Canaan, that there is no pasture for thy servants' flocks; now therefore, we pray thee, let thy servants dwell in the land of Goshen. And Pharaoh spoke to Joseph, saying, Thy 5 father and thy brethren are come to thee. The land of Egypt is before thee; in the 6 best of the land make thy father and brethren to dwell; in the land of Goshen let them dwell. And if thou know any men of ability among them, make them rulers over my cattle. And Joseph brought in his father Jacob, and presented him to Pharaoh. 7
 And Jacob blessed Pharaoh. And Pharaoh 8 said to Jacob, How many are the days of the years of thy life? And Jacob said to 9 Pharaoh, The days of the years of my sojourning, are one hundred and thirty years: few and evil have the days of the years of my life been, and have not attained unto the days of the years of the life of my fathers, in the days of their sojourning. Again Jacob 10 blessed Pharaoh, and went out from his presence.

And Joseph settled his father and his 11 brethren, and gave them a possession in the land of Egypt; in the best of the land, in the land of Rameses, as Pharaoh had commanded. And Joseph supported his father, 12 and his brethren, and all his father's household, with bread, according to their families.

Now there was no food in all the land; 13 for so grievous was the famine, that the moted to such a situation, as their previous habits and qualifications made suitable.

7. Blessed Pharaoh] That is, saluted him, praying for his welfare, and giving thanks for his bounty and kindness.

9. Sojourning] The patriarch considers a man in this world but as a traveller, who visits a distant country, and tarries but a short season at a place. He is a sojourner, not an abiding inhabitant. The image is striking, and ought to remind us, that we should be travelling forwards to the land of eternal rest.

11. See Note, chap. xlv. 10. The Alexandrian Jews who translated the Hebrew, seem to have used Rameses as synonymous with Goshen. Perhaps the district might be thus called, in their time, from the city of Rameses, which the children of Israel were compelled to build, Exod. i. 11.

land of Egypt, and the land of Canaan, were distressed by reason of the famine.

14 And Joseph collected all the money that was found in the land of Egypt, and in the land of Canaan, for the corn which they bought; and Joseph brought the money 15 into Pharaoh's house. And when money failed in the land of Egypt, [and in the land of Canaan,] all the Egyptians came to Joseph, and said, Give us food; for why should we die in thy presence, though the 16 money fail. And Joseph said, Give to me your cattle; and I will give you "food" in exchange for your cattle, since money fail- 17 eth. So they brought their cattle to Joseph; and Joseph gave them food in exchange for the horses, and for the flocks, and for the herds, and for the asses; and he granted them food in exchange for all their 18 cattle that year. When that year was ended, they came to him the next year, and one said to him, It is not hidden from my lord, how that our money is spent; my lord hath also got our herds of cattle; there is not aught left in the sight of my lord, 19 but our bodies, and our lands. Why should we die before thine eyes, or our land lie desolate? Buy us and our land, in exchange for food, and we and our land will be subject to Pharaoh. Give us seed only that we may live and not die; and that the land 20 may not be desolate. Thus Joseph bought the whole land of Egypt for Pharaoh; for the Egyptians sold every man his field, because the famine prevailed over them. So the land became the property of Pharaoh.

21 And the people he "made servants," from one extremity of Egypt even to the other. 22 Only the land of the priests he bought not; for the priests had a portion assigned them from Pharaoh, and were sustained by the portion which Pharaoh gave them; there- 23 fore they sold not their lands. Then Joseph said to the people, Behold, I have bought you this day, and your land, for Pharaoh. Here is seed for you, that ye 24 may sow the land. But of the increase, ye shall give the fifth part to Pharaoh; and four parts shall be your own, for seed for the field, and for your own food, and for food for your households, and your little ones. And they said, Thou hast saved our 25 lives; let us find favour in the sight of my lord, and we will be Pharaoh's servants. And Joseph made it a law over the land of 26 Egypt, which continues to this day, that Pharaoh should have the fifth part of the produce; except of the land of the priests, which became not the property of Pharaoh.

Thus Israel dwelt in the land of Egypt, 27 in the country of Goshen; and they had possessions therein, and increased and multiplied exceedingly. And Jacob lived in 28 the land of Egypt seventeen years; so that the whole age of Jacob was a hundred and forty-seven years. And the time drew near 29 that Israel must die; and he called for his son Joseph, and said to him, If now I have found favour in thy sight, put, I pray thee, thine hand under my thigh, and deal kindly and truly with me. Bury me not, I pray thee, in Egypt; For with my fathers I 30 would lie. Thou shalt, therefore, carry me out of Egypt, and bury me in their burying-place. And he answered, I will do as thou hast said. And Israel said, Swear to me. 31 And he swore to him. And Israel bowed himself, leaning on 'his staff.'

CHAPTER XLVIII.

B. C. 1689. Joseph with his sons visits his sick father; he adopts Ephraim and Manasseh, and blesseth them; and assigns them a peculiar portion of the land of Canaan.

AND after these things, it was told Joseph 1 Behold, thy father is sick. So he took with him his two sons, Manasseh and Ephraim, "and went to Jacob." And one told Jacob, 2 and said, Behold, thy son Joseph is come to thee. Then Israel exerted his strength, and sat on the bed. And Jacob said to 3 Joseph, God, the Almighty, appeared to me at Luz, in the land of Canaan, and blessed me, And said to me, Behold, I will make 4 thee fruitful, and multiply thee, and I will

15. And in the land of Canaan] Though this be in all the copies, it has the appearance of an interpolation.

17. Their cattle] It is probable that their cattle were supported from the stores laid up in the cities, and thus preserved, and after restored to them. So that this was a wise and prudent measure.

18. To him the next year] Literally, the second year; but this denotes, not the second of the famine, but the second after their money was spent. This was the last of the famine.

21. He made servants] This reading of the Sam. Sept. and Vulg. is entitled to preference. The inconveniences attending such a removal from one city to another, must be obvious to every one; and it will be difficult to assign any politic or good ends for such a removal.

22. According to Herodotus, the land of Egypt was divided into three parts, one of which belonged to the priests; and from the produce they provided what was necessary for the sacred rites. Thus long after the times of Joseph the same privilege was attached to this body.

24. The justice and the wisdom of this policy of Joseph have been called in question. It may be said, that they must have contributed some other way to the expenses of the state, and that it is highly probable, the claims of the crown, before this time, were not certain or defined, and that in such cases, the people often suffer more, and are subject to greater exactions, than those which Joseph now appointed.

29, 30. See note, chap. xxiv. 2.

31. (v) Sept. Heb. xi. 21.

CHAP. XLVIII. 1. And went to Jacob] This is implied in the present text, and the Sept. yet retains it.

3. Appeared to me] Jacob here speaks of God's appearing to him at Bethel, after his return from Padan-Aram, chap. xxxix. 9, and not of what is mentioned, chap. xxviii. 12, &c.

make of thee a numerous people; and this land will I give to "thee and" to thy seed 5 after thee, for a perpetual possession. And now thy two sons, Ephraim and Manasseh, who were born to thee in the land of Egypt, before I came unto thee into Egypt, are mine; as Reuben and Simeon, they shall 6 be mine. And thy progeny, which thou begetteth after them, shall be thine; and they shall be called after the name of their 7 two eldest brethren in their inheritance. For, when I came from Padan-aram," Rachel, "thy mother," died by me in the land of Canaan, on the way to Ephrath, and when but a little distance from it; and I buried her there on the way to Ephrath; (the same is now Bethlehem.)
 8 And Israel beheld Joseph's sons, and said,
 9 Who are these? And Joseph said to his father, These are my sons, whom God hath given me in this place. And Israel said, Bring them, I pray thee, to me, that I may 10 bless them. Now the eyes of Israel were so dim for age, that he could not see clearly. And he brought them near to him; and he 11 kissed them, and embraced them. And Israel said to Joseph, I once thought, that I should never see thy face; and, lo! God 12 hath shewn me also thy seed! And Joseph brought them out from between his father's knees, and they bowed themselves with 13 their faces to the ground." And Joseph took them both, and brought them near to him; Ephraim in his right hand, towards Israel's left hand, and Manasseh in his left 14 hand, towards Israel's right hand. And Israel stretched out his right hand, and laid it upon the head of Ephraim, though he was the younger; and his left hand upon the head of Manasseh, (intentionally so directing his hands,) though Manasseh was 15 the first-born. And he blessed "the sons of" Joseph, and said, God, before whom my fathers, Abraham and Isaac, walked; the God who hath fed me all my life long unto this 16 day; The Angel who hath redeemed me from every evil, bless "these" lads; and may my name be named on them, and the name of my fathers, Abraham and Isaac; and may they increase abundantly in the midst of the earth. And when Joseph saw that his fa- 17 ther had laid his right hand upon the head of Ephraim, it displeased him; and he raised the hand of his father, to remove it from the head of Ephraim, to the head of Manasseh. And Joseph said to his father, Not 18 so, my father: for this is the first-born; put thy right hand upon his head. But his 19 father refused, and said, I know it, my son, I know it. He also shall become a people, and shall also be great; but truly his younger brother shall be greater than he; and his seed shall become the head of many tribes. And he blessed them that day, say- 20 ing, From you shall the sons of Israel bless, saying, May God make thee as Ephraim and as Manasseh. So he set Ephraim be- fore Manasseh.

And Israel said to Joseph, Behold I am 21 about to die; but God shall be with you, and bring you again unto the land of your fathers. Moreover, I give to thee one por- 22 tion above thy brethren, which I took out of the hand of the Amorite, with my sword and with my bow.

CHAPTER XLIX.

B. C. 1689. Jacob on his death-bed blesseth all his sons and predicts their future condition; he chargeth them to bury him in the sepulchre of his fathers.

THEN Jacob called to his sons, and said, 1 Assemble, that I may tell you, what shall befall you in the latter days.

Assemble, and hear, ye sons of Jacob! 2 Yea, hearken to Israel your father.

REUBEN! my first-born wast thou; 3 The beginning of my vigour and strength; Superior in excellence—superior in power! Unstable as water, thou shalt not excel 4 Because thou ascendedst thy father's bed:—Ascending my couch, then wast thou de-graded.

4. (a) Sept. Vulg.
 5. They shall be mine] That is, they shall be heads of tribes, and have a share in the inheritance of Canaan, among my other children; but any other children of Joseph's should be reckoned, as belonging to the tribes of Ephraim and Manasseh.

7. Rosenmuller considers Jacob in this verse assigning a reason for adopting Joseph's two sons, to honour the memory of Rachel, his beloved wife, whom he had buried on the way to Ephrath. (a) Sam. Sept.

10. Could not see clearly] Dean Pilkington has properly observed, that this adverb frequently means, not only, or scarcely, or rather than. To understand it as an absolute negative, here, is to make the writer contradict what he has stated verse 8th.

12. They bowed themselves] This reading, which makes the lads bow down to Jacob, after he had embraced them, and not Joseph, is more agreeable to the design of the narrative, and the customs of Egypt. (v) Sam. Sept. 1 MS.

15. Hath fed me] That is, tended and fed me as a shepherd does his flock. Compare Psalm xxiii. 1. (a) Sept. Vulg.

16. The angel] He refers to the angel with whom he wrestled, chap. xxxii. 24, and whom he regards as a deliverer. This was the angel God or Jehovah. See verse 30. (a) Versions.

19. The head of many tribes] This, doubtless, refers to the future pre-eminence of Ephraim, who should become the head of the ten tribes.

22. One portion] Geddes says, from chap. xxxiii. 19, we learn that Jacob bought a piece of land from Hamor at Shechem; to which he no doubt here alludes.

CHAP. XLIX. 4. Unstable] Some render, 'teemed, swelling with pride, like water, &c.'—Degraded] Literally profaned. By this shameful deed, Reuben lost the birth-right, which naturally rendered him superior in excellence and power. The Sam. Version is adopted and the Arabic, in considering חללה in the passive voice.

- 5 SIMEON and LEVI are brethren ;
They 'accomplished' by violence their schemes.
- 6 Enter not, my soul, into their counsel ;
Join not, mine honour, their assembly.
For in their anger they slew the men,
And in their self-will cut off the princes.
- 7 Accursed be their anger, for it was fierce ;
And their wrath, for it was cruel !
I will divide them in Jacob !
And disperse them in Israel.
- 8 JUDAH ! thee, thee shall thy brethren praise ; [hand ;
On the neck of thine enemies shall be thine
To thee, thy father's children shall bow down.
- 9 Like a youthful lion is Judah ;
From the prey, my son, thou returnest.
When, like a lion bending, he coucheth,
Or like a lioness,—who shall rouse him ?
- 10 A sceptred chief shall not depart from Judah,
Nor a judge from his own offspring,
Until the SHILOH come,
And to him the nations shall be obedient.
- 11 To the vine he shall bind his ass ;
And to the choice vine his ass's colt ;
He shall wash his raiment in wine,
And his clothing in the blood of the grape :
- 12 His eyes shall be red with wine,
And his teeth made white with milk.
- 13 ZEBULON, by a haven of the sea shall dwell ;

- Yea, he shall dwell by a haven fit for ships ;
And unto Sidon shall his border extend.
- ISSACHAR is like a strong ass, 14
That coucheth between the boundaries.
For he seeth that his resting-place is good, 15
And the land allotted to him, pleasant ;
So he bendeth his shoulder to the burden,
And he becometh a tributary servant.
- DAN shall administer justice to his people, 16
As one of the sceptred chiefs of Israel.
Dan shall be a serpent on the way ; 17
A Cerastes in the path,
That biteth the heels of the horse
And backward falleth his rider.
I have waited for thy salvation, O Jehovah. 18
- GAD, though troops shall invade him, 19
Yet shall he invade them in the rear.
- ASHER, of the best kind shall be his food ; 20
And dainties for kings shall he afford.
- NAPHTALI is a spreading turpentine-tree, 21 Producing beautiful branches.
- A FRUITFUL stem is JOSEPH, 22
A fruitful stem by a fountain ;
Whose branches shoot over the wall.
Though the archers greatly aggrieved him, 23
'Contended with him, and harassed him ;'
Yet his bow retained its force, 24
And strong were his arms and his hands ;'
Through the power of the mighty one of Jacob,

5. They accomplished] This reading of the Sam. Sept. Targ. gives a sense, suitable to the context ; and it is so slight a variation in the original, כלי for כל, that there can be no doubt it is the genuine one. The word rendered in the common version, habitation, a sense which the versions do not countenance, denotes their scheme, their stratagem, in proposing to the Shechemites submission to circumcision as the condition of a permanent union with them ; when their real design was to fall on them and destroy them.—Cut off the prince] See note Heb. Bible, and ch. xxxiv. 25—29.

7. I will divide them] That is, I am influenced to say in the name of God, 'I will divide, &c.' So we find they were afterwards dispersed among the other tribes ; yet this curse was turned to a blessing, Deut. xxxiii. 9, 10.

8. Judah, thee, thee] It is an idiom of the Hebrew, as Schultens has observed, to use both the pronoun and the affix for greater emphasis. Compare 1 Sam. xxv. 24 ; Ps. ix. 7 ; Hosea viii. 6. There is a paronomasia on the name Judah, which signifies 'praise,' chap. xxix. 35. This tribe, we see, enjoyed, in fact, the pre-eminence. See Numb. x. 14 ; Judg. i. 2, &c. iii. 11.

10. Sceptred chief] It is evidently the design of Jacob to show the future glory of the tribe of Judah ; and no expressions ought to be interpreted in a sense contrary to this design.—The שׂטן, sceptre, is taken in a lower sense than royal power, and denotes only the power of judgment. See verse 16, and Judg. v. 14. Hence the sense is, 'Judah shall enjoy authority as one of the tribes of Israel, shall live under his own laws, and shall have judges of his own offspring,' (for in this sense I understand גִּבּוֹר רִגְלִי, 'to enforce power.'—Nor a judge)] Strictly speaking, the Jews never had any Law-giver but Moses under God the Supreme Law-giver. Hence the Chaldee renders, a scribe, the Syriac, a teacher, and the Septuagint, a leader. The kings of Israel were bound by the same laws as the people. Deuteronomy xvii. 18. See Bishop Newton on the place.—Until the Shiloh come] The best Jewish and Christian expositors understand this as a name of Messiah, denoting, 'he who gives or makes peace.' The following clause seems to support the sense ; as well as the order and construction of the original words.—Be obedient] Literally, 'And to him shall be the obedience of nations.'

11, 12. This represents the fertility of the land which fell to the lot of this tribe, so that wine and milk should abound like water.

14. Boundaries] Jerom thus rendered here and Judg. v. 16, and this sense is most suitable. Others render, bars, and Green, stall—The lot of Issachar lay in a fine vale, on the north and south, surrounded by a chain of high ground, to which the term may allude.

15. Becometh a tributary servant] This is highly characteristic of a patient laborious people, addicted to the culture of the ground, and willing to pay tribute to their more warlike neighbours, rather than have their own repose disturbed.

16, 17. As one of the sceptred] He shall not be inferior to the other tribes—Bochart has proved, that lies concealed the Cerastes, which is about two feet long, and lies concealed in the sand ; and often when the horse is passing on, darts around one of his fore-legs ; and bites so dreadfully as to make the horse rise on his hind legs, and throw his rider backward, who then falls a prey to this venomous and destructive kind of serpent. This intimates, that the Danites would be an artful people, and yet formidable in their attacks.

19. There is a play on the name Gad, through the whole verse, which cannot be given in a version. The patriarch predicts his future prosperity, compare chap. xxx. 11, and that he should be contiguous to hostile hordes, yet he should be successful in repelling their attacks ; defeating and pursuing them, 1 Chron. v. 18.

21. The version given is that of the Greek translators, whom Bochart hath followed and illustrated. It arises from pronouncing the Hebrew words differently ; and represents the fecundity of this tribe, and the fertility of the land it should possess.

22, 23. Though the archers] The metaphor applied to Joseph is beautiful and appropriate, nor is this less so, by which his unnatural brethren are characterised. Like archers they shot at him and pierced him, but through the power of God he was preserved. (v) Sam. 24. (v) Sept. Vulg.

Through the name of the shepherd—the rock of Israel; [thee;
15 Through the God of thy father, who helped Through the Almighty who blessed thee.
May the blessings of the heavens from above,
The blessings of the low-lying deep,
The blessings of the breasts and of the womb,
16 The blessings of thy father "and thy mother,"
With the blessings of the eternal "mountains,"
The desirable things of the everlasting hills, Abound and rest on the head of Joseph
On the crown of the chief among his brethren!
7 BENJAMIN shall raven as a wolf.
In the morning he shall devour the prey;
And at night he shall tear the spoil.
8 These twelve were all chiefs of Israel; and this is what their father spoke to them, when he blessed them; every one of them he 9 blessed according to his own blessing. And he charged them, and said unto them, I am about to be gathered to my people. Bury me with my fathers, in the cave which is in 10 the field of Ephron the Hethite; In the cave which is in the field of Machpelah, opposite to Mamre, in the land of Canaan; which Abraham bought together with the field, of Ephron the Hethite, for a burying-11 place possession. There they buried Abraham and Sarah his wife; there they buried Isaac and Rebekah his wife; and there I 2 buried Leah. Both the field and the cave in it were a purchase from the Hethites.
3 And when Jacob had made an end of charging his sons, he gathered up his feet into the bed, and expired; and was gathered to his people. And Joseph fell upon his father's face, and wept upon him, and kissed him.

CHAPTER L.

C. 1689. The mourning for Jacob; his funeral; Joseph consoles his brethren; and, after a long life, foretells their return to Canaan; dies, and charges them concerning his bones.

THEN Joseph commanded his servants, the physicians, to embalm his father; and the physicians embalmed Israel. And when forty days were fulfilled for him, (for so many days were spent in embalming,) then the Egyptians mourned for him seventy days. And when the days of mourning for him were past, Joseph spoke to the house of Pharaoh, saying, If now I have found favour in your eyes, speak, I pray you, in the ears of Pharaoh, saying, My father, "before he died," made me swear, saying, Lo! I am about to die; in my own sepulchre, which I have digged for myself in the land of Canaan, shalt thou bury me. Now therefore, let me go up, I pray thee, and bury my father, "as he made me swear," and I will return. And Pharaoh said, Go up and bury thy father, according as he made thee swear.

And Joseph went up to bury his father; and with him went up all the servants of Pharaoh, the elders of his house, and all the elders of the land of Egypt; And all the household of Joseph and his brethren, and his father's household: only their little ones, and their flocks, and their herds left they in the land of Goshen. And there went up with him both chariots and horsemen, so that they made a very great host. And they came to the threshing-floor of Atad, which is beyond the Jordan, and there they mourned with a great and very grievous lamentation; for Joseph there made a mourning of seven days for his father. And when the inhabitants of the land, the Canaanites, saw the mourning at the threshing-floor of Atad, they said, A grievous mourning is this to the Egyptians. Therefore the name of the place, (which is beyond the Jordan,) was called Abel-mizraim [THE MOURNING OF THE EGYPTIANS]. Now the sons of Jacob did as he had charged them. For his sons carried him into the land of Canaan, and buried him in the cave of the field of Machpelah, which Abraham bought together with the field, for a burying-place possession, of Ephron the Hethite, opposite Mamre. And Joseph, after he had buried his father, returned into Egypt; he and his brethren,

21. Mountains] This reading is justly preferred to the et as parallel with the next line or hemistich. The remaining part of this benediction is delightful, and surpasses any thing of the kind. How ample and fine a description of Mount-Ephraim and Mount-Gilead, and the territories of the 12 tribes! Every earthly blessing is here accumulated, at the heart of man can desire:—dews from the heavens—rings from the earth—fish from the seas and lakes—a numerous offspring, both of children and of cattle—a fertile & salubrious soil—peaceful days and lasting prosperity—all wished for Joseph, by his affectionate dying father.) Sam. Sept. (v) Sam. Sept. 8 MSS.

27. He shall tear] Teller renders phl shall tear, as vile does not agree to the Wolf, to which the tribe of Benjamin is compared.

28. Chiefs] So the context leads us to understand עשר re; for as yet they had not become tribes.

CHAP. L. 1. This act of Joseph shows his filial piety, & is extremely natural.

3. It was used for forty days to be spent in embalming, and for the body to be laid in nitre for thirty more; and Calmet supposes, that in the seventy days which the Egyptians mourned for Jacob, the forty first mentioned, are included.

4. Joseph could not approach Pharaoh himself on account of the death of his father; and hence applied for leave, through some of the officers of the court.

5. It has been observed, that Jacob being interred in the cave of Machpelah which Abraham bought, there is here some error; but to this it may be replied, that it is highly probable, that Jacob had dug a place for himself, in that vast cave which the Patriarch had purchased of the sons of Heth. (a) Sam. Sept.

7. Elders of his house] These were the chief officers; for elder here does not denote age, but dignity and rank. So the elders of the land signify the chief magistrates of the cities.

10. The threshing floor of Atad] Jerom describes this place as about three miles from Jericho, and two from the Jordan.

and all who had gone up with him to bury his father.

- 15 And Joseph's brethren were afraid when their father was dead, and they said, Will 'not Joseph persecute us, and return to us' 16 all the evil which we did to him? And they sent a messenger to Joseph, saying, Thy father before he died, charged us, saying, 17 Thus shall ye say to Joseph, Forgive, I pray thee, now, the trespass of thy brethren and their sin, though they did evil to thee. And now, we pray thee, forgive the trespass of the servants of the God of thy father. And Joseph wept when they thus spoke to him. 18 And his brethren went and fell down before him, and said, Behold, we are thy servants. 19 And Joseph said to them, Fear not, for I 20 also 'revere' God. That which ye devised for evil against me, God devised for good; that he might accomplish his purpose, as it appears this day, in preserving alive many people. Now, therefore, be not afraid. I 21 will support both you and your little ones. Thus he comforted them, and spoke kindly to them.

And Joseph dwelt in Egypt, he, and his 22 father's house. And Joseph lived a hundred and ten years. And Joseph saw Ephraim's 23 grand-children. The children of Machir also, the sons of Manasseh, were born 'in the days of Joseph.' And Joseph said to 24 his brethren, I am about to die; but God will surely visit you, and bring you out of this land, into the land which he swore that he would give to Abraham, to Isaac, and to Jacob. And Joseph took an oath of the 25 sons of Israel, saying, God will surely visit you, and my bones ye shall carry up hence 'with you.' So Joseph died, being a hun- 26 dred and ten years old; and they embalmed him, and he was put in a coffin in Egypt.

15. Were afraid] This version depends on the pronunciation of the original term, as it may be derived either from רָאָה to see, or פָּחַד he feared. The versions derive from the latter, as more agreeable to the context and scope of the writer. So Dean Pilkington renders. I follow also the Sam. Text, supported by the Sept. in the next clause. (v) Sam.

16—18. Whether this was an invention of Joseph's brethren or not it is impossible to determine. The circumstance strongly expresses their conscious guilt.—The servants of the] This was designed to move his compassion, by reminding him of their relation to the same

God. They offer to become slaves to him, provided he thought proper.

19—21. This address of Joseph equally discovers his forgiving temper, and the just views he had of that wonderful providence, which had overruled his sufferings, to accomplish the most interesting and benevolent designs. (o) Sam. MS. Sept. Arab.

23. The common text is here obviously erroneous, as no just sense can be elicited from it. Happily the Sam. has preserved the true lection, which is followed. (v) Sam.

EXODUS.

INTRODUCTION.

The title of the second Book of Moses is likewise descriptive of its contents. The word Exodus is derived from the Septuagint, and means going out or departure; and the book, after giving some account of the oppression of the Israelites, relates the call of Moses, the miracles he wrought, and the departure of the people from Egypt. It gives us also an account of their passage of the Red Sea, and journeys to mount Sinai; of the solemn promulgation of the law, and the appointment and erection of the Tabernacle. It contains the history of about 145 years, beginning at the death of Joseph, and ending at the commencement of the first year from their departure out of Egypt.

From the Book itself, we might infer, that it was written either by Moses or by some one he employed; as the transactions are described with a particularity, and in such terms as manifest that the writer was present, and a witness of them. It is quoted as the work of Moses, by David, Daniel, and other sacred writers. It is cited also by heathen writers, Palemon, Manetho, Trogus Pompeius, and Tacitus.

CHAPTER I.

B. C. 1635. The children of Israel multiply; oppressed by a new king; the midwives commanded to kill their male children; but they preserve them; Pharaoh orders them to be cast into the river.

- 1 Now these were the names of the sons of Israel, who went into Egypt, with Jacob 'their father;' each one and his household 2 went. Reuben, Simeon, Levi, and Judah; 3 Issachar, Zebulun, and Benjamin; Dan, Naphtali, Gad, and Asher. And all the 5 persons sprung from the loins of Jacob, with Joseph who was already in Egypt, were seventy. And Joseph and all his 6 brethren, and all that generation died; But 7 the children of Israel were fruitful, and increased abundantly, and multiplied, and became exceedingly strong; so that the land was filled with them.

Now there arose a new king over Egypt, 8

CHAP. I. 1. (a) Sept. 5. Seventy] The Greek here, as Gen. xlv. 27, has seventy-five. See note there.

7. Were fruitful] Dwelling in one of the most fruitful parts of Egypt, which ever has been a land of abundance.

the Israelites increased in an astonishing manner. Maillet says that the females, both of the human species and of animals, exceed all others in the world in fruitfulness.

8. A new king] Expositors consider מֶלֶךְ as denoting a

9 who knew not Joseph. And he said to his people, Behold, the people of Israel are more numerous and stronger than we.
 10 Come let us treat them artfully, so that they may not multiply; lest it should come to pass, when war occur, that they join themselves to our enemies, and fight against us, and get out of the land. So 'he' set over them task-masters to oppress them with their burdens; and they built for Pharaoh store-cities, Pithom and Rameses.
 12 But the more they oppressed them the more they multiplied and spread. And the Egyptians were alarmed on account of the Israelites; And they made the Israelites serve with rigour. And they made their lives bitter with hard labour in mortar and in brick, and with every kind of labour in the field; all their service, wherein they made them serve, was with rigour.
 15 And the king of Egypt spoke to the Hebrew midwives, (of whom the name of one was Shiprah, and the name of the other Puah.) And he said, when ye do the office of a midwife to the Hebrew women, then ye shall inspect the cisterns; and if the child be a son, ye shall kill him; but if a daughter, let her live. But the midwives feared God, and did not as the king of Egypt commanded them, but let the male children live. And the king of Egypt called for the midwives, and said to them, Why have ye done this thing, and saved the male children alive? And the midwives said to Pharaoh, Truly the Hebrew women are not like the Egyptian women; for they are more vigorous and are delivered ere the midwives come in to them. Thus God favoured the midwives; and the people multiplied, and became very strong. And because the midwives feared God, he prospered their own families. Then Pharaoh commanded all his people, saying, Every son that is born to the Hebrews ye shall cast into the river; but every daughter ye shall let live.

CHAPTER II.

B. C. 1571. Moses born, and exposed on the Nile; found by Pharaoh's daughter, and brought up for her; he slayeth an Egyptian, and is obliged to fly into Midian, where he marries.

Now there went a man of the family of Levi, and took for a wife a daughter of Levi. And the woman conceived, and bare a son; and when she saw that he was a beautiful child, she hid him three months. But when "his mother" could no longer hide him, she took for him an ark made of papyrus, and daubed it with bitumen and with pitch, and put the child in it, and laid it among the sedges, by the brink of the river. And his sister stood afar off, that she might know what would be done to him.

Now the daughter of Pharaoh came down to wash herself at the river; and her maidens walked along by the river's side; and when she saw an ark among the sedges, she sent her handmaid to fetch it. And when she king of another race, one who had conquered Egypt, deposed the ancient kings, and laid the foundation of a new dynasty. Josephus, from Manetho, has mentioned the conquest of Egypt by a race of adventurers. See Shuckford's Connexion, vol. ii. p. 296.

10. Let us treat them artfully] The Sept. gives this sense of the term. Compare Acts vii. 19.—Get out of the land] This clearly indicates, that the Israelites did not conceal their intention of leaving Egypt, and returning to Canaan.

11. Task-masters] So the Sept. renders, and what follows supports this sense. Compare 1 Kings v. 13.—And they built, or fortified, for the term is employed to denote both.—Pithom] is thought to be the place which Herodotus calls Patumus, and not far distant from the Arabic Gulf.—Rameses] some consider as the same with Pelusium, which is called. Ezek. xxx. 15, 'the strength of Egypt;' but this is contested. (n) Sept. and Vulg.

12. Here alarmed] The context supports this sense of the word קָצַץ: for it is evident they were more than vexed, or grieved—they were alarmed at their growing numbers, and apprehensive of a revolt.

14. In mortar and in brick] That is, in making mortar into bricks.

15, 16. The command of Pharaoh is at once a proof of his fear and his cruelty. It is difficult to ascertain what is the sense of עַל הָאֲבָנִים, rendered in the common version upon the stools. It is allowed, that אֲבָנִים denotes stones, and in Exod. vii. 19, stone-cisterns; and why may it not here have the same sense? If this idea be admitted, there is a reference to the eastern custom of washing new-born infants; and when the midwives performed this part of their office, they were to put the male children to death.

19. More vigorous] The word חַיִּיתוּ will admit this sense, and it is more suitable than lively; nor is it improbable, that this assertion was, at least, in most instances strictly true. For it is well known, that women inured to hard labour have but little pain in child-bearing, compared to those who are accustomed to ease.

21. Prospered their own families] That בית denotes household, or family, is generally admitted; and that פָּשַׁע has the sense attributed, see Isa. v. 4; and xxxvii. 31.

22. Let live] This order implies that the Hebrew females were preferred; and it is certain they were fairer and more beautiful than the Egyptian women. It has been supposed this edict did not continue long in force, as the male race must have been destroyed if the edict referred to the people as well as to the chiefs. (a) Sam. Sept.

CHAP. II. 2. Beautiful] The term has this sense Gen. xli. 22, and often elsewhere. Stephen says, 'He was divinely beautiful,' Acts vii. 20. This is mentioned as one reason, why his mother endeavoured to conceal him.

3. She took] That is, prepared an ark, or small vessel, which might float on the water. This term, תֵּבָה, Forster considers of Egyptian origin, formed from tau, a ship, and ba, a branch. The papyrus is a very thirsty plant, that grows in marshy ground on the banks of rivers. A considerable part of it is under water; and it grows to the height of nine or ten feet. The pith or marrow of the stalk was used for food; the ligneous parts were constructed into arks and small ships; and the bark was made into paper. (a) Sam. Sept.

5. The daughter of Pharaoh] Josephus calls her, Thermutis, and others, Meris, who is said to have been married, but not to have had any children. Harmer conjectures, that she came to express her devotion to the river as the source of fruitfulness and plenty.

6. The daughter of Pharaoh] This addition to the common text seems here necessary to remove the ambiguity; and the next verse supports it. (a) Sam. Sept.

- opened it, she saw the child in it; and, behold the babe wept. And 'the daughter of Pharaoh' had compassion on him, and said, This is one of the children of the Hebrews.
- 7 Then said his sister to Pharaoh's daughter, Shall I go and call to thee a nurse of the Hebrew women, who may nurse the child for thee? And Pharaoh's daughter said to her, Go. And the damsel went and called the child's own mother. And Pharaoh's daughter said to her, Take away this child, and nurse it for me, and I will give thee thine hire. And the woman took the child, and nursed him. And the child grew, and being weaned she brought him to Pharaoh's daughter, and he became her son; and she called his name Moses [ONE DRAWN OUT OF THE WATER]; because said she, Out of the water I drew him.
- 11 Now it was in those days, when Moses was grown up, that he went forth to his brethren, and saw their oppressions; and he spied an Egyptian smiting an Hebrew, one of his own brethren; And he looked this way and that, and when he saw no man by, he slew the Egyptian, and hid him in the sand. And he went out a second day, when, behold, two men, Hebrews, were fighting; and he said to the aggressor, 14 Wherefore smitest thou thy neighbour? But he said, Who made thee a prince and a judge over us? Intendest thou to kill me, as thou killedst the "other day" the Egyptian? Moses was, therefore, afraid, and said, Surely this thing is known.
- 15 Now when Pharaoh heard of this thing, he sought to slay Moses. But Moses fled from the face of Pharaoh, and 'went into' the land of Midian; and he sat down by a well. Now a priest of Midian had seven daughters; and they came and drew water, and filled the troughs to water their father's flock. And certain shepherds came, and would have driven them away; but Moses stood up and defended them, and watered their flocks. And when they came to Raguel their grandfather, he said, How is it that ye are come so soon to-day? And they 19 said, An Egyptian delivered us out of the hand of the shepherds; and also continued drawing for us, until he had watered the flocks. And he said to his daughters, And 20 where is he? Why have ye thus left the man? Call him, that he may eat bread. And Moses consented to dwell with the 21 man; and he gave to Moses Zipporah his granddaughter "for a wife." And she "conceived" and bare to him a son; and he called his name Gershom [A STRANGER HERE]; because, said he, I am a stranger in a foreign land. "And she bare to him another son whose name he called Eliezer [GOD MY HELP]; because, said he, the God of my father hath helped me, and delivered me from the sword of Pharaoh."

Now after many days, the king of Egypt 23 died; yet the Israelites groaned on account of their bondage; and they cried, and their cry, on account of their bondage, went up to God. And God heard their groaning; 24 and he remembered his covenant with Abraham, with Isaac, and with Jacob. And God 25 looked upon the Israelites; and he had respect to them.

CHAPTER III.

B. C. 1491. Moses tends Jethro's flocks; God appeareth to him in a burning bush, and sendeth him to deliver Israel; the message which God sendeth to Israel.

Now Moses kept the flock of Jethro, his 1 father-in-law, a priest of Midian; and he led the flock to the extremity of the wilderness, and came to the great mountain of Horeb. And the angel Jehovah appeared to him in 2 a flame of fire, from amidst a bush of thorns; and he looked, and, behold, the bush was not consumed. And Moses said, I will now 3 turn aside, and view this great sight; why it is that the bush is not burnt. And when 4 Jehovah saw that he turned aside to view,

10. And she brought him] It was usual in Egypt to nurse children till they were three years old; and it is most probable that his mother delivered up her dear charge at this period, when he was weaned.—He became her son] She adopted him, and he was educated as one of royal birth. Stephen informs us, that he was brought up at court, and learned in all the wisdom of the Egyptians.

11. In those days] In scripture this phrase denotes a period considerably remote from that of prior occurrences. Moses, according to Stephen, Acts vii. 23, was 40 years old, when he went to visit his brethren, Heb. xi. 24—27.

12. He slew the Egyptian] If, as is probable, the Egyptian had slain the Israelite, Moses did only what even the law of Egypt enjoined, according to Diodorus Siculus, Gen. ix. 6. Stephen says, Acts vii. 25, he supposed that the Israelites by this, would have known that he was to deliver them. 14. (a) Sept. 15. (v) Syr. Arab.

16. A Priest] or Prince, for the term כֹּהֵן denotes either; and I incline to believe the latter, the true sense. This priest or prince was Raguel, and according to the reading of the Sept. Jethro was his son. From a comparison of all the places where these relations of Moses are mentioned. Geddes concludes Raguel was the father of Jethro, whose daughter Moses married; and that Hobab was most probably the son of Jethro, who accompanied the Israelites through the wilderness. Compare chap. iii. 1; iv. 18; and Numb. x. 29. 21. (a) Sam. Sept. Syr. Arab.

22. I have translated from chap. xviii. 4. on the authority of Syr. Vulg. Arab. the account of Eliezer, as being more suitable to the context here, than there. The 20th verse of the 4th chapter mentions sons, which justifies the transposition.

CHAP. III. 1. Great mountain] Literally 'mountain of God,' but אֱלֹהִים is used here as an epithet, as often; and as the words are rendered Psa. xxxvi. 6. It is afterwards called the 'mountain of God,' from his descent upon it, and the giving of the law.

2. Bush of thorns] So the term סִיחַ denotes, and it is probable the mountain received its name from this species of thorn growing upon it. The bush burning, but not consumed, was a striking emblem of the state of the Israelites.

he called him from amidst the bush, and 5 said, Moses! Moses! And he answered, Here am I. He then said, Approach not hither; pull thy sandals from off thy feet; for the place on which thou standest is holy ground. Also he said, I am the God of thy fathers," the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob. Then Moses hid his face; for he was afraid to look at God.

7 Jehovah now said, I have surely beheld the affliction of my people who are in Egypt, and have heard their cry on account of their task-masters; yea I know their sorrows;
 8 And am come down to deliver them from the hand of the Egyptians; and to bring them up out of that land into a good and spacious land, into a land flowing with milk and honey; into the place of the Canaanites, and the Hethites, and the Amorites, and the Perizzites, "and the Girgasites," and the 9 Hivites, and the Jebusites. Lo, as now the cry of the Israelites hath come to me; and I have also seen the oppression with 10 which the Egyptians oppress them; Come, now, therefore, and I will send thee to Pharaoh, that thou mayest bring my people, the Israelites, from the "land of" Egypt.

11 But Moses said to God, Who am I, that I should go to Pharaoh, and that I should bring the Israelites from the "land of"
 12 Egypt? Then "God" said, Truly I will be with thee. And this shall be a token to thee, that I have sent thee: When thou hast brought 'my' people out of Egypt, ye 13 shall serve God on this very mountain. And Moses said to God, Behold, when I come to the Israelites and shall say unto them, The God of your fathers hath sent me to you; and they should say to me, What is 14 his name? What shall I say to them? And God said to Moses, I AM because I AM: and he said, Thus shalt thou say to the Israel-15 ites, I AM hath sent me to you. And God moreover said to Moses, Thus shalt thou say to the Israelites, Jehovah the God of your fathers, the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob, hath sent me to you. This shall be my name for ever; and this my memorial to all generations. Go thou, and assemble the elders "of Israel," 16 and say to them, Jehovah the God of your fathers, the God of Abraham, of Isaac, and of Jacob, hath appeared to me, saying, Surely I have attended to you, and to what hath been done to you in Egypt; And I

 17 said, I will bring you up from the affliction of Egypt, into the land of the Canaanites, and the Hethites, and the Amorites, and the Perizzites, "and the Girgasites," and the Hivites, and the Jebusites; into a land flowing with milk and honey. And they 18 shall hearken to thy voice; and thou shalt go, thou and the elders of Israel, to the king of Egypt, and ye shall say to him, Jehovah the God of the Hebrews "hath met with us." And now let us go, we beseech thee, a journey of three days, into the wilderness, that we may sacrifice to Jehovah our God. Yet 19 I know that the king of Egypt will not let you go, but by a mighty hand. I will 20 therefore stretch out my hand, and smite Egypt with all my wonders which I will do in the midst of it; after which he will let you go. And I will give this people such 21 favour in the sight of the Egyptians, that it shall be when ye go, ye shall not go empty. But every 'man shall ask of his neighbour 22 and every" woman of her neighbour, "that dwelleth by her," or sojourneth in her house, articles of silver, and articles of gold, and of raiment; and ye shall put them upon your sons and upon your daughters, and thus shall ye spoil the Egyptians.

CHAPTER IV.

B. C. 1491. Moses' rod becomes a serpent; his hand is turned leprous; his unwillingness to go to Egypt; Aaron appointed to assist him; God's message to Pharaoh.

AGAIN Moses answered and said, But, behold, they may not believe me, nor hearken

5. Pull thy sandals] It is a custom of the east, to enter temples and worship bare-foot.—Is holy ground] That is, consecrated by the visible presence of God.

6. Thy fathers] So the Sam. and Stephen, Acts vii. 32; and the following words require the plural.

8. Flowing with milk] Such is the description, which is often given of the land of Canaan; as containing excellent pasture ground for cattle, and flowers from which bees form honey in abundance. (a) Sam. Sept. 10, 11. (a) Sept. Arab.

12. A token] Some critics contend, that what follows is not the token, but something not expressed; but no just construction of the text can support such an opinion. God promises, that he and the people should worship him on that very mountain. (v) Sept. (v) Sept.

14. I am, because I am] Or 'I exist, because I exist;' that is, I am without any cause of existence, but in my own nature. I am self-existent, and necessarily self-existent. No other reason can be assigned for his existence, but that he exists by a necessity of nature; 'he exists, and will exist, because of, or by reason of, his self-existence.' He hath existed—he doth exist—and he will exist—because he must exist, and cannot cease to exist, is all that can be said of his existence.

15. This is my name] Geddes considers this name as the third person singular of יהי, with ו inserted instead of the ' to convert it into a noun, and renders, 'He that will be.' The Rabbis assert, that this word includes all time past, present, and to come; and it is supposed that John has given the sense of it Rev. i. 8. I refer the name, not to Jehovah only, but to what follows, 'the God of Abraham, &c.'

16. Elders] That the Israelites had some kind of government among them during the life of Joseph is probable; and it might be continued long after; but considering their long oppression, it is not to be supposed, that any civil power was now enjoyed. The Elders, then, mean not magistrates, but the heads of their tribes, and chief families. (a) Sam. Versions. 17. (v) Sam. Sept.

22. Thus shall ye spoil] Michaelis renders, 'And take them with you out of Egypt.' The meaning is, that the Israelites begged of their neighbours, and on their departure took with them what they had obtained. (a) Sam.

CHAP. IV. 1. They may not] I have rendered in the

- unto my voice ; for they may say, Jehovah
 2 hath not appeared to thee. Then Jehovah said to him, What is that in thine hand?
 3 And he said, A rod. And Jehovah said, Cast it on the ground. And he cast it on the ground ; and it became a serpent ; and 4 Moses fled from before it. But Jehovah said to Moses, Put forth thine hand and take it by the tail. And he put forth his hand and took hold of "its tail" and it became a 5 rod in his hand. Do this that they may believe that Jehovah the God of their fathers, the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob hath appeared to thee.
 6 And Jehovah said also to him, Put now thine hand into thy bosom. And he put his hand into his bosom ; and when he "drew his hand out of his bosom," behold, 7 his hand was leprous as snow. And he said, Put thine hand again into thy bosom.
 And he put his hand again into his bosom ;
 and when he drew it out of his bosom, behold, it was turned again as his other flesh.
 8 So that it may be, said Jehovah, if they will not believe thee, nor hearken to the testimony of the first sign, that they may believe the testimony of the latter sign.
 9 But if they should not even believe these two signs, nor hearken to thy voice, then thou shalt take of the water of the river, and pour it upon dry land ; and the water which thou shalt take out of the river shall become blood upon the dry land.
 10 And Moses said to Jehovah, O my Lord, I am not eloquent, neither heretofore, nor since thou hast spoken to thy servant ; for 11 I have a slow and impeded utterance. And Jehovah said to him, Who giveth utterance to man ? or who maketh him dumb or 12 deaf, or seeing, or blind ? Is it not I, Jehovah ? Go, now, therefore ; and I will be with thy mouth, and teach thee what thou 13 shalt say. And he said, O my Lord, send,

I pray thee, by him whom thou shouldst send. And the anger of Jehovah was kindled against Moses, and he said, Is not Aaron the Levite thy brother ? I know that he can speak well. And also, behold, he cometh forth to meet thee ; and when he seeth thee, he will be glad in his heart. And 15 to him thou shalt speak, and put words in his mouth ; and I will be with thy mouth, and with his mouth, and will teach you what you shall do. And he shall speak for thee 16 to the people ; and he indeed shall be to thee instead of a mouth, and thou shalt be to him instead of God. And take thou 17 that rod in thine hand, ("which was turned into a serpent,") with which thou shalt do the signs.

And Moses departed, and returned to 18
 Jethro, his father-in-law, and said to him, Let me go, I pray thee, and return unto my brethren who are in Egypt, and see whether they be yet alive. And Jethro said to Moses, Go in peace. Jehovah said to Moses in 19 Midian, Go, return into Egypt ; for all those men are dead who sought thy life.

Moreover, Jehovah said to Moses, When 21 thou shalt have returned into Egypt, see that thou do all those wonders before Pharaoh, which I have given thee power to do ; yet I will permit his heart to be so hardened that he will not let the people go. And 22 thou shalt say to Pharaoh, Thus saith Jehovah, Israel is my son, my first-born. And 23
 I say unto thee, Let my son go, that he may serve me ; and if thou refuse to let him go, behold, I will slay thy son, thy first-born.

So Moses took his wife and his sons, and 20 set them upon asses, and he returned to the land of Egypt. Moses also took the rod of God in his hand. And it came to pass at 24 the lodging-place by the way, that Jehovah met him, and sought to kill him. Then 25 Zipporah took a sharp flint, and cut off the conditional mood, as what is here more suitable ; for how could Moses positively say, 'They will not believe.'

2. A rod] The rod was probably the crook, with which he tended Jethro's flock. 4. (v) Sept.

5. Do this] This addition is implied in the text, and without it the sense would be incomplete.

6, 7. For the nature of the leprosy, see Notes on Levit.
 xiii. The instantaneous appearance and cure of this disease, were admitted to be miraculous. Compare 2 Kings v. 7.
 (a) Sam. Sept. 4 MSS.

8. Testimony] Purver renders, 'to what the former sign declares.' Literally, voice ; but the sense is that given.
 The signs were testimonies of his divine mission.

10. For I have a slow] Literally, 'For I am heavy of mouth,' &c.

11. Who giveth] The verb שׁוּב is often used for נָתַן, and vice versa ; and this sense appears more apposite.

13. Thou shouldst send] So Ainsworth ; that is, some one better qualified than I am.

16. Instead of God] That is, thou shalt deliver my commands to him, and he shall declare them to Pharaoh and the people. 17. (a) Sept.

21. Yet I will permit his heart] It is well known that verbs in the Hiphil Conjugation signify, 'to permit, or suffer to be done,' as well as to cause to be done. See Common Version, Gen. xxiv. 17 ; xxv. 20 ; Exod. xxi. 28.
 Hence nothing more is meant than to leave a man to the bent and tendency of his own disposition. So Pharaoh was left, and he is said to have made his own heart stubborn against God, chap. ix. 34.

24. And sought to kill him] This some refer not to Moses, but to his son who had not been circumcised. It is more probable that Moses himself is meant, and that God afflicted him with some dangerous disease for having neglected the ordinance of circumcision ; perhaps in compliance with his wife's desire.

25. Her sons] The text has בָּנָה son ; but the 20th verse has sons, who went with Moses. They must now have been young men, as Moses had been married probably more than 30 years. If so, they must have submitted to the rite from filial regard.—A blood bought husband] I have followed Geddes, and consider this as the language of affection. Circumcision was not practised by the Midianites ; but to save her husband's life she performed it. The foreskin of her sons, and cast herself at his feet, and said, Surely a blood-bought husband art thou to me. For she said, A blood-bought husband thou art because of the circumcision. So Jehovah let him go. Now Jehovah had said to Aaron, Go into the wilderness to meet Moses. And he went, and met him at the great mountain "Horeb," and kissed him. And Moses told Aaron all the words of Jehovah who had sent him; and all the signs which he had commanded him to do. And Moses and Aaron went and assembled all the elders of Israel; And Aaron spoke all the words which Jehovah had spoken to Moses; and did the signs in the sight of the people. And the people believed; and when they heard that Jehovah had attended to the Israelites, and seen their affliction, they then bowed their heads and worshipped.

CHAPTER V.

B. C. 1491. Pharaoh disregards the message of Moses and Aaron; increases the tasks of the Israelites, and insults them on complaining; they cry to Moses, and he complains to God.

- 1 Now after this Moses and Aaron went in, and said to Pharaoh, Thus saith Jehovah the God of Israel, Let my people go, that they may keep a feast to me in the wilderness. And Pharaoh said, Who is Jehovah, that I should obey his voice, so as to let Israel go? I know not Jehovah, nor will I let Israel go. And they said, The God of the Hebrews hath met with us; let us go, we pray thee, a journey of three days into the wilderness, and sacrifice to Jehovah our God; lest he rush on us by the pestilence, or by the sword. But the king of Egypt said to them, Why do ye, Moses and Aaron, take off the people from their works? Go ye to your burdens.
- 5 Pharaoh then said to his counsellors, They are more numerous "than the people" of the land, and would ye suffer them to rest from their burdens? And Pharaoh commanded that same day the taskmasters of the people, and their inferior officers, saying, Ye shall not, as heretofore, give the people straw to make brick; let them go and gather straw for themselves. Yet the stated number of bricks, which they made heretofore "daily" shall ye lay on them; ye shall not diminish aught thereof. For because they are idle, therefore they cry, saying, Let us go and sacrifice to our God. Let more work be laid upon the men; that on it they may 'attend;" and not attend to vain words.

So the taskmasters of the people went 10 out, and their officers, and they spoke to the people, saying, Thus saith Pharaoh, I will give to you no more straw. Go ye, get 11 straw where ye can find it; yet not aught of your work shall be diminished. Thus the 12 people were dispersed through all the land of Egypt to gather stubble instead of straw. And the taskmasters urged "the people," 13 saying, Fulfil your daily tasks as when straw was "given to you." And the officers of the 14 Israelites, whom Pharaoh's taskmasters had set over them, were beaten, and asked, Why have ye not fulfilled your task neither to-day nor yesterday, in making brick, as heretofore?

Then the officers of the Israelites came 15 and cried to Pharaoh, saying Why treatest thou thy servants thus? There is no straw 16 given to thy servants; yet they say to us, Make brick. And, behold, thy servants are beaten; although the fault be in thine own people. But he said, Ye are idle, ye are 17 idle; therefore ye say, Let us go and sacrifice to Jehovah "our God!" Now therefore 18 be gone, and work; for there shall no straw be given to you, yet shall ye deliver in the stated number of bricks.

Now the officers of the Israelites saw how 19 distressing a state they were in, from this

Sept. and Vulg. clearly support the rendering, that Zipporah threw herself at his feet, and said, &c. This she said because of the circumcision.—No Jehovah let him go] Some would make Moses the nominative; and render, 'So Moses let Zipporah go'; but the original will not bear such a version. Owing to the difficulties of the journey it is certain Moses sent both his wife and children back to her father, chap. xviii. 2; but whether now or after, is uncertain.

27. (a) Syr.

CHAP. V. 1. Who is Jehovah] Pharaoh owns not his authority, but dares to disobey his command. He worshipped the gods of Egypt, and thought no other had any claim to regard.

3. Journey of three days] Distances in countries, where there are no public roads, are measured by the time spent in travelling. Mount Horeb was so far distant from Goshen, that three days were spent in reaching it.—That we may sacrifice] They could not sacrifice in Egypt, without incurring the greatest risk; as they immolated those very animals the Egyptians worshipped.

5. Pharaoh then said] He spoke not this to Moses and Aaron, to whom he had said much the same before, but to his own counsellors or officers; which is more likely, as he assigns the reason, his jealousy of their increasing numbers, which he would scarcely have owned to Moses and Aaron.

8. (a) Sept. 9. (v) Sam. Sept.

10. No more straw] This was mixed with clay, which was then formed into a proper shape and dried in the sun. Such were the bricks then, and they are made in the same manner still, in various parts of the East. The conduct of this Pharaoh was as cruel as unjust; to demand what was impossible, and then to punish for not performing it.

13. Urged the people] See Note, Heb. Bible. (a) Sam.

14. Were beaten] Some conjecture, that they were bastinadoed; but the term כּ cannot be confined to this kind of correction. It certainly means smiting in any way.

17. Ye are idle] This was adding insult to oppression; but the heavier their affliction the nearer their deliverance. (a) Sept. 2 MSS.

19—21. Moses and Aaron were observing the result of this application to Pharaoh for redress; and the officers soon informed them, how their interference had operated to increase their oppression. (v) Sam. Sept.

saying, Not aught of your daily task of 20 bricks 'shall be diminished." And they met Moses and Aaron, who were standing in the way, as they came from "the presence" 21 of Pharaoh; And they said to them, May Jehovah look on you and judge; for ye have made us abominable in the eyes of Pharaoh, and in the eyes of his servants;
 so that ye have put a sword into their hand 22 to slay us. Then Moses returned to Jehovah and said, O Lord, why afflictest thou this people? and to what purpose hast thou 23 sent me? For since I came to Pharaoh to speak in thy name, he hath the more afflicted this people; nor hast thou at all de-1 livered thy people. Then Jehovah said to Moses, Now thou shalt see what I will do to Pharaoh. For, through a strong hand only will he let them go; and, through a strong hand, drive them out of his land.

CHAPTER VI.

B. C. 1491. God reneweth his promise, by his name JEHOVAH; the genealogy of Reuben, Simeon, and Levi, from whom sprang Moses and Aaron.

2 AGAIN 'Jehovah' spoke to Moses, and said
 3 to him, I am Jehovah; And I appeared to Abraham, to Isaac, and to Jacob, by the name of God, the Almighty; but by my name JEHOVAH 'was I not known to them.'
 4 Yet with them I established my covenant, to give them the land of Canaan, the land 5 in which they dwelt only as sojourners. And I have also heard the groaning of the Israelites, whom the Egyptians keep in bondage;
 and I have remembered my covenant.
 6 Therefore say to the Israelites, I am Jehovah 'your God;' and I will bring you out from under the burdens of the Egyptians, and will deliver you from their bondage, and will redeem you with a stretched out 7 arm, and with great judgments. And I will take you to be my own people, and I will be to you a God; and ye shall know that I am Jehovah your God, who bringeth you out from under the burdens of the Egyptians. And I will bring you into the 8 land, which I swore I would give to Abraham, to Isaac, and to Jacob; and I will now give it to you for an inheritance. I am Jehovah. Moses thus spoke to the chil- 9 dren of Israel; but, from anguish of spirit and cruel bondage, they hearkened not to Moses; "but said to him, Let us alone, and let us serve the Egyptians; for it is better for us to serve the Egyptians than to die in a wilderness."

Again Jehovah spoke to Moses, saying, 10
 Go, speak to Pharaoh the king of Egypt, 11 that he let the Israelites go out of his land.
 And Moses spoke to Jehovah, saying, Be- 12 hold, the Israelites have not hearkened unto me; how then shall Pharaoh hearken to me, as I have not a ready utterance?

(When Jehovah spoke to Moses and to 13
 Aaron and gave them a charge to the Israelites, and to Pharaoh the king of Egypt, to bring the Israelites out of the land of Egypt;
 These were the heads of their fathers' 14 houses: The sons of Reuben, the first-born of Israel, were Hanoch, Pallu, Hezron, and Carmi. These were the families of Reuben. 15
 And the sons of Simeon were Jemuel, and Jamin, and Ohad, and Jachin, and Zohar, and Shaul the son of a Canaanite woman.
 These were the families of Simeon.

And these were the names of the sons of 16
 Levi according to their genealogies; Gershon, and Kohath, and Merari. And the years of the life of Levi were a hundred and thirty-seven years. The sons of Gershon 17 according to their families were Libni and Shimi. And the sons of Kohath were Am- 18 ram, and Izhar, and Hebron, and Uzziel: and the years of the life of Kohath were a hundred and thirty-three years. And the 19 sons of Merari were Mahali, and Mushi.
 These were the families of Levi, according 22—1. This language of Moses shows the strong feelings of his heart; but as nothing is said which implies disapprobation, it must have been justified by the circumstances of the case. The answer of God is encouraging. The 1st verse of the next chapter is added to this, as it was in Cover-dale's, Matthew's and Cranmer's Bibles.

CHAP. VI. 2. (v) Sam. Version, MSS.

3. I was not known to them] There is a designed antithesis between the name God assumed, when he appeared to the patriarchs, and that he now assumed; and this seems to me the most natural and consistent sense of this passage;
 'I appeared to, and entered into covenant with, Abraham,
 Isaac, and Jacob, as God, the Almighty, but by my name, Jehovah, I was not known to them, as their covenant God;
 but by this name I now enter into covenant with you, and by this name I will be known as your God.' Hence in the following history, this name generally occurs; and by it he claims their submission and obedience. 'I am Jehovah, or I am Jehovah, your God,' is the reason assigned for his various laws. The name Jehovah was known to the patriarchs, if the present text be any authority, (for there is much variety of Lexion,) but it was not appropriated to him as their God. (v) Did I not manifest to them. Sept.

 Syr. Vulg.

4. They dwell as sojourners] Literally, 'the land of their sojournings, in which they sojourned.' 6. (a) Syr.

9. The Sam. has preserved the answer of the children of Israel to Moses, which is nearly the same as we have it, chap. xiv. 12; whence it is evident it should be supplied here.

12. As I have not] Literally, 'uncircumcised of lips.' Uncircumcised denotes, not only something superfluous, but any natural or moral blemish or defect. The sense is the same as chap. iv. 10; 'I am not eloquent.'

13. This genealogy appears inserted for two purposes, first to show that in the fourth generation God brought out the children of Israel, as he had promised, Gen. xv. 16; for Moses was the son of Amram, the son of Kohath, the son of Levi, the son of Jacob: and second, to state more particularly the pedigree of the illustrious leaders of Israel. The whole from this to the 28th verse, I have included in a parenthesis, as it is evident it has no other connexion with the subject than what is suggested. Reuben, Simeon, and Levi, sprung from the same mother; and for this reason they seem united in this genealogy.

20 to their genealogies. And Amram took for his wife Jochbed his uncle's daughter; and she bare to him Aaron and Moses, "and their sister Miriam." And the years of the life of Amram were a hundred and thirty-21 seven years. And the sons of Izhar were 22 Korah, and Nepheg, and Zithri. And the sons of Uzziel were Mishael, and Elzaphan, and Zithri. And Aaron took for his wife 23 Elisheba, daughter of Amminadab, sister of Naashon, and she bare to him Nadab and 24 Abihu, Eleazer and Ithamar. And the sons of Korah were Assir, and Elkanah, and Abiasaph. These were the families of the 25 Korites. And Eleazer, Aaron's son, took for a wife one of the daughters of Putiel; and she bare to him Phinehas. These were the heads of the fathers of the Levites according to their families. These were that 26 Aaron and Moses, to whom Jehovah said, Bring the Israelites out of the land of Egypt, with their hosts. These were that Moses and Aaron who spoke to Pharaoh the king of Egypt, that they might bring the Israelites out of the land of Egypt.)

CHAPTER VII.

B. C. 1491. Moses goeth to Pharaoh; his rod turned to a serpent, which miracle the Sorcerers imitate; Pharaoh's heart is hardened, and the river is turned to blood.

28 Now on the day Jehovah spoke to Moses 29 in the land of Egypt; When he spoke to Moses, saying, I am Jehovah, Speak thou to Pharaoh the king of Egypt all that I say 30 to thee. And Moses said to Jehovah I have not a ready utterance, and how shall Pharaoh hearken to me?
 1 JEHOVAH then said to Moses, See I have made thee a God to Pharaoh; and Aaron thy brother shall be thy prophet. "To him" thou shalt speak all that I command thee; and Aaron thy brother shall repeat it to Pharaoh, that he may let the Israelites go out of his land. Yet I will suffer the heart of Pharaoh to be hardened; and I will multiply my signs and my wonders in the land
 4 of Egypt. For Pharaoh will not hearken to you, until I stretch mine hand upon Egypt, and bring forth mine host, my people, the Israelites, out of the land of Egypt, by great judgments. And "all" the Egyptians shall know that I am Jehovah, when I stretch forth mine hand upon Egypt, and bring out my "people" the Israelites, from among them. And Moses and Aaron did as Jehovah commanded them; even so did they. And 7 Moses was eighty years old, and Aaron eighty-three years old, when they spoke to Pharaoh.

Now Jehovah had spoken to Moses and 8 to Aaron, saying, If Pharaoh should speak
 9 to you, saying, Show "to us" "some sign" or wonder, then thou shalt say to Aaron, Take thy rod, and cast it before Pharaoh, "and before his servants," and it shall become a serpent. And Moses and Aaron went in 10 unto Pharaoh; and they did as Jehovah had commanded; for Aaron cast down his rod before Pharaoh, and before his servants, and it became a serpent. Then Pharaoh called 11 also the wise men and the sorcerers "of Egypt." Now the magicians of Egypt did, in like manner, by their enchantments. For 12 they cast down every man his rod and these became serpents; but Aaron's rod swallowed up their rods. Yet the heart of Pharaoh was hardened, so that he hearkened not to them, as Jehovah had said.

Jehovah then said to Moses, Pharaoh's heart is hardened; he refuseth to let the people go. Go thou to Pharaoh in the morning; lo, he then goeth forth to the water; and thou shalt wait, to meet him by the brink of the river; and the rod which was turned to a serpent take thou in thine hand. And thou shalt say to him, Jehovah, the God of the Hebrews, hath sent me unto thee, saying, Let my people go, that they may serve me in the wilderness; and, behold, hitherto thou hast not hearkened. Thus, therefore, saith Jehovah, By this thou 17 shalt know that I am Jehovah. Behold, with the rod which is in mine hand, I will strike the waters which are in the river, and they shall be turned to blood. And the

20. Uncle's daughter] So both the Greek and Syriac render, which is more probable than Aunt. The word is used for a relation either distant or near. (a) Sam. Sept. Syr. 27. (a) Sam. Sept.

28—30. This refers to verse 11 and 12; and is here mentioned again to introduce what follows in the next chapter.

CHAP. VII. 1. A God] Moses is thus called because of his divine legation, and of the miracles which God by him would work before Pharaoh. He was to act in the name of God; and Aaron was to be his internumer.

5. And all the Egyptians] Is there an allusion here to what Pharaoh said, chap. v. 2? Not only Pharaoh, out all the people shall know that I am Jehovah; i. e. he who performs what he promises, or threatens. (a) Sam.

9. The common text is not only erroneous but defective; the Sam. and Greek version, happily correct the text and supply the deficiency. — A serpent] The word denotes any land or water monster; and here perhaps the crocodile. (v) Sept. 1 MS. (a) Sept.

11—13. The wise men and the sorcerers] The wise men, and those supposed capable of explaining or performing wonders—called afterwards magicians.—They did so by their enchantments.] In what manner the wise men of Egypt imitated Moses we are not informed. Ganganelli thinks the word here used points at the mode in which they effected this, 'by dazzling the sight.' Paul has given the names of two of the most celebrated of these Egyptian Magi. 2 Tim. iii. 8. (a) Sept.

15. To the water] That is, to the Nile, to bathe and to worship it as a god.

18. I have inserted the Samaritan text, which first gives the command of God to Moses, and then the repetition of it by Moses to Pharaoh. To save transcribing, the speech repeated has been omitted in the common Hebrew text: to fish which is in the river shall stink; so that the Egyptians shall lothe to drink water out of the river.

"And Moses and Aaron went to Pharaoh and they said to him, Jehovah, the God of the Hebrews, hath sent us to thee, saying, Let my people go, that they may serve me in the wilderness; and, behold, hitherto thou hast not hearkened. Thus therefore saith Jehovah, By this thou shalt know, that I am Jehovah. Behold, with the rod which is in mine hand I will strike the waters which are in the river, and they shall be turned to blood. And the fish which is in the river shall die, and the river shall stink; so that the Egyptians shall lothe to drink water out of the river."

- 19 Then Jehovah spoke to Moses, Say to Aaron "thy brother," Take thy rod and stretch out thine hand over the waters of Egypt, over their streams, and over their rivers, and over their lakes, and over all their water-cisterns, that they may become blood; and that there may be blood throughout all the land of Egypt, both in cisterns of wood and in cisterns of stone. And Moses and Aaron did so, as the Lord had commanded. For "Aaron" lifted up the rod, and struck the waters which were in the river, in the sight of Pharaoh, and in the sight of his servants; and all the waters which were in the river were turned to blood.
- 21 And the fish that were in the river died; and the river so stunk, that the Egyptians could not drink the water out of the river; and there was blood throughout all the land of Egypt. And the magicians of Egypt did in like manner, by their enchantments: and the heart of Pharaoh was hardened, that he did not hearken to them: as Jehovah
- 23 had said: But Pharaoh turned about and went into his house; nor did he even lay
- 24 this to heart. And all the Egyptians digged about the river for water to drink; for they could not drink of the water of the river.

CHAPTER VIII.

B. C. 1491. Frogs sent; Pharaoh petitions Moses, by whose prayer the frogs are removed; the dust turned into gnats, which afflict the magicians; swarms of beetles sent; Pharaoh still hardened.

- 25 SEVEN days were now completed, since the injury of perspicuity and of the historical narrative. (a) Sam. 19. (a) Sept. 20. (a) Sept. Syr.

21. So that they could not drink it] According to Maillet, and other travellers, the water of the Nile, when pure, is uncommonly pleasant and wholesome; while that found in the wells is detestable. It is common on the rising of the river, for the Nile-water to turn red and become unwholesome; and hence Michaelis, Dathe, and others contend, that its waters were not really turned into blood, but became of a blood-red colour; and that the miracle consisted in the circumstance of the river rising at an unusual season of the year, at the command of Moses. This plague, on the river, which the Egyptians worshipped, and into which they had

Jehovah had struck the river; And Jehovah 1 said to Moses, Go to Pharaoh, and say to him, Thus saith Jehovah, Let my people go, that they may serve me. And if thou refuse 2 to let "my people" go, behold, I will infest thy whole country with frogs. And the river 3 shall bring forth frogs so abundantly, that they shall come up and enter into thine houses, and into thy bed-chambers, and upon thy beds; and into the houses of thy servants, and of thy people: and into thine 4 ovens, and into thy kneading bowls: And both on thee, and on all thy servants and on thy people, shall the frogs come up.

"Moses and Aaron then went to Pharaoh, and said to him, Thus saith Jehovah, Let my people go that they may serve me. And if thou refuse to let "my people go, behold I will infest thy whole country with frogs. And the river shall bring forth frogs so abundantly, that they shall come up and enter into thine houses, and into thy bed-chambers, and upon thy beds; and into the houses of thy servants, and of thy people; and into thine ovens, and into thy kneading bowls: And both on thee, and on all thy servants, and on thy people shall the frogs come up."

And Jehovah said to Moses, Say to 5 Aaron "thy brother," Stretch forth thine hand with thy rod over the streams, over the rivers, and over the lakes, and cause frogs to come up upon the land of Egypt. "And Moses said to Aaron, Stretch forth thine hand with thy rod, that frogs may come up on the land of Egypt." And Aaron stretched out his 6 hand over the waters of Egypt; and the frogs came up, and covered the land of Egypt. And the magicians "of Egypt" did 7 in like manner, by their enchantments; and they brought up frogs upon the land of Egypt.

Then Pharaoh called for Moses and 8 Aaron, and said, Entreat Jehovah, that he may take away the plague from me and from my people; and I will let the people go, that they may sacrifice to Jehovah. And 9 Moses said to Pharaoh, "Appoint me a time" I shall entreat for thee, and for thy servants, and for thy people; that the frogs may be destroyed from thee and thy houses, and cast many of the Hebrew male-children, and to which they annually sacrificed a boy and a girl, was designed to show the folly of their worship, and to punish them for their past cruelty.

CHAP. VIII. 1. Had struck the river] Geddes founds an objection against the reality of this miracle, from the execution being more extensive than the order; the latter specifying only the waters of the river, while the former records all the waters through the land. This objection is easily obviated. The change produced in the waters of the Nile must equally affect its rivers, its canals, its lakes and smaller reservoirs, which had connection with it.

2. (a) 5 MSS. 4. 5. (a) Sam. Sept. Syr.

- 10 may remain in the river only. And he said, To-morrow. And Moses said, According to thy word it shall be; that thou mayest know that there is none like to Jehovah our God. For the frogs shall depart from thee, and from thy houses, and from thy servants, and from thy people; in the river only they shall remain. And Moses and Aaron went out from Pharaoh; and Moses cried to Jehovah on account of the frogs which he had sent against Pharaoh. And Jehovah did according to the word of Moses; and the frogs died away from the houses, from the villages, and from the fields. And they gathered them together in heaps; and the land stunk with them. But when Pharaoh saw that there was respite, he hardened his heart, and hearkened not to them; as Jehovah had said.
- 16 Then Jehovah said to Moses, Say to Aaron, Stretch out "thine hand with" thy rod "in it" and strike the dust of the land, that it may become gnats throughout all the land of Egypt. And they did so; for Aaron stretched out his hand with his rod, and struck the dust of the earth, and it became gnats both on man and on beast; all the dust of the land became gnats throughout the whole land of Egypt; 'and the gnats were both on man and on beast.' And in like manner the magicians tried, by their enchantments, to bring forth gnats, but they could not. Then the magicians said to Pharaoh, This is the finger of a God. Yet the heart of Pharaoh was hardened, nor did he hearken to them; as Jehovah had said.
- 20 And Jehovah said to Moses, Rise up early in the morning, present thyself to Pharaoh; "for" lo he cometh forth to the water! and say to him, Thus saith Jehovah, Let my people go, that they may serve me. But if thou wilt not let my people go, behold, I will send a swarm of beetles upon thee, and upon thy servants, and upon thy people, and into thy houses; and the houses of the Egyptians shall be full of beetles, and also the ground whereon they stand. And I will separate, in that day, the land of Goshen, in which my people dwell, that not a beetle shall be there; to the end thou mayest know, that I am Jehovah in the midst of the earth; And I will make a division between my people and thy people. To-morrow shall this sign be.

"And Moses and Aaron went in unto Pharaoh, and said to him, Let my people go, that they may serve me. But if thou wilt not let my people go, behold, I will send a swarm of beetles upon thee and upon thy servants, and upon thy people, and into thy houses; and the houses of the Egyptians shall be full of beetles, and also the ground whereon they stand. And I will separate, in that day, the land of Goshen, in which my people dwell, that not a beetle shall be there; to the end thou mayest know that I am Jehovah in the midst of the earth; And I will make a division between my people and thy people. To-morrow shall this sign be." And Jehovah did so; and there came a "very" grievous swarm of beetles into the house of Pharaoh, and into the houses of his servants, and into all the land of Egypt; so that the land was ravaged by the beetles.

Pharaoh then called for Moses and for Aaron, and said, Go sacrifice to your God in this land. But Moses said, It is not proper to do so. For the sacrifices which we offer to Jehovah our God are an abo-

6. If the plague of the river consisted in an unusual overflow, the stagnant waters would prepare the way for this; but the abundance of frogs clearly proved the hand of God.

7. (a) Sam. Sept.

9. So the versions render the first clause of this verse. The connection shows, that this is the true reading. Pharaoh now feels the effect of his obstinacy; and solicits Moses to pray for the removal of the plague; and the answer of Moses naturally implies, that Jehovah, who had sent it, would remove it on his intercession; and that this ought to convince him, that he was the true and only God. (v) Sept. Vulg. Onkelos: the other versions, Glory over me.

14. Gathered them into heaps] The killing of them was a mitigation of the evil; and leaving them to rot, was a forcible admonition, to sin no more, lest some worse thing should befall them.

16. Gnats] I have followed the Greek translators, who lived in Egypt, and who were most likely to understand the original term. It is allowed that Egypt is now, and ever was, infested annually, with the Mosquito Gnats; and if this was the insect, this miracle must consist in their being produced at an unusual season, at the command of Moses. Rosenmüller observes, that this miracle occurred in February, the coldest month of the year in Egypt. Calmet conjectures, that the putrid frogs might be the occasion of this plague. (a) Sam. Sept.

19. The finger of a God] God, the only true God, most probably they knew not; but they were convinced, that here was the 'finger of a God, whom the Hebrews called their God'; and that he was too powerful for them to contend with. 20. (a) Sam.

21. Swarm of beetles] 'Flies, or a mixture of noisome beasts.' This is borrowed from the Rabbinical writers, who contend, that this mixture contained all sorts of noxious animals, serpents, scorpions, &c. Geddes contends for beetles; the blatta Egyptiaca, which Forskal found frequent in the houses of Alexandria; and which not only bites the human race, but also devours clothes, hooks, plants, and whatever comes in its way. Hence the Psalmist lxxviii. 45; 'He sent on them beetles, ערוב, which devoured them.'

22, 23. This circumstance strongly marked the purpose for which this plague was sent. God sent his judgments on the oppressors of his people, but kindly protected them.

24. Ravaged] History records instances of such a plague inflicted at different times, as on the army of Trajan in Arabia; and the objects many worshipped had epithets applied as the removers of flies or beetles. As Baalzebub, Hercules, the expeller of flies. A similar epithet was applied to Jupiter. See Bryant. (a) versions.

26. It is not proper, &c. See Note, Gen. xxiv. 50. The Jews offered in sacrifice, their oxen, goats, sheep, &c. and these animals the Egyptians worshipped. Pharaoh wishes them to sacrifice in the land; but Moses gives the most solid reason for not doing so. He again solicits the intercession of Moses, and promises compliance with his desire, but again, on obtaining respite, refuses to let the people go.

mination to the Egyptians. Behold, should we, before their eyes, offer sacrifices, which are an abomination to the Egyptians, would they not stone us? Let us go a journey of three days, into the wilderness, and sacrifice to Jehovah our God, as he shall command us. And Pharaoh said, I will let you go, that ye may sacrifice to Jehovah your God in the wilderness; only go not very far away: entreat Jehovah for me. And Moses said, Behold, I go out from thee, and I will entreat Jehovah that the swarm of beetles may, to-morrow, depart from Pharaoh, from his servants, and from his people; but let not Pharaoh any more deal deceitfully so as not to let the people go to sacrifice to Jehovah. Then Moses went out from Pharaoh, and entreated Jehovah; And Jehovah did according to the word of Moses; and he removed the beetles from Pharaoh, from his servants, and from his people; there remained not one. And Pharaoh hardened his heart this time also, nor would he let the people go.

CHAPTER IX.

B. C. 1491. The plagues of murrain, boils and blains; the message respecting the hail; the hail sent, and Pharaoh's oath to Moses, but remains obstinate.

1 AGAIN Jehovah said to Moses, Go to Pharaoh, and "say" to him, Thus saith Jehovah the God of the Hebrews, Let my people go, that they may serve me. For if thou refuse to let them go, and wilt still detain them, Behold, the hand of Jehovah shall be upon thy cattle which are in the field. Among the horses and among the asses, and among the camels, and among the herds, and among the flocks, shall be a very grievous mortality. And Jehovah will distinguish between the cattle of the Israelites and the cattle of the Egyptians; and there shall nothing die of all that belongeth to the Israelites. And Jehovah hath appointed the time, saying, To-morrow will Jehovah do this in the land.

*And Moses and Aaron went to Pharaoh, and said to him, Thus saith Jehovah, Let my people go, that they may serve me.

CHAP. IX. 1. (v) Sam. 2 MS. Versions, 3. The hand of Jehovah] That is, his power in cutting off the cattle.—Mortality] The term דבר denotes the 'plague,' or pestilence, as the Vulg. renders. The Greek has death. This must have been a grievous plague to the Egyptians who overrated almost every animal; but especially the ox, cow, and ram, Arab. 5. (a) Sam. 6. All the cattle of Egypt died] Nothing can be more evident than that universal terms are used in all languages in a limited sense. So that the sense is 'many of the;' &c. but not one belonging to the Israelites.

7. (a) Sam. Sept. MSS. 8. Ashes of the furnace] Not of the oven-furnace, but of the brick-kiln. This was a significant plague; and was not only designed to denote the oppression of the Israelites, but to refer to the cruel rites of their religion. In several

For if thou refuse to let them go, and wilt still detain them, behold the hand of Jehovah shall be upon thy cattle which are in the field. Among the horses, and among the asses, and among the camels, and among the herds, and among the flocks, shall be a very grievous mortality. And Jehovah will distinguish between the cattle of the Israelites and the cattle of the Egyptians; and there shall nothing die of all that belongeth to the Israelites. And Jehovah hath appointed the time, saying, To-morrow will Jehovah do this thing in the land." And on the morrow Jehovah did that thing, and all the cattle of Egypt died; but of the cattle of the Israelites not one died. And Pharaoh sent to inquire, and, behold, there was not one dead of the cattle of the Israelites. Yet the heart of Pharaoh was hardened, and he would not let the people go.

Jehovah, therefore, said to Moses and to Aaron, Take handfuls of the ashes of the furnace, and let Moses sprinkle them towards the heavens in the sight of Pharaoh. And they shall become small dust over all the land of Egypt, and shall produce an ulcerous inflammation, both on man, and on beast, throughout all the land of Egypt. And they took the ashes of the furnace, and stood before Pharaoh; and threw them up towards the heavens, and they became an ulcerous inflammation, both on man and on beast. And the magicians could not stand before Moses because of the inflammation; for the inflammation was on the magicians, as well as on all the other Egyptians. Yet Jehovah suffered the heart of Pharaoh to be so hardened, that he hearkened not to them; as Jehovah had spoken to Moses.

Again Jehovah said to Moses, Rise up early in the morning, and stand before Pharaoh, and say to him, Thus saith Jehovah, the God of the Hebrews, Let my people go, that they may serve me. For else I will, at this time, send all my plagues on thyself, and on thy servants, and on thy people; that thou mayest know that there is none like me in all the earth. Yea now I could stretch out my hand, and smite thee and cities, at certain seasons, they sacrificed men who were burnt alive, and the ashes were scattered abroad, in hope that wherever they fell they would secure the blessing of fertility. Now they should find that the ashes should produce an intolerable ulcerous inflammation.

9. Ulcerous inflammation] It is, in Deut. xxviii. 27, emphatically called 'the ulcer of Egypt;' and is now generally supposed to be that species of leprosy called elephantiasis.

11. Though Egypt might be subject to this disease, yet the extent of it, and its coming at the precise time Moses specified, mark the hand of God.

14. On thyself] Literally, 'On thine heart;' but the connexion proves, that this is idiomatical, and that לבך is used as נפשך.

15. Houbigant, Le Clerc, Dathe and others, render po-thy people with pestilence; so that thou 16 shouldst be cut off from the earth. And in very deed for this purpose have I preserved thee, that I may show to thee my power; and that my name may be declared through 17 all the earth. As still thou exaltest thyself against my people, so as not to let them go; 18 Behold, to-morrow, about this time, I will cause it to rain a very grievous hail, such as hath not been in Egypt since the day of 19 its foundation until now. Send now, therefore, and gather in thy cattle, and all that thou hast in the field; for upon every man and beast which shall be found in the field, and shall not be brought home, upon them shall the hail come down, and they shall die.

"Then Moses and Aaron went to Pharaoh, and said to him, Thus saith Jehovah, the God of the Hebrews, Let my people go, that they may serve me. For else I will at this time send all my plagues on thyself, and on thy servants, and on thy people; that thou mayest know there is none like me in all the earth. Yea now I could stretch out my hand, and smite thee and thy people with pestilence; so that thou shouldst be cut off from the earth. And in very deed for this purpose I have preserved thee, that I may show to thee my power; and that my name may be declared through all the earth. As still thou exaltest thyself against my people, so as not to let them go; Behold, to-morrow, about this time, I will cause it to rain a very grievous hail, such as hath not been in Egypt since the day of its foundation until now. Send now, therefore, and gather in thy cattle, and all that thou hast in the field; for upon every man and beast which shall be found in the field, and shall not be brought home, upon them shall the hail come down, and they shall die."
 20 He who feared the word of Jehovah, among the servants of Pharaoh, made his servants and his cattle flee into the houses; 21 But he that regarded not the word of Je-
 field.
 22 And Jehovah said to Moses, Stretch forth thine hand towards the heavens, that there may be hail over the land of Egypt; upon man and upon beast, and upon every green herb of the field, throughout all the land of Egypt. And Moses stretched forth his rod 23 towards the heavens; and Jehovah sent thunder and hail, and the lightning ran along upon the ground. Thus Jehovah rained hail upon the land of Egypt; And 24 there was hail, and lightning mingled with the hail, exceedingly grievous. There had been none like it in all the land of Egypt since it became a nation. And the hail 25 smote, throughout all the land of Egypt, all that were in the field, both man and beast; and the hail smote every green herb of the field, and every tree of the field it broke to pieces. Only in the land of Goshen, where 26 the Israelites dwelt, was there no hail. 'And 31 the flax and the barley were smitten; for the barley was in the ear, and the flax was bolting. But the wheat and the rye were 32 not smitten, for they were not grown up.'

Now Pharaoh sent, and called for Moses 27 and Aaron, and said to them, I have once more sinned. Jehovah is righteous; but I and my people are wicked. Entreat Jeho- 28 vah for me, that there may be an end of this mighty thunder, and hail, "and lightning;" and I will let you go, and ye shall be no longer delayed. Moses then said to 29 him, As soon as I am gone out of the city, I will spread out my hands to Jehovah; and the thunder shall cease, nor shall there be any more hail; that thou mayest know that the earth belongeth to Jehovah. Yet I 30 know that neither thou, nor thy servants, as yet fear the 'Lord' Jehovah. So Moses 33 went out of the city from Pharaoh, and spread out his hands to Jehovah: and the thunder ceased, and the hail and the rain were no longer poured upon the earth.
 And when Pharaoh saw that the rain, and 34 the hail, and the thunder had ceased, he sinned yet more, and hardened his heart; both he and his servants. So the heart of 35
 Pharaoh was hardened, nor would he let the Israelites go, as Jehovah had spoken by Moses.

tentially; and the sense requires it, or otherwise we have a threatening which was not executed.

16. Have I preserved thee] So the Sept. has rendered, but the apostle, Rom. ix. 17, as our version here. The sense seems to be, I have supported and preserved thee, during the last plagues, that as yet I may show to thee my power in the remaining plagues, and that my name as Jehovah, the only true God, may be declared, &c. James uses the apostle's word, for 'restoring health.' 'The prayer of faith shall save the sick, and I will raise, preserve, or restore him.'

18. Hail is an usual phenomenon with us, but in Egypt, where it seldom rains, it must indeed be very rare and uncommon. That such should be the state of the atmosphere; and that hail of such a size should be formed, as, together with the thunder and lightning, should destroy the fruits of the land, was truly miraculous.

19. (a) Sam. 22. (v) Sept.

26. The transposition of the 31st and 32d verses after this, greatly improves the connexion. The circumstances specified in these two verses, limit the period of this plague to the month of February.

28. That there may be an end] So I have rendered the ריב ברירה, which is clearly the sense, Ezek. lxiv. 6.
 (a) Sept.

 sion, that he was not yet sufficiently humbled. (v) Sam.

 and in the Syr. אֲמַעֲלִי denotes to attempt, to do, to treat.

CHAPTER X.

B. C. 1491. God threateneth to send locusts; the plague of locusts; Pharaoh entreateth Moses, and the plagues are removed, &c. God's message to the Israelites to ask various articles of their neighbours, and Pharaoh threatened with the death of the first-born.

- 1 AGAIN, therefore, Jehovah said to Moses, Go in unto Pharaoh, (for I have suffered his heart, and the hearts of his servants, to be hardened, that I may show these my signs
- 2 'among them;'' And that ye may tell in the hearing of your children, and children's children, in what manner I have treated the Egyptians; and the signs which I have done among them. Thus ye shall know that I am Jehovah 'your God.') 'And say to Pharaoh, Thus saith Jehovah, the God of the Hebrews, How long wilt thou refuse to humble thyself before me? Let my people go that they may serve me. Else, if thou refuse to let my people go, behold, to-morrow I will bring locusts into thy country. And they shall cover the face of the earth, so that one cannot see the earth; and they shall eat up what is left remaining to you, that which escaped the hail; and they shall eat up every green herb of the earth, and the fruit of every tree which groweth to you out of the field. And they shall fill thy houses, and the houses of all thy servants, and the houses of all the Egyptians; which neither thy fathers, nor thy fathers' fathers have seen, from the day that they were upon the earth, unto this day.'
- 3 And Moses and Aaron went to Pharaoh, and said to him, Thus saith Jehovah, the God of the Hebrews, How long wilt thou refuse to humble thyself before me? Let my people go, that they may serve me.
- 4 Else, if thou refuse to let my people go, behold, to-morrow I will bring locusts into
- 5 thy country. And they shall cover the face of the earth, so that one cannot see the earth; and they shall eat up what is left remaining to you, that which escaped the hail; and they shall eat up 'every green herb of the earth, and the fruit of every tree which groweth to you out of the field.' And they shall fill thy houses, and the 6 houses of all thy servants, and the houses of all the Egyptians; which neither thy fathers nor thy fathers' fathers have seen from the day that they were upon the earth, unto this day. And Moses, having thus spoken, turned about and went out from Pharaoh.

Then the servants of Pharaoh said to him, 7 How long shall this be a snare unto us? Let the men go, that they may serve Jehovah their God. Knowest thou not yet, that Egypt is destroyed? And Moses and Aaron 8 were brought back to Pharaoh; and he said to them, Go, serve Jehovah your God: but who, and who are to go? And Moses said, 9 We will go with our young and with our old. With our sons and with our daughters, with our flocks and with our herds will we go; for we must keep a feast to Jehovah 'our God.' He then said to them, So let 10 Jehovah be with you, as I let go both you and your little ones! See, how evil is your design! Not so; but go now ye men, and 11 serve Jehovah; this ye requested. And they were driven out from the presence of Pharaoh.

Jehovah now said to Moses, Stretch out 12 thine hand over the land of Egypt for the locusts, that they may come upon the land of Egypt, and eat up every green herb of the earth, 'and the fruit of every tree' which the hail hath left. And Moses stretched 13 forth his 'hand' over the land of Egypt, and Jehovah brought an east wind upon the land all that day, and all that night; and when it was morning, the east wind brought the locusts. And the locusts overspread all 14 the land of Egypt, and lighted on every district of Egypt, in great numbers. Such locusts had not been before them, and such after them shall not be. For they covered 15 the face of the whole land, so that the land was darkened; and they ate up every green herb upon the earth, and every tree, the Most of the versions render 'Egyptians,' not 'Egypt.' See Note, Hebrew Bible. (a) Sam.

5. The Syriac and Arabic thus render; and this seems most natural. (a) Sam.

7. How long shall this [Our common version refers to Moses; but I am satisfied, that it relates to the conduct of Pharaoh, in obstinately refusing to let the Israelites go, although that refusal had already nearly ruined Egypt.

8. Who, and who are to go] I have here rendered literally, as the repetition marks the agitated state of Pharaoh's mind, and the reluctance he felt to permit the whole body of the Israelites to depart. 9. (a) Sept. Alex.

10. As I let go] This implies an absolute refusal to let them all go, as appears from the next verse. It is put in the form of an imprecation, May you have as much of Jehovah's help, as you shall have my permission.—See how evil] Literally, 'See that evil is before your face,' which some think contains a threatening. The connexion supports the sense given—'your design is now manifest, you mean not to return.'

12. What the Samaritan supplies is supported by the 15th verse. The Hebrew is inconsistent. In verse 5 it has trees only; in verse 12 it has green herbs only; but in verse 15 it has both; that is, it is twice defective and once full; whereas the Sam. is uniformly the same. (a) Sam.

13. (v) Sam. Arab.

14. In great numbers] So the Vulg. Sept. and Arab. render, and the connexion justifies the version.

15. The quantity of locusts, says Volney, that sometimes ravage Syria, are incredible to all who have not witnessed their astonishing numbers. The whole earth is covered with them for several leagues. The noise which they make in browsing on the trees and herbs may be heard at a great distance, and resembles that of an army foraging in secret. The Tartars themselves are not a more destructive enemy.

fruit of which the hail had left: and not any thing green remained on the trees, or on the herbs of the field, through all the land of Egypt.

- 16 Then Pharaoh, in haste, called for Moses and Aaron; and he said, I have sinned against Jehovah your God, and against you.
- 17 Now therefore forgive, I pray you, my sin only this once, and entreat Jehovah your God that he may only remove from me this
- 18 deadly calamity. And he went out from
- 19 Pharaoh, and entreated Jehovah. And Jehovah changed the wind into a very strong west one, which took away the locusts, and cast them into the Red sea; there remained not one locust in all the country of
- 20 Egypt. But Jehovah suffered the heart of Pharaoh to be hardened, so that he would not yet let the Israelites go.
- 21 Again Jehovah said to Moses, Stretch out thine hand towards the heavens, that there may be darkness over the land of Egypt;
- 22 even darkness the most gross. And Moses stretched forth his hand towards the heavens; and there was thick darkness over
- 23 all the land of Egypt for three days. They could not see one another; nor did any one rise from his place, for three days; but all the Israelites had light in their dwellings.
- 24 Then Pharaoh called to Moses "and to Aaron," and said, Go ye, serve Jehovah "your God;" only let your flocks and your herds remain. Let your little ones also go
- 25 with you. And Moses said, Thou must give us also sacrifices and burnt-offerings, that we may sacrifice to Jehovah our God.
- 26 Our cattle must go with us; there shall not a hoof be left behind. For of them must we take to serve Jehovah our God; and we know not with what we must serve Jehovah, until we come thither. But Jehovah suffered the heart of Pharaoh to be hardened, so that he would not yet let them go.
- 1 Now Jehovah had said to Moses, Yet will I bring one plague more upon Pharaoh, and upon the Egyptians; afterwards he will let you go hence. When he shall let you go, he will even altogether thrust you out hence. Speak now in the hearing 2 of the people, and let every man ask of his neighbour, articles of silver, and articles of gold, "and raiment." "And I will give" this people 3 favour in the sight of the Egyptians, "so that they shall give them what they ask. And about midnight I will go through the land of Egypt; and every first-born in the land of Egypt shall die, from the first-born of Pharaoh who sitteth upon his throne, to the first-born of the maid servant that sitteth behind the mill; and even unto the first-born of every beast. And there shall be a great cry throughout all the land of Egypt, such as hath not been, nor shall be any more. But among all the children of Israel shall not a dog move his tongue, against either man or beast; that ye may know what a difference Jehovah maketh between the Egyptians and the Israelites." Now Moses was greatly honoured in the land of Egypt, in the sight of Pharaoh's servants, and in the sight of the people. Then Moses said "to Pharaoh," Thus saith 4 Jehovah, About midnight I will go through the midst of "the land" of Egypt. And all 5 the first-born in the land of Egypt shall die, from the first-born of Pharaoh who sitteth upon his throne, even unto the first born of the maid servant that sitteth behind the mill; and even unto all the first-born of beasts. And there shall be a great cry throughout 6 all the land of Egypt, such as hath not been, nor shall be any more. But among all the 7 children of Israel shall not a dog move his tongue, against either man or beast; that ye may know what a difference Jehovah maketh between the Egyptians and the Israelites. Then shall all these thy servants 8 come down to me, and bow down themselves to me, saying, Go thou out of the land,

17. Deadly calamity] Literally, 'death,' a metonymical expression for what would occasion death. Famine and pestilence often succeed the ravages made by locusts.

21. Darkness] The Egyptians worshipped both the sun and night or darkness; and now the objects of their worship became their punishment. The inhabitants of England and Holland have frequent opportunities of contemplating darknesses by means of fogs, &c. which in the climate of Egypt would be altogether miraculous. This kind of dim half-light would astonish the inhabitants of Egypt, who would rather sit at home than venture abroad to visit their friends, or to follow their occupations.

24. Pharaoh wishes to secure their return by detaining their property; but with this Moses refuses to comply. (a) Sam. Sept.

28, 29. These verses are transposed with Houbigant, after then will I go out, in the 8th verse of the next chapter. Owing to omissions in the text, the order of the narrative has suffered, as is allowed by the best critics.

CHAP. XI. 3. The textual reading וירא, and the omission of the speech as delivered from the Almighty to Moses, renders the whole obscure and incoherent; it converts a prediction into a narration. By reading with the Sam. the whole is simple and consistent. (v) Sam. 4. (a) Sam.

5. It is not necessary to understand by first-born an actually first-born child. It is known, בְּכֹרֶת denotes the chief, the prime of any thing, Isa. xiv. 30; Job xviii. 13. As the first-born of cattle is mentioned, as well as of men, it is enough to induce one to inquire into the true sense of the passage. For what is the first-born of cattle better than others? But if the prime, the best be meant, then the judgment is most awful.

7. Michaelis renders, 'But among the Israelites no dog shall be sick.' We ought to render, not 'Against any of the children,' &c. as our public version, but 'Amongst all the children,' &c. This gives force to the expression, and shows, that while the Egyptians should shriek out for distress, the Israelites should enjoy such security and peace, that not the least noise should be heard in their dwellings. See Kennicott's 1 Diss. p. 384, &c. for the illustration of the whole chapter.

9, 10. (a) Sept.

- with all the people whom thou leadest.
 29 After this I will go out. And Pharaoh said to him, Begone from me; take heed that thou see my face no more; for, on the day thou seest my face, thou shalt die.
 29 And Moses said, Thou hast spoken right; I shall see thy face no more. He then went out from Pharaoh with great indignation. Now Jehovah had said to Moses, Pharaoh will not hearken to you; that my "signs and my" wonders may be multiplied 10 in the land of Egypt. And Moses and Aaron did all these "signs and" wonders in the presence of Pharaoh; yet Jehovah suffered the heart of Pharaoh to be hardened, so that he would not let the children of Israel go from his land.

CHAPTER XII.

B. C. 1491. The beginning of the year changed: the passover and its rites appointed; the first-born of the Egyptians slain; and the Israelites depart.

- 1 Now Jehovah had spoken to Moses and
 2 Aaron in the land of Egypt, saying, This month shall be to you the chief of months: it shall be to you the first among the months of the year.
 3 Speak ye to all the congregation of the Israelites, saying, On the tenth day of this month, let every man the head of a household, take a lamb; a lamb for each household. And if the household be too small for a whole lamb, let him and his neighbour householder take one. According to the number of persons shall ye reckon for the lamb, each one according to his eating.
 5 Your lamb shall be without blemish, a male of one year. From the sheep or from the 6 goats ye may take it. And let it be kept up until the fourteenth day of this month; and let every assembly of the congregation
 7 of Israel kill it in the evening. And they shall take of the blood, and sprinkle it on the two door-posts, and on the upper lintel of the houses, in which they shall eat it.
 8 And they shall eat the flesh, roasted by fire, on that same night; with unleavened bread, and with bitter herbs shall they eat 9 it. Ye shall not eat of it raw, or in any way boiled in water; but roasted by fire, its head together with its legs and carcase. And ye shall not let aught of it remain 10 until the morning; but should aught of it remain until the morning, ye shall burn it with fire. And thus shall ye eat it; with 11 your loins girded, your sandals on your feet, and your staves in your hands; and ye shall eat it in haste: it is Jehovah's passover feast. For I will this night pass through 12 the land of Egypt, and will smite all the first-born in the land of Egypt, both of man and beast; and on all the princes of Egypt I will execute judgments: I am Jehovah. And the blood on the houses in which ye 13 are, shall be to you for a token; and when I see the blood I will pass over you, and there shall not be any destroying plague among you, when I smite the land of Egypt. And this day shall be to you for a memo- 14 rial; and ye shall keep on it a feast to Jehovah, throughout your generations; ye shall on it keep a feast, by a perpetual ordinance. Seven days shall ye eat unleavened 15 bread; and from the first day ye shall remove leaven from your houses: for whosoever eateth leavened bread from the first day until the seventh day, that person shall be cut off from Israel. On the first day ye 16 shall have a holy convocation, and on the seventh day a holy convocation; no manner of work shall be done on them, only what every man must eat; that alone may ye do. And ye shall observe the feast of unleavened 17 bread; because on that same day I brought your hosts out of the land of Egypt. Therefore shall ye observe that day throughout your generations, by a perpetual ordinance.

In the first month, on the fourteenth day 18 of the month, at even, until the twenty-first day of the month, at even, ye shall eat unleavened bread. Seven days let there be 19 no leaven found in your houses; for whosoever eateth of aught leavened, even that person shall be cut off from the congregation of Israel, whether he be a stranger, or one born in the land. Nothing leavened 20 shall ye eat; in all your habitations ye shall eat unleavened bread.

And Moses had called for all the elders 21

CHAP. XII. 1. Had spoken] So the words must be rendered; for the lamb was to be set apart on the 10th of the month and kept to the 14th. See ver. 3 and 6.

2. Chief of months] So Matthews rendered; and I cannot think the Hebrew will even bear any other sense. It is so called on account of the Passover-feast.

3. Let every one] I have followed the Sept. and Vulg. and given the sense rather than the idiom. The term וְכָל denotes either a lamb or a kid of a certain age.

4. The meaning is, that they should associate so many persons as were sufficient to eat the whole of it.

6. Every assembly] As they were to have a lamb for each family, who were to eat of it, each family must kill and dress it, and not the whole congregation.—In the even- ing] The Jews began their day at six in the morning; their third hour was our nine o'clock, their sixth noon, and all after evening. So that they might kill the paschal lamb at any hour after noon. (a) Versions.

9. The lamb was to be roasted whole; and according to Sept. Syr. and the Evangelist, not a bone was to be broken. (a) Sept. Syr.

12. Princes] This is the sense of our marginal rendering. This clause explains the former.

16. Holy convocation] The word signifies 'a called assembly,' called by the divine authority to engage in holy services. The feast of unleavened bread followed the passover, but was distinct from it.

- of Israel, and said to them, Choose out, and take for yourselves, lambs according to your 22 families, and kill the passover-victims. And ye shall take a bunch of hyssop, and dip it in the blood that hath been received in a basin; and with the blood in the basin ye shall sprinkle the two door-posts; and let none of you go out of the door of his house 23 until the morning. For Jehovah will pass through, to smite the Egyptians; and when he seeth the blood upon the lintel, and on the two door-posts, Jehovah will pass over the door, and will not suffer the destroying plague to come into your houses, to smite 24 you. And ye shall observe this rite as a perpetual ordinance given to you and your 25 children. And when ye are come to the land which Jehovah will give to you, according as he hath promised, then shall ye keep this service "on this same month." 26 And if your children should say to you, 27 What mean ye by this service? Then ye shall say, It is the sacrifice of Jehovah's passover, who passed over the houses of the Israelites in Egypt, when he smote the Egyptians; and our houses he delivered. 28 And the people bowed and worshipped. And the Israelites went away, and did as Jehovah had commanded Moses and Aaron: thus did they. 29 And it was about midnight when Jehovah smote all the first-born in the land of Egypt, from the first-born of Pharaoh who sat on his throne, unto the first-born of the captive that was in the dungeon; and even 30 all the first-born of the beasts. Then Pharaoh arose in the night, he, and all his servants, and all the Egyptians; and there was a great cry throughout "the land of" Egypt; for there was not a house without one dead in it. 31 And "Pharaoh" called for Moses and Aaron by night, and said, Arise, depart from among my people, both ye and the Israelites; and go, serve Jehovah, as ye have said. 32 Take also your flocks and your herds, as ye said, and be gone; but also yet bless me. 33 For the Egyptians strongly urged that the people might speedily be sent out of the land; for else, said they, We are all dead men.

The people of Israel then took their dough, 34 before it was leavened, in their dough-bags, wrapt up in their clothes upon their shoulders. And the Israelites had done accord- 35 ing to the word of Moses. They had asked of the Egyptians articles of silver, and articles of gold, and raiment; And Jeho- 36 vah had given the people favour in the sight of the Egyptians, so that they gave them what they asked. Thus they spoiled the Egyptians.

Now the Israelites journeyed from Ra- 37 meses to Succoth; being about six hundred thousand men on foot, besides women and children. A mixed multitude went also 38 with them; and flocks, and herds, and other cattle, in great abundance. And they baked 39 unleavened cakes of the dough which they brought out of Egypt; for it had not been leavened, because the Egyptians had thrust them out, so that they could not delay; nor had they prepared any provision for themselves.

Now the time of the sojourning of the 40 Israelites "and of their fathers, which they had dwelt in the land of Canaan" and in Egypt, was four hundred and thirty years. And it came to pass at the end of four hun- 41 dred and thirty years, even on the selfsame day, that all the hosts of Jehovah went out from the land of Egypt. This is a night 42 which should be solemnly kept to Jehovah, for bringing them out of the land of Egypt; this is that night which all the Israelites throughout their generations should solemnly keep to Jehovah.

Again Jehovah said to Moses and Aaron, 43 This is the ordinance of the passover-sacrifice. Not any stranger shall eat of it; Nor 44 shall any man's servant, though bought with his money, until ye have circumcised him; then he may eat of it. A sojourner, 45 or a hired servant, shall not eat of it. In 46 one house shall it be eaten; ye shall not carry aught of the flesh abroad out of the house; nor a bone of it shall ye break. The 47 whole congregation of Israel shall keep it.

26, 27. The establishment of the Passover feast was wisely intended to keep up the remembrance of this great deliverance; and to be a type of a still greater one. [1 Cor. v. 7.]

29. First-born] See note on chap. xi. 5. This justifies the sense there given. 30. (a) Sept. Syr. 1 MS.

31. Called for Moses] That is, sent a message to them, by his servants; for after what is said before, it is not probable that they were admitted to another interview. (a) Sept. Syr. Vulg.

34. Dough-bags] The common version is kneading-troughs. Compare Exod. viii. 3, Deut. viii. 17. Pocock and Niebuhr have given the true sense of the term as denoting a bag for containing dough, which by rings can be drawn together, and is now carried on the shoulder or on camels. See Frag. Calmet, No. 697-8. But it means kneading-bowls, Deut. xxviii. 5.

37. Six hundred thousand] This, as well as other numbers in the whole of the Old Testament, is probably erroneous, arising from the ancient manner of notation. The learned reader may consult Frag. to Calmet, on the probable causes and sources of these errors; and it is to be hoped that some one will be able to remove or to correct them in a satisfactory manner—Women and children] Taylor has properly observed, that this term denotes both women and little ones. 39. Sam. Sept. Syr.

40. Four hundred and thirty years] From the preceding accounts it is clear, that the present Hebrew text is defective, and without the addition preserved in the Sam. and Sept. inconsistent with itself. The Sam. and Sept. are supported by Josephus and the best Jewish expositors. Compare Gal. iii. 17. (a) Sam. Sept.

47. Sept. Vulg. 9 MSS.

48 And if a stranger sojourn among you, and will keep the passover to Jehovah, let all his males be circumcised, and let him come near and keep it; and he shall be as one born in the land; but let not any uncircumcised person eat of it. One law shall there be for the native, and for the stranger 49 that sojourneth among you. Thus did all the Israelites; as Jehovah commanded Moses and Aaron, so did they.

CHAPTER XIII.

B. C. 1491. The first-born among the Israelites sanctified to God; the firstlings of beasts dedicated to him; they carry with them the bones of Joseph, and are guided by a pillar of cloud and fire.

1 AND it came to pass the selfsame day, that Jehovah brought the Israelites with their hosts out of the land of Egypt, That
2 Jehovah spoke to Moses, saying, Sanctify to me every first-born male; for the firstling of every womb among the Israelites whether of man or of beast, shall be mine.
3 Moses then said to his people, Remember this day, in which ye came out of "the land of Egypt," out of the house of bondage; for by a strong hand hath Jehovah hence
4 brought you out. Let nothing, therefore, leavened be eaten on this day on which ye came out, in the month of Abib.
5 And when Jehovah hath brought you into the land of the Canaanites, and the Hethites, and the Amorites, and the "Girgasites," and the Hivites, and the Jebusites, which he swore to your fathers that he would give to you, a land flowing with milk and honey, then in this month ye shall 6 observe the rites of this service. Seven days ye shall eat unleavened bread; and on the first, and on the seventh day shall be a 7 feast to Jehovah. Unleavened bread shall be eaten seven days; and let no leavened bread be seen among you, nor let there be leaven seen among you, throughout all your districts.
8 And in that day, ye shall tell your children, saying, This is done because of what Jehovah did for us, when we came out of 9 "the land" of Egypt. And let this rite be as a sign upon your hands, and as a memorial between your eyes, that the law of Jehovah may be in your mouth; for with a strong hand hath Jehovah brought you out of the land of Egypt. Ye shall, therefore, keep 10 this ordinance, in its season from year to year.

And it shall be when Jehovah "your God" 11 hath brought you into the land of the Canaanites, as he swore to your fathers, and hath given it to you, That ye shall set apart 12 to Jehovah every first-born of woman; and every firstling of the beasts, which belong to you, being males, shall be Jehovah's. But every firstling of an ass ye shall redeem 13 with a lamb or kid; and if ye will not redeem it, then ye shall break its neck; and every first-born among your children ye shall redeem.

And it shall be when your children ask 14 you, in time to come, saying, What meaneth this? that ye shall say to them, By a strong hand Jehovah brought us out "of the land of" Egypt, from the house of bondage. For 15 when Pharaoh would hardly let us go, Jehovah slew every male first-born in the land of Egypt, both the first-born of man, and the first-born of beasts; therefore we sacrifice to Jehovah every firstling of beasts, being males; but every first-born of our own children we redeem. Let this be "to you as" 16 a token upon your hands, and as frontlets between your eyes; for by a strong hand Jehovah brought you out of Egypt.

Now when Pharaoh had let the people 17 go, God did not lead them by the way of the land of the Philistines, although that was the nearest; for God said, Perhaps the people will repent when they see war, and return to Egypt. God, therefore, led the people 18 about by the way of the wilderness of the Red Sea; and the Israelites went, in regulated order, out of the land of Egypt. And 19 Moses took with him the bones of Joseph; for "Joseph" had strictly sworn the Israelites, saying, God will surely visit you; and ye shall carry up hence with you my bones.

And they journeyed from Succoth, and 20 encamped in Etham, "which is at" the extremity of the wilderness. And Jehovah 21 went before them, by day in a pillar of cloud, to lead them on the way; and by night, in a pillar of fire, to give them light;

CHAP. XIII. 2. The firstling] The word is so rendered elsewhere by James's translators.

3. (a) Sam. Sept. Syr. 5. (a) Sept.

6. On the first day] From chap. xii. 16, it is evident these words ought to be supplied; and probably once formed a part of the text. 8. (a) Sept.

9. The Targumists consider, that the words of this precept concerning the sanctification of the first-born, were to be written on scraps of parchment, or small pieces of linen, which they denominate Phylacteries. The Caraites admit no such practice; and it is probable, that this, like many other superstitious practices, owed its origin rather to a vain superstition than to any other cause. The sense of the place is, that these rites should perpetually admonish them concerning their duty, and remind them of the favours conferred on them. 11. (a) Sam. Sept. 2 MS.

12. Every first-born] The addition is implied in the text; but without it, the sense is not given.

13. Of an ass] This is an instance of an unclean animal, and stands for the whole class. These laws are given more at length afterwards. 14. (a) Sept. Vulg.

18. In regulated order] Purver renders, 'military order.' It is probable nothing more is meant, than that they proceeded, not in a confused and disorderly body, but in such order as their circumstances would admit. The editor of Calmet considers that they were under the guidance of five officers like a modern caravan. 19. (a) Sam.

and they were greatly afraid; and the Israelites cried out to Jehovah. And they 11 said to Moses, Because there were no graves in Egypt, hast thou brought us out to die in a wilderness? Wherefore hast thou done this to us, to bring us out of Egypt? Is not 12 this what we spoke to thee in Egypt, saying, Let us alone, "we pray thee," that we may serve the Egyptians? For it is better for us to serve the Egyptians, than that we should die in the wilderness.

Then Moses said to the people, Fear ye 13 not; stand still, and see the salvation of Jehovah, which he will this day work for you. For the Egyptians whom ye see to-day, ye shall not so see again for ever. Jehovah 14 shall fight for you, while ye shall remain still.

"Now Moses cried to Jehovah;" and Je- 15 hovah said to Moses, Wherefore criest thou to me? Speak to the Israelites that they go forward: And lift thou up thy rod, and 16 stretch out thine hand over the sea, and divide it; that the Israelites may go through the midst of the sea on dry ground. And 17 behold, I will suffer the heart of "Pharaoh and" the Egyptians to be hardened, so that they will follow them; and I will triumph over Pharaoh, and over all his hosts; over his chariots, and over his horsemen. And 18 "all" the Egyptians shall know that I am Jehovah, when I have triumphed over Pharaoh; over his chariots, and over his horsemen.

And the angel of God, who went before 19 the camp of the "Israelites," now removed and went behind them; and the pillar of cloud also removed from before them, and stood behind them. So it came between the camp 20 of the Egyptians and the camp of the Israelites; and it was a cloud of darkness to those, but it gave light by night to these; and during the whole night the one came not near the other. Moses then stretched 21 out his hand over the sea; and Jehovah

11. Nothing shows more the degraded spirit of this people, than their conduct to their distinguished leader. The Psalmist alludes to this fact, Psa. cvi. 7. 12. (a) Sam.

21, 22. If the passage of the Israelites was a little to the north of Suez, the distance from shore to shore being only a few miles, the whole of the Israelites might soon pass over. The miracle appears to be effected, not by an unusual ebb, aided by a north-east wind, but by the divine power condensing the waters of the sea, so that they became like a wall on each hand. It is said, that this strait is yet sometimes fordable, and Niebuhr informs us he passed it on horseback; it may be so, but how could Moses induce such a multitude, women and children, supposing the water three feet deep, to ford it? He tells us they went through the sea on dry ground; and no traveller has seen or related, so far as I know, that it is so now. All the circumstances prove the passage of the Red Sea strictly miraculous; and the attempt to account for it by natural means, caused the sea to flow off, by a strong east wind during the whole night; and he made the sea dry land, and the waters were divided. And the Israelites went through the midst of the sea upon dry ground; and the waters were like a wall to them on their right hand, and on their left.

23 And the Egyptians pursued and went after them into the midst of the sea; the whole cavalry of Pharaoh, his chariots, and his horsemen. And it was about the morning watch, when Jehovah looked on the host of the Egyptians through the pillar of fire and cloud, and troubled the host of the Egyptians; And "entangled" their chariot wheels, so that they drove them with difficulty. The Egyptians, therefore, said, Let us flee from the Israelites; for Jehovah fighteth for them against the Egyptians.

26 Then Jehovah said to Moses, Stretch out thine hand over the sea, that the waters may return upon the Egyptians; upon their chariots, and upon their horsemen. And Moses stretched forth his hand over the sea; and when the morning dawned, the sea returned in its strength, and met the Egyptians as they fled. Thus Jehovah overthrew the Egyptians in the midst of the sea. For the waters returned, and covered the chariots, and the horsemen; and all the forces of Pharaoh that came into the sea after them; there remained not so much as one of them. But the Israelites walked upon dry ground through the midst of the sea; and the waters were like a wall to them on their right hand and on their left. Thus Jehovah saved the Israelites on that day from the Egyptians; and the Israelites saw the Egyptians lying dead upon the sea shore. And when the Israelites saw the mighty power which Jehovah had exerted upon the Egyptians; then the people feared is sufficient to convince any reasonable person that it is so. The many references to this miracle in subsequent writers, prove that it was generally admitted. Compare Numb. xxxiii. 8; Psa. lxxvi; lxxviii. 13. Isa. lxiii. 13; 1 Cor. x. 1; Heb. xi. 29.

24. Morning watch] The Jews divided the night into three watches. The first from sunset till ten in the evening; the second from ten to two in the morning, and the third from two till sunrise. It was then about sunrise, that Jehovah, &c. From what the Psalmist says, it appears that God sent a thunder-storm on the Egyptians, Psa. lxxvii. 15—20.

31. Believed in Jehovah] By this last miracle, they saw their enemies destroyed; and they now believed in Jehovah as the only true God, and in Moses, as sent by him, and acting under his special authority.

CHAP. XV. 1. I will sing] I follow the text here, because the first person is used in the next verse, and for this reason I adopt the various reading verse 21. Most of the versions have the verb here in the plural, Let us sing, &c. This song has been deservedly admired, for the boldness of the imagery, the sublimity of the sentiments, and the dignity of the style. Those Christians who triumph over the 'beast,' the spiritual Pharaoh, are represented as singing this song, Rev. xv. 2—4.

2. Jehovah] The name in the Hebrew is Jah, which I suspect to be an error in the few places where it occurs, as either MSS. or versions read Jehovah.—Him will I extol] The common reading, 'I will prepare him an habitation' is so incongruous, that I adopt that given without hesitation. It consists in the change of one single letter for another, which is so nearly similar, that they are often exchanged in MSS. In the next verse I have adopted the Sam. text as conveying a more dignified idea.—My strength] The term my might have been rendered praise, as 1 Chron. xvi. 27; Psa. xxix. 1, 4, 5. The readings adopted, making God the agent, are much more poetical, and conformable to the Hebrew idiom. (v) Chald. Sept. Vat. Arab. 12 MSS.

3. (v) Sam. 4. (v) Sept. Syr. 5. (v) Sam. Sept.

8. This verse confirms the remark in the preceding chapter, that the miracle consisted in condensing the waters.

12. This verse is transposed after Green, as it completes the description of the overthrow of the Egyptian host. The meaning seems to be, they were as completely destroyed as if the earth had covered them.

- 11 Who among the gods is like thee, Jeho-
Who like thee excelling in holiness, [vah!

Pain shall seize the inhabitants of Palestine.
15 The princes of Edom shall then be amazed;
The mighty ones of Moab, horror shall seize:
All the inhabitants of Canaan shall melt away.
16 Fear and dread shall fall on them;
Through the greatness of thine arm
They shall become still as a stone;
Until thy people, O Jehovah, pass over,
Until the people thou hast purchased pass

18 Jehovah shall reign for ever and ever!
19 (For the horses of Pharaoh had gone with his chariots and his horsemen into the sea; and Jehovah had made the waters of the sea to return upon them; but the Israelites had walked on dry ground through the midst of the sea.)
20 And Miriam, a prophetess, the sister of Aaron, took a tabour in her hand; and all the women went out after her with tabours 21 and with timbrils. And 'to them' Miriam gave the song, saying,
Sing to Jehovah, for he is greatly exalted;
The horse and his rider hath he cast into the sea.
22 Then Moses journeyed with the Israelites from the Red Sea, and 'brought them' unto the wilderness of Shur; and they went 'a journey' of three days in the wilderness, 23 but found no water. For when they came to Marah, they could not drink of the waters of Marah, because they were bitter; therefore the name of it was called Marah [BIT-24 TERNNESS]. And the people murmured against Moses, saying, What shall we drink?

13. The present tense is adopted as expressing not only what God had done, but what he was still doing and intended to do.

17. The mountain] Judea was a mountainous country, and the whole country seems here intended, as being the 'inheritance of Jehovah,' or the country in which he would dwell; and called the sanctuary, the place consecrated by his presence.

20, 21. It is clear that this triumphant ode was sung by alternate choirs, but it is difficult now to make a proper distribution of the parts. Kennicott has given a division of this song in parts. To Moses he assigns ver. 1 and 2. Verse 3 is a chorus of men. Then Miriam, with a chorus of women repeats, O sing ye to Jehovah! Moses resumes and sings verses 4—8. The women repeat, O sing ye to Jehovah, &c. Moses then sings verses 9—13. The women repeat the same chorus. Moses sings verses 14—18. And a grand chorus by all, concludes with Jehovah shall reign for ever and ever. (v) Sept. Syr. Chald. Vulg.

And 'Moses' cried to Jehovah; and Jeho- 25 vah showed him a certain wood, which when he had cast into the waters, the waters were made sweet.

Here Jehovah appointed for them a statute and an ordinance, and here he proved them, And said, If ye will attentively hearken 26 to the voice of Jehovah your God, and will do what is right in his sight, and give ear to his commandments, and keep all his statutes; I will inflict none of those diseases upon you, which I inflicted upon the Egyptians; for I am Jehovah, your physician.

And they removed and came to Elim, 27 where were twelve fountains of water, and seventy palm-trees: and there they encamped by the waters.

CHAPTER XVI.

B. C. 1491. They come to Sin, and murmur for bread; God promises them bread; and quails and manna are sent; orders respecting the manna.

THEN the whole congregation of Israelites 1 removed from Elim and came unto the wilderness of Sin, which is between Elim and Sinai, on the fifteenth day of the second month, after their departure from the land of Egypt. And the whole congregation of 2 Israel murmured against Moses and Aaron in the wilderness; And the Israelites said 3 to them, O that we had died by the hand of Jehovah in the land of Egypt, when we sat by the flesh pots, and ate bread to the full; for ye have brought us into this wilderness, to kill this whole assembly by famine.

'Now Jehovah spoke to Moses, saying, 11
I have heard the murmurings of the Israelites: Speak to them, saying, At even ye shall eat flesh, and in the morning ye shall be filled with bread; and ye shall know that I am Jehovah your God.'

For behold, said Jehovah to Moses, I 4 will rain bread for you from the heavens; and the people shall go out and gather daily what is sufficient for the day, that I may prove them, whether they will walk by my 'laws,' or not. But on the sixth day they 5

25, 26. The statute and ordinance are what follows. They are to own Jehovah as their God by renouncing idols, receiving his word by Moses, as a divine revelation; and to render to him constant obedience. These are general moral precepts, and it is thought Jeremiah refers to them, vii. 22, 23 verses. (a) Sam. Sept. Syr.

27. These fountains yet exist; and Shaw informs us, that there are now more than 2000 palm-trees, the dates of which are excellent.

CHAP. XVI. 2. The Targums have given the most probable reason for this murmuring of Israel, by informing us, that on this day the bread which they had brought out of Egypt was consumed.

3. Flesh pots] It seems they enjoyed animal food in Egypt, and for this they now longed. After this verse I have transposed, with Houbigant, the 11th and 12th, as clearly being now out of their place, and confusing the narrative. 4. (v) Sam. Syr. Arab. Text law.

- shall prepare what they bring in ; and let it be twice as much as they gather daily.
- 6 And Moses and Aaron said to all the Israelites. At even ye shall know that Jehovah hath brought you out from the land of Egypt. For in the morning, ye shall see the glorious power of Jehovah ; in that he hath heard your murmurings against himself : for what are we, that ye should murmur against us ? And Moses said, This ye shall know when Jehovah giveth to you, at even, flesh to eat, and in the morning, bread to the full : for Jehovah heareth your murmurings which ye murmur against him : for what are we ? your murmurings are not against us only, but against Jehovah.
- 9 Moses then spoke to Aaron, Say to the whole congregation of Israel, Come near before Jehovah : for he hath heard your murmurings. And, as Aaron spoke to the whole congregation of Israel, it was that they looked towards the wilderness, and, behold, the glory of Jehovah appeared in the cloud.
- 13 Now in the evening a flight of quails came up, and covered the camp ; and in the morning there was a fall of dew round about the camp. And when the fall of dew was gone off, behold, there remained upon the surface of the wilderness something small and shining, small as the hoar frost on the earth. And when the children of Israel saw it, they said one to another, What is it ? [MAN-HU ?] For they knew not what it was. And Moses said unto them, This is the bread which Jehovah giveth you to eat.
- 16 This is the thing which Jehovah hath commanded, Gather of it every man according to his eating, an omer for every man ! According to the number of persons that are in his tent shall each of you take of it.
- 17 And the Israelites did so, and gathered, 18 some more, some less. And they measured it with an omer, that he who had gathered much might not exceed ; and that he who had gathered little might not want. They gathered every man according to his eating. And Moses said, Let no man leave of it 19 till the morning. But some of them hearkened not to Moses, and left of it until the morning ; and it bred worms and stunk ; and Moses was angry with them. So they 21 gathered it every morning, every man according to his eating ; for when the sun became hot, it melted away.

And on the sixth day they gathered twice 22 as much bread, two omers for each person, and all the chiefs of the congregation came and told Moses. And he said to them, This 23 is what Jehovah hath said, To-morrow is a sabbath of rest, holy to Jehovah. Bake what ye will bake to-day, and boil what ye will boil ; and all that remaineth lay up for yourselves, to be kept until the morning. And they laid it up till the morning as 24 Moses bade ; and it did not stink, nor was there any worm in it. And Moses said, 25 Eat it to-day ; for to-day is the sabbath, holy to Jehovah : ye will not find it to-day in the fields. Six days shall ye gather it ; 26 but on the seventh day, which is the sabbath, on it there shall none be found.

Yet there went out some of the people 27 on the seventh day to gather ; but they found none. And Jehovah said to Moses, 28 How long refuse ye to keep my commandments and my laws ? See, because that Jehovah hath given you the sabbath, therefore he giveth you on the sixth day the bread of two days. Abide ye every man in his place ; let no man go out of his place on the seventh day. So the people rested 30 on the seventh day. And the 'Israelites' 31 called the name of this food Manna. And it was whitish, like coriander seed ; and the taste of it was like wafers made with honey.

And Moses said, This is the thing which 32 Jehovah commandeth : Fill an omer of it

6. Ye shall know] That is, ye shall have another proof, that Jehovah alone hath brought you out.

7. Glorious power] So the term כבוד here evidently signifies. He refers to the giving of the quails and the manna.

13. Quails] Harmer, by a reference to those who have visited the country, informs us, that it is usual for a hot south wind to bring them from the north in large quantities—and being weary with flying, they may be taken with the hand ; and it is also usual to dry them in the sun.

14. Shining] I have followed the Samaritan translator in this version. Some render soft ; and others, very small.

15. What is this] The common version is absurd ; one part is opposed to another. Josephus says, man, in Hebrew, is a particle of interrogation. So the Greek translators understood it ; and from this question the manna derived its name. Abarbanel has stated the differences between this and what is now called manna. This is not found now in the desert of Sinai ; and where it does fall it is only in the spring ; but the manna God gave the Israelites fell through all the months of the year. Common manna does not melt with the heat of the sun, nor when kept breed worms as this did ; nor can it be ground so as to make cakes as this was ; it is not nutritious but medicinal and purgative.

Had it fallen naturally, it would have fallen on the sabbath as on other days ; but as to this a double quantity fell on the sixth and none on the seventh day. This followed them in all their journeys, nor ceased until they had entered Canaan. A pot of it was long preserved as a memorial of this astonishing miracle.

16. An omer] About six pints ; it was the tenth of the ephah.

20. It stunk] God gave them this bread daily, and except on the sixth day, they were only to take what they could use. Some ventured to transgress, but found themselves much disappointed.

23. To-morrow is the sabbath] Some would infer that the sabbath was now first appointed ; but the language seems to confirm the opinion, that it was a well-known custom. When God finished the work of creation he instituted it ; and now by withholding the manna on that day, he renewed the observance of it, in a more strict manner ; and at Sinai made it a special law. Of such importance was the sabbath deemed.

26. None shall be found] This proves the miraculous nature of this bread ; compare Psa. lxxviii. 24, 25.

31. (v) Sept. Syr. Arab. 5 MSS.

to be kept throughout your generations ; that they may see the bread with which I fed you in the wilderness, when I brought you out of the land of Egypt. And Moses said to Aaron, Take a "golden" urn, and put a full omer of manna therein, and lay it up before Jehovah, to be kept throughout your generations. As Jehovah commanded Moses, so Aaron laid it up beside the testimonial tables, to be kept. And the Israelites ate manna forty years, until they came to an inhabited land ; they ate manna, until they came unto the borders of the land of Canaan. Now an omer is the tenth part of an ephah.

CHAPTER XVII.

B. C. 1491. The people murmur at Rephidim ; water given from the rock at Horeb ; Amalek overcome, and an altar erected to Jehovah.

1 AND the whole congregation of Israel, removed from the wilderness of Sin, by their journeys according to the command of Jehovah, and encamped in Rephidim ; and there was no water for the people to drink. 2 Wherefore the people contended with Moses, and said, Give us water that we may drink. And Moses said to them, Why do ye contend with me ? and why do ye tempt Jehovah ? But the people thirsted there for water ; and the people murmured against Moses, and said, Wherefore hast thou brought us up from Egypt, to kill us, and our children, and our cattle, with thirst ? 4 And Moses cried to Jehovah, saying, What shall I do with this people ? In a little while they will stone me. And Jehovah said to Moses, Go on before the people, and take with thee some of the elders of Israel ; and thy rod, with which thou smotest the river, take in thine hand, and pass on. Behold, I will await there upon the rock in Horeb ; and thou shalt smite the rock, and water shall come out of it, that the people may drink. And Moses did so in the sight of the elders of Israel. And he called the name of the place Massah [TEMPTATION] ; and Meribah [CONTENTION], because of the contention of the Israelites, and because they tempted Jehovah, saying, Is Jehovah among us, or not ?

Then came the Amalekites to fight with the Israelites in Rephidim. And Moses said to Joshua, Choose out men, and go, fight with the Amalekites, to-morrow ; and I will stand on the top of the hill with the rod of God in mine hand. So Joshua did 10 as Moses had said to him, and "went to" fight with the Amalekites ; and Moses, Aaron, and Hur, went up to the top of the hill. And it came to pass, when Moses held 11 up his hands, that the Israelites prevailed ; and when he let down his hands, the Amalekites prevailed. And the hands of Moses 12 being heavy they took a stone, and put it under him, and he sat thereon ; while Aaron and Hur supported his hands, the one on the one side, and the other on the other side ; and his hands were kept steady until the going down of the sun. And Joshua defeated 13 the people of Amalek, "and smote them" with the edge of the sword. And Jehovah 14 said to Moses, Write this for a memorial in a book, and rehearse it in the hearing of Joshua. That I will certainly blot out the very remembrance of Amalek from under the heavens. And Moses built an altar, 15 and called the name of it JEHOVAH-NISSI [JEHOVAH IS MY BANNER]. And he said, 16 Because this shall be known as my banner of the war which Jehovah will have with Amalek from generation to generation.

CHAPTER XVIII.

B. C. 1491. Jethro bringeth to Moses his wife and sons ; his counsel, which Moses follows ; his departure to Midian.

Now Jethro, the priest of Midian, the father-in-law of Moses, heard of all that God had done for Moses, and for Israel his people, and that Jehovah had brought "Israel" out of Egypt. Then Jethro, the father-in-

CHAP. XVII. 1. According to the command They journeyed according as the pillar of cloud removed.—In Rephidim Two stations are here omitted, because nothing of moment occurred. Numb. xxxiii. 12—14.

2. Tempt Jehovah That is, why do ye distrust the divine power or goodness ? Has not God often relieved you, and is he not able and willing to do so now ?

4. In a little while Strange, that their mutinous disposition should thus break out against their distinguished leader and intercessor.

6. The rock in Horeb This rock is now shown to travellers, and is a block of red granite, with channels in it, which the water is said to have made. The water must have been copious to supply so many ; and must have flowed for some time, as they remained encamped here more than a year.

10. (a) Sept. Syr.

11. Held up his hands This cannot be understood literally ; for how could the hands of Moses have any influence on the battle ? Moses held them up in prayer ; and it was his intercession which God regarded, and on account of which he gave the people victory. 13. (a) Sam.

16. The version given arises from combining the letters of the text in a different manner. See note Heb. Bible.

CHAP. XVIII. 1. Now Jethro This whole chapter is evidently out of its proper place, and interrupts the narrative. What is here related did not occur until after Moses had encamped at Sinai, ver. 5 ; and after he had received and given to the people the laws and ordinances. Dr. Lightfoot refers what is here related to the second year after the Exodus, and would insert this story after the 10th verse of the 10th chapter of Numbers. See Deut. 1. 6. 9. 10. 12. 15. (a) Syr. Arab.

2. After she had been sent back For what reason Zipporah and her children had been sent back, we are not informed. Perhaps the dangers and difficulties law of Moses took Zipporah¹ the wife of 3 Moses, after she had been sent back, And her two sons ; of whom the name of one was Gershom [A STRANGER HERE], because his father said, I have been a stranger in a 4 foreign land : And the name of the other was Eliezer [GOD MY HELP], because his father said, The God of my father hath helped me, and delivered me from the hand 5 of Pharaoh : And Jethro, the father-in-law of Moses, came to Moses with his sons and his wife into the wilderness, where he was 6 encamped by the great mountain. And it was said to Moses, Behold thy father-in-law Jethro cometh to thee, and thy wife, and 7 her two sons with her. Then Moses went out to meet his father-in-law, and did obeisance, and kissed him ; and they asked each other of their welfare ; and then went into 8 the tent. And Moses told his father-in-law all that Jehovah had done to Pharaoh, and to the Egyptians for the sake of Israel, and all the trouble which they had met with on the way, and how Jehovah had delivered 9 them. And Jethro rejoiced for all the good which Jehovah had done to the Israelites, whom he had delivered from the hand of 10 the Egyptians and of Pharaoh. And Jethro said, Blessed be Jehovah, who hath delivered you from the hand of the Egyptians, and from the hand of Pharaoh ; who hath delivered the people from under the hand of the Egyptians, because in every thing they dealt haughtily with them.

 11 Now I know that Jehovah is greater than 12 all other gods ! And Jethro, the father-in-law of Moses, brought a burnt-offering and other sacrifices to God ; and Aaron came, and all the elders of Israel, to eat bread with the father-in-law of Moses, before God.
 13 Now on the morrow, Moses sat to judge the people ; and the people stood about Moses from the morning until the evening.
 14 And when Moses' father-in-law saw all that he did to the people, he said, What is this thing that thou doest to the people ? Why sittest thou thyself alone, while all the people stand about thee from the morning until the 15 evening ? And Moses said to his father-in-law, Because the people come to me to inquire 16 of God. When they have any cause, they come unto me ; and I judge between a man and his neighbour, and make known "to them" the statutes of God and his laws.
 17 And the father-in-law of Moses said to him,

What thou doest is not proper. Thou wilt 18 certainly be worn down, both thou and this people that are with thee ; for this thing is too heavy for thee ; thou art not able alone to perform it. Hearken now to my voice. 19
 I will give thee counsel, and God will be with thee. Be thou only between the people and God, and bring their causes to God ;
 And teach them his ordinances and laws ; 20 and show them the way in which they must walk, and the work which they must do.
 Also look out, among all the people, for 21 men of integrity, such as fear God ; men of fidelity, hating lucre ; and appoint these over them, rulers of thousands, rulers of hundreds, rulers of fifties, and rulers of tens ;
 And let them judge the people at all times ; 22 yet let it be so that every great matter they shall bring unto thee, and every small matter they shall judge. So will it be easier for thyself, when they shall bear the burden with thee. If thou wilt do this thing, and 23 God so command thee, then thou shalt be able to endure and all this people shall go in safety to their own place.

And Moses hearkened to the voice of his 24 father-in-law, and did all that he had said.
 And Moses said to the people, I am not able alone to bear the charge of you. Jehovah your God hath so multiplied you, that, behold ! ye are this day as the stars of the heavens for multitude ! (May Jehovah the God of your fathers, make you a thousand times as many more, and bless you as he hath spoken.) How can I alone bear the tiresome charge of you and your contentions ?
 Choose ye wise and prudent men, and approved among your tribes, that I may appoint them for your chiefs. And they answered and said, The thing thou hast proposed is proper to be done. So he took 25 the principal men of their tribes, men wise and approved, and made them chiefs over them, rulers of thousands, rulers of hundreds, rulers of fifties, and rulers of tens ; and other officers throughout their tribes. And he charged their judges, saying, Hear the causes between your brethren ; and judge justly between a man and his brother, or the stranger who is with him. Ye shall not respect persons in judgment ; ye shall alike hear the small and great ; nor shall ye be afraid of the face of man ; for the judgment is God's. The cause which is too hard for you ye shall bring to me, and I will hear which Moses foresaw rendered this step both prudent and necessary.

11. I have removed, with Geddes, the latter clause of this verse to the conclusion of the preceding, as giving a reason for their deliverance.

13—24. The advice of Jethro displays considerable knowledge of human nature, of law and justice. It was as prudent as it was politic. By distributing civil power, it is increased and preserved. After this verse I have adopted the Samaritan, as containing a more full account than the text ; and as it is supported by the text, Deut. i. 9—16.

it. And he charged them respecting all 26 things which they were to do." So they judged the people at all times; and the hard causes they brought to Moses, but every small matter they judged themselves.

27 Moses now let his father-in-law depart; and he went into his own land.

CHAPTERS XIX. XX.

B. C. 1491. The Israelites come to Sinai; God's message to them, and their answer; their preparation for receiving the law, and God's awful presence on the mount, &c. The ten commandments given; the people are afraid; Moses encourageth them; idolatry forbidden.

1 ON the third month from the going out of the Israelites from the land of Egypt, on the first day they came into the wilderness of Sinai. For when they departed from Rephidim, they came to the wilderness; there the Israelites encamped before the 3 mountain. And Moses went up to God, and Jehovah called to him from the mountain, saying, Thus shalt thou say to the house of Jacob, and declare to the Israelites: 4 Ye have seen what I did to the Egyptians, and how I have borne you as on eagles' wings, and brought you hither to myself. Now therefore, if ye will indeed obey my voice, and keep my covenant, then ye shall be to me a peculiar treasure above all people. 5 For though the whole earth be mine; Yet ye shall be to me a kingdom of priests, and a holy nation. These are the words which thou shalt speak to the Israelites. 6 And Moses went and called for the elders of the people, and laid before them all these things which Jehovah had commanded him. 7 And all the people answered with one accord, and said, All that Jehovah hath spoken we will do. And Moses reported the words of the people to Jehovah. 8 Now Jehovah said to Moses, Lo, I come to thee in a thick cloud, that the people may hear when I speak with thee, and believe thee for ever. And Moses having told the words of Jehovah to the people; Jehovah 10 then said to Moses, 'Go to the people, and sanctify them to-day and to-morrow, and let them wash their clothes, And be ready 11 against the third day; for on the third day Jehovah will come down, in the sight of all the people, upon Mount Sinai. And set 12 thou a boundary round about the mountain, and "speak to" the people, saying, Take heed to yourselves, that ye go not up to the mountain or touch its borders. Who-soever toucheth the mountain shall surely die. Let not an hand touch him, but let 13 him surely be stoned, or shot through. Whether it be beast or man, he shall not live. When the trumpet "hath ceased," they may come up to the mountain.

And Moses went down from the mountain 14 to the people, and sanctified the people; and they washed their clothes. And he 15 said to the people, Be ready against the third day. Approach not your wives.

And it was on the third day in the morn- 16 ing, that there were thunders and lightnings, and a thick cloud upon the mount; and a sound as of a trumpet, exceedingly loud; so that all the people that were in the camp trembled. And Moses brought forth the 17 people out of the camp to meet with God; and they stood at the nether parts of the mountain. And mount Sinai was wholly 18 on a smoke, because Jehovah had descended on it in fire; and the smoke of it ascended as the smoke of a furnace, and the whole mountain trembled exceedingly. And when 19 the sound as of a trumpet grew stronger and stronger, Moses spoke, and God answered him by a voice.

Thus Jehovah descended on mount Sinai, 20

CHAP. XIX. 1. On the first day] Literally, 'that day.' It is allowed that the sense is that given. The deliverance from Egypt was one of the most important events to the Israelites as a nation, and forms a peculiar epocha in their history. From this they date, as the Mahometans from the Hegira, or flight of their prophet from Mecca.

3. Went up to God] The cloud, which had conducted the Israelites, it is probable now covered the mountain; and to it Moses approached.

4. Borne you] This metaphor is peculiarly expressive. God had not only borne with them, but borne them above all their difficulties, as the eagle her young, affording them protection and continued support.—Brought you to myself] to be under my peculiar guidance and care.

5, 6. Submission to God and keeping his covenant are the terms on which he engages to take them as a peculiar treasure, as most dear to him; and promises that they should be a 'kingdom of priests,' shall all have the rights and privileges of priests, be taught the will of God, participate in the sacrifices, and be near to him. Compare 1 Pet. ii. 5, 9; Rev. i. 6.—A holy nation] One people, united under the same laws, and holy, separated from all the idolatrous nations.

8. And all the people] They were consulted by their elders and leaders; and solemnly consented to the terms of the proposed covenant.—Moses returned] He went with joy, no doubt, to report to God the consent and agreement of the people.

9. In a thick cloud] Compare verse 18. And from this appearance of God the heathens ascribed similar appearances to their gods, as we learn from Homer, Virgil, and others.—That the people may hear] This was the strongest evidence of the divine mission of Moses, which the people could receive.

10. Sanctify them] That is, Moses was to command certain ablutions, and to separate the people for the solemn transaction.

12. Houbigant prefers the Sam. lection, and properly observes, that as the text now stands it implies that boundaries were fixed not round the mount only, but the whole camp of the Israelites, which is wholly opposed to the design for which the command was given. (v) Sam. MS. (a) Sept. Syr.

13. Hath ceased] So the Syr. and the Chald. and Sept. are agreeable to this sense. (v) Sam. Sept. Syr. MSS.

15. Approach not your wives] Kennicott would render, 'approach not the fire;' meaning the fiery cloud, which covered the mountain. Compare Deut. v. 4, 5, 22—25. All the versions agree with the text, and as matrimonial converse was sometimes prohibited, I see not any necessity for the alteration proposed.

19. By a voice] That is, vocally or in articulated words, which all the people heard or understood.

on the top of the mountain; and Jehovah called Moses to the top of the mountain; 21 and Moses went up. Jehovah then said to Moses, Go down, charge the people, lest they break through to gaze upon Jehovah, 22 and many of them perish. And let the chiefs also, who come near to Jehovah, sanctify themselves, lest Jehovah break forth 23 upon them. And Moses said to Jehovah, The people cannot come up to mount Sinai; for thou didst charge us, saying, Set a boundary round about the mountain, and 24 separate it. But Jehovah said to him, Away, go down; and come up again, thou, and Aaron "thy brother" with thee; but let not the chiefs of the people break through to come up to Jehovah, lest he break forth 25 upon them. So Moses went down "from the mountain" to the people and spoke to them.

- 1 THEN God spoke all these words, saying,
- 2 I am Jehovah thy God, who have brought thee out of the land of Egypt, out of the
- 3 house of bondage. Thou shalt have no other gods besides me.
- 4 Thou shalt not make to thyself a carved image, or any likeness of what is in the heavens above, or of what is on the earth beneath, or of what is in the waters under the earth: Thou shalt not bow thyself down to them; for I, Jehovah thy God, am a jealous God, punishing the iniquity of fathers, upon the children unto the third and fourth
- 6 generation, when they hate me; But showing mercy to a thousand generations, when they love me and keep my commandments.
- 7 Thou shalt not take the name of Jehovah thy God in vain; for Jehovah will not acquit him who taketh his name in vain.

Remember the sabbath-day, so as to keep 8 it holy. Six days thou mayest labour, and 9 do all thy work; But the seventh-day is the 10 sabbath of Jehovah thy God; "on it" thou shalt not do any work; "neither" thou, nor thy son, nor thy daughter, nor thy man-servant, nor thy maid-servant, "nor thine ox, nor thine ass," nor any of thy cattle, nor even the stranger who is within thy gates. For in six days Jehovah made the heavens 11 and the earth, and the sea, with all that is in them; but on the seventh day he rested: wherefore Jehovah blessed the sabbath-day, and hallowed it.

Honour thy father and thy mother; "that 12 it may be well with thee, and" that thy days may be prolonged on the land which Jehovah thy God giveth to thee.

Now all the people "heard the thunder- 18 ings," and the sound as of a trumpet, and they saw the lightnings, and the mountain smoking. And all the people were afraid; and stood afar off. And they said to Moses, 19 "Lo! our God hath showed us his great glory; and we have heard his voice from

22. Chiefs] So I have rendered, as it is well known that the term כֹּהֲנִים denotes equally priests or princes. The 24th verse supports this sense, as we are sure that the chiefs or elders must have been present with the people on this occasion. Aaron is allowed to go up with Moses, but the other elders are at present forbid. These elders might be called כֹּהֲנִים, because, like the patriarchs, they were accustomed to offer sacrifices for their families, previous to the legal priesthood. 24. (a) Syr. 1 MS.

25. (a) Sam. 1 MS.
CHAP. XX. 1. Then God] It is manifest, the law or ten commands was audibly given by Jehovah from the mountain. These 'ten commands' are called 'the Decalogue,' or the 'ten words,' as Moses calls them, Deut. iv. 13, and 'His Covenant.' These laws have been divided into two tables; the first containing our duty to God; the second, our duty to our neighbour.

3. Besides me] So the Greek translators render, and the design and connexion support this version. Jehovah, as the only true God, forbids any of the pretended heathen gods to be associated with him.

4. Carved] There is evident reference in this command to the objects which the heathens worshipped. This command is explained Deut. iv. 15-19; where any likeness of man or woman, beast, bird, reptile, and fish is prohibited.

5. Punishing] The crime mentioned is idolatry, and idolaters are the haters of Jehovah. Jealous of his own honour, and for the happiness of his people, he threatens idolaters with severe punishments; and for this offence what judgments fell on the Israelites!

7. In vain] Bishop Law renders, 'thou shalt not use the name of the Lord, thy God, in a falsehood.' The sense is, 'Thou shalt not swear by it falsely, nor use it irreverently; thou shalt not trifle with it in worship nor common discourse.'

8-11. The text both here and Deut. v. 14, is defective. The Sam. has preserved what is wanting to complete the sense. The same reason is now assigned for the observance of the sabbath, as is given Gen. ii. 2; so that it had been appointed from the beginning. Labour on the six days is as much commanded as rest on the sabbath. No work should be done on the sabbath which can be done before, or with propriety deferred till after. Works of necessity, kindness, and mercy are excepted, or rather they form a proper part of the duties of that day.

10. (a) Versions. (a) Sept. Deut. iv. 14.

12. Honour] This implies, 'affection for them, due submission to them, and a readiness to contribute, when necessary, to their support.' This is the first command to which God has annexed a promise, Eph. vi. 2. (a) Sept. Deut. v. 16.

13. Thou shalt not] This not only prohibits actual murder, under whatever pretence, such as war for extending territory, commerce, &c.; sanguinary laws, making trifling faults, or a difference in religious opinion, capital; but all hatred and malice, which lead man to injure and kill one another.

14-17. Fidelity in married life; honesty, and a just regard to the rights and property of others, are in these precepts commanded. In the last verse the order of Deut. v. 18 is followed, as the Sept. yet retains it here. (a) Sam. Deut. v. 18. 18. (v) Sam.

19. Lo, Jehovah] This addition to the text is absolutely necessary to justify what Moses asserts in rehearsing the law, Deut. v. 21-24. (a) Sam.

amidst the lightning. This day we have seen, that God may speak with man, and yet he may live. But now, why should we die? For if we hear the voice of Jehovah our God any longer, that awful lightning will consume us, and we shall die. For who, of all flesh hath heard the voice of the living God, speaking from amidst the lightning, as we have done, and hath lived? Approach then, and hear all that Jehovah our God shall say; all that Jehovah our God shall say, speak thou to us; and we will hear and do it; but let not God speak 20 with us lest we die." And Moses said to the people, Fear not; for God is come to prove you, to the end that his fear may be 21 upon you, that ye sin not. So the people stood afar off; and Moses drew near to the thick darkness where God was.

"Then Jehovah spoke to Moses, saying, I have heard the voice of the words of this people which they have spoken to thee. All which they have spoken is proper. O that such an heart may be in them, that they would fear me, and keep my commandments continually, that it may be well with them, and with their children for ever! For I will raise up to them a prophet, like thee, from among their own brethren; and I will put my words in his mouth, and he shall speak to them whatsoever I command him. And should there be one, who will not hearken to his words, which he shall speak in my name, I will call him to account for it. But the prophet, who shall presume to speak a word in my name, which I have not commanded him to speak, or who shall speak in the name of other gods; that prophet shall die. And if ye say in your hearts, How shall ye know the word which Jehovah hath not spoken? If what the prophet saith in the name of Jehovah, be a thing which cometh not to pass, this is a thing which Jehovah hath not spoken. The prophet hath spoken it presumptuously; be not afraid of him.

Go now and say to them, Return to your tents; but do thou abide here with me, that I may tell thee all the commandments, the statutes, and the ordinances which thou shalt teach them; and which they shall observe in the land which I give to them for an inheritance."

Again Jehovah said to Moses, Thus shalt thou say unto the Israelites, Ye have seen that from the heavens I have talked with you. Ye shall not make gods of silver; nor shall ye make for yourselves gods of gold.

An altar of earth shall ye make to me, and shall sacrifice thereon your burnt-offerings, and your feast-offerings; "whether" from your flocks or your herds. And in whatsoever place I record my name, "thither" I will come to you, and bless you. But if ye will make to me an altar of stone, ye shall not build it of hewn stones; for if ye but lay your tool upon it, ye will pollute it. Nor shall ye go up by steps to mine altar, lest on it your nakedness be discovered.

CHAPTERS XX. XXI.

B. C. 1491. Various civil laws respecting servants, manslaughter, filial disobedience, &c. Laws regarding theft, damage, trespasses; fornication, and other crimes, &c. Laws regarding slander and false witness; the year of rest; the sabbath, idolatry.

Now these are the ordinances which thou shalt set before them. When ye buy an Hebrew servant, six years he shall serve "you;" but in the seventh, he shall be at liberty to go out free. If he came in single, single shall he go out; if he were married, then his wife shall go out with him. But if his master have given to him a wife, and she have borne to him sons or daughters; the wife and her children shall be her master's; and he shall go out single. But if the servant shall plainly say, I love my master, and my wife, and my children; I will not go out free; Then shall his master bring him to the judges; he shall also bring him to the door, or to the door post; and his master shall bore his ear through with an awl; and he shall serve him for ever.

And if a man sell his daughter to be a maid-servant, she shall not go out as the men-servants go out. If she please not her master, "so that he will not betroth her," then shall he let her be redeemed. He shall not have power to sell her to a foreign nation because he despiseth her. But if he have betrothed her to his son, he shall deal with her after the manner of daughters. If he take to himself another beside her, her food, her raiment, and her marriage-due, shall he not diminish. And if he perform 11

6. Though Moses allowed a species of slavery, it was mild, compared with those of feudal times; it was only a longer time of service. The custom of boring the ear, Bochart has proved, prevailed in Syria and among the Arabs. It was designed to show, that such servant was attached to the house; but not in the same manner as the Villani were to the soil; for when the master died such servant was free.

not these three to her, then shall she go out free without money.

12 He that smiteth a man, so that he die, shall surely be put to death. But if he do it not with design, but God deliver him into his hand; then I will appoint you a place whither he shall flee. But when a man dealeth wickedly with his neighbour by slaying him through guile; even from mine altar ye shall take him, that he may be put to death.

15 He who smiteth his father, or his mother, shall surely be put to death. And he that curseth his father or his mother shall surely be put to death.

16 Moreover, he who stealeth an Israelite that he may sell him; and he be found with him, shall surely be put to death.

18 And if men quarrel, and one strike another with a stone, or with his fist, and he die not, but keep his bed; If he rise again, and walk abroad upon his staff, then shall he that struck him be acquitted; only he shall pay for the loss of his time, and see him thoroughly healed.

20 And if a man smite his man-servant, or his maid-servant with a rod, and he die under his hand; he shall surely be punished.

21 But, if the servant continue a day or two, he shall not be punished; for he is purchased with his money.

22 If men quarrel, and hurt a woman with child, so that she miscarry, without other mischief; he shall surely pay such a fine as the woman's husband shall lay upon him; and he shall pay it before the judges. And if mischief hath been done, then shall he give life for life, Eye for eye, tooth for tooth, hand for hand, foot for foot, Burning for burning, wound for wound, bruise for bruise.

26 And if a man strike the eye of his man-servant, or the eye of his maid-servant, so as to destroy it; he shall let him go free for the sake of his eye. And if he strike out his man-servant's tooth, or his maid-servant's tooth, he shall let him go free for the sake of his tooth.

28 If an ox gore a man or woman, so that they die; then the ox shall surely be stoned, and his flesh shall not be eaten; but the owner of the ox shall be acquitted. But if the ox were wont to push with his horn in time past, and it was made known to his owner, and he hath not kept him in, and hath killed a man or a woman; the ox shall be stoned, and his owner also shall be put to death. If there be laid on him a sum of 30 money, then he shall give for the ransom of his life, whatsoever is laid on him. Whether 31 his ox have gored a son or a daughter, according to this ordinance shall it be done unto him. If the ox shall gore a man-ser- 32 vant or a maid-servant, he shall give unto their master, thirty shekels of silver, and the ox shall be stoned.

And if a man shall open a pit, or if a man 33 shall dig a pit, and not cover it, so that an ox or an ass fall into it; The owner of the 34 pit shall give a recompense in money to their owner; and the beast shall be his.

And if one man's ox hurt another's, that 35 he die; then they shall sell the living ox, and divide the price of it; and the dead ox also they shall divide. Or if it be known 36 that the ox hath used to push in time past, and his owner hath not kept him in; he shall surely pay ox for ox; but the dead one shall be his own.

If a man steal an ox or a sheep, and kill 1 it, or sell it; he shall restore five oxen for an ox, and four sheep for a sheep. If a thief 2 be found breaking in, and one smite him, so that he die, he is not guilty of bloodshed. If the sun be risen upon him, he is then 3 guilty of bloodshed; he shall surely make satisfaction. If the thief have nothing, then he shall be sold for his theft. If what he 4 stole, be indeed found with him alive, whether it be ox, or ass, or sheep, he shall restore two for one

If a man waste another's field or vine- 5 yard, or shall send his cattle, that they may waste another's field, "from his own field and his own vineyard he shall make full restitution according to the produce; and if he have wasted the whole field or vineyard," with the best of his own field, and the best of his own vineyard, shall he make restitution.

If a fire break forth and catch among 6 thorns, so that stacks, or standing corn, or a field be consumed; he that kindled the fire shall surely make compensation.

If a man deliver to his neighbour money, 7 or utensils to keep, and they be stolen out of the man's house; if the thief be found, let him pay double. If the thief be not found, 8 then the master of the house shall be brought to the judges to see whether he have not put his hand on his neighbour's goods.

22. Pay it before the judges] The Sept. and Samaritan version render, 'He shall pay with apologies or entreaties. The more usual sense of the word פללי is that given; and the preposition ב often signifies before. Moses ordered the fine to be paid before judges or arbitrators, to prevent future demands.

CHAP. XXII. 2, 3. It is clearly the design of the law to guard the life of man. Hence if the sun were up, the thief might be seized, but not put to death by the individual who detected him, without recourse to the judges. In this case he who put him to death was guilty of bloodshed, and must make satisfaction.

4. If the thief] That this is understood is evident, for this cannot refer to the person who seizes him, but must refer to the thief.

5. (a) Sam. Sept.

- 9 And in every matter of trespass, whether it be concerning ox, ass, sheep, raiment, or any other lost thing, which one challengeth to be his; the cause of both parties shall come before the judges; and he whom the judges shall condemn, shall pay double to his neighbour. If a man deliver to his neighbour to keep, an ass, or an ox, or a sheep, or any other beast, and it die, or be hurt, or driven away, no one seeing; Then shall an oath of Jehovah be given by the one to the other, that he hath not put his hand on his neighbour's goods; and the owner of it shall accept his oath, and he shall not make compensation. And if it be stolen from him, he shall make restitution unto the owner of it. If it have been torn in pieces, he shall bring a testimony of the tearing, but shall not make compensation.
- 14 And if a man borrow a beast of his neighbour, and it be hurt or die, (the owner of it not being with it,) he shall surely make compensation; But if the owner of it were with it, he shall not make compensation. If the beast were an hireling, it came for its hire.
- 16 And if a man seduce a virgin that is not betrothed, and lie with her; he shall surely pay her dowry, and make her his wife. If her father utterly refuse to give her to him, he shall pay the money according to the dowry of virgins.
- 18 'SORCERERS ye shall not' suffer to live.
- 19 Whosoever lieth with a beast shall surely be put to death.
- 20 He that sacrificeth to gods, save to Jehovah only, shall be utterly destroyed.
- 21 A SOJOURNER ye shall not afflict or oppress; for ye were sojourners in the land of Egypt.
- 22 Ye shall not afflict any widow or orphan;
- 23 For if ye afflict them in any wise, and they cry aloud to me, I will surely hear their cry;
- 24 And my wrath shall become hot, and I will kill you with the sword; and your wives shall be widows, and your children orphans.
- 25 If ye lend money to your poor neighbour, of my people, ye shall not be to him an usurer, nor shall ye lay interest upon him.
- 26 If ye at all take your neighbour's mantle for a pledge, when the sun goeth down return it to him. For it may be his only covering; his mantle to cover his nakedness. In what else shall he sleep? For when he crieth to me, I will hear him; for I am gracious.

Ye shall not revile the judges, nor curse a ruler among your people.

The first of your ripe fruits, the first run of your presses, ye shall not withhold from me. The first-born of your sons shall ye also give to me. Thus shall ye do to the firstlings of your herds and your flocks: seven days they shall be with their dams; on the eighth day ye shall give them to me.

And ye shall be men hallowed to me; and flesh that hath been torn in the fields, ye shall not eat; ye shall cast it to the dogs.

Ye shall not keep up a false report; nor join hands with the wicked to become unrighteous witnesses.

Ye shall not follow a multitude to do evil; nor shall ye, when ye have to answer in a cause, incline to the multitude, so as to swerve from the truth. Nor shall ye countenance even a poor man in his cause.

If ye meet your enemy's ox, or his ass, or any other beast going astray ye shall surely bring it back to him. If ye see the ass of one that hateth you lying under his burden ye shall not forbear to help him; ye shall surely help up with him.

Ye shall not wrest judgment in a poor man's cause. Keep yourselves far from a false matter; and slay not the innocent and the righteous, nor justify the wicked. Ye shall not receive a bribe; for a bribe blindeth the eyes of the wise, and perverteth the decisions of the just. Also a sojourner ye shall not oppress; for ye know the mind of a sojourner, since ye were sojourners in the land of Egypt.

Six years ye shall sow your land, and gather its produce; But the seventh year ye shall let it rest and lie fallow; that the poor of your people may eat; and what they leave, let the beasts of the field eat. In like manner ye shall do with your vineyards and with your olive yards. Six days shall ye do your work, but on the seventh day ye shall rest; that your man-servants and maid-servants may rest as well as yourselves; all

11. Oath of Jehovah] That is, an appeal to Jehovah shall be made, to put an end to strife.

16, 17. Her dowry] This was fifty shekels. Compare Deut. xxii. 23, 29.

18. (v) Sept. Syr. Vulg.

20. Save to Jehovah] The Sam. and Septuagint have, 'Ye shall not sacrifice to strange gods,' which Houbigant prefers, and thinks, 'save to Jehovah,' a marginal gloss.

31. Cast it to the dogs] Samaritan renders, 'Ye shall surely cast it away;' the other versions read as the text.

CHAP. XXIII. 2. The multitude] Purver and Geddes render, 'The Great.' The word will admit either version.

7. I have followed the Sept. as here preferable, because the precept regards the administration of justice; and this reading is supported by parallel places, Deut. xxv. 1, &c.

8. Decisions of the just] As this refers to judicial process, the term דבר cannot here mean simply words, but the decisions, which just judges have made on similar causes. A bribe leads a man, by chicanery, to pervert these decisions and to colour over injustice and oppression. (a) Sam.

- 13 your cattle also and the stranger. And whatsoever I have said to you shall ye observe; but the name of other gods ye shall not mention; let it not be heard from your mouth.
- 14 Three times in the year ye shall keep to me a feast. First ye shall keep the feast of unleavened bread; seven days shall ye eat unleavened bread, as I have commanded you, at the time appointed in the month Abib; (for in it you came out of Egypt;) and none shall appear before me empty.
- 16 And next the feast of harvest, the first-fruits of your labours, of what you have sown in your fields. And lastly the feast of ingathering, at the end of the year, when you have gathered in from the fields, the fruits of your labours. Three times in the year all your males shall appear before 'Jehovah, your God;' "when I have cast out the nations from before you, and enlarged your borders."
- 18 Ye shall not offer the blood of my sacrifice with leavened bread; nor shall the fat of my sacrifice remain until the morning.
- 19 The choice of the first-fruits of your land, ye shall bring to the house of Jehovah your God. Ye shall not cook a kid in its mother's milk.
- 20 Behold, I send 'my angel' before you, to keep you in the way, and to bring you to the place which I have prepared. Beware of him, and obey his voice. Provoke him not, for he will not bear with your transgressions, because my name is in him. But if ye will indeed obey his voice, and do all that I speak; then I will be an enemy to your enemies, and an adversary unto your adversaries.
- 23 For mine angel shall go before you, and bring you to the land of the Canaanites, and the Amorites, and the Hethites, "and the Girgasites," and the Perizzites, and the Hivites, and the Jebusites; whom I will cut off. Ye shall not bow down to their gods, nor serve them, nor according to their works shall ye do; but ye shall utterly destroy them, and their statues ye shall break in pieces. And Jehovah your God ye shall serve, that he may bless your bread and your water, and take away sickness from among you.

There shall nothing cast its young, nor be barren, in your land. The number of your days I will fulfil. My terror I will send before you, and dismay all the people to whom ye shall come; and I will make all your enemies turn their backs to you. I will also send hornets before you, which shall drive out the Canaanites, "and the Amorites," and the Hethites, "and the Girgasites," and the Hivites, "and the Jebusites," from before you. I will not drive them out from before you in one year; lest the land become desolate, and the wild beast multiply against you. By little and little I will drive them out from before you, until ye be increased, so as to possess the land. And I will set your boundaries from the Red sea, to the sea of the Philistines, and from the wilderness of Shur, to the "great" river "Euphrates;" for the inhabitants of all the land I will deliver into your hands; and ye shall drive them out from before you. Ye shall make no covenant with them, nor with their gods. They shall not dwell in your land, lest they cause you to sin against me; for if ye serve their gods, it will surely be a snare to you.

CHAPTER XXIV.

B. C. 1491. Moses is called to ascend the mountain; the people promise obedience. He ratifies the covenant by the sprinkling of blood.

HE then said to Moses, Come up again to Jehovah, thou, and Aaron, Nadab and Abihu, "Eleazar and Ithamar," and seventy of the elders of Israel; and worship ye afar off. For Moses alone shall come near to 21 Og, and other Amorite kings; but in the history of this conquest, Numb. xxi. 21, &c. we find no mention of it. Some therefore think, that the expression is figurative, denoting the various kinds of evils with which God would afflict them; which are called his terror just before. This seems the most probable sense of the place. (a) Sam. Sept. Syr.

31. To the great river The Sept. here has preserved the full reading, and the boundaries specified, accord with other places. Gen. xv. 18; Numb. xxxiv. 3; Deut. xi. 24. (a) Sept.

32, 33. No covenant with them They were incurable idolaters; their depravity and sinfulness had reached such a pitch, that it was a righteous procedure to cut them off.

CHAP. XXIV. 1. Come up again From chap. xix. 24, and xx. 21, Moses and Aaron were already on the mountain, and there Moses received the laws contained in chap. xx. 22 to the end of the 23d chapter. They were then to go down to state these laws to the people; and when the people had consented to them, and the solemn compact or covenant was ratified by the sprinkling of the blood of the sacrifices, they were again to ascend with the sons of Aaron and seventy elders of Israel. (a) Sam.

2. Near to Jehovah Mount Sinai hath two ridges; one

17. Sept. Syr. Vulg. Compare chap. xxxiv. 24.

19. Cook a kid Geddés and Gregorie think the precept might be rendered, 'Thou shalt not cook a kid while it is on its mother's milk;' and then the reason of the precept will be, lest the dam should be injured and her life endangered by the milk. Michaelis considers milk חלב as meaning butter; and the design of the law was to encourage the culture of the olive. See Introduction, part ii. chap. 8. § 4.

20. My angel The opinion, that by the Angel, the Messiah, the Messenger that should hereafter come to his temple, is intended, seems most probable, and best accords with what is attributed to him. God's name was in him, that is, he was invested with divine authority; 'for all power was given to him.' The apostle explains, what is said chap. xxxiii. 2, 14, 'My presence or face shall go with thee,' when he says of our Lord, 'That he is the brightness of his father's glory, and the express image of his person.' Heb. i. 3. The many appearances to the patriarchs, of an angel, called Jehovah, establish this view of the passage.

- Jehovah; but they shall not come near, nor shall the people ascend with them."
- 3 Now Moses came and told the people all the words of Jehovah, and all these ordinances; and all the people answered with one voice, and said, All the words which
- 4 Jehovah hath spoken, we will do. And Moses wrote all the words of Jehovah; and he rose up early in the morning, and built an altar at the bottom of the mountain, and erected twelve "stones," corresponding to
- 5 the twelve tribes of Israel. And he sent young men of the children of Israel, who offered burnt-offerings, and sacrificed feast-
- 6 offerings of oxen to Jehovah. And Moses took one half of the blood, and put it in basins; and the other half of the blood he
- 7 sprinkled on the altar. And he took the book of the covenant, and read it in the hearing of the people; and they said, All that Jehovah hath spoken, we will hearken
- 8 to and do." And Moses took the blood, and sprinkled it on the people, and said, Behold the blood of the covenant, which Jehovah hath made with you concerning all these things.
- 9 Then went up to the mountain, Moses and Aaron, Nadab and Abihu, "Eleazar and Ithamar," and seventy of the elders of Israel;
- 10 And they saw the glory of the God of Israel; under whose feet there seemed to be a pavement of sapphire stone, like the
- 11 body of the heavens for brightness. Yet against the nobles of Israel he stretched not forth his hand, though they saw the glory of God.
- 12 When they had eaten and drunk, then Jehovah said to Moses, Come thou up to me to the mountain, and there abide until I give to thee tables of stone with the law, and the commandments which I have written; that thou mayest teach them to the people. And Moses arose, and his attendant 13 Joshua; and Moses and Joshua went up to the mount of God. But he first said to 14 the elders, Tarry ye here for us until we return to you; and, behold, Aaron and Hur are with you. If any one have any matter of dispute, let him come to them. Moses 15 now went up to the mountain, and a cloud covered the mountain. And the glory of 16 Jehovah abode upon mount Sinai; and the cloud covered it six days, and the seventh day he called unto Moses out of the midst of the cloud. And the appearance of the 17 glory of Jehovah was, in the eyes of the children of Israel, like devouring fire on the top of the mountain. Now Moses had en- 18 tered the midst of the cloud, and gone up to the top of the mountain; and Moses was on the mountain forty days and forty nights.

CHAPTER XXV.

B. C. 1491. Instructions given to Moses concerning the tabernacle, its furniture, &c. and utensils.

AND Jehovah spoke to Moses saying, 1 Speak to the Israelites that they bring to me 2 an offering. From every man whose heart is willing to give, ye shall receive my offering. And this is the offering which ye shall 3 receive from them; gold, and silver, and brass; And blue, and purple, and scarlet, 4 and cotton, and goats' hair; And rams' skins died red, and seal skins; and shittim wood; Oil for the chandelier; aromatics for the 6 anointing oil, and for the sweet incense; Onyx stones, and other stones to be set in 7 the ephod, and in the breastplate. And let 8 a sanctuary "be made for me," that I may dwell among "you." After the pattern of 9 the tabernacle, and the pattern of its utensils; according to all which I show to thee "on the mountain," so shalt "thou make it."

much lower than the other, and called Horeb; the higher was called Sinai. Moses appears to have ascended to Sinai, and to have abode there forty days and nights; while Aaron, his sons, and the elders, remained on the lower ridge of Horeb for some time. (v) Sept. 3. (a) Syr.

4. (r) Sam. Sept. 5. Moses appointed young men to slay the victims, and to offer the holocaust. This sacrifice belonged wholly to God. The feast-offerings were designed for the refreshment of the people, the fat parts only being consumed on the altar. 9. (a) Sam.

10. The glory of the God The words in italics are added as necessary to make this place consistent with others. Besides from Deut. iv. 15, it is certain they saw no personal similitude, or likeness of any thing in heaven or on earth; and though feet are mentioned, the term can only mean the extremity of the glorious vision, which reached to, or was the pavement of sapphire itself. This was a bright blue colour. Compare verse 17.

11—13. Before they ascended they had killed the feast-offerings; and from this it seems, they took some of the provisions and ate and drank on Horeb, while the people celebrated the same feast in the camp in token of their friendship and covenant with God.

14. Tarry ye here This address denotes, that the people knew where the elders were, and might apply to them, in case of any difference. As Moses continued for forty days, it appears that they soon returned to the camp, perhaps supposing him to be lost or consumed.

15. Some think Joshua, who was destined to be the successor of Moses, went with him into the cloud, and there abode, while Moses ascended to the very top of the mountain, where God conversed with him, and gave him the ordinances concerning the tabernacle, &c. contained in the following chapters. It is certain that Joshua was either with him or not far from him, as he descended with him, chap. xxxii. 17.

16, 17. Seventh day It is not improbable that this might be the sabbath. The appearance of God's glory was naturally calculated to inspire reverence. To this the apostle alludes, Heb. xii. 28, 29.

18. Forty days During this period, "he neither ate nor drank." Chap. xxxiv. 28; Deut. ix. 9. Elijah, the restorer of the law, and our Lord the fulfiller of it, fasted the same period: 1 Kings xix. 8; Matt. iv. 2. In these cases the body must have been divinely supported.

CHAP. XXV. 8. Let . . . be made for me The Sept. has, 'Make thou,' and the Sam. 'Make ye.' The second person singular is most probably the genuine reading. (v) Sam. Sept. 9. (a) Sam. Sept. (v) Sam.

10 And 'thou shalt make an ark of shittim wood:' two cubits and a half shall be the length, and a cubit and a half its breadth, 11 and a cubit and a half its height. And thou shalt overlay it with pure gold; within and without shalt thou overlay it; and shalt 12 make for it a border round about. And thou shalt cast for it four staples of gold, and put them at its four corners; two staples on the one side of it, and two staples 13 on the other side of it. And thou shalt make staves of shittim wood, and overlay 14 them with gold. And thou shalt put the staves into the staples along the sides of the ark, that by them the ark may be carried. The staves shall be in the staples of 15 the ark; they shall not be removed from it. 16 And thou shalt put into the ark the testimonies which I will give to thee. And 17 thou shalt make a lid for a mercy-seat of pure gold; two cubits and a half shall be its length, and a cubit and a half its breadth. 18 Two cherubs shalt thou also make; of solid gold shalt thou make them, at the two ends 19 of the mercy-seat. And make one cherub at the one end, and the other cherub at the other end; rising up from the mercy-seat, at its two ends, 'shalt thou make' the cherubs. So the cherubs shall stretch forth 20 their wings above, covering the mercy-seat with their wings; and their faces shall be turned one to another; towards the mercy-seat shall the faces of the cherubs be turned. 21 And thou shalt put the mercy seat upon the ark; and in the ark thou shalt put the 22 testimonies which I will give to thee. And there I will meet with thee; and from above the mercy-seat, from between the two cherubs, which are upon the ark of the testimony, I will speak with thee of all things which I will give thee in command to the Israelites.

Thou shalt also make a table of shittim 23 wood, two cubits shall be its length, and a cubit its breadth, and a cubit and a half the height of it. And thou shalt overlay it with 24 pure gold, and make thereto a border of gold round about. Also a frame round 25 about, a hand-breadth high, shalt thou make for it; and about its frame thou shalt make a border of gold. And thou shalt make for 26 it four staples of gold, and put the staples on its four feet which are at the four corners of it. Beside the frame, let the staples be 27 placed, for the staves which are to bear the table. And thou shalt make the staves of 28 shittim wood, and overlay them with gold, that by them the table may be borne. And 29 thou shalt make its plates, its incense-pots, and its large and small cups, in which drink-offerings are to be offered; of pure gold shalt thou make them. And thou 30 shalt place upon the table, presence-bread before me always.

A chandelier of pure gold thou shalt also 31 make; of one solid mass shall the chandelier be made. Its shaft, and its branches, its cups, its knops, and its flowers, shall be of one piece. And six branches shall proceed 32 from the sides of it; three branches of the chandelier from the one side, and three branches of the chandelier from the other side of it. Three cups, shaped like almonds, 33 each with a knop and a flower, shall be on one branch; and three cups shaped like almonds on another branch, each with a knop and a flower; and so on the six branches which proceed from the chandelier. And 34 on the shaft of the chandelier shall be four cups shaped like almonds, with their knops

10. An ark] The term denotes a chest of any kind, and here is used for the chest in which the two tables of the law were placed. In the rites of Osiris the Egyptians bore an ark or covered chest in the night down to the sea, in which was a little boat made of gold. Was not this commemorative of the ark of Noah?—Shittim wood] There is little doubt of its being a species of white thorn, or the spina Aegyptiaca, which grows abundantly about mount Sinai, 'the tree of all deserts from the northmost parts of Arabia to the extremity of Ethiopia.' (v) Sam.

17. A lid for a mercy-seat] The Doway translators render after the Vulg. 'Propitiatory.' Purver an 'Atonement covering,' and Ainsworth 'A covering mercy-seat.' The common version follows Luther, Gnadenstuhl. In the ark the tables of the law were to be placed; and this lid was to cover them. The blood of the expiatory sacrifices, offered on the great day of atonement, was to be sprinkled on this lid, to intimate that the transgressions of the law, over which it was put, were covered and pardoned. Hence it became a mercy-seat, through the sprinkling of the blood of the sacrifices; and in reference to this our Lord is called the 'propitiatory,' Rom. iii. 25, sacrifice, being understood, denoting that by his blood a real atonement was made, and that through faith in his blood, God will forgive all our sins and transgressions.

18. Cherubs] From Ezekiel we learn that they were compound figures having one body. The most common opinion is, that they represent the angels, the attendants on God's throne and majesty. Compare Psa. xviii. 10; Isa. vi. 3; and Rev. iv. 8. Might not these compound emblems denote, the intelligence, courage, diligence, and zeal, or activity of the holy angels? Man being the representative of the first, the lion of the second, the ox of the third, and the eagle of the fourth. 1 Peter i. 12.

19. (v) Sam. MSS. versions.

22. And there I will meet] After the tabernacle was constructed it appears that Moses was privileged to enter into the most holy place whenever it was necessary to consult God on any subject relating to the people. There the divine glory dwelt, and there God manifested himself as the God of grace, and as the God in covenant with his people.

26. Which are at the four corners] I have given the sense, without adhering to the order of the text. Jerom renders, 'Thou shalt put them into the four corners of the table (per) through each foot.' Houbigant, 'Thou shalt put them into the four sides of its four feet.'

29. Incense-pots] So the Seventy render, kyrnas—its large and small cups] I have followed the Greek, Vulg. Syr. &c. in this version. Rosenmuller has shown, that שְׁכָרִים קטנים signifies as rendered. The former a large open cup, the latter a small one, containing only what a person might drink at a draught. The Bishops' Bible has, 'to pour out with all.'

30. Presence-bread] Purver and others so render, which is certainly preferable to show-bread.

35 and their flowers. And a knop and a flower under the first pair; and a knop and a flower under the second pair; and a knop and a flower under the third pair of the six branches, that proceed from the chandelier.

36 Their knops and their branches shall be of one piece; all of it one solid work of pure

37 gold. And thou shalt make its seven lamps; and thou shalt place the lamps upon it, so that they may give light over against

38 it. And its snuffers, and its snuff-dishes,

39 "shalt thou make" of pure gold. Of a talent of pure gold shalt thou make it, with 40 all these utensils. And see that thou make them according to the pattern, which was showed thee on the mountain.

1 MOREOVER thou shalt make a tabernacle of ten curtains of twisted cotton; and cherubs of blue, and purple, and scarlet; fancy-

2 work shalt thou make in them. The length of each curtain shall be twenty-eight cubits, and the breadth of each curtain, four cubits; and each of the curtains shall be of the same

3 measure. Five curtains shall be joined one to another; and the other five curtains shall

4 be joined one to another. And thou shalt make loops of blue on the edge of one curtain, on the outmost edge at the joining; and so also shalt thou make on the other outmost edge, that it may be joined to the

5 next. Fifty loops shall thou make on the edge of one curtain, and fifty loops shalt thou make on the edge of another curtain, which is to be joined to the next; that by the loops they may be joined one to another.

6 And thou shalt make fifty clasps of gold, and join the curtains together with the clasps, so that it may be one tabernacle.

7 Thou shalt also make curtains of goats' hair, to be a covering upon the tabernacle;

8 eleven curtains shalt thou make. The length of each curtain shall be thirty cubits, and the breadth of each curtain four cubits; and the eleven curtains shall be all of the 9 same measure. And thou shalt join five curtains by themselves, and six curtains by themselves, and shalt double the sixth curtain in the front of the tabernacle. And thou shalt make fifty loops on the edge of one curtain, on the outmost edge for joining; and fifty loops on the outmost edge of the other curtain, that they may be joined.

11 And thou shalt make fifty clasps of brass, and put the clasps into the loops, and so join the pieces together, that they may be

12 one tent. And let what remaineth of the curtains of the tent, the half curtain that remaineth, hang over the back side of the tabernacle. And the cubit on the one side, 13 and the cubit on the other side, which it exceedeth in the length of the curtains of the tent, shall hang over the sides of the tabernacle; on this side and on that side, to cover it. And thou shalt make a covering for the 14 tent of rams' skins died red; and an upper covering of seal-skins.

And thou shalt make boards for the taber- 15 nacle of shittim wood to stand upright. Ten 16 cubits shall be the length of each board, and a cubit and a half shall be the breadth of each board. Two tenons shall there be to 17 each board, made similar to one another: thus shalt thou make all the boards of the tabernacle. And the boards for the taber- 18 nacle thou shalt make; twenty boards for the side southward. And under the twenty 19 boards, thou shalt make forty silver bases; two bases under one board for its two tenons. And for the other side of the tabernacle, for 20 the north side, thou shalt make twenty boards, And their forty bases of silver; two 21 bases under one board, and two bases under another board. And for the end of the 22 tabernacle westward thou shalt make six boards. And two boards shalt thou make 23 for the angles of the tabernacle at the two ends. And they shall be joined together 24 beneath, and they shall be joined together at the top, to one staple; so shall they both of them be; they shall be for the two corners. Thus there shall be eight boards, and their 25 bases of silver, sixteen bases; two bases under one board, and two bases under another board.

And thou shalt make bars of shittim 26 wood; five for the boards of the one side of the tabernacle, And five bars for the boards 27 of the other side of the tabernacle; and five bars for the boards of the back-end of the tabernacle, for the "side" westward. And 28 the middle bar, at the midst of the boards, shall reach from end to end. And thou 29 shalt overlay the boards with gold, and make their staples of gold, to take in the bars; and thou shalt overlay the bars with gold. Thus thou shalt rear up the tabernacle, ac- 30 cording to the pattern which hath been shown to thee on the mount.

And "thou shalt make" a veil of blue, 31 and purple, and scarlet, and twisted cotton; with fancy-work, with cherubs shalt thou make it. And thou shalt hang it upon four 32 pillars of shittim wood, overlaid with gold;

37. Over against it] Geddes renders, 'in one direction,' i. e. towards the sanctuary. 38. (a) Syr.

39. A talent of gold. See table of coins and weights. Chap. XXVI. 7. Goats' hair] That is, Stuff made of goats' hair. They sometimes made stuffs of camel's hair.

1-10. Kennicott has proved that these verses, which are found in the 30th chapter of the common version, have been transposed from the end of the preceding chapter, where all the Sam. copies now have them; and where the following places of the text manifest they ought to be; Chap. xxxi. 7-11; xxxv. 12-16; xxxvii. 1, and xxxviii. 8.

27. (v) Sept. Vulg. 31. (v) Versions, 6 MSS.

their hooks shall be of gold, upon the four bases of silver.

- 33 And thou shalt hang up a veil under the clasps of the curtains, that thou mayest bring in thither within the veil, the ark of the testimony; and the veil shall separate for you the holy from the most holy place.
- 34 And thou shalt put the mercy-seat upon the ark of the testimony in the most holy place.
- 35 And thou shalt set the table without the veil, and the chandelier over against the table; the chandelier thou shalt set at the south side of the tabernacle and the table on the north side.
- 1 AND thou shalt make an altar to burn incense upon: of shittim wood shalt thou make it. A cubit shall be its length; and a cubit its breadth; but its height shall be two cubits. Its horns shall be of one piece with it. And thou shalt overlay it with pure gold, its roof and its sides round about, and its horns; and thou shalt make for it a border of gold round about. And two staples of gold shalt thou make for it, and place them under its border, at its two corners; for both its sides shalt thou make them, that they may take in the staves by which it is to be carried. And thou shalt make the staves of shittim wood, and overlay them with gold. And thou shalt put it before the veil which is by the ark of the testimony, before the mercy-seat which is over the testimony, where I will meet with thee. And on it Aaron shall burn sweet incense. Every morning when he dresseth the lamps, he shall burn incense upon it.
- 8 And when Aaron lighteth the lamps at even, he shall burn incense upon it; a perpetual incense before Jehovah throughout your generations. Ye shall offer no profane incense, nor burnt-sacrifice, nor wheat offering on it; neither shall ye pour a drink-offering thereon. But Aaron, once in a year, shall make an atonement on its horns, with the blood of the sin-offering of atonement. Once in a year shall he make atonement upon it, throughout your generations. Most holy shall it be to Jehovah.
- 36 Thou shalt also make a hanging for the door of the tent; of blue, and purple, and scarlet, and of twisted cotton, embroidered work.
- 37 And thou shalt make for the hanging five pillars of shittim-wood, and overlay them with gold; and their hooks shall be of gold; and thou shalt cast for them five bases of brass.

AND thou shalt make an altar of shittim wood, five cubits long, and five cubits broad; the altar shall be a square, but its height shall be three cubits. And thou shalt make its horns on its four corners; of one piece with itself shall its horns be; and thou shalt overlay it with brass. Thou shalt also make its pans to receive its ashes, and its shovels, and its basins, and its forks, and its censers; all its utensils shalt thou make of brass. And thou shalt make for it a brazen grate of net-work; and for the net-work, at its four corners shalt thou make four brazen staples. And thou shalt put the grate underneath the altar-band, so that the net-work may be at the middle of the altar. And thou shalt make staves for the altar; staves of shittim wood, and overlay them with brass. And the staves shall be put into the staples; and the staves shall be on the two sides of the altar, when it is carried, hollow; of boards "shalt thou make it." As it hath been shown to thee on the mountain so shalt thou make it.

Thou shalt also make the court of the tabernacle. On the south or right-hand side, let there be hangings for the court of twisted cotton, a hundred cubits long for one side; And their twenty pillars and their twenty bases shall be of brass; but the hooks of the pillars and their fillets shall be of silver. And so for the north side let the hangings be a hundred cubits long; and their twenty pillars and their twenty bases of brass; but the hooks of the pillars and their fillets of silver.

And for the breadth of the court, on the west side, let there be hangings, fifty cubits long; and their ten pillars and their ten bases "of brass." And the breadth of the court on the east, or sun-rising side, shall be fifty cubits; "with their ten pillars and their ten bases of brass." The hangings for one wing shall be fifteen cubits; with their three pillars and their three bases "of brass;" And for the other wing shall be hangings fifteen "cubits;" with their three pillars and their three bases "of brass."

And for the gate of the court shall be a veil of twenty cubits, of blue, and purple, and scarlet, and twisted cotton, embroidered work; with their four pillars and their four

CHAP. XXVII. 2. Its horns shall be] These were projections from the four corners; but whether upright, oblique, or curved, we learn not from the text. That they were really horn-shaped, like those of the ara pacis of the Romans, is probable. Josephus expressly says so of the altar of his time.

5. The network] The form of the altar was this: its four legs or angle-posts, were three cubits high, and as much more as served to make what are called its horns, which might be nothing but the heads of the posts tapered off to a point in the shape of a horn. These angle-posts were, at half-way down from the roots of the horns, surrounded with a frame or band one cubit and a half broad; at the lower rim of which was fixed the lattice-work, or grate on which the faggots of wood, and then the victims were laid.

12—17. The readings of the Samaritan and Sept. make the text complete. Indeed this copy of the text is of the greatest value to the divine and the critic.

- 17 bases "of brass." All the pillars round about the court shall be filleted with silver; their hooks shall be of silver, but their bases of brass.
- 18 The length of the court shall be a hundred cubits, and its breadth fifty cubits, and its height five cubits. "The hangings of the court, all about, shall be" of twisted cotton. And the bases of their pillars shall be of brass; "but the hooks of their pillars and their fillets of silver; and their capitals shall be overlaid with silver; and all the pillars of the court shall be filleted with silver."
- 19 All the other utensils of the tabernacle for its whole service, and all its pins, and all the pins of the court, "thou shalt make of" brass.
- 20 And command thou the Israelites, that they bring to thee pure oil, expressed from olives, for light, that the lamps may continually burn, in the tabernacle of the congregation without the veil, which is before the testimony. Aaron and his sons shall order it, that they may burn from evening to morning before Jehovah. A perpetual statute shall this be to the Israelites, throughout their generations.

CHAPTERS XXVIII. XXIX.

B. C. 1491. Instructions concerning the priesthood; the dress of the high-priest and others; the rites of consecration, continual burnt-offering and the numbering the people.

- 1 AND appoint next to thyself, Aaron thy brother, and his sons with him, from among the Israelites, to minister to me in the priest's office; Aaron, Nadab and Abihu,
- 2 Eleazar and Ithamar, Aaron's sons. And thou shalt make holy garments for Aaron thy brother, for ornament and for beauty.
- 3 And thou shalt speak to all the wise-hearted, whom I have filled with the spirit of wisdom, that they may make Aaron's garments to consecrate him, to minister to me in the priest's office. And these are the garments which they shall make; a breast-plate, and an ephod, and a robe, and a strait tunic, a mitre, and a girdle. Thus they shall make holy garments for Aaron thy brother, and his sons, to minister to me in the priest's
- 5 office. And to make them they shall take gold, and blue, and purple, and scarlet, and twisted cotton. And let them make the ephod of the gold, the blue, and the purple and scarlet, and twisted cotton, with fancy-work. Its two shoulder-pieces shall be joined to it; at its two edges shall they be joined. And the fancy-work of the 'shoulder-pieces,' which are on it, shall be of the same materials with itself, of gold, of blue, and purple, and scarlet, and twisted cotton. And thou shalt take two onyx-stones, and engrave on them the names of the sons of Israel, 'according to their birth.' Six of their names on one stone, and the remaining six names on the other stone. After the work of an engraver in stone, like the engravings of a signet, shalt thou engrave on the two stones the names of the sons of Israel; thou shalt set them in ouches of gold. And thou shalt put the two stones upon the shoulder-pieces of the ephod. Stones of memorial "shall they be for" the sons of Israel; for Aaron shall bear their names before Jehovah, upon his two shoulders for a memorial.

And thou shalt make clasps of 'pure gold;' And two chains of pure gold; of equal length, and of wreathen work shalt thou make them; and the two wreathen chains shalt thou fasten to the clasps.

Thou shalt also make the breast-plate of judgment, of fancy-work; after the work of the ephod shalt thou make it; of gold, and blue, and purple, and scarlet, and twisted cotton, shalt thou make it. It shall be a square, doubled; a span its length, and a span its breadth. And thou shalt set in it settings of precious stones, even four rows of stones; a row of a carnelian, a topaz, and an emerald shall be the first row. And the second row shall be a ruby, a sapphire, and a diamond. And the third row a ligure, an agate, and an amethyst. And the fourth row a beryl, and an onyx, and a jasper. In their settings, let them be set in gold. And the stones shall be for the names of the sons of Israel; twelve according to their names. The engravings, like those of a signet, shall each have its name according to the twelve tribes.

18. This verse is clearly defective; and neither the Sam. nor the versions afford any aid. Happily the parallel place chap. xxxviii. 16, supplies what is deficient.

20. The lamps may burn] The heathens in imitation of this had their perpetual fire, as in the temple of Vesta, and others. The same custom is continued in Roman Catholic churches abroad.

CHAP. XXVIII. 1. Appoint next to thyself] The words מִיָּדְךָ, as Le Clerc has observed, should not be understood of place, but of dignity and rank. Moses, as the leader, and divinely commissioned lawgiver, occupied the chief dignity and honour; and Aaron and his sons, as enjoying the priesthood, are to be the second in rank.

8. Shoulder-pieces] So the Sept. render. These shoulder-pieces Geddes conjectures were something like our epaulettes. Others render curious girdle, but the word is never so rendered elsewhere, unless verses 27 and 28, and parallel places. (v) Sept. 9. (t) from 10th verse.

12. (a) Sam. Sept. 13. (a) Sept.

14. Of equal length] I have followed the Chald. and the Arab. as giving a sense most suitable. So Purver and Geddes render.

17—20. There is great uncertainty respecting the real sense of the words, by which the precious stones are denoted. The most probable are those given; and on the first row were engraved, Reuben, Simeon, Levi; on the second, Judah, Issachar, Zebulun; on the third, Naphtali, Gad, Dan; and on the fourth, Asher, Joseph, Benjamin.

22 And thou shalt make for the breast-plate, two chains of equal length, of wreathen
 23 work of pure gold. And thou shalt make for the breast-plate two clasps of gold, and two rings of gold, and the two rings thou shalt place at the two upper ends of the breast-
 24 plate. And thou shalt put the two wreathen chains of gold in the two rings which are at 25 the ends of the breast-plate. And the other two ends of the two wreathen chains thou shalt put into the two clasps, and fasten them to the shoulder-pieces of the ephod
 26 opposite. Thou shalt also make two rings of gold, and put them at the two lower ends of the breast-plate, on its inward borders, 27 which are opposite the ephod. And two other rings of gold thou shalt make, and put them at the lowest ends of the shoulder-pieces, opposite to where it joins the fancy-28 work of the ephod. And they shall bind the breast-plate by its rings to the rings of the ephod, with a lace of blue, that it may be joined to the fancy-work of the ephod, and that the breast-plate may not be loosed
 29 from the ephod. And Aaron shall bear the names of the sons of Israel on the breast-plate of judgment upon his heart, when he goeth into the holy place, for a memorial before Jehovah continually.
 30 Thou shalt also make the Urim and the Thummim, and shalt put the Urim and Thummim on the breast-plate of judgment; and they shall be upon Aaron's heart, when he goeth in before Jehovah. Thus shall Aaron bear the judgment of the Israelites upon his heart, before Jehovah continually.
 31 And thou shalt make the robe of the 32 ephod, all of blue. And there shall be a hole at the top, in the middle of it. And round about the hole of it, shall be a binding of woven work, like the hole of a coat 33 of mail, that it be not rent. And beneath upon its hem thou shalt work pomegranates of blue, and purple, and scarlet, round about its hem; and, between them bells of gold, 34 round about: A bell of gold and a pomegranate, a bell of gold and a pomegranate, upon the hem of the robe, round about.
 35 And it shall be upon Aaron, when he ministereth, that his sound may be heard when he goeth into the holy place before Jehovah, and when he cometh out; that he may not die.

And thou shalt make a petal of pure gold 36 and engrave upon it, like the engravings of a signet, HOLY TO JEHOVAH. And thou 37 shalt fasten it with a blue lace, that it may be upon the mitre; upon the front of the mitre it shall be. And it shall be upon 38 Aaron's forehead, that Aaron may bear the iniquity which the Israelites may commit, in the holy things which they shall hallow in all their holy gifts; and it shall be always upon his forehead, that they may be accepted before Jehovah.

And thou shalt make of cotton the strait 39 tunic, and the mitre of cotton; but the girdle thou shalt make of embroidered work.

And for Aaron's sons thou shalt make tunics; and thou shalt make for them girdles; and turbans shalt thou make for them, for ornament and for beauty. And thou shalt 41 put them upon Aaron thy brother, and his sons with him; and shalt anoint them, and consecrate them, and so hallow them, that they may minister to me in the priest's office. And make for them drawers of fine 42 cotton, to cover their nakedness. From the loins even to the thighs they shall reach; And shall be on Aaron and on his sons, 43 when they come into the congregation-tabernacle, or when they come near to the altar to minister in the holy place; lest they commit iniquity, and die. This shall be a perpetual statute to him and his seed after him.

Now this is the thing which thou shalt do 1 for them to hallow them, to minister to me in the priest's office. Take one steer from the herd, and two rams, without blemish; And unleavened bread, unleavened cakes 2 tempered with oil, and unleavened wafers anointed with oil; of wheaten flower shalt thou make them. And thou shalt put them 3 into one basket, and bring them in the basket, with the steer and the two rams. And Aaron and his sons thou shall bring 4 to the door of the congregation-tabernacle; and thou shalt wash them with water, And then take the garments: and thou shalt clothe Aaron with the tunic and gird him with the girdle; then thou shalt clothe him with

22. Geddes doubts the genuineness of this verse; but if they are genuine, he considers the chains here mentioned as belonging to the breast-plate met those belonging to the ephod (verse 14) half-way. 23. (a) Sam.

26—28. It is difficult to render these verses intelligibly. I have attempted it, whether successfully or not others must judge. 30. (a) Sam.

35. That he may not die] This was to give notice to the people without, when the high priest approached the most holy place, that they might join in prayer; and to intimate that he was not to approach rashly. He must have on the holy garments, or else Jehovah would punish him with death.

36. Petal] So the Sept. and it is certain that this plate of gold represented the form of some beautiful flower.—Holy to Jehovah] This was to remind Aaron of the duties of his office. He was to minister in holy things, before a holy God; to remove sin by making atonement, and to teach the people the way of holiness. In this he was the type of our great High Priest, who was 'holy, harmless, and undefiled.'

CHAP. XXIX. 1. From the herd] Literally, 'Son of the herd.' Some think that age is meant. This is implied in the term adopted, steer, meaning a young bullock.

5. So the Sam. text, which is supported by Levit. viii. 7. See Note, Hebrew Bible.

the robe, and over it thou shalt put the ephod and the breast-plate, which thou shalt 6 fasten to the fancy-work of the ephod. And on his head thou shalt put the mitre; and 7 put the holy crown upon the mitre. Then shalt thou take the anointing oil, and pour 8 it upon his head, and anoint him. And thou shalt bring his sons, and clothe them 9 with tunics; And thou shalt gird them with girdles, Aaron and his sons, and bind the turbans on them; and the priest's office shall be theirs by a perpetual statute.

And thus thou shalt consecrate Aaron 10 and his sons. Thou shalt bring the steer before "Jehovah, to the door of" the congregation-tabernacle; and Aaron and his 11 sons shall lay their hands on the head of the steer. And thou shalt kill the steer 12 before Jehovah, at the door of the congregation-tabernacle. Thou shalt then take some of the blood of the steer, and put it on the horns of the altar with thy finger; and all the rest of the blood thou shalt pour 13 out at the bottom of the altar. And thou shalt take all the fat that covereth the inward parts, and the excrescence "of the liver," and the two kidneys, and the fat which is upon them, and burn them upon the 14 altar. But the flesh of the steer, and its skin, and its dung, thou shalt burn in a fire without the camp: it is a sin-offering.

15 Thou shalt also take one of the rams; and Aaron and his sons shall lay their hands 16 upon the head of the ram. And thou shalt slay the ram, and thou shalt take its blood, and sprinkle round about upon the altar.
 17 And thou shalt cut the ram into pieces, and wash its inward parts and its legs, and 18 put them with its pieces, and its head. And thou shalt burn the whole ram upon the altar; it is a burnt-offering of a sweet savour to Jehovah.

19 And the other ram thou shalt take, and Aaron and his sons shall lay their hands 20 upon the ram's head. Then shalt thou kill the ram, and take some of its blood, and put it upon the tip of the right ear of Aaron, and upon the tip of the right ear of his sons, and upon the thumb of their right hand, and upon the great toe of their right foot, and sprinkle the rest of the blood round about 22 upon the altar. Also thou shalt take off from the ram the fat of the tail, and the fat that covereth the inward parts, and the excrescence of the liver, and the two kidneys, and the fat which is upon them; and the right shoulder; (for this is a ram of consecration.)

 And one loaf of bread, and one 23 cake of oiled bread, and one wafer out of the basket of the unleavened bread which is before Jehovah: And thou shalt put all 24 these into the hands of Aaron, and into the hands of his sons; and cause them to wave them for a wave-offering before Jehovah. Thou shalt then receive them from their 25 hands, and burn them upon the altar together with the burnt-offering, for a sweet savour to Jehovah. And thou shalt take 26 the breast of the ram of Aaron's consecration, and wave it for a wave-offering before Jehovah; and it shall be thy part. So thou 27 shalt sanctify the breast, that hath been waved as a wave-offering, and the shoulder, that hath been heaved as a heave-offering, (of the ram by which Aaron, and his sons, are consecrated.)
 And they shall be Aaron's and 28 his sons' by a perpetual statute, from the Israelites. For it is a heave-offering; and it shall be a heave offering from the children of Israel of the feast-sacrifices, even their heave-offering to Jehovah.

'And thou shalt take some of the anointing 21 oil and some of the blood that is upon the altar, and sprinkle it upon Aaron, and upon his garments; and upon his sons, and upon the garments of his sons with him.
 Thus he shall be hallowed and his garments; and his sons, and his sons' garments with him." And the holy garments of 29 Aaron shall be his sons' after him; in them they shall be anointed, and consecrated.
 And seven days shall he of his sons wear 30 them, who, being priest in his stead, shall go into the congregation-tabernacle to minister in the holy place.

Thou shalt then take the ram of consecra- 31 tion, and boil its flesh in the holy place. And Aaron and his sons shall eat the flesh 32 of the ram, and the bread that is in the basket. At the door of the congregation-tabernacle, They shall eat them; because by 33 them an atonement has been made, for the purpose of consecrating and sanctifying them: but no other shall eat of them, because they are holy. And if aught of the 34 flesh of the consecration, or of the bread,

6. Holy crown] Geddes renders, badge, the Doway translators, holy plate. It refers to the golden petal.

10, 13. In both these verses the Sam. has preserved the full and genuine readings. The greatest part of the learned suppose the term, which after Geddes is rendered 'excrescence,' denotes the greater lobe of the liver, together with the gall-bladder. (a) Sam. Sept.

20. The Jewish doctors consider the command to put some of the blood on the 'tip of the ear, to signify that they ought to listen to divine instructions; and the 'tips of the thumbs and great toes,' to denote, that they were to discharge every duty with readiness.

21. (1) after 28.

22. The fat of the tail] From the testimony of the most credible witnesses, it appears that the tail of the Syrian and Arabian sheep sometimes weighs no less than twenty pounds. It is this which is meant, and not the rump.

26—28. The wave-breast and heave-shoulder, of all the feast-sacrifices of the children of Israel, are made the portion of the priests.

- remain until the morning, then thou shalt burn that remainder with fire; it shall not 35 be eaten, because it is holy. And thus shalt thou do to Aaron, and to his sons, according to all that I have commanded thee; seven 36 days shalt thou consecrate them. And thou shalt offer every day a steer as a sin-offering for atonement; and thou shalt offer the sin-offering upon the altar; when thou hast made an atonement upon it, thou shalt then 37 anoint it, and make it holy. Seven days thou shalt make an atonement upon the altar, and hallow it; for it shall be an altar most holy; and whosoever toucheth the altar shall be holy.
- 39 Now this is what thou shalt offer upon the altar "as a perpetual offering;" two lambs 39 of the first year day by day. The one lamb thou shalt offer in the morning; and the other lamb thou shalt offer in the even-40 ing. And with the first lamb thou shalt offer a tenth part of an epha of flour mingled with a hin of fresh oil; and the fourth part of a hin of wine for a drink-offering.
- 41 And the other lamb thou shalt offer in the evening, and with the same wheaten-offering as in the morning, and the same drink-offering, for a burnt-offering of a sweet 42 savour to Jehovah. This shall be a continual burnt-offering throughout your generations, at the door of the congregation-tabernacle, before Jehovah: where I will meet with "thee" and there speak to thee.
- 43 And there I will meet with the Israelites, and by my glory shall the place be sanc-44 tified. For I will sanctify the congregation-tabernacle, and the altar. I will sanctify also both Aaron and his sons, to minister to me in the priest's office.
- 45 And I will dwell among the Israelites 46 and will be their God. And they shall know that I am Jehovah their God, who have brought them out of the land of Egypt, that I may dwell among them: yea I am Jehovah their God.
- 11 Again Jehovah spoke to Moses, saying, 12 When thou shalt take the sum of the Israelites according to their number rolls; then they shall give, when numbered, every man of them, a ransom for his soul to Jehovah; that there may be no more plague among them, when they are numbered. This is 13 what every one that passeth among those numbered shall give, half a shekel according to the shekel of the sanctuary; the shekel of the sanctuary being twenty gerahs; a half shekel from every one as an offering to Jehovah. Every one that passeth among 14 those numbered, from twenty years old and upwards, shall give an offering to Jehovah. The rich shall not give more, and the poor 15 shall not give less, than half a shekel, when ye give an offering to Jehovah for the ransom of your souls. And thou shalt take the 16 ransom-money of the Israelites, and shalt appoint it for the service of the congregation-tabernacle; that it may be a memorial for the Israelites before Jehovah, for the ransom of your souls.

CHAPTER XXX.

B. C. 1491. Further instructions concerning the tabernacle, the brass laver, and the anointing oil.

AGAIN Jehovah spoke to Moses, saying, 17 Thou shalt also make a laver of brass, and 18 its cover of brass, to wash in, and thou shalt put it between the congregation-tabernacle and the altar. And thou shalt put water therein. That Aaron and his sons may 19 thence wash their hands and their feet. When they go into the congregation-tabernacle, or when they come near to the altar to minister, to offer the burnt-offering to Jehovah, they shall wash with water, that they die not; For if they wash their hands 21 and feet, they shall not die: and this shall be a perpetual statute for them, for Aaron and for his seed throughout their generations.

Moreover Jehovah spoke to Moses, say- 22 ing, Take thou the following principal 23 spices; of pure myrrh five hundred parts, and of cinnamon half so much, two hundred and fifty parts, and of sweet calamus two hundred and fifty parts, And of cassia five 24 hundred parts, (according to the shekel of the sanctuary,) and a hin of olive oil. And 25 thou shalt make of these a holy anointing oil, compounded according to the perfumer's

36. In this version I have followed Delgado. Houbigant, has justly observed, that when the verb תקט denotes to cleanse, to purify, it requires the accusative מן and not the preposition על after it.

38. (a) Sam. Sept. 4 MSS.

42. (v) Sam. Sept. 1 MS.

CHAP. XXX. 11—16. That passeth] This refers to the manner in which the people were numbered, by passing before persons appointed for this purpose.—Some have inferred from this that there were two kinds of shekels; one for common, and one for sacred use.

18. Cover] I have followed De Dieu in this version, who derives this sense from the Arabic. Dathe hath adopted the same version, and observes, that the use for which this laver was formed, required that it should have a cover. For who does not perceive, that water exposed in an open vessel, under no cover, must soon be unfit for use? Whenever Moses mentions the laver, he mentions the cover, 12, but if it meant the foot, or stand, which must have been an inseparable part of it, there was no need to do this; but if it was a distinct and separate part, as the cover must be, then we see the reason why it is mentioned distinctly.

21. The design and use of the brazen laver are sufficiently indicated in the narrative. Can it be doubted that this ablution represented purity? See Psa. xxvi. 6; Heb. x. 23; and John xiii. 10—12. It is manifest that the priests performed their sacred functions barefoot. There is no mention of sandals in what is said of their dress; and from Exod. iii. 5, it appears, that to put off the sandals, was to express reverence and holy fear.

16 art. A holy anointing oil it shall be. And with it thou shalt anoint the congregation-tabernacle, and the ark of the testimony, 27 And the table and its utensils, and the chandelier and "all" its utensils, and the altar of 28 incense, And the altar of burnt-offering with all its utensils, and the laver and its cover. 29 And thou shalt hallow them, that they may be most holy; whosoever toucheth them 30 shall be holy. And thou shalt anoint Aaron and his sons, and consecrate them that they may minister to me in the priest's office. 31 And thou shalt speak to the Israelites, saying, A holy anointing oil shall this be esteemed "by you" throughout your generations. 32 Upon the body of no man, but the priests, shall it be poured; nor like to it shall ye make any other composition: it is holy, and holy shall it be esteemed by you. 33 Whosoever compoundeth any like it, or whosoever putteth any of it to a common use, shall even be cut off from his people. 34 Again Jehovah spoke to Moses, "saying," Take the following sweet spices; stacte, and bdellium and galbanum, pure frankincense, all sweet spices; of each shall there 35 be a like quantity. And thou shalt make it a perfume, compounded according to the art of the perfumer, tempered together, pure 36 and holy: And thou shalt beat some of it very small, and put of it before the testimony of the congregation-tabernacle, where I will meet with thee: it shall be esteemed by 37 you most holy. And as to perfume, ye shall not make any to yourselves according to it; for holy to Jehovah shall it be esteemed by 38 you. Whosoever shall make any like it, for smelling to, shall even be cut off from his people. 1 AGAIN Jehovah spoke to Moses, saying, 2 See I have called by name Bezaleel the son of Uri, the son of Hur, of the tribe of Judah; And I have filled him with an excellent spirit of wisdom, and understanding, and knowledge, for every sort of workmanship; For devising fancy-works, and for working in gold, and in silver, and in brass: 5 And for engraving and setting of precious stones; and in forming timber to make 6 every kind of work. And behold I have given to him Aholiab, the son of Ahisamach, of the tribe of Dan; and in the hearts of all who are wise I have put wisdom, that they may make all that I have commanded thee; The congregation-tabernacle, and the ark of the testimony, and the mercy-seat which is upon it, and all the utensils of the tabernacle; The table and "all" its utensils, 8 and the chandelier of pure gold with all its utensils; and the altar of incense. And the altar of burnt-offering with all their utensils; and the laver and its cover; And the cloths 10 of service; and the holy garments for Aaron the priest; and the garments for his sons, to minister in the priest's office; And the 11 anointing oil, and the sweet incense for the holy place; according to all that I have commanded thee shall they do.

Again Jehovah spoke to Moses, saying, 12 Speak thou also to the Israelites, saying, 13 Nevertheless my sabbath ye shall keep; for this is a token between me and you throughout your generations; that it may be known that I Jehovah am he who halloweth you. Ye therefore shall keep the sabbath; for 14 holy shall it be esteemed by you; every one who profaneth it shall surely be put to death: for whosoever doeth any work on it, that person shall be cut off from among his people. Six days work may be done; but 15 on the seventh is the sabbath of rest, holy to Jehovah: whosoever doeth any work on the sabbath day shall surely be put to death. Wherefore the Israelites shall keep the 16 sabbath, by making it a day of rest throughout their generations. It is the token of 17 a perpetual covenant between me and the Israelites. For in six days Jehovah made the heavens, and the earth, and on the seventh day he rested, and was refreshed.

And he gave to Moses, when he had made 19 an end of conversing with him upon mount Sinai, the two tables of testimony; tables of stone; written with the finger of God.

CHAPTER XXXII.

B. C. 1491. The people request and Aaron makes the golden calf.

BUT when the people saw that Moses 1 delayed to come down from the mount, the

27. (a) Sam. Sept. 6 MSS. 31. (v) Sept. 1 MS.
33. To a common use] I have given the sense. Literally, 'who putteth it upon a stranger,' that is, on any other than the high priest, which is the same as to use it as a common thing. 34. (a) Sam. 1 MS.

CHAP. XXXI. 3. An excellent spirit] Literally, 'spirit of God;' but as natural genius is meant, the sense is preferable to the idiom. God attributes to himself the gifts of nature, as well as the blessings of grace. See verse 6.—(Of wisdom)] I consider the ω as only the sign of the genitive case. See Nold. 8. (a) Versions, MSS.

13—17. It has been observed, that after the order to make the tabernacle, and all its furniture, God renews the command for the observation of the sabbath, lest the Israelites should think, they might work at these on that day.

They are prohibited to do this on pain of death; and of course, works of other kinds done by any of the Israelites would incur the like penalty.

18. Some explain this verse to mean only, that the tables were engraved by the command of God; but compare chap. xxiv. 12; xxxii. 15, 16; and Deut. v. 22, from which it is evident that they were given to Moses engraved. Many have contended, that God by this taught men the art of alphabetical writing; but see chap. xvii. 14, and let it be considered that Moses must have had some method of teaching the people the song he made at the Red Sea, and how he could do this without writing in some way or other, it is not easy to devise. I conjecture the art was antediluvian, and yet of divine origin.

CHAP. XXXII. 1. Delayed to come down] Moses had people assembled about Aaron, and said to him, Up, make us a god, who may go before us; for as for this Moses, the man that brought us up out of the land of Egypt, we know not what is become of him. And Aaron said to them, Take off the golden pendants, which are in the ears of your wives, of your sons, and of your daughters, and bring them to me. And all the people took off the golden pendants which were in their ears, and brought them to Aaron. And he received them from their hands; and he fashioned the form of it, and made a molten calf. And they said, This is thy god, O Israel, who brought thee up out of the land of Egypt. And when Aaron saw this he built an altar before it; and Aaron made proclamation, and said, To-morrow is a feast to Jehovah. And they rose up early on the morrow, and offered burnt-offerings, and brought feast-offerings; and the people sat down to eat and to drink; and then rose up to play.

7 Jehovah now spoke to Moses, "saying," Go, get thee down; for corrupted are thy people, whom thou broughtest out of the land of Egypt. Soon have they turned aside from the way in which I commanded them to walk. They have made to themselves a molten calf, and have worshipped it; and to it they have sacrificed, and said, This is thy god, O Israel, who brought thee up out of the land of Egypt.

9 Jehovah, moreover, said to Moses, I have seen this people; and, behold! they are a stiff-necked people. Now therefore let me alone, that my wrath may burn against them, and of thee I will make a great nation. "For Jehovah was so wroth with Aaron, that he would have destroyed him; but Moses interceded for Aaron." And 11 Moses besought Jehovah his God, and said, Why, Jehovah, doth thy wrath burn against thy people, whom thou hast brought out of the land of Egypt with great power, and with a mighty hand? Why should the 12 Egyptians speak and say, For mischief did he bring them out, to slay them among the mountains, and to consume them from the face of the earth? Turn from thy fierce wrath, and repent concerning this evil threatened to thy people. Remember Abraham, 13 Isaac, and "Jacob," thy servants, to whom thou sworest by thine own self, and saidst to them, I will multiply your seed as the stars of the heavens, and all this land that I have spoken of will I give to your seed, and they shall inherit it for ever. And Jehovah 14 repented concerning the evil which he thought to inflict on his people.

And Moses turned, and went down from 15 the mount, and the two tables of the testimony were in his hand; the tables were written on both their sides; on the one side and on the other were they written. And 16 those tables were the work of God, and the writing engraved upon the tables was the writing of God.

Now when Joshua heard the noise of the 17 people as they shouted, he said to Moses, There is noise of war in the camp. But 18 he said, It is not the shouting for victory; nor the howling for defeat, but mirthful songs do I hear.

But when he came nearer to the camp 19 and saw the calf, and the dancing, so hot was the anger of Moses that he threw the tables out of his hands, and broke them beneath the mountain. He then took the 20 calf which they had made, and burnt it in now been absent above a month, and the people thought he had perished. Thus, as they hastily and rashly conceived, being deprived of their leader, they were left at liberty to form their own civil and religious system in the best manner they could. After the custom which then prevailed in Egypt, Deut. xxix. 16, 17, they first desire an image to be formed as the representative of the God of Israel, which might go before them. I have rendered in the singular, because it is the real sense of the text, and because it is certain Aaron made but one calf, and because Nehemiah so explains it, chap. ix. 18. For these reasons I so render in the following verses.

2. Golden pendants] Such was the spirit of the people, that Aaron durst not venture openly to oppose them, but, to check them, proposed that they would give up these ornaments for the purpose. As these were universally worn, and much esteemed, he perhaps thought that they would not have made the sacrifice; but they made no delay in complying, such was their zeal in this affair.

4. The form of it] I have followed the sense attributed to הצורה by the Syr. and both Arabs; and, with Rosenmüller, consider this clause to refer to the wood of which the form was made, and the next to the fused gold which was spread over it. Compare Isa. xl. 19. Nor is it any objection to this opinion, that it is called the golden calf; for the incense altar, which we are sure was made of wood, chap. xxx. 1. is often called the golden altar, because covered with that metal: chap. xxxix. 33; and xl. 5.

5. A feast to Jehovah] From this it appears that the calf was to represent Jehovah, and that Aaron built the altar and appointed the feast to honour him. It is not certain, why Aaron made this image, or idol, in the form of a calf; but it was most probably in imitation of what they had seen in Egypt; where Apis was worshipped under the form of an ox. Their sin consisted in this, that they made an image to represent Jehovah, contrary to the law he had given from mount Sinai; chap. xx. 4. They worshipped him through an idolatrous medium. The plea for images, to aid devotion, set up by the corrupt church of Rome, the Israelites might have made on behalf of the golden calf. They are guilty of the same species of idolatry.

6. Feast-offerings] From verse 17—19, it appears that the feast-offerings were attended with dancing and songs. This explains what is meant, by their sitting down to eat and drink, and their rising up to play or to sport.

7. (n) Sam. Sept. Vulg.

10. The clause now found in the Sam. only, is so opposite, and contains so just a representation of the demerit of Aaron, that there is reason to think it may have been dropped, perhaps designedly, out of the Hebrew text. This seems to be referred to Deut. xix. 20.

13. (v) Sam. Sept.

20. If the view given on the 4th verse be admitted, Moses might easily burn the wood part, and the gold which covered it, might as easily be ground to powder, if first beat into thin laminae, something like gold leaf.

- the fire, and ground it to powder, and strewed it upon the water, and made the
- 21 Israelites drink it. And Moses said to Aaron, What did this people to thee that thou hast brought so great a guilt upon
- 22 them? And Aaron said, Let not the anger of my lord be hot; thou knowest that the
- 23 people are set on evil. For they said to me, Make us a god, who may go before us: for as for this Moses, the man that brought us out of the land of Egypt, we know not what
- 24 is become of him. And I said to them, Whosoever hath any golden pendants, take them off. So they gave them to me; and I threw them into the fire, and there came out this calf.
- 25 And when Moses saw that the people were in disorder (for Aaron had put them in disorder, so that they might be smitten
- 26 by their enemies :) Then Moses stood in the gate of the camp, and said, Who is on Jehovah's side? Haste to me. And all the
- 27 Levites assembled about him. And he said to them, Thus saith Jehovah, the God of Israel, Put every man his sword by his side; and pass and repass, from gate to gate through the camp; and slay every man his own brother, and every man his own companion, and every man his own neighbour.
- 28 And the Levites did according to the word of Moses: and there fell of the people that day, about three thousand men. And Moses said, To-day ye have devoted yourselves to Jehovah, even every man against his own son, and against his own brother; that he may bestow this day a blessing upon you.
- 30 And on the morrow, Moses said to the people, Ye have sinned a great sin: and now I will go up to Jehovah; perhaps I
- 31 may make an atonement for your sin. And Moses returned to Jehovah, and said, Oh, this people have sinned a great sin, and have made to themselves a god of gold.
- 32 Yet now, if thou wilt forgive their sin, "forgive;" and if not, blot me, I pray thee, out of the book which thou hast written. But
- 33 Jehovah said to Moses, Whosoever hath sinned against me, him will I blot out of

24. Aaron seems confused while giving this account; and only hints at the manner in which the calf was made, lest he should provoke Moses.

25. Aaron had put the people in disorder by making the calf, and appointing the feast to be kept in honour of it.

27. This order has been reflected on as cruel and unjust. In answer be it observed, that the crime was capital; and it would be wrong to extend the order further than to the persons who persisted in the crime.

32. The Sam. and Sept. supply the ellipsis of the text as given, which seems the most proper.—Blot me out of thy book]. He refers to the rolls or registers in which the names of the whole people were written; and attributes to God a similar roll containing the names of all the living. To be blotted out of this book meant to die; so that Moses expresses his wish rather to die, than to see the destruction of Israel. See Phil. iv. 3; Rev. iii. 5, &c.

33—35. God declares he will act on the principle of justice.

my book. Therefore now go, lead the 34 people to the place of which I have spoken to thee; "for" behold, mine angel shall go before thee: yet on the day of my visitation I will visit on them their sin. And Jehovah 35 sent plagues among the people, because of the calf, which they had caused Aaron to make.

CHAPTER XXXIII.

JEHOVAH then said to Moses, Depart, go 1 up hence, thou and the people whom thou hast brought out of the land of Egypt, into the land which I swore to Abraham, to Isaac, and to Jacob, saying, To your seed will I give it: "into a land flowing with milk and honey." And I will send "mine" 2 angel before you; and I will drive out the Canaanites, the Amorites, and the Hethites, "and the Girgashites," and the Perizzites, the Hivites, and the Jebusites. For I will not 3 go up among you; since ye are a stiffnecked people, lest I consume you on the way.

And when the people heard these evil 4 tidings, they mourned; and no man put on him his ornaments. For Jehovah had said 5 to Moses, Say to the Israelites, Ye are a stiffnecked people; were I to go up among you, I should consume you. Now therefore, put off your ornaments from you, that I may know what to do with you. And the 6 Israelites stripped themselves of their ornaments by the mount Horeb. And Moses 7 took "his own" tent and pitched it without the camp, afar off from the camp, and called it the Convention-tent; and so it was, that every one who sought Jehovah, went out to the convention-tent, which was without the camp.

Now whenever Moses went out unto the 8 convention-tent, all the people arose, and stood, every man at his tent door, and looked after Moses, until he entered the tent. And 9 when Moses entered the tent, the pillar of cloud descended, and stood at the door of the tent, while Jehovah talked with Moses.

tice. On the intercession of Moses he spared them, to show his mercy; but he so far punished, that none of that generation, except Joshua and Caleb, entered into the promised land. (v) Sam. Syr. 3 MSS.

CHAP. XXXIII. 1. I have transposed the words marked from the 3d verse here, as being evidently connected with what precedes. So Dimock and Geddes.

5. By rendering in the future, our translators have given a sense contrary to the intention of Moses. "That the Hebrew future frequently denotes the subjunctive mood, is too obvious to need proof; and it should be so rendered here.

6. Ornaments]. This term denotes the more splendid parts of dress, and also armour. It was usual in deep mourning to put off these. See Micah i. 8, and Harmer, vol. i. p. 172.

7, 8. Moses did not dwell for some time in the camp; but only went there to deliver the divine commands. (v) Sept. Syr.

10 And when all the people saw the pillar of cloud stand at the door of the tent, all the people arose and worshipped, each 11 at the door of his own tent. And Jehovah spoke to Moses face to face, as a man speaketh to his friend. And he returned, at times, to the camp; but the young man, his attendant, Joshua, the son of Nun, departed not from the tent.
 12 And Moses said to Jehovah, See thou sayest unto me, Bring up this people; but thou hast not made known to me whom thou wilt send with me. Yet thou hast said, I know thee by name, and thou hast 13 also found favour in my sight. Now therefore, I pray thee, if I have found favour in thy sight, make known to me thy designs; and "let me thereby know," that I have found favour in thy sight: for consider that 14 this nation is thy people. And Jehovah said, My presence shall go with thee, and I 15 will give thee rest. Then said Moses to him, If thy presence go not with us, bring 16 us not up hence. For by what now shall it be known, that I and thy people have found favour in thy sight? Is it not that thou go with us, so that we shall be distinguished, I and thy people, from every other people upon the face of the earth?
 17 And Jehovah said to Moses, This very thing of which thou hast spoken, I will do: for thou hast found favour in my sight, and I
 18 know thee by name. Moses then said, 19 Show me, I beseech thee, thy glory. And he said, I will make all my goodness pass before thee, while I proclaim before thee the name of Jehovah, (for I favour whom I will favour, and show mercy to whom I will 20 show mercy.) But said he, My face thou canst not see; for no man can thus see me 21 and live. Again Jehovah said, Behold, there is a place near to me where thou shalt 22 stand upon a rock; And it shall be, that while my glory passeth by, I will put thee in a cleft of the rock, and will cover thee with mine hand while I pass. And I will 23 remove mine hand, and thou shalt see my back; but my face cannot be seen.

CHAPTER XXXIV.

B. C. 1491. Moses returneth to Sinai; the tables are renewed; God proclaims his name and gives him new instructions.

JEHOVAH now said to Moses, Hew thou 1 two tables of stones, like to the first; and I will write upon the tables the words which were on the former tables, which thou brokest. And be ready in the morning, 2 and come up in the morning to mount Sinai, and wait for me there, on the top of the mountain. But let no one come up with 3 thee, nor let any one be seen throughout all the mountain; nor let the flocks or herds feed about that mountain.

And "Moses" hewed two tables of stone, 4 like to the former; and he arose up early in the morning, and went up to mount Sinai, as Jehovah had commanded him; and he took in his hand the two tables of stone. And Jehovah descended in the cloud, and 5 stood with him there; and he proclaimed the name of Jehovah. And Jehovah passed 6 by before him, and proclaimed, JEHOVAH, JEHOVAH, a God merciful and gracious, long-suffering, and abounding in goodness and truth; Keeping mercy to a thousand gene- 7 rations; forgiving iniquity, transgression, and sin; and not altogether destroying; visiting the iniquity of the fathers upon the children, and upon the children's children, to the third, or to the fourth generation only. And Moses made haste, and bowed his head 8 towards the earth, and worshipped; And he 9 said, If now I have found favour in thy sight, O Jehovah, let my Lord, I pray, go up among us; although they be a stiffnecked people; and pardon our iniquities, and our sins, and take us for thine own inheritance.

13. Thy designs] So the connexion requires that the term should be rendered; and so Rosenmüller and others understand the passage. 'To know one by name,' denotes to be a peculiar favourite, and admitted to the most intimate intercourse.

14. My presence] The Sept. 'I myself will go,' &c. and the following clause seems to support this sense. Some think that God intimates, that he would continue to make such manifestations of himself, as their necessities might require. The threatening contained in the 3d verse seems to be revoked.

18. Thy glory] Michaelis supposes that the term כבוד glory, here means heart, or self; as in the Arabic, and that the sense is, 'show me thyself; thy nature and essence.' So the Sept. render. Moses had seen the glory of Jehovah as manifest in the cloud, and as it appeared on Sinai; but he desires to see something more. Orton supposes there might be some peculiar glory within the cloud, which Moses wished to see.

19. All my goodness] Geddes has paraphrased the text well, 'All that is good for thee to see of me, I will make to pass before thee.'—For I favour] Michaelis and Herder render. 'Whom I favour, I greatly favour; and whom I love, I love indeed.' I agree in the opinion of Le Clerc, that the words denote rather the continuance than the degree of the divine favour.

20. My face] See note on verse 14. This intimates, that such is the glory of the divine nature, that no mortal could behold it.

23. My back] The meaning is, that God would make such a discovery of himself as Moses was able to bear, and especially by making known his designs of mercy.

CHAP. XXXIV. 2. Wait for me] So the Geneva version; the others, 'stand for me, or with me.' 4. (a) Sam.

5. Stood with him] The cloud overshadowed him, while Jehovah made the following proclamation before him.

7. Not altogether destroying] I so render because I am convinced the idiom will not bear the version of Geddes which I have followed. The sense attributed to נקב is supported by Isa. iii. 26; Zech. v. 3; Jer. xl. 11; xlv. 28; and Nah. i. 3. It is evident that the sentiment conveyed is that however he might correct or punish, he would not utterly or altogether destroy or blot out their name from under heaven, Numb. xiv. 18, &c. Others render, 'But will not wholly forgive, or let go altogether unpunished;' which is implied in the version given.

- 10 And he said, Behold I make a covenant, that I will do such wonders before all thy people, as have not been done in all the earth, nor in any nation: and all the people among whom thou art, shall see how awful the work is, which I, Jehovah, will do for their sake. Observe thou, what I this day command thee.
- Behold I drive out before you the Canaanites, and the Amorites, and the Hittites, and the Gergasites" and the Perizzites, and the Hivites, and the Jebusites.
- 12 Take heed that ye make not a covenant with the inhabitants of the land whither ye go: lest it become a snare among you: But destroy ye their altars, break in pieces their
- 14 statues, and cut down their groves. For ye shall worship no other god; because Jehovah is a jealous God; Jealous is his
- 15 name. Make then no covenant with the inhabitants of the land, lest while they go astray after their gods, and sacrifice to their gods; and they call you, and ye eat of their
- 16 sacrifice; Or lest ye take of their daughters for wives to your sons," and their daughters go astray after their gods, and cause your
- 17 sons also to go astray after them. MOLTEN gods ye shall not make to yourselves.
- 19 The feast of unleavened bread ye shall keep. Seven days shall ye eat unleavened bread, as I commanded you, at the stated time of the month Abib: because in the month Abib, ye came out from Egypt.
- 19 Every male first-born child is mine; and every male firstling among your cattle,
- 20 whether ox or sheep. But the firstling of an ass ye shall redeem with a lamb: or if ye redeem it not, ye shall break its neck. Every firstborn male of your sons ye shall redeem; and let them not appear before me empty.
- 21 Six days ye shall work, but on the seventh day shall ye rest: even in seed time and in harvest shall ye rest.
- 22 And the feast of the seventh week, of the first-fruits of wheat harvest, ye shall observe; and the feast of ingathering, at the end of the year.
- 23 Three times in the year shall all your male children appear before Jehovah, the God of Israel. For I will cast out the 24 nations before you, and enlarge your borders; nor shall any desire your land, when ye go up to appear before Jehovah your God, three times in the year. Ye shall not 25 offer the blood of my sacrifices with leaven; nor shall any part of the sacrifice of the feast of the passover be left until morning. The prime of the first-fruits of your land 26 shall ye bring to the house of Jehovah your God. Ye shall not cook a kid in the milk of its own mother. And Jehovah said to 27 Moses, Write thou these words; for according to the tenour of these words do I make a covenant with thee, and with Israel. And 28 "Moses" was there with Jehovah, forty days and forty nights; he did neither eat bread nor drink water; and Jehovah wrote upon the tables the words of the covenant, the ten commandments.

Now, when Moses came down from mount 29 Sinai with the two tables of testimony in his hand, when he came down from the mountain, Moses knew not that the skin of his face shone from his having talked with God. And when Aaron and all the Israel- 30 ites saw Moses, behold, the skin of his face shone; and they were afraid to approach him. But Moses called to them; and Aaron 31 and all the rulers of the congregation returned to him; and Moses talked with them. And afterwards all the Israelites approached 32 "him;" and he gave them in command all that Jehovah had spoken with him on mount Sinai; And when he had done speaking 33 with them, he put a veil on his face. But 34 when Moses went in before Jehovah to speak with him, he took off the veil, until he had come out; and when he had come out, until he had spoken to the Israelites whatsoever he had commanded him. And the Israel- 35 ites saw that the skin of Moses' face shone; and Moses put the veil upon his face again, until he went in to speak with Jehovah.

CHAPTER XXXV.

B. C. 1491. Moses addresseth the people; what they are to offer.

Moses now assembled the whole congregation of Israel, and said to them, These are

10. A covenant] This means the promise here made which was fulfilled; for in what nation did God ever work such wonders as among the Israelites?

16. The reading of the Sept. and Syr. 'Or give your daughters to their sons,' is highly probable. Compare Deut. vii. 3.

22—26. See chapter xiii. 16—19.

24. We have here a remarkable promise, and as far as the Jewish history can be evidence, we have no instance of this promise having failed.

28. And he wrote] Houbigant conjectures, that the name Jehovah has been omitted, and that the words have this sense, 'And Moses wrote the words of the covenant, and Jehovah the ten commands.' In this case Jehovah gave to Moses the written tables, and Moses wrote on the back side the laws contained from the 11—26 verses. Compare chap. xxxii. 15. 32. (a) Versions.

33. The English and most modern versions render, as if Moses put on the veil upon his face while he spoke to the children of Israel; on the other hand, all the ancient versions are decidedly contrary, 'that when he had done speaking to them, he put a veil on his face.' From the text and the context it appears, that when Moses drew near to God or delivered his oracles to the people, he was without the veil, but when he conversed with the people he was veiled. It has been thought that 2 Cor. iii. 13, supports the opposite opinion; but I conceive the allusion of the apostle is to the fact of Moses veiling his face, without any reference to the circumstance of time when he did it. See the version and note there.

- the things which Jehovah hath commanded you to do. Six days may work be done, but the seventh day shall be to you a holy day, a sabbath of rest to Jehovah: whosoever doth work on it shall be put to death.
- 3 Ye shall not kindle a fire throughout your habitations on the sabbath day.
- 4 Again Moses spoke to the whole congregation of Israel, saying, This is the thing which Jehovah hath commanded, saying,
- 5 Take ye from among yourselves an offering to Jehovah: whosoever is of a willing heart, let him bring Jehovah's offering; gold, and silver, and brass, And blue, and purple, and scarlet, and cotton, and goats' hair,
- 7 And rams' skins, dyed red, and seals' skins, and shittim wood, And oil for the chandelier, and spices for the anointing oil, and for the sweet incense, And onyx stones, and other stones to be set in the ephod, and in the breast-plate. And let every wise hearted person among you come, and make all that
- 11 Jehovah hath commanded; The tabernacle, with its tent, and its covering, its clasps, its boards, its bars, its pillars, and its bases;
- 12 The ark, with its staves, the mercy-seat, and the curtain veil; The table, with its staves, and all its utensils; and the presence-bread;
- 14 The chandelier also for giving light, and its utensils; its lamps, with the oil for the light;
- 15 And the incense-altar, with its staves; and the anointing oil, and the sweet incense; and the door-curtains for the door of the
- 16 tabernacle; The altar of burnt-offering, with its brazen grate, its staves, and all its utensils; the laver and its cover; The hangings of the court, its pillars, and their bases, and
- 18 the hanging for the door of the court; The pins for the tabernacle, and the pins for the court, and their cords; The cloths of service, for the service of the holy place; the holy garments for Aaron the priest, and the garments of his sons, to minister in the priest's office.
- 20 And the whole congregation of Israel departed from the presence of Moses. And they came, (every one whose heart inclined him, and every one whose spirit was willing,) and they brought Jehovah's offering, for the work of the congregation-tabernacle, and for all its service, and for the holy garments.
- 22 And both men and women, whosoever were willing hearted, came and brought clasps, and pendants, and rings, "and collars" and lockets, all sorts of jewels of gold; for every one offered an offering of gold to Jehovah. And all who were possessed of blue, 23 and purple, and scarlet, and cotton, and goats' hair, and rams' skins, dyed red, and seals' skins, brought them. All who would 24 make an offering of silver and brass, brought Jehovah's offering; and all who were possessed of shittim wood for any work of the service, brought it. And every wise hearted 25 woman spun with her hands, and brought of her spinning, blue, and purple, and scarlet, and cotton; And all those women, whose 26 heart inclined them, spun skilfully goats' hair. And the rulers brought onyx stones, 27 and other stones for setting in the ephod, and the breast-plate; And oil for giving 28 light; and spices for the anointing oil, and for the sweet incense. The Israelites 29 brought a willing offering to Jehovah; every man and woman, whose heart inclined them to bring, for all manner of work, which Jehovah, by Moses, had commanded to be made.

And Moses said to the Israelites, See, 30 Jehovah hath called by name Bezaleel the son of Uri, the son of Hur, of the tribe of Judah; And he hath filled him with an excellent spirit of wisdom, of understanding, and knowledge, for every sort of workmanship; For devising fancy-works, for working 32 in gold, and in silver, and in brass; For 33 engraving stones for setting, and for carving of wood, for making every sort of fancy-work. And he hath made him able to teach 34 others, both him and Aholiab, the son of Ahisamach, of the tribe of Dan. Them hath 35 he filled with wisdom of heart, to work every sort of work; whether of the mechanic or artist, or of the embroiderer, in blue, and in purple, and in scarlet, and in cotton; or of the weaver; even capable of executing and devising any sort of work.

CHAPTER XXXVI.

B. C. 1491. The people having given materials for constructing the tabernacle, Bezaleel and others make the tabernacle, and all its furniture and utensils; and the service-cloths, and holy garments.

AND Bezaleel and Aholiab, and every 1 wise hearted man, in whom Jehovah put wisdom and understanding to know how to work, made every sort of work for the service of the sanctuary, according to all which Jehovah had commanded. For Moses 2 called Bezaleel and Aholiab, and every wise hearted man, in whose heart Jehovah had put wisdom, and every one whose heart

CHAP. XXXV. 3. Not kindle a fire] This precept has been regarded as a severe penance, the weather in Judea, during the winter months, being very cold. It is probable, that the precept only regards fires for the purpose of cookery, or business, when they might with propriety be avoided.

22. (a) Sam. Sept.

CHAP. XXXVI.—XXXIX. Compare the notes on the preceding chapters, in which such particular directions are given, concerning the form and construction of the tabernacle, and all its utensils; that what follows to the conclusion of the 39th chapter, contains only an account, how precisely those directions were followed and how exactly all things were made, according to the pattern shown in the mount.

3 inclined him to come to do the work. And they received from Moses the whole offering, which the Israelites had brought for making the work for the sanctuary.

And they brought yet unto him free offerings every morning. And all the wise men, who wrought all the work of the sanctuary, came every man from his work which they made; And they spoke to Moses, saying, The people bring much more than enough for doing the work, which Jehovah commanded to be done. And Moses gave a charge, and caused it to be proclaimed throughout the camp, saying, Let neither man nor woman do any more work for the offering of the sanctuary. So the people were restrained from bringing. For the materials they had were sufficient, and more than sufficient, for the making of all the work.

And all the wise hearted men, who wrought the work of the tabernacle, made ten curtains of twisted cotton; artificial work they made in them, even cherubs of blue, and purple, and scarlet. The length of one curtain was twenty-eight cubits, and the breadth of one curtain four cubits; the curtains were all of the same measure. And five curtains they joined one to another: and the other five curtains they joined one to another. And they made loops of blue on the edge of one curtain, on the outmost edge at the joining; and so also they made on the outmost edge of another curtain, that it might be joined to the next. Fifty loops made they on the edge of one curtain, and fifty loops made they on the edge of the other curtain, which was to be joined to the next. The loops held one curtain to another. And they made fifty clasps of gold, and joined the curtains one to another with the clasps: so it became one tabernacle.

And they made curtains of goats' hair for the tent over the tabernacle; eleven curtains they made. The length of one curtain was thirty cubits, and the breadth of one curtain was four cubits: the eleven curtains were of the same measure. And they joined five curtains by themselves, and six curtains by themselves. And they made fifty loops on the outmost edge of the curtain at the joining; and fifty loops made they on the edge of another curtain that it might be joined to the next. And they made fifty clasps of brass to couple the tent together that it might be one. And they made a covering for the tent of rams' skins, dyed red, and a covering of seals' skins.

And they made boards for the tabernacle of shittim wood, to stand upright. The length of each board was ten cubits, and the breadth of each board a cubit and a half. Each board had two tenons, made similar one to another: thus they made all the boards of the tabernacle. And they made the boards for the tabernacle: twenty boards for the south, or right hand side: And forty bases of silver they made under the twenty boards; two bases under one board for its two tenons, and two bases under another board for its two tenons. And for the other side of the tabernacle, northward, they made twenty boards, And their forty bases of silver; two bases under one board, and two bases under another board. And for the end of the tabernacle, westward, they made six boards. And two boards made they for the corners of the tabernacle at the two ends. And they were joined beneath, and at the top, by one staple: they were both of them made alike, for the two corners. And there were eight boards; and their bases sixteen, bases of silver, under each board two bases.

And they made bars of shittim wood; five for the boards of the one side of the tabernacle; And five bars for the boards of the other side of the tabernacle; and five bars for the boards of the tabernacle for the end or west side. And they made the middle bar to pass along the boards from end to end. And they overlaid the boards with gold, and made the staples of gold, to take in the bars; and they overlaid the bars with gold.

And they made a veil of twisted cotton, with artificial work, with cherubs of blue, and purple, and scarlet. And they made for it four pillars of shittim wood, and overlaid them with gold; their hooks were also of gold; and for them they cast four bases of silver.

They also made a hanging for the door of the tabernacle, of blue, and purple, and scarlet, and twisted cotton, embroidered; And its five pillars with their hooks; and the covering of their capitals and their fillets was gold: but their five bases were of brass.

AND Bezaleel made the ark of shittim wood; two cubits and a half was its length, and a cubit and a half its breadth, and a cubit and a half its height. And he overlaid it with pure gold, within and without; and made a border of gold round about it. And he cast for it four staples of gold, for its four corners: even two staples for the one side of it, and two staples for the other side of it. And he made staves of shittim

11. And they made] The plural is adopted here, because it appears that the parts of the tabernacle noticed, were not made by Bezaleel himself, but by others, yet perhaps under his direction. Bezaleel is expressly said to have made the ark and the other furniture of the tabernacle, chap. xxxvii. 1, &c.

- 5 wood, and overlaid them with gold. And he put the staves into the staples, along the sides of the ark; that "by them" the ark might be carried.
- 6 And he made the mercy-seat of pure gold : two cubits and a half its length, and one
- 7 cubit and a half its breadth : And he made two cherubs of gold, from one solid piece made he them, at the two ends of the mercy-
- 8 seat ; One cherub at the one end, and another cherub at the other end : rising up from the mercy-seat made he the cherubs
- 9 at its two ends. And the cherubs spreading out their wings above, covered with their wings the mercy-seat, with their faces one to another ; even to the mercy-seat were the faces of the cherubs turned.
- 10 And he made the table of shittim wood ; two cubits was its length, and a cubit its breadth, and a cubit and a half its height.
- 11 And he overlaid it with pure gold, and made
- 12 for it a border of gold round about. Also he made for it a frame of a hand breadth high round about ; and made a border of
- 13 gold for the frame round about. And he cast for it four staples of gold, and put the staples at the four corners. on its four feet.
- 14 Near to the frame were the staples, to take in the staves that were to carry the table.
- 15 And he made the staves of shittim wood, and overlaid them with gold to carry the
- 16 table. He also made of pure gold the utensils which were for the table ; its platters, its incense-cups ; and its other cups in which drink offerings were to be offered.
- 17 And he made the chandelier of pure gold : of solid work made he the chandelier ; its shaft and its branches, its cups, its knops, and its flowers, were of the same piece.
- 18 And six branches proceeded from the sides of it ; three branches of the chandelier from one side of it, and three branches of the
- 19 chandelier from the other side of it. Three cups, shaped like almonds, were on one branch, each with a knop and a flower ; and three cups shaped like almonds on another branch, each with a knop and a flower ; so on all the six branches proceeding from the
- 20 chandelier. And on the shaft of the chandelier, were four cups shaped like almonds,
- 21 with their knops and their flowers : And "a knop and its flower on the single branch, and a knop and its flower under the first pair," and a knop and its flower under the second pair ; and a knop and its flower under the third pair of the six branches pro-
- 22 ceeding from it. Their knops and their branches were of the same piece : all of it, one work of pure gold. And he made its 23 seven lamps and its snuffers, and its snuff-dishes, of pure gold. Of a talent of pure 24 gold made he it, and all its vessels.

He also made the incense-altar of shittim 25 wood ; its length was a cubit, and its breadth a cubit ; it was square ; but two cubits was its height. Its horns were of the same piece with it. And he overlaid it with pure gold, 26 its roof, and its sides round about, and its horns : also he made unto it a border of gold round about. And he made for it two 27 staples of gold under its borders, at its two corners on its two sides, to take in the staves by which it was to be carried. And he 28 made the staves of shittim wood, and overlaid them with gold.

He also made the holy anointing oil, and 29 the pure aromatic incense, according to the art of the perfumer. 38

And he made the altar of burnt-offering 1 of shittim wood ; five cubits was its length, and five cubits its breadth ; it was square ; but three cubits its height. And he made 2 its horns at its four corners. Its horns were of the same piece with itself ; and he overlaid it with brass. And he made of brass 3 all the utensils of the altar, the ash-pans, and the shovels, and the basins, and the forks, and the censers : all its vessels made he of brass. And he made for the altar 4 a brazen grate of network, under the altar-band about the middle of the altar. And 5 he cast four staples for the four ends of the brazen grate, to take in the staves. And he 6 made the staves of shittim wood, and overlaid them with brass. And he put the 7 staves into the staples, at the sides of the altar, that by them it might be carried. Hollow, of boards, he made the altar.

And he made the laver of brass, and its 8 cover of brass, under the inspection of the women who ministered at the door of the convention-tent.

And he made the court of the tabernacle : 9 on the southward or right hand side, were the hangings of the court, of twisted cotton, a hundred cubits long. Their pillars were 10 twenty, and their bases of brass twenty ; but the hooks of the pillars and their fillets were of silver. And for the north side, 11 hangings were a hundred cubits long ; their pillars were twenty, and their bases of brass twenty ; but the hooks of the pillars and their fillets were of silver. And for the west 12 side were hangings of fifty cubits long ; their

CHAP. XXXVII. 5. (a) Sam. 21. (a) Sept.
CHAP. XXXVIII. 8. Under the inspection] It is well known that women washed the feet of men, as a part of their occupation. See 1 Sam. xxv. 41 ; Luke vii. 44 ; and 1 Tim. v. 10. Some might attend for this purpose at the convention-tent of Moses, chap. xxxiii. 7—11, where God was worshipped previously to the erection of the tabernacle ; and they might be consulted in respect to some things, as best knowing the uses for which it was made. Matthews and Luther so render. To suppose the laver made of the little brass mirrors of the women, who served at the convention-tent, is not probable, nor the sense of pillars ten, and their bases of brass ten; but the hooks of the pillars and their fillets 13 were of silver. And for the east or sun-rising side, were hangings fifty cubits long. 14 The hangings of the one side of the gate were fifteen cubits; their pillars three, and 15 their bases of brass three. And for the other side of the court gate, on this hand and on that hand, were hangings of fifteen cubits: their pillars three, and their bases 16 of brass three. All the hangings of the court round about were of twisted cotton. 17 And the bases of the pillars were of brass; but the hooks of the pillars and their fillets, of silver; and the overlayings of their capitals were of silver; and all the pillars of the 18 court were filleted with silver. And the hanging for the gate of the court, was of twisted cotton, embroidered with blue, and purple, and scarlet; and twenty cubits was the length, and the height was five cubits, answerable to the hangings of the court. 19 And their pillars were four, and their bases of brass four; but their hooks were of silver; and the overlaying of their capitals and their 20 fillets were of silver. And all the pins of the tabernacle, and of the court round about, were of brass. 21 This is the sum of the parts of the tabernacle, even of the tabernacle of testimony, which, by the command of Moses, was committed to the charge of the Levites, under the hand of Ithamar, son of Aaron the 22 priest: For Bezaleel the son of Uri, the son of Hur, of the tribe of Judah, made all that 23 Jehovah commanded Moses. And with him was Aholiab, son of Ahisamach, of the tribe of Dan, an engraver, and designer, and embroiderer in blue, and in purple, and in scarlet, and cotton. 24 All the gold which was used for the work, for the whole work of the sanctuary, even the gold of the offering, was twenty-nine talents, seven hundred and thirty shekels, according to the shekel of the sanctuary. 25 And the silver of those numbered of the congregation was a hundred talents, and one thousand seven hundred and seventy-five shekels, according to the shekel of the 26 sanctuary. A bekah for every man, that is, half a shekel, according to the shekel of the sanctuary, for every one who was numbered from twenty years old and upwards, being six hundred and three thousand, five hundred 27 and fifty men. And of the hundred talents of silver were cast the bases for the boards of the sanctuary, and the bases for the pillars of the veil; a hundred bases of the hundred talents, a talent for a base. And 28 of the thousand seven hundred seventy and five shekels, were made hooks for the pillars, and the overlaying of their capitals, and their fillets. And the brass of the offering was 29 seventy talents, and two thousand and four hundred shekels. And with this were made 30 the bases for the pillars of the congregation-tabernacle, and the brazen altar, with its brazen grate, and all the utensils of the altar; And the bases of the pillars of the 31 court round about; and the bases of the pillars of the court gate, and all the pins of the tabernacle, and all the pins of the court, round about. 36

AND of the blue, and purple, and scarlet, 1 they made garments of service, to minister in, in the sanctuary. They made also the holy garments for Aaron; as Jehovah had commanded Moses. They made the ephod 2 of gold, blue, and purple, and scarlet, and twisted cotton. And the gold they beat 3 out into thin plates, and cut it into wires, to work the fancy-work with the blue, and the purple, and the scarlet, and the cotton. They made for it shoulder-pieces, to be 4 joined to it; at its edges was the joining. And the fancy-work of its shoulder-pieces, 5 which were upon it, was of the same materials with itself; of gold, and blue, and purple, and scarlet, and twisted cotton; as Jehovah had commanded Moses.

And they set the onyx-stones in ouches 6 of gold, on which were engraven, like the engravings of a signet, the names of the sons of Israel. And they put them on the 7 shoulder-pieces of the ephod, stones of memorial for the children of Israel; as Jehovah had commanded Moses.

And they made the breast-plate of fancy- 8 work, like the work of the ephod; of gold, and blue, and purple, and scarlet, and twisted cotton. Square, and double, they made 9 the breast-plate; its length a span, and its breadth a span. And they set in it four 10 rows of stones. The first row was of a cornelian, a topaz, and an emerald, And the second row, a ruby, a sapphire, and a diamond. And the third row, a figure, an agate, and 12 an amethyst. And the fourth row, a beryl, 13 an onyx, and a jasper. In their settings, they were set in ouches of gold. The 14 stones were twelve according to the names of the sons of Israel; and their names were engraven, like the engravings of a signet, each with its name, according to the twelve

24—26. The sum of gold and silver raised and expended on the tabernacle, amounted to about 185,000*l.* of our money. Some, after Prideaux, making the shekel worth 3*s.* make the total above 200,000*l.* How splendid and magnificent must have been this small structure!

29. Seventy talents] This seems too small a quantity, and as some copies of the Sept. read 170, it is probable some error has occurred.

15 tribes. And they made for the breast-plate two equal chains of wreathen work of pure 16 gold. They made also two clasps of gold, and two rings of gold; and they put the two rings at the two upper ends of the 17 breast-plate. And they put the two wreathen chains of gold in the two rings at the upper 18 ends of the breast-plate. And the other two ends of the two wreathen chains, they fastened to the two clasps, and put them to the shoulder-pieces of the ephod opposite.
 19 And they made two other rings of gold, and put them at the two lower ends of the breast-plate, upon its inward border, opposite the ephod. And they made two other rings of gold, and put them on the two lowest ends of the shoulder-pieces, opposite to where it joins the fancy-work of the ephod.
 21 And the breast-plate they bound by its rings to the rings of the ephod, with a lace of blue; that it might be joined to the fancy-work of the ephod, and that the breast-plate might not be loosed from the ephod; as Jehovah had commanded Moses. "They also made the Urim and Thummim; as Jehovah had commanded Moses."
 22 And they made the robe of the ephod, of 23 woven work, all of blue. And in the middle of the robe was a hole like the hole of a coat of mail; with a band round the hole, 24 that it might not be rent. And upon the hems of the robe, they wrought pomegranates of blue, and purple, and scarlet, and 25 twisted cotton. And they made bells of pure gold, and put the bells between the pomegranates on the hem of the robe, round 26 about between the pomegranates; A "golden" bell and a pomegranate, round about the hem of the robe to minister in; as Jehovah had commanded Moses.
 27 And for Aaron and his sons they made 28 tunics of cotton, woven work; And a mitre of cotton, and beautiful turbans of cotton, 29 and certain drawers of twisted cotton; And a girdle of twisted cotton embroidered with blue, and purple, and scarlet; as Jehovah had commanded Moses.
 30 They also made the petal, for the holy crown on which they wrote, like the writing engraven on a signet, HOLY TO JEHOVAH.
 31 And they tied to it a lace of blue, to fasten it on the front of the mitre; as Jehovah commanded Moses.
 32 Thus was finished all the work of the tabernacle, the tent of the congregation. For the Israelites did according to all that Jehovah had commanded Moses; so did they.
 33 And they brought the tabernacle to Moses; the tent, and all its utensils, its clasps, its boards, its bars, and its pillars, and its bases. And the covering of rams' skins, 34 dyed red, and the covering of seals' skins; and the curtain-veil. The ark of the tes- 35 timony, and its staves; and the mercy-seat; The table, and all its vessels; and the pre- 36 sence-bread; The chandelier of pure gold 37 with its lamps, with the lamps to be set in order on it, and all its utensils, and the oil for light; And the golden altar; and the 38 anointing oil; and the sweet incense; and the hanging for the door of the tabernacle; The brazen altar, and its grate of brass, its 39 staves, and all its utensils; the laver and its cover; The hangings of the court, its 40 pillars, and its bases; and the hanging for the court gate, its cords, and its pins, and all the other utensils for the service of the tabernacle, for the tent of the congregation. The 41 cloths for the service in the sanctuary; and the holy garments for Aaron the priest, and the garments for his sons, to minister in the priest's office. According to all which Je- 42 hovah had commanded Moses, so the Israelites made the whole work. And when 43 Moses inspected the whole work, behold they had done all as Jehovah had commanded; even so had they done it, and Moses blessed them.

CHAPTER XL.

B. C. 1491. Erection of the tabernacle.

JEHOVAH then spoke to Moses, saying, 1
 On the first day of the first month shalt 2 thou set up the tabernacle, the tent of the congregation. And thou shalt place in it 3 the ark of the testimony, and cover the ark with the veil. And thou shalt bring in the 4 table, and arrange on it what is to be arranged; and thou shalt bring in the chan- 5 delier, and put its lamps on it. And thou shalt set the altar of gold for the incense 6 before the ark of the testimony; and put up the hanging for the door of the tabernacle. And thou shalt set the altar of burnt-offering 7 before the door of the tabernacle, the tent of the congregation. And thou shalt set the 8 laver between the tent of the congregation and the altar, and shalt put water therein. And thou shalt set up the court round about; 9 and put up the hanging of the court-gate. And thou shalt take the anointing oil, and 10 anoint the tabernacle with all that is in it; and so thou shalt hallow it, and all its utensils, that it may be holy. And thou shalt 11 anoint the altar of burnt-offering, and all its utensils, and so shalt thou hallow the altar, that the altar may be most holy. And thou 11

CHAP. XXXIX. 21. (a) Sam. 26. (a) Sam.
 CHAP. XL. 3. Cover the ark with the veil } This refers to the veil which separated the most holy place or the oracle, from the sanctuary. Hence the veil was not over the ark, but before it, and covered it from the sight of the priests officiating in the sanctuary.

- shalt anoint the laver and its cover; and so thou shalt hallow it.
- 12 Thou shalt then bring Aaron and his sons to the door of the congregation-tabernacle, and wash them with water. And thou shalt clothe Aaron with the holy garments, and anoint him and hallow him, that he may minister to me in the priest's office. Thou shalt also bring his sons, and clothe them with tunics. And thou shalt anoint them, as thou didst anoint their father, that they may minister to me in the priest's office; for their anointing shall be a token of a perpetual priesthood, throughout their generations. Thus did Moses; according to all which Jehovah commanded him, so did he.
- 17 And it was in the first month, in the second year, "from their departure from Egypt," on the first day of the month, that the tabernacle was set up. And Moses set up the tabernacle, and fastened its bases, and placed its boards, and put in its bars.
- 19 and reared up its pillars. And he spread abroad the tent-curtains; over the tabernacle he spread abroad the tent-curtains; and over these he put the covering of the tent; as Jehovah had commanded him.
- 20 And he took and put the testimonies into the ark; and placed the staves in the staples of the ark, and put the mercy-seat upon the ark. And he brought the ark into the tabernacle; and put up the curtain-veil, and covered the ark of the testimony; as Jehovah had commanded him.
- 22 And he put the table in the tent of the congregation, upon the side of the tabernacle northward, without the veil. And he set the bread in order upon it before Jehovah; as Jehovah had commanded him.
- 24 And he put the chandelier in the tent of the congregation, over against the table, on the side of the tabernacle southward. And 25 he lighted the lamps before Jehovah; as Jehovah had commanded him.

And he put the golden altar in the tent 26 of the congregation before the veil. And 27 he burnt sweet incense thereon; as Jehovah had commanded him.

And he put up the hanging at the door 28 of the tabernacle. And he put the altar of 29 burnt-offering by the door of the tabernacle, of the tent of the congregation, that he might offer upon it the burnt-offering and the wheaten-offering; as Jehovah had commanded him.

And he set the laver between the tent of 30 the congregation and the altar, and put water therein, to wash with; That Moses 31 and Aaron and his sons might wash their hands and their feet. When they went 32 into the tent of the congregation, and when they came near to the altar, they washed; as Jehovah had commanded Moses. And 33 he reared up the court round about the tabernacle and the altar, and put up the curtain of the court-gate.

So Moses finished the work; And a cloud 34 covered the tent of the congregation, and the glory of Jehovah filled the tabernacle. And Moses was not able to enter into the 35 tent of the congregation, because the cloud abode on it, and the glory of Jehovah filled the tabernacle.

Now when the cloud moved from over 36 the tabernacle, the Israelites went onward in all their journeys; But when the cloud 37 moved not, they journeyed not until the day that it moved again. For the cloud of Jehovah was upon the tabernacle by day, and became as a blaze of fire by night, in the sight of all the house of Israel, throughout all their journeys.

15. Shall be a token] Literally, 'Their anointing shall be to them a perpetual priesthood.' By this ceremony they shall be separated to discharge the functions of the priesthood. 17. (a) Sam. Sept.

19. As Jehovah commanded him] In the text here, and in the following verses, it is, 'as Jehovah commanded Moses;' but the noun is often used for the pronoun in the Hebrew scriptures, and in such a construction as this, the latter ought to be used.

LEVITICUS.

INTRODUCTION.

THE name of the third book of Moses is also derived from the Septuagint; and the book is thus called, because it chiefly relates to the Levites and their services, in and concerning the tabernacle. To one family of Levi, the priesthood was given; and the other families, called the tribe of Levi, were appointed to attend the priests, and discharge various and important offices in the Jewish church and state. See Introduction, Part i. and ii.

After the erection of the tabernacle, God gave to Moses the laws and ordinances contained in this book. They relate to the sacrifices, and solemn festivals; the burnt-offering, sin and guilt-offerings, the feast, wheaten and drink-offerings; the festivals of the Passover, Pentecost, and Booths; beside many particular laws and ceremonies. The transactions here recorded are few, and probably did not occupy much time.

CHAPTER I.

B. C. 1491. Laws concerning the burnt-offering, from the herds or flocks; the wheaten and drink-offerings.

- 1 AND Jehovah called to Moses, and spoke to Moses from the congregation-tabernacle,
- 2 saying, Speak to the Israelites and say to them, If any among you will bring an offering to Jehovah from among the cattle; from the herd or from the flock ye shall bring your offerings.
- 3 If his oblation be a burnt-offering from the herd, let him offer a male without blemish; at the door of the congregation-tabernacle shall he offer it, that he may be accepted before Jehovah. And he shall lay his hand upon the head of the victim, that it may be accepted to make atonement for him.
- 5 And one shall kill the steer before Jehovah; and the priests, Aaron's sons, shall bring the blood, and sprinkle the blood round about upon the altar which is near the door of the congregation-tabernacle. And one shall slay the victim, and cut it up into parts. And the sons of Aaron, the "priest," shall put fire upon the altar, and arrange the wood upon the fire. And the priests, Aaron's sons, shall arrange the parts, the head, and the fat, upon the wood which is on the fire upon the altar; But its intestines and its legs shall be washed in water; and a priest shall burn the whole on the altar: it is a burnt-offering, of a sweet savour to Jehovah.
- 10 And if his offering "to Jehovah" be from the flocks, whether of the sheep, or of the goats, let him offer a male without blemish; "at the door of the congregation-tabernacle shall he offer it." And "he shall lay his hand upon its head," and one shall kill it on the side of the altar northward before Jehovah; and the priests, Aaron's sons, shall sprinkle its blood round about upon the altar. And it shall be cut up into parts with its head and its fat; and the priest shall arrange them on the wood which is on the fire upon the altar. But the intestines and the legs he shall wash with water; and the priest shall bring the whole of it, and burn it upon the altar: it is a burnt-offering of a sweet savour to Jehovah.

And if the burnt-offering oblation to Jehovah be of the bird-kind, let him bring his offering either of turtle-doves, or of pigeons. And the priest shall bring it to the altar, 15 and wring off its head, and burn it on the altar; and its blood shall he squeeze out at the bottom of the altar. And he shall pluck 16 out its crop with its contents, and cast it by the altar, on the east side, in the place where the ashes are laid. And he shall 17 cleave it with its wings, but shall not divide it asunder; and the priest shall burn it upon the altar, upon the wood which is upon the fire; it is a burnt-offering of a sweet savour to Jehovah. 2d

AND if any person will offer a wheaten-offering to Jehovah, his offering shall be of the finest flour; and he shall pour oil upon it, and put incense to it: "it is a wheaten-offering." And he shall bring it to Aaron's 2 sons, the priests; and a priest shall take his handful of the flour, and of the oil, with all the incense; and he shall burn them, as a memorial of it upon the altar, a burnt-offering of a sweet savour to Jehovah. And 3 the remainder of the wheaten-offering Aaron and his sons shall have, as a thing most holy of the burnt-offerings of Jehovah.

And if thou offer a wheaten-offering baked 4 in the oven, let it be of unleavened cakes of the finest flour mingled with oil, or unleavened wafers anointed with oil. And if thy 5 wheaten-offering be an offering baked on a fire plate, it shall be of the finest flour unleavened, mingled with oil. Thou shalt 6 part it into pieces and pour oil on it: it is a wheaten-offering.

And if thy offering be a wheaten-offering 7 baked in the frying-pan, it shall be made of the finest flour with oil. And thou shalt 8 bring the wheaten-offering which is made in any of these ways to Jehovah; and it shall be presented to the priest, and he shall bring it to the altar. And the priest 9

CHAP. I. 2. From the herd or the flock] See Introduction, Part iii. chap. 4. § 3. The heathens offered horses to the sun, wolves to Mars, asses to Priapus, swine to Ceres, and dogs to Hecate. God allowed no such victims to be offered to him.

3. Without blemish] Intimating that God ought to be served with the best of what we possess, and typical of him who was harmless, holy, undefiled, and separate from sinners.

4. Lay his hand] Thereby devoting it to God, and transferring, as it were, his own guilt upon the victim.

5. One shall kill] It is not certain whether the offerer, a priest, or a Levite, slaughtered the victim. It is however most probable, that this was most usually done by a Levite. By thus rendering the ambiguity of the text is preserved.—And the blood] By the blood, atonement was made; for the blood was the life of the beast, and it was always understood, that life went to redeem life.

7. (c) Sam. versions.

10. I have adopted the Samaritan text, as it is supported by the Sept. 11. (a) Sept.

16. With its contents] So Junius renders, with Purver and others; and this version is the only proper one. See Note, Hebrew Bible.

CHAP. II. 1—7. Wheaten-offering] This best expresses this kind of offerings. Calmet has observed there were five kinds of these offerings—simple flour—oven cakes—cakes of the fire-plate—cakes of the frying-pan—and green ears of corn. The salt, oil and incense, were designed to render the wheaten offerings more inflammable, and the odour more grateful. What was used to give a relish to food, God would have presented to him. (a) Sam. Sept.

2. A memorial] Of God's covenant with them and his kindness to them. Ainsworth has observed, 'that there was neither oil nor incense offered with the sin and jealousy offerings; because they were not offerings of memorial, but such as brought iniquities to remembrance, which were not of a sweet smelling savour to Jehovah.'

- shall take some of the wheaten-offering as a memorial, and shall burn it upon the altar: it is a burnt-offering of a sweet savour to Jehovah. And the remainder of the wheaten-offering Aaron and his sons shall have, as a thing most holy of the burnt-offerings of Jehovah. No wheaten-offering, which ye offer to Jehovah, shall be made with leaven; for ye shall neither burn leaven, nor honey; with any burnt-offering of Jehovah.
- 12 As to an offering of the first-fruits, ye may offer them to Jehovah; but they shall not be burnt on the altar for a sweet savour.
- 13 And all your wheaten-offerings ye shall season with salt; nor shall ye withhold from your wheaten-offerings the salt of the food of your God: with all your wheaten-offerings ye shall offer salt. And if ye offer a wheaten-offering of your first-fruits to Jehovah, rubbed green ears of corn, dried by the fire, shall ye offer as a wheaten-offering of your first-fruits. And ye shall put on it oil, and add to it incense: it is a wheaten-offering. And the priest shall burn, as a memorial of it, a part of the corn rubbed out, and a part of the oil, with all the incense: it is a burnt-offering to Jehovah.

CHAPTER III.

B. C. 1491. The feast-offerings from the herds and flocks; the sin-offering for the priest, congregation, ruler, or any of the people.

- 1 And if one's oblation be a feast-sacrifice, and if he offer from the herd; a male or female shall he offer, without blemish, before Jehovah. And he shall lay his hand upon the head of his offering, and it shall be killed at the door of the congregation-tabernacle; and Aaron's sons, the priests, shall sprinkle the blood round about upon the altar. And of the feast-sacrifice, he shall offer (as a burnt-offering to Jehovah) the fat that covereth the intestines, and all the fat that is on the intestines; And the two
- kidneys, and the fat that is on them, which is by the flanks, and the excrescence of the liver, with the kidneys, shall be taken off. And Aaron's sons, "the priests," shall burn them upon the burnt-offering, which is on the wood that is on the fire "upon the altar:" it is a burnt-offering of a sweet savour to Jehovah.
- And if his offering for a feast-sacrifice to Jehovah be from the flock; a male or a female, without blemish, he shall offer. If he offer a lamb for his offering, then shall he bring it before Jehovah. And he shall lay his hand upon the head of his offering, and it shall be killed before Jehovah at the door of the congregation-tabernacle; and Aaron's sons, "the priests," shall sprinkle the blood thereof round about upon the altar. And of the feast-sacrifice, he shall offer, as a burnt-offering to Jehovah, the large fat tail entire, taken off close to the rump: and the fat that covereth the intestines, and all the fat that is on the intestines; And the two kidneys, and the fat that is on them, which is by the flanks; and the excrescence of the liver, with the kidneys, shall be taken off; And a priest shall burn them upon the altar, as the food of a sweet-savoured burnt-offering to Jehovah.
- And if his offering be a goat, he shall bring it before Jehovah; And he shall lay his hand upon its head, and before Jehovah at the door of the congregation-tabernacle, it shall be killed; and the sons of Aaron "the priests" shall sprinkle its blood round about upon the altar. And of it, he shall offer, as a burnt-offering to Jehovah, the fat that covereth the intestines, and all the fat that is on the intestines; And the two kidneys, and the fat which is on them, which is by the flanks; and the excrescence of the liver, with the kidneys shall be taken off; And the priest shall burn them upon the altar, as the food of a burnt-offering of a sweet savour to Jehovah." The whole fat is

11. With leaven] Leaven is considered as a species of putrefaction, because in hot countries what is leavened soon becomes unfit for use. Hence leaven is not only noticed for its rapid influence on the mass into which it is put, but as the emblem of malice and wickedness, Matt. xiii. 33, and 1 Cor. v. 6-8.

13. The salt of the food] For the critical reasons of this version, see Note, Hebrew Bible. In this place the word בְּרִית usually rendered 'covenant,' means 'portion of food,' from בָּרָה. Compare 2 Sam. xiii. 5, 7, 10. with Levit. iii. 11. It is called 'the food of God,' because it was dedicated to God, a part being burnt on the altar and the remainder given to the priests.—Season with salt] Salt is the opposite of leaven, and preserves from putrefaction. Every thing was seasoned with it, to intimate that purity should be preserved in the service of God, and in the hearts of his worshippers.

CHAP. III. 1. Feast-sacrifice] Coverdale rendered, thank-offering, and Geddes, eucharistic. I have followed Michaelis, in calling them, 'Feast-sacrifices,' because the principal parts were eaten by the offerer and his friends; and because they were attended with other demonstrations of joy and pleasure. They were generally the free-will offerings of the people.

5. With the burnt-offering] Hence it should seem, that the feast-offering was not offered alone, but together with some other victim; probably the daily burnt-offering, (a) Sept. Syr. 1 MS. (a) Sam. Sept.

8. (a) Syr. 1 MS. (a) Sept. 1 MS.

9. The large fat tail] See Note on Exod. xxix. 22. Mr. Street considers this precept to have had respect to the health of the Israelites. 'Bilious disorders are very frequent in hot countries; the eating of fat meat is a great encouragement and excitement to them. The fat of the large tail of the eastern sheep is reckoned a luxurious delicacy; but I have been told, by one who had eaten of it, that it is not wholesome.' The conclusion of the 17th verse justifies this opinion, whatever typical reference may also be implied.

- 17 Jehovah's, by a perpetual statute. Throughout your generations in all your dwellings, ye shall eat neither fat nor blood.
- 1 AGAIN Jehovah spoke to Moses, saying,
2 Speak to the Israelites, "and say to them," If any person have sinned through ignorance, and done those things which ought not to be done, against any of the commandments of Jehovah; If the anointed priest have thus sinned, so as to bring guilt on the people, then let him bring for his sin, which he hath committed, a steer without blemish for a sin-offering to Jehovah. And he shall bring the steer to the door of the congregation-tabernacle before Jehovah; and he shall lay his hand upon the head of the steer, and before Jehovah the steer shall be killed. And the anointed priest, "who hath been consecrated," shall take some of the blood of the steer, and bring it to the congregation-tabernacle. And the priest shall dip his finger in the blood, and sprinkle "with his finger" of the blood, seven times before Jehovah towards the veil of the sanctuary. And the priest shall put some of the blood upon the horns of the altar of sweet incense before Jehovah which is in the congregation-tabernacle; but all the rest of the blood of the steer, he shall pour out at the bottom of the altar of burnt-offering, which is at the door of the congregation-tabernacle. All the fat of the steer of the sin-offering shall be taken off, "as it is taken off from the steer of the feast-sacrifice;" the fat that covereth the intestines, and all the fat that is on the intestines.
- 9 And the two kidneys, and the fat that is on them, which is by the flanks; and the excrescence of the liver, with the kidneys, shall be taken off; And a priest shall burn them upon the altar of burnt-offering. But the skin of the steer, and all the flesh, with its head, and with its legs, and its intestines, and its dung, Even the whole steer shall be carried without the camp to a clean place, where the ashes are poured out, and burned on the wood with fire; where the ashes are poured out shall it be burnt.
- 13 And if the whole congregation of the Israelites have sinned through ignorance, and the thing be hid from the eyes of the assembly, and they have done any thing which should not be done against any of the commandments of Jehovah, and are guilty; When the sin which they have committed is known, then the congregation shall offer a steer "without blemish" for a sin-offering. And they shall bring it "to the door of" the congregation tabernacle; And the elders of the congregation shall lay their hands upon the head of the steer before Jehovah; and the steer shall be killed before Jehovah. And the anointed priest shall bring some of the steer's blood to the congregation-tabernacle; And the priest shall dip his finger in some of the blood, and sprinkle it seven times before Jehovah, towards the veil "of the sanctuary." And some of the blood he shall put upon the horns of the altar "of incense" which is before Jehovah, in the congregation tabernacle; and shall pour out all the rest of the blood at the bottom of the altar of burnt-offering, which is at the door of the congregation-tabernacle. He shall then take off its fat from it, and burn it upon the altar. And he shall do with the steer as he did with the other steer of the sin-offering; so shall he do with this. Thus the priest shall make an atonement for them, and they shall be forgiven. And the steer shall be carried without the camp, and be burned as the former steer was burned. This is the sin-offering for the congregation.

When a ruler hath sinned, through ignorance, and hath done any thing which should not be done against any of the commandments of Jehovah "his God," and is guilty; And if his sin, which he hath committed, come to his knowledge, he shall bring for his offering, a kid, a male without blemish: And he shall lay his hand upon the head of the kid, and it shall be killed in the place where they kill the burnt-offering before Jehovah: it is a sin-offering. And the priest shall take some of the blood of the sin-offering with his finger, and put it upon the altar of burnt-offering, and shall pour out the rest of its blood at the bottom of the altar of burnt-offering. And he shall burn

CHAP. IV. 2. Through the whole chapter the sense rather than the idiom is given. When a person offended, either by omitting to observe, or transgressing, any of God's laws, as soon as he knew his offence he was to offer the following sacrifice; if he neglected to do it, his guilt remained, and judgment awaited him. (v) Syr.

3. Guilt on the people] The priest's lips were to keep knowledge; and in what respected the law, he was to instruct them. If the priest sinned through ignorance and led the people astray, the sin was heinous, and was to be particularly expiated.

5. (a) Sam. Sept. 6. (a) Sam. 1 MS. 8. (t) from 10. 12. Without the camp] Some think this circumstance, as well as the steer for the sin-offering of the priest, marked the greatness of his offence, as well as represented the for-givenness of it. In allusion to the burning of this victim without the camp Paul observes, our Lord suffered without the gate, Heb. xiii. 11—13.

13. The whole congregation] This must refer to the cases in which the priests and magistrates did not properly interpret, or enforce the law. The victim and rites are the same as those prescribed for the anointed priest. See the preceding verses.

all its fat upon the altar, as the fat of the feast-sacrifice is burned. Thus the priest shall make an atonement for him in respect to his sin, and it shall be forgiven him.

- 27 And if any one of the common people have sinned through ignorance, by doing any thing which ought not to be done, against any of the commandments of Jehovah, and be guilty; And if his sin, which he hath committed, come to his knowledge; then he shall bring for his offering, a kid, a female without blemish, for his sin which he hath committed. And he shall lay his hand upon the head of the sin-offering, and the sin-offering shall be killed in the place where "the burnt-offering is killed." And the priest shall take some of its blood with his finger, and put it upon the horns of the altar of burnt-offering, and shall pour out all the rest of the blood at the bottom of the altar "of burnt-offering." And he shall take off all the fat, as the fat of the feast-sacrifice is taken off; and a priest shall burn it upon the altar for a sweet savour to Jehovah. Thus the priest shall make an atonement for him, and he shall be forgiven. And if he bring a lamb for a sin-offering, he shall bring a female without blemish. And he shall lay his hand upon the head of the sin-offering, and the sin-offering shall be killed in the place where the burnt-offering is killed. And the priest shall take some of the blood of the sin-offering with his finger, and put it upon the horns of the altar of burnt-offering, and shall pour out all the rest of the blood at the bottom of the altar "of burnt-offering." And he shall take off all the fat, as the fat of the lamb of the feast-sacrifice is taken off; and the priest shall burn it upon the altar, with the burnt-offerings of Jehovah. Thus the priest shall make an atonement for his sin that he hath committed, and it shall be forgiven him.

30. (a) Sam. Syr. 2 MSS. 34. (a) Sam. Sept.

CHAP. V. 1. The words of an adjuration] Literally, 'the voice of an oath,' the meaning of which is, says Delgado, that when evidences are wanted, the judges order a proclamation to be issued, for any one who knows any thing concerning it to come and declare it in court; and commonly a curse is joined to it in case any should neglect or refuse to be evidence. Now this man's sin was, that he had heard the proclamation, and yet did not appear to give evidence.

2—5. The cases here stated might often occur from inat-

an adjuration; and if being a witness, he will not declare what he hath seen or known; he hath sinned and brought on himself iniquity. Or if a person have touched any thing unclean, either the carcase of an unclean wild animal, or the carcase of any unclean beast, or the carcase of an unclean reptile, and it be hid from him, and he hath become unclean, and guilty: Or if he have touched the uncleanness of man, whatsoever uncleanness it be that a man may be defiled with, and it be hid from him; when he knoweth it, then he shall be guilty: Or if a person have sworn rashly, from pronouncing with his lips, to do evil, or to do good (whatsoever it be that a man may rashly pronounce with an oath,) and it be hid from him; yet when he knoweth, that he is guilty in any of these things, And that by any of these things he hath become guilty, he shall confess the sin which he hath committed; And shall bring his guilt-offering to Jehovah for his sin which he hath committed; a female from the flock, either a lamb or a kid, for a sin-offering; and the priest shall make an atonement for the sin which he hath committed, and it shall be forgiven him." And if he be not able to bring a lamb or a kid, then let him bring for his trespass which he hath committed, two turtle doves, or two pigeons to Jehovah; the one for a sin-offering, and the other for a burnt-offering. And when he hath brought them to the priest, he shall offer that which is for the sin-offering first, and wring off its head from its neck, but shall not divide it asunder; And he shall sprinkle some of the blood of the sin-offering upon the side of the altar; and the rest of the blood shall he squeeze out at the bottom of the altar: it is a sin-offering. And he shall offer the other 10 for a burnt-offering, according to the manner prescribed. Thus the priest shall make an atonement for him, as to his sin which he hath committed, and it shall be forgiven him.

But if he who hath sinned be not able to bring two turtle-doves, or two pigeons, then let him bring for his sin-offering the tenth part of an ephah of fine flour; but he shall tention, and it was highly proper to specify them, in order to prevent rash promises, vows, &c. When a man became sensible of his offence, he was to confess it, and to express his humiliation for it, that he might be forgiven.

6. The addition of the Samaritan copy is found in the text, in other instances. It is remarkable, that in this and the next verse, the sacrifice is called both a guilt-offering, and a sin-offering. From other places we learn that there was a distinction—sin-offerings were offered for the whole congregation, guilt-offerings never, but only for individuals. Steers were sometimes used for sin-offerings, but never for guilt-offerings. The blood of the sin-offerings was put on the horns of the altar; that of the guilt-offerings was only sprinkled round the bottom of the altar. (a) Sam. Sept.

7, 8. See note on chapter i. 16.

11. (r) Sam. Sept. Syr. rest, put.

- not "pour" oil upon it, nor shall he put incense to it, because it is a sin-offering. Then shall he bring it to the priest, and the priest shall take his handful of it, for a memorial, and burn it on the altar, with the burnt-offerings of Jehovah: it is a sin-offering.
- 13 And the priest shall, by any of these, make an atonement for him, as to his sin which he hath committed, and it shall be forgiven him; and the remainder of the offering the priest shall have, like that of the wheaten-offering.
- 14 Again Jehovah spoke to Moses saying,
- 15 If a person have committed a trespass, and sinned through ignorance, by withholding any of the holy things of Jehovah; then he shall bring to Jehovah, as a trespass-offering for his trespass, a ram, without blemish, from the flocks, of the value of two shekels of silver, according to the shekel of the sanctuary. And the wrong done by withholding any thing holy, he shall compensate, and having added a fifth part more, he shall give it to the priest; and the priest shall make an atonement for him with the ram of the trespass offering, and it shall be forgiven him.
- 17 And if a person have sinned, and have done any thing against the commandments of Jehovah, which ought not to be done; though he knew it not, yet is he guilty, and hath brought on himself iniquity; And he shall bring a ram without blemish, from the flock, of due value, for a trespass-offering, to the priest; and the priest shall make an atonement for him in regard to his error which he hath committed, though he knew
- 19 it not, and it shall be forgiven him. This is the trespass-offering of him who is clearly guilty, in respect to things holy to Jehovah.
- 1 Again Jehovah spoke to Moses, saying,
- 2 If a person have sinned and committed a trespass against Jehovah, and hath lied to his neighbour, in regard to a trust, or about what was lodged in his hand; or in regard to what hath been taken by violence;
- 3 or have oppressed his neighbour; Or have found what was lost, and lie concerning it; or swear falsely concerning any one of those things which a man may do, sinning therein;
- 4 When having thus sinned, and become guilty, he shall restore what he took by violence, or what he acquired by oppression, or what was delivered to him to keep, or the lost thing which he hath found; Or whatsoever thing it be about which he hath sworn falsely, he shall even restore the principal, and shall add to it a fifth part more, and give it to him to whom it belongeth, in the day of his trespass-offering. And he shall bring to the priest for his trespass-offering, as a trespass-offering to Jehovah, a ram without blemish, from the flock; (of the due value;) And the priest shall make an atonement for him before Jehovah; and it shall be forgiven him, in respect to any of the things which he hath done, and thereby become guilty.
- Again Jehovah spoke to Moses, saying, Command Aaron and his sons, saying, This is the law of the daily burnt-offering: On the hearth upon the altar, the burnt-offering shall remain burning all the night, unto the morning, (and the fire of the altar shall still be kept burning on it;) And the priest shall put on his peculiar garment; and his peculiar drawers shall he put upon his flesh, and take up the ashes of the burnt-offering which the fire hath consumed on the altar, and he shall place them beside the altar. He shall then put off his garments, and put on other garments, and carry forth the ashes into a clean place without the camp. And the fire upon the altar shall still be kept burning on it; it shall not be extinguished. The priest shall burn wood on it every morning, and arrange the burnt-offering upon it; and he shall burn thereon the fat of the sacrifices. The fire shall be ever kept burning upon the altar; it shall never be extinguished.
- And this is the law of the wheaten-offering: One of the sons of Aaron shall offer it to Jehovah, before the altar; And he shall take up his handful of the fine flour of the wheaten-offering, and of the oil, and all the incense which is upon the wheaten-offering, and shall burn them upon the altar, as a memorial of it, for a burnt-offering of a sweet savour to Jehovah. And Aaron and his sons shall eat the remainder of it; unleavened shall it be eaten, in the holy place; in the court of the congregation-tabernacle they shall eat it. It shall not be baked with leaven. I have given it as their portion of "Jehovah's burnt-offerings;" it is most holy, as the sin-offering, and as the guilt-offering. All the males among the children of Aaron shall eat of it. This shall be a perpetual statute throughout your generations concerning the burnt-offerings of Jehovah; for every one that toucheth them must be holy.
- Again Jehovah spoke to Moses, saying, This is the offering of Aaron and of his sons, 20 which they shall offer to Jehovah, on the day

15. This law regards those, who, from a principle of covetousness, neglected to bring what was commanded to the sanctuary, such as the first-fruits, tithes, &c.—Value] For this rendering, see note, Hebrew Bible.

CHAP. VI. 8—13. Compare Exod. xxix. 39—46; Numb. xxviii. 3—8.

14—18. The wheaten-offering here appointed is what the priest was to offer with the daily sacrifice, and different from that commanded chapter ii. 17. (a) Sam. 3 MSS.

18. Must be holy] That is, none but the priests shall have a right to eat of it.

20. On the day] Rosenmuller, from the Arabic, renders, when he or they shall be anointed; the tenth part of an ephah of fine flour for a perpetual wheaten-offering, half of it in the morning, and half thereof in the evening.

21 In the frying-pan it shall be made with oil; and when it hath been baked, and cut in pieces, it shall be brought and offered as a wheaten-offering, of a sweet savour to Jehovah. And he of his sons, who shall be anointed priest in his stead, shall offer it: it is a perpetual statute of Jehovah. The whole of such offerings shall be burned.

23 For every wheaten-offering of a priest shall be wholly burnt: it shall not be eaten.

24 Jehovah also spoke to Moses, saying,

25 Speak to Aaron and to his sons, saying, This is the law of the sin-offering: In the place where the burnt-offering is killed there shall the sin-offering be killed before Jehovah.

26 vah. It is most holy. The priest who offereth it shall eat it; in the holy place shall it be eaten, in the court of the congregation-tabernacle. Whosoever shall touch its flesh shall be holy; and when some of its blood is sprinkled upon any garment, the part sprinkled shall be washed in the holy place. And the earthen vessel in which it is boiled, shall be broken; but if it be boiled in a brazen pot, the pot shall be both scoured, and rinsed in water. Any of the males among the priests may eat of it. It is most holy. And no sin-offering, of which a part of the blood is brought into the congregation-tabernacle for an atonement, shall be eaten, even in the holy place: it shall be burnt in the fire.

CHAPTER VII.

B. C. 1491. The guilt-offering; feast-offering; of thanksgiving, for a vow, &c.

1 THIS is the law respecting the guilt-offering; it is most holy. In the place where they kill the burnt-offering shall they kill the guilt-offering; and its blood shall be sprinkled round about upon the altar.

3 All its fat shall then "be taken off;" the large fat tail, and the fat that covereth the intestines, "and the fat that is on the intestines;" And the two kidneys, and the fat that is on them, which is by the flanks, and the excrescence of the liver, with the kidneys,

"from the day," which seems to be countenanced by the following verses. Josephus says, "that the priest was wont to offer, out of his own property, daily, a certain quantity of flour mixed with oil, baked a little, and divided into two parts, one of which he threw into the sacred fire in the morning, the other in the evening."

26, 27. These verses cannot be understood in reference to the offerer, as Ainsworth and others understood them, but in reference to the priests only. It was their duty to touch the flesh, to offer it, and to sprinkle the blood.

30. This refers to sacrifices appointed for the priest or the people, who had sinned through ignorance. Compare chap. iv. 5, 16, &c.

CHAP. VII. 3, 4. So the Arabic with 4 MSS. and the

shall be removed: And the priest shall burn them upon the altar as a burnt-offering to Jehovah. This is a guilt-offering. Every male among the priests may eat of it; but it shall be eaten in the holy place, as it is most holy. As the sin-offering, so is the guilt-offering; there is but one law for them; the priest who maketh atonement by them shall have them. And the priest who offereth any man's burnt offering, the skin of the burnt-offering which he hath offered shall belong to him. And every wheaten-offering that is baked in the oven, and that is prepared in the frying-pan, and on the fire-plate, shall belong to the priest who offereth it. And every wheaten-offering, mingled with oil, or dry, shall belong to all the sons of Aaron, to one as much as another.

And this is the law of the sacrifice, which one may offer to Jehovah. If he offer it for a thanksgiving, then he shall offer, with the sacrifice of thanksgiving, unleavened cakes, mingled with oil, and cakes of fine flour, dried, mingled with oil. With the cakes he shall bring as his oblation, leavened bread, with his feast-sacrifice of thanksgiving. And one of every sort he shall offer of the whole oblation, as a heave-offering to Jehovah, and it shall belong to the priest who sprinkleth the blood of the feast-sacrifice. And the flesh of his feast-sacrifice for thanksgiving shall be eaten the same day that it is offered; none of it shall be left until the morning. But if the sacrifice which he offereth be a vow, or a voluntary offering, on the same day that he offereth his sacrifice, it should be eaten; yet on the next day may the remainder of it be eaten; But what remaineth of the flesh of the sacrifice on the third day, shall be burnt with fire. And if any of the flesh of his feast-sacrifice be eaten at all on the third day, the sacrifice shall not be accepted, nor shall it be imputed to him that offereth it; it shall be deemed polluted, and the person who eateth of it, shall bear his iniquity. And the flesh which hath touched any thing unclean shall not be eaten; it shall be burnt with fire. But as for the flesh of the sacrifice, every one clean may eat of it. But the person who eateth

Samaritan; and the text thus corrected is conformable to other places.

8. The skin shall belong to him] Bishop Patrick supposes that the right of the priest to the skin originated with Adam, who probably offered the first sacrifices, with the skins of which God clothed him. It was a custom among the heathen for the priests to have the skins of the beasts sacrificed, as we learn from Virgil, Æneid, book 8.

15—18. None of it shall be left] Drying meat is often practised in those hot countries; it is sometimes practised as to flesh killed with a religious intention: and on account of this management, keeping the flesh of their sacrifices to the third day might be forbidden.

of the flesh of the feast-sacrifice, which belongeth to Jehovah, having his uncleanness upon him, that person shall even be cut off 21 from his people. Moreover, the person who hath touched any thing unclean, as the uncleanness of man, or any unclean beast, or any unclean 'reptile,' and shall eat of the flesh of the feast-sacrifice, which belongeth to Jehovah, even that person shall be cut off from his people.

22 Again Jehovah spoke to Moses, saying, 23 Speak unto the Israelites, saying, Ye shall not eat any of the fat, either of ox, or of 24 sheep, or of goat. And the fat of a beast that hath died of itself, or the fat of that which hath been torn to pieces, may be used for any other purpose; but ye shall in no 25 wise eat of it. For whosoever eateth the fat of the beast, which should be offered as a burnt-offering to Jehovah, even the person who eateth of it shall be cut off from his 26 people. Neither shall ye eat any kind of blood, whether of fowl, or of beast, in any 27 of your dwellings. Whosoever eateth any kind of blood, even that person shall be cut off from his people.

28 Jehovah also spoke to Moses, saying, 29 Speak to the Israelites, saying, He who offereth his feast-sacrifice to Jehovah, shall himself bring an oblation of his feast-sacrifice 30 to Jehovah: His own hands shall bring the fat for a burnt-offering to Jehovah; and also the breast shall he bring, that the breast may be waved before Jehovah for a 31 wave-offering. And the priest shall burn the fat upon the altar; but the breast shall 32 belong to Aaron and his sons. And the right shoulder of your feast-sacrifices shall ye give to the priest for an heave-offering.

33 He among the sons of Aaron, who offereth the blood and the fat of the feast-sacrifices, shall have the right shoulder for his portion.

34 For the wave-breast and the heave-shoulder, I take from the feast-sacrifices of the Israelites, and give them to Aaron the priest and to his sons, by a perpetual statute among the Israelites.

35 This is the portion of Aaron, and the portion of his sons, assigned out of the burnt-offerings of Jehovah, on the day they were presented to minister to Jehovah 36 in the priest's office; Which Jehovah commanded to be given to them by the Israelites, on the day they were anointed;

by a perpetual statute, throughout their generations. This is the law of the burnt- 37 offering, of the wheaten-offering, and of the sin-offering, and of the guilt-offering, and of the consecration-offering, and of the feast-sacrifice; Which Jehovah commanded Moses 38 by mount Sinai, on the day that he commanded the Israelites to offer their oblations to Jehovah, in the wilderness of Sinai.

CHAPTER VIII.

B. C. 1491. The consecration of Aaron and his sons, and the consecration-offerings.

JEHOVAH now spoke to Moses, saying, 1 Take Aaron, and his sons with him, and 2 the garments, and the anointing oil, and a steer for the sin-offering, and two rams, and a basket of unleavened bread; And assemble 3 the whole congregation to the door of the congregation-tabernacle. And Moses did 4 as Jehovah commanded him; and the congregation was assembled at the door of the congregation-tabernacle. And Moses said 5 to the congregation, This is the thing which Jehovah hath commanded to be done. Moses then brought Aaron and his sons, 6 and washed them with water. And he put 7 on Aaron the tunic, and girded him with the girdle, and clothed him with the robe, and he put over it the ephod, and the breast-plate which he joined to the fancy-work of the ephod, and bound it to it. Also he put 8 on the breast-plate the Urim and the Thummim. And on his head he put the mitre; 9 and on the mitre, on his forehead, did he put the golden petal, the holy crown; as Jehovah had commanded him. Moses then 10 took the anointing oil, and anointed the tabernacle and all that it contained, and so hallowed them. And with it he sprinkled 11 the altar seven times, and anointed the altar and all its vessels; also the laver and its cover, to hallow them. And he poured of 12 the anointing oil upon Aaron's head; and anointed him, to hallow him. And Moses 13 brought Aaron's sons, and clothed them with tunics, and girded them with girdles, and put turbans on their heads, as Jehovah had commanded him.

He then brought the steer for the sin- 14 offering; and Aaron and his sons laid their hands upon the head of the steer for the sin-offering; And when it was killed, Moses 15 took the blood, and with his finger put some

23. None of the fat] That is, of the fat unmixed with the flesh; which was to be burned on the sacrifice-altar. Compare chap. iii. 3, &c.

32—37. See note, Genesis ix. 4.

30. His own hands] This was to be done to testify his own readiness to make the offering, and that it was for himself. Compare Exod. xxix. 24—27.

35. This is the portion] The usual sense of the term

מִשְׁחָה, 'anointing,' is here, and Numb. xviii. 8, wholly improper. The word must be taken in the Arabic and Syriac sense, denoting 'a measure, a portion.'

CHAP. VIII. 7. The order of the words of this verse in the original has been disturbed. The proper order is suggested by the parallel place, Exod. xxix. 5. See note, Hebrew Bible.

14. See Exodus xxix. 36.

15. When it was killed] Houbigant so renders, for it is

- of it upon the horns of the altar round about, and so purified the altar; and he poured the rest of the blood at the bottom of the altar, and hallowed it, for the purpose
 16 of making atonement upon it. Moses then took all the fat which was upon the intestines, and excrescence of the liver, and the two kidneys, and their fat, and he burned 17 them upon the altar. But the steer, and its hide, its flesh and its dung, were burnt with fire without the camp; as Jehovah had commanded him.
- 18 He then brought the ram for the burnt-offering; and Aaron and his sons laid their 19 hands upon the head of the ram. And when it was killed, Moses sprinkled the 20 blood round about upon the altar; And the ram was cut into pieces; and Moses burned 21 the head, and the pieces, and the fat. And the intestines and legs being washed in water, Moses burned the whole ram upon the altar, as a burnt-offering of a sweet savour to Jehovah; as Jehovah had commanded him.
- 22 And he brought the other ram, the ram of consecration; and Aaron and his sons laid their hands upon the head of the ram.
- 23 And when it was killed, Moses took some of the blood, and put it on the tip of Aaron's right ear, and upon the thumb of his right hand, and upon the great toe of his right 24 foot. And the sons of Aaron being brought near, Moses put some of the blood upon the tip of their right ear, and upon the thumbs of their right hands, and upon the great toes of their right feet; and the rest of the blood Moses sprinkled upon the altar round
 25 about. And he took the fat, the large fat tail, and all the fat that was upon the intestines, and the excrescence of the caul above the liver, and the two kidneys, and their fat,
 26 and the right shoulder: And out of the basket of unleavened bread, which was before Jehovah, he took one unleavened cake, and a cake of oiled bread, and one wafer, and put them on the fat, and upon the right
 27 shoulder; And he put the whole upon Aaron's hands, and upon his sons' hands, that they might wave them as a wave-offering before Jehovah. Then Moses took them 28 from off their hands and burned them on the altar, with the burnt-offering: they were consecration burnt-offerings of a sweet savour to Jehovah. But the breast of the 29 consecration-ram, Moses took, and waved it as a wave-offering before Jehovah; this was the portion of Moses; as Jehovah had commanded him. And Moses took of the 30 anointing oil, and of the blood which was upon the altar, and sprinkled upon Aaron and upon his garments, and upon his sons, and upon his sons' garments with him; and so hallowed Aaron, and his garments, and his sons, and his sons' garments with him.

And Moses said to Aaron and to his sons, 31 Boil the flesh at the door of the congregation-tabernacle, and there eat it "in the sanctuary" with the bread that is in the basket of consecrations, as I was commanded by Jehovah, saying, Aaron and his sons shall eat it. And the remainder of the 32 flesh and of the bread shall ye burn with fire. And ye shall not go from the door of 33 the congregation-tabernacle for seven days, until the days of your consecration be at an end; for seven days ye must be consecrated. As hath been done this day, so Jehovah 34 hath commanded to do, to make an atonement for you. Therefore shall ye abide at 35 the door of the congregation-tabernacle day and night, seven days, and keep the charge of Jehovah, that ye die not: for so I am commanded. So Aaron and his sons did all 36 things which Jehovah commanded by Moses.

CHAPTER IX.

B. C. 1491. Aaron's sin and burnt-offering; the people blessed; and Aaron's sons burnt.

AND on the eighth day, Moses called 1 Aaron and his sons, and the elders of Israel; And he said to Aaron, Take a young calf 2 for a sin-offering, and a ram for a burnt-offering, without blemish, and offer them before Jehovah. And to the Israelites thou 3 shalt speak, saying, Take ye a kid for a sin-offering; and a calf and a lamb for a burnt-offering, both of the first year, without blemish; Also a steer and a ram for a feast- 4 sacrifice before Jehovah; and a wheaten-offering mingled with oil; for to-day Jehovah will appear to you.

And they brought what Moses com- 5 manded before the congregation-tabernacle; and the whole congregation drew near and stood before Jehovah. And Moses said, 6 this is the thing which Jehovah hath com-not probable that Moses killed the victims. Compare Exod. xxix. 13, &c.

22-24. See note, Exod. xxix. 20. In a similar manner, the Roman High Priest was consecrated. See Calmet's Diet.

31. (a) Sam. Sept.

33. Not go from the door] This does not mean the door of the holy place or sanctuary where they ministered, but of the court of the tabernacle.

CHAP. IX. 1. On the eighth day] This was the first day after Aaron's consecration was completed; and till now he was deemed unfit to minister for the people. 'All creatures,' says Ainsworth, 'for the most part were in their uncleanness and imperfection seven days, and perfected on the eighth, as children by circumcision, Lev. xii. 2, 3; young beasts for sacrifice, cnap. xxii. 27; persons unclean by issues, &c. chap. xiv. 8-10, &c. So the priests were not admitted to minister till the eighth day.'

6. That the glory of Jehovah] On numerous occasions God gave the people the most sensible tokens of his presence and favour; and now Moses intimates that he would appear among them accepting their offerings.

- manded that ye shall do; that the glory of 7 Jehovah may appear to you. Then Moses said to Aaron, Go to the altar, and offer thy sin-offering, and thy burnt-offering, and make an atonement for thyself, and for the people; and offer the offering of the people, and make an atonement for them; as Jehovah hath commanded.
 8 Aaron then went to the altar; and the calf which was for his own sin-offering, 9 being killed, The sons of Aaron brought the blood to him; and he dipped his finger in the blood, and put it upon the horns of the altar, and poured out the rest of the blood 10 at the bottom of the altar: But the fat, and the kidneys, and the excrescence of the liver of the sin-offering, he burned upon the altar; 11 as Jehovah commanded Moses: And the flesh and the skin he burned without the 12 camp. And the victim for the burnt-offering being killed, Aaron's sons brought to him the blood, which he sprinkled round 13 about upon the altar. They then brought to him the victim for the burnt-offering cut up, with the head; and he burned them 14 upon the altar. And the intestines and legs being washed, he also burned them with the burnt-offering on the altar.
 15 He next brought the people's offering; and took the goat, which was for the people's sin-offering; and when it was killed he offered it for a sin-offering as the former.
 16 And he brought the burnt-offering, and did 17 according to the prescribed rite. He also brought the wheaten-offering, and took up a handful, and burned it upon the altar, besides the burnt-offering of the morning.
 18 And the steer and the ram for the feast-sacrifice, which was for the people, being killed, the sons of Aaron brought to him the blood, which he sprinkled round about 19 upon the altar. But the fat of the steer and of the ram; the large tail of the latter, and that which covereth the intestines, and the kidneys, and the fat which was on them," and the excrescence of the liver; 20 They first put the fat upon the breasts, and then burned the fat upon the altar. And the 21 breasts and the right shoulder Aaron waved as a wave offering before Jehovah; as Jehovah had commanded Moses." And Aaron 22 lifted up his hand towards the people, and blessed them; and came down from the altar, when he had offered the sin-offering, and the burnt-offering, and the feast-offerings: And Moses and Aaron went into the 23 congregation-tabernacle; and they came out, and blessed the people, and the glory of Jehovah appeared to all the people. And 24 there came out a fire from before Jehovah, and consumed the burnt-offering, and the fat, which were upon the altar; which when all the people saw, they shouted and fell on their faces. 10

Now Nadab and Abihu, the sons of 1 Aaron, took each of them his censor, and put fire on them, and placed incense on them, and offered profane fire before Jehovah, which he commanded them not. And 2 there went out fire from Jehovah, and consumed them; and thus they died before Jehovah. Then Moses said to Aaron, This 3 is what Jehovah hath spoken, saying, Holy I will be accounted by those who approach me, and before all the people I will be glorified. And Aaron was silent. And Moses 4 called Mishael and Elzaphan, the sons of Uzziel, the uncle of Aaron, and said to them, Come near, and carry your brethren out of the camp from before the sanctuary. So 5 they went near, and carried them in their tunics, out of the camp, as Moses had said.
 And Moses said to Aaron, and to Eleazar, 6 and to Ithamar, his "remaining" sons, Uncover not your heads, nor rend your garments; lest ye die, and lest wrath break forth against all the people. Let your brethren, the whole house of Israel, bewail the burning which Jehovah hath kindled: But ye shall not go 7 out from the door of the congregation-tabernacle lest ye die; for the anointing oil of Jehovah is upon you. And they did according to the word of Moses.

Jehovah then spoke to Aaron, saying, 8 natural fire to consume the first victims offered to him.

 This was to be kept perpetually alive; and from it only were the coals to be taken for the burning of incense. Nadab and Abihu (see ver. 9.) neglected this precept, and filled their censers with common fire.

2. There went out fire] That this might be lightning is highly probable; but the judgment is apparent as it is connected with the crime noticed. And it has been supposed, from the 8th verse, that they had dishonoured their office by intemperance.

3. Aaron was silent] Sensible of the crime of his sons, and yet feeling as a father for them, his silence indicated both his submission and his heart-felt grief.

4. Uncle of Aaron] He was Amram's brother. Exod.
 vi. 18—22.

6. Uncover not your head] These were ordinary marks of mourning, which the high priest, at least, was positively forbidden to show, even for his father or mother. Compare chap. xxi. 10. (a) Sept. Syr. 1 Ms.

21. As Jehovah] This reading is supported not only by the authorities mentioned, but by the whole chapter itself.
 (v) Sam. Sept. Chald. MSS.

22. Blessed the people] That is, prayed for them, and uttered the words mentioned Numb. vi. 23, &c.

23, 24. The glory of Jehovah] The 'glory of God' often means the cloud in which he dwelt. This appeared in the most sensible manner; and a fire came out from his presence and consumed the offerings. On other occasions
 God testified his acceptance of a sacrifice in the same way.
 See note, Gen. iv. 2, and compare Judg. vi. 21; xiii. 19—23, and 1 Kings xviii. 38, and 2 Chron. vii. 1, &c.—They shouted] Doubtless for joy, that God should so manifest himself among them; and they prostrated themselves, thereby expressing a deep sense of his goodness, and acknowledging their own unworthiness.

CHAP. X. 1. Profane fire] The Lord had sent a super-

- 9 Neither wine nor strong drink shalt thou, nor thy sons drink, when ye go into the congregation-tabernacle, lest ye die. This shall be a perpetual statute throughout your 10 generations; So that ye may distinguish between what is holy and unholy; and be-11 tween what is unclean and clean; And that ye may teach the children of Israel all the statutes which Jehovah hath spoken to them by Moses.
- 12 And Moses spoke to Aaron, and to Eleazar, and to Ithamar, his remaining sons; Take the wheaten-offering which remaineth of the burnt-offerings of Jehovah, and eat it without leaven beside the altar; for it is 13 most holy. And ye shall eat it in the holy place, because it is thine appointed portion and the appointed portion of thy sons, of Jehovah's burnt-offerings. For so I am 14 commanded. And the wave-breast and the heave-shoulder shall ye eat in a clean place; thyself, and thy sons, and thy daughters with thee: for they are thine appointed portion, and the appointed portion of thy sons, allotted from the feast-sacrifices of the 15 children of Israel. The heave-shoulder and the wave-breast with the burnt-offerings of the fat, which they bring to wave as a wave-offering before Jehovah, shall be thine, and thy sons' with thee, by a perpetual statute; as Jehovah hath commanded.
- 16 Moses then diligently sought the goat of the sin-offering, and behold, it was burned. And he was angry with Eleazar and Ithamar, the remaining sons of Aaron; and he 17 said, Wherefore have ye not eaten the sin-offering in the holy place, seeing it is most holy, and is given to you to bear the iniquity of the congregation, to make atonement for 18 them before Jehovah? Behold, its blood was not brought into the sanctuary; ye should indeed have eaten it in the holy place, as I commanded. But Aaron said 19 to Moses, Behold, this day have they offered their sin-offering and their burnt-offering before Jehovah, and such things have befallen me: and if I had eaten the sin-offering to-day, would it have been accepted in the sight of Jehovah? And when Moses 20 heard this, he was satisfied.

CHAPTER XI.

B. C. 1491. What animals are to be accounted clean or unclean.

AGAIN Jehovah spoke to Moses and to 1 Aaron, saying to them, Speak to the Israel- 2 ites, saying, Of all the beasts which are upon the earth, these are the beasts which ye may eat. Every one among the beasts whose 3 hoof is divided and cloven into "two parts," and cheweth the cud, shall ye eat; But 4 those which only chew the cud, or have only a cloven hoof, ye shall not eat. The camel, although he cheweth the cud, but yet hath not a cloven hoof, shall be to you unclean. And the jerboa, although he cheweth the 5 cud, but yet hath not a cloven hoof, shall be to you unclean. And the hare, although 6 he cheweth the cud, yet hath not a cloven hoof, shall be to you unclean. And the 7 swine, although he hath a cloven and divided hoof, yet because he cheweth not the cud, shall be to you unclean. Of 8 their flesh shall ye not eat, and their carcases shall ye not touch; they shall be to you unclean.

Of all the water animals, these ye may eat. 9 Every water animal, in the seas or in the rivers, that hath fins or scales, ye shall eat: But every water animal, which creepeth in 10 the waters, in the seas, or in the rivers, and hath not fins or scales; every such water

10. May distinguish] The holy offices of religion require the exercise of reason, judgment and holy affections; and how inconsistent with the due exercise of these is a state of intemperance!

16. Diligently sought] The goat of the sin-offering related to those lesser sacrifices, whose blood was not brought into the sanctuary, and whose flesh might be eaten by the officiating priests. See chap. iv. 22-26, and verse 18.

19. Would it have been accepted] This excuse was natural; for considering the calamity which had befallen him, with what propriety could Aaron eat and rejoice?

CHAP. XI. 2. Of all the beasts] In this chapter we have the most early specimen of natural history on record: and though the sacred writer does not adopt the classification of modern naturalists, he has adopted one as lucid and proper for the purpose he had in view. He founds his arrangement on the useful, or noxious qualities of beasts, birds, reptiles, and fishes; and his general division is, into such as are suitable for food, and such as are not. This distinction is clearly founded in nature; and though climate and habits may make some little variation, it is clear that this distinction has always, and will always, obtain.

3. Every one] Quadrupeds may be divided into two classes; first, those which have hoofs; secondly, those which have claws. Animals which have hoofs, are again divided into those of one solid hoof only, and those with divided hoofs; the latter are the subjects of our present observations. The Hebrew text is, emphatically, 'dividing the division of the hoofs;' meaning an entire and total separation of the hoof into two parts; and meaning also, neither more parts nor less than two. Hence the camel, whose hoof is partly divided, was unclean to the Jews; and the arnebeth, (hare,) having more than two divisions, though described as ruminating, yet is forbidden. It was not only necessary that beasts should cleave and divide the hoof into two parts only, but they must chew the cud. (a) Sam. Sept. Syr. 9 MSS.

5. Jerboa] The common version has 'coney,' or 'rabbit,' which is certainly improper. Dathe and others have proposed the jerboa to be intended.

7. Swine] This creature, in hot countries, is apt to be troubled with distempers, which render its flesh unwholesome: to which we may add, its perpetual wallowing in mire. These are the only quadrupeds which are specially named as unclean; but the general rule in verse 3 includes a vast number indeed. Nor was it necessary to mention any particular fish, as a general rule is laid down with respect to them in verses 9-12.

9. Water animals] Fins are analogous to the feet of land animals; and fishes which had no clear and distinct members adapted to locomotion should be unclean; but those which had fins should be clean, provided they also had scales.

- animal shall to you be an abomination.
- 11 They shall be an abomination to you; of their flesh ye shall not eat, but their car-
- 12 cases ye shall have in abomination: Whatsoever in the waters hath not fins and scales, shall be abominable to you.
- 13 And of the fowl kind these ye shall have in abomination; they shall not be eaten: they are, the eagle and the vulture, and the
- 14 ospray, And the falcon, and kite, with its
- 15 kind; The raven with its kind; And the ostrich and the night-owl, and the horn-
- 17 owl, and the hawk with its kind; And the sea-gull, and the cormorant, and the ibis,
- 18 And the swan, and the pelican, and the
- 19 king-fisher, And the stork, and heron with its kind; and the lapwing, and the bat.
- 20 Every kind of fowl that creepeth going upon all four, shall be to you an abomination.
- 21 Yet those of every kind of fowl that creep, going upon all four, which have legs above their feet, to leap with upon the earth, ye
- 22 may eat. Even of them ye may eat, the locust with its kind, and the bald locust with its kind, and the beetle with its kind,
- 23 and the grasshopper with its kind. But all other flying creatures, which creep on four feet, shall be to you an abomina-
- 24 tion. And by all such animals ye shall be unclean; whosoever toucheth their carcase shall be unclean until the evening;
- 25 And whosoever beareth aught of their carcase shall wash his clothes, and be unclean
- 26 until the evening. "All" beasts whose hoof is divided, but is not cloven, and chew not the cud, to you shall be unclean; whatsoever toucheth "their carcasses" shall be un-
- 27 clean. And whatsoever goeth upon the paws, among all kinds of four-footed beasts, those shall be to you unclean; whoso toucheth their carcase shall be unclean until
- 28 the evening. And he who beareth their carcase shall wash his clothes, and be unclean until the evening; they shall be unclean to you.
- 29 These also shall be to you unclean, among the reptiles that creep upon the earth; the mole, and the mouse, and the
- 30 Egyptian lizard with its kind; And the Nile lizard, and the green lizard, and the red lizard, and the snail, and the chameleon.
- 31 Of all "ground reptiles these shall be to you unclean;" whosoever toucheth them when dead, shall be unclean until the evening.
- 32 And upon whatsoever any of them when dead, may fall, it shall be unclean; whether
- it be any vessel of wood; or raiment, or skin or sack; whatsoever vessel it be in which any work is done, it must be put into water, and it shall be unclean until the evening; so it shall be cleansed. But every
- 33 earthen vessel, into which any of them may fall, whatsoever is in it shall be unclean; and itself ye shall break. Every kind of
- 34 food which may be eaten, on which such water cometh, shall be unclean; and every kind of drink that may be drunk out of every such vessel, shall be unclean. And
- 35 every thing upon which any part of their carcase falleth shall be unclean; be it oven, or fire-stones, they shall be broken down, as being unclean; and to you unclean they shall be. Only a "water"-fountain, or cis-
- 36 tern, containing water, shall be clean; but he who toucheth their carcase shall be unclean. And if any part of their carcase fall
- 37 upon any kind of seed which is to be sown, it shall be clean; Unless water had been
- 38 put upon the seed, when any part of their carcase fell on it, then it shall be to you unclean. And if any beast, of which ye may
- 39 eat, die; he that toucheth its carcase shall be unclean until the evening. And he that
- 40 eateth of its carcase shall wash his garments, and be unclean until the evening; he also that beareth its carcase shall wash his garments, and be unclean until the evening.
- But every reptile that creepeth upon the
- 41 earth shall be regarded as an abomination; it shall not be eaten. Whatsoever among
- 42 the reptiles that creep upon the earth, goeth upon the belly, and whatsoever crawleth upon four feet, or whatsoever hath more than four feet, them ye shall not eat; for they are an abomination. Nor with any
- 43 reptile that creepeth shall ye make yourselves abominable; nor by them become unclean, nor by them be defiled. For I am
- 44 Jehovah your God, ye shall therefore hallow yourselves, and be holy, because I am holy; nor shall ye defile yourselves with any kind of reptile that creepeth upon the earth. For
- 45 I, Jehovah "your God," have brought you up out of the land of Egypt, to be a God to you; ye shall therefore be holy, because I am holy. This is the law respecting beasts,
- 46 and fowl, and every animal that moveth in the waters, and every reptile that creepeth upon the earth; To make a difference
- 47 between the unclean and the clean; and between animals that may be eaten, and animals that may not be eaten.

13-20. The learned reader, for the reasons of the version given, may consult the notes, Hebrew Bible. There are twenty species of birds prohibited. They are such as are not used for food, among other nations, except in cases of necessity. We have next to attend to a new order of unclean winged reptiles.

22. Locust; Of these, four different species are mentioned, which are yet eaten by the Arabs, as they were by the Jews. Matt. iii. 4.

20. (v) Sept. 7 MSS. 31. (a) Sept.

35. Fire stones] I have followed Harmer in this rendering; and it means the stones placed round their pots, which were set in a hole, dug out of the earth in the midst of the tent. 36. (a) Sam. Sept. 45. (a) Sam. Sept. 2 MSS.

CHAPTER XII.

B. C. 1491. On human uncleanness; such as arise from child-bearing; and from the leprosy.

1 AGAIN Jehovah spoke to Moses, saying,
2 Speak to the Israelites, saying, If a woman have conceived, and born a male child; then shall she be unclean seven days; the same number of days, as when removed for her infirmity, shall she be unclean. And on the eighth day the foreskin of the child's flesh shall be circumcised. But she shall continue in a state of purification yet three and thirty days; she shall touch no hallowed thing, nor come into the sanctuary, until the days of her purification be completed. But if she bear a female child, then shall she be unclean two weeks, as in her removed state; and she shall continue in a state of purification sixty-six days. And when the days of her purification for a son, or for a daughter, are completed, she shall bring a lamb or a kid of the first year for a burnt-offering, and a pigeon or a turtle-dove, for a sin-offering, to the door of the congregation-tabernacle to the priest;
7 Which when "the priest" hath offered before Jehovah, and made an atonement for her, she shall be cleansed from her child-bed impurity. This is the law for her who beareth a male or a female. And if she be not able to bring a lamb or a kid, then she shall bring two turtle-doves, or two pigeons; the one for a burnt-offering, and the other for a sin-offering; and when the priest hath made an atonement for her, she shall be clean. The Law of Leviticus.
1 JEHOVAH also spoke to Moses and Aaron, saying, When a man shall have in his skin a pustule, a scab, or bright spot, and it be in his skin like the plague of leprosy; then he shall be brought to Aaron the priest, or to one of his sons the priests; And the priest shall inspect the wound in the skin, and if the hair in the wound be turned white, and the wound appear deeper than the skin, it is a plague of leprosy; and the priest who hath inspected him, shall pronounce him unclean. If the bright spot be white in his skin, and to appearance be not deeper than the skin, and if the hair be not turned white; then the priest shall bind up the wound seven days. And the priest shall inspect it on the seventh day; and behold, if the wound to appearance be at a stand, and the wound spread not in the skin; then the priest shall bind it up seven days more. And on the seventh day the priest shall again inspect it; and behold, if the wound be darker, and have not spread in the skin; the priest shall pronounce him clean; it is but a scab; and he shall wash his clothes and be clean. But if, after he hath been inspected by the priest for the purpose of being declared clean, the scab spread much in the skin, he shall be again inspected by the priest; And if the priest see clearly that the scab hath spread in the skin, then the priest shall pronounce him unclean: it is the leprosy.

If a man be afflicted with the leprosy, then shall he be brought to the priest; And the priest shall inspect him, and lo, if the pustule on the skin be white, and the hair also be turned white, and there be quick raw flesh in the pustule, It is an old leprosy in the skin; and the priest shall not bind it up, but shall pronounce him unclean; for unclean he is. But if the leprosy have spread abroad in the skin; and if the leprosy have covered the whole skin of him afflicted with it; from his head even to his foot, according to the best inspection of the priest; And when the priest hath inspected him, and the leprosy have covered his whole body, he shall pronounce him afflicted, seeing he is wholly turned white, clean: for clean he is. But whenever raw flesh appeareth in the white he shall be unclean. And the priest shall inspect the raw flesh, and pronounce him unclean; for the raw flesh is a sign that it is an unclean leprosy. Or if the raw flesh be changed and turned to white, he shall come to the priest; And the priest shall inspect him, and behold, if the wound be turned white; then the priest shall pronounce him that is afflicted, clean: for clean he is.

And if a person have had a boil on his skin, which hath been healed; But if in the 19

CHAP. XII. 2. There are natural reasons for the precepts here given; and propriety requires that they should be observed.

5. Is there any natural reason for a difference of time for a woman's uncleanness and purification on the birth of a daughter? The law in this case appoints fourteen days and in the former seven days. She was separated from the sanctuary also double the period. It is clear from Hippocrates, that a like difference obtained among other nations; but it is difficult to assign any just reason for it.

7. (a) Sam. Sept. Syr. 1 MS.

8. With this compare Luke ii. 20—24.

CHAP. XIII. 1. Shun Literally, 'skin of his flesh,' which is a mere Hebraism for skin.

4. Bind up the wound So the Syriac translator understood the text; and Pilkington and Bishop Law so render. In short it is highly improbable, that a man was to be shut up seven or fourteen days, when any little spot might appear in his skin; but it is natural, when there was any suspicion that it might be leprosy, to bind it up for so long. See note, Hebrew Bible.

10—17. It appears that in certain stages only, the leprosy was contagious; or does Moses describe different kinds of it? When the leprosy spreads all over the body, the Arabs call it Barras; but a milder kind of it they call Bohak, which appears only on particular parts, and is not infectious. I incline to think, that when the disease had spread through the body, it was not so infectious as when there was raw flesh in the spots.

18—28. From a wound or a burn, a leprosy affection place of the boil there be a white pustule, or white and red spot, then shall it be inspected by the priest; And if, when the priest hath inspected it, it should appear deeper than the skin, and if the hair on it be turned white; the priest shall pronounce him unclean: it is the leprosy broken out of the boil. But if the priest inspect it, and if there be no white hairs on it; and if it be not deeper than the skin, but be of a darkish colour; then the priest shall bind it up seven days; And if it have spread much abroad in the skin, then the priest shall pronounce him unclean: it is the leprosy. But if the spot remain as it was, and spread not, it is only the scar of the boil; and the priest shall pronounce him clean.

Or if a person have his skin burned with fire, and if there be in the quick burnt-flesh, a white spot, or of a red and white colour; Then the priest shall inspect it; and if the hair in the spot be turned white, and to appearance it be deeper than the skin; it is a leprosy broken out of the burning: the priest shall pronounce him unclean: it is the leprosy. But if when the priest inspecteth it, behold, there be no white hair in the spot, and if it be not deeper than the skin, and be of a darkish colour, then the priest shall bind it up seven days. And the priest on the seventh day shall again inspect it; and if it be spread much abroad in the skin, then the priest shall pronounce him unclean: it is the leprosy. But if the spot remain as it was, and spread not in the skin, but be of a darkish colour; it is but the scab of the burning, and the priest shall pronounce him clean: for it is an inflammation from the burning.

If a man or woman have a sore upon the head or beard; Then the priest shall inspect the sore, and if it be to appearance deeper than the skin, and there be in it thin yellow hair; then the priest shall pronounce him unclean: it is a leprous scall, upon the head or beard. And if, when the priest inspecteth the sore of the scall, behold it be not to appearance deeper than the skin, and there be no black hair in it; then the priest shall bind up the sore of the scall seven days. And on the seventh day the priest shall inspect the sore; and behold, if the scall spread not, and there be in it no yellow hair, and the scall be not to appearance deeper than the skin; He shall be shaved, but the scall shall not be shaved; and the priest shall bind up the scall seven days more; And on the seventh day the priest shall inspect the scall, and, behold, if the scall be not spread in the skin; and be not to appearance deeper than the skin, then the priest shall pronounce him clean; and he shall wash his clothes, and be clean. But if the scall spread much in the skin 35 after his being declared clean; Then the priest shall inspect it, and if the scall be spread in the skin, the priest shall not seek for yellow hair; he is unclean; But if to appearance the scall be at a stay, and there be black hair grown upon it: the scall is healed, he is clean; and the priest shall pronounce him clean.

If a man or a woman have in the skin whitish spots; Then the priest shall inspect 39 them; and, if the spots in the skin be of a darkish white; it is but a morphew that groweth in the skin: he is clean. And if a man's hair be fallen off his head behind he is bald; yet is he clean. And if his hair bath fallen off from his forehead; he is forehead-bald, yet is he clean. And if there be on the bald head or bald forehead, a white reddish sore; it is a leprosy sprung upon his bald head, or his bald forehead. Then the priest shall inspect it; and if the pustule of the sore be white or red on his bald head, or on his bald forehead, as the leprosy appeareth in the skin; He is a leprous man, he is unclean; the priest shall pronounce him utterly unclean; there is a leprous sore on his head.

Now the person who is afflicted with the leprosy shall, with his clothes rent, and his head bare, and his chin covered, cry out, Unclean, unclean. And the time he is afflicted with the leprosy, he shall consider himself unclean; he shall dwell alone; without the camp shall his habitation be.

If a garment be infected with leprosy, whether it be a woollen garment or a linen garment: Whether it be in the warp, or woof; of linen, or of woollen; whether in a skin, or in any thing made of skin; And 49 might take its rise, when there was leprous habit of body; and hence persons who had any cutaneous eruption were to be inspected by the priest.

45. His clothes rent] The leprous person was to appear as one that mourned for the dead. His clothes rent, his head bare, his chin muffled up, while he cried out, Unclean, unclean. He was considered, in some degree, as a person dead, and every one was to avoid him as if dead.

47. The account we have of the leprosy in clothes is particular, but very obscure. It is probable, that the garment worn by leprous persons, receiving infection from their wearers, became thereby unclean. A story related by Niebuhr supposes such communication: 'A few years ago, a leprous person, in order to obtain a woman he loved, wore during several days an inner dress of fine linen, which he contrived should be sold to her, at a very low price. When he had received information by his spies that she was infected, he acquainted the magistrates, and she was shut up in the hospital where himself, and other leprous persons, were secluded.' This kind of infection corrodes even the texture of garments. Moses seems rather to describe a disease natural to linen or woollen garments, than one adventitious.

if the infected part be greenish or reddish in the garment, or in the skin, either in the warp, or in the woof, or in any thing made of skin; it is the leprosy, and shall be showed to the priest; And when the priest hath inspected the infected garment, he shall bind it up for seven days; And on the seventh day, he shall inspect the infected place; and if the infection be spread in the garment, either in the warp, or in the woof, or in a skin, or in any thing made of skin; the infection is a fretting leprosy; it is unclean: He shall therefore burn the garment. Whether the infection be in a warp or woof, in woollen or in linen, or in any thing made of skin; it is a fretting leprosy; it shall be burned with fire. And if, when the priest hath inspected it, behold, the infection be not spread in the garment, either in the warp, or in the woof, or in any thing made of skin; Then the priest shall command that they wash the thing in which the infection is, and he shall bind it up seven days more: And if then the priest shall inspect the infected part, after it hath been washed, and if the infected part have not changed its colour, although the infection have not spread, it is unclean; it shall be burned with fire; it is a fretting leprosy whether it be in the warp or the woof. But if, when the priest hath inspected, and the infection be somewhat dark after it hath been washed; then he shall tear it out of the garment, or out of the skin, or out of the warp, or out of the woof: And if it appear still in the garment, either in the warp, or in the woof, or in any thing made of skin; it is a spreading leprosy; and what is infected by it shall be burned with fire. And if the infection, which was either in the warp, or woof of a garment, or of any thing made of skin, on its being washed, have departed from it, then it shall be washed a second time, and shall be clean. This is the law, by which the leprosy, in a garment of woollen or linen, either in the warp, or woof, or in any thing made of skins, is to be pronounced clean, or to be pronounced unclean.

CHAPTER XIV.

B. C. 1491. On the rites of cleansing the leprosy.

¹ JEHOVAH spoke to Moses, saying, This shall be the law of the leper, when he is to be pronounced clean; he shall be brought to the priest; And the priest shall go out of the camp to meet him; and the priest shall inspect him; and if the leprosy be healed in the leper, Then shall the priest command him to get for his cleansing two birds, alive and clean, and cedar wood, and scarlet, and hyssop. The priest shall then command that one of the birds be killed in an earthen vessel over running spring water: He shall take the living bird, and the cedar wood, and the scarlet, and the hyssop, and shall dip them, together with the living bird, in the blood of the bird which hath been killed over the spring-water; And he shall sprinkle it on him who is to be cleansed from the leprosy, seven times; and shall pronounce him clean; and the living bird he shall let loose into the open field. And he that is to be cleansed shall rinse his clothes, and shave off all his hair, and wash himself in water, that he may be clean; and after that he shall come into the camp, but shall tarry abroad out of his tent, seven days. But on the seventh day, he shall again shave all the hair of his head, and his beard, and his eyebrows, even all his hair he shall shave; and he shall rinse his clothes, and wash his body in water, and he shall be clean. And, on the eighth day, he shall take two male lambs, without blemish, "of a year old," and one female lamb, of a year old, without blemish, and three tenths of an epha of fine flour, for a wheaten-offering, mingled with oil, and one log of oil. And the priest who cleanseth him shall present the man who is to be cleansed, and those things, before Jehovah, at the door of the congregation-tabernacle; And the priest shall take one male lamb, and bring it for a guilt-offering, with the log of oil, and wave them for a wave-offering before Jehovah. And the lamb shall be killed in the place where the sin-offering and the burnt-offering are killed in the holy place; for as the sin-offering, so the guilt-offering belongeth to the priest; it is most holy. And the priest shall take some of the blood of the guilt-offering, and the priest shall put it upon the tip of the right ear of him who is to be cleansed, and upon the thumb of his right hand, and upon the great toe of his right foot; And the priest shall take some of the log of oil, and pour it into the palm of his own left hand;

CHAP. XIV. 3. Go out of the camp] As the leper was removed out of the camp, and could not be admitted till pronounced clean, this was necessary.

4. Two birds, cedar wood] The Vulgate renders, 'two sparrows.' The original term signifies two small clean birds of any kind. The cedar wood and hyssop were considered medicinal, in cutaneous complaints, and are here used for the purpose of sprinkling the leper.

6. Shall dip them] Here the term בטלו, which the Seventy render βαπτειν, cannot signify immerse, for the quantity of the blood of a small bird must be inadequate for this purpose.

10. The addition of the Sam. and Sept. ought to be deemed genuine. These lambs were to be offered, the one for a guilt-offering the other for a burnt-offering, ver. 19, 20. — Three parts of an epha] or three omers. The sin-offering was for his impurity, the guilt-offering for his guilt, and the wheaten-offering, in gratitude for the removal of his disease. (a) Sam. Sept.

12. Wave-offering] See chapter vii.

16 And the priest shall dip his right finger in the oil which is in his left hand, and shall sprinkle the oil with his finger, seven times, 17 before Jehovah; And of the rest of the oil which is in his hand, shall the priest put upon the tip of the right ear, and upon the thumb of the right hand, and upon the great toe of the right foot, of him who is to be cleansed, "on the place where the blood of 18 the guilt-offering had been put;" And the remainder of the oil that is in the priest's hand he shall pour upon the head of him who is to be cleansed: and thus the priest shall make an atonement for him before 19 Jehovah. And the priest shall offer the sin-offering, and make an atonement for him who is to be cleansed from his uncleanness. And afterward the burnt-offering 20 shall be killed; And the priest shall offer the burnt-offering and the wheaten-offering upon the altar; and the priest shall make an atonement for him, and he shall be clean. 21 But if he be poor, and cannot afford so much; then he shall take one lamb for a guilt-offering to be waved, to make an atonement for him, and one tenth part of an epha of fine flour, mingled with oil, for a 22 wheaten-offering, and a log of oil; And two turtle-doves, or two pigeons, such as he is able to get; and the one shall be a sin-offering, and the other a burnt-offering. 23 And he shall bring them, on the eighth day of his cleansing, to the priest, to the door of the congregation-tabernacle, before Jehovah. 24 And the priest shall take the lamb of the guilt-offering, and the log of oil, and the priest shall wave them for a wave-offering 25 before Jehovah; And the lamb of the guilt-offering shall then be killed, and the priest shall take some of the blood of the guilt-offering, and put it upon the tip of the right ear of him who is to be cleansed, and upon the thumb of his right hand, and upon the 26 great toe of his right foot; And the priest shall pour some of the oil into the palm of 27 his own left hand; And the priest shall sprinkle with his right finger some of the oil which is in his left hand, seven times, 28 before Jehovah; And the priest shall put of the oil, which is in his hand, upon the tip of the right ear of him who is to be cleansed, and upon the thumb of his right hand, and upon the great toe of his right foot, on the place where the blood of the guilt-offering had been put. And the rest 29 of the oil which is in the priest's hand, he shall put upon the head of him who is to be cleansed, to make an atonement for him before Jehovah. And he shall offer one of 30 the turtle-doves, or of the pigeons, such as he can afford; "The one for a sin-offering, 31 and the other for a burnt-offering, with the wheaten-offering; and the priest shall make an atonement for him who is to be cleansed before Jehovah. This is the law for his 32 cleansing who hath been infected with the leprosy, and who is not able to afford more.

Again Jehovah spoke to Moses and Aaron, 33 saying, If when ye come into the land of 34 Canaan, which I give to you for a possession, I put the leprosy in a house of your possession; Then he that owneth the house 35 shall come and tell the priest, saying, It appeareth to me that there is infection in the house: And the priest shall command that 36 they empty the house, before he go to inspect the infection; for not any thing which is in the house shall be unclean. And afterward the priest shall go in to inspect the house; And if, on inspecting the infection, 37 behold the infection be on the walls of the house with hollow streaks, of a greenish or reddish colour, which to appearance are deeper than the wall; Then the priest shall 38 go out of the house to the door of the house, and shall shut up the house seven days; And the priest shall come again the seventh 39 day, and shall inspect it; and if the infection be spread in the walls of the house; Then the priest shall command that they 40 take away the stones in which the infection is, and they shall cast them into an unclean place without the city; And he shall cause 41 the house to be scraped within round about, and they shall pour out the dust that they scrape off without the city into an unclean place; And they shall take other stones, 42 and put in the place of those stones; and they shall take other mortar, and shall re-plaster the house. And if the infection 43 return and break out in the house, after that the stones have been taken away, and the house scraped, and replastered; Then the 44 priest shall come and inspect; and, if the

31. Such as he can afford] These words conclude the 30th verse, and in the Hebrew and Sam. text are repeated in the beginning of this. I consider them to be an interpolation, clearly added from the preceding.

34. In a house] This seems to have been a nitrous or vitriolic exudation, proceeding from stones of a certain quality; which bursting through the plaster, and spreading on it, became hurtful to the health of the inhabitants. This sort of house-leprosy is called by the Germans salpeter frass, as it is supposed principally to arise from saltpetre.—

In these western regions it is seldom very noxious, and for the most part only in the lower floors.

36. Empty the house] Geddes contends, that the last part of this verse has been misunderstood both by ancient and modern translators. For how could the priest's going into the house make any thing in it unclean? The meaning is, that although the walls of the house might be infected, yet its contents were not for that defiled. These were therefore ordered to be brought out previously to the priest's going in, that the bare walls might be more accurately examined, and from the appearances a proper judgment formed.

infection have spread in the house, it is a fretting leprosy in the house: it is unclean. 45 The house shall then be broken down; and the stones of it, and the timber of it, and all the mortar of the house, shall be carried out of the city into an unclean place. 46 Moreover, he that hath gone into the house, all the while that it was shut up, shall be 47 unclean until the evening. And he that hath lain in the house shall wash his clothes; and he that hath eaten in the house shall wash his clothes, "and be unclean until the 48 evening." And when the priest goeth in, and inspecteth it; and if the infection have not spread in the house, after the house was replastered; then the priest shall pronounce the house clean, because the infection is 49 healed. And to cleanse the house shall be got two birds, and cedar-wood, and scarlet 50 thread, and hyssop; And one of the birds shall be killed in an earthen vessel over 51 spring-water; And he shall take the cedar-wood, and the hyssop, and the scarlet thread, and the living bird, and dip them in the blood of the bird, that hath been killed over the spring-water, and sprinkle the house 52 seven times; And he shall cleanse the house with the blood of the bird, and with the spring-water, and with the cedar-wood, and with the hyssop, and with the scarlet 53 thread: But the living bird he shall let escape out of the city into the open fields: thus shall he make an atonement for the 54 house, and it shall be clean. This is the law for all kinds of leprous infection and 55 scalls; For the leprosy of a garment, and 56 of a house, And for a pustule, and for a 57 scab, and for a spot; To teach you when a thing is to be pronounced unclean, and when clean: this is the law concerning the leprosy.

CHAPTER XV.

B. C. 1491. Uncleanness arising from different kinds of issues.

1 AGAIN Jehovah spoke to Moses and to 2 Aaron, saying, Speak to the Israelites, and say to them, If any man have an issue from his flesh, because of his issue from his flesh, 3 he is unclean. And such is his uncleanness from his issue, that whether his issue run, or be stopped, "he is unclean all the time his issue runneth or is stopped." Such 4 is his uncleanness, that, Every bed whereon

he who hath the issue lieth, is unclean; and every thing whereon he sitteth shall be unclean. And whosoever toucheth his bed 5 shall rinse his clothes, and wash in water and be unclean until the evening. And he 6 who sitteth on any thing on which he sat who hath the issue, shall rinse his clothes and wash in water, and be unclean until the evening. And he who toucheth 7 the flesh of him who hath the issue, shall rinse his clothes, and wash in water, and be unclean until the evening. And if he who 8 hath the issue spit upon one who is clean, then he shall rinse his clothes, and wash in water, and be unclean until the evening. And every saddle on which he who hath the 9 issue rideth shall be unclean. And who- 10 soever toucheth any thing which was under him shall be unclean until the evening; and he who beareth any of those things shall 11 rinse his clothes, and wash in water, and be unclean until the evening. And every 12 one whom he who hath the issue toucheth, and hath not washed his hands in water, shall rinse his clothes, and wash in water, and be unclean until the evening. And the 13 earthen vessel which he who hath the issue toucheth, shall be broken; and every vessel of wood which he toucheth, shall be rinsed in water. And when he who hath an issue 14 is cleansed of his issue; then he shall number to himself seven days for his cleansing, and rinse his clothes, and wash his body in spring water, and shall be clean. And on 15 the eighth day he shall take two turtle-doves, or two pigeons, and bring them before Jehovah to the door of the congregation-tabernacle, and give them to the priest; And the priest shall offer them, the one for 16 a sin-offering, and the other for a burnt-offering; and the priest shall make an atonement before Jehovah for him who had the issue.

And if any man hath an involuntary 16 emission, then he shall wash his whole body in water, and be unclean until the evening. And every garment, and every skin, on 17 which the matter falleth, shall be washed with water, and be unclean until the evening. The woman with whom "her husband 18 shall lie," and cohabit; even both shall wash in water, and be unclean until the evening.

And if a woman have an issue, and her 19 issue be what is usual, she shall be in a

47. (a) Sept. CHAP. XV. 2. Issue from his flesh] Michaelis renders, seed-flux, and Geddes, gonorrhoea, after the Greek version. This disease may arise from mere weakness; but in this case it is mild, and not infectious. Moses seems to describe the disease in a state of virulence, arising from infection, and as being peculiarly contagious. The effects of this disease in hot climates, must be terrible; and to prevent these effects is the great design of this law. The methods directed are founded in wisdom; and experience proves that by attending to them infection is prevented.

removed state seven days; and whosoever toucheth her shall be unclean until the evening. And every thing on which she lieth in her removed state shall be unclean; every thing also on which she sitteth shall be unclean. And whosoever toucheth her bed shall rinse his clothes, and wash in water, and be unclean until the evening. And whosoever toucheth any thing on which she sat, shall rinse his clothes, and wash in water, and be unclean until the evening. Whether it be her bed, or any thing on which she sat, that he toucheth, he shall be unclean until the evening. And if "her husband" lie by her at all, and the token of her removed state be upon him, he shall be unclean seven days; and every bed on which he lieth shall be unclean. And if a woman have the usual issue many days, out of the time of her ordinary period, or if it run beyond the time of her ordinary period; all the days of the issue she shall be unclean as in the days of her removed state. Every bed on which she lieth all the days of her issue, shall be to her as the bed of her removed state; and whatsoever she sitteth upon shall be unclean, as the uncleanness of her removed state. And whosoever toucheth those things shall be unclean, and shall rinse his clothes, and wash in water, and be unclean until the evening. But if she be cleansed of her issue, then she shall number to herself seven days, and after that she shall be clean. And on the eighth day she shall take two turtle-doves, or two pigeons, and bring them to the priest, to the door of the congregation-tabernacle. And the priest shall offer the one for a sin-offering, and the other for a burnt-offering; and the priest shall make an atonement for her before Jehovah, for the issue which made her unclean. Thus shall ye "warn" the Israelites to keep themselves from uncleanness; that they die not for their uncleanness, when they defile my tabernacle which is among them. This is the law for him that hath an issue, or who hath an involuntary emission, and is defiled thereby; And for her unwell from her issue; (for man or for woman who hath such issues;) and for him that lieth by her who is unclean.

death of the two sons of Aaron, when they offered "strange-fire" before Jehovah, and died; And Jehovah said to Moses, Speak 2 to Aaron, thy brother, that he come not at all times into the sanctuary within the veil opposite the mercy-seat, which is upon the ark, that he may not die: for in the cloud over the mercy-seat I will appear. In this 3 manner shall Aaron come to the sanctuary; he shall take a steer for a sin-offering, and a ram for a burnt-offering. He shall put on 4 the holy peculiar tunic, and shall have on his peculiar drawers, and shall be girded with the peculiar girdle, and with the peculiar mitre shall he be attired: these are holy garments, therefore shall he wash his body in water, and then put them on. And he 5 shall take of the congregation of Israel, two goats for a sin-offering, and one ram for a burnt-offering. And Aaron shall offer the 6 steer of the sin-offering, which is for himself, and make an atonement for himself, and for his household. And he shall take the two 7 goats, and present them before Jehovah at the door of the congregation-tabernacle. And Aaron shall cast lots for the two goats; 8 one lot marked for Jehovah, and the other lot for a scape-goat. And Aaron shall bring 9 the goat on which the lot for Jehovah fell, and offer it for a sin-offering. But the goat 10 on which the lot for the scape-goat fell, shall be presented alive before Jehovah, to make an atonement with him, and to let him go for a scape-goat into the wilderness. Aaron 11 shall then bring the steer of the sin-offering, which is for himself, and shall make an atonement for himself and for his household; and when the steer of the sin-offering for himself hath been killed, He shall then take 12 a censer full of burning coals of fire from off the altar before Jehovah, and his hands full of sweet incense, beat small, and bring it within the veil; And he shall put the in- 13 cense upon the fire before Jehovah, that the cloud of the incense may cover the mercy-seat which is upon the testimony, that he may not die. And he shall take some of 14 the blood of the steer, and sprinkle once with his finger the east side of the mercy-seat; and before the mercy-seat shall he sprinkle of the blood with his finger seven times.

Then the goat of the sin-offering, which 15 is for the people, shall be killed; and Aaron shall bring some of its blood within the veil,

2. In the cloud] Many have understood this to be the 'cloud of glory;' but Orton and others, the cloud formed by the burning incense, which is expressly said to cover the mercy-seat, ver. 12, 13.

8. Scape-goat] The reason of this name is given, verses 22, 23, &c.

14. And before the mercy-seat] That is, on the ground, before the mercy-seat.

and do with that blood as he did with the blood of the steer, and sprinkle it against the mercy-seat, and before the mercy-seat.

16 Thus he shall make an atonement for the sanctuary, on account of the uncleanness of the Israelites, and of all their sinful transgressions; and so shall he do for the congregation-tabernacle, which resideth among them, amidst their uncleanness. And there shall be no man in the congregation-tabernacle when he goeth in to make an atonement in the sanctuary, until he come out, when he shall have made an atonement for himself, and for his household, and for the whole congregation of Israel. He shall then go out to the altar which is before Jehovah, and make an atonement for it; and shall take some of the blood of the steer, and some of the blood of the goat, and put it upon the horns of the altar round about.

20 And when he hath made an end of expiating the sanctuary, and the congregation-tabernacle, and the altar, the live goat shall be brought. And Aaron shall lay both his hands upon the head of the live goat, and confess over him all the iniquities of the Israelites, and all their sinful transgressions, putting them upon the head of the goat, and shall send him away by the hand of a fit man into the wilderness. And the goat shall bear upon himself all their iniquities into a land not frequented; the goat shall be let go into the wilderness.

26 And he who let go the goat, as a scape-goat, shall rinse his clothes, and wash his body in water, and afterward come into the camp." Aaron shall then go into the congregation-tabernacle, and shall put off the peculiar garments, which he put on when he went into the sanctuary, and shall leave them there; And he shall wash his body in water in the holy place, and put on his garments, and come forth, and offer his burnt-offering, and the burnt-offering of the people, and make an atonement for himself, and for the people. And the fat of the sin-offering shall he burn upon the altar;

27 But the steer for the sin-offering, and the goat for the sin-offering, whose blood was brought into the sanctuary to make atonement, shall be carried out of the camp; and their skins, and their flesh, and their dung, shall be burned with fire. And he that burneth them shall rinse his clothes, and wash his body in water, and afterward he shall come into the camp.

This shall be a perpetual statute for you. 29 On the seventh month, on the tenth day of the month, ye shall humble yourselves, and shall not do any work, neither the native, nor the stranger who sojourneth among you: For on that day shall the high-priest make an atonement for you, to cleanse you from all your sins; that so ye may be clean, before Jehovah. A sabbath of rest shall it be to you; and by a perpetual statute shall ye humble yourselves. And the priest, who hath been anointed and consecrated to minister in the priest's office in his father's stead, shall make the atonement. And he shall put on the peculiar clothes, the holy garments; And shall make an atonement for the holy sanctuary, and he shall make an atonement for the congregation-tabernacle, and for the altar, and he shall make an atonement for the priests, and for all the people of the congregation. And this shall be a perpetual statute to you, that an atonement be made, once every year, for all the sins of the Israelites. And Moses did as Jehovah commanded.

CHAPTER XVII.

B. C. 1491. Where victims are to be slaughtered.

AGAIN Jehovah spoke to Moses, saying, 1 Speak to Aaron, and to his sons, and say 2 to them, This is the thing which Jehovah hath commanded, saying, Whosoever of the house of Israel, "or of those who sojourn among them," shall kill an ox, or a sheep, or a goat, in the camp, or shall kill it out of the camp, "for a burnt-offering, or for a feast-sacrifice, acceptable and of a sweet savour to Jehovah," And shall not bring it to the door of the congregation-tabernacle, to offer an offering to Jehovah before the tabernacle of Jehovah; blood shall be imputed to that man; as one who hath shed blood, that man shall be cut off from among his people; To the end that the Israelites may bring their sacrifices which they slaughter in the open fields, to Jehovah; that they may bring them unto the door of the congregation-tabernacle, to the priest, and slaughter them as feast-sacrifices to Jehovah. And the priest shall sprinkle the blood upon the altar of Jehovah at the door of the congregation-tabernacle, and burn the fat for a sweet savour to Jehovah. And let them slaughter 7 no more their sacrifices to demons, after

21. Upon the head of the goat } There was in this ceremony a strong representation of the effect of the atonement made. The slaughtered goat was the peculiar victim, and this showed, that by atonement their sins were removed and taken away. The dismissed goat was a symbol of freedom from guilt, and of liberty obtained by the whole people.

whom they go astray. This shall be a perpetual statute to them, throughout their generations.

- 8 And thou shalt say unto them, Whosoever, of the house of Israel, or of those who sojourn among "them," who shall offer a burnt-offering or other sacrifice, And bring it not to the door of the congregation-tabernacle, to offer it to Jehovah; even that man shall be cut off from among his people.
- 10 And whosoever of the house of Israel, or of those who sojourn among "them," shall eat any kind of blood; I will set my face against that person who hath eaten blood, and will cut him off from among his people.
- 11 For the life of "all" flesh being in the blood, I have therefore appointed it to you to make an atonement on the altar for your own lives: for it is the blood which maketh
- 12 an atonement for the life. Therefore I say to the Israelites, no one of you shall eat blood, nor shall any of those who sojourn
- 13 among you eat blood. For whosoever of the Israelites, or of those who sojourn among "them," shall hunt and catch any beast or fowl that may be eaten; he shall even pour
- 14 out its blood, and cover it with dust. For the life of all flesh is its blood; it is its life; therefore I say to the Israelites, Ye shall not eat the blood of any kind of flesh; because the life of all flesh is its blood; who-
- 15 soever eateth it shall be cut off. And every person who eateth that which died of itself, or that which hath been torn with beasts, whether he be a native or a sojourner, he shall both rinse his clothes, and wash in water, and be unclean until the evening:
- 16 then shall he be clean. But if he rinse them not, nor wash his body; then he shall bear his iniquity.

CHAPTER XVIII.

B. C. 1491. Various Canaanite laws and usages prohibited.

- 1 JEHOVAH also spoke to Moses, saying,

7. Demons] In the common version rendered devils, which is judged by many improper. Bate, Secker, and Law, render goats, the usual meaning of the word. The prohibition evidently alludes to the worship of Pan, under the form of a goat, or other wild hairy animal, such as the fauns and satyrs were represented to be. The Egyptians of Mendes were in particular noted for this sort of idolatry, which was highly obscene and lascivious.

8. Them] So the text here and verse 10, 13; the versions read you.

10. I will set my face] That is, that person will provoke me, and I will cut him off. The reason follows, because God had appointed blood to make atonement.

15. Compare Exod. xxii. 31.

CHAP. XVIII. 3. It is clear, that both among the Egyptians, and most of the eastern nations, incestuous connexions were formed and sanctioned by corrupt laws. The prohibitions contained in this chapter, accord with the best feelings of the human heart; and are as wise in their policy as they are just in their principles.

5. By them he shall live] He shall not fear the civil Speak to the Israelites, and say to them in my name, I am Jehovah your God. The customs of the land of Egypt, in which ye dwelt, shall ye not practise; neither shall ye practise the customs of the land of Canaan, whither I bring you, nor shall ye walk by their ordinances. Ye shall do my judgments, and keep mine ordinances, and by them shall ye walk: I, Jehovah, am your God. Ye shall keep "all" my statutes, and "all" my judgments; which if a man do, by them he shall live: I, Jehovah, am "your God."

Let none approach and cohabit with a near kinswoman: I, Jehovah, forbid it. With thy father's wife, thine own mother, thou shalt not cohabit: she is thy mother; with her thou shalt not cohabit. With thy father's wife, who is not thy own mother, shalt thou not cohabit: with her thy father cohabiteth. Thou shalt not cohabit with thy sister, the daughter of thy father, or the daughter of thy mother, born at home or born abroad; with her thou shalt not cohabit. With thy son's daughter, or thy daughter's daughter, thou shalt not cohabit: for they are sprung from thee. Thou shalt not cohabit with thy father's wife's daughter, begotten by thy father; she is thy sister; "with her thou shalt not cohabit." With thy father's sister thou shalt not cohabit: she is thy father's near kinswoman. Thou shalt not cohabit with thy mother's sister: she is thy mother's near kinswoman. Thou shalt not approach thy father's brother's wife, with whom he cohabiteth: she is thine aunt. With thy daughter-in-law thou shalt not cohabit: she is thy son's wife; with her thou shalt not cohabit. Thou shalt not cohabit with thy brother's wife: with her thy brother cohabiteth. With a woman and her daughter thou shalt not cohabit; nor shalt thou cohabit with her son's daughter, or her daughter's daughter: for they are her near kinswomen: it is wickedness.

magistrate; for the law, which he observes, secures life to him. (a) Sept. 1 MS.

6. To cohabit with her] I have preferred the sense to the idiom through this chapter, as being equally perspicuous and according better with our habits. In these prohibitory laws Moses meant cohabitation both in the married state and out of it; so that he equally forbids marriage among such relatives and all carnal intercourse.—I Jehovah forbid it] I have followed the Arabic in supplying forbid, or command, as more appropriate and expressive than saying, I am Jehovah.

7. I have followed the sense attributed to the first clause by Vatablus, Lightfoot, and others. See Poole's Synopsis. All the precepts are to males, as the principal agents in such unlawful violations of pudicity. In this particular prohibition the turpitude of the crime is pointed out as doubly criminal, in as far as cohabiting with a mother is a grievous injury done to the father.

8. Thy father's wife] As polygamy was allowed, a man might have many wives. A son was not allowed to cohabit with any of them.

18 Thou shalt not take thy wife's sister to vex her, by cohabiting with her, while thy wife
 19 liveth. Neither shalt thou approach a woman, to cohabit with her, while in a removed state. Moreover thou shalt not lie carnally with thy neighbour's wife, defiling thyself with her. And thou shalt not suffer any of thine offspring to be devoted to Molech, and so profane the name of thy 22 God: I, Jehovah, forbid it. Thou shalt not lie with mankind as with womankind: it is an abomination. Thou shalt not pollute thyself, by cohabiting with a beast; nor to a beast shall a woman prostitute herself: it is the perversion of nature. Defile not yourselves by any of these things; for by all these are the nations defiled, whom 25 I am about to drive out before you. For the land is defiled; therefore will I visit its iniquity upon it; and the land itself shall vomit out its inhabitants. Keep, therefore, my statutes and my judgments, and let not either a native, or any of those who sojourn among you, commit any of these abominations; That the land may not vomit you out also, when ye defile it, as it vomited
 27 out the nations that were before you. 'For all these abominations have the men of the land done, who were before you, and the land is defiled.' For whosoever shall commit any of these abominations, even those persons that commit them shall be cut off 30 from among their people. Ye shall, therefore, keep mine ordinances; and none of these abominable customs shall ye practise, which were practised by those before you; nor shall ye thereby defile yourselves: I, Jehovah, your God, so command.

CHAPTER XIX.

B. C. 1491. A repetition of various precepts.

1 AGAIN Jehovah spoke to Moses, saying,
 2 Speak to the congregation of Israel, and say to them, Ye shall be holy; because I, Jehovah your God, am holy.
 3 Every one of you shall revere 'his father' and his mother; and shall keep my sabbaths: I, Jehovah your God, so command.
 4 Turn ye not aside to idols, nor make to yourselves molten gods: I, Jehovah, am your God.
 5 And if ye offer a feast-sacrifice to Jehovah, ye shall so offer as that it may be acceptable. On the same day in which you offer, it shall be eaten, or on the morrow; and if aught remain until the third day, it shall be burned with fire. And if it be eaten at all on the third day, it is abominable; it shall not be accepted. And he who eateth it shall bear his iniquity, because he hath profaned what was hallowed to Jehovah: that person shall be cut off from among his people.

And when ye reap the harvest of your land, ye shall not wholly reap the corners of your field, nor shall ye gather the gleanings of your harvest. And ye shall not glean your vineyards, nor shall ye gather the fallen olives of your olive-yards; ye shall leave them for the poor and the sojourner: I, Jehovah your God, so command.

Ye shall not steal, nor deal falsely, nor lie one to another.

And ye shall not swear by my name falsely, and so profane the name of your God: I, Jehovah, forbid it.

Ye shall not oppress or plunder your neighbour; and the wages of the hiring shall not abide with you until the morning.

The deaf ye shall not curse, nor put a stumbling-block before the blind; but ye shall revere your God: I, Jehovah, so command.

In judgment ye shall do no injustice; ye shall not favour the poor, nor honour the great; in justice shall ye judge your neighbours.

Ye shall not go up and down as tale-bearers among your people; nor shall ye stand up against the blood of your neighbour: I, Jehovah, so command.

Ye shall not in your heart hate your brother; yet shall ye certainly rebuke him, and not suffer sin upon him. Ye shall not avenge nor bear any grudge against the children of your people; but ye shall love your neighbour as yourselves: I, Jehovah, so command. My statutes shall ye keep.

Ye shall not let your different kinds of cattle couple together; and your fields ye shall not sow with mingled seed; nor shall ye wear garments mixed of linen and woollen.

And whosoever lieth carnally with a woman who is a bond-maid, betrothed to a husband, not redeemed, nor freedom given her; he shall be scourged; 'he' shall not be put to death because she was not free. And he shall bring his trespass-offering to Jeho-

9. Born at home] The Syriac has, 'begotten by thy father, or by another man.' Vatablus explains, 'born in or out of matrimony.' The Chaldee, 'born to thy father by another wife, or born by thy mother to another husband.'
 11. The case here stated seems the same as that in the 9th verse. Geddes renders, 'step-mother.' (a) Sept. Syr.
 18. This precept evidently limits a man's marrying a wife's sister, while she liveth; but does not prohibit him from doing it when his wife is dead.

CHAP. XIX. 3. Revere his father and his mother] So the versions read, which is the usual and natural order of such precepts.

5-8. Compare chapter vii. 16-18.

17. Rebuke him] Love to a brother should not lead us to connive at his sins, but rather to rebuke him for them.

19. Forster explains it as denoting garments, in which figures of various animals were formed, which the Egyptians worshipped.

- 23 And when ye shall come into the land "which Jehovah your God giveth to you," and shall have planted any kind of trees for food, then ye shall count its fruit as uncircumcised; three years shall it be as uncircumcised to you; it shall not be eaten.
- 24 And in the fourth year all its fruits shall be hallowed with praises to Jehovah: But in the fifth year shall ye eat of its fruits, that so it may yield to you its increase: I, Jehovah your God, so command.
- 26 Ye shall not eat "upon the mountains;" nor shall ye use divination, nor augury.
- 27 Ye shall not cut round the hair of your heads, nor spoil the hair of your beards. Ye shall not make any cuttings in your flesh for the dead, nor imprint on yourselves any sort of marks: I, Jehovah, forbid it.

- 30 Ye shall keep my sabbath, and reverence my sanctuary: I, Jehovah, so command.
- 31 Regard not necromancers, nor seek after prognosticators to be thereby defiled: I, Jehovah your God, forbid it.
- 32 In the presence of the hoary head ye shall rise up, and so honour an old man. Thus shall ye fear your God: I, Jehovah, so command.
- 33 And if a stranger sojourn with you in your land, ye shall not oppress him. But the stranger that dwelleth with you shall be to you as a native, and ye shall love him as yourselves; for ye were sojourners in the land of Egypt: I, Jehovah your God, so command.
- 35 Ye shall do no injustice in judgment; in meteyard, in weight, or in measure. Just balances, just weights, a just epha, and a just hin, shall ye have. I am Jehovah your God, who brought you out of the land of Egypt; Therefore shall ye observe all my statutes, and all my judgments, and do them: I am Jehovah.

23—25. See Introd. Part ii. ch. 10. § 6. (a) Sept.

26. Upon the mountains] It is evident from Ezek. xviii. 6, that eating on the mountains was considered as a crime, and is by him classed with idolatry and other grievous transgressions. Is it probable, then, that there should be no mention, no prohibition, made of it in the law of Moses? But if it be not here mentioned, it is no where mentioned. I am therefore fully persuaded, that the Sept. has alone preserved the genuine reading; יהוריים instead of ידיר.

CHAP. XX. 2. Among them] Literally, 'in Israel,' but the noun is often used for the pronoun.

JEHOVAH also spoke to Moses, saying, 1
Again thou shalt say to the Israelites, Who- 2 soever he be of the Israelites, or of the strangers who sojourn among them, who devoteth any of his seed to Molech, he shall surely be put to death; the people of the land shall stone him with stones. And I 3 will set my face against that man, and will cut him off from among his people; because by devoting his seed unto Molech, he hath defiled my sanctuary, and profaned my holy name. And if the people of the land do 4 verily hide their eyes from the man, when he devoteth his seed to Molech, and kill him not; Then I will set my face against 5 that man, and against his family, and will cut him off, and all that go astray after him, that go astray after Molech, from among their people.

And the person who turneth to necro- 6 mancers, or prognosticators, going astray after them, I will even set my face against that person, and will cut him off from among his people.

Sanctify yourselves therefore and be holy: 7 because I, Jehovah your God, 'am holy.'
And ye shall keep 'all' my statutes, and do 8 them: I am Jehovah, who have hallowed you.

Whosoever curseth his father or his mo- 9 ther shall surely be put to death: he hath curst his father or his mother; upon himself shall his blood be.

If any man commit adultery with his 10 neighbour's wife, the adulterer and the adulteress shall surely be put to death. And 11 the man that lieth with his father's wife, with whom his father cohabiteth, both of them shall surely be put to death; upon themselves shall their blood be. And if a man 12 lie with his daughter-in-law, both of them shall surely be put to death; they have committed incest; upon themselves shall their blood be. If a man lie with a man as 13 he lieth with a woman, both of them have committed an abomination; they shall surely be put to death; upon themselves shall their blood be. And if a man take to his bed 14 both daughter and mother; it is the greatest

3. My sanctuary] To which he sometimes comes, although guilty of idolatry.

4. Hide their eyes] i. e. will not notice his conduct, but connive and wink at it.

7. (a) Sam. Sept. Arab. 4 MSS.

9. On himself shall his blood be] That is, his death shall not be imputed to another as a crime; he is the cause of his own death. Purver renders, 'His blood is chargeable on himself.'

10. Either the first or second clause of this verse must be deemed an interpolation. Geddes and Dathe agree in crime: they shall be burnt with fire, both he and they; that there be no such crime among you. And if a man lie with a beast, he shall surely be put to death; and ye shall kill the beast. And if a woman prostitute herself to any beast, ye shall kill the woman, and the beast, they shall surely be put to death; on themselves shall their blood be. And if a man shall take his sister, his father's daughter, or his mother's daughter, and they cohabit together, it is a shameless deed; and they shall even be cut off in the sight of their people; he hath cohabited with his sister; he shall bear his iniquity. And if a man shall lie and cohabit with a woman in her removed state, and she hath consented to cohabit with him; both of them shall be cut off from among their people. With thy mother's sister, or thy father's sister, thou shalt not cohabit; for this is to cohabit with a near kinswoman: they shall bear their iniquity. And if a man shall lie with his uncle's wife, with whom his uncle cohabiteth, they shall bear their sin; childless they shall die. And if a man shall take to his bed his brother's wife, with whom his brother cohabiteth, it is a detestable thing; childless shall they be.

Ye shall therefore keep all my statutes, and all my judgments, and execute them; that the land, whither I bring you to dwell, may not vomit you out. And ye shall not walk by the statutes of the nations, which I am about to cast out before you; for they committed all these things, and therefore I abhor them. But to you I say, Ye shall inherit their land, and I will give it to you in possession, a land that floweth with milk and honey. I am Jehovah your God, who have separated you from other peoples. Ye shall therefore distinguish between clean beasts and unclean, and between unclean fowls and clean; and ye shall not make yourselves abominable by beast, or by fowl, or by any kind of animal that creepeth on the ground, which I have pointed out to you as unclean. And ye shall be holy to me: because I, Jehovah, am holy, and have distinguished you from other people, that ye should be mine. So a man or woman who is a necromancer or prognosticator shall surely be put to death; they shall be stoned with stones: upon themselves shall their blood be.

cting it. A transcriber might easily commit the mistake. One MS. omits it.

0. Childless] I have some doubt whether this should be rendered childless let them die; and considered as injunction to the judges, not as a prophetic commination. So Geddes and Houbigant.

CHAP. XXI. 4. If she have a husband] It is clear, that law in question regards the priests, the ordinary priests, sons of Aaron; what business then has a chief of the

AGAIN Jehovah said to Moses, Speak to 1 the priests, the sons of Aaron, and say to 2 them, None of you shall be defiled for the 3 dead among his people: Unless for his near 4 kindred; for his father, or his mother, or his 5 son, or his daughter, or his brother: And 6 for his own sister, a virgin, who hath not 7 been married; for her he may be defiled. 8
But if she have a husband, among his people, he shall not defile himself for her by 9 any uncleanness. They shall not make 10 bald their head, nor shall they shave the 11 hair of their beard, nor make any cuttings in 12 their flesh. They shall be holy to their 13 God, and not profane the name of their God: 14 because they offer the burnt-offerings of Jehovah, the portion of their God, therefore 15 they shall be holy. They shall not take a 16 harlot, or one dishonoured, for a wife; nor 17 shall they take a woman divorced from her 18 husband; for they are hallowed to their God. 19
Ye shall, therefore, account them holy; because they offer the portion of your God; 20 holy shall they be to you, because I, Jehovah, who have hallowed them, am holy.

If the daughter of any priest profane herself by playing the harlot, she profaneth her father: she shall be burnt with fire. And 21 he who is the high-priest among his brethren, upon whose head the anointing oil hath been poured, and who hath been consecrated, and clothed with the holy garments, shall not uncover his head, nor rend his clothes: Nor to any dead body shall he 22 approach, nor defile himself for his father, or for his mother. He shall not go out of 23 the sanctuary, lest he profane the sanctuary of his God, while the crown and the anointing oil of his God are upon him: I, Jehovah, so command. A virgin only shall he 24 take for a wife. A widow, or one divorced, 25 or dishonoured, or a harlot, these shall he not take: but a virgin of his own people shall he take for a wife; Lest he profane his 26 seed, among his people; for I, Jehovah, have hallowed him.

And Jehovah also spoke to Moses, saying, 27
Speak to Aaron, saying, Let none of thy 28 seed, throughout their generations, who hath any blemish, approach to offer the portion people to do here? I am convinced that a word has been dropped out of the text, which I would restore thus: ולא ישמא [לבעלת] בעל בעמי. The context itself almost demonstrates this to be the true reading, as two cases are contrasted, in one of which the priest is allowed to perform the funeral duties to a deceased sister, in the other not.

7. There is here an enallage of numbers, and when literally rendered it makes the whole absurd. Instead of 'he is holy to his God,' it should be, 'they are holy to,' &c.

18 of his God. For no man who hath a blemish shall approach; a blind man, or a lame or maimed, or one that hath any thing 19 superfluous, Or a man that is broken-footed,
20 or broken-handed, Or crooked-backed, or a dwarf, or that hath a blemish in his eye, or hath a dry or purulent scab, or hath a rupture;
21 No man that hath such a blemish, of the seed of Aaron, the priest, shall approach to offer the burnt-offerings of Jehovah: he hath a blemish; he shall not approach to 22 offer the portion of his God. He shall eat of the portion of his God, both of the most 23 holy, and of the holy; But he shall not go near the veil, nor approach the altar, because he hath a blemish; lest he profane my holy things: for I, Jehovah, have 24 lowed them. And Moses told this to Aaron, and to his sons, and to all Israel.

CHAPTER XXII.

B. C. 1491. When the priests must abstain from holy things.

1 AGAIN Jehovah spoke to Moses, saying,
2 Speak to Aaron and his sons, when they are to abstain from the holy things of the Israelites, that they profane not my holy name; for those things are hallowed to me:
3 I am Jehovah. Say to them, Whosoever of all your seed, throughout your generations, having his uncleanness upon him, shall approach to the holy things which the Israelites hallow to Jehovah, that person shall be cut off from before me: I, Jehovah,
4 so command. Whosoever of the seed of Aaron is a leper, or hath a running issue, he shall not eat of the holy things, until he be clean. And whoso toucheth any thing, and becometh unclean, or a man, who hath had an involuntary pollution; Or whosoever toucheth any "unclean" reptile, and thereby becometh unclean; or a man who hath any kind of uncleanness, by which he may be 6 defiled; The person who hath touched any such, shall be unclean until the evening, and shall not eat of the holy things, unless 7 he have washed his body in water: And when the sun is down, he shall be clean, and shall afterward eat of the holy things;
8 because they are his food. That which dieth of itself, or is torn by beasts, they shall not eat to defile themselves thereby:

18. Maimed] To me it appears that the word is in contrast with that which follows; and that, as the latter denotes something superfluous in the person, the former denotes a deficiency, or something wanting.

ЧАР. XXII. 2. I have followed the arrangement of Houbigant, in rendering this verse. If other persons were defiled by the things mentioned, it was proper the priests should, and that in this state, they should be debarred from offering, or eating of the sacrifices.

5. (a) Sam. Sept.

11 (v) Sam. and Versions.

I, Jehovah, forbid it. They shall, therefore, keep mine ordinance, lest if they profane it, they bear sin for it: I, Jehovah, have hallowed them. There shall no 10 stranger eat of what is holy; he who sojourneth with a priest or a hired servant, shall not eat of what is holy. But if a priest 11 have bought a person with his money, he may eat of it, and "those" born in his house may eat of his food. If the daughter of a 12 priest be married to a stranger, she may not eat of the offering of holy things; But if 13 the daughter of a priest be a widow, or divorced, and have no child, and he returned to her father's house, she shall eat of her father's food, as in her youth; but of it no stranger shall eat.

And if a man eat what is holy unwittingly, 14 then he shall add a fifth part more to the holy thing, and give it to the priest. Thus 15 they shall not profane the holy things of the Israelites, which they offer to Jehovah; Or bring on themselves the guilt of trespass, 16 by their eating of the holy things; for I, Jehovah, have hallowed them.

Jehovah also spoke to Moses, saying, 17 Speak unto Aaron, and to his sons, and to all the Israelites, and say to them, Whoso-18 ever of the house of Israel, or of the strangers who sojourn with them, will bring his oblation for any vow, or for any free-will offering, and will offer it for a burnt-offering to Jehovah; To be accepted, it shall be 19 a male without blemish, from the herd, from the sheep, or from the goats. But whatsoever 20 hath a blemish, ye shall not offer; for it shall not be accepted for you. And who-21 soever offereth a sacrifice to Jehovah to accomplish a vow, or as a free-will offering, from the herd or from the flock, it shall be perfect, to be accepted; there shall be no blemish in it. The blind or bruised, or 22 having the rot, or the dry or purulent scab, these ye shall not offer to Jehovah. Either 23 a steer, or a sheep or goat which hath any thing superfluous or lacking in its parts, may be offered as a free-will offering; for a vow it shall not be accepted. Ye shall not 24 offer to Jehovah that which is bruised, or crushed, or broken, or castrated. In your land ye shall not do this; Nor of any of 25 these, from the hand of a sojourner, shall ye offer the portion of your God; for being

18—25. These prohibitions had doubtless a moral tendency. They were designed to remind the Israelites of the sovereignty of God, and that he ought to be honoured with the best of their possessions. The prophet Malachi charges them with sinning by neglecting these prohibitions.

24. That which is bruised] Michaelis has justly observed, that four methods of emasculating animals are here mentioned. Geddes renders castration, or contusion, or evulsion, or excision. One reason of this prohibitory law may have been, to deter the Israelites from the castration of men, practised by the neighbouring nations.

corrupted and blemished, they shall not be accepted for you.
 26 Jehovah also spoke to Moses, saying,
 27 When a steer, or lamb, or kid, is brought forth, then it shall be seven days under the dam; and from the eighth day, and thenceforth it shall be accepted for a burnt-offering to Jehovah. But neither cow nor ewe, shall ye kill on the same day with her young. And when ye offer a thanksgiving-sacrifice to Jehovah; that it may be accepted, It shall be eaten on the same day ye offer it; ye shall leave none of it until the morrow: I, Jehovah, forbid it. Therefore shall ye keep my commandments, and do them; Nor shall ye profane my holy name; but hallowed will I be among the Israelites; I am Jehovah who have hallowed you, And have brought you out of the land of Egypt, to be your God: I am Jehovah.

CHAPTER XXIII.

B. C. 1491. The various festivals, and the manner of observing them.

1 AGAIN Jehovah spoke to Moses, saying,
 2 Speak to the Israelites, and say to them, The feasts of Jehovah, which ye shall celebrate by holy convocations, are these. Six days shall work be done; but the seventh day, or the sabbath of rest, let there be a holy convocation; no work shall ye do on it: let it be a sabbath to Jehovah, in all your dwellings.
 4 These are the other feasts of Jehovah, holy convocations which ye shall celebrate at their appointed times. On the fourteenth day of the first month at evening, is Jehovah's passover. And on the fifteenth day of the same month, is the feast of unleavened bread to Jehovah: seven days ye must eat unleavened bread. On the first day ye shall have a holy convocation: on it ye shall do no servile work. But ye shall offer a burnt-offering to Jehovah on each of the seven days; on the seventh day is a holy convocation; on it ye shall do no servile work.
 9 Jehovah also spoke to Moses, saying,
 10 Speak to the Israelites, and say to them, When ye shall have come into the land which I give to you, and shall have reaped its harvest, ye shall then bring a sheaf of the first-fruits of your harvest to the priest;
 11 And ye shall wave the sheaf before Jehovah, that it may be accepted for you; on the morrow after the sabbath the priest shall wave it. And on the day in which the sheaf is waved, ye shall offer a male lamb, without blemish, of the first year for a burnt-offering to Jehovah. And its wheat-offering, two tenths of an ephah of fine flour mingled with oil, for a burnt-offering to Jehovah of a sweet savour: and its drink-offering of wine, shall be the fourth part of an hin. Neither bread nor parched corn out of the full ear shall ye eat until the self-same day that ye have brought of them an offering to your God: a perpetual statute shall this be throughout your generations, in all your dwellings.

And ye shall count from the morrow after the sabbath, from the day that ye brought the sheaf of the wave-offering, seven complete sabbaths; Even to the morrow after the seventh sabbath shall ye number fifty days; and ye shall offer another wheat-offering to Jehovah. Ye shall bring from your habitations two wave-loaves of two tenths of an ephah: they shall be of fine flour; they shall be baked with leaven, as first-fruits to Jehovah. And ye shall offer with the bread seven lambs, without blemish, of the first year, and one steer, and two rams "without blemish;" those shall be for a burnt-offering to Jehovah; with their wheat-offering, and their drink-offerings, they shall be a burnt-offering of a sweet savour to Jehovah. Then shall ye sacrifice one goat for a sin-offering, and two lambs of the first year for a feast-sacrifice. And the priest shall wave them with the bread of the first-fruits, for a wave-offering before Jehovah, with the two lambs: holy shall they be to Jehovah, for the priest. And ye shall celebrate on that very day, a holy convocation: on it ye shall do no servile work: a perpetual statute shall this be throughout your generations, in all your dwellings.

And when ye reap the harvest of your land, ye shall not completely reap the corners of your fields, nor shall ye gather any gleanings of your harvest: ye shall leave them for the poor, and for the stranger: I, Jehovah your God, so command.

Jehovah also spoke to Moses, saying, Speak to the Israelites, saying, On the seventh month, the first day of the month, shall ye keep as a sabbath, to be commemorated by blowing of trumpets, and a holy convocation. Ye shall do no servile work on it: but ye shall offer a burnt-offering to Jehovah.

Again Jehovah spoke to Moses, saying, Also the tenth day of this seventh month shall be a day of atonement; a holy convocation shall ye have; and ye shall humble yourselves, and offer a burnt-offering to Jehovah.

 28 And on that same day ye shall do no work; for it is a day of atonement, to make an atone-29 ment for you before Jehovah, your God. For whosoever he be that humbleth not himself on that same day, he shall be cut off from 30 among his people. And whosoever he be that doeth any work on that same day, that person I will destroy from among his people.
 31 Ye shall do no manner of work on it: a perpetual statute shall this be throughout 32 your generations, in all your dwellings. It shall be unto you a sabbath of rest, and ye shall humble yourselves; from the evening of the ninth day of the month, to the next evening, shall ye keep your sabbath.
 33 Jehovah also spoke to Moses, saying,
 34 Speak to the Israelites, saying, On the fifteenth day of the seventh month shall be the feast of booths, for seven days, to Jeho-
 35 vah. On the first day shall be a holy convocation; on it ye shall do no servile work.
 36 Seven days ye shall offer a burnt-offering to Jehovah: on the eighth day ye shall have a holy convocation, and shall offer a burnt-offering to Jehovah: it is a solemn assembly-day; on it ye shall do no servile 37 work. These are the feasts of Jehovah, which ye shall celebrate by holy convocations, offering burnt-offerings to Jehovah; the burnt-offerings, and wheaten-offerings; sacrifices and drink-offerings; each on its 38 proper day: Besides the sabbaths of Jehovah, and besides "all" your gifts, and all your vows, all your freewill-offerings, which 39 ye give to Jehovah. Also on the fifteenth day of the seventh month, when ye have gathered in the fruit of the land, ye shall keep a feast to Jehovah, seven days: on the first day shall be a sabbath, and on the 40 eighth day shall be a sabbath. And on the first day ye shall take shoots of thriving trees, branches of palm-trees, and the boughs of thick trees, and willows of the brook; and having made booths, ye shall rejoice before Jehovah your God, seven 41 days. And ye shall keep a feast to Jehovah seven days, in every year; it shall be a perpetual statute throughout your generations: in the seventh month ye shall celebrate it. Ye shall dwell in booths seven 42 days; all native Israelites shall dwell in booths; That your posterity may know how 43 I made the Israelites to dwell in booths, when I brought them out of the land of Egypt: I am Jehovah your God. And 44 Moses declared to the Israelites the feasts of Jehovah.

CHAPTER XXIV.

B. C. 1481. Directions respecting the lamps and presence-bread; and punishment of a blasphemer.

AGAIN Jehovah spoke to Moses, saying, 1
 Command the Israelites, that they bring to 2 thee pure expressed olive oil, for the light, that the lamps may be kept continually burn- 3 ing, Without the veil of the testimony, in the congregation-tabernacle. Aaron and his sons^b shall so order, that they may burn 4 from the evening unto the morning before Jehovah continually: a perpetual statute shall this be throughout your generations. He shall thus order the lamps, on the chan- 4 delier of pure gold, before Jehovah continually.

And thou shalt take fine flour, and bake 5 of it twelve cakes; two tenths of an ephah shall be in one cake. And thou shalt place 6 them in two rows, six on a row, upon the table of pure gold before Jehovah. And 7 thou shalt put pure incense upon each row, that it may be instead of the bread for a memorial, as a burnt-offering to Jehovah. On 8 every sabbath the priest shall arrange it before Jehovah continually, receiving it from the Israelites by an everlasting cove- 9 nant. And to Aaron and his sons shall it belong; and they shall eat it in the holy place: for it is their most holy portion of the burnt-offerings of Jehovah by a perpetual statute.

Now the son of an Israelite woman 10 whose father was an Egyptian, had come up among the Israelites; and this son of the Israelite woman and a man of Israel strove together in the camp; And the son of the 11 Israelite woman (whose name was Shelomith, the daughter of Dibri, of the tribe of Dan,) blasphemed the name of Jehovah, and cursed. And they brought him to 12
 Moses: and they put him in custody, until

CHAP. XXIV. 3. And his sons] That these words should be admitted into the text is obvious; as the ordinance has respect to future generations. (a) Sam. Sept.

6. Six on a row] There is some seeming ambiguity in the text itself, as it is not very clear whether the loaves were to be arranged in rows along the table, or in upright piles upon the table. But the size of the loaves, and the small length of the table, appear to be decisive for the upright piles; and a better version than that of Sept. cannot be given. The loaves, then, were placed in two piles, each pile containing six loaves.

7. Instead of bread] The incense was to be burnt instead of the bread, to the honour of Jehovah. The incense remained on the bread for seven days; on the sabbath the bread was eaten and the incense burnt.

11. Blasphemed the name] Many consider the name put here for Jehovah; the most probable opinion is, that יְהוָה stood originally in the text; although its elision must have been made at an early period, as it is wanting in the Sept. and Sam. versions. To blaspheme, is to revile, reproach, speak evil of, and is explained by 'cursing.'

15. His rulers] The term מְלָכִים has the same sense Exod. xxii. 28. The meaning is, 'if he who reviles a magistrate may be justly punished, much more he who reviles the name of God.' See note, Hebrew Bible.

17—22. Compare Exod. xxi. 24.

the will of Jehovah should be made known 13 to them. And Jehovah spoke to Moses, 14 saying, Bring forth him that hath cursed without the camp; and let all that heard him lay their hands upon his head, and let 15 the whole congregation stone him. And thou shalt speak to the Israelites, saying, Whosoever curseth his own rulers shall 16 bear his sin; But he who blasphemeth the name of Jehovah shall surely be put to death; the whole congregation shall certainly stone him: as well the stranger as the native, when he blasphemeth the name of Jehovah, shall be put to death.

17 And he who killeth any man shall surely 18 be put to death; But he who killeth a beast shall make it good; beast for beast.

19 And if a man cause a blemish in his neighbour; as he hath done, so shall it be done 20 to him; Bruise for bruise, eye for eye, tooth for tooth; as he hath caused a blemish in a 21 man, so let it be done to him. And he who killeth a beast, shall restore it: but he who killeth a man, shall be put to death.

22 Ye shall have but one sentence for the stranger, and for the native. For I, Jehovah your God, so command.

23 And Moses spoke to the Israelites, that they should bring him who had cursed out of the camp, and stone him with stones. And the Israelites did as Jehovah commanded Moses.

CHAPTER XXV.

B. C. 1491. The Sabbatical and Jubilee years are to be observed.

1 AGAIN Jehovah spoke to Moses by mount 2 Sinai, saying, Speak to the Israelites, and say to them, When ye come into the land which I give to you, let even the land keep a sabbath to Jehovah. Six years ye shall 3 sow your fields, and six years ye shall prune 4 your vines, and gather in their fruits; But in the seventh year, let the land have a sabbath of rest, a sabbath to Jehovah; your 5 fields ye shall not sow, and your vines ye shall not prune. Your harvest-crop which 6 hath grown of its own accord, ye shall not reap, nor gather the grapes of your undressed vine; for it is a year of rest to the 7 land. But the produce of the land during its rest, shall be food for you; for yourselves, for your men-servants and maid-servants, for the hireling, and for the stranger 8 who sojourneth among you; And for your cattle, and for the wild beasts which are in the land, shall all its produce be for food.

9 Moreover ye shall number seven sabbatical years, seven times seven years; and the period of the seven sabbatical years shall be forty-nine years. Then shall ye 10 cause the trumpet of the jubilee to be sounded; on the tenth day of the seventh month, on the day of atonement shall ye cause the trumpet to be sounded throughout all your land. And ye shall hallow the 10 fiftieth year, and proclaim liberty throughout the whole land to all its inhabitants, it shall be a year of jubilee to you; and ye shall return every one to his possession; and ye shall return every one to his family. A jubilee shall that fiftieth year be to you; 11 ye shall not sow, nor reap what groweth of itself in it, nor in it gather the grapes of your undressed vine. For it is the jubilee; 12 it shall be holy to you; its produce ye shall eat from the field. In the year of this jubilee ye shall return every one to his own possession: If therefore ye sell a possession 14 to your neighbour, or buy one at your neighbour's hand; ye shall not injure one another. According to the number of years after the 15 jubilee ye shall buy of your neighbour; and according to the number of produce-years he shall sell to you: If the years be many, 16 ye shall increase the price; and if the years be few, ye shall diminish the price: for according to the number of produce-years, it shall be sold to you. Ye shall not there- 17 fore oppress one another; but ye shall fear God: For I, Jehovah your God, so command.

Wherefore ye shall observe my statutes, 18 and keep my judgments, and do them; that ye may dwell in safety in the land; For 19 then the land shall yield her fruit, and ye shall eat to the full, and in safety dwell in it. And if ye say, What shall we eat the 20 seventh year, seeing we must not sow, nor gather in our increase? I will even com- 21 mand my blessing upon you in the sixth year, and it shall yield produce sufficient for three years. And ye shall sow the eighth 22 year, and yet eat of the old produce until the ninth year; until its produce come in ye shall eat of the old.

The land shall not be sold in perpetuity: 23 for the land is mine; and ye are but strangers and sojourners with me. Through 24 the whole land which ye possess, ye shall permit the land to be redeemed.

If your brother have become poor, and 25 have sold some part of his possession, and if any of his kin come to redeem it, then may he redeem what his kinsman had sold. And 26 if the man have none to redeem it, and he acquire what is sufficient to redeem it; Then 27 let him count the years from the time of its sale, and restore the overplus to the man to whom he sold it; that he may return unto his possession. But if he have not acquired 28 what is sufficient to restore to him, then that which is sold shall remain in the possession of him that bought it until the year of jubilee; for in the jubilee it shall be given up, that he may return to his possession. If a man sell a dwelling house in a walled city, he shall redeem it within a whole year after it is sold; for within a full year he may redeem it. But if it be not redeemed within the space of a full year, then the house which is in the walled city shall be established to him that bought it in perpetuity: it shall not be given up in the jubilee. But the houses of villages which have no wall round about them shall be counted as the fields of the country; they may be redeemed, and they shall be given up in the jubilee. As to the cities of the Levites, and the houses of the cities in their possession, the Levites may redeem them at any time. And if one of the Levites have redeemed, then the house that hath been sold, of the city of his possession, shall be given up in the year of jubilee: for the houses of the cities of the Levites are their possession among the Israelites. But the field of the suburbs of their cities may not be sold; for they are their perpetual possession.

And if thy brother have become poor, and be reduced to want, then shall ye relieve him as a stranger, or a sojourner; let him live with you. Take of him no usury, or profit; but fear your God; that your brother may live with you. Ye shall not give him your money for usury; nor shall ye give him your victuals for profit. I, Jehovah your God, who brought you out of the land of Egypt, to give you the land of Canaan, and to be your God, so command.

And if your brother have become poor, and sell himself to you; ye shall not compel him to serve as a bond-servant: But as a hired servant, or as a sojourner, he shall be with you, and shall serve you to the year of jubilee; When he shall depart from you, he and his children with him, and shall return to his own family; and to the possession of his fathers shall he return. For they are my servants, whom I brought out of the land of Egypt: they shall not be sold as bond-men; Nor shall ye rule over them with rigour: but shall fear your God.

Both your bond-men, and your bond-maids, ye shall have from the nations which are around you; of them shall ye buy bond-men and bond-maids. Moreover of the children of the strangers who sojourn among you, of them and of their descendants, who are born in your land, ye may buy; and they shall be your possession. As a heritable possession ye shall leave them to your children after you; they shall be your bondmen for ever. But over your brethren, the Israelites, ye shall not rule (one over another) with rigour.

And if a sojourner or stranger become rich among you, and your brother by him become poor, and sell himself to the stranger or sojourner among you, or to any of the stranger's family: After that he is sold he may be redeemed again; one of his brethren may redeem him: Either his uncle or his uncle's son, may redeem him, or any of his own family nigh of kin to him may redeem him; or if he can acquire as much he may redeem himself. And he shall reckon with his buyer from the year that he was sold to him, to the year of jubilee: and the price of his sale shall be according to the number of years; like the days of a hireling shall his time be reckoned. If many years remain, according to them ye shall return the price of his redemption, out of the money for which he had been bought. And if there remain but few years to the year of the jubilee, then he shall reckon with him, and according to his years ye shall return to him the price of his redemption. As a hireling he shall be with him year by year: but let him not, in your sight, rule over him with rigour. And if he be not thus redeemed, he shall, in the year of jubilee, go out free; himself and his children with him. For to me the Israelites are servants; my servants are they, whom I brought out of the land of Egypt: I am Jehovah your God.

CHAPTER XXVI.

B. C. 1491. The blessings on obedience, and the miseries on disobedience.

YE shall not make to yourselves carved idols, nor shall ye set up for yourselves statues, nor shall ye place in your land sculptured stones, for the purpose of bowing down at them: for I, Jehovah your God, forbid it.

Ye shall keep my sabbaths, and reverence my sanctuary. I am Jehovah.

If ye walk in my statutes, and keep my commandments, and do them; Then I will give you rain in due season, and the land shall yield its increase, and the trees of the field shall yield their fruits. And your threshing time shall reach to the vintage,

CHAP. XXV. 33. In rendering this verse I have followed the Sept. See note, Hebrew Bible. The meaning is, that if one Levite have redeemed the house which another Levite had sold, such house should continue in the possession of him who had redeemed it till the jubilee, when it should be given up to the original owner.

CHAP. XXVI. 1. Carved idols] I have adopted the rendering of Geddes, as it does not seem probable that the words refer to two different kinds of idols, but to the manner in which they were formed—Sculptured stones] Michaelis, whom Geddes follows, renders, 'hieroglyphic stones.' The Syr. and Onkelos render, 'stones of adoration.' I have given what seems to be most natural.

and the vintage shall reach to the sowing-time; and ye shall eat your bread to the 6 full, and dwell safely in your land. And I will give peace in the land, and ye shall lie down, and none shall make you afraid; and evil beasts I will rid out of the land, nor 7 shall the sword go through your land. And ye shall chase your enemies, and they shall 8 fall by the sword. And five of you shall chase a hundred, and a hundred of you shall chase a thousand; and your enemies
 9 shall fall by the sword before you. For to you I will have respect, and make you fruitful, and multiply you; and will establish 10 my covenant with you. And ye shall eat old store, and bring forth the old to make 11 room for the new. And among you, I will set my tabernacle; and my soul shall not 12 abhor you. And I will walk among you, and will be your God, and ye shall be my 13 people. I am Jehovah your God, who brought you out of the land of the Egyptians, that ye might not be their bondmen; and I broke the bands of your yoke, and made you go upright.
 14 But if ye will not hearken to me, and will not keep all these commandments;
 15 And if ye despise my statutes; or if your soul abhor my judgments, so as to make void my covenant by not doing all my commandments, I also will do this to you; I will afflict you with "sickness;" with consumptions, and fevers, which shall waste your eyes and pain your hearts. In vain shall ye sow your seed, for your enemies 17 shall eat it. And I will set my face against you, and ye shall be slain before your enemies; they that hate you shall reign over you; and ye shall flee when none pursueth you. And if for all this ye will not yet hearken to me, then I will punish you 19 seven times more for your sins; And I will break your stubborn pride: your sky I will 20 make as iron, and your earth as brass; So that your strength shall be spent in vain; for your land shall not yield its increase, nor shall the trees of the "field" yield their fruits.
 21 And if still ye walk contrary to me, and refuse to hearken to me, I will bring on you seven times more plagues according to your 22 sins. I will also send wild beasts among you, which shall rob you of your children, and destroy your cattle, and make you few in number; so that your highways shall be desolate. And by these things if ye will 23 not be reformed, but will walk contrary to me; Then will I also walk contrary to you, 24 and will yet punish you seven times more, according to your sins. And I will bring a 25 sword upon you, which shall avenge the violation of my covenant; and when ye are gathered within your cities, I will send the pestilence among you; and ye shall be delivered into the hand of the enemy. When 26 I have broken the staff of your bread, ten women shall bake your bread in one oven, and they shall return you your bread by weight; and ye shall eat and not be satisfied. And if for all this ye will not hearken 27 to me, but walk contrary to me; Then in 28 fury will I walk contrary to you; and I will yet chastise you seven times more according to your sins. For ye shall eat the flesh of 29 your own sons; and the flesh of your own daughters shall ye eat. And I will destroy 30 your high places, and cut down your sun-images, and cast your carcasses upon the carcasses of your idols, and my soul shall abhor you. And I will make your cities waste, 31 and will make desolate "your sanctuary," and I will not accept your sweet odours. And I will make the land so desolate that 32 your enemies, who dwell therein, shall be astonished at it. I will also scatter you 33 among the nations, and with a drawn sword I will pursue you; and your land shall be desolate, and your cities waste. Then shall 34 the land enjoy its sabbaths, as long as it lieth desolate, and ye are in the land of your enemies, even then shall the land rest, and enjoy its sabbaths. As long as it lieth de- 35 solate it shall rest; because it did not rest when ye dwelt upon it, on your sabbatical years. And I will make those of you who 36 are left in the land of their enemies so faint-hearted, that the sound of a shaking leaf shall make them flee; and they shall flee, as if fleeing from a sword; and they shall fall when none pursueth. And they shall 37 fall one upon another, as it were before a sword, when none pursueth; and ye shall have no power to stand before your enemies. And ye shall perish among the nations, and 38 the land of your enemies shall eat you up. And those of you who are left in the land 39 of your enemies shall pine away "in their" own iniquity; and in the iniquity of their fathers shall they pine away. But if they 40

11. Shall not abhor you] i. e. I will love and regard you. This figure of speech is usual. 16. (v) Sam.

20. (v) Sam. Sept. Arab. MSS.

26. Ten women] One house oven was only sufficient to bake for one family; and when ten were to bake in it, it is apparent that there was great scarcity.

29. Flesh of your sons] In a siege this has often been done. Compare 2 Kings vi. 28.

31. Your sanctuary] I read in the singular with the versions noticed, as I think it refers to the destruction of the place where Jehovah was worshipped. Compare Psa. lxxiv. 7; Ezek. ix. 6. (v) Sam. Syr. MSS.

34. Enjoy its sabbaths] The Sabbatical year began to be neglected in the time of Saul; and from that period to the captivity, seventy sabbatical years had been neglected, 2 Chron. xxxvi. 21; but the land remained in a state of rest, not being generally cultivated during the captivity.

will confess their iniquity and the iniquity of their fathers, with their trespass by which they trespassed against me, and by which 41 also they walked contrary unto me; So that I also have walked contrary to them, and have brought them into the land of their enemies; if then their uncircumcised hearts be humbled, and they accept the punishment of their iniquity; Then will I remember my covenant with Jacob, and also my covenant with Isaac; and my covenant with Abraham will I also remember. And 43 I will remember the land, The land which was left by them, and which shall have enjoyed its sabbaths, while it lay desolate, without them; until they shall accept the punishment of their iniquity; because they have despised my judgments, and because 44 their soul abhorred my statutes: For then, while they are in the land of their enemies, I will not cast them away, nor will I so abhor them, as utterly to destroy them, and to make void my covenant with them: for 45 I am Jehovah their God. • But I will for their sakes remember the covenant of their ancestors, whom I brought out of the land of Egypt in the sight of the nations that I 46 might be their God: I am Jehovah. These are the statutes and judgments and laws, which Jehovah made between him and the Israelites, at mount Sinai, through the mediation of Moses.

CHAPTER XXVII.

B. C. 1491. Of vows, tithes, and devoted things.

1 AGAIN Jehovah spoke to Moses, saying,
 2 Speak to the Israelites, and say to them, If a man shall make a singular vow, of persons to Jehovah, let there be a valuation.
 3 And the valuation shall be, of a male from twenty years old unto sixty years old, even the valuation shall be, fifty shekels of silver, according to the shekel of the sanctuary:
 4 But if it be a female, then the valuation shall be thirty shekels. And if it be from five years old even unto twenty years old, then the valuation of a male shall be, twenty shekels, and of the female, ten shekels.
 6 And if from a month old even unto five years old, then the valuation of a male shall be, five shekels of silver, and of the female the valuation shall be three shekels of silver.
 7 And if from sixty years old and above; then the valuation of a male shall be fifteen
 8 shekels, and of a female, ten shekels. But if he be poorer than this valuation, then he shall present himself before the priest, and the priest shall value him; according to the ability of him that vowed shall the priest 9 value. And if one vow a beast, which may be offered as an offering to Jehovah, every such beast, given to Jehovah, shall be holy. He shall not alter it, nor change it; a good 10 for a bad, or a bad for a good; and if he shall at all change beast for beast, then it and the exchanged shall be holy. But if 11 the beast be unclean, which may not be offered as an offering to Jehovah, then he shall present the beast before the priest; And the priest shall value it, whether it be 12 good or bad; and according to the valuation of the priest, shall it be. But if he will at 13 all redeem it, let him add a fifth part more to the valuation-price.

And if a man will hallow his house to be 14 holy to Jehovah, then the priest shall estimate it, whether it be good or bad; and as the priest shall estimate it, so shall it stand. And if he who hallowed his house will re- 15 deem it, then he shall add the fifth part more to the valuation-price, and it shall be his. And if a man shall hallow to Jehovah 16 some part of the fields of his possession, then the valuation shall be according to the seed that may be sown on it, rating a homer of barley seed at fifty shekels of silver. If 17 from the year of jubilee he hallow his field, according to the valuation it shall stand. But if after the jubilee he hallow his field, 18 then the priest shall reckon to him the money according to the years that remain, even to the year of the next jubilee, and this shall be abated from the valuation. And if 19 he, who halloweth the field, will indeed redeem it, then he shall add a fifth part to the valuation-price, and it shall be assured to him. But if he will not redeem the field, 20 or if he have sold the field to another man, it shall not be redeemed any more. But 21 the field when it goeth from the buyer at the jubilee, shall be holy to Jehovah, as a field devoted; the property of the priest shall it be. And if one hallow to Jehovah 22 a field which he hath bought, which is not of the fields of his possession; Then the 23 priest shall reckon with him the sum of the valuation, to the year of jubilee: and he shall give the sum of the valuation in that day, as a thing holy to Jehovah: And in 24 the year of jubilee the field shall return to him of whom it was bought, to him to whom the possession of the land belongeth. And 25 all your valuations shall be according to the shekel of the sanctuary; twenty gerahs to a shekel.

The firstling of the cattle, which as first- 26 lings belong to Jehovah, shall no man hallow; whether they be from the herd or the flock: they are Jehovah's. But the first- 27 ling of an unclean beast, he may redeem by adding a fifth part to the valuation-price. If it be not redeemed, then it shall be sold according to the valuation.

28 But no devoted thing which a man may devote to Jehovah of all that he hath, whether it be a man or beast, or the field of his possession, shall be sold or redeemed: every devoted thing shall be most holy to Jehovah. 29 Not any thing devoted, which may be devoted by men, shall be redeemed; but 30 shall surely be put to death. And all the tithe of the land, of the corn of the land, and of the fruit of the trees is Jehovah's: 31 to Jehovah it is hallowed. And if a man will at all redeem any of his tithes, he shall

CHAP. XXVII. 28. No devoted thing] It has been warmly contested, whether or not this term applies to men, and whether human beings could lawfully be thus devoted, or sacrificed to God. It is said that חרם signifies, utter destruction, as is clear from its general application; and that it is evident from this and the following verse that one man might devote another; and he so devoted was to suffer death. By what law had one this power over another? Had the father this power over his children? Or had the master this power over his slaves? Is not the first case clearly forbid, Deut. xii. 31? And is not the latter wholly opposite to the spirit of the divine law, which every where guards the life of man, and inculcates humanity and kindness to the lowest orders of the state?

The inference from this is, either that חרם must be taken in the sense of being inalienably appropriated to God, that is, to his service, when men are meant, or to the sanctuary when land; or for sacrifice, when beasts; or that this law must be allowed to be contradictory and irreconcilable with the other laws of Moses. It is, however strongly asserted that the 29th cannot admit of any other interpretation, than that the person devoted was to suffer death; and the instance add the fifth part of their value. And concerning the tithe of the herd, or of the flock, even of whatsoever passeth under the rod, the tenth shall be holy to Jehovah. He shall not search whether it be good or bad, neither shall he change it; and if he change it at all, then both it and the changed shall be holy; it shall not be redeemed. These are the commandments, which Jehovah commanded Moses, for the Israelites, at mount Sinai.

of Jephtha sacrificing his daughter, is brought to support it. It is confessed that this is the most natural sense of the text as it now stands. We must then either suppose the last words ימות ימות mean, 'he shall surely die in the state to which he has been devoted,' or adopt the opinion of Houbigant and Rosenmuller, that this applies only to persons taken in war. For it is clear, that the Jewish law does not give this power to a man over any of his dependents; and the instance of Jephtha is at least doubtful. Dr. Sykes contends ימות ימות does not always signify a violent death, as in Gen. ii. 17; Numb. xxvi. 65; but may only imply that the person devoted shall die in that devoted state. See Sykes's Principles, &c. chap. 13. On the whole, I am satisfied that the sense of the law is, 'that if a man devoted by oath any thing to the Lord, what was so devoted could not be redeemed. If a man so devoted his child or servant, such child or servant ministered to the Levites during his whole life; if some portion of his land, it became the property of the priests and Levites; or if he devoted some of his cattle they were sacrificed, and as most holy, they were the portion of the priests.' This view of the law is consistent with other statutes.

NUMBERS.

INTRODUCTION.

THIS Book is called Numbers, because it begins and nearly closes with an account of the numbering of the people. It was so called by the Greek translators, whom others have followed. The first numbering was at the beginning of the second year from the departure of the Israelites out of Egypt, when the tabernacle was erected and Aaron and his sons consecrated to the priesthood; the second, in the plains of Moab, towards the conclusion of their journey in the wilderness.

This Book comprehends a period of nearly thirty-eight years, during which the Israelites continued to wander in the wilderness. It contains an account of the consecration of the tabernacle, the offering of the princes, the separation of the Levites—the order of the tribes when encamped, and when they marched—their various journeys, murmurings, and the judgments inflicted on them—the rebellion of Korah and his associates—the ambition of Aaron and Miriam; the victories and trials; the prophecies of Balaam, &c. It is not possible to assign distinct dates to many of the transactions recorded; and it appears from a list of their journeys, that a considerable part of the time included in this history must have passed without any remarkable incidents.

CHAPTER I.

B. C. 1491. The people numbered, and the order of the tribes in the camp.

- 1 AGAIN Jehovah spoke to Moses in the wilderness of Sinai, in the congregation-tabernacle, on the first day of the second month, in the second year after their coming out of the land of Egypt, saying,
- 2 Take ye the sum of the whole congregation

CHAP. I. 2. Take the sum] It has been a question, whether this is to be considered a second numbering of the people, or only the completion of that which was begun the first year: Exod. xxx. 11, 12, and xxxviii. 25, 26. Michaelis contends for the latter opinion, as the number of

of the Israelites, by their families, by the house of their fathers, with the number of the names, one by one; every male From twenty years old and upward; all that are able to go forth to war in Israel, shalt thou and Aaron number according to their hosts. And with you there shall be a man of every tribe; each one the chief of the house of his fathers.

males fit for war is the same in both, which in a number so great could scarcely happen, if two different accounts had been taken.

3. From twenty years] It is singular that Plato, in his Republic, makes his males in like manner fit for war at the

- 5 And these are the names of the men who shall assist you: Of the tribe of Reuben;
 6 Elizur the son of Shedeur. Of Simeon;
 7 Shelumiel the son of Zurishaddai. Of Judah; Nahshon the son of Amminadab.
 8 Of Issachar; Nethaneel the son of Zuar.
 9 Of Zebulun; Eliab the son of Helon.
 10 Of the children of Joseph; of Ephraim; Elishama the son of Ammihud. Of Manasseh; Gamaliel the son of Pedahzur. Of Benjamin; Abidan the son of Gideoni.
 12 Of Dan; Ahiezer the son of Ammishaddai.
 13 Of Asher; Pagiel the son of Ocran. Of Gad; Eliasaph the son of Deuel. Of Naphtali; Ahira the son of Enan. These were wont to be called to the assembly, princes of the tribes of their fathers, heads of the thousands of Israel.
- 17 So Moses and Aaron took these men who were expressly appointed; And on the first day of the second month, they assembled the whole congregation together; and they declared their pedigrees by their families, by the house of their fathers, with the number of the names one by one, from twenty years old and upward. As Jehovah commanded Moses, so he numbered them in the wilderness of Sinai. And the children of Reuben, the first-born of Israel, according to their genealogies, by their families, by the house of their fathers, with the names one by one, every male from twenty years old and upward, all that were able to go forth to war: Those that were numbered of the tribe of Reuben, were forty-six thousand and five hundred.
- 22 Of the Simeonites according to their genealogies, by their families, by the house of their fathers, with the number of the names "one by one," from twenty years old and upward, all that were able to go forth to war; Those that were numbered of the tribe of Simeon, were fifty-nine thousand and three hundred.
- 24 Of the Gadites, according to their genealogies, by their families, by the house of their fathers, with the number of the names "one by one," from twenty years old and upward, all that were able to go forth to war; Those that were numbered of the tribe of Gad, were forty-five thousand, six hundred and fifty.
- 26 Of the Judahites, according to their genealogies, by their families, by the house of their fathers, with the number of the names, one by one, from twenty years old and upward, all that were able to go forth to war; Those that were numbered of the 27 tribe of Judah, were seventy-four thousand and six hundred.

Of the Issacharites, according to their 28 genealogies, by their families, by the house of their fathers, with the number of the names, "one by one," every male from twenty years old and upward, all that were able to go forth to war; Those that were numbered 29 of the tribe of Issachar, were fifty-four thousand and four hundred.

Of the Zebulunites, according to their 30 genealogies, by their families, by the house of their fathers, with the number of the names, "one by one, every male" from twenty years old and upward, all that were able to go forth to war; Those that were numbered 31 of the tribe of Zebulun, were fifty-seven thousand and four hundred.

Of the sons of Joseph; of the Ephraim- 32 ites, according to their genealogies, by their families, by the house of their fathers, with the number of the names, "one by one, every male" from twenty years old and upward, all that were able to go forth to war; Those 33 that were numbered of the tribe of Ephraim, were forty thousand and five hundred.

Of the Manassites, according to their ge- 34 nealogies, by their families, by the house of their fathers, with the number of the names, "one by one, every male" from twenty years old and upward, all that were able to go forth to war; Those that were numbered 35 of the tribe of Manasseh, were thirty-two thousand and two hundred.

Of the Benjamites, according to their 36 genealogies, by their families, by the house of their fathers, with the number of the names, "one by one, every male" from twenty years old and upward, all that were able to go forth to war; Those that were numbered 37 of the tribe of Benjamin, were thirty-five thousand and four hundred.

Of the Danites, according to their gene- 38 alogies, by their families, by the house of their fathers, with the number of the names, "one by one, every male" from twenty years old and upward, all that were able to go forth to war; Those that were numbered of 39 the tribe of Dan, were sixty-two thousand and seven hundred.

Of the Asherites, according to their ge- 40 nealogies, by their families, by the house of age of twenty. In this census, no women, or children, or old men were taken, nor the tribe of Levi. How numerous had the children of Abraham become!

16. Those wont to be called] See Intro.

22. The word omitted in this verse is in all the following, where the same form of expression occurs; and the words added in the 24th and following verses, are supported by the text, verse 20.

21—43. It is singular that in this census we have no odd numbers; they all end with hundreds, except two. Rosenmuller considers, that as all fit for war are mentioned, they were divided into thousands, hundreds, and tens; and that as any one died, another was added, or the odd number was rejected when they were mustered under their proper officer.

46. Geddes contends, that the total number of males their fathers, with the number of the names, "one by one, every male" from twenty years old and upward, all that were able to go forth to war; Those that were numbered of the tribe of Asher, were forty-one thousand and five hundred.

Of the Naphtalites, according to their genealogies, by their families, by the house of their fathers, with the number of the names, "one by one, every male" from twenty years old and upward, all that were able to go forth to war; Those that were numbered of the tribe of Naphtali, were fifty-three thousand and four hundred.

This is the account of those numbered, whom Moses and Aaron numbered with the twelve princes of Israel; "for each tribe" one, according to the house of their fathers. Now all those who were numbered of the Israelites, by the house of their fathers from twenty years old and upward, all who were able to go forth to war in Israel; Even all that were numbered were six hundred and three thousand, five hundred and fifty.

But among those the Levites, according to the tribe of their fathers, were not numbered. For Jehovah had spoken to Moses, saying, Thou shalt not number the tribe of Levi, nor take the sum of them among the Israelites. But thou shalt appoint the Levites over the testimony-tabernacle, and over all its utensils, and all things belonging to it. They shall bear the tabernacle, and all the utensils; and they shall minister at it; and they shall encamp round about the tabernacle. And when the tabernacle is to be removed, the Levites shall take it down; and when the tabernacle is to be pitched, the Levites shall set it up; for the stranger that cometh nigh to it shall be put to death. And the children of Israel shall encamp, every man by his own camp, and every man by his own standard, throughout their hosts. But the Levites shall encamp round about the testimony-tabernacle, lest there be wrath upon the congregation of Israel; and the Levites shall keep the charge of the testimony-tabernacle.

And the Israelites did according to all that Jehovah commanded Moses; so did they.

AGAIN Jehovah spoke to Moses and to

Aaron, saying, Every man of the children of Israel shall encamp by his own standard, with the ensign of his father's house. Over against and round the congregation-tabernacle shall they encamp. And on the east side towards the rising sun, shall they of the standard of the camp of Judah pitch according to their hosts; and the captain of the Judahites shall be Nathon, the son of Amminadab. And his host, those that were numbered, were seventy-four thousand and six hundred. And they who encamp next to him, on one side, shall be the tribe of Issachar: and the captain of the Issacharites shall be Nathaneel the son of Zuar. And his host, those that were numbered, were fifty-four thousand and four hundred. Then on the other side, the tribe of Zebulun: and, the captain of the Zebulunites shall be Eliab the son of Helon. And his host, those that were numbered, were fifty-seven thousand and four hundred. All that were numbered in the camp of Judah were a hundred and eighty-six thousand and four hundred, according to their hosts. These shall march the foremost.

On the south side shall be the standard of the camp of Reuben, according to their hosts; and the captain of the Reubenites shall be Elizur the son of Shedeur. And his host, those that were numbered, were forty-six thousand and five hundred. And they who encamp next to him on one side, shall be the tribe of Simeon: and the captain of the Simeonites, shall be Shelumiel the son of Zurishaddai; And his host, those that were numbered, were fifty-nine thousand and three hundred. Then on the other side, the tribe of Gad; and the captain of the Gadites, shall be Eliasaph the son of Deuel. And his host, those that were numbered, were forty-five thousand, six hundred and fifty. All that were numbered in the camp of Reuben, were a hundred and fifty-one thousand, four hundred and fifty, according to their hosts. And they shall march in the second rank.

Then in the midst of the other camps, shall march the camp of the Levites with the congregation-tabernacle; as they encamp, so shall they march, every man in his place under his own standard.

above twenty years old, exclusive of the tribe of Levi, of the women and children under that age, is a thing hardly credible. Scheuchzer and others have proved by accurate calculations, that the number is not improbable; especially, if we consider the promise made to the Patriarchs, and the particular providence under which their descendants were. We have one proof of their vast numbers in the fear and policy of the Egyptians towards them. But see note, Exod. xii. 37.

50. Testimony-tabernacle] So called, because of the two tables of the law, called the testimonies, which were contained in the ark.

51. The stranger] i. e. any person who was not of the tribe of Levi.

CHAP. II. 14. Deuel] It is strange, that the Jewish rabbis could permit so many of their ancient copies to continue corrupted by so gross a blunder, as Reuel for Deuel; and it would be still more strange, if Christians did not all agree in correcting it. In i. 14, it is Ehasaph the son of Deuel. In vii. 42, and x. 20, it is also Ehasaph the son of Deuel. It is likewise Deuel here (ii. 14,) in the Sam. text, with the Ar. and Vulg. versions; to which the authority of 80 Hebrew MSS. may be added.

- 18 On the west side shall be the standard of the camp of Ephraim, according to their hosts; and the captain of the Ephraimites, shall be Elishama the son of Ammihud.
- 19 And his host, those that were numbered, 20 were forty thousand and five hundred. And next to him on one side, shall be the tribe of Manasseh; and the captain of the Manassites, shall be Gamaliel the son of Pe- 21 dazur. And his host, those that were numbered, were thirty-two thousand and 22 two hundred. Then on the other side, the tribe of Benjamin; and the captain of the Benjamites, shall be Abidan the son of 23 Gideoni. And his host, those that were numbered, were thirty-five thousand and 24 four hundred. All that were numbered of the camp of Ephraim, were a hundred and eight thousand, and a hundred, according to their hosts. And they shall march in the third rank.
- 25 The standard of the camp of Dan shall be on the north side, according to their hosts; and the captain of the Danites, shall 26 be Ahiezer the son of Ammishaddai. And his host, those that were numbered, were sixty-two thousand, and seven hundred.
- 27 And those that encamp next to him on one side, shall be the tribe of Asher; and the captain of the Asherites, shall be Pagiel the 28 son of Ocran. And his host, those that were numbered, were forty-one thousand 29 and five hundred. Then on the other side, the tribe of Naphtali; and the captain of the Naphtalites, shall be Ahira the son of 30 Enan. And his host, those that were numbered, were fifty-three thousand and four 31 hundred. All that were numbered in the camp of Dan, were a hundred and fifty-seven thousand and six hundred. They shall march hindmost, according to their standards.
- 32 These are the Israelites who were numbered by the house of their fathers; the whole of the camps according to their hosts, were six hundred and three thousand, five 33 hundred and fifty. But the Levites were not numbered among the Israelites; as 34 Jehovah had commanded Moses. And the Israelites did according to all that Jehovah commanded Moses: so they encamped by their standards, and so they marched, every one with his own family, according to the house of his fathers.

CHAPTER III.

B. C. 1491. Priests and Levites numbered, and their charge.

Now, at the time Jehovah spoke to 1 Moses, at mount Sinai, these were the progeny of Aaron. And these are the names 2 of the sons of Aaron; Nadab the first-born, and Abihu, Eleazar, and Ithamar. These 3 are the names of the sons of Aaron, the priests who were anointed, whom he consecrated to minister in the priest's office. But 4 Nadab and Abihu died "while they offered profane fire before Jehovah, in the wilderness of Sinai, and they had no children: so Eleazar and Ithamar ministered in the priest's office, in the sight of Aaron their father.

And Jehovah spoke to Moses, saying: 5 Bring the tribe of Levi near, and present 6 them to Aaron the priest, that they may minister to him. And they shall keep 7 his charge and the charge of the whole congregation, before the congregation-tabernacle, to do the service of the tabernacle. And they shall keep all the utensils 8 of the congregation-tabernacle, and the charge of the Israelites, by doing the service of the tabernacle. And thou shalt 9 give the Levites to Aaron and to his sons; they are wholly given "to me," from among the Israelites. But thou shalt appoint 10 Aaron and his sons, to attend on their priest's office, and the stranger that approacheth shall be put to death.

Again Jehovah spoke to Moses, saying, 11 Behold, now I have taken the Levites 12 from among the Israelites instead of all the first-born males "who are to be redeemed," among the Israelites: therefore the Levites shall be mine; Because all the first- 13 born are mine; for on the day that I smote all the first-born males in the land of Egypt I hallowed to me all the first-born males of the Israelites, whether man or beast: mine shall they be: I am Jehovah.

Jehovah also spoke to Moses, in the wilderness of Sinai, saying, Number the Le- 14 15 them, it appears that the camp of the Israelites was formed of four great divisions. The tabernacle, around which the Levites encamped, was the centre; on the east, encamped Judah, under whom were Issachar and Zebulun; on the west, Ephraim, under whom were Manasseh and Benjamin; on the south, Reuben, with Simeon and Gad; and on the north, Dan, with Asher and Naphtali. When Judah, and the two tribes under him marched first; then the south division of Reuben and the tabernacle followed, and the west and north divisions succeeded in the rear.

CHAP. III. 1. Aaron] Houbigant contends, that Moses is an interpolation, though it is now found in all the versions; for there is not one word respecting the progeny of Moses in this whole chapter. And on this account it should be omitted.

4. (a) Before Jehovah] Sam. Vulg. 1 MS.

9. The Sam. ^b is adopted by Houbigant and Geddes; and the parallel place, chap. viii. 16, supports this reading, as do the following verses. For God takes the Levites instead of the first-born of the other tribes of Israel. Hence they were called Nethinim, because given to assist the priests. (c) Sam. Sept. Alex.

10. Stranger] That is, any one not of the race of Aaron. Even the Levites could not perform the priest's office.

12. (a) Sam. Sept.

15. (a) Syr. and 10 following verses.

vites "by their families," and by the house of their fathers: every male of them from a month old and upward shalt thou number. And Moses numbered them at the word of Jehovah, as he was commanded. And these were the sons of Levi by their names; Gershon, and Kohath, and Merari. And these are the names of the sons of Gershon by their families; Libni, and Shimei. And the sons of Kohath by their families; Amram, and Izehar, Hebron and Uzziel. And the sons of Merari by their families; Mahli and Mushi.

These are the families of the Levites according to the house of their fathers. Of Gershon was the family of the Libnites, and the family of the Shimites: these are the families of the Gershonites. Those of them that were numbered, all the males, from a month old and upward, those of them that were numbered, were seven thousand and five hundred. The families of the Gershonites shall encamp behind the tabernacle westward. And the paternal chief of the families of the Gershonites, shall be Eliasaph the son of Lael. And the charge of the sons of Gershon in the congregation tabernacle shall be the tabernacle itself, the tent, its covering, and the hanging for the door of the congregation-tabernacle; And the hangings of the court, and the gate-curtain of the court, which surroundeth the tabernacle, and the altar, and the cords of it for all the service.

And of Kohath was the family of the Amramites, and the family of the Izeharites, and the family of the Hebronites, and the family of the Uzzielites: these are the families of the Kohathites. And "those of them" that were numbered, the males from a month old and upward, were eight thousand, and six hundred, keeping the charge of the sanctuary. The families of the sons of Kohath shall encamp on the side of the tabernacle southward. And the paternal chief of the families of the Kohathites, shall be Elizaphan the son of Uzziel. And their charge shall be the ark, and the table, and the chandelier, and the altars, and the utensils of the sanctuary with which they minister, and the veil, "the laver with its cover," and every thing belonging to "their" service. And Eleazar, the son of Aaron the priest, shall be chief over the chief of the Levites, and have the oversight of them that keep the charge of the sanctuary.

Of Merari was the family of the Mahlites, 33 and the family of the Mushites: these are the families of Merari. And those of them 34 that were numbered, of all the males, from a month old and upward, were six thousand, and two hundred. And the paternal chief 35 of the families of Merari, shall be Zuril the son of Abihail: these shall encamp on the side of the tabernacle northward. And 36 under the custody and charge of the sons of Merari, shall be the boards of the tabernacle, and its bars, and its pillars, and its bases, and all its utensils, and all that belongeth to its service; And the pillars of the court 37 round about, and their bases, and their pins, and their cords.

But those that encamp before the tabernacle towards the east, before the congregation-tabernacle eastward, shall be Moses and Aaron, and his sons, keeping the charge of the sanctuary for the Israelites; and the stranger who approacheth, shall be put to death. All that were numbered of 39 the Levites, whom Moses "numbered at the commandment of Jehovah, according to their families, all the males from a month old and upwards, were twenty-two thousand.

Jehovah also said to Moses, Number all 40 the first-born males of Israel, from a month old and upward, and take the number of their names. And thou shalt take the Levites for me, (I am Jehovah,) instead of all the first-born males among the Israelites; and the cattle of the Levites, instead of all the firstlings among the cattle of the Israelites. And Moses numbered, as Jehovah commanded him, all the first-born males among the Israelites. And all the first-born males 43 according to the register of the names from a month old and upward, of those that were numbered of them, were twenty-two thousand, two hundred and seventy-three.

And Jehovah spoke to Moses, saying, 44 Take the Levites instead of all the first-born males among the Israelites, and the cattle of the Levites instead of their cattle; and the Levites shall be mine; I am Jehovah. And for those that are to be 46 deemed, the two hundred and seventy-three † 23. Families] The Masorets read in the plural; and so most of the versions.

† 28. (a) Syr. 1 MS. 31. (a) Sam.

† 39. And Aaron] Hallet has long ago observed, that this is interpolated; and on the authority of Sam. rejects it. The pointed text intimates it as the word is dotted on the top of each letter, yet it abides in the text. Its omission makes this verse consistent with verse 5, where Moses only ordered to number the Levites.—Twenty-two thousand] There is clearly an error either in this sum total, or in some of the preceding numbers. For verse 22 the Gershonites are 7500; verse 28 the Kohathites 8600, and verse 34 the Merarites 6200, which make 22,300. Kennicott conjectures that the error is in the sum of the Gershonites; where a 7, 200, has been mistaken for a final 7 500. Geddes rejects this, as it is not certain that the final 7 was as early in use as this error. The conjecture of Houbigant seems most probable, who supposes that the error is in the number of the Kohathites, and that some scribe wrote ww by mistake for w7w; and that the sum should be 8300.

of the first-born males of the Israelites, 47 which are more than the Levites; Thou shalt take for every one five shekels, after the shekel of the sanctuary shalt thou take 48 them; the shekel being twenty gerahs; And the money, by which the surplus number of them is to be redeemed, thou shalt give 49 to Aaron and to his sons. And Moses took the redemption-money of them that were over and above them that were redeemed by 50 the Levites; Of the first-born males of the Israelites took he the money; a thousand three hundred and sixty-five shekels, accord-51 ing to the shekel of the sanctuary. And Moses gave the money of those who were redeemed, to Aaron and to his sons, according to the word of Jehovah; as Jehovah had commanded him.

1 AGAIN Jehovah spoke to Moses and to
2 Aaron, saying, Take the sum of the sons of Kohath from among the sons of Levi, by their families, and by the house of their fa-3 thers, From 'twenty-five' years old and upward, even until fifty years old, all who are fit for service, to do the work in the 4 congregation-tabernacle. The service of the sons of Kohath in the congregation-tabernacle, shall be about the most holy 5 things. For when the camp is to move, Aaron and his sons shall come, and shall take down the covering veil, and cover with 6 it the ark of the testimony: And they shall spread over it a cloth wholly blue; and "above that" they shall put a covering of 7 seals' skins, and shall put to it staves. And upon the table of the presence-bread they shall spread a cloth of blue, on which they shall put the platters and incense-pots, and its other cups, in which drink-offerings are to be offered: and the continual presence-8 bread shall be thereon: And they shall spread upon "them" a covering-cloth of scarlet, and then cover that with a covering of seals' skins, and shall put to it staves.
9 And they shall take a cloth of blue, and cover the chandelier, and its lamps, and its snuffers, and its snuffdishes, and all its oil 10 vessels which they use in its service. And they shall put it and all its vessels in a covering of seals' skins, and put it on a 11 bearer. And upon the golden altar they shall spread a cloth of blue, and cover it with a covering of seals' skins, and shall put to it staves. And they shall take all the 12 other utensils of service, which they use in the sanctuary, and put them in a cloth of blue, and cover them with a covering of seals' skins, and shall put them on a bearer.

And they shall take away the ashes from 13
the brazen-altar, and spread a purple cloth thereon; And they shall put on it all its 14 utensils, which they use about it, the cens-ers, the forks, and the shovels, and the sprinkling basins; all the utensils of the altar; and they shall spread upon it a covering of seals' skins, and put to it staves.
"And they shall take a cloth of purple, and cover the laver; and they shall put over them a cover of seals' skins, and shall put them on a bearer." And when Aaron and 15 his sons have made an end of covering the sanctuary, and all the utensils of the sanctuary, when the camp is to move; then the sons of Kohath shall come to carry it, but they shall not touch any holy thing, lest they die. These are the burdens of the sons of Kohath with respect to the congregation-tabernacle.

And to the office of Eleazer, the son of 16 Aaron the priest, pertaineth the oil for the light, and the sweet-incense, and the daily wheat-offering, and the anointing oil, the charge of the whole tabernacle, and of every thing in it, in respect to the sanctuary, and its utensils.

And Jehovah spoke to Moses and to 17
Aaron, saying, Cause not the families of the 18 Kohathites to be cut off from among the Levites; But thus do to them, that they 19 may live, and not die, when they approach to the most holy things: Let Aaron and his sons go in, and appoint them every one to his service and to his burden: But let not 20 them go in to see when the holy things are covered, lest they die.

Jehovah again spoke to Moses, saying, 21
Take also the sum of the sons of Gershon, 22 by their families; and by the house of their fathers; From 'twenty-five' years old and 23 upward, until fifty years old shalt thou number them; all who are fit to do the service, and the work in the congregation-tabernacle.
This is the service of the families of the 24
Gershonites, and these the burdens: And 25 they shall bear the curtains of the tent, or congregation-tabernacle; its inner covering,

CHAP. IV. 3. Twenty-five years] The various lection of the Sept. is probably genuine, as it is the same as the text chap. viii. 24. Some critics defend the text here, by a distinction which seems rather invented to remove the difficulty, than to have any foundation in the sacred text—the distinction is, that the Kohathites are appointed to carry the holy things; and in chap. viii. 24, it refers only to their service in general. The Sept. reads in like manner, verse 23, and 30, 35, 39, 43, and 47.—All fit for service] I have given the sense rather than the idiom. Coverdale renders, 'All that are meet for the war.'

6. (a) Sam. Sept. 2 MSS.

8. (v) Sept. Syr. Arab.

14. Houbigant, Geddes, and other critics adopt the addition of the Sam. and Sept. Indeed, unless we adopt this, we have no mention of a very important part of the furniture of the tabernacle, the laver; while mention is made of things of no moment. The consent of the Sept. and Sam. is a strong proof that this originally obtained in the text.

18. Cause not] That is, take heed lest by your negligence the Kohathites should perish. The sense is explained by what follows. 23. (v) Sept.

and the covering of the seals' skins, which is above that, and the door hangings of the 26 congregation-tabernacle. And the hangings of the court, and the door hangings of the gate of the court, which surroundeth the tabernacle and the altar; and their cords, and all the utensils of their service, and whatsoever is to be done concerning 27 them; thus shall they serve. At the appointment of Aaron and his sons, shall be the whole service of the sons of the Gershonites, with respect to all their burdens, and to all their service: and ye shall appoint 28 to them in charge all their burdens. This is the service of the families of the sons of Gershon, about the congregation-tabernacle; and their charge shall be under the direction of Ithamar, the son of Aaron the priest.

29 As for the sons of Merari, thou shalt number them by their families, by the house 30 of their fathers; From 'twenty-five' years old and upward, even unto fifty years old shalt thou number them; all who are fit to do the service, and the work of the con- 31 gregation-tabernacle. And this is the charge of their burden, according to all their service about the congregation-tabernacle; the boards of the tabernacle, and its bars, and 32 its pillars, and its bases, And the pillars of the court round about, and their bases, and their pins, and their cords, with all the utensils used in their service: and by name shall the utensils of their charge and of their 33 burden be reckoned. This is the service of the families of the sons of Merari, according to all their service, about the congregation-tabernacle, under the direction of Ithamar, the son of Aaron the priest.

34 And Moses and Aaron, and the chiefs of the congregation, numbered the sons of the Kohathites by their families, and by the house 35 of their fathers, From 'twenty-five' years old and upward, even to fifty years old, all who were fit for the service, for the work 36 in the congregation-tabernacle: And those of them that were numbered by their families were two thousand seven hundred 37 and fifty. These were they that were numbered of the families of the Kohathites, all who were fit for the service in the congregation-tabernacle, whom Moses and Aaron numbered, according to the command of 38 Jehovah by Moses. And those that were numbered of the sons of Gershon, by their families, and by the house of their fathers, 39 From 'twenty-five' years old and upward, even to fifty years old, all who were fit for the service, for the work in the congregation-tabernacle: And those of them that were 40 numbered, by their families, and by the house of their fathers, were two thousand six hundred and thirty. These are they 41 that were numbered of the families of the sons of Gershon, all who were fit for the service in the congregation-tabernacle, whom Moses and Aaron did number according to the command of Jehovah.

And those that were numbered of the fa- 42 milies of the sons of Merari, by their families, and by the house of their fathers, From 43 'twenty-five' years old and upward, even unto fifty years old, all who were fit for the service, for the work of the congregation-tabernacle: Those of them that were num- 44 bered by their families, were three thousand and two hundred. These were they who 45 were numbered of the families of the sons of Merari, whom Moses and Aaron numbered, according to the word of Jehovah by Moses. All those that were numbered of 46 the Levites, whom Moses and Aaron and the chiefs of Israel numbered, by their families and by the house of their fathers, From twenty-five years old and upward, 47 even to fifty years old, all who were fit to do the service, and to bear the burdens, with respect to the congregation-tabernacle; Even those of them that were numbered, 48 were eight thousand five hundred and eighty. According to the commandment of Jehovah 49 by Moses, they were numbered, every one according to his service, and according to his burden. Thus were they numbered by Moses, as Jehovah commanded.

CHAPTER V.

B. C. 1491. Laws concerning leprosy, restitution, adultery, &c.

MOREOVER Jehovah spoke to Moses, saying, 1 Command the Israelites, that they put 2 out of the camp every leper, and every one that hath an issue, and whosoever is defiled by the dead; Both male and female shall 3 ye put out; without the camp shall ye put them; that they defile not their camps, in the midst of which I dwell. And the Is- 4 raelites did so, and put them without the camp: as Jehovah spoke to Moses, so did the Israelites.

Jehovah also spoke to Moses, saying, 5 Speak to the Israelites; If a man or woman 6 shall commit any sin which men may commit, by trespassing against Jehovah, and

30. (v) Sept. so verses following.

32. By name] Hence commentators imagine that every utensil had its peculiar name, like as the two columns of Solomon's temple, which were called Jachin and Boaz. I believe that the phrase here means no more, than that every utensil was named, or told over to the persons who were to carry them, or perhaps every board, &c. had its peculiar mark, by which it could readily be replaced in its own situation.

CHAP. V. 6—10. That the law couched in these verses, is the same with that in Levit. v. 20—26, only expressed in somewhat different terms, is clear from the general tenour

- 7 that person be guilty; Then he shall confess his sin which he hath committed; and shall recompense his trespass by restoring the principal, and shall add to it a fifth part, and give it to him whom he hath injured.
- 8 But if a man hath no kinsman to claim the recompense of the injury, let the recompense be made to Jehovah, for the priest; beside the ram of the atonement, by
- 9 which an atonement shall be made for him. And every heave-offering of all the holy things of the Israelites, which they bring
- 10 to the priest, shall be his. And every man's hallowed things shall be his: whatsoever any man giveth to a priest, his it shall be.
- 11 Again Jehovah spoke to Moses, saying,
- 12 Speak to the Israelites, and say unto them, If any man's wife go astray, and commit a
- 13 trespass against him, And a man lie with her carnally, and she be defiled, and it be hid and concealed from the eyes of her husband, and there be no witness against her,
- 14 nor herself taken in the fact; And if the spirit of jealousy come upon him, and he be jealous of his wife, and she be defiled; or if the spirit of jealousy come upon him, and he be jealous of his wife, and she be
- 15 not defiled; Then shall the man bring his wife to the priest, and he shall bring her offering for her, the tenth part of an ephah of barley-meal; he shall pour no oil upon it, nor incense shall he add to it; for it is an offering of jealousy, an offering of memorial, bringing iniquity to remembrance.
- 16 And the priest shall present it, and place it
- 17 before Jehovah: And he shall then take some hallowed water in an earthen vessel; and of the dust which is on the floor of the tabernacle the priest shall take, and put it
- 18 into the water; And the priest shall set the woman before Jehovah, and uncover the woman's head, and put the offering of memorial in her hands, the offering of jealousy; and the priest shall have in his hand
- 19 the proof-execration water. And the priest shall charge her by an oath, and say to the woman, If thou hast not gone astray from thine husband, and been defiled by lying with another man, be thou free from this proof-execration water; But if thou hast gone astray from thy husband and been defiled by lying with another man, besides thine husband. Then the priest shall charge the woman with an oath of execration, and the priest shall say to the woman, Jehovah make thee a curse and an execration among thy people, by making thy thigh to waste, and thy belly to swell; And may this execration-water go into thy bowels, to make thy belly to swell, and thy thigh to waste. And the woman shall say, Amen, amen. And the priest shall write these curses in a book, and shall blot them out with the proof-water; And he shall cause the woman to drink the proof-execration water; and the execration-water shall enter into her, as a proof of her guilt or innocence. But the priest shall, first, take the offering of jealousy out of the woman's hand, and shall wave the offering before Jehovah, and offer it upon the altar; And the priest shall take a handful of the offering, as a memorial of it, and burn it upon the altar, and afterward shall cause the woman to drink the water. And when he hath made her drink the water, then it shall be, if she be defiled, and have committed a trespass against her husband, that the execration-water shall enter into her, and become a proof of it; for her belly shall swell, and her thigh shall waste, and the woman shall be an execration among her people. But if the woman be not defiled, but clean, then she shall be free, and shall conceive seed. This is the law of jealousies, when a wife goeth astray from her husband, and is defiled; Or when the spirit of jealousy coming upon him, and he be jealous of his wife, then shall he present the woman before Jehovah, and the priest shall execute upon her this whole law. And the man shall be guiltless of iniquity; and this woman shall bear her own iniquity.

of both, and from the penalty annexed to each. But a new case is here supposed, namely, that no person claims compensation; in which case it goes to the priest.

7. (v) Sept. rest. they.

17. I remember no instance of this water of jealousy either producing the effect of the curse, or the effect mentioned verse 28, or indeed of its being ever used. The rabbis say it was left off, in the latter days of the second temple, by reason of the multiplication of adulteries; that is, on the man's part; for they understand verse 31 to say, that if the man was guiltless, the water would have its bad effect on the woman; else not: and it may be so understood. This trial was not to be used, but when the truth could not be otherwise known. Had it been appointed without divine authority, it would never have hurt any, unless consciousness produced the effect, or unless something more than is here appointed, was mixed with the water.

18. The Vulg. and most modern versions derive from the verb בָּרַר, and render. 'bitter water.' What made it bitter? No satisfactory answer has been or can be given to this question. The rendering of the Sept. 'proof-water.' is certainly a most proper epithet for this water, and perfectly agreeable to the context. Geddes follows the Sam. הַמַּרְרִים, and renders 'corrosive water;' but the same objections may be made to this as to the Vulgate.

22. Thy thigh to waste] Some think that the thigh means the womb, and that the disease is a prolapsus uteri. Perhaps St. Paul alludes to this, 1 Cor. xi. 29, 'He who eateth and drinketh unworthily, &c.' See Psa. cix. 18, and Dan. ix. 11.

23. I presume, this custom contained the essence of an oath, varied for the purpose of peculiar solemnity; so that a woman would naturally hesitate to take such an oath, understood to be an appeal to heaven of the most solemn kind; understood also, to be accompanied, in case of perjury, by the most painful and fatal effects.

CHAPTER VI.

B. C. 1491. Laws respecting the Nazarites, and the forms of blessing the people.

- 1 AGAIN Jehovah spoke to Moses, saying,
- 2 Speak to the Israelites, and say to them, If any man or woman will distinguish himself by making the vow of a Nazarite, for the purpose of devoting himself to Jehovah:
- 3 He shall abstain from wine and strong drink: and shall not drink vinegar of wine, or vinegar of strong drink; nor shall he drink any liquor of grapes, nor eat either moist or dried grapes. All the days of his Nazariteship, he shall eat nothing that is made from the produce of the vine, from the grape stones to the rind. All the days of his Nazarite-vow, no razor shall come upon his head; until the days be fulfilled, during which he hath devoted himself to Jehovah, he shall be holy, and shall let the locks of the hair of his head grow. All the days that he is devoted to Jehovah, he shall approach no dead body. For his father, or for his mother, for his brother, or for his sister, when they die he shall not make himself unclean; because the Nazarite token of his God is upon his head. All the days of his Nazarite state he is holy to Jehovah.
- 9 And if a man die by him suddenly, his Nazariteship is then defiled; and he shall shave his head on the day of his purification, on the seventh day shall he shave it. And on the eighth day he shall bring two turtle-doves, or two pigeons, to the priest, to the door of the congregation-tabernacle: And the priest shall offer the one for a sin-offering, and the other for a burnt-offering, and make an atonement for him, in regard to the sin occasioned by the dead, and shall hallow
- 12 his head that same day. And when he hath brought a lamb of the first year for a guilt-offering, he shall again devote to Jehovah the days of his Nazariteship; and the former days shall not be reckoned, because his Nazariteship was defiled.
- 13 And this is the law of the Nazarite, when the days of his Nazariteship are completed; he shall present himself at the door of the congregation-tabernacle: And he shall bring his offering to Jehovah, one he-lamb of the first year, without blemish, for a burnt-offering, and one she-lamb of the first year, without blemish, for a sin-offering, and one ram, without blemish, for a feast-sacrifice.
- 15 And a basket of unleavened bread, namely cakes of fine flour mingled with oil, and wafers of unleavened bread anointed with oil, as their wheat-offering; also their drink-offerings of wine. And the priest shall bring them before Jehovah, and shall offer his sin-offering, and his burnt-offering; And he shall offer the ram for a feast-sacrifice to Jehovah; with the basket of unleavened bread, the priest shall offer its wheat-offering, and its drink-offering of wine. Then the Nazarite shall shave his dedicated head at the door of the congregation-tabernacle, and shall take the hair of his dedicated head, and put it on the fire which is under the feast-sacrifice. And the priest shall take the boiled shoulder of the ram, and one unleavened cake out of the basket, and one unleavened wafer, and shall put them upon the hands of the Nazarite, after his dedicated head hath been shaved; And the priest shall wave them for a wave-offering before Jehovah: this is holy for the priest, with the wave-breast and the heave-shoulder. And after that the Nazarite may drink wine. This is the law of the Nazarite who hath vowed, and of his offering to Jehovah on account of his Nazariteship; besides what he is able to give according to his vow. As he hath vowed, so must he do; above what the law of his Nazariteship enjoineth.

Again Jehovah spoke to Moses, saying, Speak to Aaron and to his sons, saying, In this manner shall ye bless the Israelites, saying to them; Jehovah bless thee, and keep thee: Jehovah make his countenance shine upon thee, and be gracious to thee; Jehovah lift up his countenance upon thee, and give thee peace. Thus they shall put my name upon the Israelites; and I will bless them.

CHAPTER VII.

B. C. 1491. The offerings of the chiefs of Israel, on the dedication of the altar.

Now on the day that Moses had fully set up the tabernacle, and had anointed it, and hallowed it, and all its utensils; the altar and all its utensils, and had anointed them, and hallowed them; The chiefs of Israel, heads of the house of their fathers, the chiefs of the tribes, who were over them that were numbered, offered. And they brought their offering before Jehovah, six covered wagons, and twelve oxen; a wagon for every two of the chiefs, and an ox for each of them; and they brought the wheat-offering which accompanied the three sacrifices mentioned verse 14.

24—26. Each of these verses contains a form of blessing the people; and the priests might use any or all of them, as they thought proper. There is an allusion to this, Psa. iv. 6, and lxvii. 1, 2. Some think the doctrine of the Trinity here intimated.

CHAP. VI. 4. Grape-stones] This is the version of the Greek of Venice, the Persic, and Arabic, which I believe to be the real sense. See note, Hebrew Bible.

7. Nazarite token] So נִזְר here signifies; and the token was his long hair.

15, 17. The Vulg. so renders; and from Levit. ii. 4—6, it is evident that the basket of unleavened bread constituted

4 them before the tabernacle. And Jehovah 5 spoke to Moses, saying, Take them, that they may be used in the service of the congregation-tabernacle; and thou shalt give 6 them to the Levites, to every man according to his service. And Moses took the wagons and the oxen, and gave them to the Le-7 vites. Two wagons and four oxen he gave to the sons of Gershon, according to their 8 service: And four wagons and eight oxen he gave unto the sons of Merari, according to their service, under the direction of Itha-9 mar, the son of Aaron the priest. But to the sons of Kohath he gave none; because to them belonged the service of the sanctuary, which they were to carry upon their shoulders.

10 And the chiefs offered for the dedicating of the altar, on the day that it was anointed, even the chiefs offered their oblation before 11 the altar. And Jehovah said to Moses, Let them offer their offering, each chief on his day, for the dedicating of the altar.

12 And he who offered his offering on the first day, was Nahshon the son of Ammi-13 nadab, "chief" of the tribe of Judah: And his offering was one silver platter, of the weight of a hundred and thirty shekels;
one silver sprinkling-basin, of seventy shekels, according to the shekel of the sanctuary, both of them full of fine flour mingled 14 with oil, for a wheaten-offering: One golden incense-pot, of ten shekels, full of incense:
15 One steer, one ram, one lamb of the first
16 year for a burnt-offering: One goat for a 17 sin-offering: And for a feast-sacrifice, two oxen, five rams, five he-goats, five lambs of the first year. This was the offering of Nahshon, the son of Amminadab.

18 On the second day, Nethaneel, the son of Zuar, chief "of the tribe" of Issachar, 19 offered: He offered for his offering one silver platter, of the weight of a hundred and thirty shekels, one silver sprinkling-basin, of seventy shekels, according to the shekel
of the sanctuary; both of them full of fine flour mingled with oil, for a wheaten-offer-
20 ing: One golden incense-pot, of ten shekels,
21 full of incense: One steer, one ram, one lamb of the first year, for a burnt-offering:
22 One goat, for a sin-offering: And for a 23 feast-sacrifice, two oxen, five rams, five he-goats, five lambs of the first year. This was the offering of Nethaneel, the son of Zuar.

CHAP. VII. 3. Wagons] Covered carts, such as were used by the army, are intended.

7. According to their service] Which was the carrying of the curtains, cover, and hanging of the convention-tent.
See chap. iv. 25. The Merarites, who had the care of the boards, bars, pillars, &c. needed a greater number of wagons to carry them. See chap. iv. 31.

12. On the first day] The offerings presented at their dedication were made according to the order of the tribes, as they encamped, beginning at the east, proceeding to the

On the third day, Eliab, the son of Helon, 24
"chief of the tribe" of Zebulun, offered: His 25 offering was one silver platter, of the weight of a hundred and thirty shekels; one silver sprinkling-basin, of seventy shekels, according to the shekel of the sanctuary; both of them full of fine flour mingled with oil, for a wheaten-offering: One golden incense- 26
pot, of ten shekels, full of incense: One 27
steer, one ram, one lamb of the first year,
for a burnt-offering: One goat for a sin- 28 offering: And for a feast-sacrifice, two oxen, 29 five rams, five he-goats, five lambs of the first year. This was the offering of Eliab, the son of Helon.

On the fourth day, Elizur, the son of 30 Shedeur, chief of the tribe of Reuben, offered: His offering was one silver platter of 31
the weight of a hundred and thirty shekels;
one silver sprinkling-basin, of seventy shekels, according to the shekel of the sanctuary; both of them full of fine flour mingled with oil, for a wheaten-offering: One 32 golden incense-pot, of ten shekels, full of incense: One steer, one ram, one lamb of 33
the first year, for a burnt-offering: One 34
goat for a sin-offering: And for a feast- 35
sacrifice, two oxen, five rams, five he-goats, five lambs of the first year. This was the offering of Elizur, the son of Shedeur.

On the fifth day, Shelumiel, the son of 36
Zurishaddai, chief of the tribe of Simeon, offered: His offering was one silver platter, 37
of the weight of a hundred and thirty shekels; one silver sprinkling-basin, of seventy shekels, according to the shekel of the sanctuary; both of them full of fine flour mingled with oil, for a wheaten-offering:
One golden incense-pot, of ten shekels, full 38 of incense: One steer, one ram, one lamb of 39
the first year, for a burnt-offering: One 40
goat for a sin-offering: And for a feast- 41
sacrifice, two oxen, five rams, five he-goats,
five lambs of the first year. This was the offering of Shelumiel, the son of Zurishaddai.

On the sixth day, Eliasaph, the son of 42
Deuel, chief of the tribe of Gad, offered:
His offering was one silver platter, of the 43
weight of a hundred and thirty shekels; one silver sprinkling-basin, of seventy shekels,
according to the shekel of the sanctuary;
both of them full of fine flour mingled with oil, for a wheaten-offering: One golden 44
incense-pot, of ten shekels, full of incense:

south, then to the west, and ending with the north division.
(a) Sept. Arab.

18. From this verse to the 83d, the text is much shortened in the Arabic version of Saadias, by the omission of all the verses which contain only a repetition of the things offered by the chiefs of the tribes, which are precisely the same.
I have given to the terms the sense which is now generally attributed, and have rendered uniformly. (a) Sept. Arab.

24. (v) Sept. and so verses following.

- 45 One steer, one ram, one lamb of the first
 46 year for a burnt-offering: One goat for a 47 sin-offering: And for a feast-sacrifice, two oxen, five rams, five he-goats, five lambs of the first year. This was the offering of Eliasaph, the son of Deuel.
- 48 On the seventh day, Elishama, the son of Ammihud, chief of the tribe of Ephraim, 49 offered: His offering was one silver platter, of the weight of a hundred and thirty shekels; one silver sprinkling-basin, of seventy shekels, according to the shekel of the sanctuary; both of them full of fine flour mingled with oil, for a wheaten-offer-
 50 ing: One golden incense-pot, of ten shekels,
 51 full of incense: One steer, one ram, one
 lamb of the first year, for a burnt-offering:
 52 One goat for a sin-offering: And for a feast-sacrifice, two oxen, five rams, five he-goats, five lambs of the first year. This was the offering of Elishama, the son of Ammihud.
- 54 On the eighth day, offered Gamaliel, the son of Pedahzur, chief of the tribe of Ma-55 nasseh: His offering was one silver platter, of the weight of a hundred and thirty shekels; one silver sprinkling-basin, of seventy shekels, according to the shekel of the sanc-56 tuary; both of them full of fine flour, mingled with oil, for a wheaten-offering: One golden incense-pot of ten shekels, full of 57 incense; One steer, one ram, one lamb of
 58 the first year, for a burnt-offering: One
 59 goat for a sin-offering: And for a feast-sacrifice, two oxen, five rams, five he-goats,
 five lambs of the first year. This was the offering of Gamaliel, the son of Pedahzur.
- 60 On the ninth day, Abidan, the son of Gideoni, chief of the tribe of Benjamin,
 61 offered: His offering was one silver platter,
 of the weight of a hundred and thirty shekels; one silver sprinkling-basin, of seven shekels, according to the shekel of the sanc-62 tuary; both of them full of fine flour; mingled with oil, for a wheaten-offering: One golden incense-pot of ten shekels, full of 63 incense: One steer, one ram, one lamb of
 64 the first year, for a burnt-offering: One
 65 goat for a sin-offering: And for a feast-sacrifice, two oxen, five rams, five he-goats,
 five lambs of the first year. This was the offering of Abidan, the son of Gideoni.
- 66 On the tenth day, Abiezer, the son of Ammishaddai, chief of the tribe of Dan,
 67 offered: His offering was one silver platter,
 of a hundred and thirty shekels; one silver
 sprinkling-basin, of seventy shekels, according to the shekel of the sanctuary; both of them full of fine flour mingled with oil, for 68 a wheaten-offering: One golden incense-
 69 pot, of ten shekels full of incense: One steer, one ram, one lamb of the first year,
- for a burnt-offering: One goat for a sin- 70
 offering: And for a feast-sacrifice, two 71
 oxen, five rams, five he-goats, five lambs of the first year. This was the offering of Abiezer, the son of Ammishaddai.
- On the eleventh day, Pagiel, the son of 72
 Ochran, chief of the tribe of Asher, offered:
 His offering was one silver platter, of the 73
 weight of a hundred shekels; one silver sprinkling-basin of seventy shekels, according to the shekel of the sanctuary; both of them full of fine flour mingled with oil, for a wheaten-offering: One golden incense- 74
 pot, of ten shekels, full of incense: One 75
 steer, one ram, one lamb of the first year,
 for a burnt-offering: One goat for a sin- 76
 offering: And for a feast-sacrifice, two 77
 oxen, five rams, five he-goats, five lambs of the first year. This was the offering of Pa-giel, the son of Ochran.
- On the twelfth day, Ahira, the son of 78
 Enan, chief of the tribe of Naphtali, offered:
 His offering was one silver platter, of the 79
 weight of a hundred and thirty shekels; one silver sprinkling-basin, of seventy shekels,
 according to the shekel of the sanctuary;
 both of them full of fine flour mingled with oil, for a wheaten-offering: One golden in- 80 cense-pot of ten shekels, full of incense:
 One steer, one ram, one lamb of the first 81
 year, for a burnt-offering: One goat for a 82
 sin-offering: And for a feast-sacrifice, two 83
 oxen, five rams, five he-goats, five lambs of the first year. This was the offering of Ahira, the son of Enan. These were the 84 dedication-offerings of the altar on the day when it was anointed by the chiefs of Israel:
 twelve silver platters, twelve silver sprinkling-basins, twelve golden incense-pots:
 Each silver platter weighing a hundred and 85 thirty shekels, each sprinkling-basin seventy.
 All the silver vessels weighed two thousand and four hundred shekels, according to the shekel of the sanctuary. The twelve golden 86 incense-pots, full of incense: each weighing ten shekels, according to the shekel of the sanctuary: the whole weight of the golden incense-pots was a hundred and twenty shekels. For the burnt-offerings the num- 87 ber of steers was twelve, of the rams twelve, of the lambs of the first year twelve, with their wheaten-offerings: and of the goats for sin-offerings twelve. And all the steers 88 for the feast-sacrifices were twenty and four steers, the rams sixty, the he-goats sixty, the lambs of the first year sixty. These were the dedication-offerings of the altar, after it was anointed.
- Now whenever Moses went into the con- 89
 gregation-tabernacle to speak with Jehovah, then he heard the voice of one speaking to him from off the mercy-seat which was upon the ark of testimony, from between the two cherubs; for there he spoke with him.

CHAPTER VIII.

B. C. 1491. How the lamps are to be lighted; the consecration of the Levites; of the age and time of their service.

- 1 AGAIN Jehovah spoke to Moses, saying,
- 2 Speak to Aaron, and say unto him, When thou lightest the lamps, let the seven lamps shine forward from the chandelier. And Aaron did so; on the front of the chandelier he placed the lamps, as Jehovah commanded
- 4 Moses. And this chandelier was made of solid gold; from its shaft to its flowers it was one solid piece: according to the pattern which Jehovah had shown Moses so was the chandelier made.
- 5 Also Jehovah spoke to Moses, saying,
- 6 Take the Levites from among the Israelites, and purify them. And thus shalt thou do to them to purify them: Sprinkle purification-water upon them, and let them shave all their flesh, and let them wash their
- 8 clothes and so make themselves clean. Then let them take a steer for a burnt-offering, with its wheaten-offering, fine flour mingled with oil; and another steer shall be taken
- 9 for a sin-offering. And thou shalt bring the Levites before the congregation-tabernacle; and thou shalt collect the whole
- 10 assembly of Israel together; And thou shalt bring the Levites before Jehovah; and the Israelites shall put their hands upon the
- 11 Levites: And Aaron shall offer the Levites before Jehovah, as an offering from the Israelites, that they may perform the service
- 12 of Jehovah. And the Levites shall lay their hands upon the heads of the steers: and thou shalt offer the one for a sin-offering, and the other for a burnt-offering, to Jehovah, to make an atonement for the
- 13 Levites; And thou shalt set the Levites before Aaron, and before his sons, and offer
- 14 them as an offering to Jehovah. Thus shalt thou separate the Levites from among the Israelites; and the Levites shall be mine.
- 15 And after thou hast thus purified them and

CHAP. VIII. 2—4. Compare Exod. xxv. 37; xl. 25.

7. Purification-water] The manner in which this was made is given chap. xix. 3—6.—Let them shave all their flesh] It is singular that this custom obtained among the Egyptian priests.

8. For a burnt-offering] Houbigant, Le Clerc, and others, properly observe, that לעיל has been dropped out of the text after בקר, and which answers to לרמאות which follows. So they are opposed to each other in ver. 12, and this is the constant order of such like commands.

9. Whole assembly] In this and all such places, by the whole assembly, עמך, we are generally to understand the delegates or representatives of the people; their patriarchal chiefs.

10. Put their hands upon the Levites] For the purpose of presenting them to God, and the service of the tabernacle.

13. Offer them as] Literally, wave them as a wave-offering to Jehovah. As this could not be done by taking offered them as an offering, the Levites shall go in to do the service of the congregation-tabernacle. For they are wholly 16 given unto me from among the Israelites; instead of the first-born males of all the Israelites, I have taken them to myself. For all the male first-born of the Israelites 17 are mine, whether man or beast: on the day that I smote every male first born in the land of Egypt I hallowed them to myself. So I take the Levites for all the male first- 18 born of the Israelites. And I give the Le- 19 vites as a gift to Aaron and to his sons, from among the Israelites, to do the service of the Israelites in the congregation-tabernacle, and to make an atonement for the Israelites; that there may be no plague among the Israelites, when the Israelites approach the sanctuary. And Moses, and 20 Aaron, and all the congregation of Israel, did to the Levites according to all which Jehovah commanded Moses concerning the Levites; so did the Israelites to them. For 21 the Levites were purified, and they washed their clothes; and Aaron offered them as an offering to Jehovah; and Aaron made an atonement for them to purify them. And 22 after that went the Levites in to do their service in the congregation-tabernacle before Aaron, and before his sons: as Jehovah had commanded Moses concerning the Levites, so did they to them.

Jehovah also spoke to Moses, saying, 23 This is what respects the Levites: From 24 twenty-five years old and upward, they shall go in to attend on the service of the congregation-tabernacle: And from the age of 25 fifty years they shall cease to attend on the service, and shall serve no more: But with 26 their brethren they shall share in keeping the charge of the congregation-tabernacle, but shall do no service. Thus shalt thou do unto the Levites touching their charge.

CHAPTER IX.

B. C. 1401. The passover enjoined again; a second allowed for certain persons.

AGAIN Jehovah spoke to Moses in the 1

each in the hand, as was done in respect to the wave-shoulder, it is probable it was done by some analogous action. Paul has been supposed to allude to this, Rom. xii. 1.

18. So I take] As Jehovah refers to what was now to be done, I have rendered, after many moderns, in the present tense.

21. To purify them] After all their ablutions, atoning-blood was necessary to render them fit for their sacred service.

24. Twenty-five] See note, chap. iv. 3.

26. And shall serve no more] They shall perform no laborious service, but shall still abide at the tabernacle, and serve in more easy things.

CHAP. IX. 1. In the first month] This is an historical regression to a prior period: a thing not uncommon in the writer of the Pentateuch. What is here related must have happened before the muster mentioned in chapter i.

wilderness of Sinai, in the first month of the second year, after they were come out of the land of Egypt, saying, Let the Israelites also keep the passover at its appointed time. The fourteenth day of this month on its appointed time, ye shall keep it in the evening; according to all its rites, and according to all its ceremonies, shall ye keep it. And Moses spoke to the Israelites, that they should keep the passover. And they kept the passover on the fourteenth day of the first month in the evening, in the wilderness of Sinai; according to all that Jehovah had commanded Moses, so did the Israelites.

Now there were certain men, who were defiled by a human dead body, and they could not on that day keep the passover. And on that day these men presented themselves to Moses and to Aaron, and said to them, We are defiled by a human dead body, but why should we be restrained from offering an oblation to Jehovah at the appointed time, among the Israelites? And Moses said to them, Wait, until I hear what Jehovah will command concerning you.

And Jehovah spoke to Moses, saying, Speak to the Israelites, saying, If any man of you, or of your posterity, be defiled by the dead, or be on a journey afar off, yet shall they keep the passover to Jehovah. The fourteenth day of the second month in the evening, they shall keep it. With unleavened bread and bitter herbs they shall eat it: They shall leave none of it until the morning, and a bone of it they shall not break: according to all the ordinances of the passover they shall keep it. If a man who is clean, and is not on a journey, fail to keep the passover, even that person shall be cut off from among his people; because he brought not the offering of Jehovah at the appointed time, that man shall bear his sin. And if a stranger sojourn among you and will keep the passover of Jehovah; according to the ordinance of the passover, and according to its rites he must do: one ordinance ye shall have, both for the stranger, and for the native of the land.

CHAPTER X.

B. C. 1491. The order of marching, and the use of the silver trumpets.

AND on the day on which the tabernacle was erected the cloud covered the tabernacle, the tent of the testimony; and at even there was upon the tabernacle, as it were, the appearance of fire, until the morning.

6-8. Defiled by a dead] They had assisted at the funeral obsequies, and according to the precept chap. v. 2. were excluded the camp. 16. (a) Sept. Syr. Vulg.

CHAP. X. 3. Whole assembly] That is, the chiefs and representatives of the people. See note, chap. i. 16, &c.

So it was always; the cloud covered it "by day," and by night had the appearance of fire. And when the cloud was taken up from the tabernacle, then immediately the Israelites marched; and in the place where the cloud abode, there the Israelites encamped. At the command of Jehovah the Israelites marched, and at the command of Jehovah they encamped. As long as the cloud abode upon the tabernacle they remained encamped. If the cloud rested for a length of many days over the tabernacle, then the Israelites kept the charge of Jehovah, and marched not: And so it was, if the cloud was but a few days upon the tabernacle; according to the command of Jehovah they remained encamped, and according to the command of Jehovah they marched. And so it was, if the cloud abode but from evening until the morning, and the cloud was taken up in the morning, then they marched; whether it were by day or by night that the cloud was taken up, they marched: But when the cloud rested and remained over the tabernacle, were it for two days, or for a month, or a year, the Israelites remained encamped and marched not; but when it was taken up, they marched. At the command of Jehovah they encamped; and at the command of Jehovah they marched: they kept the charge of Jehovah, according to the command of Jehovah by Moses.

AGAIN Jehovah spoke to Moses, saying, Cause to be made two trumpets; of one solid piece of silver thou shalt cause them to be made; which shall be used for the calling of the assembly, and for the marching of the camps. And when they shall blow with both of them, the whole assembly shall assemble to thee at the door of the congregation-tabernacle. And if they blow but with one, then the chiefs, who are heads of the thousands of Israel, shall assemble themselves to thee. When ye blow an alarm, then the camps which lie on the east side shall march. When ye blow a second alarm, then the camps which lie on the south side shall march. "When ye blow the third alarm, the camps which lie on the west side shall march: and when ye blow a fourth alarm, the camps which lie on the north side shall march." They shall blow an alarm for their marchings; But when the congregation is to be assembled, ye shall blow, but ye shall not sound an alarm. And the sons of Aaron, the priests, shall blow with the trumpets; and they shall be to you

4. Chiefs] The twelve patriarchal chiefs are meant, mentioned as the heads of each tribe.

5. An alarm] This is thought to denote, broken, sharp tones, terminating in a lengthened sound by both trumpets.

6. The addition of the Sept. is so evidently proper, that for a perpetual ordinance throughout your 9 generations. And if ye go to war in your land against the enemy that oppresseth you, then ye shall blow an alarm with the trumpets; and ye shall be remembered before Jehovah your God, and ye shall be 10 saved from your enemies. Also on the day of your rejoicing, your solemn feast-days, and at the beginnings of your months, ye shall blow with the trumpets when ye offer your burnt-offerings, and your feast-sacrifices; and they shall be to you for a memorial before your God: I am Jehovah your God.

*Jehovah then spoke to Moses, saying,
 By this mountain ye have dwelt a long time. Turn and march on to the mount of the Amorites, and to all the adjacent places, whether in the plain, or hill, or dale; to the south and to the northern sea: to the land of the Canaanites and of Lebanon, to the great river Euphrates. Behold! I place before you the land; go in and possess the land, which to your fathers, Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, I swore that I would give to their seed after them."

- 11 Now on the twentieth day of the second month, in the second year, the cloud was taken up from off the testimony-tabernacle; 12 And the Israelites marched out of the wilderness of Sinai; and the cloud rested in 13 the wilderness of Paran. Thus, for the first time, they marched according to the command of Jehovah by Moses.
 14 In the first place went the standard of the camp of Judah according to their hosts:
 and over his host was Nahshon the son of 15 Amminadab. And over the host of the tribe of Issachar, was Nathaneel the son of 16 Zuar. And over the host of the tribe of 17 Zebulun, was Eliab the son of Helon. And the tabernacle was taken down; and the sons of Gershon and the sons of Merari marched, bearing the tabernacle.
 18 And the standard of the camp of Reuben went according to their hosts: and over his host was Elizur the son of Shedeur.
 19 And over the host of the tribe of Simeon, was Shelumiel the son of Zurishaddai. And 20 over the host of the tribe of Gad, was Eliasaph the son of Deuel. Then marched 21 the Kohathites, bearing the parts of the sanctuary; and the other Levites when they encamped, set up the tabernacle against they came.

Next went the standard of the camp of 22
 Ephraim, according to their hosts: and over his host was Elishama the son of Ammihud.
 And over the host of the tribe of Manasseh, 23 was Gamaliel the son of Pedahzur. And 24 over the host of the tribe of Benjamin, was Abidan the son of Gideon.

And in the rear of all the camps, went 25 the standard of the camp of Dan according to their hosts; and over his host, was Ahiezer the son of Ammishaddai. And 26 over the host of the tribe of Asher, was Pagiel the son of Ocran. And over the 27 host of the tribe of Naphtali, was Ahira the son of Enan. In this order proceeded the 28 Israelites, according to their hosts, when they marched.

Moses now said to Hobab, the son of 29
 Reuel the Midianite, Moses' brother-in-law,
 We are marching to the place of which Jehovah said, I will give it you: come thou with us, and we will do good to thee: for Jehovah hath promised good things to Israel. But he said to him, I will not go; 30 but I will depart to mine own land, and to my own kindred. Then said Moses, Leave 31 us not, I pray thee; thou knowest how we should encamp in the wilderness, and thou mayest be to us instead of eyes. And it 32 shall be, if thou go with us, yea, it shall be, that what good things Jehovah shall give to us, the same will we give to thee.

And they departed from the mount of 33
 Jehovah a three days' journey; and the ark of the covenant of Jehovah went before them on the three days' journey, to search out a resting place for them. And the cloud of 34 Jehovah was upon them by day, when they went out of the camp. And whenever the 35 ark set forward, Moses said, Arise, O Jehovah, and let thine enemies be scattered;

I have admitted it as genuine, though supported by no other except the Coptic. See note, Hebrew Bible. (a) Sept.

10. Geddes adopts the Sam. as genuine; and Houbigant admits that it may be so, though he does not insert it in his version. The passage connects with the context here as well as in Deuteronomy. (a) Sam.

18. Camp of Reuben] As "2 in this narrative precedes the name of the chief of each tribe, it ought to be admitted here. Hence it should be retained in the 22d verse though some of the versions want it. See Heb.

20. Brother-in-law] He is supposed to be the same with Jethro: for what reason I see not. Jethro had, long before this, gone to his own country, Exod. xviii. 27, nor is it said that he ever returned. I suspect Hobab rather to have been Jethro's son, and grandson to Reuel; who had hitherto remained with his sister and his brother-in-law; and who is now prevailed upon to accompany the Israelites unto the land of Canaan.

31. Instead of eyes] Geddes and others avail themselves of this passage to discredit the account of the cloud conducting the camp of Israel. Harmer has answered this objection. Should any affirm the attendance of men like Hobab was of no use to Israel, in their removing from station to station, he would doubtless take more upon himself than he ought to do: for it is possible, the guidance of the cloud might not be so minute as absolutely to render their offices of no value.

Nor was their assistance wanted in respect to water only, when any party of them was sent out upon some expedition;
 but the whole congregation must have had frequent need of them for directions where to find fuel. Fuel was wanted to warm them during some part of the year, at all times to bake and boil the manna, according to Exod. xvi. 23, and was never obtained but in a natural way, that we know of:
 for this then they wanted the assistance of such Arabs as were perfectly acquainted with that desert.

and let those who hate thee fall before thee.
36 And when it rested, he said, Give repose, O Jehovah, to the many thousands of Israel.

CHAPTER XI.

B. C. 1491. The murmurings of the people.

- 1 BUT the people complained, and displeased Jehovah: for he heard and his anger was kindled; and the fire of Jehovah burnt among them, and consumed a part of
- 2 the camp. And the people cried to Moses; and when Moses prayed to Jehovah, the 3 fire was quenched. And he called the name of the place, Taberah [THE BURNING]:
because the fire of Jehovah had burnt among them.
- 4 Yet soon after, the mixed multitude of strangers, who were among them, most vehemently longed for flesh: and the Israelites also wept again, and said, O that we
- 5 had flesh to eat! We remember the fish, which we freely ate in Egypt; the cucumbers, and the melons, and the leeks, and the
- 6 onions, and the garlic; But now we are pining away: not having any thing, but
- 7 this manna, before our eyes. Now the manna was in size like coriander seed, and
- 8 its colour like the colour of a pearl. The people went about, and gathered it, and ground it in mills, or beat it in a mortar,
- 9 and they baked it in pans, or made hearth-cakes of it; and the taste of it was like the taste of fresh oil. And when the dew fell
- 10 upon the camp in the night, the manna fell with it.
- 11 When Moses heard that the people were weeping, throughout their families, each at the door of his own tent; and that the anger of Jehovah was greatly inflamed;
- 12 Moses also was displeased. And Moses said to Jehovah, Why hast thou afflicted thy servant? and why have I not found favour in thy sight, that thou hast laid the
- 12 burden of all this people upon me? Have I conceived all this people? have I begotten them, that thou shouldst say unto me,

36. Give repose] The word שוכה has, after Jerom, been generally rendered return to; the preposition אל, to, being understood before רבבות. But it is justly remarked by Houbigant, that this is an awkward version. I consider שוכה here as an active verb, in its third signification, corresponding with the Latin quiesco, in its active signification, and render give repose to, fac-quiescere. See Ainsworth.

CHAP. XI. 1. In our common version these words are rendered, 'and consumed them that were in the outermost parts of the camp:' on which Secker has the following just remark: 'Sept. consumed part of a camp; rightly, for אכל is elsewhere followed by a ב; and צרה doth not always signify an extremity, but any part, or every part.—Fire of Jehovah, may denote either lightning, or the burning wind called Samiel.'

4. O that we had flesh to eat] How could they want flesh to eat, when they are said in Exod. xii. 38, to have had 'flocks and herds in great abundance?' I am inclined to think, that the word בשר, here rendered flesh, denotes Carry them in thy bosom, as a nursing father carrieth the sucking child, unto the land which thou sworeest unto their fathers? Whence should I have flesh to give to all 13 this people? for they weep about me, saying, Give us flesh, that we may eat. I am not 14 able to bear the burden of all this people alone; it is truly too heavy for me. And 15 if thou wilt deal thus with me, kill me, I pray thee, at once, if I have found favour in thy sight, that I may not see my own misery.

Jehovah then said to Moses, Gather to 16 me seventy men of the elders of Israel, whom thou knowest, that they may be elders and scribes of the people, and bring them unto the congregation-tabernacle, that they may stand there with thee. And I will come 17 down and talk with thee there; and I will take of the same spirit which is upon thee, and will put it upon them; and they shall bear the burden of the people with thee, that thou mayest not bear it alone. And 18 say thou to the people, Prepare yourselves against to-morrow, that ye may eat flesh; for ye have wept in the hearing of Jehovah, saying, O that we had flesh to eat! for it was well with us in Egypt; therefore Jehovah will give you flesh, that ye may eat. Not one day, nor two days, nor five days, 19 nor ten days, nor twenty days; But even a 20 whole month shall ye eat, until the stomach reject it, so loathsome shall it become to you; because ye have despised Jehovah who is among you, and have wept before him, saying, Why came we out of Egypt? 21 And Moses said, The people, among whom I am, are six hundred thousand men; and thou hast said, I will give them flesh, that they may eat a whole month. Should the 22 flocks and the herds be slain for them, would they suffice them? or should all the fish of the sea be gathered together for them, would they suffice them? And Jehovah 23 said to Moses, Is the hand of Jehovah shortened? Thou shalt now see whether my word to thee shall come to pass or not.

only the flesh of fish, as it certainly does in Levit. xi. 11. And indeed the next verse seems to support this explication: 'We remember how freely we ate fish.' It was then, particularly, the flesh of fish, for which they longed.

5. Cucumbers, melons] These are of very different qualities in the east from those which grow in our northern climate. They are now, and ever have been, esteemed great delicacies.

7—9. See notes on Exodus xvi.

10. Moses also was displeased] With the murmurings of the people.

11. The burden of this people] Moses had entreated God to send some other to lead the Israelites, Exod. iii. 11; and to this he seems to allude here.

15. My misery] He who sees good, enjoys it; and to see evil or misery, is to suffer it. Hence the meaning is, 'that I may not suffer such evils from a rebellious people.' Death would be his gain; but to abide was needful to the people.

24 And Moses went out and told the people the words of Jehovah. He then assembled seventy men of the elders of the people, and set them around the tabernacle. And Jehovah came down in the cloud, and spoke to him, and took of the same spirit that was upon him, and gave it to the seventy elders; and as soon as the spirit rested upon them, 26 they prophesied. Yet two of the men were not assembled, but remained in the camp; the name of the one was Eldad, and the name of the other Medad; and the spirit rested upon them, (for although they were enrolled, yet had they not gone to the tabernacle,) and they prophesied in the 27 camp. And a young man ran and told Moses, and said, Eldad and Medad prophesy in the camp. And Joshua the son of Nun, the attendant of Moses, one of his young men, answered and said, My lord 29 Moses, forbid them. And Moses said to him, Art thou jealous for my sake? O that all the people of Jehovah were prophets, and that Jehovah would put his spirit upon 30 them! And Moses departed into the camp, he and the elders of Israel.

31 And Jehovah sent forth a wind, and brought quails from the sea, and dispersed them around the camp to the distance of a day's journey on this side, and of a day's journey on the other side, round about the camp; and at about two cubits above the 32 face of the earth. And the people continued all that day, and all that night, and all the next day, and gathered the quails: he that gathered least gathered ten homers; and they spread them all abroad to dry around 33 the camp. And while the flesh was yet between their teeth, ere it was chewed, the wrath of Jehovah was kindled against the people, and he smote the people with a 34 very great mortality. Hence the name of the place was called Kibroth-hattaavah [THE GRAVES OF LONGING]; because there they buried the people who longed for flesh.

CHAPTER XII.

B. C. 1491. Miriam and Aaron murmur against Moser.

AND the people journeyed from Kibroth-hattaavah unto Hazeroth. And while they 1 were at Hazeroth, Miriam and Aaron spoke against Moses, because of the Cushite woman whom he had married (for he had married a Cushite woman). And they said, Hath 2 Jehovah indeed spoken by Moses only? Hath he not spoken also by us? And Jehovah heard it. [Now the man Moses was 3 very meek, above all the men who were upon the face of the earth.] And Jehovah 4 instantly spoke to Moses, and to Aaron, and to Miriam, Come ye three unto the congregation-tabernacle. And they three 5 went. And Jehovah came down in the pillar of cloud, and stood at the door of the tabernacle, and called Aaron and Miriam; and they both came. And he said, Hear 6 now my words; If either of you prophesy, I Jehovah am wont to make myself known to you in a vision, and speak to you in a dream. Not so with my servant Moses, 7 who is faithful in all mine house. With 8 him I am wont to speak mouth to mouth; even apparently, and not in dark speeches, so that he may clearly perceive the will of Jehovah. Why then were ye not afraid to 9 speak against my servant Moses? And the anger of Jehovah was kindled against them; and he departed. And the cloud removed 10 from above the tabernacle; and, behold, Miriam became leprous, white as snow; and Aaron looked upon Miriam, and, behold, she was leprous. And Aaron said to Moses, 11 Alas, my lord, I beseech thee, lay not upon us the sin which we have so foolishly com-

24—30. The elders here chosen seem to have been appointed to assist Moses in the government of the people; and as we read nothing more of the council, it most probably died away. After the captivity the Jews formed a supreme court at Jerusalem, of the same number of persons, which they called the Sanhedrim. Elders and scribes are probably the same as mentioned Exod. xxiv. 1. The Mosaic scribes were a sort of judges, like the present Cadis of the Mahometans.

25, 26. Were not assembled] These words are commonly rendered, 'and did not cease,' [to prophesy,] as in our public version, or 'and did not add,' as they are rendered by Ainsworth and Purver; neither of which renderings is to me intelligible. By adopting the Sam. reading, with Houbigant, Dathé, and Rosenmüller, and placing יאספו at the head of ver. 26, the text will be rectified, and the sense clear.—They prophesied] This does not mean to foretell future events, but most probably to speak on divine subjects with peculiar pathos and eloquence, having been endowed with a measure of the same spirit or mind which Moses possessed. Compare 1 Sam. x. 5; xix. 23.

31. And at about two cubits] Jerom renders, volabantque in aere, duobus cubitis altitudine super terram. 'They flew so nigh the ground, that they were easily caught:

which is still the case when quails, after a long aerial voyage, are exhausted with fatigue.' Josephus understood the text in like manner.

33. It is probable that the mortality was occasioned by their immoderate use of food, to which they had not been accustomed. In this manner they were punished for their murmuring.

CHAP. XII. 1. Cushite woman] Jealousy of the power and influence of Moses was the true cause of Aaron and Miriam's opposition; though some difference with his wife might occasion the present quarrel.

3. With Eichhorn I think this verse evidently a gloss inserted early into the text, as the connexion without it is complete; and as the form of expression, the man Moses, never occurs elsewhere.

6. If either of you prophesy] Literally, 'if either of you be a prophet.'

7, 8. These verses are in sense opposite to the preceding; so that it is intimated how much superior Moses was to Aaron and Miriam. God sometimes spoke to them in a vision or dream, but to Moses audibly, as if face to face; to them in dark speeches, to Moses he made known his will clearly. As Rosenmüller observes, למנוחה does not mean the divine essence, but will, which God manifested in the fullest manner.

mitted, and by which we have offended.
 12 Let her not be as a dead abortive, whose flesh, when he cometh from the womb of 13 his mother, is half consumed. And Moses cried to Jehovah, saying, Heal her now, O 14 God, I beseech thee. But Jehovah said to Moses, If her father had but spit in her presence, should she not be ashamed seven days? Let her be shut out from the camp seven days, and after that she shall recover.
 15 And Miriam was shut out from the camp seven days; and the people marched not 16 until Miriam was recovered. And afterward the people removed from Hazeroth, and encamped in the wilderness of Paran.

CHAPTER XIII.

B. C. 1491. Spies sent to explore the land of Canaan, and their report.

*AND Moses said to the Israelites, Ye are now come to the mount of the Amorites, which Jehovah our God hath given to us. Lo! Jehovah hath placed the land before you; go up and possess it as Jehovah, the God of your fathers, hath spoken to you; fear not, nor be dismayed. Then they drew near to Moses and said, Let us send men before us, that they may bring us word by what way we may go up, and into what cities we may come. And this thing was 1 pleasing to Moses." And Jehovah also 2 spoke to him, saying, Send men, that they may search the land of Canaan, which I give to the Israelites; from every tribe of their fathers, 'shalt thou send a man," 3 every one a ruler among them. And Moses, by the commandment of Jehovah, sent them from the wilderness of Paran;
 all those men were chiefs of the Israelites.
 4 And these were their names: Of the tribe of Reuben, Shammua the son of Zaccur; 5 Of the tribe of Simeon, Shaphat the son of 6 Hori; Of the tribe of Judah, Caleb the son
 7 of Jephunneh; Of the tribe of Issachar, 8 Igal the son of Joseph; Of the tribe of Ephraim, Oshea the son of Nun; Of the 9 tribe of Benjamin, Palti the son of Raphu;

 Of the tribe of Zebulun, Gaddiel the son 10 of Sodi; Of the tribe of Joseph, namely, of 11 the tribe of Manasseh, Gaddi the son of Susi; Of the tribe of Dan, Ammiel the son 12 of Gemalli; Of the tribe of Asher, Sethur 13 the son of Michael; Of the tribe of Naph- 14
 tali, Nahbi the son of Vophsi; Of the tribe 15 of Gad, Geuel the son of Machi. These 16 are the names of the men whom Moses sent to spy out the land. Moses now called Oshea, the son of Nun, Joshua.

And Moses sent them to spy the land of 17
 Canaan, and said to them, Go up southward, and go up to the mountain: And see 18 what the land is, and the people that dwell in it, whether they be strong or weak, few or many; And whether the land in which 19 they dwell be good or bad; and whether they dwell in open or in fenced cities; And 20 whether the soil be fat or lean; whether there be wood, or not. And be ye of good courage, and bring of the fruit of the land.
 Now the time was the time of the first ripe grapes.

So they went up, and searched the land 21 from the wilderness of Zin, unto Rehob, in the way to Hamath. And they ascended 22 by the south, and came back unto Hebron, (which Hebron was built seven years before Zoan in Egypt,) and they found there the families of Ahiman, Sheshai, and Talmi, of the race of Anak. And they came to the 23 vale of Eshcol, and cut down and brought thence a branch with one cluster of grapes, and they bore it between two upon a staff;
 they brought also of the pomegranates, and of the figs. The place was called the vale 24 Eshcol [CLUSTER-VALE], because of the cluster of grapes which the Israelites cut down there.

And after forty days they returned from 25 searching the land. And they came back 26 to Moses, and to Aaron, and to all the con-

14. Spit in her presence] The manners of the oriental nations explain this comma. They seldom or never spit as a natural discharge; but when they do spit on the ground in the presence of another person, it marks extreme detestation. Hence it is plain, that a father spitting before, or in the presence of his daughter, was thought so to dishonour her, that she secluded herself for seven days.—She shall recover] I cannot see that the verb נָסַח ever signifies 'to return': whereas it certainly signifies, to recover from an illness; and particularly from a leprosy. See 2 Kings v. 3, 6, 7. The radical meaning of the word is, to gather: and in the metaphorical sense, to recover.

CHAP. XIII. 1. The words supplied from the Sam. are said, in Deut. i. 20, to have been actually spoken by Moses to the Israelites on this occasion: and their omission in the Hebrew text is a manifest deficiency. The omission, however, must have been an early one, as it occurs in the versions.

16. Joshua] 'He will save,' is its meaning. His former name Hoshea, expressed what had been done, 'He hath saved'; and this the confidence of Moses respecting what was yet to come. Some think this name was given to him by the spirit of prophecy.

19. In open or fenced cities] The Sam. reading is adopted as most consistent with the context. Because the question is not here of camps or tents; but of what sort were the towns; whether weak or strong, open or walled.

20. For the time] This was usually in the beginning or middle of September.

21. The wilderness of Zin] This was a part of that of Paran. Compare chap. xxxiii. 36.—Rehob] This city was not far from Sidon, and in the division of the land, it fell to the tribe of Asher, Josh. xix. 28. The spies seem to have gone along near the Jordan, and to have returned through the midst of the land, by the borders of the Sidonians and Philistines to Hebron, once honoured by the residence of Abraham, and now famous as the abode of the children of Anak. Who was this Anak? We have no account of such a man, which leads Michaelis to render appellatively. The word נָנַח signifies, 'to go into a hole or cave'; and the Anakites were such as lived in caves, Troglodites. 29. (a) Sam. Sept.

gregation of Israel, to the wilderness of Paran, near to Kadesh; and brought word unto them, and unto all the congregation, and showed them the fruit of the land. And they told Moses, and said, We came to the land whither thou sentest us, and surely it floweth with milk and honey; and this is the fruit of it. But strong are the people who dwell in the land, and the cities are walled, and very great: and moreover we saw there the race of Anak. The Amalekites dwell in the land to the south; and the Hethites, "and the Hivites," and the Jebusites, and the Amorites, dwell in the mountains; and the Canaanites dwell by the sea, and by the coast of the Jordan. On hearing this the people murmured, but Caleb tried to still the people before Moses, and said, Let us go up at once, and possess it; for we are well able to overcome it. But the men that went up with him said, We are not able to go up against the people; for they are stronger than we. Moreover they spread abroad an evil report of the land which they had searched among the Israelites, saying, The land through which we have gone to search it, is a land that eateth up its inhabitants; and all the people that we saw in it, are men of a great stature. And there we saw the giants, sprung from the gigantic race of Anak: and we were in our own sight as grasshoppers, and so were we in their sight. Hence the Israelites murmured in their tents and said, Because Jehovah hateth us, he hath brought us out of the land of Egypt, to deliver us up into the hands of the Amorites, to destroy us. How should we go up, when our brethren discourage us, saying, The people are greater and more powerful than we; the cities are great and walled up to the heavens; and moreover we saw there, men of the race of Anak? But Moses said to the Israelites, Jehovah your God, who leadeth you, will himself fight for you, according to all that he did for you in Egypt, before your own eyes; and in this wilderness, where you have seen how Jehovah your God hath carried you, as a man carrieth his son, through all the way ye have gone, until ye came to this place. And in this matter, are ye distrustful of Jehovah, your God, who goeth before you in the way, in a fire by night, and in a cloud by day, to search out a place for your encampments; and to show you by what way ye should go?"

CHAPTER XIV.

B. C. 1491. Murmuring of the people; Caleb and Joshua's attempt to pacify them.

THE whole congregation now raised their voice, and cried aloud; and the people wept that night. And all the Israelites murmured against Moses and against Aaron; and the whole congregation said to them, O that we had died in the land of Egypt! or O that we might die in this wilderness! And why should Jehovah bring us into that land, to fall by the sword; that our wives and our children should become a prey? Were it not better for us to return into Egypt? And they said one to another, Let us appoint a leader, and let us return into Egypt. Then Moses and Aaron fell on their faces before all the assembly of the congregation of Israel.

And Joshua the son of Nun, and Caleb the son of Jephunneh, two of those who had searched the land, rent their clothes: And they spoke to all the congregation of Israel, saying, The land which we passed through, to search it, is an exceedingly good land. If Jehovah delight in us, he will bring us into this land, and give it to us; a land which floweth with milk and honey. Only rebel not against Jehovah, nor be ye afraid of the people of the land; for they shall be bread for us; their defence is departed from them, but Jehovah is with us: fear them not. But all the congregation proposed to stone them with stones; when the glory of Jehovah appeared "in the cloud over" the congregation-tabernacle before all the Israelites.

And Jehovah said to Moses, How long will this people provoke me? and how long will they not believe me, on account of the signs which I have showed among them? I will smite them with the pestilence, and disinherit them, and will make of thee "and thy father's house" a nation greater and mightier than they.

And Moses said to Jehovah, Then the Egyptians will hear it from amongst whom thou broughtest up this people in thy might; And all the inhabitants of this land will say: —(for they have heard that thou Jehovah art among this people, that thou art seen face to face, and that thy cloud standeth

32, 33. Men of great stature] Doubtless fear magnified the stature of the inhabitants of Canaan; and though they might be taller than the Israelites, the disparity would not be such as their language implies. The addition of the Sam. is natural and is supported by Deut. i. 27—33.

CHAP. XIV. 1—3. Cried aloud] Nothing can show more clearly the base spirit of this race than their conduct. They consider their present state as insupportable; and forgetting the miseries of Egypt, they resolve to return thither, and again become slaves.

4. Appoint a leader] From Nehem. ix. 17, it appears, that they actually went so far as to choose one to conduct them back to Egypt. Thus they rebelled against Moses and against God, whose servant he was.

10. The appearance of the cloud prevented the people from accomplishing their proposal. (a) Sept. Syr.

over them, and that thou goest before them, by day in a pillar of cloud, and by night in 15 a pillar of fire :) Now if thou kill all this people as one man, then the nations who heard the fame of thee will speak, saying, 16 Because Jehovah was not able to bring this people into the land which he had sworn to give them, he therefore hath slain them in the 17 wilderness. And now, I beseech thee, let the power of "Jehovah be great," according 18 as thou hast spoken of thyself, saying, Jehovah is long suffering, and abounding in mercy "in truth," forgiving iniquity, transgression, and sin," not altogether destroying; visiting the father's iniquity upon the children to the third or fourth generation 19 only. Pardon, I beseech thee, the iniquity of this people according to the greatness of thy mercy, and as thou hast forgiven this 20 people, from Egypt even until now. And Jehovah said, I have pardoned according 21 to thy word; But as sure as I live, and as the whole earth shall be filled with the 22 glory of Jehovah. Verily all these men who have seen my glory, and my miracles, which I have done in Egypt, and in the wilderness, and have tempted me now these ten times, and have not hearkened to my voice; 23 They shall not see the land which I swore to their fathers that I would give them; not any of those who have despised me shall 24 see it. But my servant Caleb, because he had another spirit in him, and hath followed me fully, him will I bring into the land into which he went; and his seed shall possess 25 it. As then the Amalekites, and the Canaanites occupy the valley, to-morrow turn and march into the wilderness, by the way of the Red Sea.

6 Jehovah also spoke to Moses and to 7 Aaron, saying, How long shall I bear with this evil congregation, who murmur against me? The murmurings of the Israelites, which they murmur against me, I have 8 heard. Say to them, As I live, saith Jehovah, as ye have spoken in mine hearing, so 9 will I do to you. In this wilderness your carcases shall lie; and all that were numbered of you, your whole number, from twenty years old and upward, who have 10 murmured against me, Shall not come into the land, in which I swore that ye should dwell; except Caleb the son of Jephunneh, and Joshua the son of Nun. But your little 31 ones who, ye said, should be a prey, them will I bring in, and they shall "inherit" the land which ye have despised. But as for 32 you, your carcases shall lie in this wilderness. And your children shall wander in the wilderness forty years; and shall suffer for your rebellions, until your carcases be wasted in the wilderness. After the number of the 34 days in which ye searched the land, forty days, each day for a year, shall ye bear your iniquities forty years, and ye shall know my indignation. I Jehovah have spoken, and 35 I will surely do this, to all this evil congregation, who have assembled against me: in this wilderness they shall be consumed, and therein they shall die.

Now the men, whom Moses had sent to 35 search the land; and who had returned, and made all the congregation to murmur against him, by bringing an evil report of the land; Even those men who had brought 37 an evil report of the land, died by the plague, before Jehovah. But Joshua the son of 38 Nun, and Caleb the son of Jephunneh, two of the men who went to search the land, still lived. And Moses told these things to 39 the Israelites; and the people mourned greatly.

And they rose up early in the morning, 40 and would go up to the top of the mountain, saying, Lo, we are here, and will go up to the place which Jehovah hath promised: for we have sinned. "But Jehovah said to Moses, Go not up, nor fight with them, for I am not among you, lest ye be smitten by your enemies." And Moses said, Why now 41 do ye transgress the command of Jehovah? This attempt shall not prosper. Go not 42 up, for Jehovah is not among you; lest ye be smitten before your enemies. For the 43 Amalekites and the Canaanites are there before you, and ye shall fall by the sword; because ye have revolted from Jehovah, therefore Jehovah will not be with you. But 44 they presumed to go up to the top of the mountain: yet the ark of the covenant of Jehovah, and Moses, departed not out of the camp. Then the Amalekites, and the 45 Canaanites who had occupied that mountain, came down to meet them, and smote

15. As one man] That is, altogether, wholly. Compare alg. xvi. 16.

21. Vatable and others consider the latter clause of this verse to be a part of the oath; but it may be regarded as containing a prediction, that the perfections of God, called his glory, should assuredly be manifested throughout the earth.

25. As this verse stands, and as it is generally rendered, it seems to have no connexion with what precedes or follows. I have followed Geddes in rendering the as then; and the 43d verse supports this version. 31. (o) Sept.

33. Rebellions] The original word often signifies revolting from Jehovah and worshipping idols; but it signifies also, 'rebellion,' which is defection from him as king of Israel.

34. My indignation] So our old versions render. Geddes, 'Ye shall experience my aversion.' Nothing can be more improper than the common version, 'breach of promise.'—Forty years] These must begin from their departure out of Egypt. 40. (a) Sam. 45. (a) Sam.

them, and discomfited them, even unto Hormah; and they returned to the camp."

- 1 AGAIN Jehovah spoke to Moses, saying,
- 2 Speak to the Israelites, and say to them, When ye come into the land which I give
- 3 to you for your habitation, And will offer a burnt-offering to Jehovah, or other sacrifice for a vow, or for a free-will offering; or made at your stated feasts; from the herd or from the flock, to make an oblation of
- 4 a sweet savour to Jehovah; Then shall he that offereth his oblation to Jehovah, from the flock, bring a wheaten-offering of a tenth part of an ephah of flour mingled
- 5 with the fourth part of a hin of oil. And the fourth part of a hin of wine for a drink-offering shall he prepare for the burnt-offering or other sacrifice for one lamb: But for
- 6 a ram, he shall prepare for a wheaten-offering two tenth parts of an ephah of flour mingled with the third part of a hin of oil.
- 7 And for a drink-offering he shall offer the third part of a hin of wine, for a sweet savour to Jehovah. And when one prepareth
- 8 a steer for a burnt-offering or for other sacrifice, whether for a vow, or for a feast-sacrifice to Jehovah: Then shall he bring
- 9 with the steer a wheaten-offering of three tenth parts of an ephah of flour mingled
- 10 with half a hin of oil. And he shall bring for a drink-offering half a hin of wine, for a burnt-offering, of a sweet savour to Je-
- 11 hovah. Thus shall it be done for one steer, or for one ram, or for a lamb, or a kid.
- 12 According to the number that ye shall prepare, so shall ye do to every one according
- 13 to their number. All the natives shall do after this manner, when they offer a burnt-offering, of a sweet savour to Jehovah.
- 14 And if a stranger sojourn with you, or who-soever be among you throughout your generations, and will offer a burnt-offering, of a sweet savour to Jehovah; as ye do, so
- 15 shall he do. One ordinance shall be both for you of the congregation, and also for the stranger who sojourneth with you, a perpetual ordinance throughout your generations: as ye are, so shall the stranger be,
- 16 before Jehovah. There shall be but one law and one rite for you, and for the stranger who sojourneth with you.

CHAP. XV. 4—11. The quantity of the wheaten and drink offerings was augmented according to the size of the sacrifice with which it was offered. With a kid, or lamb, one tenth part of flour was offered: with a ram two tenth parts, and with a steer three tenth parts; and the drink-offerings in a similar proportion.

13—16. The laws regarding strangers have two designs—first to prevent the practice of idolatry, and

Again Jehovah spoke to Moses, saying, 17 Speak to the Israelites, and say unto them, 18 When ye come into the land whither I bring you, Then it shall be, that, when ye eat of 19 the bread of the land, ye shall offer up a heave-offering to Jehovah. Ye shall offer 20 up a cake of the first of your dough for a heave-offering; as ye do the heave-offering of the threshing-floor, so shall ye heave it. Of the first of your dough ye shall give to 21 Jehovah a heave-offering throughout your generations.

And if ye have erred, and not observed 22 all these commandments, which Jehovah hath spoken to Moses; All that Jehovah 23 hath commanded you by Moses, from the day that he commanded Moses, and henceforward throughout your generations; Then 24 it shall be, if ought be committed by ignorance without the knowledge of the congregation, that the whole congregation shall offer one steer for a burnt-offering, of a sweet savour to Jehovah, with its wheaten-offering, and its drink-offering, according to the prescribed rite; and one goat for a sin-offering. And the priest shall make an 25 atonement for the whole congregation of Israelites, and they shall be forgiven; since it was a sin of ignorance, and they have brought a burnt-offering to Jehovah, for their sin of ignorance, with their sin-offering before Jehovah. And the whole 26 congregation of Israelites, and the stranger that sojourneth among them shall be forgiven: seeing all the people offended through ignorance.

And if any one person sin through igno- 27 rance, then he shall bring a she-goat of the first year for a sin-offering. And the priest 28 shall make an atonement for the person who hath sinned ignorantly, for the sin of ignorance, before Jehovah; and he shall be forgiven. For the native Israelites, and for 29 the stranger who sojourneth among them, ye shall have but one law, for the sin of ignorance.

But the person who doeth aught pre- 30 sumptuously, whether he be a native or a stranger, he reproacheth Jehovah; and that person shall be cut off from among his people. Because he hath despised the word 31 of Jehovah, and hath broken his commandment, that person shall utterly be cut off; his iniquity shall be upon him.

And while the Israelites were in the wil- 32 second by kindness to lead them to worship the true God.

20. Compare Exodus xxii. 29.

22—29. See Notes on Levit. iv. and v.

30. Presumptuously] This refers to sins of an aggravated nature; blaspheming the name of God, despising his ordinances or worship, &c. For such offences there was no atonement appointed, but the person must be cut off.

derness they found a man that gathered 33 sticks on the sabbath day. And they that found him gathering sticks brought him to Moses, and to Aaron, and to all the con-34 gregation. And they put him in custody, because it was not declared what should be 35 done to him. And Jehovah said to Moses,
 The man shall surely be put to death: all the congregation shall stone him with stones 36 without the camp. And all the congregation brought him without the camp, and stoned him with stones until he died; as Jehovah had commanded Moses.
 37 Jehovah also spoke to Moses, saying,
 38 Speak to the Israelites, and bid them make fringes on the borders of their garments throughout their generations; and on the fringe of the borders put a riband of blue: 39 And ye shall have the fringe that ye may look upon it, and remember all the commandments of Jehovah, and do them; and not wander after your own heart and your own eyes, by which ye are wont to be led 40 astray: That ye may remember, and do all my commandments, and be holy to your 41 God. I am Jehovah your God, who brought you out of the land of Egypt, to be your God: I am Jehovah your God.

CHAPTER XVI.

B. C. 1491. The rebellion of Korah and his associates, and their punishment.

1 Now Korah, the son of Izhar, the son of Kohath, the son of Levi, and Dathan and 2 Abiram, the sons of Eliab, and On, the son of Peleth, sons of Reuben, conspired, And rose up against Moses, with certain others of Israel, two hundred and fifty chiefs of the assembly, members of the council, men of 3 renown. And they assembled against Moses and against Aaron, and said to them, Ye take too much upon you, since all, and every one, of the congregation are holy, and Jehovah is among them: why then raise ye yourselves above the congregation of Jeho-4 vah? And when Moses heard this, he fell upon his face. Then he spoke to Korah
 5 and to all his company, saying, To-morrow Jehovah will show who is his, and who is holy, and who ought to approach him; for himself will choose who shall approach him.
 6 This do ye; take ye censers, Korah, and all 7 his company; And put fire and incense on them to-morrow before Jehovah, and that man whom Jehovah shall choose, shall be deemed holy: ye take too much upon you, ye sons of Levi. Moses also said to Korah, 9 Hear, I pray you, ye sons of Levi: Seemeth 9 it a small thing to you, that the God of Israel hath separated you from the congregation of Israel, to bring you near to himself to do the service of the tabernacle of Jehovah, and to stand before the congregation to minister unto them? And he hath 10 brought thee and all thy brethren, the sons of Levi, near to himself; and yet ye seek the priesthood; For which cause thou and 11 all thy company are assembled against Jehovah; for what is Aaron that ye murmur against him?

And Moses sent to call Dathan and 12
 Abiram, the sons of Eliab; but they said,
 We will not come. Is it a small thing that 13 thou hast brought us up out of a land that floweth with milk and honey, to kill us in the wilderness, that thou wouldst also make thyself an absolute prince over us? More- 14 over thou hast not brought us into a land that floweth with milk and honey, or given to us an inheritance of fields and vineyards; and wilt thou put out the eyes of these men?
 we will not come. And Moses was very 15 wroth, and said to Jehovah, Respect not thou their offering. Not one ass have I taken from them; nor one of them have I injured. And Moses said to Korah, Be 16 thou and all thy company before Jehovah;
 thou, and they, and Aaron, to-morrow;
 And let every man take his censer, and put 17 incense on it; and bring ye, before Jehovah, two hundred and fifty censers, every man his own censer; thou also and Aaron, each man his censer. And they took every 18 man his censer, and put fire in them, and laid incense thereon. And Moses and Aaron stood at the door of the congregation-tabernacle. And Korah assembled the 19 whole congregation against them to the door of the congregation-tabernacle, and the glory of Jehovah appeared to the whole congregation. And Jehovah spoke to Moses 20 and to Aaron, saying, Separate yourselves 21 from among this congregation, that I may consume them in a moment. But they fell 22 upon their faces, and said, O God, the God of the spirits of all flesh, shall one man sin, and wilt thou be wroth with the whole congregation?

CHAP. XVI. 1. Conspired] Whether we read קָרָא, or with Bishop Newcombe קָרָא, the context requires the version given. Dathe derives from קָרָא and gives the sense of murmuring and rebelling, which it has in the Syriac.

3. Ye take too much upon you] Ye assume the chief offices of the sanctuary, as if ye were more holy than others; whereas we are all holy and the people of God. Such appears to be the sense of this passage.

5. Who is holy] Moses retorts their own language.

15. I have followed Houbigant in the construction of the latter part of this verse. The Sept. and Syr. want the vau before Moses.

19. The whole congregation] We are not to imagine, that all the Israelites joined in conspiracy; but most probably those are meant over whom the 250 chiefs presided, and whom they might influence to support them in their claims.

23 Jehovah then spoke to Moses, saying,
 24 Speak to the congregation, saying, Go away from about the tents of Korah, Dathan, 25 and Abiram. And Moses arose and went to Dathan and Abiram; and the elders of 26 Israel followed him. And he spoke to the congregation, saying, Depart, I pray you, from the tents of these wicked men, and touch nothing of theirs, lest ye be consumed 27 in the punishment of all their sins. So they went on every side from about the tents of Korah, Dathan, and Abiram. And Dathan and Abiram came out, and stood at the door of their tents, with their wives, 28 and their sons, and their little ones. And Moses said, By this ye shall know that Jehovah hath sent me to do all these works;
 and that I have not done them of mine own 29 mind. If these men die the common death of all men, or if they be visited after the visitation of all men; then, Jehovah hath 30 not sent me. But if Jehovah do a new thing, if the earth open her mouth, and swallow them up, with all that belongeth to them; and they go down alive into the pit; then ye shall know that these men have despised Jehovah.
 31 And as soon as he had made an end of speaking all these words, the ground under 32 them burst asunder; And the earth opened her mouth, and swallowed them up, and their households; even all the men who had joined Korah, and all their substance.
 33 They, and all that belonged to them, went down alive into the pit; and the earth closed upon them, and they perished from among 34 the congregation. And all the Israelites, who were round about them, fled at their cry; for they said, Lest the earth swallow 35 us up also. And a fire from Jehovah issued forth and consumed the two hundred and fifty men who had offered incense.
 36 Now Jehovah spoke to Moses, saying, 37 Speak to Eleazar the son of Aaron the priest, that he take up the censers from amidst the burning, and scatter about the 38 fire; for they are hallowed. Of the censers of those sinners against their own lives, let them make broad plates for a covering of the altar; for as they offered them before Jehovah, they are therefore hallowed, that they may be for a sign to the Israelites. So 39 Eleazar, "the son of Aaron" the priest, took the brazen censers, with which they that were burned had offered fire; and they were made into broad plates for a covering to the altar; For a memorial to Israel, that no 40 one, who is not of the seed of Aaron, should approach to offer incense before Jehovah;

 lest it should be done to him as to Korah, and his company: as Jehovah said to him by Moses.

But on the morrow the whole congrega- 41 tion of Israel murmured against Moses and against Aaron, saying, Ye have killed Jehovah's people. And, when the congregation 42 were assembling against Moses and against Aaron, they looked towards the congregation-tabernacle, and, behold, the cloud covered it, and the glory of Jehovah appeared. And Moses and Aaron having come 43 before the congregation-tabernacle, Jeho- 44 vah spoke to "them" saying, Go from among 45 this congregation; and in a moment I will consume them. But they fell upon their 46 faces: And Moses said to Aaron, Take a censer, and put fire from the altar on it, and put on incense, and go quickly to the congregation, and make an atonement for them:
 for wrath is gone forth from Jehovah; the plague is begun. And Aaron took a censer 47 as Moses commanded, and ran into the midst of the congregation; and, behold, the plague was begun among the people; and he put incense on the censer, and made an atonement for the people. And he stood 48 between the dead and the living; and the plague was stopped. Now they that died, 49 by the plague, were fourteen thousand and seven hundred; besides those who died for the rebellion of Korah. And when the 50 plague was stopped, Aaron returned to Moses to the door of the congregation-tabernacle.

CHAPTER XVII.

B. C. 1491. Of the twelve rods Aaron's only budded; and was laid up as a token against the rebels.

AGAIN Jehovah spoke to Moses, saying, 1
 Speak to the Israelites, and take twelve 2 rods, one for each paternal house, one from every chief of their paternal houses, whose

26. Depart I pray] These rebels were as a devoted thing; all were utterly to perish, with whatever belonged to them. The people were to express their abhorrence to their sin, and to own the justice of their punishment. It is, however, certain that the children of Korah did not perish with him, chap. xxvi. 11. It is probable they did not join in his rebellion. Their genealogy is reckoned, 1 Chron. vi. 22—38. David appointed them to be singers, and of them came Samuel the prophet.

31. Infidelity has nothing to object to this minute detail of facts, and this striking proof of the divine mission of Moses, but to call in question the truth of the history. By the same mode, the whole of the Old Testament, or any other writings may be set aside. 39. (a) Sam. Sept.

41. The people murmured] They might suppose that Moses and Aaron by their prayers might have prevented the awful calamity which had befallen Korah and his associates; and for their omission of this, charge them with being the authors of their destruction. Others suppose that they imagined Moses and Aaron had used some secret arts for their destruction, and that this was not a judgment from God. 44. (v) Sept. Syr. Arab.

45, 49. How soon did the people experience the divine displeasure! Not warned by the ruin of others, they rebelled and perished.

CHAP. XVII. 2. Twelve rods] These were the rods of office and authority; and the twelve chiefs were the heads of the tribes.

- name thou shalt write upon his own rod.
- 3 And thou shalt write Aaron's name upon the rod of Levi; for one rod shall be for the head of each paternal house. And thou shalt lay them up in the congregation-tabernacle before the testimony, where I am wont to meet with thee." And it shall be that the man's rod, whom I will choose, shall blossom; that I may make to cease from me the murmurings of the Israelites, whereby they murmur against you.
- 6 And Moses spoke to the Israelites, and every one of their chiefs gave him a rod, for each chief one, according to their paternal houses, twelve rods; and among their rods was the rod of Aaron. And Moses laid up the rods before Jehovah, in the testimony-tabernacle. And on the morrow it was, when Moses went into the testimony-tabernacle, that, behold, the rod of Aaron, for the house of Levi, had brought forth buds, and produced blossoms, and ripe almonds.
- 9 And Moses brought out all the rods from before Jehovah to all the Israelites; and they saw, and each man took his own rod.
- 10 And Jehovah said to Moses, Bring Aaron's rod before the testimony, to be kept for a token to these rebellious men; that their murmurings may cease from me that they die not. And Moses did so; as Jehovah had commanded him, so did he.
- 12 Then the Israelites spoke to Moses, saying, Behold we die, we perish, we all perish:
- 13 Whosoever approacheth the tabernacle of Jehovah dieth: shall we wholly expire?

CHAPTER XVIII.

B. C. 1491. The charge of the priests and Levites, and their portion of the offerings.

- 1 JEHOVAH now said to Aaron, Thou, and thy sons, and thy father's house shall bear the iniquity of the sanctuary; and thou, and thy sons with thee shall bear the iniquity
- 2 of your priesthood. And thy brethren also of the tribe of Levi, the tribe of thy father, take to thyself, that they may be joined to thee, and minister to thee; but thou and thy sons with thee shall minister before the testimony-tabernacle. And they shall keep 3 thy charge, and the charge of the whole tabernacle; only they shall not approach the hallowed utensils of the sanctuary and the altar, lest both ye and they die. And 4 they shall be joined to thee, and keep the charge of the congregation-tabernacle, for every service of the tabernacle; and no stranger shall approach to you. And ye 5 shall keep the charge of the sanctuary, and the charge of the altar; that there may be no more wrath against the Israelites. For 6 behold, I have taken your brethren the Levites from among the Israelites; to you they are given as a gift to Jehovah, to do the service of the congregation-tabernacle. Therefore thou, and thy sons with thee, shall 7 keep your priest's office and do every service about the altar, and within the veil: your priesthood I have given wholly to you; and the stranger who approacheth shall be put to death.

Jehovah also spoke to Aaron, Behold, I 8 also give to thee the charge of mine heave-offerings out of all the hallowed things of Israel; to thee I give them as thy portion, and to thy sons by a perpetual ordinance. This shall be thine out of the most holy 9 burnt-offerings: of their every oblation, of their every wheaten-offering, and of their every sin-offering, and of their every guilt-offering, which they shall bring to me, this shall be most holy to thee and to thy sons. In the most holy place shalt thou eat it; 10 every male shall eat it: it shall be holy to thee. And these also are thine; their 11 heave-offering gift, with every wave-offering of the Israelites, I give to thee and to thy sons and to thy daughters with thee by a perpetual statute: every one that is clean in thy house may eat of it. Of all the 12 best of the oil, and of all the best of the wine, and of the wheat, the first-fruits of which they shall offer to Jehovah, them I give to thee. And whatsoever is first ripe 13 in the land, which they shall bring to Jehovah, shall be thine; every one that is clean in thine house may eat of it. Every thing 14

4. I am wont to meet with thee] The verb here is considered as used in a frequentative sense, and not as simply foretelling or promising. (v) Sam. versions.

8. And ripe almonds] Literally, and 'ripened almonds.' This was a striking miracle, and the memorial of it was long preserved. A rod or sceptre the heathens were accustomed to swear by, and for one to blossom, bud, and yield fruit, was regarded as an impossibility.

10. Rebellious men] Literally, 'sons of rebellion.' The rod was to be laid up as a token or sign to them, that God had chosen Aaron and his sons to the office of the priesthood.

CHAP. XVIII. 1. Shall bear the iniquity of the sanctuary] Some explain this to mean, 'Ye shall suffer punishment, if ye neglect any of the rites prescribed.' Others suppose the sense to be, 'Ye shall keep the sanctuary, so that no one, but those of your own family, shall be permitted to minister in it.'

2. May be joined to thee] There is here an evident allusion to the name of Levi. Compare Gen. xxix. 34.—Testimony tabernacle] This denotes the Holy of Holies, where none but the high priest was allowed to enter.

8. Thy portion] See note on Levit. vii. 35.

9—11. The first of these verses refers to him, who had sinned by withholding his holy things. Compare Levit. v. 15, 16. In the next two, are mentioned two kinds of offerings; the one called 'most holy,' which comprehended sacrifices of every sort; of which it was lawful for the priests only to eat; the other called 'holy,' which included the first fruits, things devoted to God, and what was offered for the redemption of the first-born, of which any of the family of Aaron might eat.

14. Compare Levit. xxvii. 21, 28.

15—17. Shalt thou allow to be redeemed] Michaelis very properly observes, that as this address is to Aaron,

- 15 devoted in Israel shall be thine. Every first-born male of all flesh, which they bring to Jehovah, whether it be of man or beast, shall be thine; yet the first-born of man thou shalt allow to be redeemed, and the firstling of unclean beasts shall be redeemed.
- 16 And those that are to be redeemed from a month old shalt thou allow to be redeemed, for the value of five shekels of silver, according to the shekel of the sanctuary, which
- 17 is twenty gerahs. But the firstling of a cow, or the firstling of a sheep, or the firstling of a goat, thou shalt not allow to be redeemed; they are holy: thou shalt sprinkle their blood upon the altar, and shalt burn their fat as a burnt-offering of
- 18 a sweet savour to Jehovah. But their flesh shall be thine, as the wave-breast and as the right-shoulder of the feast-sacrifice are
- 19 thine. All the heave-offerings of the holy things, which the Israelites offer to Jehovah, I give to thee, and to thy sons and thy daughters with thee, by a perpetual statute: a covenanted portion is this for ever before Jehovah to thee, and to thy seed with thee.
- 20 Again Jehovah spoke to Aaron, Thou shalt have no inheritance in the land, among the Israelites, nor shalt thou have any part among them; I am thy part and thine inheritance.
- 21 And, behold, I give to the Levites all the tenth in Israel instead of an inheritance, for the service which they do; the service of the congregation-tabernacle. And the Israelites must not henceforth approach the congregation-tabernacle,
- 22 lest they bear sin and die. For the Levites shall do the service of the congregation-tabernacle; and by a perpetual statute throughout your generations, they shall bear their iniquity; but among the Israelites they
- 24 shall have no inheritance. But the tithes of the Israelites, which they offer as a heave-offering to Jehovah, I give to the Levites for an inheritance: therefore I say to them, Among the Israelites they shall have no inheritance.
- 25 Again Jehovah spoke to Moses, saying,
- 26 Thus speak to the Levites and say to them,

When ye take of the Israelites, the tithes which I give you from them for your inheritance, then ye shall offer up of it, as a heave-offering to Jehovah, a tenth part of the tithe. And your heave-offering shall be reckoned to you, as though it were the corn of the threshing-floor, and as the fulness of the wine-press. Thus ye also shall offer a heave-offering to Jehovah, of all the tithes which ye receive from the Israelites; and ye shall give of them Jehovah's heave-offering, to Aaron the priest. Out of all your gifts, ye shall offer a heave-offering to Jehovah; of all the best and most hallowed part. Therefore thou shalt say to them, When ye have offered the best, then it shall be counted to the Levites as the increase of the threshing-floor, and as the increase of the wine-press. And ye shall eat the rest in every place, ye and your households; for it is a recompense to you for your service about the congregation-tabernacle. And when ye have offered of the best of it, ye shall not bear sin on account of it; for the holy things of Israel ye shall not profane lest ye die.

CHAPTER XIX.

B. C. 1471. The purification-water made of the ashes of a red heifer, and the use of it.

AGAIN Jehovah spoke to Moses, and to Aaron, saying, This is the ordinance of the law which Jehovah hath commanded, saying, Speak to the Israelites, that they bring to thee a red heifer without spot or blemish, upon which a yoke never came; And ye shall give her to Eleazar the priest, that he may bring her forth without the camp and cause her to be slain in his presence. And Eleazar the priest shall take some of her blood, with his finger, and sprinkle of her blood directly before the congregation-tabernacle, seven times; And the heifer shall be burned in his presence; her skin, and her flesh, and her blood, and her dung, shall be burned together. And the priest shall take cedar wood, and hyssop, and scarlet thread, and cast them into the fire which burneth the heifer. Then the priest shall rinse his the verb תפדה must be read in the hiphil voice, and rendered as I have done. The common version implies that the priest was to redeem, which conveys a sense opposite to that intended.

18. Compare Leviticus vii. 29—32.

19. A covenanted portion] Literally, 'a covenant of salt.' From the quality of salt, in preserving what is seasoned therewith, a covenant that was to be durable, appears to have been called a covenant of salt; and in those terms such a covenant is mentioned here and 1 Chron. xiii. 5. where it evidently refers to what, in other places, is called a perpetual or an everlasting covenant. Compare Levit. ii. 13. That salt was used to denote a salary, or what a man received, see Ezra iv. 14.

20. No inheritance] The tithes, and certain parts of most sacrifices were given to them in lieu of any part of the land. Out of what God claimed from the other tribes, to be devoted to him, he provided for them. Hence he is said to be their inheritance.

21. See Introduction, part iii. chap. 3. 6.

23. They shall bear] That is, if they do any thing improperly about the tabernacle.

CHAP. XIX. 2. A red heifer] It is well known, that the Egyptians worshipped Isis under this form; and that it was usual with the Greeks and Romans to select those animals for victims, which had not borne the yoke. God might design by this ordinance, to show them the folly of the Egyptian superstition. It was to be wholly red without spot of any other colour, and free from blemish, as well as one which had not been employed for the purpose of agriculture.

4. Before the congregation tabernacle] In other sacrifices, the blood of the victim was brought into the sanctuary. See Levit. iii. 5, 6, 16, 17; but in this sacrifice, because

- clothes, and shall wash his body in water, and afterward he shall come into the camp; and the priest shall be unclean until the evening. And he also who burneth her shall rinse his clothes, and wash his body in water, and shall be unclean until the evening. And some one who is clean shall gather up the ashes of the heifer, and lay them up without the camp, in a clean place; and they shall be kept for making the purifying water, to purify from sin, for the congregation of Israel. And he that gathereth the ashes of the heifer shall wash his clothes, and be unclean until the evening; and this shall be to the Israelites, and to the stranger who sojourneth among them, a perpetual statute.
- 11 He who toucheth the dead body of any man shall be unclean seven days. He shall purify himself with it on the third, and on the seventh day, and shall be clean; but if he purify not himself on the third day, and on the seventh day, he shall not be clean.
- 13 Whosoever toucheth the dead body of any man who hath died, and purifieth not himself, defileth the tabernacle of Jehovah; and that person shall be cut off from Israel: because the purifying water was not sprinkled upon him, he is unclean; his uncleanness is yet upon him. This is the law, when a man dieth in a tent: all that come into the tent, and all that are in the tent, shall be unclean seven days. And every open vessel which hath no covering bound upon it shall be unclean. And whosoever toucheth one that is slain with a sword in the open fields, or a dead body, or a bone of a man, or a grave, shall be unclean seven days. For one thus unclean, they shall take some of the ashes of the burnt heifer of purification for sin, and running water shall be put thereto in a vessel; And a clean person shall take hyssop, and dip it in the water, and sprinkle it upon the tent, and upon all vessels, and upon all the persons that were there, and upon him who hath touched a bone, or one slain, or one dead, or a grave:
- 19 And the clean person shall sprinkle upon the unclean on the third day, and on the seventh day; and on the seventh day he shall purify himself, and rinse his clothes, and wash himself in water, and in the evening he shall be clean. But the man that shall be unclean, and will not purify himself, that person shall be cut off from among the congregation, because he hath defiled the sanctuary of Jehovah: the purifying water hath not been sprinkled upon him; he is still unclean. And it shall be a perpetual statute to you, that he who sprinkleth the purifying water shall rinse his clothes; and he who toucheth the purifying water shall be unclean until the evening. And whosoever the unclean person toucheth shall be unclean; and the person that toucheth it shall be unclean until the evening.

CHAPTER XX.

B. C. 1471. The people again murmur for want of water; Moses smiteth the rock, &c.

THEN came the Israelites, the whole congregation, into the desert of Zin in the first month; and the people abode in Kadesh; and Miriam died there, and there she was buried. And there was no water for the congregation; and they assembled against Moses and against Aaron. And the people contended with Moses, and spoke, saying, O that we had died when our brethren died before Jehovah! And why have ye brought up the congregation of Jehovah into this wilderness, that we and our cattle should there die? And why made ye us to come up out of Egypt, to bring us unto this evil place? a place without seed, or figs, or vines, or pomegranates; and where there is no water to drink? And Moses and Aaron went from the presence of the assembly to the door of the congregation-tabernacle, and they fell upon their faces; and the glory of Jehovah appeared to them.

And Jehovah spoke to Moses, saying, Take the rod, and assemble the congregation; thou and Aaron thy brother, and speak ye to the rock before their eyes; and it shall give forth its water; for out of that rock thou shalt bring forth water to them, and shalt give drink both to the congregation, and their beasts. And Moses took the rod from before Jehovah, as he had commanded him. And Moses and Aaron assembled the congregation before the rock, the priest was polluted by the slaughter, the blood was sprinkled only towards the tabernacle.

8. (o) In water, Sept. Syr. Vulg. 4 MSS.

9. Purifying water] Literally, 'water of impurity;' because it cleansed those who were impure and unclean, it was considered as contracting impurity. The apostle refers to this rite, Heb. ix. 13, 14.

12. I have followed the Sept. in the version given, as it is most consonant to the connexion and design, and depends on the omission of the unu.

CHAP. XX. 1. Expositors have observed that there is no account of the Israelites, during the greatest part of the forty years they sojourned in the wilderness. It is clear, that what is recorded in this chapter must have occurred in the fortieth year from their departure from Egypt. Compare chap. xxxiii. 36—38. Moses writes as a legislator, and gives us the history of the laws and ordinances given to the Israelites, and not as an historian recording all the little transactions which occurred.

10, 11. Hear now, ye rebels] On this occasion Moses offended and spoke unadvisedly with his lips. In what did his offence consist? It has been observed, he was commanded only 'to speak' to the rock, and he smote it. He did this twice, which indicated an irritated state of mind. He spoke harshly to the people, calling them rebels, but chiefly he doubted the divine power, or arrogated too much to himself and Aaron. 'Can we bring water for you out of this rock?' Compare 1 Chron. xxvii. 14, and Ps. cvi. 33.

and he said to them, Hear now, ye rebels; out of this rock can we bring water for you.

11 And Moses raised his hand, and with his rod smote the rock twice; and water came forth abundantly, and the congregation drank, and their beasts also.

12 Jehovah then spoke to Moses, and Aaron, Because ye believed me not, so as to hallow me in the eyes of the Israelites; therefore ye shall not bring this congregation into 13 the land which I give to them. These also were the waters of Meribah [CONTENTION]; for the Israelites contended with Jehovah, and he was sanctified among them.

"Again Jehovah spoke to Moses, saying, Ye have long compassed this mountain; turn northward. And command thou the people, saying, Ye have to pass through the border of your brethren, the posterity of Esau, who dwell in mount Seir, and who will be afraid of you. Take heed therefore and meddle not with them; for of their land I will not give you so much as a foot-breadth: because to Esau I gave mount Seir for his possession. The food which ye eat shall ye buy of them with silver, and with silver ye shall buy of them the water which ye drink."

14 And Moses sent messengers from Kadesh to the king of Edom, Thus say thy brethren the Israelites, Thou knowest all the calamity 15 that hath befallen us; How our fathers went down into Egypt, and in Egypt we have dwelt a long time; and the Egyptians 16 afflicted us and our fathers: And when we cried to Jehovah, he heard our voice, and sent an angel, and hath brought us forth out of Egypt; and, behold, we are in Kadesh, a city in the uttermost part of thy 17 country. Let us pass, we pray thee, through thy country: we will not pass through the fields, or through the vineyards, nor will we drink water out of the wells; we will march in the king's highway; we will not turn to the right hand or to the left, until we have 18 passed thy borders. But the Edomites said to them, Ye shall not pass through our country, lest we come out with swords against you. Then the Israelites said to 19 them, We will go by the highway; and if we or our cattle drink of your water, then we will pay for it: only let us pass through as travellers. But they said, Ye shall not 20 pass through. And the king of Edom came out against them with much people, and in great force. Thus the Edomites 21 refused to grant the Israelites a passage through their country; so the Israelites turned another way from Edom.

And the Israelites, the whole congrega- 22 tion, marched from Kadesh, and came to mount Hor. And Jehovah spoke to Moses 23 and Aaron at mount Hor, on the border of the land of Edom, saying, Aaron shall be 24 gathered to his people; for he shall not enter into the land which I give to the Israelites, because ye rebelled against my word at the water of Meribah. Take Aaron 25 and Eleazar his son, and bring them up to mount Hor; And strip Aaron of his holy 26 garments, and put them upon Eleazar his son; and Aaron shall die there and be gathered to his people. And Moses did 27 as Jehovah commanded; for they went up to mount Hor in the sight of all the congregation. And Moses stripped Aaron of 28 his holy garments, and put them upon Eleazar his son; and Aaron died there on the top of the mountain: and Moses and Eleazar came down from the mountain. And when all the congregation perceived that Aaron was dead, the whole house of Israel mourned for Aaron thirty days.

CHAPTER XXI.

B. C. 1453. Contest with the Canaanites; plague of serpents, and journey from mount Hor to the river Arnon.

Now the king of Arad, a Canaanite, who 1 dwelt in the south, heard that Israel came by the way of Atharim; and he fought against Israel, and took some of them captive. And Israel vowed a vow to Jehovah, 2 and said, If thou wilt indeed deliver this people into our hand, we will utterly destroy their cities. And Jehovah hearkened to 3 the voice of Israel, and delivered up the

13. He was sanctified among them] By manifesting his power and faithfulness, and giving them another proof of his continued care of them. To sanctify, here signifies to manifest his own glory, as he did by the miracle wrought. Rosenmüller and others admit the Sam. has here retained what is necessary to introduce what follows. (a) Sam. Deut. ii. 1; iii. 24, 25.

14. Thy brethren the Israelites] I have rendered in the plural, which I consider as the sense; and because the pronoun plural follows.

17. King's highway] This must refer to a way which he had made; so that it appears something had been then done to facilitate the passage of merchandise and travelling. The conduct of the Edomites was not friendly, considering the proposals made.

26. Strip Aaron of his] The holy garments were a sign of his office, and to be stripped of these was to put an end to his service. Eleazar his son was clothed with them, to denote his investiture into the priesthood.

29. Perceived] They did not see Aaron with him; and perhaps Moses had rent his garments and put dust on his head, as tokens of mourning. Aaron was a public person, and hence they mourned for him thirty days. Deut. xxxiv. 8.

CHAP. XXI. 1. Atharim] This in the common version is rendered spies, a sense which the word does not convey. Michaelis attributes the sense of place to the word, which it has in the Chald. Syr. and Samaritan. and renders, 'were on the way to those places.' The Septuagint, Arabic, and Dathé, retain the word, whom I have followed.

3. Destroyed them and their cities] Those which they then took; for Joshua afterwards took the king of Arad. Josh. xii. 14, and Judg. i. 16, 17.

Canaanites; and they utterly destroyed them and their cities. Hence they called the name of the place Hormah, [THE DEVOTED PLACE.]

- 4 And they marched from mount Hor by the way of the Red Sea, to go round the land of Edom; and the mind of the people was greatly distressed on account of the way. And the people spoke against God, and against Moses, Why have ye brought us up out of Egypt to die in the wilderness? For we have neither bread nor water; and our appetite loatheth this light bread.
- 6 Jehovah now sent fiery serpents among the people, and they bit the people; and many of the people of Israel died.
- 7 Therefore the people came to Moses, and said, We have sinned, for we have spoken against Jehovah, and against thee; pray to Jehovah, that he may take away from us these serpents. And Moses prayed for the people. And Jehovah said to Moses, Make the figure of a fiery serpent, and set it upon a pole; and it shall be that every one who is bitten, when he looketh upon it, shall live. And Moses made a serpent of brass, and put it upon a pole; and so it was, that if a serpent had bitten any man, when he looked to the serpent of brass, he lived.
- 10 And the Israelites marched from Punon, and encamped in Oboth. And they marched from Oboth, and encamped at Ijeabarim, in the wilderness which is before Moab, towards the sunrising. *And Jehovah spoke to Moses, Trouble not the Moabites, nor meddle with them: no part of their land will I give for an inheritance: for to the posterity of Lot I have given Ar for an inheritance."
- 12 Thence they removed, and encamped in the valley of Zared. *And Jehovah spoke to Moses, Ye are this day to pass by Ar the border city of Moab, and to approach the Ammonites: trouble not these, nor meddle with them: no part of their land will I give you for an inheritance; for to the children of Lot I have given it for an inheritance."
- 13 Thence, also, they removed, and encamped on the other side of the Arnon, which floweth in the wilderness, along the border of the Amorites: for the Arnon is the boundary between Moab and the Amorites. Hence it is said in a book of the wars: 14

Jehovah came with him to Suph
And marched to the streams of the Arnon;
To the overflowing of the streams 15
Which extendeth to Shebeth-Ar.
And reclineth on the border of Moab:
For there they found a well;—that well, 16
Of which Jehovah said to Moses, Assemble the people "to me!"
And I will give them water.
Then sang Israel this song: 17
A well 'hath sprung up!' sing ye of it!
A well, which the princes discovered; 18
Which the nobles of the people digged,
Directed by the Lawgiver, with their staves:
From the wilderness to Mattanah, they dug:
And from Mattanah to Nahaliel; 19
And from Nahaliel to Bamoth;
And from Bamoth to the valley, 20
Which is in the country of Moab,
Where appeareth the top of Pisgah,
Which is opposite to Jeshimon.

*Jehovah now said to Moses, Arise, march, and pass the river Arnon: Behold, I deliver into your hand Sihon, the Amorite king of Heshbon, and his land. Begin to take possession, and contend with him in battle. This day I will begin to put the dread and the fear of you on all nations under the whole heavens, who shall bear the report of you; and they shall tremble and be in anguish on account of you."

Yet Israel sent messengers "with words 21 of peace" to Sihon king of the Amorites, saying, Let us pass through thy land: "in 22 the king's highway we will march; we will not turn either to the right hand, or to the left;" nor will we turn aside either into fields or vineyards. *What we eat thou shalt sell to us for silver, and what we drink thou shalt give to us for silver;" in the king's highway we will march until we pass thy borders: only let us pass through as travellers; as we requested the Edomites who

6. Fiery serpents] Some think these serpents were called seraphim, or fiery, from the inflammation occasioned by their bite; others from their fiery and splendid appearance. Michaelis takes שָׂרָף to be the cerastes, or regulus. I believe it to be the dipsas, otherwise called prester; and so the word is here rendered by Greek Ven.

9. He lived] The divine appointment alone gave efficacy to this mode of cure. The brazen serpent was preserved as a standing evidence of this miracle, till the reign of Hezekiah, who ordered it to be destroyed in consequence of the superstitions regard the Israelites paid to it. 2 Kings xviii. 4; John iii. 14.

11, 12. (a) Sam. Sept.

13. Marched from Punon] Compare chap. xxxiii. 43.

14. In rendering this verse the emendation of Kennicott is adopted as most natural, and consisting in a different arrangement of the letters of the text.—The book of the wars]

This seems to be some poetic compositions of Moses, celebrating particular events which had occurred, from which he here inserted what was proper to the occasion. I suspect that this was increased by other writers afterwards. Compare Josh. xiii. 10, and 2 Sam. i. 18. 16. (a) Sam.

17. A well hath sprung up] So the Sam. which the construction and sense seem to require. For what propriety is there in addressing the well! (v) Sam.

18—20. After passing through a most dreary wilderness, in which there was no water, no wonder that they sang and shouted for joy, on the first appearance of such copious sources of it. The Arnon, swelled by a tempest, had diffused its streams to a great extent; and these subsiding in the adjacent soil afforded wells so near the surface of the earth, that the people could dig them with their staves: and this all the way from the wilderness to the vale mentioned ver. 20. 21. - dwelt in mount Seir, to do; and the Moab 23 ites who dwell in Ar." But Sihon would not suffer Israel to pass through his country.
 Sihon then gathered all his people together, and went out against Israel into the wilderness; and he came to Jahaz, and fought 24 with Israel. And Israel smote him, "and his sons, and all his people," with the edge of the sword, and possessed his land from the Arnon to the Jabbok, even to the borders of the Ammonites: for "Jaazar was the 25 border of the Ammonites." Thus Israel took all those cities; and Israel dwelt in all the cities of the Amorites; in Heshbon, 26 and in all its villages. For Heshbon was the city of Sihon king of the Amorites, who had fought against a former king of Moab, and had taken from him all his land unto the Arnon.
 27 Hence they who speak proverbs say,
 Come, let Heshbon be rebuilt;
 Let the city of Sihon be repaired:
 28 For from Heshbon a fire went forth;
 A flame from the city of Sihon,
 Which consumed Ar of Moab,
 "Which devoured" the high places of Arnon.
 29 Woe to thee, O Moab!
 Thou art undone, people of Chemosh!
 His sons he suffered to be fugitives;
 His daughters, to go into captivity,
 To Sihon, the king of the Amorites. [Dibon: 30 Their fair fields Heshbon destroyed unto
 "They were laid waste unto Nophah, Which is situate near" to Medeba.
 31 Israel now dwell in the land of the Amo-32 rites. And Moses sent to spy out Jaazar, and they took "it and its" villages, and drove out the Amorites who were there.
 33 And they turned and took the way to Bashan; and Og, king of Bashan, went out against them; he, and all his people, 34 to battle at Edrei. And Jehovah said to Moses, Fear him not; for into thine hand;

24. (v) Sept.

27. Hence they] Literally, 'hence the poets, or parabolists say.' I conceive that these lines were the production of some Israelite, who invites his people to repair and strengthen a city, whence, while in the possession of the Amorites, so successful a war had been carried on against Moab. 23. (v) Sept.

29. Chemosh] The god of the Moabites; who is here elegantly reproached, for not better protecting his people against a petty Amorite king.

30. Their fair fields] I have followed all the versions in considering עֵרְוָה a noun with the pronominal suffix; and the sense of it according to Schindler and Castel, is, ager cu'tus, cultivated land. I consider Heshbon as the nominative of עֵרְוָה, which I regard as an active verb. In the next line I follow the Syr. translator who reads the verb in the third person plural, and not in the first as we now have it. With these corrections the passage is clear and connected.

CHAP. XXII. 5. The description now given of Balaam's residence, instead of being particular, agrees with any place in any country, where there is a river—for he lived at Pethor, which is 'by the river of the land of the children of his people!' But was Pethor then near the Nile, in

I will deliver both him, and all his people, and his land; and thou shalt do to him as thou didst to Sihon king of the Amorites, who dwelt in Heshbon. So they smote 35 him, and his sons, and all his people, until there was none left; and they possessed his land.

CHAPTER XXII.

B. C. 1452. Balak's message to Balaam; his journey, and what befell him.

THE Israelites now marched, and en- 1 camped in the plains of Moab, beyond the Jordan, over against Jericho.

When Balak the son of Zippor saw all 2 that Israel had done to the Amorites, He 3 and the Moabites were much afraid on account of so numerous a people; yea the Moabites were distressed because of the Israelites. And they said to the elders of 4 Midian this company will now lick up all around us, as the ox licketh up the grass of the field. So Balak the son of Zippor king 5 of the Moabites at that time, Sent messengers unto Balaam, the son of Beor, to 6 Pethor, (which is on the river of the land of the 'Ammonites,') to call him, saying, Behold, there is a people come out of Egypt, and they cover the face of the earth, and they abide over against me: Come now 6 therefore, I pray thee, curse for me this people; for they are too mighty for me:
 perhaps I may prevail, so that I may smite them, and drive them out of the land: for I know that blessed is he whom thou shalt bless, and cursed is he whom thou shalt curse. The elders of Moab and the elders 7 of Midian then departed, with the rewards of divination in their hand; and they came to Balaam, and spoke to him the words of Balak. And he said to them, Lodge here 8 to night, and I will bring you word, as Jehovah shall speak unto me. And the princes of Moab abode with Balaam. And God 9

Egypt? Or in Canaan, near Jordan? Or in Mesopotamia, on the Euphrates, and belonging to the Ammonites? This last was in fact the case: and therefore it is well, that 12 Heb. MSS. confirm the Sam. text here, in reading (instead of עַרְוָה his people) עֵרְוָה Ammon; with the Syr. and Vulg.
 versions.

6. Blessed is he] This language indicates the high opinion entertained of Balaam; and it is well known that the heathens believed that certain persons had the power of obtaining blessings on the people from the gods, or of bringing on them the most awful calamities. Bishop Newton has observed, 'that wonderful as the gift of prophecy was, it was not always confined to the chosen seed, nor yet always imparted to the best of men.' He revealed himself to Abimelech, Gen. xx.: to Pharaoh, Gen. lxi.; and to Nebuchadnezzar, Dan. ii. Unworthy persons may sometimes be possessed of spiritual gifts as well as of natural. Our Saviour himself hath assured us of it, Matt. vii. 22, 23.

7. With the rewards of divination] The elders of Moab and Ammon not only took an usual present, but money to provide materials for the incantation, and for Balaam, should it be found necessary, to induce him to come and curse Israel.

8—9. As Jehovah shall speak] From this it is probable, came to Balaam, and said, What want these 10 men with thee? And Balaam said to God, Balak, the son of Zippor, king of Moab, 11 hath sent to me saying, Behold, there is a people come out of Egypt, who cover the face of the earth; come now, curse them for me; perhaps I may be able to overcome 12 them, and drive them out. And God said to Balaam, Thou shalt not go with them; thou shalt not curse the people; for blessed 13 are they. And Balaam arose in the morning, and said to the princes of Balak, Go back to your own land; for Jehovah refuseth to give me leave to go with you. 14 And the princes of Moab arose, and went to Balak, and said Balaam refuseth to come with us. 15 And Balak yet again sent princes, more numerous and more honourable than those. 16 And they came to Balaam, and said to him, Thus saith Balak the son of Zippor, Let nothing, I pray thee, hinder thee from coming unto me: for I will promote thee to very great honour, and I will do whatsoever thou sayest to me: come therefore, I pray 18 thee, curse for me this people. And Balaam answered and said to the "servants" of Balak, If Balak would give me his house full of silver and gold, I cannot go beyond the word of Jehovah my God, to do less or 19 more. Now, therefore, I pray you, abide here also to night, that I may know what more Jehovah will say to me. And God 20 came to Balaam at night, and said unto him, If the men come to call thee, arise, and go with them; but do thou only the thing which I shall say to thee. And Balaam arose in the morning, and saddled his ass, and went with the princes of Moab. 22 And God's anger was kindled because he went "with a covetous intention:" and the angel Jehovah stood in the way to oppose him. Now he was riding upon his ass, and 23 his two servants were with him. And the ass saw the angel Jehovah standing in the way, that God revealed his will to Balaam in some vision of the night. Compare verse 20, and Gen. xx. 3. Was Balaam acquainted with Jehovah? He might indeed have become acquainted with the name of the God of Israel. The wonders he wrought in Egypt and the desert must have been spread abroad; and Balaam might judge it proper to invoke God by this name, as being more powerful than any other. Was he a true prophet? Most critics think him an artful wicked man like Simon Magus, who, by enchantments, had imposed on the multitude, but in this instance God by a special influence directed him to bless Israel, and he was constrained so to do. 18. (v) princes, Sept.

22. And God's anger was kindled] In the 20th verse Balaam is ordered to go with the men; why then was God angry with him for doing so? It is answered, that Balaam was not to go unless the princes of Balak came and called for him; but that Balaam did not wait for their coming, but arose in the morning and went. This circumstance, united with the additional reading of the Arab, כאשר, 'he went with a covetous disposition,' which is strongly confirmed by 2 Pet. ii. 15, is a solid reason for the anger of the Lord against him.

and his sword drawn in his hand; and the ass turned aside out of the way, and went into the field; and Balaam smote the ass, to turn her into the way again. But the 24 angel Jehovah stood in a path between two vineyards; a wall being on this side, and a wall on that side. And when the ass 25 saw the angel Jehovah, she thrust herself to the wall, and crushed Balaam's foot against the wall; and he smote her again. And the angel Jehovah went further, and 26 stood in a narrow place, where there was no way to turn either to the right hand or to the left. And when the ass saw the angel 27 Jehovah, she fell down under Balaam; and Balaam's anger was kindled, and he smote the ass with a staff. And Jehovah opened 28 the mouth of the ass, and she said to Balaam, What have I done to thee, that thou hast smitten me these three times? And 29 Balaam said to the ass, Because thou hast insulted me; I would there were a sword in mine hand, for now would I kill thee. And the ass said to Balaam, Am not I 30 thine ass, upon which thou hast ridden ever since I was thine unto this day? was I ever wont to do so to thee? And he said, No. Then Jehovah opened the eyes of 31 Balaam, and he saw the angel Jehovah standing in the way, and his sword drawn in his hand; and he bowed down his head, and fell flat on his face. And the angel 32 Jehovah said to him, Wherefore hast thou smitten thine ass these three times? behold I went out to oppose thee, because thy way is perverse before me: And the ass saw me, 33 and turned these three times from me; unless she had turned from me, surely now I had slain thee, and saved her alive. And 34 Balaam said to the angel Jehovah, I have sinned; for I knew not that thou stoodest in the way against me; now therefore, if it displease thee, I will go back again. And 35 the angel Jehovah said to Balaam, Go with the men; but "take heed" to speak only what

28. And Jehovah opened the mouth of the ass] 'The speaking ass, from that time to this, hath been the standing jest of every infidel brother. Maimonides and others have conceived, that the matter was transacted in a vision. But it appears rather more probable from the whole tenour of the narration, that this was no visionary, but a real transaction. The words of St. Peter show, that it is to be understood, as he himself understood it, literally: 2 Pet. ii. 14, 15, 16. The ass was enabled to utter such and such sounds, probably, as parrots do, without understanding them: and say what you will of the construction of the ass's mouth, of the formation of the tongue and jaws being unfit for speaking, yet an adequate cause is assigned for this wonderful effect, for it is said expressly, "that the Lord opened the mouth of the ass:" and no one who believes a God, can doubt of his having power to do this and much more. The miracle was by no means needless or superfluous; it was very proper to convince Balaam, that the mouth and tongue were under God's direction, and that the same divine power which caused the dumb ass to speak contrary to its nature, could make him in like manner utter blessings contrary to his inclination.' Bishop Newton.

I speak to thee. So Balaam went with the princes of Balak.

- 36 And when Balak heard that Balaam was come, he went out to meet him to a city of Moab, which was on the frontier of the 37 country, on the border of the Arnon. And Balak said to Balaam, Did I not earnestly send to thee to call thee? wherefore camest thou not to me? am I not able indeed to 38 promote thee to honour? And Balaam said to Balak, Lo, I am now come unto thee; but can I, of myself, say any thing at all? The word that God putteth in my mouth, 39 I will "take heed" to speak. And Balaam went with Balak, and they came to Kirjath-40 huzoth. And Balak killed oxen and sheep, and sent portions to Balaam, and to the princes who were with him.

CHAPTER XXIII.

B. C. 1452. Balak's offerings, and Balaam's prophecies.

- 41 Now on the morrow, Balak took Balaam, and brought him up to the high places of Baal, that thence he might see the utmost 1 part of the people. And Balaam said to Balak, Build for me here seven altars, and prepare for me here seven steers and seven
2 rams. And Balak did as Balaam had spoken; and Balak and Balaam offered on each altar a steer and a ram. And Balaam
3 said to Balak, Stand by thy burnt-offering, and I will go to see if Jehovah will come to meet me; and whatsoever he sheweth me I will tell thee. And he went to an
4 open place. And God met Balaam, who said to him, I have prepared seven altars, and I have offered upon each altar a steer
5 and a ram. And Jehovah put a word in Balaam's mouth, and said, Return to Balak, and thus shalt thou speak. And he re-6 turned to him, and, lo, he stood by his burnt-offering; he, and all the princes of Moab.
7 And he prophesied, and said,
From Aram, Balak hath brought me,
The king of Moab, from the mountains of Kedem.

35, 38. The addition now found in the Sept. and Sam. is supported by the text, chap. xxiii. 12; and appears necessary to the connexion.

41. In the division of the chapters, I have followed our oldest English Bibles of Coverdale and Matthews.—High places of Baal] The places where the Moabites offered sacrifices to Baal.

CHAP. XXIII. 1. Seven altars] The veneration for the number seven began very early. We see that even at this time the heathens paid great respect to it in their religious ceremonies, which they could not derive from the Mosaic ritual, with which it cannot be supposed that they were yet acquainted; but must arise from tradition delivered down from the earliest ages. It might take its origin from the seventh day being set apart by God, as more holy than the rest. There are several instances of particular regard to this number before the Mosaic law, as 'the clean beasts by sevens,' Gen. vii. 2. 'Jacob's service,' chap. xxix. 'Pharaoh's dreams,' chap. xli.

Come, saith he, curse, for me, Jacob, Come, and execrate, for me, Israel.

How shall I curse whom God hath not 8 cursed? [ecrated?
How execrate, whom Jehovah hath not ex-
When, from the top of the rocks, I see them; 9
And from the lofty hills, I behold them;
Lo! they are a people that shall dwell alone,
And shall not be reckoned among the nations.
Who shall count the dust-like seed of Jacob? 10
Who shall number the multitude of Israel?
May I die the death of the righteous,
And may my last end be like theirs!—

Balak now said to Balaam, What hast 11 thou done unto me? I brought thee to curse mine enemies, and, behold, thou hast altogether blessed them. And he answered 12 and said, Must I not take heed to speak that which Jehovah hath put in my mouth?
And Balak said to him, Come, I pray thee, 13 with me to another place, whence thou mayest see them; thou shalt see but the outmost part of them, and shalt not see them all: and thence curse them for me.

And he brought him into the field of 14
Zophim, at the top of Pisgah, and built seven altars, and offered a steer and a ram on each altar. And he said to Balak, Stand 15 here by thy burnt-offering, while I go yonder to meet Jehovah. And Jehovah met Ba- 16 laam, and put a word in his mouth, and said, Go back to Balak, and thus speak. And when he came to him, behold, he stood 17 by his burnt-offering and the princes of Moab with him. And Balak said to him, What hath Jehovah spoken?

And he prophesied, and said, 18
Rise up, Balak, and hearken;
Listen to me, thou son of Zippor:
God is not a man, that he should lie: 19
Nor a son of Adam, that he should repent:
Hath he said, and shall he not do it?
Or spoken, and shall he not fulfil it?
Behold! I have received a command to 20 bless; [voke it.
For God hath blessed; and I cannot re-
'I behold" no trouble in Jacob, 21

3. To an open place] Where he might have a full prospect. I have followed the Sept. Alex. with Michaelis, Rosenmuller, and others; and עֵר in Syr. and Arab. denotes a place levelled and cleared of wood, an open place.

5. Put a word] Informed him what he should speak to Balak.

7. And he prophesied] I have preferred the sense to the idiom, as it is more clear, and as from the 5th verse God put the words into his mouth. Compare chap. xxiv. 2.

9. Be reckoned among the nations] They were to be separated from other nations both by their civil and religious institutions.

10. The multitude of Israel] With Houbigant and others, the Arabic sense of רב, is adopted as here most suitable. It is parallel with עֵר, dust-like seed, in the former line.—May I die] Some think Balaam alludes to the Israelites, calling them יְשׁוּעִים, 'righteous.' Michaelis maintains, that he refers to the hope of a future happy state, which God had made known to the Israelites.

- Nor do I see distress in Israel.
 Jehovah their God is with them,
 And to him they shout as their king.
 22 God, who brought them out of Egypt,
 Is to them as the strength of a rhinoceros.
 23 Surely there is no enchantment against Jacob,
 Nor is there any divination against Israel:
 But as at this time it shall be said of Jacob
 And of Israel, what hath God wrought!
 24 Lo, the people shall rise up as a lioness;
 And lift up themselves as a young lion,
 Who lieth not down until he hath eaten the prey,
 And hath drunk the blood of the slain.
 25 And Balak said to Balaam, Neither curse 26 them at all, nor bless them at all. But Balaam answered and said to Balak, Did I not tell thee saying, Whatsoever Jehovah speaketh, that I must do?

CHAPTER XXIV.

B. C. 1452. Balaam predicts the growing prosperity of Israel; the rise of their king, and what would happen to the Amalekites and Kenites.

- 27 AGAIN Balak said to Balaam, Come, I pray thee, I will bring thee to another place;
 perhaps it may please God that thou may-28 est thence curse them for me. And Balak brought Balaam to the top of Peor, that 29 looketh towards Jeshimon. And Balaam said to Balak, Build for me here seven altars, and prepare for me here seven steers 30 and seven rams. And Balak did as Balaam had said, and offered a steer and a ram on 1 each altar. And when Balaam saw that it pleased Jehovah to bless Israel, he went not, as at other times, to seek for omens, but he set his face towards the wilderness.
 2 And Balaam raised his eyes, and he saw Israel encamped according to their tribes;
 and the spirit of God came upon him.
 3 And he prophesied, and said,

Balaam, the son of Beor, saith;
 The man whose eyes are open saith;
 He saith who hath heard the words of God; 4
 Who hath seen the vision of the Almighty,
 Intranced, but with open eyes:
 How beautiful are thy tents, O Jacob, 5
 And thy tabernacles, O Israel!
 As vales "planted" with groves; 6
 Like gardens, by the side of a river:
 Like lign aloes planted by Jehovah;
 Like cedars, by water-streams!
 Water shall flow from the urn of Jacob 7
 And his seed shall become as many waters;
 Their king shall be higher than Agag,
 And his kingdom more highly exalted.
 God, who brought them forth out of Egypt, 8
 Is to them as the strength of the rhinoceros.
 The nations, their foes, they shall devour;
 And shall break in pieces their bones,
 And in their blood bathe their arrows.
 They couch, they lie down as a lion, 9
 Or as a lioness; who shall rouse them?
 And accursed be he that curseth them.

Balak's anger was now kindled against 10
 Balaam, so that he smote his hands together; and Balak said to Balaam, I called thee to curse mine enemies, and, behold, thou hast these three times wholly blessed them.
 Therefore now flee thou to thy place: I 11 thought to promote thee unto great honour; but, lo, Jehovah hath kept thee back from honour. Then Balaam said to Balak, Did 12
 I not thus speak to thy messengers whom thou sentest to me, saying, If Balak would 13 give me his house full of silver and gold, I cannot go beyond the commandment of Jehovah, to do of mine own mind either good or bad; but what Jehovah saith, that will I speak? And now, behold, I go to my 14 people: come, and I will inform thee what this people shall do to thy people in future days.

21. I behold] This reading of the Sam. and Syr. preserves the order of the narrative; and the two latter lines contain the reason of their happy circumstances. The common version is at variance with the whole narrative of Moses. How frequently are we told of their iniquities and perverseness!

22. Rhinoceros] Rendered Unicorn, in our translation here, and chap. xxiv. 8; Deut. xxxiii. 17; Job xxxix. 9; Psa. xxii. 21; xxxix. 6; xcii. 10; Isa. xxxiv. 7, &c. where the strength, horn, and violence of that creature are spoken of, in such terms, as are not applicable to any creature, but the rhinoceros. The head of one brought from South Africa, and now in the Museum of the London Missionary Society, confirms this version and opinion.

23. Delgado renders this verse: 'Surely there are no omens in Jacob, no divinations in Israel: at all times it shall be told unto Jacob and unto Israel what God is about to do.' Our old versions, and the Greek, and other ancient ones, support the common version.

CHAP. XXIV. 1. To seek for omens] As he had done before, chap. xxiii. 3, 15. It is evident from this, that Balaam was in fact a soothsayer, and called a prophet only, because that God made use of him to pronounce the blessing on his people, and to predict their future greatness, just as the high priest is said to prophesy, when he said,

'it is necessary that one should die for the people.' John xi. 49—52.

2. The spirit of God came] He had before been influenced by the same spirit, but now, without having recourse to omens, the spirit came upon him.

4. Intranced] Some refer what is here said to what happened to him on his journey, chap. xxii. 33.

6. As vales] The version given is more suitable to the context than the common one. This verse illustrates the former: 'How goodly are thy tents, O Jacob! They are like vales planted with groves, Like gardens, &c.' (v) Sam. Sept.

7. Urn of Jacob] Instead of the pronoun the noun is inserted as more perspicuous. Balaam, having mentioned water-streams, was naturally led to notice the sources from which they spring. This is what is meant by יַד, which after Geddes I have rendered 'urn.' The comparison of a numerous people to waters occurs, Psa. cxliv. 7; Jer. xlvii. 2.—Agag] This was probably the common name of the Amalekite kings, as Pharaoh was of those of Egypt. This comparison shows, that the kingdom of the Amalekites had then become powerful.

14. Inform thee] Or predict to thee; for the verb יַרְא has not only the sense of admonishing, or giving counsel, but also of foretelling.

- 15 And he prophesied, and said,
Balaam, the son of Beor, saith,
The man whose eyes are open saith :
16 He saith who hath heard the words of God ;
Who hath seen the visions of the Almighty ;
Intranced, but with open eyes :
17 I see it, though it will not be now :
I behold it, though the event is not near :
A star shall proceed from Jacob
And a sceptred chief rise out of Israel,
Who shall smite the two corners of Moab ;
And the "crown" of every son of sedition.
18 And Esau shall be his possession ;
Also Seir, his enemy, shall be his possession :
For Israel shall do valiantly.
19 One from Jacob shall have dominion
And shall destroy their remaining cities.
20 And when he looked on Amalek, he prophesied, and said, Amalek is the first of the nations ;
But his posterity shall utterly perish.
21 And he looked on the Kenites, and prophesied, and said,
Strong is thy dwelling-place,
And thou hast put thy nest in a rock.
22 Yet shall the nest be destroyed : [tive.
"And" at length Ashur shall take thee captive.
23 And he prophesied, and said,
Alas ! who shall live, when God doeth this ?
24 Who shall escape from the hand of the Chittites ? [Heber ;
They shall afflict Ashur, and shall afflict
But they also shall utterly perish.
25 Balaam then set out, to return to his place ;
and Balak also went his way.

17. I see it] By rendering the suffix him, the beauty and sense of this verse are obscured. The connexion requires the turn given, as the first two lines refer to the star, and the sceptre following.—Every son of sedition] With some distinguished critics I have rendered שׂוֹא or שׂוֹאָה as an appellative, as we no where read of such a people as the 'children of Sheth;' but we know that the Moabites were the most inveterate enemies of Israel, and might justly be called, sons of sedition. See Dathe's note. (v) Sam. Jer. xlviii. 45.

19. One from Jacob] This explains the two preceding verses. Many pious divines have referred what is here related to the Messiah; but surely this has been done without any regard to the context. If we consider what Balaam says in the 14th verse, this application will appear improbable. Others refer what is here said to David, who actually subdued the Moabites and other contiguous nations. See Bp. Newton on the Prophecies, and 2 Sam. viii. 2, 14.

20. The first of the nations] i. e. in antiquity, as well as in courage. Compare 1 Sam. xxvii. 8. and Gen. xiv. 8. They were the first who fought with Israel, Exod. xvii. 14. I have followed the Syr. in rendering אֲחֵרֵי 'his posterity.' The Greek translators agree in the same sense, and the context requires it.

22. Yet shall the nest] The Kenites were a tribe of Midianites. Moses married one of this race, Exod. iii. 1; and some of them followed the Israelites, and dwelt in Judea, Judg. i. 16; but the chief part remained among the Midianites, 1 Sam. xv. 6. The word Kenite signifies a nest. The reading of the Sept. is not improbable. (v) cunning of Ashur. Sept.

23. Alas ! who shall live] This refers to what follows, and not to the preceding prophecy.

24. Who shall escape] The Chittites denote both the

CHAPTER XXV.

B. C. 1452. The idolatry of the Israelites; Zimri and Cozbi slain.

AND Israel abode in Shittim, and the 1 people began to defile themselves with the 2 daughters of Moab. For they invited the 2 people to the sacrifices of their gods, and 3 the people ate of their sacrifices, and wor- 3 shipped their gods. And "some of the 3 people of" Israel wore the badges of Baal- 3 peor; and the anger of Jehovah was kind- 4 led against Israel. And Jehovah said to 4 Moses, Take all the heads of the people, 4 and "let them slay those men who have worn 4 the badges of Baal-peor" and hang them 4 up before Jehovah until sun-sitting, that 4 the fierce anger of Jehovah may be turned 5 away from Israel. And Moses said to the 5 judges of Israel, Slay ye, every one in his 5 own division, the men who have worn the 5 badges of Baal-peor.

And, behold, one Israelite came and 6 brought to his brethren a Midianitish 6 woman in the sight of Moses, and in the 6 sight of all the congregation of Israel, who 6 were weeping before the door of the con- 6 gregation-tabernacle. And when Phinehas, 7 the son of Eleazar, the son of Aaron the 7 priest, saw it, he rose up from among the 7 congregation, and took a javelin in his hand ; 7
And he went after the man of Israel into 8 the bedroom, and thrust both of them 8 through, the man of Israel, and the woman 8 in her bedroom: then the plague ceased

Greeks and the Romans. For the Jews called by this name all the places with which they were acquainted in the Mediterranean sea. The last clause shows the success of the Greeks and Romans, who for a long period were to humble and afflict Ashur and Heber, but who, in their turn, were to perish. The prediction has been wonderfully verified. For the text, see note, Heb. Bible.

CHAP. XXV. 1. Began to defile] The Greek translators render, 'the people profaned themselves with whoring with, &c.'

3. Some of the] That we should supply כִּבְרִי with the Sam. is clear from the following verse. For all the Israelites had not devoted themselves to the worship of Baal-peor.—Wore the badges of Baal-peor] By binding their heads with fillets to his honour, and thus openly avowing their idolatry. Michaelis proves that this is the sense of צִנּוֹר.

4. All the chiefs of the people] That the text has suffered in this verse cannot be doubted. If the רָאשֵׁי הָעָם are the same as the שְׂפָטֵי יִשְׂרָאֵל in the following verse, it is clear that the order to hang them up, is irreconcilable with their being appointed to slay those who had devoted themselves to the Moabites. By adding the Sam. to the text, the sense is clear and connected.

5. In his own division] That is, those men who were under them as magistrates.

8. In her bedroom] The term אֹמֶת, whence the word alcove is derived, means an 'interior apartment or bedroom;' and it is called her bedroom, because appropriated to cohabitation with her.

9. Twenty-four thousand] Paul refers to this history, 1 Cor. x. 8, where we read, that 'twenty-three thousand died by the plague.' Some suppose a thousand was slain by the judges; while others think both numbers existed in different copies.

9 among the Israelites. And those that died of the plague were twenty-four thousand.
 10 And Jehovah spoke to Moses, saying,
 11 Phinehas, the son of Eleazar, the son of Aaron the priest, hath turned away my wrath from the Israelites by the zeal which he hath shown among them, for my sake, that I might not consume the Israelites, in 12 my jealousy. Wherefore say, Behold, I
 13 give to him my covenant of peace: And he shall have it and his seed after him; the covenant of an everlasting priesthood; because he was zealous for his God, and made 14 an atonement for Israel. Now the name of the Israelite who was slain, who was slain with the Midianitish woman, was 15 Zimri, the son of Salu, a chief of a paternal house among the Simeonites: And the name of the Midianitish woman who was slain was Cozbi, the daughter of Zur; he was head over a people, and of a paternal house in Midian.
 16 And Jehovah spoke to Moses, saying,
 17 Distress the Midianites, and smite them;
 18 For they have distressed you by the wiles they have used to beguile you in the matter of Peor, and in the matter of Cozbi, their sister, the daughter of a prince of Midian, who was slain in the time of the plague on account of Peor.

CHAPTER XXVI.

B. C. 1452. The people are again numbered; and it was found that all those who had murmured were dead.

1 AND it came to pass after the plague, that Jehovah spoke to Moses and to Eleazar the 2 son of Aaron the priest, saying, Take the sum of all the congregation of Israel, from twenty years old and upward, throughout their fathers' house, all that are able to go
 3 to war in Israel. So Moses and Eleazar the priest numbered them in the plains of 4 Moab, by Jordan opposite Jericho, From twenty years old and upward; as Jehovah had commanded Moses: Now the Israelites who had come out of the land of Egypt were:

12. Covenant of peace] That is, I promise to him felicity and happiness; for so peace often signifies.

13. Covenant of a perpetual priesthood] The covenant here denotes the promise of the priesthood to his posterity. It must be understood conditionally, for Eli was not of this family. In the time of David, however, it was restored, and in this family probably continued till the advent of our Lord.—Because he was zealous] God knew that he acted out of love to him, and zeal for his honour; though the action itself was rash and unwarrantable, unless he had a divine commission, which does not seem unlikely, from the approbation with which God speaks of him, and his conduct.

CHAP. XXVI. 3. So Moses and Eleazar numbered] With Gaddes I give the Arabic sense to יריב, and omit למחר; and by this simple correction the text is restored, so as to need no Italic supplements.

7. And they that were numbered] This trihe, after 38 years, had diminished 2770 men. See chap. i.

Reuben, the first-born of Israel: the 5 sons of Reuben; from Hanoch, came the family of the Hanochites: from Pallu, the family of the Palluites: From Hezron, 6 the family of the Hezronites: from Carmi, the family of the Carmites. These are the 7 families of the Reubenites: and they that were numbered of them were forty-three thousand seven hundred and thirty. And 8 the son of Pallu, was Eliab. And the sons 9 of Eliab were, Nemuel, Dathan, and Abiram. This was the Dathan, and this the Abiram, who being of the council of the congregation, contended with Moses and Aaron in the company of Korah; when they so provoked Jehovah, That the earth opened 10 her mouth, and swallowed them up; and when this company died, a fire devoured 11
 'Korah and the two hundred and fifty men.' Thus they became an example. Neverthe- 11 less the children of Korah died not.

The sons of Simeon, by their families: 12 from Nemuel came the family of the Nemuelites: from Jamin, the family of the Jaminites: from Jachin, the family of the Jachinites: from Zerah, the family of the 13 Zerahites: from Shaul, the family of the Shaulites. These are the families of the 14
 Simeonites, twenty-two thousand and two hundred.

The sons of Gad by their families: from 15
 Zephon, came the family of the Zephonites: from Haggai, the family of the Haggites: from Shuni, the family of the Shunites: From Ozni, the family of the Oznites: from 16
 'Eli' the family of the Edites; From Arod, 17 the family of the Arodites: from Areli, the family of the Arelites. These are the fami- 18 lies of the children of Gad according to those that were numbered of them, forty thousand and five hundred.

The sons of Judah were Er and Onan; 19 but Er and Onan died in the land of Canaan. And the sons of Judah by their fami- 20 lies were; from Shelah came the family of the Shelahites: from Pharez, the family of the Pharezites: from Zerah, the family of the

10. A fire devoured Korah] The present Hebrew text makes Korah descend into the earth with the Reubenites, while the Sam. asserts he was destroyed by fire, with his brethren the Levites. Compare chap. xvi. 6, &c. Josephus agrees with the Sam. as does also the Psalmist, (cvi. 17.) who mentions only Dathan and Abiram, as swallowed up and not burnt. That this is the genuine reading, is mostly admitted. (†) Sam.

12. Nemuel] We have Gen. xlii. 10, and Exod. vi. 15, Jamiel. There can be little doubt but the true name is here retained; as the families sprung from him are called נמיאל. Houbigant is of this opinion; and for the same reason he judges יריב preferable to יריב and זריב.

15. In the Greek version, the tribe of Judah comes after that of Simeon; then Issachar and Zebulun; and then Gad and Asher. It has also some variety in the particular numbers: but the sum total is the same in all the copies and versions.

16. (†) Sam. Syr. others Eri.

- 23 The sons of Issachar by their families: from Tola came the family of the Tolaites:
- 24 from Pua, the family of the Puhites: From Jashub, the family of the Jashubites: from Shimron, the family of the Shimronites.
- 25 These are the families of Issachar according to those that were numbered of them, sixty-four thousand and three hundred.
- 26 The sons of Zebulun by their families: from Sered came the family of the Sardites: from Elon, the family of the Elonites: from Jahleel, the family of the Jahleelites.
- 27 These are the families of the Zebulunites according to those that were numbered of them, sixty thousand and five hundred.
- 28 The sons of Joseph by their families were,

- 31 family of the Helekites: And from Asriel, the family of the Asrielites; and from She-
- 32 chem, the family of the Shechemites: And from Shemida, the family of the Shemidaites: and from Hephher, the family of the Hephherites.
- 33 Zelophehad the son of Hephher had no sons, but daughters: and the names of the daughters of Zelophehad were Mahlah, and
- 34 Nanah, Hoglah, Milcah, and Tirzah. These are the families of Manasseh, and those that were numbered of them, were fifty-two thousand and seven hundred.
- 35 These are the sons of Ephraim by their families: from Shuthelah came the family of the Shuthelahites: from Becher, the family of the Becherites: from Tahan, the
- 36 family of the Tahanites. And these are the sons of Shuthelah: from Eran, the family
- 37 of the Eranites. These are the families of the sons of Ephraim according to those that were numbered of them, thirty-two thousand and five hundred. These are the sons of Joseph by their families.
- 38 The sons of Benjamin by their families: from Bela, came the family of the Belaites: from Ashbel, the family of the Ashbelites: from Ahiram, the family of the Ahiramites:
- 39 From Shupham, the family of the Shuphamites: from Hupham, the family of the Huphamites. From Ard, the family of the 40 Ardites: from Naaman, the family of the Naamanites. These are the sons of Benjamin by their families: and they that were numbered of them were forty-five thousand and six hundred.

These are sons of Dan by their families: 42 from 'Hushim, came the family of the Hushimites." These are the families of Dan by their families. All the families of the Hu- 43 shimites, according to those that were numbered of them, were sixty-four thousand and four hundred.

The sons of Asher by their families: from 44 Jimna, the family of the Jimnites: from Jesui, the family of the Jesuites; from Beriah, the family of the Beriahites. From 45 the sons of Beriah: from Heber, the family of the Heberites: from Malchiel, the family of the Malchielites. And the name of the 46 daughter of Asher was Sarah. These are 47 the families of the sons of Asher according to those that were numbered of them; fifty-three thousand and four hundred.

The sons of Naphtali by their families: 48 from Jahzeel, the family of the Jahzeelites: from Guni, the family of the Gunites: From 49 Jezer, the family of the Jezerites: from Shillem, the family of the Shillemites. These 50 are the families of Naphtali by their families: and they that were numbered of them were forty-five thousand and four hundred. These numbered of the Israelites, were six 51 hundred and one thousand seven hundred and thirty.

And Jehovah spoke to Moses, saying, 52 Unto these the land shall be divided for an 53 inheritance according to the number of names. To many thou shalt give the more 54 inheritance, and to few thou shalt give the less inheritance; to every one shall his inheritance be given according to those that were numbered of him. Notwithstanding 55 the land shall be divided by lot: according to the names of the tribes of their fathers they shall inherit. According to the lot shall the 56 inheritance be divided between the many and the few.

And these are they that were numbered 57 of the Levites by their families: from Gershon, the family of the Gershonites: from Kohath, the family of the Kohathites: from Merari, the family of the Merarites. These 58 are the families of the Levites: the family of the Libnites, the family of the Hebronites, the family of the Mahlites, the family of the Mushites, the family of the Korathites. And Kohath begot Amram. And the name of 59

40. That לֹא־רָד should be admitted after נִעְמָן is clear from the order observed throughout the chapter. For we have first the name of the person and then of the descendants. I am inclined to consider the first clause of this verse an early 170 interpolation. It is wanting in the Sam. but found in all the versions. Compare Gen. xvi. 21.

59. Who was born] From Exod. ii. 1, compared with chap. vi. 20, it appears that Amram married his aunt Joche-

Amram's wife was Jochebed, the daughter of Levi, who "was born" to Levi in Egypt: and she bare to Amram, Aaron and Moses, 60 and Miriam their sister. And to Aaron was born Nadab and Abihu, Eleazar and 51 Ithamar. And Nadab and Abihu died, when they offered profane fire before Je- 52 hovah: And those that were numbered of them were twenty-three thousand, all males from a month old and upward: for they were not numbered among the children of Israel, because there was no inheritance given them among the children of Israel.

3 These are they that were numbered by Moses and Eleazar the priest, who numbered the Israelites in the plains of Moab, 4 by the Jordan near Jericho. And among these there was not a man whom Moses, and Aaron the priest, numbered, when they numbered the Israelites in the wilderness of 5 Sinai. For Jehovah had said of them, They shall surely die in the wilderness. And there was not left a man of them, save Caleb the son of Jephunneh, and Joshua the son of Nun.

CHAPTER XXVII.

C. 1452. Zelophehad's daughters sue for an inheritance; Moses warned of his death, and Joshua appointed his successor.

Now the daughters of Zelophehad, the son of Hopher, the son of Gilead, the son of Machir, the son of Joseph, (and these are the names of his daughters; Mahlah, Nanah, and Hoglah, and Milcah, and Tirzah,) came, And they stood before Moses, and before Eleazar the priest, and before the chiefs and the whole congregation, at the congregation-tabernacle, and said, Our father died in the wilderness; yet he was not in the company of those who, with the company of Korah, assembled together against Jehovah; but died for his own sin, and had no sons. Why should the name of our father be done away from among his family, because he hath no son? Give to us therefore a possession among the brethren of our father. And Moses brought their cause before Jehovah.

And Jehovah spoke to Moses, saying, The daughters of Zelophehad speak right:

ed, she being the sister of his father Kohath, and the daughter of his grandfather Levi. I have followed the versions noticed in rendering the clause, as the common reading is embarrassed, if not unmeaning.

CHAP. XXVII. 3. But died for his own sin It has been doubted whether these words refer to Zelophehad, or to Korah. Rosenmüller refers them to Korah. If the Sam. action be admitted it overturns this opinion, as it limits the terms to Zelophehad, their father. On the whole the sense seems to be, Zelophehad had died without sons, and the sin or which he died was unbelief, a sin common to all the Israelites.

4. Why should the name This was very commendable in these young women, it showed great faith in God's pro-thou shalt surely give them a possession of an inheritance among their father's brethren; and thou shalt transfer the inheritance of their father to them. And thou shalt speak 8 to the Israelites, saying, If a man die, and have no son, then ye shall transfer his inheritance to his daughter. And if he have 9 no daughter, then ye shall give his inheritance to his brethren. And if he have no 10 brethren, then ye shall give his inheritance to his father's brethren. And if his father 11 have no brethren, then ye shall give his inheritance to his next kinsman of his family, and he shall possess it: and it shall be to the Israelites a statute of judgment, as Jehovah hath commanded Moses.

Jehovah then said to Moses, Go up to 12 this mount Abarim, and see the land which I am about to give to Israel. And when 13 thou hast seen it, thou shalt be gathered to thy people, as Aaron thy brother was gathered. For in the wilderness of Zin, in 14 the strife of the congregation, ye rebelled, instead of sanctifying me before their eyes at the waters. These were the waters of Meribah, in Kadesh, in the wilderness of Zin. *Moses then said, O Lord God, thou hast begun to show thy servant thy greatness, and thy mighty power; for what God is there in the heavens, or on the earth that can do such mighty deeds as thou hast done? Let me, I pray thee, go over, and see that good land which is beyond the Jordan, that excellent mountainous country, and Lebanon. But Jehovah said to Moses, Let it suffice thee; speak no more unto me of this matter. Go up to the top of Pisgah, and raise thine eyes and look westward, and northward, and southward, and eastward, and behold it with thine eyes: for over this Jordan shalt thou not go. But charge Joshua, and encourage him, and strengthen him; for he shall go over before this people, and he shall cause them to inherit the land which thou shalt only see."

Moses now spoke to Jehovah, saying, 15 May Jehovah, the God of the spirits of all 16 flesh, set a man over the congregation, Who may go out before them, and who may 17 come in before them, and who may lead them forth, and who may bring them back;

mise to bring them to Canaan, and great respect to their father, in desiring to have his name continued.

11. To his next kinsman In the law respecting inheritances, the right is continued to the father's side only, that the land allotted to one tribe might not be transferred to another. Compare chap. xxxvi.

12. Go up to this mount Abarim This was a range of mountains, of considerable extent, near the rivers Jordan and Arnon. Nebo was one particular mountain, and Pisgah the highest top of it.

14. The verses which the Sam. copy now has, chap. xx. 13, Geddes transposes here as most suitable to the context; and no one can scarcely doubt, but they once formed a part of the text.

that the congregation of Jehovah be not like a flock which has no shepherd.

- 18 And Jehovah said to Moses, Take Joshua the son of Nun, a man in whom is the spirit, and lay thine hand upon him; And set him before Eleazar the priest, and before the whole congregation; and give to him a charge in their sight. And thou shalt give to him of thine honour, that to him the whole congregation of Israel may be obedient. And he shall stand before Eleazar the priest, who shall inquire for him before Jehovah, by means of the Urim; at whose command they shall go out, and at whose command they shall come in; both he, and all the Israelites with him, even the whole congregation. And Moses did as Jehovah had commanded him: for he took Joshua and set him before Eleazar the priest, and before the whole congregation; And he laid his hands upon him, and gave him a charge, as Jehovah commanded him: "and said to him, Thine eyes have seen what Jehovah hath done to these two kings! so will he do to all the kingdoms through which thou hast to pass: be not afraid of them: for Jehovah your God, himself will fight for you."

CHAPTER XXVIII.

B. C. 1452. Laws respecting sacrifices; the daily offering; offerings for the sabbath, new moon, passover, &c.

- 1 AGAIN Jehovah spoke to Moses, saying, 2 Command the Israelites, and say unto them; My burnt-offerings, my food, of a sweet savour to me, shall ye observe to offer to me at their appointed seasons. And thou shalt say to them, This is the burnt-offering which ye shall offer to Jehovah; two lambs of the first year, without spot day by day, 4 for a continual burnt-offering. One lamb shall ye offer in the morning, and the other 5 lamb shall ye offer in the evening; And for a wheaten-offering, a tenth part of an ephah of flour, mingled with the fourth part of a hin of fresh oil: A continual burnt-offering which was ordained at mount Sinai; as a burnt-offering of a sweet savour to Jehovah. 7 And the drink-offering for each lamb shall be the fourth part of a hin "of wine:" in the holy place shall the wine be poured out to 8 Jehovah, for a drink-offering. And the other lamb shall ye offer in the evening: and ye shall offer the same wheaten-offering and drink-offering as burnt-offering of a sweet savour to Jehovah. But on the sabbath day shall be offered, of the first and two tenths of an ephah of wheaten-offering, mingled with oil, for a burnt-offering, and its drink-offering.

And in the beginning of the year shall offer a burnt-offering of two steers and one ram, seven years, without spot; A ephah of flour for a wheaten-offering, mingled with oil, for each ram; And of one tenth of flour for each lamb; for a burnt-offering of a sweet savour to Jehovah. And the drink-offerings shall be half a hin for a steer, and the third part for a ram, and the fourth part for a lamb. This burnt-offering shall be offered from month to month, throughout the year; And one to Jehovah, besides the drink-offering, and its drink-offering, the fourteenth day of the month of Jehovah's passover. And on the first day of this month shall be offered unleavened bread: the first day shall be a holy convocation; and ye shall do no man's work. But ye shall offer as a burnt-offering to Jehovah, two steers, and one ram, of the first year, without blemish; And a tenth part of an ephah of flour, mingled with oil, for a burnt-offering, and its drink-offering, shall ye offer each of the seven days of the month for a sin-offering, to make atonement for you. Ye shall offer a drink-offering in the morning burnt-offering, and its drink-offering, a continual burnt-offering throughout the year, throughout the year of the burnt-offering to Jehovah: it shall be a continual burnt-offering, and its drink-offering. And on the seventh day of the month shall be a holy convocation; and ye shall do no man's work.

19. Give to him a charge] Instruct him and teach him the duties of his office; encourage and animate him to perform them.

20. Give to him of thine honour] That is, invest him with the ensigns of power and authority, that the people may honour him as they do thee, 1 Chron. xxix. 25.

23. (a) Sam. Deut. iv. 21.

CHAP. XXVIII. 2. My burnt-offerings, my food] Our translators have rendered, 'my bread for my sacrifices made by fire.' But לֶחֶם [lechem] victims, or other offerings, fire to feed it.

7. Hin of wine] Houbi dropped after יֵהוּ, which tained in the Vulg. and Syr.

16. See Exodus xii. and there.

26. See Leviticus xxiii.

26 Also on the day of the first-fruits, when after your seven weeks ye bring a new wheaten-offering to Jehovah, ye shall have a holy convocation; on it ye shall do no servile work: But ye shall offer as a burnt-offering of a sweet savour to Jehovah, two steers, one ram, seven lambs of the first year; And their wheaten-offering of flour mingled with oil, three tenths of an ephah for each steer, and two tenths for each ram. 29 And one tenth for each lamb, for each of the seven lambs; And one goat, "for a sin-offering" to make an atonement for you. 31 Besides the continual burnt-offering, and its wheaten-offering, ye shall offer these with their drink-offerings: without blemish they shall be.

CHAPTER XXIX.

3. C. 1452. Offerings at the feast of trumpets, and at the feast of booths.

AND on the seventh month, on the first day of the month, ye shall have a holy convocation; on it ye shall do no servile work: it is a day of blowing the trumpets unto you. And ye shall offer as a burnt-offering of a sweet savour to Jehovah, one steer, one ram, and seven lambs, of the first year, without blemish: And their wheaten-offerings shall be of flour mingled with oil, three tenths of an ephah for a steer, and two tenths for the ram, And one tenth for each lamb, for each of the seven lambs: And one goat for a sin-offering, to make an atonement for you: Besides the burnt-offering of the month, and its wheaten-offering, and the daily burnt offering, and its wheaten-offering, and their drink-offerings, according to their manner, for a burnt-offering of a sweet savour to Jehovah.

7 And on the tenth day of this seventh month ye shall have a holy convocation; and ye shall humble yourselves: on it ye shall not do any work: But ye shall offer a burnt-offering to Jehovah of a sweet savour; one steer, one ram, and seven lambs of the first year; they shall be without blemish: 9 And their wheaten-offering shall be of flour mingled with oil, three tenths of an ephah for the steer, and two tenths for the ram, 10 And one tenth for each lamb, for each of the seven lambs: One goat, for a sin-offering; besides the sin-offering of atonement, and the continual burnt-offering, and its wheaten-offering and their drink-offerings.

And on the fifteenth of the "same" seventh 12 month, ye shall have a holy convocation; on it ye shall do no servile work; but ye shall keep a feast to Jehovah seven days: And ye shall offer a burnt-offering, of a 13 sweet savour to Jehovah; thirteen steers, two rams, and fourteen lambs of the first year; they shall be without blemish: And 14 their wheaten-offerings shall be of flour mingled with oil, three tenths of an ephah for every steer of the thirteen steers, two tenths for each of the two rams, And one 15 tenth for every one of the fourteen lambs: And one goat for a sin-offering; besides the 16 continual burnt-offering, and its wheaten-offering, and its drink-offering.

And on the second day ye shall offer 17 twelve steers, two rams, fourteen lambs, of the first year, without blemish; And their 18 wheaten-offerings and their drink-offerings for the steers, for the rams, and for the lambs, shall be according to their number, after the manner prescribed: And one goat for a sin- 19 offering; besides the continual burnt-offerings and their wheaten-offerings, and their drink-offerings.

And on the third day eleven steers, two 20 rams, fourteen lambs, of the first year, without blemish; And their wheaten-offerings, 21 and their drink-offerings for the steers, for the rams, and for the lambs, shall be according to their number, after the manner prescribed: And one goat for a sin-offering; 22 besides the continual burnt-offering, with its wheaten-offering, and its drink-offering.

And on the fourth day ten steers, two 23 rams, and fourteen lambs, of the first year, without blemish: Their wheaten-offerings, 24 and their drink-offerings for the steers, for the rams, and for the lambs, shall be according to their number, after the manner prescribed: And one goat for a sin-offering; 25 besides the continual burnt-offering, with its wheaten-offering and its drink-offering.

And on the fifth day nine steers, two rams, 26 and fourteen lambs, of the first year, without blemish; And their wheaten-offerings 27 and their drink-offerings for the steers, for the rams, and for the lambs, shall be according to their number, after the manner prescribed: And one goat for a sin-offering, 28 besides the continual burnt-offering, with its wheaten-offering, and its drink-offering.

And on the sixth day eight steers, two 29 rams, and fourteen lambs, of the first year, without blemish; And their wheaten-offer- 30

CHAP. XXIX. 1. Seventh month] Of the ecclesiastical year, respecting which see Exodus xii. 2; but the first month of the civil year. Compare Levit. xxiii. 24, and Numb. x. 5.

7. Humble yourselves] This expiation-fast is at Aleppo kept by the Jews with the greatest punctuality. It is a fast of twenty-four hours complete; and women with child, or sick persons, who are exempt on other occasions, will hardly accept of a dispensation on this day. See Levit. vi. 29, and xxiii. 27.

12. On the fifteenth day] See Levit. xxiii. 34. What follows contains an account of the offerings to be presented to God, each of the days the Feast of Booths lasted; and as it is a mere repetition requires no illustration. (a) Sam.

- ings, and their drink-offerings for the steers, for the rams, and for the lambs, shall be according to their number, after the manner prescribed; And one goat for a sin-offering; besides the continual burnt-offering, with its wheaten-offering, and its drink-offering.
- 32 And on the seventh day seven steers, two rams, and fourteen lambs, of the first year, without blemish: And their wheaten-offerings, and their drink-offerings for the steers, for the rams, and for the lambs, shall be according to their number, after the manner prescribed: And one goat for a sin-offering; besides the continual burnt-offering, with its wheaten-offering, and its drink-offering.
- 35 On the eighth day ye shall have a solemn assembly: on it ye shall do no servile work:
- 36 But ye shall offer a burnt-offering of a sweet savour to Jehovah; one steer, one ram, seven lambs, of the first year, without blemish; Their wheaten-offerings and their drink-offerings for the steer, for the ram, and for the lambs, shall be according to their number, after the manner prescribed:
- 38 And one goat for a sin-offering, besides the continual burnt-offering, with its wheaten-offering, and its drink-offering. These are what ye shall offer at your stated feasts to Jehovah, for your burnt-offerings, your wheaten-offerings, and your drink-offerings, and your feast-sacrifices, besides your vows
- 40 and your free-will offerings. And Moses told the Israelites according to all that Jehovah had commanded him.

CHAPTER XXX.

B. C. 1452. On vows and obligations.

- 1 AGAIN Moses spoke to the heads of the tribes of Israel, saying, This is the thing which Jehovah hath commanded. If a man make a vow to Jehovah, or swear an oath to bind himself under an obligation; he shall not break his word; he shall do according to all that proceedeth out of his mouth.
- 3 If a woman also make a vow to Jehovah, and bind herself under an obligation, being in her father's house, in her youth; And her father hear of her vow, and of her obligation by which she hath bound herself, and her father by silence shall consent; then all her vows shall stand, and every obligation by which she hath bound herself shall stand; But if her father "expressly" disallow her on the day that he heareth of it; not any of her vows, or of her obligations by which she hath bound herself, shall stand; and Jehovah shall forgive her, because her father disalloweth her. If, when she was married, she was under a vow, or had uttered aught with her lips, by which she hath bound herself; And if her husband when he heard of it, by silence consented; then her vows shall stand, and her obligations by which she bound herself shall stand: But if her husband "expressly" disallow her on the day that he heareth of it; then he shall make her vow which she vowed, and that which she uttered with her lips, by which she bound herself, of none effect; and Jehovah shall forgive her. But every vow of a widow, and of one divorced, by which they have bound themselves, shall stand good against them. And if a woman while in her husband's house make a vow, or bind herself by an oath to any obligation; And if her husband hear of it, and by silence consent, and disallow her not; then all her vows shall stand, and every obligation by which she bound herself shall stand; But if her husband expressly made them void on the day he heard of them; then whatsoever proceeded out of her lips with respect to her vows, or her obligations, shall not stand: her husband hath made them void; and Jehovah shall forgive her. Every vow, and every binding oath to humble herself, her husband may establish, or her husband may make void. But if her husband continue silent from day to day; he then establisheth all her vows, and all her obligations, which are upon her: he confirmeth them, because by silence he consented on the day that he heard of them. But if he shall any ways make them void after that he hath heard of them; then he shall bear her iniquity. These are the statutes, which Jehovah commanded Moses, between a man and his wife, between the father and his daughter, being yet in her youth in her father's house.

CHAPTER XXXI.

B. C. 1452. The Midianites conquered; Balaam slain, and how the spoil obtained is to be divided.

AGAIN Jehovah spoke to Moses, saying, 1 Avenge the Israelites on the Midianites; 2 afterward shalt thou be gathered to thy people. And Moses spoke to the people, 3 saying, Arm some of yourselves for the war, and let them go against the Midianites, and avenge Jehovah on the Midianites. Out 4 of every tribe, of all the tribes of Israel, ye shall send a thousand to the war. So 5 there were selected from the thousands of CHAP. XXX. 3. The vows noticed in this chapter are of two kinds; 1. Vows by which something was devoted to God, as a victim, or land. 2. Vows of abstinence, by which a person bound himself not to eat or drink of certain things. 5, 8. (a) Sam. Sept.

15. Shall bear her iniquity] He shall suffer the punishment due for the neglect of performing the vow; as in effect the crime is his.

CHAP. XXXI. 5. Twelve thousand] This was but a small army; but it appears that it was not the design of Israel, a thousand from each tribe, twelve 6 thousand armed for war. And Moses sent them to the war, a thousand from each tribe, with Phinehas the son of Eleazar the priest; who had with him the holy instruments, even the trumpets to sound with.

7 And they warred against the Midianites, as Jehovah had commanded Moses; and they 8 slew every male. And among the slain they slew these kings of Midian; Evi, and Rekem, and Zur, and Hur, and Reba, five kings of Midian: Balaam also the son of 9 Beor they slew with the sword. And the Israelites took all the women of Midian captives, and their little ones; and they made a spoil of all their cattle, and all their flocks, 10 and all their goods. And all their cities, and their strong-holds in which they had dwelt, 11 they burned with fire. But all the spoil, and all the prey, both of men and of beasts 12 they took away. And they brought the captives, and the prey, and the spoil, to Moses, and Eleazar the priest, and to the "whole" congregation of Israel, to the camp on the plains of Moab, by the Jordan, over against Jericho.
13 And Moses, and Eleazar the priest, and all the chiefs of the congregation, went forth 14 to meet them without the camp. And Moses was wroth with the officers of the host; with the captains over thousands, and captains over hundreds, who had come 15 from the war. And Moses said to them,
"Why" have ye saved all the women alive?
16 Behold, they caused the Israelites, by the counsel of Balaam, to commit a trespass against Jehovah in the matter of Peor; and there was a plague among the congre-17 gation of Jehovah. Now therefore kill every male among the little ones, and kill every woman that hath carnally known man.
18 But all the women children, who have not carnally known man, keep alive for your-19 selves. And do ye abide without the camp seven days: whosoever hath killed any person, and whosoever hath touched any slain, he shall purify himself on the third day, and on the seventh day. Yourselves 20 and your captives, and every kind of raiment; every thing made of skin, of goats' hair and of wood, ye shall purify. "Now Moses had said to Eleazar the priest, Say to those men who have returned from the war, that this is the ordinance of the law which Jehovah commandeth. Only gold, and silver, brass, iron, tin, and lead; Whatsoever can bear the fire, ye shall make to pass through the fire, and it shall be clean;

yet it shall be purified with the purification-water; and whatsoever cannot bear the fire, ye shall only pass through the water. And ye shall wash your clothes on the seventh day, and be clean, and afterward ye may come into the camp."

And Eleazar the priest said to the men 21 who had come from the war, This is the ordinance of the law which Jehovah hath commanded Moses; Only gold, and silver, 22 brass, iron, tin, and lead; Whatsoever can 23 bear the fire, ye shall make to pass through the fire, and it shall be clean; yet it shall be purified with the purification-water; and whatsoever cannot bear the fire ye shall make to pass through the water. And ye 24 shall wash your clothes on the seventh day, and ye shall be clean, and afterward ye may come into the camp.

Jehovah also spoke to Moses, saying, 25
Take the sum of the prey which hath been 26 taken; both of man and of beast; thou, and Eleazar the priest, and the paternal chiefs of the congregation, And divide the 27 prey into two parts; between those who engaged in the war and went out to battle, and the whole congregation: Then, from 28 their half, who went forth to the war, levy as a tribute for Jehovah, one out of every five hundred, both of the persons, and of the beeves, and of the asses, and of the sheep;
And give it unto Eleazar the priest, for a 29

Moses to attack all the Midianites. Those only who were contiguous to the camp of Israel were now vanquished.

6. The holy instruments] Critics are not agreed what these holy vessels or instruments were, which Eleazar carried with him to the war. Spencer contends that the Urim and Thummin are meant; while Geddes conjectures that the ark and its appurtenances may be thus called. Le Clerc thinks the trumpets only are meant; and that we should render the following even. "The holy instruments, even the trumpets to blow in his hand." This is the most probable opinion.

7. Slew all the males] In ancient times it seems to have been the usual custom in war to slay the men, and take the women and children captives. According to Euripides, the Greeks thus treated the Trojans. Indeed war among the oriental nations has been carried on in the most san-guinary manner in all ages. 12. (a) Sam. MSS.

16—18. Infidelity has reflected on the order of Moses as equally unjust and cruel.—It may be answered, that his conduct towards the women may be vindicated from reasons of policy; but I freely confess it is difficult to justify the order to slay all the unoffending male children. The same principle ought to have been adopted towards the male as the female children. It is not said that the Lord gave Moses this order; and is it improper to believe, that in this affair Moses acted solely from his sense of policy?

20. The order of Moses to Eleazar as now contained in the Sam. is admitted as genuine. Eleazar seems to act from his own authority, unless we admit that he received from Moses the order noticed. The conclusion of the 21st verse asserts that Moses had received such a command from the Lord; and it is natural to infer, that the command which he had received, he also delivered to Eleazar. (a) Sam.

24. Wash your clothes] An ablution of this kind was usual among both the Greeks and Romans. See Æneid, ii. 718, and the Scholiast on Sophocles.

28. And levy a tribute] The congregation were to have a share, because the warriors went out in their name, and to make some reparation for what they had suffered by the Midianites. This was done by particular directions, and so all contests were prevented

30 heave-offering to Jehovah. And of the half of the Israelites, thou shalt take one portion of fifty, of the persons, of the beeves, of the asses, and of the flocks, of all kinds of beasts, and give them to the Levites, who keep the charge of the tabernacle of Jehovah. And Moses and Eleazar the priest did as Jehovah commanded Moses. Now the booty, and what was left of the prey which the men of war had seized, was six hundred and seventy five thousand sheep, And seventy thousand beeves, And sixty-one thousand asses. And thirty-two thousand persons in all; of women who had not carnally known man. And the half, which was the portion of those who went out to the war, was in number three hundred and thirty-seven thousand and five hundred sheep: And Jehovah's tribute of the sheep was six hundred and seventy-five. And the beeves were thirty six thousand; of which Jehovah's tribute was seventy-two. And the asses were thirty thousand and five hundred; of which Jehovah's tribute was sixty-one. And the persons were sixteen thousand; of whom Jehovah's tribute was thirty-two persons. And Moses gave the tribute, which was Jehovah's heave-offering, to Eleazar the priest, as Jehovah had commanded him. And out of the half of the Israelites, which Moses took from the men who had gone to the war, Which half belonging to the congregation was three hundred and thirty-seven thousand and five hundred sheep, And thirty-six thousand beeves; Also thirty thousand and five hundred asses, With sixteen thousand persons; Even of Israel's half, Moses took one portion of fifty, both of men and of the cattle and gave them to the Levites, who kept the charge of the tabernacle of Jehovah; as Jehovah had commanded him.

48 And the officers who were over thousands of the host, the captains of thousands, and captains of hundreds, came near to Moses; And they said to Moses, Thy servants have taken the sum of the men of war who are under our charge, and there wanteth not one man of us. We have therefore brought as an oblation for Jehovah, whatsoever any hath found, utensils of gold, chains, and bracelets, rings, earrings, and tablets, to make an atonement for our lives before Jehovah. And Moses and Eleazar the priest took of them the gold, even all the wrought utensils. And the whole gold of the offering which the captains of thousands and the captains of hundreds offered to Jehovah was sixteen thousand seven hundred and fifty shekels; Which the men of war had taken as spoil, every one for himself. And Moses and Eleazar the priest took the gold of the captains of thousands and of hundreds, and brought it into the tabernacle of the congregation, for a memorial for the Israelites before Jehovah.

CHAPTER XXXII.

B. C. 1452. The Reubenites and Gadites sue for, and have their portion of land assigned them beyond the Jordan.

Now the Reubenites and the Gadites "and the half tribe of Manasseh" had a very great multitude of cattle; and when they saw that the land of Jazer, and the land of Gilead, were places fit for cattle, The Gadites, and the Reubenites, "and the half tribe of Manasseh," came and spoke to Moses, and to Eleazar the priest, and to the chiefs of the congregation, saying, Ataroth, and Dibon, and Jazer, and Nimrah, and Heshbon, and Elealeh, and Shebam, and Nebo, and Beon, The country which Jehovah hath smitten before the congregation of Israel, is a land fit for cattle; and thy servants have cattle: Wherefore, said they, if we have found favour in thy sight, let this land be given to thy servants for a possession, and let us not pass over the Jordan.

And Moses said to the Gadites and to the Reubenites, "and to the half tribe of Manasseh," Shall your brethren go to war, and shall ye abide here? And why would ye discourage the Israelites from going over into the land which Jehovah hath given to them? Thus did your fathers, when I sent them from Kadesh-barnea to see the land. For when they had gone up to the valley of Eshcol, and seen the land, they so discouraged the Israelites, that they would not go into the land which Jehovah had given to them. And at that time the anger of Jehovah was kindled, so that he swore saying, Not one of those men who came up out of Egypt, from twenty years old and upward,

49. Not one of us] The reason which they gave was very remarkable, 'they had not lost one man.' This would be a great encouragement to them in their wars against the Canaanites.

CHAP. XXXII. 1. Half tribe of Manasseh] From a comparison of Deut. iii. and Joshua xiii. it is certain, that the half tribe of Manasseh had an inheritance beyond the Jordan. This circumstance justifies the Sam. lection. The words לחצי שבט מנשה must have been early omitted, as there is no vestige of it in any of the versions. The request they made was natural, and the whole region between Gilead and the Euphrates was a sort of common exceedingly fit for pasturage. No wonder then that the Reubenites and Gadites, who had a very great number of cattle, particularly of sheep and goats, desired to fix their residence in that land.

4. Jehovah hath smitten] The victories Israel had obtained are ascribed to the hand of Jehovah. 6. (a) Sam.

12. The Kenazite] Of the race of Kenaz, of the tribe of Judah. Compare Joshua xv. 17; Judg. i. 13. The Greek translators took it for an appellative, and rendered, the distinguished; a very proper epithet for Caleb, who had so particularly distinguished himself in the affair of the spies.

shall see the land which I swore to Abraham, to Isaac, and to Jacob that I would give it to them; because they refused to follow 12 me; Save Caleb the son of Jephunneh the Kenazite, and Joshua the son of Nun; because they have wholly followed Jehovah. 13 And Jehovah's anger was kindled against Israel, and he made them wander in the wilderness forty years, until that whole generation, which had done evil in the sight 14 of Jehovah, was consumed. And, behold, ye are risen up in the room of your fathers, a progeny of sinful men, to augment yet the fierce anger of Jehovah towards Israel. 15 For if ye turn away from him, he will yet again leave Israel in the wilderness; and ye will destroy all this people. 16 And they came near to him, and said, We will build sheepfolds here for our cattle, 17 and cities for our little ones: But we ourselves will go ready armed before the Israelites until we have brought them to their place; and our little ones shall dwell in the fenced cities because of the inhabitants of 18 the land. We will not return to our houses, until the Israelites do each one possess his 19 inheritance. For among them we will not inherit on the other side of the Jordan; if our inheritance fall to us on this east side of the Jordan. 20 And Moses said unto them, If ye will do this thing, if ye will keep yourselves armed 21 before Jehovah for war; And if every one of you will pass over the Jordan, armed before Jehovah, until he hath driven out his 22 enemies from before him, And the land be subdued before Jehovah: then afterward ye shall return and be guiltless before Jehovah, and before Israel: and this land shall be your possession in the presence of 23 Jehovah. But if ye do not thus, behold, ye sin against Jehovah; and be sure your 24 sin will find you out. Build cities for your little ones, and folds for your flocks; and what hath proceeded from your mouths do. 25 And the Gadites and the Reubenites, "and the half tribe of Manasseh" spoke to Moses, saying, Thy servants will do as my lord 26 commandeth. Our little ones, our wives, our flocks, and all our cattle, shall be there 27 in the cities of Gilead: But thy servants will pass over, every man armed for war, before Jehovah to battle, as my lord saith. So concerning them Moses commanded 28 Eleazar the priest, and Joshua the son of Nun, and the paternal chiefs of the tribes of Israel: And Moses said to them, If the 29 Gadites and the Reubenites, "and the half tribe of Manasseh," will pass with you over the Jordan, every man armed for battle, before you; then ye shall give them the land of Gilead for a possession; But if they will 30 not pass over with you armed, they shall have possessions among you in the land of Canaan. And the Gadites, and the Reubenites, "and the half tribe of Manasseh" 31 answered, saying, As Jehovah hath said to thy servants, so will we do. We will pass 32 over armed before Jehovah into the land of Canaan; but let us have the possession of our inheritance on this side the Jordan. And Moses gave to them, to the Gadites, 33 and to the Reubenites, and to the half tribe of Manasseh, the son of Joseph, the kingdom of Sihon king of the Amorites, and the kingdom of Og, king of Bashan; the land, with the cities within its boundaries; the cities of the country round about.

And the Gadites rebuilt Dibon, and 34 Ataroth, and Aroer, And Aroth, Shophan, 35 and Jazzar, and Jogbehah, And Bethnimrah, 36 and Beth-haran, fenced cities; and folds for their flocks. And the Reubenites re- 37 built Heshbon, and Elealeh, and Kirjathaim, And Nebo, and Baal-meon, (its name being 38 changed) and Shibmah: and they called by their former names the cities which they rebuilt. And the posterity of Machir, the 39 son of Manasseh, went to Gilead, and took it, and dispossessed the Amorites who were in it. And Moses gave Gilead to the pos- 40 terity of Machir, the son of Manasseh; and they dwelt therein. And Jair, the son of 41 Manasseh went, and took some villages, and called them Havoth-jair [THE VILLAGES OF JAIR]. And Nobah went and took Kenath, 42 and its villages, and called it Nobah after his own name.

CHAPTER XXXIII.

B. C. 1452. The forty-two journeys of the Israelites; and the order to destroy the Canaanites.

THESE are the journeys of Israel, who 1 according to their hosts came out of Egypt

14-22. This proposal was fair, and to it Moses agreed. We are not to suppose that all the men fit for war were to go; if so the women and children would be exposed to destruction, as well as their property become the prey of enemies. From Josh. iv. 13, we learn that forty thousand only passed over Jordan, of these tribes. But their whole number of men fit for war was 110,580, so that 70,580 remained or the defence of their families and property, according to the number stated.

23. Will find you out] That is, will meet with its deserved punishment. The Greek and Arab translators render, 'And ye shall know your sin, when evils befall you.'

38. They called by their former] The sense of this clause has been disputed; but with Rosenmüller I consider it in opposition to what is said before, and supply former as understood.

CHAP. XXXIII. 1. We are not to imagine, that all the stations and encampments of the Israelites, during forty years, are here particularly enumerated. Those places only seem to be mentioned, where they resided some considerable time; whence, as from a centre, they made occasional excursions, for the sake of feeding their flocks, and other domestic animals. Compare the 13th, 14th, 15th, and 16th chapters of Exodus.

under the conduct of Moses and Aaron.
 2 And Moses wrote their departures and their journeys which were made at the command of Jehovah: and these are their departures and their journeys. And they departed from Rameses in the first month, on the fifteenth day of the first month; on the morrow after the passover the Israelites went out with a high hand in the sight of 4 all the Egyptians. For the Egyptians were burying all their first-born, whom Jehovah had smitten among them: and upon their gods also Jehovah had executed judgments. And the Israelites marched from 6 Rameses, and encamped in Succoth. And they marched from Succoth, and encamped in Etham, which is at the extremity of the 7 wilderness. And they marched from Etham, and turned again to Pi-hahiroth, which is over against Baal-zephon: and they en-
 8 camped before Migdol. And they marched from before Pi-hahiroth, and passed through the midst of the sea into the wilderness, and went three days' journey into the wilderness 9 of Etham, and encamped at Marah. And they marched from Marah, and came to Elim; and at Elim were twelve fountains of water, and seventy palm trees; and they 10 encamped there. And they marched from 11 Elim, and encamped by the Red Sea. And they marched from the Red Sea, and en-12 camped in the wilderness of Sin. And they marched out of the wilderness of Sin, and 13 encamped in Dophkah. And they marched from Dophkah, and encamped in Alush.
 14 And they removed from Alush, and encamped at Rephidim, where was no water for the people to drink. And they marched 15 from Rephidim, and encamped in the wilderness of Sinai. And they marched from 16 the wilderness of Sinai, and encamped at Kibroth-hattaavah. And they marched from 17 Kibroth-hattaavah, and encamped at Hazeroth. And they marched from Hazeroth, 18 and encamped in Rithmah. And they 19 marched from Rithmah, and encamped at Rimmon-parez. And they marched from 20 Rimmon-parez, and encamped at Libnah. And they marched from Libnah, and en- 21 camped at Rissah. And they marched 22 from Rissah, and encamped in Kehelathah. And they marched from Kehelathah, and 23 encamped in mount Shapher. And they 24 marched from mount Shapher, and encamped in Haradah. And they marched from Ha- 25 radah, and encamped in Makheloth. And 26 they marched from Makheloth, and encamp- ed at Tahath. And they marched from Ta- 27 hath, and encamped at Tarah. And they 28 marched from Tarah, and encamped in Mithcah. And they marched from Mithcah, 29 and encamped in Hashmonah. And they 30 marched from Hashmonah, and encamped at Moseroth. And they marched from Mose- 31 roth, and encamped in Bene-jaakan. And 32 they marched from Bene-jaakan, and en- camped at Hor-hagidgad. And they march- 33 ed from Hor-hagidgad, and encamped in Jotbathah. And they marched from Jot- 34 bathah, and encamped at Ebronah. And 35 they marched from Ebronah, and encamped at Ezion-gaber. And they marched from 36 Ezion-gaber, and encamped in the wilder- ness of Zin, which is Kadesh. And they 37

2. And Moses wrote] It appears clear from this passage, that records were kept of the journeys of the Israelites, and it is presumable, of all the occurrences worthy of notice.

5—9. Dr. Shaw, who visited the desert, thus describes it: 'Over against Jibbel At-tackah, at ten miles distance, is the desert, as it is called, of Shur, Exod. xv. 22, where the Israelites landed, after they had passed through the inter-jacent gulf of the Red Sea. In travelling from Shur towards Mount Sinai, we come into the desert, as it is still called, of Marah, where the Israelites met with those bitter waters, or waters of Marah, Exod. xv. 23. And as this circumstance did not happen, till after they had wandered three days in the wilderness, we may probably fix it at Corondel, where there is a small rill of water, which, unless it be diluted by the dews and rains, still continues to be brackish. Near this place, the sea forms itself into a large bay, called Berk el Corondel, which is remarkable for a strong current, that sets into it, from the northward. The Arabs preserve a tradition, that a numerous host was formerly drowned at this place, occasioned, no doubt, by what we are informed of Exod. xiv. 38, that "the Israelites saw the Egyptians dead upon the sea-shore." There is nothing further remarkable, till we see the Israelites encamped at Elim, Exod. xv. 27; Numb. xxxiii. 9, upon the northern skirts of the desert of Sin, two leagues from Tor, and near thirty from Corondel. I saw no more than nine of the twelve wells that are mentioned by Moses, the other three being filled up by those drifts of sand, which are common in Arabia. Yet this loss is amply made up by the great increase of the palm trees, the seventy having propagated themselves into more than two thousand. Under the shade of these trees is the (Hamman Mousa) Bath of Moses, which the inhabitants of Tor have in extraordinary esteem and veneration; acquainting us, that it was here that Moses himself and his particular household were encamped. We have a distinct view of Mount Sinai from Elim; the wilderness, as it is still called, of Sin, lying betwixt us.'

14. Rephidim] 'After we had descended, with no small difficulty, down the western side of this mountain, we came into the other plain that is formed by it, which is Rephidim, Exod. xvii. 1. Here we still see that extraordinary antiquity, the rock of Meribah, Exod. xvii. 6, which hath continued down to this day, without the least injury from time or accidents. It is a block of granite marble, about six yards square, lying tottering as it were and loose in the middle of the valley, and seems to have formerly belonged to mount Sinai, which hangs in a variety of precipices, all over this plain.'

16. Kibroth-hattaavah] This station was in the valley of Paran, from whence Moses sent the spies. Niebuhr thus describes it: 'The famous valley of Faran has retained its name unchanged since the days of Moses, being still called Wadi Faran, the valley of Faran. Its length is equal to a journey of a day and half, extending from the foot of Mount Sinai to the Arabic Gulf. In the rainy season it is filled with water; and the inhabitants are then obliged to retire up the hills: it was dry, however, when we passed through it. That part of it which we saw, was far from being fertile but served as a pasture to goats, camels, and asses. The other part is said to be very fertile, so that the Arabs of the valley bring every year to Cairo an astonishing quantity of dates, raisins, pears, apples, and other fruits, all of excellent quality.'

marched from Kadesh, and encamped at mount Hor, on the border of the land of 38 Edom. And Aaron the priest went up into mount Hor, at the command of Jehovah, and died there, in the fortieth year after the Israelites had come out of the land of Egypt, on the first day of the fifth month.
 39 And Aaron was a hundred and twenty three years old when he died in mount 40 Hor. Then also king Arad, the Canaanite, who dwelt in the south, in the land of Canaan, heard of the coming of the Israel-41 ites. And they marched from mount Hor, 42 and encamped in Zalmonah. And they marched from Zalmonah, and encamped in 43 Punon. And they marched from Punon, 44 and encamped in Oboth. And they marched from Oboth, and encamped in Ije-abarim, 45 on the border of Moab. And they marched from Ije-abarim, and encamped in Dibon-
 46 gad. And they marched from Dibon-gad, 47 and encamped in Almon-diblathaim. And they marched from Almon-diblathaim, and encamped at the mountains of Abarim, 48 before Nebo. And they marched from the mountains of Abarim, and encamped in the plains of Moab, by the Jordan, over 49 against Jericho. And they encamped along the Jordan, from Beth-jesimoth unto Abel-shittim, in the plains of Moab.
 50 And Jehovah spoke to Moses in the plains of Moab by the Jordan, opposite Jericho, saying, Speak to the Israelites, and say unto them, When ye have passed over 52 the Jordan into the land of Canaan; Then ye shall drive out all the inhabitants of the land from before you, and destroy all their sculptured stones, and all their molten images shall ye destroy, and all their high places shall ye demolish. And ye shall take possession of the land, and dwell in it: for to you I have given the land for a possession.
 54 And ye shall divide the land by lot for an inheritance among your families; and to the more ye shall give a greater inheritance, and to the fewer ye shall give a less inheritance: every man's inheritance shall be in the place where his lot falleth; according to the tribes of your fathers ye shall inherit.
 55 But if ye will not drive out the inhabitants of the land from before you; then it will be that those who remain will be pricks in your eyes, and thorns in your sides, and will distress you in the land in which ye dwell. Moreover it shall be, that I will do to you, as I thought to do to them.

CHAPTER XXXIV.

B. C. 1452. The boundaries of the promised land; the names of those who are to divide it.

AGAIN Jehovah spoke to Moses, saying, 1
 Command the Israelites, and say to them, 2
 Ye are now about to enter the land of Canaan, that land which falleth to you for an inheritance; the land of Canaan with its boundaries. Your south corner shall be at 3 the wilderness of Zin adjoining to Edom; and your south border shall be the outmost point of the salt sea eastward; And your south border shall wind to the ascent of Ak-rabbim, and pass on to Zin; and thence extending to the south of Kadesh-barnea, it shall go on to Hazar-addar, and pass on to Azmon: And from Azmon the boundary 5 shall wind about to the river of Egypt, and its termination shall be at the sea. For 6 your western boundary, ye shall have the great sea. This shall be your western boundary. And this shall be your north 7 boundary: From the great sea ye shall draw 8 a line to the top of Lebanon: from the top of Lebanon ye shall draw a line to the entrance of Hamath; and the boundary shall 9 pass on to Zedad: And the boundary shall go on to Ziphron, and its termination shall be at Hazar-enan: this shall be your north- 10 ern boundary. For your eastern boundary 11 ye shall draw a line from Hazar-enan to Shepham: And from Shepham to Riblah, 12 the boundary shall go on the east side of the source of the Jordan; and the boundary shall descend until it reach to the east side of the sea of Chinnereth. And the bound- 12 ary shall go along the Jordan, and its termination shall be at the salt sea: this shall be your land with its surrounding bound- 13 aries. And Moses commanded the Israel- 13 ites, saying, This is the land which ye shall inherit by lot, which Jehovah hath com- 14 manded to be given to the nine tribes, and to the half tribe; For the tribe of Reuben, 14 according to their paternal houses, and the tribe of Gad according to their paternal houses, and the half tribe of Manasseh, have

55. Pricks in your eyes] This is a proverbial kind of speaking, which implies that they would suffer severely by associating with the Canaanites.

CHAP. XXXIV. 3. South corner] Our version is, 'south quarters.' This does not give the sense. The word פִּינָה evidently means the corner or point whence the line of the boundary commences, specified here generally, and in the next clause precisely.

4. Akrabbim] The meaning is scorpion-hills, and probably so called from the number of scorpions found on them.

8. Hamath] This is generally supposed to be Epiphania, situated on the Orontes. The length of Canaan is often described, 'from the entrance of Hamath to the river of Egypt.' Hamath was a great city; Am. vi. 2.

11. Source of the Jordan] Some consider פֶּן as a proper name of a place. So the Syr. Bechart contends that it denotes the source of the Jordan. It is a small round lake, and hence called Phana. The Hebrew word may, without straining, admit of this sense.

12. To the Jordan] Though the eastern boundary passes along the Jordan, we are to remember that the two tribes and a half had obtained their inheritance east of that river, and their boundary extended to the mountains of Gilead.

14. Have received] I have omitted the repetition as in-

15 received their inheritance; The two tribes and the half tribe have received their inheritance on this eastern side of the Jordan, 16 opposite Jericho. Jehovah also spoke to 17 Moses, saying, These are the names of the men who shall divide the land among you: Eleazar the priest, and Joshua the son of 18 Nun; And one chief of every tribe shall ye 19 take to portion out the land. And the names of the men were these: Of the tribe of Judah, Caleb the son of Jephunneh. 20 And of the tribe of Simeon, Shemuel the 21 son of Ammihud. Of the tribe of Benjamin, Elidad the son of Chislon. And the chief of the tribe of Dan, Bukki the son of 23 Jogli. The chief of the posterity of Joseph, for the tribe of Manasseh, Hanniel the son 24 of Ephod. And the chief of the tribe of Ephraim, Kemuel the son of Shiptan. 25 And the chief of the tribe of Zebulun, Elizaphan the son of Parnach. And the chief of the tribe of Issachar, Paltiel the son of 27 Azzan. And the chief of the tribe of Asher, Ahihud the son of Shelomi. And the chief of the tribe of Naphtali, Pedahel 29 the son of Ammihud. These are they whom Jehovah commanded to divide the inheritance to the Israelites in the land of Canaan.

CHAPTER XXXV.

B. C. 1451. The Levitical cities and their suburbs; six of them cities of refuge; laws respecting murder.

1 AGAIN Jehovah spoke to Moses in the plains of Moab by the Jordan opposite Jericho, 2 saying, Command the Israelites that they give to the Levites out of the inheritance of their possession, cities to dwell in: and suburb-land surrounding their cities shall 3 ye give to the Levites. And the cities shall they have to dwell in; and the suburb-land shall be for their cattle, and for their substance, even all their other animals. And the suburb-land of the cities, which ye shall give to the Levites, shall extend from the wall of the city and outward a "thousand" 4 cubits round about. And ye shall measure from without the city on the east side two thousand cubits, and on the south side two thousand cubits, and on the west side two thousand cubits, and on the north side two thousand cubits; and the city shall be in the midst: this shall they have as the suburb land of the cities. And among the 6 cities which ye shall give to the Levites there shall be six cities for refuge; which ye shall appoint for the man-slayer, that he may flee thither; and to them ye shall add 7 forty and two cities. So all the cities which ye shall give to the Levites shall be forty and eight cities; them ye shall give with their suburb-lands. And the cities which 8 ye shall give shall be out of the possession of the Israelites; from them that have many ye shall give many; but from them that have few ye shall give few: every one shall give of his cities to the Levites according to his inheritance which he inheriteth.

Jehovah spoke to Moses, saying, Speak 9 to the Israelites, and say to them, When ye have passed over the Jordan into the land of Canaan, Ye shall select for yourselves 11 cities to be cities of refuge; that the man-slayer may flee thither, who killeth any person at unawares. And they shall be to 12 you cities for refuge from the avenger; that the man-slayer die not, until he stand before the congregation in judgment. And of the 13 cities which ye give to the Levites, six cities shall ye have for refuge. Three cities ye 14 shall give on this side the Jordan, and three cities shall ye give in the land of Canaan, which shall be cities of refuge. These 15 six shall be cities of refuge, both for the Israelites, and for the stranger, and the sojourner among them; that every one that killeth any person unawares may flee thither. But if he smite one with an instrument of 16 iron, so that he die, he is a murderer: the murderer shall surely be put to death. And 17 if he smite one by throwing a stone, by which one may die, and he die, he is a murderer: the murderer shall surely be put to death. Or if he smite one by a hand weapon of wood, by which one may die, and he die, he is a murderer: the murderer shall surely be put to death. The avenger of 19 blood himself shall slay the murderer: when he meeteth him, he shall slay him. And if 20 he push one out of hatred, or hurl any thing at him in deceit, so that he die; Or in en- 21 mity so smite him with his hand that he die; he that smote him shall surely be put to death; for he is a murderer: the avenger of blood shall slay the murderer when he elegant in our language; and as the sense is more clear without it.

CHAP. XXXV. 5. Two thousand cubits] There is an apparent difficulty attending this passage, when compared with the preceding verse. Hence some interpreters have imagined, that the word rendered wall in ver. 4, means the centre of the city; from which a line of 1000 cubits, drawn in four directions, would give the limits of the suburbs a square of 2000 cubits. But this is certainly a forced explanation. The common rendering of both verses is quite consistent; as will appear, if the city be supposed to be 1000 cubits square, and the measurement from each corner 1000 cubits, the whole contents of the city and suburbs will be a square of 3000 cubits. Rosenmüller is not satisfied with this solution of Serarius, but prefers the reading of Sept. Alex. two thousand in the former, as it is supported both by Philo and Josephus.

11. Cities of refuge] Moses appointed three cities of refuge beyond Jordan; and Joshua appointed three cities for the same purpose in Canaan; and these were opposite to each other. Hebron, in Judea, was opposite to Bezer in the wilderness; Shechem in mount Ephraim, to Ramoth in Gilead; and Kadesh in mount Naphtali, to Golan in Bashan.

22 meeteth him. But if he push suddenly without enmity; or have hurled any thing
23 at him without deceit; Or cast any stone, by which a man may die, without seeing him, so that he die; then as he was not his
24 enemy, neither sought his harm, The congregation shall judge between the man-slayer and the avenger of blood according to these judgments: And the congregation shall deliver the man-slayer out of the hand of the avenger of blood, and the congregation shall restore him to the city of his refuge, whither he had fled; and he shall abide in it unto the death of the high priest,
26 who was anointed with the holy oil. But if the man-slayer shall at any time come without the boundary of the city of his refuge, whither he had fled; And the avenger of blood find him without the boundary of the city of his refuge, and the avenger of blood kill the man-slayer, he 28 shall not be guilty of blood: Because he should have remained in the city of his refuge until the death of the high priest: but after the death of the high priest the man-slayer may return into the land of his
29 possession. So these things shall be for a statute of judgment to you, throughout your generations, in all your dwellings.
30 Whoso killeth any person, the murderer shall be put to death by the mouth of witnesses; but one witness shall not be deemed 31 sufficient to put one to death. Moreover ye shall take no satisfaction for the life of a murderer, who is guilty of death; but he 32 shall surely be put to death. And ye shall take no satisfaction for him who hath fled to the city of his refuge, that he should come again to dwell in the land, until the 33 death of the priest. Ye shall not pollute the land in which * ye dwell:" for blood defileth the land; nor can the land be purified from the blood that is shed, but by the 34 blood of him that shed it. Defile not, therefore, the land which ye shall inhabit, wherein I also will dwell; for I, Jehovah, will dwell among the Israelites.

CHAPTER XXXVI.

B. C. 1452. Laws with respect to heiresses.

1 AND the paternal chiefs of the posterity of Gilead, the son of Machir, the son of Manasseh, (of the children of Joseph,) came near, and spoke before Moses, and before the paternal chiefs of Israel: And they said, 2 Jehovah commanded my lord to give the land for an inheritance by lot to the Israelites: and my lord was commanded by Jehovah to give the inheritance of Zelophehad our brother to his daughters. Now if they 3 be married to any of the sons of the other tribes of Israel, then shall their inheritance be taken from the inheritance of our fathers, and shall be put to the inheritance of the tribe into which they are married; so shall it be taken from the lot of our inheritance. And when the jubilee of the Israelites shall 4 be, then will their inheritance remain joined to the inheritance of the tribe into which they are married: so shall their inheritance be taken away from the inheritance of the tribe of our fathers. And Moses com- 5 manded the Israelites according to the word of Jehovah, saying, The tribe of Joseph hath said well. This is the thing which 6 Jehovah commandeth concerning the daughters of Zelophehad, saying, Let them marry to whom they think best; only to the family of the tribe of their father shall they marry. So shall not the inheritance of the Israelites 7 remove from tribe to tribe; for every one of Israel shall keep the inheritance of the tribe of his fathers. And every daughter that 8 possesseth an inheritance in any tribe of Israel, shall be wife to one of the family of the tribe of her father, that the Israelites may enjoy every man the inheritance of his fathers. Neither shall the inheritance re- 9 move from one tribe to another tribe; but every one of the tribes of Israel shall keep their own inheritance. Even as Jehovah 10 commanded Moses, so did the daughters of Zelophehad; For Mahlah, Tirzah, and 11 Hoglah, and Milcah, and Nanah, the daughters of Zelophehad, were married to the sons of their father's brother: And they 12 were married into the families of the sons of Manasseh, the son of Joseph, and their inheritance remained in the tribe of the family of their father. These are the com- 13 mandments and the judgments, which Jehovah commanded by Moses to the Israelites, in the plains of Moab, by the Jordan, opposite Jericho.

31—34. No satisfaction, or atonement. Atonement here is equivalent to ransom; and the Hebrew legislator very justly reprobates, and forbids, so unworthy a traffic: which, most probably, was not uncommon before his days. The law of Mohammed, with respect to avenging blood, is this: 'If any one be unjustly smitten, we give to his heir the right of demanding satisfaction; but he must not put the murderer to death in a cruel manner; nor avenge the blood of his relation upon any other person than the murderer.'

33. (a) Sam.

CHAP. XXXVI. 1. There is no need of explanatory notes, except to observe, that this law extended only to heiresses, for many of their great men and priests married wives of other tribes and countries; and other women, who had brethren to inherit, were free to marry into any other tribe, though it seems they generally confined themselves to their own. If their brethren died after they were married into another tribe, they could not inherit, but the estate went to the male heir. The design of this law was, to keep the tribes distinct, and hereby to fulfil the prophecies, particularly those respecting the Messiah.

DEUTERONOMY.

INTRODUCTION.

The name of this Book is derived from two Greek words, signifying a repetition of the laws and precepts which had been before delivered. It contains a compendium of the Mosaic Institutions, though on some occasions they are enlarged and illustrated, accompanied with earnest exhortations to obedience, and prophetic denunciations of divine judgments, in cases of transgression or neglect. It was written towards the close of Moses' life, and addressed to a new generation, whose fathers had all died in the wilderness, except Caleb and Joshua. The whole book, therefore, may be considered as the last address of an aged parent to an undutiful race of children; and the earnestness and affection which prevail, render it peculiarly interesting.

It has been remarked that the prophecies of Moses become more numerous and distinct towards the close of life. He predicts the future state of the Israelites; their sufferings and dispersions; the victories of their enemies, and the extreme miseries they were to endure when besieged; their last dispersion for their rejection of Messiah;—all these things prove the truth and authenticity of this book. It abounds with the finest models of oratory and poetry; which show that the mind of Moses like his body retained its full vigour.

CHAPTER I.

B. C. 1452. Moses rehearseth God's promise to Israel; his anger on account of their unbelief and disobedience.

- 1 THESE are the words which Moses spoke to all Israel, on this side the Jordan, in the wilderness, in the plain over against Suph, between Paran, and Tophel, and Laban, and
- 3 Hazeroth, and Dizahab. And in the fortieth year, on the eleventh month, on the first day of the month, Moses spoke to the Israelites, according to all that Jehovah
- 4 had given him in command to them; After he had slain Sihon the king of the Amorites, who dwelt in Heshbon, and Og the king of
- 5 Bashan, who dwelt at Astaroth in Edrei: On this side the Jordan, in the land of Moab,
- 6 began Moses to explain this law, saying, Jehovah our God spoke to us in Horeb, saying, Ye have long dwelt by this mountain:
- 7 Turn, and take your journey, and go to the mountain of the Amorites, and to all the adjacent places, in the plain, in the hills, and in the vale; and to the south, and to the sea side; to the land of the Canaanites, and to Lebanon, to the great river, the river
- 8 Euphrates. Behold, I have set the land before you; go in and possess the land which Jehovah swore to your fathers, Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, that he would give it unto them and to their seed after them.
- 9 And I spoke to you at that time, saying, I
- 10 am not able to bear you myself alone: Jehovah your God hath multiplied you, and, behold, ye are this day as the stars of heaven for multitude. (May Jehovah the God 11 of your fathers make you a thousand times as many more as ye are, and bless you, as he hath promised you!) How can I alone 12 bear the burdensome charge of you, and of your contentions? Choose ye men wise, and 13 prudent, and known among your tribes, and I will make them rulers over you. And ye 14 answered me, and said, The thing which thou hast spoken is proper for us to do. So I took the heads of your tribes, men 15 wise, "prudent," and known, and made them chiefs over you; captains over thousands, and captains over hundreds, and captains over fifties, and captains over tens, and other officers among your tribes. And I charged 16 your judges at that time, saying, Hear the causes between your brethren, and judge righteously between one man and another, and the stranger that is with him. Ye shall 17 not respect persons in judgment; but ye shall alike hear the small and the great; ye shall not be afraid of the face of man; for the judgment is God's and the cause that is too hard for you, bring it to me, and I will hear it. And I commanded you at that 18 time all the things which ye should do.

And when we marched from Horeb, we 19 went through all that great and terrible wilderness, which ye saw on the way to the mountain of the Amorites, as Jehovah our God commanded us; and we came to Kadesh-barnea: (From Horeb to Kadesh-bar- 2 nea, by the way of the mountain of Seir, are

CHAP. I. 1. Suph.] As Moses and the people were in the plains of Moab, Suph cannot mean the Red Sea, but some place near them; perhaps the same that is called Zipf, 1 Sam. ix. 6. It was so called from the plants or weeds which grew there.

9. At that time] That is, during their encampment at Rephidim, by mount Horeb. Compare Exod. xviii. 24.

10. As the stars] Some consider this as hyperbolic. But it should be remembered that this refers to the stars visible to the eye, and the number of these in both hemispheres does not amount to more than three thousand, so that the promise had been abundantly as well as literally fulfilled.

15. (a) Sept.

18. Commanded you] Geddes suspects that the original reading was DOM, them; for it was not to the people but to the judges that those instructions were given. See Exod. xviii. 25. The words may perhaps relate to the laws delivered from Sinai; and so the Targums understood them.

19. For a detail of the events after they left Horeb, compare Numb. x. 11, to xiv. 26.

2. I have followed Dr. Wall in transposing this verse after the 19th, as evidently connected with what is there related.

20 eleven days journeys.) And I said to you, ye are come to the mountain of the Amorites, which Jehovah our God hath given 21 to us. Behold Jehovah your God hath set the land before you: go up and possess it, as Jehovah the God of your fathers hath said to you; fear not, nor be discouraged. 22 And you all approached to me together, and said, We will send men before us, that they may search out the land, and bring us word by what way we must go up, and into 23 what cities we shall come. And the saying pleased me well; and I took from among 24 you twelve men, one from each tribe: And they turned and went up into the mountain, and came to the valley of Eshcol. And 25 they searched the land. And they took and brought with them to us some of its fruits; and they brought us word and said, Good 26 is the land which Jehovah our God giveth to us. Nevertheless ye would not go up, but rebelled against the command of Je- 27 hovah your God: And ye murmured in your tents, and said, Because Jehovah hated us, he hath brought us out of the land of Egypt, to deliver us into the hand of the 28 Amorites, to destroy us. How should we go up? our brethren have discouraged us, saying, The people are greater and taller than we; the cities are great and walled up to the heavens; and moreover we have seen 29 there men of the race of Anak. Then I said to you, Tremble not, nor be afraid of them. 30 Jehovah your God, who goeth before you, shall fight for you; according to all that he did for you in Egypt, before your own eyes; 31 And in the wilderness, where ye have seen how Jehovah your God hath borne you, as a man beareth his son, through all the way that ye went, until ye came to this place. 32 And in respect to this will ye not believe Jehovah your God, Who goeth in the way before you, to search out for you a place for your encampment; to show you by what way ye should go, in fire by night, and in 34 a cloud by day? And Jehovah heard the voice of your words, and was wroth, and 35 swore, saying, Surely there shall not one of these men, of this evil generation, see that good land, which I swore to their fathers. 36 that I would give them; Save Caleb the son of Jephunneh; he shall see it, and to him I will give the land on which he hath trodden, and to his children, because he 37 hath wholly followed Jehovah. Also Jehovah was angry with me for your sakes, saying, Neither shalt thou go in thither; But Joshua the son of Nun, who waiteth 38 on thee, shall go in thither: encourage him, for he shall cause Israel to inherit it. More- 39 over your little ones, who, ye said, should become a prey; and your children, who on this day know neither good nor evil, shall go in thither, and to them will I give it; and they shall possess it. But as for you, turn 40 and take your journey by the way of the Red Sea. Then ye answered and said to 41 me, We have sinned against Jehovah "our God;" we will go up and fight, according to all that Jehovah our God hath commanded us: And ye girded on every man his weapons of war, and were ready to go up to the mountain. But Jehovah said to 42 me, Say to them, Go not up nor fight; for I am not among you; lest ye be smitten before your enemies. So I spoke to you; 43 and ye would not hear, but rebelled against Jehovah, and presumptuously went up to the mountain. And the "Amalekites and 44 Canaanites," who dwell in those mountains, came out against you; and they chased you as bees do, and destroyed you by Seir, unto Hormah. And ye returned and wept 45 before Jehovah; but Jehovah would not hearken to your voice, nor give ear to you.

CHAPTER II.

B. C. 1452. A short account of their march through the wilderness, to the borders of the Edomites and Moabites; the conquest of Sihon and his country.

WHEN ye had abode in Kadesh many 46 days, according to the days ye abode there; Then we turned, and marched into the wil- 1 derness by the way of the Red Sea, as Jehovah had spoken to me. And when we had compassed mount Seir many days, Then 2 Jehovah spoke to me, saying, Ye have long 3 compassed this mountain: turn towards the north. And command thou the people, 4 saying, Ye are to pass through the boundary of your brethren the posterity of Esau, who dwell in Seir, and they will be afraid of you. Take therefore good heed to yourselves: 5 Meddle not with them; for I will not give 6 you of their land, so much as a foot-breadth; because I have given mount Seir to Esau for a possession. The food which ye eat ye 6 shall buy of them for money, and the water which ye drink ye shall also buy of them for money. For Jehovah your God hath 7 blessed you in all the works of your hand; he hath directed your marching through

: 22. We will send men] In Numb. xiii. 1. &c. we are informed that God commanded men to be sent to search out the land; thus granting their desire, which he might do to try them, and that their spirit and unbelief might be manifested. 41. (a) Sam. Sept. Syr.

44. Amalekites] This various reading is justified by Numb. xiv. 43. The same occurrence is related; and they had to contend with the same enemies. The Amorites did not dwell in that mountain; but west of the Jordan, Numb. xxi. 23. (v) Sam. Numb. xiv. 45.

46. According to the days] That is, as ye well know.

CHAP. II. 7. The addition of the Sam. text is conformable to Numb. xx. 17, and most critics admit it to be genuine. (a) Sam.

this great wilderness: these forty years Jehovah your God hath been with you; ye have wanted nothing. "So I sent messengers to the king of Edom, saying, Let us pass, I pray thee, through thy country: we will not pass through the fields, or through the vineyards, nor will we drink water out of the wells; we will march in the king's highway; we will not turn to the right hand or to the left, until we have passed thy borders. But he answered, Ye shall not pass through my land; lest I come forth to oppose you with the sword." We, therefore, passed by from our brethren, the posterity of Esau, who dwelt in Seir; and taking the way of the plain from Elath, and Ezion-gaber, we turned and passed on through the wilderness of Moab. And Jehovah said to me, Trouble not the Moabites, nor contend with them in battle: for I will not give you of their land for a possession; because I have given Ar to the posterity of Lot for a possession. "Now arise and march, and pass over the brook Zered. So we passed over the brook Zered. Now the space of time in which we came from Kadesh-barnea, until we had passed over the brook Zered, was thirty-eight years; until that whole generation of the men of war were wasted out from among the host, as Jehovah had sworn to them. For indeed the hand of Jehovah was against them, destroying them from among the host, until they were consumed.

16 Now when all the men of war were consumed by death from among the people, Jehovah spoke to me, saying, Ye are this day to pass through Ar, the border-city of Moab: And when ye approach towards the Ammonites, distress them not, nor meddle with them; for I will not give to you the land of the Ammonites for a possession;

because to the posterity of Lot I have given it for a possession. "Arise, march, and pass over the river Arnon; behold, I give into your hand Sihon, the Amorite king of Heshbon, and his land: begin to possess it, and contend with him in battle. This day I begin to put the dread of you and fear of you upon the nations, under the whole heavens, who shall hear the report of you; and they shall tremble, and be in anguish because of you.

And I sent messengers from the wilderness of Kedemoth to Sihon, king of Heshbon, with words of peace, saying, Let us pass through thy land: we will march along the high way; we will not turn either to the right hand or to the left. The food which we eat, thou shalt sell to us for money, and the water which we drink thou shalt give to us for money: only let us pass through as travellers; (As the posterity of Esau who dwelt in Seir, and the Moabites who dwell in Ar, did to us;) until we pass over the Jordan, into the land which Jehovah our God giveth to us. But Sihon the king of Heshbon would not let us pass through his land: for Jehovah your God suffered his spirit to become hard, and his heart obstinate, that he might deliver him into your hand, as it is this day seen. For Jehovah said to me, Behold, I begin to give up to you Sihon, "the Amorite king of Heshbon," and his land; begin to take possession of his land. Then Sihon came forth against us; he and all his people, to fight at Jahaz. And Jehovah our God delivered him up to us; and we smote him, and his sons, and all his people. And at that time we took all his cities and utterly destroyed the men, and the women, and the little ones of every city; we left none to remain: Only the cattle we took to ourselves for a prey;

10. The Emims dwelt there in times past, a people great, and many, and tall, as the Anakites. 11. Who also were accounted giants, as the Anakites; but the Moabites call them Emims. 12. The Horims also dwelt in Seir before time; but the children of Esau succeeded them, when they had destroyed them from before them, and dwelt in their stead; as Israel did to the land of his possession, which Jehovah gave to them.—These verses seem to be an interpolation, perhaps first placed in the margin, from which they crept into the text: as may have been the case with some other passages in this and other books of the Old Testament, and even in this chapter. But I take notice of this more particularly, as the interpolation is more plainly marked than in some others: for it cuts in two the speech of God to Moses, and by a parenthesis in the midst of a speech, which has nothing to do with that speech, and which refers to a fact posterior to that speech, as already past, betrays its non-authenticity in the most glaring manner—like as did the Israelites in the land, which the Lord gave to them for a possession, which could not be written by Moses, because it records what was done after the time of Moses, after Israel had got possession of Canaan. Leave out these three verses, and the 9th and 13th will appear connected. Verses 20, 21, 22, 23, seem an interpolation of the like kind, inserted also in the midst of a speech of God to Moses.

20. This also was accounted a land of giants; giants dwelt therein in old time; and the Ammonites call them Zamzummins. 21. A people great, and many, and tall, as the Anakites; but Jehovah destroyed them before them: and they succeeded them, and dwelt in their stead: 22. As he did to the children of Esau, which dwelt in Seir, when he destroyed the Horims from before them; and they succeeded them, and dwelt in their stead even unto this day. 23. And the Avims who dwelt in Hazerim, even unto Azzah; the Caphorims, who came forth out of Caphor, destroyed them, and dwelt in their stead.

19, 24, 25. In these verses God speaks to Moses as the leader of Israel; and I have therefore preferred the second person plural.

29. It does not appear that either the Edomites or Moabites permitted the Israelites to pass through their land: at least on the first application, according to the Sam. It is not improbable that, on more full information respecting their designs, they afterwards permitted them, and supplied them with what they wanted for money. It is only on such a supposition that the passage is reconcilable with the text itself ver. 8. and Numb. xx. 21. Rosenmüller observes that the Israelites at first desired to go through the midst of Idumea, which was refused; but the Edomites might permit them to go through the borders of their land.

and the spoil of the cities which we took.
 36 From Aroer, which is on the brink of the river Arnon, and every other city that is on the river, even unto Gilead, there was not one city too strong for us: Jehovah our 37 God delivered up the whole to us: But to the land of the Ammonites ye approached not; nor to any place on the river Jabbok, nor to the cities in the mountains, nor to any place which Jehovah our God forbade us.

CHAPTER III.

B. C. 1452. Og king of Bashan conquered; prayer of Moses to enter the land of Canaan; he is only permitted to see it.

1 AGAIN we turned, and went up the way to Bashan; and Og, king of Bashan, came forth against us; he and all his people, to
 2 battle at Edrei. And Jehovah said to me, Fear him not; for I will deliver him up and all his people, and his land, into thy hand; and thou shalt do to him as thou didst to Sihon, king of the Amorites, who
 3 dwelt at Heshbon. So Jehovah our God delivered up into our hands Og also, king of Bashan, and all his people; and we smote him until none was left to him remaining. And at that time we took all his 4 cities; there was not a city which we took not from them, sixty cities, the whole region of Argob, the kingdom of Og in Bashan.
 5 All these cities were fenced with high walls, gates, and bars; besides a great many of 6 unvalled towns. And we utterly destroyed them; as we did to Sihon, king of Heshbon, utterly destroying the men, women, and 7 children, of every city. But all the cattle, and the spoil of the cities, we took to ourselves for a prey. And we took at that 8 time out of the hand of the two kings of the Amorites, the land that is on this side Jordan, from the river Arnon unto mount 10 Hermon; *All the cities of the plain, and all Gilead, and all Bashan, unto Salchab and Edrei, cities of the kingdom of Og in Ba-12 shan. *And this land, of which at that time

we took possession, from Aroer, which is on the river Arnon, and half of mount Gilead, and its cities, I gave to the Reubenites and to the Gadites. And the rest of Gilead, 13 and all Bashan, the kingdom of Og, I gave to the half tribe of Manasseh, the whole region of Argob, which, of all Bashan, was alone called the land of the Rephaites. But Jair, the son of Manasseh, took all the 14 country of Argob unto the borders of the Geshurites and Maachathites; and called after his own name that part of Bashan Havoth-jair [THE VILLAGES OF JAIR]. And 15 I gave Gilead to Machir; And to the Reu- 16 benites and to the Gadites, I gave from Gilead even unto the river Arnon, the whole land within the river, even unto the river Jabbok, which is the boundary of the Ammonites; The plain also, and the coast of 17 the Jordan, from Chinnereth even unto the sea of the plain, the salt sea, under Ashdodpishgah, to the east.

And at that time I commanded you, say- 18 ing, Jehovah your God hath given you the possession of this land; but all that are fit for war shall pass over armed before your brethren, the children of Israel; And your 19 wives and your little ones, and your cattle, (for I know that ye have much cattle,) shall abide in your cities which I have given to you; Until Jehovah have given rest to your 20 brethren, as well as to you, and until they also possess the land which Jehovah your God giveth to them beyond the Jordan: and then shall ye return every man to his possession, which I have given to you.

And at that time I commanded Joshua, 21 saying, Thine eyes have seen all that Jehovah your God hath done to these two kings; so shall Jehovah do to all the kingdoms into which thou passest over. Ye shall not fear 22 them; for Jehovah your God shall fight for you. And I besought Jehovah at that 23 time, saying, O Lord God, thou hast begun 24 to show thy greatness, and thy mighty power; for what God is there in the heavens

31. (a) Sam. Sept.

36. Every other city] I have followed Rosenmüller in this version. I once thought that the city, here mentioned, was no other than Aroer itself, as appeared, from comparing chap. iii. 12, and Josh. xiii. 9; and that the second clause, וְהָעִיר אֲשֶׁר בְּמִלָּה, was only a more explicit determination of the site of Aroer; but I am convinced that the version given is the genuine sense of the text. Compare chap. iii. 12, and Josh. xiii. 9.

CHAP. III. 8. Hermon] This is one of the ridges of Lebanon, under which the Jordan takes its rise.

9. Which Hermon the Sidonians call Sirion; and the Amorites call it Shenir. 11. For only Og king of Bashan remained of the remnant of the Rephaites; behold, his coffin was a coffin of iron; is it not in Rabbath of the children of Ammon? nine cubits was its length, and four cubits its breadth, after the cubit of a man.—That these verses are an early interpolation is generally admitted. They are not connected with the narrative, and could not be written by Moses. Dathie observes, that it does not seem necessary that Moses should inform the Israelites, that Og was a giant; for they had seen him and fought with him. The word עֵר according to Michaelis means here, not bedstead, but coffin; but whether we render 'bedstead or coffin,' neither could be known to the Israelites, till David had conquered the Ammonites, 2 Sam. iii. 31; much less to Moses, who, soon after the conquest of Og, died. But why was the coffin of Og, a king of Bashan, to be seen at the capital of the Ammonites, and not at his own capital Ashtaroth? To this it is answered, with some probability, that, being wounded in the battle with the Israelites, he fled to Rabbath, and died and was buried there.

13, 14. Some have thought all from Manasseh in the 13th to the end of the 14th verse is interpolated. I have however retained it, omitting only the last three words with Houbigant. Compare Numb. xxxii. 41; Josh. xii. 30. (a) Unto this day.

16. Within the river] The Arnon makes a great circuit from its source to the Dead Sea. All within this was part of the land given to the Reubenites.

or on the earth, that can do such mighty 25 deeds, as thou hast done? Let me, I pray thee, go over, and see that good land which is beyond the Jordan, that excellent moun-26 tainous country, and Lebanon. But Jehovah was wroth with me for your sakes, and would not hear me; and he said to me, Let it suffice thee; speak no more unto 27 me of this matter. Go up to the top of Pisgah, and raise thine eyes, and look westward, and northward, and southward, and eastward, and behold it with thine eyes;
 for over this Jordan thou shalt not go.
 28 But charge Joshua, and encourage him, and strengthen him; for he shall go over before this people, and he shall cause them to inherit the land which thou shalt only 29 see. So we abode in the valley over against Beth-peor.

CHAPTER IV.

B. C. 1452. An exhortation to obedience; three cities of refuge appointed, beyond Jordan.

1 Now therefore, O Israel, so hearken to the statutes and judgments which I teach you, as to do them, that ye may live, and go in and possess the land which Jehovah 2 the God of your fathers giveth to you. Ye shall not add to the word which I "this day" command you, nor shall ye diminish aught from it; that ye may keep the commandments of Jehovah your God which I com-3 mand you. Your eyes have seen what Jehovah did because of Baal-peor; for all the men that followed Baal-peor, Jehovah your 4 God hath destroyed from among you; But ye who did cleave to Jehovah your God are 5 all of you alive this day. Behold, I have taught you statutes and judgments, even as Jehovah my God commanded me; which ye should practise in the land which ye are 6 going to take for a possession. Keep, therefore, and do them; for this will be your wisdom and prudence in the sight of the nations, who shall hear of all these statutes, and say, Surely a wise and prudent 7 people is this great nation. For what great nation is there whose gods are so nigh to it, as Jehovah our God is to us, when-8 ever we call upon him? And what great nation is there that hath statutes and judgments so righteous as all this law, which I 9 set before you this day? Only take heed to yourselves, and diligently watch over yourselves, all the days of your lives, lest ye forget, or lest they should depart from your hearts; and make known to your children and to your grand-children, the things which your own eyes saw, On the day ye 10 stood before Jehovah your God at Horeb; when Jehovah said to me, Assemble the people, and I will make them hear my words; that they may learn to fear me all the days that they shall live upon the earth, and that they may teach their children also to fear me. So ye came near and stood at 11

 the foot of the mountain; and the mountain, surrounded with darkness, clouds, and thick darkness, burned with fire to the midst of the heavens. And Jehovah spoke to 12 you out of the midst of the fire; ye heard the sound of the words, but saw no similitude; ye only heard a sound. And he 13 declared to you his covenant, which he commanded you to perform, the ten commandments; and he wrote them upon two tables of stone.

And at that time Jehovah commanded 14 me to teach you statutes and judgments, that ye might do them in the land which ye are going to take for a possession. Take 15 ye therefore good heed to yourselves; (for ye saw no manner of similitude on the day that Jehovah spoke to you in Horeb out of the midst of the fire:) Lest ye be cor- 16 rupted, and make to yourselves any carved idol, after the likeness of the human figure, whether male or female; Or the likeness 17 of any beast that is upon the earth; or the likeness of any winged fowl that flieth in the air; Or the likeness of any thing that 18 creepeth on the ground; or the likeness of any fish that is in the waters beneath the earth: Lest when ye raise your eyes to the 19 heavens, and when ye see the sun, and the moon, and the stars, all the host of the heavens, ye should be led to worship and serve them, as Jehovah your God hath suffered all nations under the whole heavens to do;
 But Jehovah hath taken you, and brought 20
 you from the iron furnace, from out of Egypt, to be his own peculiar people, as ye are this day. And Jehovah was angry with me for 21 your sakes, and swore that I should not go over the Jordan, nor enter that good land, which Jehovah your God giveth to you for an inheritance. So I must die in this 22 land; I must not go over the Jordan: but

CHAP. IV. 2. (a) Sam.

7. For what great nation] Our version applies this to the true God. Is there not a contrast intended between the gods of the nations and the God of Israel?—So near implies so ready to afford aid.

9, 10. I have transposed one clause of the text a little to make it perspicuous. Although the generation of grown men, in whose hearing the decalogue was given, were now dead; yet a great many of the people, who were under twenty years at that period, must still have remembered so uncommon and tremendous a scene: and to them the appeal is here made. Compare Exod. from xix. 9, to xx. 19.

12. A sound of words] That is, articulated words; Jehovah audibly speaking the ten commandments.

20. From the iron furnace] These words are not to be understood of a furnace made of iron; but a furnace for smelting iron. The Israelites might be employed in this business in Egypt.

ye shall go over, and possess that good land.

23 Take heed to yourselves, lest ye forget the covenant of Jehovah your God, which he made with you, and make to yourselves carved idols, of any likeness, which Jehovah
24 your God hath forbidden. For Jehovah your God is a consuming fire: a jealous God.

25 Moreover, should ye beget children, and children's children, and have remained long in the land; if ye be corrupted, and make to yourselves a carved idol, of any likeness, and do evil in the sight of Jehovah, your

26 God, to provoke him to anger: I call heaven and earth to witness against you this day, that ye shall soon utterly perish from off the land which ye are going over the Jordan to take for a possession; ye shall not prolong your days upon it, but shall

27 utterly be destroyed. For Jehovah will scatter you among the nations, and ye shall be left few in number among the nations,

28 whither Jehovah will drive you. And there ye shall serve gods of wood and stone, the work of men's hands, which neither see, nor

29 hear, nor eat, nor smell. But if thence thou shalt seek Jehovah thy God, thou shalt find him; if thou seek him with all thine heart

30 and with all thy soul. When thou art in tribulation, and all these things, in future days, have come upon thee; if thou turn to Jehovah thy God and hearken to his

31 voice, He will not forsake thee, nor destroy thee: nor will he forget the covenant which he confirmed by an oath to thy fathers; for Jehovah thy God is a merciful God.

32 For, inquire, I pray thee, of the days that are past, which were before thee, since the day when God created man on the earth, and from the one extremity of the heavens to the other, whether there hath been so great an event, or whether any such hath

33 been heard of, As that a people should hear the voice of the "living" God, speaking out of the midst of the fire, as thou hast heard,

34 and live? Or hath any other god attempted to go and to rescue one nation from the midst of another nation, by such trials, by signs, and by wonders, and war; and by so mighty a hand, and an out-stretched arm; and by such great miracles as all those which Jehovah thy God did for thee in Egypt,
35 before "thine" eyes? Thou sawest, that thou mightest know, that Jehovah alone is God;
36 besides him there is no other. From the heavens he made thee to hear his voice, that he might instruct thee; and on earth he showed thee his great fire; and out of the midst of the fire thou heardest his words. And because he loved thy fathers, 37 he hath chosen their seed after them; and hath brought thee out in his own sight by his mighty power, out of Egypt; To drive 38 out nations from before thee greater and mightier than thou art, that he may bring thee in and give thee their land for an inheritance, as it is this day. Know therefore 39 this day, and consider it in thine heart, that Jehovah alone is God, in the heavens above, and on the earth beneath; "besides" him there is no other. Thou shalt keep, there- 40 fore, his statutes, and his commandments, which I command thee this day, that it may be well with thee, and with thy children after thee, and that thy days may be prolonged on the land which Jehovah thy God giveth to thee, in perpetuity.

Then Moses appointed three cities on the 41 eastern side of the Jordan; That the man- 42 slayer might flee thither, who should kill his neighbour unawares, and hated him not in times past; and that fleeing unto one of these cities he might live: Namely, Bezer 43 in the wilderness, in the plain country of the Reubenites; and Ramoth in Gilead, among the Gadites; and Golan in Bashan, among the Manassites.

Now this is the law which Moses set be- 44 fore the Israelites: These are the testimo- 45 nies, and the statutes, and the judgments, which Moses spoke to the Israelites, after they had come out of Egypt, On this side 46 the Jordan, in the valley over against Bethpeor, in the land of Sihon, king of the Amorites, who dwelt at Heshbon, whom Moses and the Israelites had smitten, after they had come out of Egypt. And they 47 possessed his land, and the land of Og, king of Bashan, two kings of the Amorites, who were on the eastern side of the Jordan. From Aroer, which is on the bank of the 48 river Arnon, even unto mount "Sirion," which is Hermon, And all the plain on this 49 eastern side of the Jordan, even unto the sea of the plain, "or the salt sea" below Ashdod-Pisgah.

CHAPTER V.

B. C. 1452. The covenant at Horeb; the ten commandments; Moses, at the request of the people, receiveth the law.

AND Moses called all Israel, and said to 1 them, Hear, O Israel, the statutes and judgments which I speak in your ears this day: that ye may learn them, and keep and do them. Jehovah our God made a cove- 2

3 nant with us in Horeb. Jehovah made not this covenant with our fathers only, but with us also, who are all of us here alive
4 this day. From amidst the fire, on the mountain, Jehovah talked with you face to 6 face, saying, I am Jehovah thy God, who brought thee out of the land of Egypt, from 7 the house of bondage. Thou shalt have 8 no other gods besides me. Thou shalt not make to thyself any carved idol, or any likeness of what is in the heavens above, or of what is on the earth below, or of what is in the waters beneath the earth: Thou shalt not bow thyself down to them, nor serve them; for I Jehovah, thy God, am a jealous God, punishing the iniquity of fathers upon the children to the third and fourth generation, when they hate me; But showing mercy to a thousand generations, when they 11 love me and keep my commandments. Thou shalt not take the name of Jehovah thy God in vain; for Jehovah will not acquit 12 him who taketh his name in vain. Keep the sabbath-day so as to sanctify it, as Jehovah thy God hath commanded thee. Six 13 days thou mayest labour, and do all thy 14 work; But the seventh day is the sabbath of Jehovah thy God; on it thou shalt not do any work; neither thou, nor thy son, nor thy daughter, nor thy man-servant, nor thy maid-servant, nor thine ox, nor thine ass, nor any of thy cattle, nor the stranger who is within thy gates, so that thy man-servant and thy maid-servant may rest as 15 well as thyself. For remember that thou wast a servant in the land of Egypt, and that Jehovah thy God brought thee thence by a mighty hand, and by an out-stretched arm; therefore, Jehovah thy God hath commanded thee to keep the sabbath-day.
16 Honour thy father and thy mother, (as Jehovah thy God hath commanded thee,) that thy days may be prolonged, and that it may be well with thee, in the land which 17 Jehovah thy God giveth to thee. Thou 18 shalt not commit murder. Thou shalt not 19 commit adultery. Thou shalt not steal.
20 Thou shalt not bear false witness against 21 thy neighbour. Thou shalt not covet thy neighbour's wife, nor shalt thou covet thy neighbour's house, nor his field, nor his man-servant, nor his maid-servant, nor his ox, nor his ass, nor any thing that is thy neighbours.

22 These words Jehovah spoke with a loud voice to your whole assembly by the mountain, out of the midst of the fire, from the "dark and" stormy cloud; and he added no more. And he wrote them on two tables of stone, and delivered them to me. And it 23 came to pass, when ye heard the voice out of the midst of the darkness, while the mountain burned with fire, that ye came near to me, even all the heads of your tribes, and your elders; And ye said, Behold, Jehovah 24 our God hath showed us his glory and his greatness, and we have heard his voice out of the midst of the fire; we have seen this day that God may speak with man, and yet he may live. But why, now, should we die? 25 for if we hear any longer the voice of Jehovah our God, this awful fire will consume us, and we shall die. For who, of all flesh, 26 hath heard the voice of the living God speaking out of the midst of the fire, as we have, and lived? Approach thou, and hear 27 all that Jehovah our God shall say; and all that Jehovah our God shall say to thee, speak thou to us; and we will hear, and do it. And Jehovah heard the words which 28 ye uttered, when ye spoke to me; and to me Jehovah said, I have heard the words which this people have uttered, which they have spoken to thee. All that they have spoken is proper. O that such a heart may 29 be in them, that they would fear me and keep my commandments continually, that it may be well with them, and with their children for ever! Go say to them, Return 30 to your tents. But as for thee, stand thou 31 here by me, and I will speak to thee all the commandments, and the statutes, and the judgments, which thou shalt teach them, that they may do them in the land which I give them for a possession. 'So I stood 5 between Jehovah and you at that time, to make known to you the word of Jehovah: for ye were afraid on account of the fire, and went not up to the mountain. Ye shall 32 observe to do therefore as Jehovah your God hath commanded you: ye shall not turn aside to the right hand or to the left. Ye shall walk in all the ways which Jeho- 33 vah your God hath commanded you, that ye may live, and it may be well with you; and that your days may be prolonged on the land which ye shall possess.

15. Some consider, that Moses here assigns a very different reason for the observance of the sabbath, from what we have Exod. xx. 11. It does not appear to me, that he assigns here the reason why this day should be sanctified, but why servants should enjoy rest as well as their masters.

statutes, and the judgments, which Jehovah your God hath commanded that ye should be taught to do, in the land which ye are going 2 to take for a possession. That thou mayest so fear Jehovah thy God, as to keep all his statutes and his commandments, which I command thee; thou, and thy son, and thy grandson, all the days of thy life; and that 3 thy days may be prolonged. Hear, O Israel, and take heed to do; that it may be well with thee, and that thou mayest greatly multiply, (as Jehovah the God of thy fathers hath promised thee,) in a land which floweth with milk and honey.

- 4 Hear, O Israel: Jehovah is our God;
 5 Jehovah is one: Thou shalt, therefore, love Jehovah thy God, with all thine heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy might.
 6 And these words, which I command thee this day, shall be in thine heart; And thou shalt teach them diligently to thy children; and shalt talk of them when thou sittest in thine house, and when thou walkest in the way, and when thou liest down, and when 7 thou risest up. And thou shalt bind them for a token upon thine hands; and they shall be for frontlets between thine eyes.
 8 And thou shalt inscribe them upon the posts of thy house, and on thy gates. And it shall be, when Jehovah thy God shall have brought thee into the land which he swore to thy fathers, to Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, that he would give to thee; with great and goodly cities, which thou buildedst
 9 not; And houses full of all good things, which thou filledst not, and wells digged, which thou diggedst not, vineyards and olive-trees, which thou plantedst not; when thou
 10 shalt have eaten and art full; Then beware lest thou forget Jehovah "thy God," who brought thee out of the land of Egypt, from 11 the house of bondage. Jehovah, thy God, thou shalt fear; him "only shalt thou serve;" and to him thou shalt cleave, and 12 by his name thou shalt swear. "Thou" shalt not go after other gods, (of the gods of the people who are round about thee;)
 13 Lest the anger of Jehovah thy God be kindled against thee, and he destroy thee from off the face of the earth: for Jehovah thy God, who is with thee, is a jealous God.

Thou shalt not tempt Jehovah thy God, 16 as thou temptedst him at Massah. Thou 17 shalt diligently keep the commandments of Jehovah thy God, and his testimonies, and his statutes, which he hath commanded thee. And thou shalt do what is right and good 18 in the sight of Jehovah; that it may be well with thee, and that thou mayest go in and possess the good land which Jehovah swore to thy fathers, that he would give to thee: By driving out from before thee all thine 19 enemies, as Jehovah hath spoken.

When thy son shall, in time to come, ask 20 thee, saying, What mean the testimonies, and the statutes, and the judgments, which Jehovah our God hath commanded us? Then thou shalt say to thy son, We were 21 Pharaoh's bondmen in Egypt; and Jehovah brought us out of Egypt with a mighty hand: For Jehovah showed signs and won- 22 ders, great and grievous, upon Egypt, upon Pharaoh, and upon all his household, before our eyes: And he thence brought us out; 23 that he might bring us hither, to give us the land which he had sworn to our fathers he would give. And Jehovah commanded us 24 to do all these statutes, to fear Jehovah our God, for our good continually. that he might preserve us alive, as it is at this day. And 25 if we take heed to do all these commandments, as he hath commanded us, it will be our righteousness, before Jehovah our God

CHAPTER VII.

B. C. 1452. Communion with other nations forbidden, for fear of idolatry.

WHEN Jehovah thy God shall bring thee 1 to the land which thou art going to take for a possession, and shall have driven out from before thee many nations: the Hethites, and the Girgashites, and the Amorites, and the Canaanites, and the Perizzites, and the Hivites, and the Jebusites; seven nations greater and mightier than thou; And when 2 Jehovah thy God shall deliver them up before thee, thou shalt smite them, so as utterly to destroy them; thou shalt make

CHAP. VI. 4. Jehovah is One] This is the version of Vitringa and others. Campbell, on Mark xii. 29, has supported it with strong reasons: I am not, however, entirely satisfied with it. I think the sense of the Hebrew is, 'Jehovah is our God, Jehovah alone or only.' For this sense of אלהים compare Gen xix. 9; Eccl. iv. 10, &c. In the New Testament, as has the same sense, Matt. xix. 17; Mark ii. 7. Three of our old versions render, 'the Lord our God is Lord only.' The Geneva, Mark xii. 29, 'The Lord our God is the only Lord,' with which Pearce agrees. In this view Moses asserts, not only that Jehovah was the God of Israel, but the only one, and as such, him only they were to fear and to serve, exclusive of all the pretended gods of the nations. Ainsworth renders, 'Jehovah our God, Jehovah is one.'

8, 9. It is still customary among the Arabs, and the oriental nations, to write passages of the Koran, and other moral sentences, on the gates of cities, walls, and door-posts. Michaelis observes, that these verses do not contain a law, but an admonition to the Israelites to guard against a superstitious use of their phylacteries. See Matt. xxiii. 5.

12. (a) Sam. version.

13. The reading of the Sept. and Syr. is supported by the quotation Matt. iv. 10. Indeed without this addition the text is defective, and the sense incomplete.

CHAP. VII. 2. Utterly destroy them] The order to exterminate the Canaanites has formed a plausible objection against the divine mission of Moses, from Tindal to Paine and Geddes. He has filled four pages with what he conceives unanswerable arguments. He goes on this obvious principle, 'that one man has no right to injure another.' This is allowed; but has not God a right to punish offend-

- 3 no covenant with them, nor show mercy to them: Thou shalt not intermarry with them; thy daughters thou shalt not give to their sons, nor shalt thou take their daughters for thy sons. For they will turn away thy sons from following me, to serve other gods; so will the anger of Jehovah be kindled against thee, and suddenly destroy thee.
- 5 Thus, therefore, shalt thou do to them; thou shalt destroy their altars, and break in pieces their images, and cut down their groves, and burn their carved idols with fire.
- 6 For ye are a holy people to Jehovah your God: Jehovah your God hath chosen you to be a peculiar people to himself, above all the people that are upon the face of the earth.
- 7 Jehovah did not set his love upon you, or choose you, because ye were more numerous than any people; for ye were the least of all people: But because Jehovah loved you, and that he might keep the oath which he had sworn to your fathers, hath Jehovah brought you out with a mighty hand, and redeemed you from the house of bondage, from the hand of Pharaoh, the king of Egypt.
- 9 Know, therefore, that Jehovah your God, he is the true God, the faithful God, who keepeth covenant and mercy with those who love him and keep his commandments, to a thousand generations; But he repayeth openly those who hate him by destroying them: to those who hate him, he will not delay; he will openly repay them.
- 11 Ye shall, therefore, keep and do the commandments, and the statutes, and the judgments, which I command you this day.
- 12 For it shall be, if thou hearken to these judgments, and keep, and do them, that Jehovah thy God shall keep with thee the covenant and the mercy which he swore to thy fathers.
- 13 And he will love thee, and bless thee, and multiply thee; he will also bless the fruit of thy womb, and the fruit of thy land; thy corn, and thy wine, and thine oil; the increase of thine herds, and the young of thy sheep, in the land which he swore to thy fathers, that he would give to thee.
- 14 Thou shalt be blessed above all people; there shall not be male or female barren with thee, or with thy cattle.
- 15 And Jehovah "thy God" will take away from thee all sickness; and will put none of the evil diseases of Egypt, which thou knowest, upon thee; but will lay them upon all those who hate thee. And thou shalt consume all the people whom Jehovah thy God shall deliver up to thee; thine eye shall have no pity upon them. Nor shalt thou serve their gods; for that will be a snare to thee.

17 If thou shalt say in thine heart, These nations are more than I; how can I dispossess them? Be not afraid of them: remember well what Jehovah thy God did to Pharaoh, and to all Egypt: Those great trials which thine own eyes saw; and the signs, and the wonders, and the mighty hand, and the out-stretched arm, with which Jehovah thy God brought thee forth; so shall Jehovah thy God do to all the people of whom thou art afraid.

18 Moreover hornets will Jehovah thy God send among them, until they that are left, who have hidden themselves from thee, be destroyed: Be not thou affrighted at them; for Jehovah thy God is with thee, a God mighty and terrible.

19 Jehovah thy God will expel by little and little those nations from before thee: thou must not destroy them at once, lest the wild beasts increase upon thee.

But when Jehovah thy God shall have delivered them up to thee, and shall, by great and repeated overthrows, have destroyed them; And shall have delivered up their kings into thine hand; then thou shalt destroy their name from under the heavens: there shall no man be able to stand before thee, until thou have destroyed them.

20 Their carved gods thou shalt burn with fire: thou shalt not covet the silver or gold that may be on them, nor take it to thyself, lest thou be ensnared; for it is an abomination to Jehovah thy God.

21 Nor shalt thou bring an abomination into thine house, lest thou become like it, devoted to destruction; but thou shalt utterly detest it, and abhor it; for it is a devoted thing.

CHAPTER VIII.

B. C. 1452. From God's kindness Moses enforceth obedience.

ALL the commandments which I command thee this day shalt thou take heed to do; that thou mayest live, and multiply, ing, guilty mortals? And may he not make use of one man, or one nation, to punish another? On supposition that the order issued from Moses, it is unjust; but if from God, I see no injustice in his punishing the wicked nations of Canaan, by the Israelites, or any other instruments; unless we say, it is unjust in God to punish at all.

10. Openly] Literally 'to his face.' So Michaelis renders. Others think the words לפני mean 'while he liveth,' or during this life, as the words mean Gen. xi. 28.

15. Evil diseases of Egypt] Such diseases as are peculiar to Egypt seem to be meant, and those plagues which God sent as tokens of his power and justice. The leprosy and plague have ever been, and are still, the evil diseases of Egypt. (a) Sept.

22. Wild beasts] It is supposed in this verse, that if Judea should be thinly peopled, the wild beasts would so multiply there as to render it dangerous to the inhabitants. The prophet Ezekiel supposes the same, in a passage in which he describes the mercy granted to the land of Israel after its being re-peopled, when he should turn again the captivity of Sion, Ezek. xxxiv. 25. Every body knows that country is not very populous, and accordingly wild beasts are, at present, so numerous there, as to be terrifying to strangers.

- and go in and possess the land which Jehovah swore to thy fathers, that he would
 2 give to thee. And remember all the way through which Jehovah thy God hath led thee these forty years, in the wilderness, to humble thee, and to prove thee, to know what was in thine heart; whether thou wouldst keep his commandments or not.
 3 And he humbled thee, and suffered thee to hunger, that he might feed thee with manna, which thou knewest not, nor did thy fathers know; that he might make known to thee that man liveth not by bread only, but by whatsoever Jehovah appointeth, a man may 4 live. Thy raiment hath not been worn out upon thee; nor have thy feet swelled for 5 want of sandals, these forty years; That thou mayest be convinced in thine heart, that, as a man chastiseth his son, so Jehovah
 6 thy God hath chastised thee. Therefore thou shalt keep the commandments of Jehovah thy God, so as to walk in his ways, and fear him.
 7 When Jehovah thy God hath brought thee to a good "and spacious" land; a land of water-brooks, of fountains and lakes that
 8 spring out of valleys and hills; A land of wheat, and barley, and vines, and fig trees, and pomegranates; a land of olive oil, and 9 honey; A land in which thou shalt eat bread without scarcity, and shalt want nothing; a land whose stones are iron, and out of whose hills thou mayest dig copper:
 10 When thou hast eaten and art full, then thou shalt bless Jehovah thy God for the 11 good land which he hath given thee. Beware that thou forget not Jehovah thy God, so as not to keep his commandments, and his judgments, and his statutes which I this 12 day command thee; Lest when thou hast eaten and art full, and hast built goodly 13 houses, and dwelt therein; And when thy herds and thy flocks have multiplied: and thy silver and thy gold are multiplied, and 14 all that thou hast is multiplied; And thine heart be so lifted up, as to forget Jehovah thy God, who brought thee out of the land
 15 of Egypt, from the house of bondage; Who led thee through the great and terrible wilderness, full of fiery serpents, and scorpions; and who, in dry places, where there was no water, brought water for thee out of the flinty rock; Who fed thee in the wilderness with manna, which thy fathers knew not, that he might humble thee, and prove thee, that in future he might do thee good; And thou say in thine heart, My power and the might of mine hand have gotten me this wealth! But thou shalt remember Jehovah thy God: for it is he that hath given to thee power to get wealth, that he may establish his covenant which he swore to thy fathers, "to Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob," as it is this day. But if thou do indeed forget Jehovah thy God, and walk after other gods, and serve them, and worship them, I testify against thee this day, that thou shalt surely perish. As the nations which Jehovah destroyeth before thee, so shalt thou perish; because thou wouldst not be obedient to the voice of Jehovah thy God.

CHAPTER IX.

B. C. 1452. Moses dissuades from the opinion of their own righteousness, by rehearsing their several rebellions.

HEAR, O Israel; Thou art now to pass over the Jordan; to go in to possess nations greater and mightier than thyself; cities great and fenced up to the heavens; A people great and tall; of the race of the Anakites, of whom thou hast heard say, Who can stand before the Anakites! Know then this day, that Jehovah thy God, who goeth over before thee, is as a consuming fire; he shall discomfit them, and subdue them before thee; so that thou shalt quickly drive them out, and destroy them; as Jehovah hath said to thee. When Jehovah thy God shall have driven them out from before thee, speak not in thine heart, saying, On account of my righteousness Jehovah hath brought me in to possess the land: for it is on account of the wickedness of these nations that Jehovah driveth them out from before thee. Not on account of thy righteousness, or for the uprightness of thine heart, dost thou go to possess their land; but on account of the wickedness of these nations Jehovah thy God driveth them out from before thee; and that he may perform the CHAP. VIII. 3. Jehovah appointeth] This clause is obscure in our version: 'But by every word which proceedeth from the mouth of the Lord doth man live.' How can man live by a word? The sense is obvious, that God has other means of supporting life than by bread; whatsoever he appointeth for this end will be sufficient. Compare Matt. iv. 4.

4. Thy raiment not worn out] The common opinion that the raiment and shoes of the Israelites wore not, is certainly absurd. The meaning of this passage, to which we may add Nehem. ix. 21, may be, like that of any other passage, taken too literally; as may also Isa. xlviii. 21, where the prophet says, the Israelites did not suffer thirst in the desert; which is literally false, but relatively true, as their thirst was speedily satisfied. They had flocks of sheep and goats, and herds of cattle, (Numb. xxxii. 1, and Deut. iii. 19,) and from these were abundantly supplied with wool and skins, for clothing and sandals; and that they knew how to spin and weave, &c. see Exod. xxxv. 25. The meaning then is, God hath provided them with sufficient clothing.

5. Chastiseth his son] That is, correcteth him for his improvement, so hath God done to thee.

7-9. The value of the good things here said to be produced in Canaan; fountains, brooks, depths of water, wheat, barley, vines, fig-trees, pomegranates, oil, and honey, can hardly be estimated by us in Europe; but in the countries of the east they are of prime value. (a) Sam. Sept. 18. (a) Sam.

word which he swore to thy fathers, to 6 Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob. Know, then, that it is not on account of thy righteousness that Jehovah thy God giveth thee this good land for a possession: for thou art a stiff-necked people.
7 Remember, and forget not, how you provoked Jehovah your God to wrath in the wilderness. From the day that ye departed out of the land of Egypt, until ye came to this place, ye have been rebellious against 8 Jehovah. Even at Horeb ye provoked Jehovah to wrath; and Jehovah was so angry 9 with you as to have destroyed you. For, when I went up to the mountain to receive the tables of stone, the tables of the covenant which Jehovah had made with you; and I had abode in the mountain forty days and forty nights; I had neither eaten bread 10 nor drunk water; Jehovah then delivered to me two tables of stone, written with the finger of God; and on them were written the words which Jehovah had spoken with you on the mountain out of the midst of 11 the fire, on the day of the assembly. Now at the end of forty days and forty nights, when Jehovah had given to me the two tables of stone, the tables of the covenant; 12 Jehovah said to me, Arise, go quickly down hence; for corrupted are the people whom thou hast brought out of Egypt; soon have they turned aside from the way in which I commanded them to walk; they have made 13 to themselves a molten 'calf.' Moreover, Jehovah spoke to me, saying, I have seen this people, and behold they are a stiff-14 necked people: Let me alone, that I may destroy them, and blot out their name from under the heavens, and I will make of thee 15 a nation mightier and greater than they. So I turned and came down from the mountain, and the mountain burned with fire; and the two tables of the covenant were in my 16 two hands. When I looked, and beheld that ye had sinned against Jehovah your God, and had made to yourselves a molten calf, and had turned so soon aside out of the way in which Jehovah had commanded 17 you to walk; I then took the two tables, and cast them out of my two hands, and 21 broke them in pieces before your eyes. 'And I took the calf, the matter of your sin, which ye had made, and burnt it with fire, and ground it very small, until it was as small as dust; and I cast its dust into the brook that descended from the mountain."

And I fell down before Jehovah, as before. 18
Forty days and forty nights, I did neither eat bread nor drink water, on account of all your sins which ye had committed, by doing wickedly in the sight of Jehovah, to provoke him to anger. For I was afraid of the 19 anger and hot displeasure, with which Jehovah was wroth against you so as to destroy you. But at that time also Jehovah hearkened to me. For I fell down before Jeho- 25 vah forty days and forty nights, as I fell down before; because Jehovah had said he would destroy you. I therefore prayed to 26 Jehovah, and said, O Lord God, destroy not thy people and thine inheritance, whom in thy greatness thou hast redeemed; whom thou hast brought out of Egypt, with a mighty hand. Remember thy servants, 27 Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob; look not to the stubbornness of this people, nor to their wickedness, nor to their sin: Lest the "peo- 28 ple of the" land, whence thou broughtest us out, say, Because Jehovah was not able to bring them into the land which he had promised to them, he brought them out to slay them in the wilderness. Yet they are 29 thy people and thine inheritance, whom thou broughtest out by thy mighty power, and by thine out-stretched arm. 'And Jehovah 30 was so very angry with Aaron, that he would have destroyed him; but I prayed for Aaron also at the same time."

CHAPTER X.

B. C. 1452. God restored the tables of the law; an exhortation to obedience.

AT that time Jehovah said to me, Hew 1 thou two tables of stone like to the first, and come up to me on the mountain: And I 2 will write on the tables the words which were on the former tables which thou brokest: 'and make thou an ark of wood' and put them in the ark. And I hewed 3 two tables of stone like to the former, and went up to the mountain having the two tables in mine hand. And he wrote on the 4 tables, as he had written on the former tables, the ten commandments, which Jehovah spoke to you on the mountain out of the midst of the fire on the day of the assembly; and Jehovah gave them to me. 5
And I turned myself and came down from the mountain, and 'having made an ark of shittim-wood," I put the tables in the ark

CHAP. IX. 8. Even at Horeb] Moses doubtless intended to represent the greatness of their sin by its being committed even at Horeb, where they had seen the awful majesty of Jehovah.

12. See Exod. xxxii. 7, &c. (a) Sam. 3 MSS.

21. It is generally allowed that this verse is out of its place; for the burning of the golden calf occurred before what is related in the 18th verse. I would therefore, with little hesitation, place it between verses 17 and 18. I would also venture to transpose verse 20 to the end of the chapter, after verse 29, and verses 22, 23, and 24 to the next chapter after verse 11. I am persuaded, that the attentive reader will find this arrangement more clear and consistent than the common one: and as nothing is taken from the text, I trust such transpositions will be deemed pardonable. 28. (a) Sam. and versions.

which I had made; that there they may 10 remain, as Jehovah commanded me. "And I had staid on the mountain according to the former time, forty days and forty nights;
 and Jehovah hearkened to me at that time also, so that he would not destroy you.
 11 Jehovah then said to me, Arise, and lead forward "this" people, that they may go in and possess the land, which I swore to their fathers that I would give them.
 22 Again at Taberah, and at Massah, and at Kibroth-hattaavah, ye provoked Jehovah to 23 wrath. Likewise when Jehovah sent you from Kadesh-barnea, saying, Go up and possess the land which I give to you; then ye rebelled against the command of Jehovah your God, and ye believed him not, 24 nor hearkened to his voice. Ye have been rebellious against Jehovah from the day that I knew you.
 12 Yet, now O Israel, what doth Jehovah thy God require of thee, but to fear Jehovah thy God, to walk in all his ways, and to love him; and to serve Jehovah thy God with all thine heart and with all thy soul;
 13 And to keep the commandments of Jehovah
 "thy God," and his statutes, which I com-14 mand thee this day for thy good? Behold, the heavens, yea the heaven of heavens belong to Jehovah thy God, the earth also, with all 15 that is therein; Yet Jehovah regarded thy fathers with such love, that he chose their seed after them; even you above all people, 16 as is seen this day. Circumcise, therefore, the foreskin of thine heart, and be no more 17 stiffnecked. For Jehovah thy God is God of gods, and Lord of lords; a great God, a mighty, and a terrible, who regardeth not 18 persons, nor taketh bribes: Who doeth justice to the fatherless and to the widow; and loveth the stranger, so as to give him 19 food and raiment. Love thou, therefore, the stranger; for thou wast a stranger in the land of Egypt. Thou shalt fear Jeho- 20 vah thy God, him only shalt thou serve, and to him shalt thou cleave, and swear by his name. He is the object of thy praise; 21 and he is thy God, who hath done for thee those great and terrible things, which thine eyes have seen. Thy fathers were only 22 seventy persons when they went down to Egypt; and now Jehovah thy God hath made thee as the stars of heaven for multitude.

Ye shall, therefore, love Jehovah your 1
 God, and keep his charge, and his statutes, and his judgments, continually. For ye 2 this day know (for I speak not to your children who have not known, and who have not seen) the chastisement of Jehovah your God; his greatness, his mighty hand, and his out-stretched arm; And his miracles, 3 and his acts, which he did, in the midst of Egypt, to Pharaoh, the king of Egypt, and to all his land; And what he did to the host 4 of Egypt; to their horses, and to their char-iots; how he made the water of the Red Sea to overflow them as they pursued after you; and how Jehovah destroyed them for ever; And what he did to you in the wil- 5 derness, until ye came to this place; And what he did to Dathan and Abiram, the 6 sons of Eliab, the son of Reuben; how the earth opened her mouth, and swallowed them up, "and every man who had joined Korah," and their households, and their tents, and all the substance which they possessed in the midst of Israel. Your eyes 7 then having seen all the great deeds which Jehovah did, Ye shall, therefore, keep all 8 the commandments which I command you this day, that ye may be strong, and enter and possess the land which ye are going to take for a possession. And that ye may pro- 9 long your days on the land, which Jehovah swore to your fathers that he would give to

CHAP. X. 6. And the children of Israel took their journey from Beeroth of the children of Jaakan, to Mosera: there Aaron died, and there he was buried; and Eleazar his son ministered in the priest's office in his stead. 7. From thence they journeyed unto Gudgodah; and from Gudgodah to Jotbath, a land of rivers of waters. 8. At that time Jehovah separated the tribe of Levi to bear the ark of the covenant of Jehovah, to stand before Jehovah to minister to him, and to bless in his name, to this day. 9. Wherefore the Levite hath no part nor inheritance among his brethren; Jehovah is his inheritance, according as Jehovah his God promised to him. We have here four verses, which have no kind of connexion with the verses before and after them; but also, as they stand in the present Hebrew text, directly contradict that very text: and the two first of these verses have not, in our Hebrew text, the least connexion with the two last of them. Our Hebrew text (ver. 6) says—that Israel journeyed from Bene-jaakan to Mosera. Whereas, that very text, in the complete catalogue (Numb. xxxiii. 31,) says—they journeyed from Mosera to Bene-jaakan. Again; Aaron is here said to have died at Mosera; whereas he died on mount Hor, the seventh station afterwards: see Numb. xxxiii. 38. And again: they are said to go from Bene-jaakin to Mosera—thence to Gudgodah—and thence to Jotbath; whereas the complete catalogue says—Moseroth to Bene-jaakan—thence to Horagidgad—and thence to Jotbathah. But, if the marches could possibly be true, as they now stand in these two verses; yet, what connexion can there be between Jotbath and the separation of the tribe of Levi? Kennicott. Most critics agree in this opinion; and it is probable that the verses were early introduced by some scribe through mistake.

11. These verses are transposed here from the preceding chapter. See note verse 21. (a) Sam. Sept. 1 MS.

13. (a) Sam. Sept. Syr.

14. Yea, the heaven of heavens] That is, the highest heavens and the whole heavens.

16. Circumcise] That is, retrench every perverse and stubborn disposition.

CHAP. XI. 2. For the construction of this verse, the learned reader may see note, Hebrew Bible.

6. And every man] The clause now found in the Sam.
 ought doubtless to be admitted as a genuine part of the text.
 For, as Houbigant observes, it is scarcely probable that Moses should mention Dathan and Abiram, and omit Korah, who was leader of the rebellion. Korah himself and his Levites were consumed by fire. See Numb. xxvi. 10.

them and to their seed ; a land that floweth with milk and honey.

- 10 For the land which 'ye are going to possess' is not as the land of Egypt, whence ye came, where ye sowed seed, and watered
- 11 with your foot, as a garden of herbs ; But the land which ye go to possess, is a land of hills and valleys, and is watered with rain
- 12 from the heavens ; A land which Jehovah your God careth for ; the eyes of Jehovah your God are always upon it, from the beginning of the year unto the end of the year.
- 13 And if ye will hearken diligently to the commandments which I this day command you so as to love Jehovah your God, and to serve him with all your heart and with
- 14 all your soul, 'He' will give you the rain of your land in its due season ; the autumn-rain and the spring-rain, that ye may gather in your corn, and your wine, and your oil.
- 15 And for your cattle, 'he' will give grass in your fields, that ye may eat and be satisfied.
- 16 Take heed to yourselves, that your hearts be not deceived, and ye turn aside, and
- 17 serve other gods, and worship them ; Lest the anger of Jehovah be kindled against you, and he shut up the heavens, that there be no rain, and that the land yield not its fruit ; and ye quickly perish from off the good land which Jehovah had given to you.
- 18 Therefore shall ye lay up these my words in your heart, and in your soul, and bind them for a token upon your hand ; and let them be as frontlets between your eyes.
- 19 And ye shall teach them your children, speaking of them when ye sit in your houses, and when ye walk by the way ; when ye lie down and when ye rise up.
- 20 And ye shall inscribe them upon the door-posts of your houses, and upon your city-
- 21 gates : That your days, and the days of your children may be multiplied, on the land which Jehovah swore to your fathers that he would give them ; as the days of the heavens over the earth.
- 22 For, if ye diligently keep all these commandments which I command you, so as to do them ; to love Jehovah your God, to walk
- 23 in all his ways, and to cleave to him ; Then will Jehovah drive out all these nations from before you ; and ye shall dispossess nations greater and mightier than yourselves. Every place on which the soles of 24 your feet may tread shall be yours : from the wilderness to Lebanon, from the 'great' river, the river Euphrates, even to the western sea shall your boundary be. There 25 shall no man be able to stand before you ; for Jehovah your God shall put the fear of you and the dread of you upon every land on which ye may tread ; as he hath promised to you.

Behold, I set before you this day a bless- 26 ing and a curse ; A blessing, if ye obey the 27 commandments of Jehovah your God, which I this day command you ; And a curse, if 28 ye will not obey the commandments of Jehovah your God, but turn aside out of the way which I this day command you, to go after other gods, which ye have not known. And it shall be, when Jehovah your God 29 hath brought you into the land which ye are going to possess, that ye shall put the blessing on mount Gerizim, and the curse upon mount Ebal. (Are they not on the other 30 side of the Jordan, toward the setting sun, in the land of the Canaanites, who dwell in the plain opposite to Gilgal, nigh the turpentine-tree of Moreh 'over against Shechem?') For ye are about to pass over 31 the Jordan to possess the land which Jehovah your God giveth to you ; and which ye shall possess and dwell therein ; But ye 32 shall observe to do all the statutes and the judgments which I this day set before you.

CHAPTER XII.

B. C. 1452. Monuments of idolatry are to be destroyed ; blood forbidden.

THESE are the statutes and judgments, 1 which ye shall observe to do all the days that ye shall live on the earth, in the land, which Jehovah the God of your fathers giveth you for a possession. Ye shall utterly 2 destroy all the places, where the nations ye shall dispossess served their gods, whether on the high mountains, or on the hills, or under any green tree ; And ye shall over- 3 throw their altars and break their statues, and burn their groves with fire ; and ye shall hew down their carved gods, and destroy their names from that place. Ye shall not 4 do so to Jehovah your God ; But to the 5

10. With your foot] Pilkington conjectures that רגל, foot, is used metaphorically to denote labour. See Gen. xxx. 30 ; Isa. xxxii. and lviii. 13. He, therefore, conceives the import of the phrase is, which thou wateredst with great labour. I have no doubt but this is the sense, but the ingenious comment of Grotius, since confirmed by Niebuhr, explains the reason why רגל denotes labour. Moses alluded to a machine for drawing up water, which was worked by the foot. Such a one, Grotius long ago observed, that Philo, who lived in Egypt, has described as used by the peasants of that country in his time. (v) Syr.

14, 15. He will give] It is not probable Moses would say, 'I will give you rain,' and 'I will send you grass.' The versions retain the genuine reading.—The autumn rain] What fell in October, after seed time.—The spring rain] What fell in March to plump the grain before it was cut. At these two seasons only was it usual for rain to fall, in Judea.

21. As the days of the heavens over the earth] That is as long as the heavens and the earth abide, or for ever.

24. Western sea] Literally, the latter or hinder sea ; the Mediterranean is so called to distinguish it from the sea of Sodom. (a) Sept. Vulg. 30. (a) Sam.

CHAP. XII. 5. For his abode] Literally, 'that his place which Jehovah your God shall choose out of all your tribes for his abode, to his habitation shall ye seek, and thither shall ye come: And thither ye shall bring your burnt-offerings, and your other sacrifices, and your tithes, and your heave-offerings; and your votive, and your free-will offerings, and the firstlings of your herds and of your flocks. And there ye shall eat before Jehovah your God, and ye and your households shall rejoice that Jehovah your God hath blessed all your labours. Ye shall not do according to all that we now do here; every man whatsoever is right in his own eyes. For ye are not as yet come to the rest and to the inheritance, which Jehovah your God giveth to you. But when ye shall have gone over the Jordan, and shall dwell in the land which Jehovah your God giveth you to inherit; and when he shall have given you rest from all your surrounding enemies, so that ye dwell in safety; Then whatever place Jehovah your God shall choose for his own abode, thither shall ye bring all that I command you; your burnt-offerings, and your other sacrifices; your tithes, and your heave-offerings, and all your choice votive-offerings, which ye vow to Jehovah: And ye shall rejoice before Jehovah your God; ye, and your sons and your daughters, and your man-servants, and your maid-servants; and the Levite who is within your gates; forasmuch as he hath no part nor inheritance among you. Take heed to yourselves that ye offer not your burnt-offerings in every place that ye may see; But in that place which Jehovah shall choose among one of your tribes, there shall ye offer your burnt-offerings, and there ye shall do all that I command you. Nevertheless ye may kill and eat the flesh of your herds and flocks in all your gates, whenever ye choose, according to the blessing which Jehovah your God hath given you; the unclean and the clean may eat of it, as of the flesh of the antelope and of the deer: Only ye shall not eat the blood; ye shall pour it upon the earth as water. Thou mayest not eat within thy gates the tithe of thy corn, or of thy wine, or of thy oil, or the firstlings of thy herds or of thy flocks; nor any of thy votive-offerings which thou vowest, nor thy freewill-offerings, nor thy heave-offerings: But thou must eat 18 them before Jehovah thy God in the place which Jehovah thy God hath chosen; thou, and thy son, and thy daughter, and thy man-servants, and thy maid-servants, and the Levite who is within thy gates; and thou shalt rejoice before Jehovah thy God in respect to all thou undertakest. Take heed 19 to thyself that thou neglect not the Levite as long as thou livest on thy land.

When Jehovah thy God shall have enlarged thy boundary, as he hath promised thee, and thou shalt say, 'I will eat flesh,' because thou longest to eat flesh; thou mayest eat flesh, whensoever thou longest for it. If the place which Jehovah thy God 21 hath chosen for his abode be too far from thee, thou mayest then, within thy gates, kill and eat of the flesh of thine herds, and thy flocks, which Jehovah hath given thee, whensoever thou longest to eat, as I have commanded. Even as the antelope and the 22 deer are eaten, so mayest thou eat them; the unclean and the clean may eat of them alike. Only be sure that thou eat not the 23 blood; for the blood is the life; and the life thou mayest not eat with the flesh. Thou shalt not eat of it; thou shalt like 24 water pour it upon the earth. Eat it not; 25 that it may be well with thee, and with thy children after thee, when thou shalt do what is right in the sight of Jehovah. Yet what 26 things thou hast hallowed, and thy votive-offerings, thou shalt take, and go to the place which Jehovah shall have chosen; And thou shalt offer thy burnt-offerings, 27 both the flesh and the blood upon the altar of Jehovah thy God; and the blood of thy other sacrifices shall be poured out upon the altar of Jehovah thy God; but the flesh of these thou mayest eat. Observe and 28 hearken ^aso as to do^a all these things which I command thee, that it may ^anow^a be well with thee, and with thy children after thee for ever when thou doest what is good and right in the sight of Jehovah thy God.

When Jehovah thy God shall have cut 29 off the nations from before thee, whom thou art going to dispossess, and thou succeedest them, and dwellest in their land; Take heed 30 to thyself, after they have been destroyed same may dwell there;' but name is frequently put for Joel himself, and the next words support the sense I have given. Others would render, 'that his name may be there invoked.'

16. Your heave-offerings] Here ידכם, and often elsewhere, is used for the pronoun.—Firstlings of your herds] It has been thought difficult to reconcile this with the law, which had ordained the firstlings of the herd and the flock to be given to the Levites; that the tithes and firstlings were mentioned are not every tithe and firstling, nor a secondary sort of firstlings and tithes: but the tithe of the tithes, and the choice, or first of the firstlings. I draw this inference from Exod. xxiii. 18, where the Israelites are desired to bring to the house of God, not the firstlings themselves, but the prime of the firstlings.

15. Eat the flesh] The text is here brief, but sufficiently intelligible. The words put in Italic are evidently understood. The antelope and the deer were not to be offered in sacrifice; but were clean animals, and commonly used for food.

19. As long as thou livest on thy land] So Bate after the Sept. It may be inferred, that the Jews, in their state of exile, are not tied down to the observation of this precept.

28. (a) Sam. Syr.

that thou be not ensnared by following them, and that thou inquire not after their gods, saying, How did these nations serve their 31 gods? even so will I do likewise. Thou shalt not do so to Jehovah thy God; for every abomination which Jehovah hateth have they done to their gods; for even their sons and their daughters they have 32 burnt in the fire to their gods. What thing soever I command thee, observe to do it; thou shalt not add to it, nor take from it.

CHAPTER XIII.

B. C. 1452. Enticers to idolatry are to be destroyed.

- 1 IF there arise among you a prophet, or a dreamer of dreams; and he appoint to you
- 2 a sign or a wonder; And the sign or the wonder come to pass, and he speak to you, saying, Let us go after other gods, (which ye have not known,) and let us serve
- 3 them; Ye shall not hearken to the words of that prophet, or that dreamer of dreams; for Jehovah your God proveth you, to know whether ye love Jehovah your God with all
- 4 your heart and with all your soul. Ye shall walk after Jehovah your God, and fear him, and keep his commandments, and obey his voice, and serve him, and cleave to him;
- 5 And that prophet, or that dreamer of dreams, shall be put to death; because he hath proposed to turn you away from Jehovah your God, (who brought you out of the land of Egypt, and redeemed you out of the house of bondage,) to withdraw you from the way in which Jehovah your God commanded you to walk: So shall ye put away the evil from among you.
- 6 If thy brother, "the son of thy father," or the son of thy mother, or thy own son, or thy own daughter, or the wife of thy bosom, or thy friend, (who is dear as thy own life,) entice thee secretly, saying, Let us go and
- 7 serve other gods: (Any of the gods of the people which are round about thee, whether nigh to thee, or far from thee, from one end of the earth to the other end of the earth, 'which thou knowest not, nor thy fathers.")
- 8 Thou shalt not consent, nor hearken to him; neither shall thine eye pity him; nor shalt
- 9 thou spare or conceal him; But thou shalt surely kill him; thine hand shall be first upon him to put him to death, and after-
- 10 wards the hand of all the people. And thou shalt stone him with stones, until he die; because he hath sought to withdraw thee from Jehovah thy God who brought thee out of the land of Egypt, from the house of bondage; That all Israel may hear 11 and fear, and that no more such wickedness as this be done among you.

If thou shalt hear it said, that in one of 12 thy cities which Jehovah thy God hath given to thee to dwell in, Worthless men have 13 sprung up among you, and have withdrawn the inhabitants of their city, by saying, Let us go and serve other gods, which ye have not known; Then shalt thou inquire, and 14 examine, and ask diligently; and, behold, if it be true, and the thing certain, that such abomination hath been committed among you; Thou shalt surely smite the 15 inhabitants of that city with the edge of the sword; destroying it utterly, and all that is therein, and its cattle, with the edge of the sword. And thou shalt gather all the spoil 16 of it into the midst of its street, and shall burn with fire the city, and its whole spoil, to Jehovah thy God: and it shall be a heap for ever; it shall not be rebuilt. And nought 17 of the cursed thing shall cleave to thine hands; that Jehovah may turn from the fierceness of his anger, and show thee mercy, and have compassion upon thee, and multiply thee, as he hath sworn to thy fathers; When thou shalt hearken to the voice of 18 Jehovah thy God, so as to keep all his commandments which I this day command thee, by doing what is right in the eyes of Jehovah thy God.

CHAPTER XIV.

B. C. 1452. What may, or may not be eaten; tithes of various kinds.

YE are the children of Jehovah your God; I ye shall not cut yourselves, nor make bald your foreheads, for the dead. For ye are a holy people to Jehovah your God, and Jehovah your God hath chosen you out of all the nations that are upon the earth, to be a peculiar people to himself.

Ye shall not eat any thing abominable. These are the beasts of which ye may eat: the ox, the sheep, and the he-goat; The deer and the antelope, and the goat-deer, and the wild goat, and the pygarg, and the wild ox, and the chamois; And every other beast whose hoof is divided into two parts, and which cheweth the cud among the CHAP. XIII. 1. A dreamer of dreams] That is, one who pretends to have received prophetic dreams.

2. And the sign come to pass] It is implied in this, that God sometimes permitted such events as seemed to confirm the predictions of such pretenders.

6. The reading of the Sam. and Sept. is supported by the text itself; for Moses would not have noticed the son of his mother, if he had not contrasted him with the son of his father. (a) Sam. Sept. 7. (?) From verse 6.

9. Thou shalt surely kill] The Greek version most probably read, 'thou shalt surely bear witness against him.' It was not the province of the denouncer to kill the guilty person: the sentence of the judge was to be obtained for that purpose.

14. Worthless men] Literally 'sons of Belial.' I have given what is admitted to be the sense, which is more picturesque than the idiom.

CHAP. XIV. 4-20. Compare Levit. xi. 2, &c.

- 7 beasts, ye may eat. Yet of those that chew the cud, or of those who have a divided cloven hoof, these ye shall not eat: the camel, and the hare, and the jerboa: for they chew the cud, but have not a cloven hoof; therefore they shall be to you unclean.
- 8 So the swine, though he hath a divided hoof, yet as he cheweth not the cud, shall be to you unclean. Ye shall not eat of their flesh, nor touch their dead carcases.
- 9 These, of all the water-animals, ye may eat: all that have fins and scales shall ye eat: But whatsoever hath not fins and scales ye may not eat: it shall be to you unclean.
- 10 Of all clean birds ye may eat; But these are they of which ye shall not eat: the eagle, 13 and the vulture, and the ospry, And the falcon, and the kite, and the glede with its kind; And the raven with its kind; And the ostrich, and the night-owl, and the horn- 16 owl, and the hawk with its kind; The sea-gull and the cormorant, and the ibis, and 17 the swan, And the pelican, and the king-fisher, And the stork; and the heron with its kind, and the lapwing, and the bat; 19 And every flying creature that creepeth shall be to you unclean: they shall not be eaten.
- 20 But of all clean fowls ye may eat.
- 21 Thou shalt not eat of any thing that dieth of itself: thou shalt give it to the stranger who is in thy gates, that he may eat it; or thou mayest sell it to a stranger: but thou art a holy people to Jehovah thy God. Thou shalt not dress a kid in its mother's 22 milk. Thou shalt truly tithe all the increase of thy seed, which the field bringeth 23 forth, year by year. And the tithe of thy corn, of thy wine, and of thine oil, and the firstlings of thy herds and of thy flocks, thou shalt eat before Jehovah thy God, in the place which he shall choose for his own abode; that thou mayest learn to fear Jehovah thy 24 God continually. But if the place which Jehovah thy God shall choose for his abode, be far from thee, that from the length of the way thou art not able to carry thy tithe, (when Jehovah thy God hath blessed thee,) 25 Then thou shalt turn it into money; and shalt take the money in thine hand, and go to the place which Jehovah thy God hath 26 chosen: And thou shalt give money for whatsoever thou desirest, for oxen, or for sheep, or for wine, or for strong drink, or for whatsoever else thou desirest: and thou shalt eat there before Jehovah thy God, and thou shalt rejoice; thou and thine household, And the Levite who is within thy 27 gates; thou shalt not neglect him; because he hath no part nor inheritance with thee.

And at the end of the third year thou 28 shalt bring forth all the tithe of thine increase of that year, and shalt lay it up within thy gates; And the Levite, (because he hath 29 no part nor inheritance with thee,) and the stranger, and the fatherless, and the widow, who are within thy gates, shall come, and eat and be satisfied; that Jehovah thy God may bless thee in every work of thine hands.

CHAPTER XV.

B. C. 1452. Debts must not be demanded on the sabbatical year; laws respecting the release of servants.

At the end of every seven years thou 1 shalt make a release. And this is the manner of the release: Every creditor that lendeth ought to his neighbour shall give him a release; he shall not exact it of his neighbour, who is his brother, when Jehovah's release-year is proclaimed. From a 3 stranger thou mayest exact what is thine own, but to thy brother thou shalt give a release; To the end that there may be no 4 poor with thee; for Jehovah will greatly bless thee in the land which Jehovah thy God giveth thee to possess as an inheritance. If thou carefully hearken to the voice of 5 Jehovah thy God, and observe to do all these commandments which I this day command thee. For Jehovah thy God will 6 bless thee, as he promised to thee: and thou shalt lend to many nations, but thou shalt not borrow; and thou shalt reign over many nations, but they shall not reign over thee. If there be among you a poor man, 7 one of thy brethren within any of thy gates, in thy land which Jehovah thy God giveth to thee, thou shalt not harden thine heart nor shut thine hand from thy poor brother: But thou shalt open thine hand liberally to 8 him, and shalt surely lend him what he wanteth, sufficient for his need. Beware 9 of thinking in thy wicked heart, and of saying, The seventh year, the year of release, is at hand; and thine eye be evil against thy poor brother, and thou givest him nought; and he cry to Jehovah against thee, and sin be laid to thy charge. Thou shalt surely 10

13-16. I have followed the Samaritan text because it exactly agrees with the parallel place.

CHAP. XV. Michaelis and others explain this as only releasing the debtor during the year the land rested; but that afterwards the debt might be demanded. Whatever might be the right of the creditor, what follows to the 11th verse seems to regard a final remission, and to consider it a species of charity.

4. There may be no poor] I adopt the version of Floubigant, as I think no other can reconcile this with the 11th verse. The release was to be given to the poor Israelite, that he might provide henceforward for himself, especially if aided by the liberality of his brethren.

6. Thou shalt reign over] The debtor, according to the law, when unable to pay, might be sold for a servant. The Israelites would not become dependent on other nations, by owing them money, but other nations would be dependent on them.

- give to him, and thine heart shall not be grieved when thou givest to him : because for this thing Jehovah thy God shall bless thee in all thy works, and in whatsoever thou engagest. For the poor will never cease out of the land ; therefore I command thee, saying, Thou shalt open thine hand liberally to thy poor and needy brother, in thy land.
- 12 And if thy brother or sister (a Hebrew man or a Hebrew woman) have been sold to thee, and have served thee six years ; then in the seventh year thou shalt let him or her go free from thee. And when thou sendest him out free from thee, thou shalt not let him go away empty-handed. Thou shalt furnish him liberally from thy flock, and from thy threshing-floor, and from thy winepress ; according as Jehovah thy God hath blessed thee thou shalt give to him.
- 15 And thou shalt remember that thou wast a bondman in the land of Egypt, until Jehovah thy God redeemed thee ; therefore do I now command thee this thing. But it shall be, if he say to his master, I will not go out from thee ; because he loveth him and his household, having been treated kindly by him, Then thou shalt take an awl, and thrust it through his ear to the door, and he shall be thy servant for ever. So also shalt thou do to thy maid-servant. It shall not seem hard to thee, to let him go from thee free ; for in serving thee six years, he hath been worth double a hired servant ; so Jehovah thy God shall bless thee in all thou doest.
- 19 All the male firstlings which are brought forth by thine herds and thy flocks thou shalt hallow to Jehovah thy God : With the firstlings of thine herds, thou shalt not labour ; and the firstling of thy flocks thou shalt not shear. Thou and thy household shall eat them before Jehovah thy God year by year, in the place which Jehovah shall choose. But if there be any blemish in them ; if they be lame, or blind, or having any other bad blemish, thou shalt not sacrifice them to Jehovah thy God.
- 22 Thou shalt eat them within thy gates ; the unclean and the clean may alike eat of them, as of the flesh of the antelope and the deer : Only their blood thou shalt not eat ; thou shalt pour it, like water, upon the ground.

20. See chapter xii. 6.

CHAP. XVI. 2. With other sacrifices] As the lamb was appointed for the paschal sacrifice, something must be here supplied to reconcile this passage with others. (See Ez. xii.) Delgado supplies, besides those from the flocks and the herds. To the same purpose Geddes, Dathe, and others. So the Arabic.

3. Bread of affliction] So called because intended to remind them of the affliction endured in Egypt. Isa. xxx. 20.

CHAPTER XVI.

B. C. 1452. The three annual festivals, and what every male must offer.

OBSEVE the month of Abib, and keep 1 the passover to Jehovah thy God ; for in the month of Abib Jehovah thy God brought thee out of Egypt by night. Thou shalt 2 therefore sacrifice the passover offering to Jehovah thy God, with other offerings of the flock and the herd, in the place which Jehovah thy God shall choose for his abode. Thou shalt not eat with it leavened bread ; 3 but seven days shalt thou eat the unleavened bread of affliction ; that thou mayest remember the day when thou camest out of the land of Egypt, all the days of thy life, for thou camest out of the land of Egypt in haste. And let no leavened bread be seen 4 with thee in all thy districts for seven days ; nor let aught of the flesh, which thou sacrificedst the first day in the evening, remain all night until the morning. Thou mayest 5 not sacrifice the passover victim within any of thy gates, which Jehovah thy God giveth to thee : But at the place which Jehovah 6 thy God shall choose for his abode, there thou shalt sacrifice the passover victim in the evening, at the going down of the sun, at the season in which thou camest out of Egypt. And thou shalt roast and eat it 7 in the place which Jehovah thy God shall choose ; but thou mayest return in the morning, and go to thine own house. Six 8 days thou shalt eat unleavened bread ; and on the seventh day shall be a solemn assembly to Jehovah thy God ; on it thou shalt do no work.

Thou shalt number to thyself seven weeks ; 9 when thou beginnest to put the sickle to the corn, begin to number the seven weeks. And 10 thou shalt keep the feast of weeks to Jehovah thy God, with a tribute of a freewill-offering from thine hand, which thou shalt give, according as Jehovah thy God hath blessed thee : And thou shalt rejoice before 11 Jehovah thy God ; thou and thy son, and thy daughter, and thy man-servant, and thy maid-servant, and the Levite who is within thy gates, and the stranger, and the fatherless, and the widow, who are among you, in the place which Jehovah thy God hath chosen for his own abode. And thou shalt 12 remember that thou wast a bondman in 7, 8. And go to thine house] The note of Delgado is : ' In verse 7 he bids them go to their tents, the morning after the passover : how then, can this mean a solemn assembly ? The Hebrew word means desertion from work. But in the supposition that they went home, on the morning after the paschal sacrifice, they might return on the seventh day to hold an assembly to the Lord.

10. Archbishop Secker very properly bids us efface the words in italic in our common version of this verse : unto Egypt; and thou shalt observe and do these statutes.

- 13 Thou shalt observe the feast of booths seven days, after thou shalt have gathered
- 14 in thy corn and thy wine; And thou shalt rejoice at thy feast; thou, and thy son, and thy daughter, and thy man-servant, and thy maid-servant, and the Levite, and the stranger, and the fatherless, and the widow,
- 15 who are within thy gates. Seven days shalt thou keep a solemn feast to Jehovah thy God in the place which Jehovah thy God shall choose; for Jehovah thy God shall bless thee in all thine increase, and in all the works of thine hands, so that thou shalt surely rejoice.
- 16 Three times in a year shall all thy males appear before Jehovah thy God in the place which he shall choose; on the feast of unleavened bread, and on the feast of weeks, and on the feast of booths: and they shall
- 17 not appear before Jehovah empty: Every man shall give as he is able, according to the blessing which Jehovah thy God hath given to thee.
- 18 Judges and officers shalt thou appoint in all thy gates, which Jehovah thy God giveth to thee, throughout thy tribes; and they shall judge with just judgment the people.
- 19 Thou shalt not wrest judgment; thou shalt not respect persons, nor take a bribe; for a bribe will blind the eyes of the wise, and
- 20 pervert the words of the righteous. That which is altogether just shalt thou follow, that thou mayest live, and inherit the land which Jehovah thy God giveth to thee.
- 21 Thou shalt not plant a grove of any sort of trees nigh to the altar, which thou shalt make to Jehovah thy God. Nor shalt thou set up for thyself statues, which Jehovah
- 1 thy God hateth. Thou shalt not sacrifice to Jehovah thy God any steer, or sheep, in which there is a blemish, or any evil quality; for this is an abomination to Jehovah thy God.

CHAPTER XVII.

B. C. 1452. Idolaters to be slain; the decision of difficult matters; the choice and duty of a judge.

If there be found with thee, in any of 2 thy gates which Jehovah thy God may give to thee, man or woman, that hath wrought wickedness in the sight of Jehovah thy God, by transgressing his covenant, And hath 3 gone and served other gods, and worshipped them; either the sun or moon, or any of the host of the heavens, which I have forbidden; And it be told thee, then thou 4 shalt hearken, and inquire diligently, and, if it be true, that such an abomination hath been done in Israel: Thou shalt then bring 5 forth that man or that woman, who hath committed such evil deed, to thy gates; and shalt stone that man and that woman with stones, till they die. On the testimony of 6 two witnesses, or on the testimony of three witnesses, shall he that is guilty be surely put to death; but on the testimony of one witness he shall not be put to death. The 7 hands of the witnesses shall be first upon him to put him to death; and afterward the hand of all the people. So shalt thou put away the evil from among you.

If there arise a matter too hard for thee 8 in judgment, between blood and blood, between plea and plea, and between stroke and stroke, being matters of controversy within thy gates; then shalt thou arise, and go up to the place which Jehovah thy God shall have chosen; And thou shalt come to 9 the priests, the Levites, and to the judge that shall be in those days; and "they shall inquire" and show thee what is the proper judgment; And thou shalt do according to 10

the Lord thy God. They are evidently a superfluous addition.

13. Feast of booths] Russel, in his History of Aleppo, vol. ii. has given the following account of the manner in which the Jews of that city keep this feast. 'The tabernacles are variously constructed, and disposed in different situations, according to the size and other conveniences of the house. They are sometimes placed upon small terraces in the front of the upper rooms; but most commonly in the court yards: sometimes on the flat tops of houses. The ordinary method of building them is by fastening to the corners of a wooden divan four slender erect posts; which serve to support on all sides a reticulated work of green reeds; a small place only in the front being left for the entrance. This work on the outside is covered with fresh myrtle; and is hung on the inside with chintz or burdet hangings. The roof is thatched with reeds not stript of their leaves: and the best cushions and carpets are employed to dress the divan. These divans have the advantage of being easily moved; and two or more may be joined together. In some of the principal houses a permanent wooden kiosk, built upon a stone masonry, in the middle of the court, is made to serve the purpose; which, being already latticed, is easily covered with reeds and myrtle branches. There is still another method used, in order to avoid the litter of withered leaves. This is by erecting a temporary booth, consisting of slight posts, papered over, and wreathed from top to bottom with flakes of cotton: hangings supply the place of walls; and the whole is roofed with mats.'

19. Pervert the words of the just] When judges are corrupted, the words of just men, giving their testimony, are perverted by chicanery. The Jews say that the throne of Solomon had six steps, and that when he ascended the first, a crier proclaimed, 'Thou shalt not wrest judgment'—when the second, 'Thou shalt not accept persons'—when the third, 'Thou shalt not receive a bribe'—when the fifth, 'Thou shalt not set up any statue'—and when the sixth, 'Thou shalt not sacrifice ox or sheep in which there is any blemish.'

CHAP. XVII. 3. Which I have forbidden] Literally, 'which I have not commanded;' but there is here a figure of speech, and it is better to give the sense. Matthews so rendered.

8. Blood and blood] That is, whether murder has been committed, or whether he who has killed another, did it unintentionally.—Stroke and stroke] That is, what strokes are to be inflicted. The Vulg. renders 'between leprosy and leprosy,' so that the sense may be to determine, whether leprosy or not. 9. (v) Sam. Sept.

the sentence which they shall show thee, from that place which Jehovah shall have chosen; and thou shalt observe to do according to all that they teach thee: According to the sentence of the law which they shall teach thee, and according to the judgment which they shall report to thee, shalt thou do: thou shalt not decline from the sentence which they shall show thee, to the right hand or to the left. And the man that will do presumptuously, and will not hearken to the priest that standeth to minister there before Jehovah thy God, or to the judge, even that man shall die; that thou mayest put away the evil from Israel: For all the people will hear, and fear, and do no more presumptuously. When thou art come to the land which Jehovah thy God giveth to thee, and shalt possess it, and shalt dwell therein, and shalt say, I will set a king over me, like all the nations that are around me; Thou shalt assuredly set him king over thee, whom Jehovah thy God shall choose. One from among thy brethren shalt thou set king over thee; a stranger who is not thy brother, thou shalt not set over thee. But he shall not multiply horses to himself, lest he cause the people to return to Egypt, for the sake of multiplying horses: for Jehovah hath said to you, Ye shall return no more that way. Nor shall he multiply wives to himself, that his heart turn not away: nor shall he greatly multiply to himself silver and gold. And it shall be, when he sitteth on the throne of his kingdom, that he shall write himself a copy of this law in a book out of that which is before the priests the Levites: And it shall be with him, and he shall read it all the days of his life: that he may learn to fear Jehovah his God, so as to keep all the words of this law, and to do these statutes: That his heart may not be lifted up above his brethren; and that he may not turn aside from the commandment to the right hand, or to the left; to the end that he may prolong his days in his kingdom; he, and his children, in the midst of Israel.

CHAPTER XVIII.

B. C. 1452. Jehovah is the priests' and Levites' inheritance; a prophet like to Moses promised.

THE priests the Levites, the whole of the tribe of Levi, shall have no part or inheritance with other Israelites: the burnt-offerings of Jehovah, which are his inheritance, they shall eat. Therefore shall they have no inheritance among their brethren: Jehovah is their inheritance, as he hath said to them.

And this shall be the priest's due from the people, from those who offer a sacrifice, whether it be ox or sheep; they shall give to the priest the shoulder, and the two cheeks, and the maw. The first fruit also of thy corn, of thy wine, and of thine oil, and the first fleece of thy sheep, shalt thou give to him. For Jehovah hath chosen him out of all thy tribes, to stand before Jehovah thy God; to minister and bless in his name; him and his sons for ever.

And if a Levite come from any of thy gates, out of all Israel, where he had sojourned; and with all the desire of his soul come to the place which Jehovah shall have chosen, Then he shall minister in the name of Jehovah his God, as all his brethren the Levites do, who stand there before Jehovah. They shall have like portions to eat, beside what ariseth from the sale of his patrimony.

When thou art come into the land which Jehovah thy God giveth to thee, thou shalt not learn to do after the abominations of those nations. Let there not be found one 10

14, 15. It is clear that Moses did not appoint a Monarchical government, but regarded Jehovah as the king of Israel; but he so framed their political constitution, that if, in future, they should wish to have a king, they might; choosing one of their own nation. This was wise and patriotic.

16. Multiply to himself horses In a mountainous country like Judea, cavalry could be of no essential service, and Moses wisely forbids the use of it; but both this and the following precepts, the kings of Israel little regarded.

CHAP. XVIII. 3. It is disputed whether this precept be the same as that of Lev. vii. 34, or a distinct one. Delgado observes, 'that scripture explains in one place what is omitted in another: so that the two cheeks and the maw, mentioned here, may be added in Levit. vii. 34, and the breast mentioned there may be understood here.' On the other hand, some contend that this precept has nothing to do with sacrifices offered to Jehovah, but to beasts slaughtered for private use, of which the Levites had a right to the shoulder, the cheeks, and the maw. If we adopt this latter opinion, the words 'from those who offer a sacrifice,' must be rendered, 'from those who slaughter animals.' Rosenmuller says, that נֶחֱם signifies here cattle, as Gen. xxxi. 54. 5. (a) Sam. Sept.

10. Compare Levit. x. 21, and xix. 31, and xx. 27.

15. A prophet, one of thine own brethren, like to me It has been much disputed whether this primarily respects the person of our Saviour, or a succession of prophets in the Jewish church. Dathe, for the latter opinion, argues from the connexion, 'that this prophet is opposed to the soothsayers, in the preceding verses; and that there would be no force in the reasoning of Moses, unless the prophet here mentioned was immediately to succeed him; and from verses 20—22, in which they are instructed how they were to distinguish between false prophets and true, he infers the whole must be applied, not to one prophet, but to a succession. It may be replied, that the Jews had no need to consult wizards and others, as they had God's written word, and as they could always consult him by Urim and Thummim; and that the 20—22 verses, do evidently imply, that he would send them prophets from time to time, as the interpreters of his will. But there is something so marked in reference to one prophet, that he is to be like to Moses, a lawgiver, a mediator, one who should introduce a new dispensation, as Moses had done; one who should equal him in power and miracles, and disobedience to whom should be accounted capital; these things seem to limit this to the person of our Saviour.' See Newton on the prophecies.

among you that devoteth by fire his son or his daughter to Moloch; or that useth divination, or an observer of the clouds, or an 11 enchanter, or a sorcerer, Or a charmer, or 12 a pythonist, or a necromancer. For all that do these things are an abomination to Jehovah; and because of these abominations, Jehovah thy God driveth them out from 13 before thee. Thou shalt be perfect with 14 Jehovah thy God: For these nations whom thou shalt dispossess hearkened unto the observers of the clouds, and to diviners; but Jehovah thy God suffereth thee not to do so.

15 Jehovah thy God will raise up to thee a prophet, from the midst of thee, one of thy own brethren, like to me; to him thou shalt 16 hearken; According to all that thou desiredst of Jehovah thy God in Horeb on the day of the assembly, saying, Let me not hear again the voice of Jehovah my God, nor let me see this great fire any more, that 17 I die not. And Jehovah said to me, What 18 they have spoken is right. I will raise them up a prophet from among their brethren, like to thee, and will put my words in his mouth and he shall speak to them all that 19 I shall command him. And it shall come to pass, that whosoever will not hearken to my words, which he shall speak in my 20 name, I will require it of him. But the prophet who shall presume to speak a word in my name, which I have not commanded him to speak, or who shall speak in the name of other gods, even that prophet shall 21 die. And if ye say in your hearts, How shall we know the word which Jehovah hath 22 not spoken? When a prophet speaketh in the name of Jehovah, if the thing follow not, nor come to pass, that is the thing which Jehovah hath not spoken, but the prophet hath spoken it presumptuously: ye shall not be afraid of him.

CHAPTER XIX.

B. C. 1452. Cities of refuge for the manslayer; two witnesses necessary to establish a matter.

1 WHEN Jehovah thy God hath cut off the nations, whose land Jehovah thy God giveth to thee; and thou hast dispossessed them, and dwellest in their cities, and in their 2 houses; Thou shalt set apart for thyself three cities, in the midst of thy land, which Jehovah thy God giveth to thee for a possession. 3 Thou shalt divide the boundaries of thy land, which Jehovah thy God giveth to thee to inherit, into three parts, and make a road so that every manslayer may flee thither.

And this is the case of the manslayer, 4 who shall flee thither, that he may live: Whoso killeth his neighbour ignorantly, whom he hated not in time past; As when 5 a man goeth into the wood with his neighbour to hew wood, and his hand fetcheth a stroke with the axe to cut down the tree, and the head slippeth from the helve, and lighteth upon his neighbour, so that he die; he shall flee to one of those cities, that he may live: Lest the avenger of blood pursue the manslayer, while his heart is hot; and because the way is long, overtake him, and slay him; although he be not worthy of death, because he hated him not in time past. Therefore I command thee, saying: 7 Thou shalt set apart for thyself, three cities. And when Jehovah thy God hath enlarged 8 thy boundaries, as he hath sworn to thy fathers; and hath given to thee all the land which he promised to thy fathers that he would give, If thou wilt keep all these 9 commandments so as to do them, which I this day command thee; to love Jehovah thy God, and to walk ever in his ways; thou shalt then appoint, besides these three cities, 10 three cities more, That innocent blood may 11 not be shed in thy land, which Jehovah thy God giveth to thee for an inheritance; and that blood may not be upon thee.

But if any man hate his neighbour, and 11 lie in wait for him, and rise up against him, and smite him mortally so that he die; and flee into one of these cities; Then the elders 12 of his city shall send and fetch him thence, and deliver him into the hand of the avenger of blood, that he may die. Thine eye shall 13 not pity him, but thou shalt put away the guilt of innocent blood from Israel, that it may be well with thee.

Thou shalt not remove thy neighbour's 14 landmark, which thy forefathers have set in thine inheritance, which thou shalt inherit in the land which Jehovah thy God giveth to thee for a possession.

One witness shall not be sufficient against 15 a man for any iniquity, or for any sin; whatever sin he may have committed, on the testimony of two witnesses, or on the testimony of three witnesses, shall the matter be established.

If a false witness rise up against any man, 16 to testify against him some wrong; Then 17 both the men, between whom the controversy is, shall stand in the presence of Jehovah, before the priests and the judges, who shall be in those days. And the judges shall 18 make diligent inquisition; and behold, if the witness be a false witness, and hath

19 testified falsely against his brother; Then shall ye do to him, as he thought to have done to his brother: that ye may put away
20 the evil from among you: For the rest will hear, and fear; and will henceforth commit 21 no more any such evil among you. And thine eye shall not pity; but life shall go for life, eye for eye, tooth for tooth, hand for hand, foot for foot.

CHAPTER XX.

B. C. 1452. The priest's and officers' charge to the people when going to battle; on besieging cities.

- 1 WHEN ye go out to battle against your enemies, and although ye see horses, and chariots, and a people more numerous than you, be not afraid of them: for with you is Jehovah your God, who brought you out of the land of Egypt. And it shall be when ye are approaching to the battle, that the priest shall draw near to the people, And shall say to them, Hear, O Israel! Ye are this day approaching to the battle against your enemies; be not faint-hearted, nor be afraid; tremble not, nor be terrified because of them; For Jehovah your God himself goeth with you, to fight for you against your enemies, and to save you.
- 5 And the officers shall speak to the people, saying, What man is there that hath built a new house, and hath not dedicated it? let him depart and return to his house, lest he die in the battle, and another man dedicate it. And what man is there that hath planted a vineyard, and hath not yet eaten of its produce? let him depart and return to his house, lest he die in the battle, and another man eat of it. And what man is there that hath betrothed a wife, and hath not taken her? let him depart and return to his house, lest he die in the battle, and another man take her. And the officers shall speak further to the people, and shall say, What man is there that is afraid and faint-hearted? let him depart and return to his house, lest his brethren become faint-hearted, like him.
- 9 And when the officers have finished speaking to the people, captains of the hosts shall be appointed to lead on the people.
- 10 When thou approachest a city to fight
- 11 against it, then proclaim to it peace: Then if it return an answer of peace, and open to thee its gates, it shall be, that all the people who are found in it shall be tributary to thee, and shall serve thee. But if it will 12 make no peace with thee, but engage in war against thee, then thou shalt besiege it: And when Jehovah thy God hath delivered 13 it into thine hands, thou shalt smite every male in it with the edge of the sword; But 14 the women, and the little ones, and the cattle, and whatever else is in the city, its whole spoil, thou shalt take to thyself; and thou shalt eat the spoil of thine enemies, which Jehovah thy God hath given to thee. Thus shalt thou do to all the cities which 15 are afar off from thee; which are not of the cities of those nations, "whose land Jehovah thy God giveth thee for an inheritance." But of the cities of those people which Je-

16 hovah thy God giveth thee for an inheritance, thou shalt save alive nothing that breatheth; But shalt utterly destroy them;
17 namely, the "Canaanites, the Amorites, the Hethites, and the Perizzites, the Hivites, and the Jebusites;" as Jehovah thy God hath commanded thee; Lest they teach 18 thee to do after all their abominations, which they have done to their gods; and thus thou shouldst do against Jehovah thy God.

When thou shalt besiege a city a long 19 time, making war against it to take it, thou shalt not by the force of the axe destroy its fruit-trees: for of them thou mayest eat, and thou shalt not cut them down to employ them in the siege; for the fruit-trees of the field are for the support of man. Only the 20 trees which thou knowest are not trees producing food, shalt thou destroy and cut down; and with them construct bulwarks against the city that maketh war with thee, until it be subdued.

CHAPTER XXI.

B. C. 1452. Uncertain murder must be expiated; usage of a captive woman; a first-born son of a wife hated must inherit; a stubborn son to be stoned.

If one be found slain in the land which 1 Jehovah thy God giveth to thee for a possession, lying in the field, and it be not known who hath slain him; Then thy elders
2 and thy judges shall go, and measure to the cities which are around him that is slain; And the city which is nearest to the slain
3

CHAP. XX. 1. When ye go out] This verse is rendered in the plural, because the three following are so, both in the text and versions.

5. Hath not dedicated it] Rosenmuller renders, 'initiated it by dwelling in it.' We say, warmed, and our ancestors hanselled, when we first occupy a house.

6. Hath not eaten of it] Literally, 'profaned it.' The fruits of the vine, or of other trees, were not gathered for the first three years—the fruit of the fourth year was holy, and became the portion of the Levites—that of the fifth belonged to him who had planted it. It then became common or profane. See Levit. xix. 24, &c.

15. There is a striking distinction made between the cities without the boundaries of the promised land, and those within it. The former were only to be made tributaries, but the latter to be destroyed. The clause now found in the Sept. and Vulg. Geddes considers genuine, and adopts it as part of the text.

17. The Samaritan text in this verse is adopted, which both in its order and fulness is preferable to the common text.

19, 20. These two verses are obscure in the original. I trust the sense is clearly given in my version, which is partly that of Dathe.

man; even the elders of that city shall take a heifer, which hath not been wrought with, and which hath not drawn in the yoke: And the elders of that city shall bring down the heifer to an everflowing torrent, which cannot be ploughed nor sown, and shall strike off the heifer's head, into the torrent, there in the valley: And the priests, the sons of Levi, shall approach; (for them Jehovah thy God hath chosen to minister to him, and to bless in his name; and by their word shall every controversy and every assault be tried.) And all the elders of that city, which is nearest to the slain man, shall wash their hands over the heifer that hath been beheaded into the torrent; And they shall declare and say, Our hands have not shed this blood, nor did our eyes see it shed. Be merciful, O Jehovah, to thy people Israel, whom thou hast redeemed, and lay not innocent blood to the charge of thy people Israel. And the blood shall be forgiven them. So shalt thou put away the guilt of innocent blood from thee, when thou shalt thus do what is right in the sight of Jehovah.

1) When thou goest out to war against thine enemies, and Jehovah thy God hath delivered them into thine hands, and thou hast taken them captive; And if thou see among the captives a beautiful woman, and so desirest her as to take her for thy wife; Then thou shalt bring her home to thine house; and let her shave her head, and dress her nails; And she shall put off from her the raiment of her captivity, and shall remain in thine house, and bewail her father and her mother a full month; and after that thou shalt go in to her, and be her husband, and she shall be thy wife. But if it be that thou hast no delight in her, then thou shalt let her go whither she will: but thou shalt on no account sell her for money, or make a slave of her, because thou hast humbled her.

5) If a man have two wives, one beloved, and the other hated; and both the beloved and the hated have borne to him children; and if the first-born son be her's who is hated: When he maketh his sons to inherit what he possesseth, he may not make the son of the beloved first-born in preference to the son of the hated, who is the real first-born; But he shall acknowledge the 17 son of the hated for the first-born, by giving him a double portion of all that he hath; for he is the beginning of his strength; the right of the first-born is his.

If a man have a stubborn and rebellious 18 son, who will not obey the voice of his father, or the voice of his mother, and who, when they have chastened him, will not hearken to them; Then shall his father and his mother lay hold on him, and bring him out to the elders of his own city, and to the gate of his own place; And they shall say to the 20 elders of his city, This our son is stubborn and rebellious; he will not obey our voice; he is a profligate, and a drunkard. And all 21 the men of his city shall stone him with stones, until he die: so shalt thou put away evil from thee; that all Israel may hear, and fear.

If a man have committed a sin worthy of 22 death, and thou hang him on a tree; His 23 body shall not remain all night upon the tree, but thou shalt surely bury him that day; that thy land be not defiled, which Jehovah thy God giveth to thee for an inheritance: for accursed of God is every one that hangeth on a tree."

CHAPTER XXII.

B. C. 1452. Various civil and municipal laws.

THOU shalt not see thy brother's ox or 1 his sheep, "or any other of his cattle," go astray, and neglect them: thou shalt by all means bring them back to thy brother. And 2 if thy brother be not nigh to thee, or if thou know him not, then thou shalt bring it to thine own house, and it shall be with thee until thy brother seek after it; and thou shalt restore it to him. In like manner 3 shalt thou do with his ass; and so shalt thou do with his raiment; and so shalt thou do with any lost thing of thy brother's, which he hath lost, and thou hast found: thou shalt not neglect them.

Thou shalt not see thy brother's ass or 4 his ox, "or any other of his cattle," fall down by the way, and neglect them: thou shalt surely help him to lift them up.

CHAP. XXI. 4. An ever-flowing torrent] Our translators followed the Vulg. and rendered a rough valley. The word נַחַל denotes both a valley or channel, and the water which flows in it; and נָחַם denotes strong, but ever rough. In Arabic it is applied in the sense given here. An ever-flowing torrent is opposed to such as in summer were dried up, and whose banks, and perhaps their beds, might be ploughed and sown.

7. Nor did our eyes] The design of this law is to guard human life; for Jehovah will require an account of blood that has been unjustly shed, and profligately wasted.

10—14. Dress her nails] This is most probably thought to mean not only paring them, but staining them with henna, which gives them a yellow colour, and which is yet the custom in the east.

23. Every one that hangeth] The authorities in favour of this reading are sufficient to justify its adoption. The sense indeed is implied in the text. (a) Sept. Vulg. Gal. iii. 13.

CHAP. XXII. 1—8. Not neglect] Literally, 'Hide thyself from or overlook them.' The sense is given, and so in the next verse. (a) Sam.

And they shall show the proof of her virginity to the elders of the city. And the elders of that city shall take that man and chastise him ;

10. Harmer has proved, that the ass is sufficient, and is often used alone, to plough the light land of Syria ; and Isa. xxxii. 20, supposes that this animal was then used for the purpose. The prohibition can then only relate to the impropriety of joining two creatures of different species.

12. Make strings] These strings or ribbons were to tie the coverlet to the bedposts ; which might be deemed the more necessary, as a whole family often sleep in one chamber, on different beds ; and these only covered with a single rug. See Harmer's Observations.

An Ammonite or Moabite shall not enter into the congregation of Jehovah; they shall not enter into the congregation of Jehovah for ever; Because they met thee not with bread and with water in the way, when thou camest out of Egypt; and because they hired against thee Balaam the son of Beor, from Pethor of Mesopotamia, to curse thee. Nevertheless Jehovah thy God would not hearken to Balaam; but Jehovah thy God turned the curse into a blessing to thee, because Jehovah thy God loved thee. Thou shalt never seek their peace nor their prosperity, all thy days.

- Thou shalt also have a place without the camp, whither thou shalt go out: And thou shalt have a paddle among thy weapons; and it shall be, when thou shalt have occasion to ease thyself abroad, with it thou shalt dig a hole, and turn back and cover thine ordure. For as Jehovah thy God walketh in the midst of thy camp, to deliver thee, and to give up thine enemies before thee; therefore shall thy camp be holy; lest he see with thee what is offensive, and turn away from thee.

There shall be no prostitute among the daughters of Israel; nor a sodomite among the sons of Israel. Thou shalt not bring the hire of a harlot, or the price of a dog, into the house of Jehovah thy God for any vow: for even both these are an abomination to Jehovah thy God. Thou shalt not lend upon usury to thy brother; usury of money, usury of victuals, usury of any thing that is lent upon usury: To a stranger thou mayest lend upon usury; but to thy brother thou shalt not lend upon usury: that Jehovah thy God may bless thee in all that thou undertakest, in the land which thou art going to take for a possession.

When thou shalt make a vow to Jehovah thy God, thou shalt not delay to perform it: for Jehovah thy God will surely require it of thee; and it would be sin in thee not to perform it: But to forbear to vow, shall not be accounted sin to thee. That which is gone out of thy lips thou shalt perform; according to the vow which thou hast made to Jehovah thy God, and what thou hast promised with thy own mouth, shalt thou do.

When thou comest into thy neighbour's vineyard, then thou mayest eat grapes until thou art fully satisfied; but thou shalt not put any of them into thy basket. When thou goest into the standing corn of thy neighbour, thou mayest pluck the ears with thine hand; but thou shalt not move a sickle to thy neighbour's standing corn.

B. C. 1452. On divorce, pledges, leprosy, justice, and charity.

WHEN a man hath taken a wife, and "gone in to her" as her husband, and she find no favour in his sight, because he hath found some unpleasant defect in her: then let him write, and put into her hand, a bill of divorce, and send her out of his house. And if, when she hath departed out of his house, she go and become another man's wife; And if the latter husband hate her, and write, and put into her hand, a bill of divorce, and send her out of his house; or if the latter husband die, who took her

2. A bastard] Michaelis considers the word as denoting 'stranger'; but the usual sense is preferable. It signifies a child of a strange, unknown father; a brothel-child.

3. An Ammonite or Moabite] From Nehem. xiii. 4, it is clear that the words (to the tenth generation) have been repeated from the preceding verse; and indeed the text itself shows their interpolation. For how could they be excluded for ever; if they might enter in the tenth generation?

10, 11. The Samaritan text is followed, which affords the most clear and connected sense. (n) Sam.

15. Escaped from his master] This cannot refer to slaves or thieves; but to those of the surrounding nations who from cruel usage sought a refuge in Israel.

CHAP. XXIV. 1. And have gone in to her] Houbigant justly observes that the Sam. has preserved the genuine lection. For as matrimonial converse is clearly implied, and as בעלה does not in any place denote it, we must admit וּבָא אֵלֶיהָ as necessary.—Some unpleasant defect] It is probable that either some very great bodily blemish, or some base immoral habit, was meant by the legislator. Delgado has well remarked, that the first three verses in this chapter contain a chain of successive events, finishing with the case in verse 3; and verse 4 expresses what will be the law in such a case. (a) Sam. Arab.

- 4 to be his wife; Her former husband, who sent her away, may not take her again to be his wife, after she is defiled; for that would be an abomination to Jehovah: and thou shalt not bring guilt on the land, which Jehovah thy God giveth to thee for an inheritance.
- 5 When a man hath newly taken a wife, he shall not go out to war, nor shall he be charged with any business: but he shall be free at home, one year, that he may rejoice with his wife whom he hath taken.
- 6 No man shall take for a pledge the nether or the upper millstone: for he taketh the means of life for a pledge.
- 7 If a man be found stealing any of his brethren, of the children of Israel; and hath enslaved him, or sold him; then that thief shall die; and thou shalt put away the evil from thee.
- 8 Take heed in the plague of leprosy, that thou observe diligently, and do according to all that the priests, the Levites, shall teach thee: as I commanded them, so shalt thou take heed to do. Remember what Jehovah thy God did to Miriam, by the way, after thou hadst come out of Egypt.
- 10 When thou lendest thy brother any thing, thou shalt not go into his house to fetch his pledge. Thou shalt wait without, and the man to whom thou hast lent any thing shall bring out to thee the pledge. And if the man be poor, thou shalt not sleep with his
- 13 pledge in thy possession: Thou shalt surely return him the pledge when the sun goeth down, that he may sleep in his own raiment, and bless thee: and it shall be accounted to thee as an act of kindness, before Jehovah thy God. Thou shalt not oppress a hired servant who is poor and needy, whether he be one of thine own brethren, or of the sojourners that may be in thy land, within thy
- 15 gates: On each day thou shalt give him his hire, nor shalt thou let the sun go down upon it: because he is poor, and anxiously expecteth it: that he may not cry against thee to Jehovah, and sin be imputed to thee.
- 16 The fathers shall not be put to death for the children; nor shall the children be put to death for the fathers: every man shall be put to death for his own sin.
- 17 Thou shalt not pervert the judgment of the stranger, nor of the fatherless: nor take
- 18 the widow's raiment as a pledge: But thou shalt remember that thou wast a bondman in Egypt, and Jehovah thy God thence redeemed thee: therefore I command thee to do this thing.

When thou cuttest down thine harvest in thy field, and hast forgot a sheaf in the field, thou shalt not go back to fetch it; it shall be for the stranger, for the fatherless, and for the widow: that Jehovah thy God may bless thee in all the work of thine hands. When thou hast beaten thine olive trees, thou shalt not go over the boughs again: what remaineth shall be for the stranger, for the fatherless, and for the widow. When thou gatherest the grapes of thy vineyard, thou shalt not afterward glean it: what remaineth shall be for the stranger, for the fatherless, and for the widow. For thou shouldst remember that thou wast a bondman in the land of Egypt: therefore I command thee to do this thing.

CHAPTER XXV.

B. C. 1452. Stripes must not exceed forty; raising seed to a brother; on unjust weights; the memory of Achan to be blotted out.

IF there be a controversy between men, and they come into judgment; then shall the judges judge them; and shall justify the righteous, and condemn the wicked. And if the wicked man be worthy of stripes, the judge shall cause him to lie down, and to be scourged in his presence, with so many stripes as his crime deserveth. Forty stripes he may give him, but not exceed; lest, if he should exceed, and scourge him with many more stripes, thy brother should faint before thine eyes.

Thou shalt not muzzle an ox when he treadeth out the corn.

If brethren dwell together, and one of them die, and have no child, the wife of the dead shall not marry out to a stranger; her husband's brother shall go in to her, and take her to him for a wife, and perform the duty of a husband's brother to her. And it shall be, that the first-born "son" which she beareth shall succeed in the name of his brother who is dead, that his name be not blotted out from Israel. And if the man consent not to take his brother's wife, then let his brother's wife go up to the gate to the elders, and say, My husband's brother refuseth to raise up to his brother a name in

6. The upper or nether millstone] Every family had, in general, their own portable mill, or quern; which was daily employed in grinding a quantity of grain sufficient for the day. To take away this utensil, therefore, was to deprive the family of their daily bread, called here emphatically their life. This explains that part of the Lord's prayer, 'give us our daily bread.'

8. Shalt thou take heed to do] The Syr. applies this to the Levites, and renders, 'As I commanded them, shall they observe and do.' The connexion supports the other versions. Compare Levit. xiii. 14, &c.

CHAP. XXV. 2, 3. The rabbins tell us, that the scourge used had three cords, so that every stroke was counted three stripes: by which means they could not give more than 39, without passing the number 40.

5—10. Putting off the shoe, most probably signified, that he was unworthy to be regarded as a freeman, but to be viewed as a slave; for slaves went barefoot. (a) Sam. Vulg.

Israel; he will not perform the duty of my 8 husband's brother. Then the elders of his city shall call him, and speak to him; and if he persist, and say, I will not consent to 9 take her; Then shall his brother's wife come to him in the presence of the elders, and loose his shoe from off his foot, and spit in his presence, and shall speak and say, So shall it be done to that man who will not 10 build up his brother's house. And his family-name shall be called in Israel, The family of him that had his shoe pulled off.

1 When men strive one with another; and the wife of one approach in order to deliver her husband out of the hand of him who smiteth him: and she putteth forth her hand, and taketh him by the secret parts:
 2 Then thou shalt cut off her hand; thine eye shall not pity her.

3 Thou shalt not have in thy bag divers
 4 weights; a greater and a smaller. Thou shalt not have in thine house divers mea-5 sures; a greater and a smaller. But thou shalt have one perfect and just weight; one perfect and just measure shalt thou have;
 that thy days may be prolonged on the land which Jehovah thy God giveth to thee.
 6 For all that do such things; all that do unrighteously, are an abomination to Jehovah thy God.

7 Remember what Amalek did to thee by the way, when thou hadst come out of 8 Egypt: How he met thee by the way, and smote the hindmost of thee, all the feeble who were in the rear, when thou wast faint 9 and weary; and he feared not God. Therefore it shall be, when Jehovah thy God hath given thee rest from all thine enemies around, in the land which Jehovah thy God giveth to thee to possess as an inheritance, that thou shalt blot out the remembrance of Amalek from under the heavens; thou shalt not forget it.

CHAPTER XXVI.

1. C. 1452. Confession on offering the first-fruits; prayer on offering the third year's tithe, and the covenant between God and the people.

AND when thou art come into the land which Jehovah thy God giveth to thee to possess for an inheritance, and dwellest in it; Thou shalt take some of the first-fruits of the ground, which thy land which Jehovah thy God giveth to thee, produceth; and shalt put it in a basket, and go to the place which Jehovah thy God shall have chosen for his abode; And thou shalt go to the 3 priest that shall be in those days, and say to him, I profess this day to Jehovah thy God, that I am come to the country which Jehovah swore to our fathers that he would 4 give to us. And the priest shall take the basket out of thine hand, and set it down before the altar of Jehovah thy God. And 5 thou shalt speak and say before Jehovah thy God, A wandering Syrian was my father, and he went down into Egypt, and sojourned there with a few; and there he became a nation, great, mighty, and popu- 6 lous: And the Egyptians ill-treated us, and afflicted us, and imposed on us hard service:

 And when we cried to Jehovah, the God of 7 our fathers, Jehovah heard our voice, and looked on our affliction, and our labour, and our oppression; And Jehovah brought us 8 out of Egypt with a mighty hand, and with an out-stretched arm, and with great and terrible signs and wonders: And he hath 9 brought us into this place, and hath given us this land; a land that floweth with milk and honey. And now, behold, I have 10 brought the first-fruits of the land, which thou, O Jehovah, hast given to me. And thou shalt set it before Jehovah thy God, and worship before Jehovah thy God: And 11 thou shalt rejoice in every blessing which Jehovah thy God hath given to thee, and to thine household: thou and the Levite, and the stranger who is with thee.

When thou hast finished tithing all the 12 tithes of thine increase the third year, (which is the year of titling,) and hast given them to the Levite, the stranger, the fatherless, and the widow, within thy gates that they may eat, and be filled; Then thou shalt say 13 before Jehovah thy God, I have cleared away the hallowed things from mine house, and have given them to the Levite, and to the stranger, to the fatherless, and to the widow, according to all thy commandments which thou hast commanded me: I have not transgressed thy commandments, neither have I forgotten them. I have not 14 eaten of what is hallowed in my mourning; nor have I taken away aught of it for common use, nor given aught of it for the dead;
 but I have hearkened to the voice of Jehovah my God, and have done according to all

13—16. Compare Leviticus xix. 35, 36.

18. How he met] Compare Exod. xxvii. 8, &c.

CHAP. XXVI. 5. A wandering Syrian] The sense given to אֲמֹרֵי, or אֲמֹרֵי in the common version, does not seem appropriate to the condition of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob. They were not, ready to perish, but were rich and prosperous. I have therefore followed Dathé and others, who justly observe, that the word is applied to the sheep-lich who has wandered from the fold, Psal. cxix. 176, and that the word in this sense is suited to the life of the patriarchs.

 Compare Jer. i. 6. Ezek. xxxiv. 4, 16, and Isa. xxvii. 13;
 and see Gesen. in vers. Abraham was a Syrian by birth, and by the call of God, a wanderer from his kindred and country. Though God gave to him many promises, yet the only possession he had in Canaan, was that of a burying-place. Isaac and Jacob lived a like wandering life. These patriarchs, as the root of the Jewish people, are meant by father.

15 that thou hast commanded me: Look down from thy holy habitation, from the heavens, and bless thy people Israel, and the land which thou hast given us, as thou sworest to our fathers; a land that floweth with milk and honey.

16 This day Jehovah thy God hath commanded thee to do these statutes and judgments; thou shalt therefore keep and do them with all thine heart, and with all thy

17 soul. Thou hast avouched Jehovah this day for thy God; and that thou wilt walk in his ways, and keep his statutes, and his commandments, and his judgments, and

18 hearken to his voice: And Jehovah hath avouched thee this day for his peculiar people, as he promised to thee; and that if thou wilt keep all his commandments,

19 Then he will place thee above all nations which he hath made, in praise, and in fame, and in honour; and that thou shalt be a holy people to Jehovah thy God, as he hath spoken.

CHAPTER XXVII.

B. C. 1452. The law to be written on stones; the tribes divided on Gerizim and Ebal; the curses pronounced from Ebal.

1 AND Moses, with the elders of Israel, commanded the people, saying, Keep all the commandments which I this day command thee. And it shall be on the day when thou shalt pass over the Jordan into the land which Jehovah thy God giveth to thee, that thou shalt set up great stones, and plaster them with plaster: And thou shalt inscribe upon them all the words of this law; for thou art about to pass over, that thou mayest go into the land which Jehovah thy God giveth to thee; a land that floweth with milk and honey; as Jehovah the God of thy fathers hath promised.

4 Therefore it shall be when thou hast passed over the Jordan, that thou shalt set up these stones, which I this day command thee, by mount 'Ebal,' and thou shalt plaster them

8 with plaster; 'And shalt inscribe on the stones, most plainly, all the words of this law.' And there thou shalt build an altar to Jehovah thy God, an altar of stones; thou shalt not lift up an iron tool upon them. Thou shalt build the altar of Jehovah thy God of unhewn stones; on which thou shalt offer burnt-offerings to Jehovah thy God; And thou shalt offer feast-sacrifices, and shalt eat there, and rejoice before Jehovah thy God.

And Moses, and the priests the Levites, spoke to all Israel, saying, Take heed, and hearken, O Israel! This day thou art become a people 'hallowed' to Jehovah thy God: Thou shalt therefore obey the voice of Jehovah thy God, and do his commandments and his statutes, which I this day command thee.

And Moses charged the people the same day, saying, These shall stand upon mount Gerizim for the blessing of the people, when ye have passed over the Jordan; Simeon, and Levi, and Judah, and Issachar, and Joseph, and Benjamin; And these shall stand upon mount Ebal for the curse; Reuben, and Gad, and Asher, and Zebulun, and Dan, and Naphtali.

And the priests the Levites shall speak, and say to all the men of Israel with a loud voice, Accursed be the man who maketh any carved or molten idol, an abomination to Jehovah, the works of the hands of the craftsmen, and setteth it up in secret. And all the people shall answer and say, Amen. Accursed be he, who despiseth his father or his mother. And all the people shall say, Amen. Accursed be he who removeth his neighbour's landmark. And all the people shall say, Amen. Accursed be he who maketh the blind to wander out of the way. And all the people shall say, Amen. Accursed be he who perverteth the judgment of the stranger, the fatherless, and the widow. And all the people shall say, Amen. Accursed be he who lieth with his father's wife; because he uncovereth his father's skirt. And all the people shall say, Amen. Accursed be he who lieth with any kind of beast. And all the people shall say, Amen. Accursed be he who lieth with his sister, the daughter of his father, or the daughter of his mother. And all the people shall say, Amen. Accursed be he who lieth with his mother-in-law. And all the people shall

CHAP. XXVII. 2. Plaster them with plaster] It is doubtful whether the stones were to be plastered over with plaster, or only joined together with it. Michaelis considers the plaster was to preserve the stones and the engraved laws from injury; and of course it covered the stones.

3. The words of this law] Some say the ten commandments, and others, the whole of these five books of Moses; but most probably, only an abridgement of this book of Deuteronomy, or the blessings and curses here set down. Compare Joshua viii. 34.

4. Mount Ebal] Kennicott has laboured to prove, that the Samaritan is the true reading; but his arguments have been examined, and the force of them, at least, diminished by Verschuir. As it is doubtful which is the true reading, I have adhered to the text. (v) Gerizim, Sam.

5, 6. Compare Exodus xx. 25.

9. (a) Syr. 2 MSS.

14. And the priests the Levites] So Joshua, chap. viii. 33, and Josephus; and the text supports this. They stood in the middle, by the ark and the altar; and thence denounced a benediction to the observers, and maledictions to the transgressors of the law. The common Levites stood among the other tribes.

15. Here one naturally expects to find the benediction, or benedictions, precede the maledictions; nor is it easy to account for this omission. The most probable supposition that occurs to me is, that the benedictions were all included in the general one, appointed by God himself. Numb. vi. 21—26.

26. All the words of this law] The word all, which our

24 say, Amen. Accursed be he who smiteth his neighbour secretly. And all the people 25 shall say, Amen. Accursed be he who taketh a bribe to slay an innocent person. And 26 all the people shall say, Amen. Accursed be he who continueth not to do "all" the words of this law. And all the people shall say, Amen.

CHAPTER XXVIII.

B. C. 1452. The blessings of obedience, and the curses of disobedience.

1 Now it shall be, if thou wilt hearken to the voice of Jehovah thy God, to observe and to do all his commandments which I this day command thee, that Jehovah thy God will place thee above all nations of 2 earth: And all these blessings shall come on thee, and abide with thee, if thou wilt hearken to the voice of Jehovah thy God.
3 Blessed shalt thou be in the city, and blessed shalt thou be in the field. Blessed shalt thou be in the fruit of thy body and in the fruit of thy ground, and in the fruit of thy cattle; in the increase of thine herds, and 4 the flocks of thy sheep. Blessed shall be thy basket and thy kneading-bowls. Blessed shalt thou be when thou comest in; and blessed shalt thou be when thou goest out.
7 Jehovah will cause thine enemies who rise up against thee, to be smitten before thy face: they shall come out against thee one way; and shall flee before thee by seven
3 ways. Jehovah will command a blessing upon thee in thy storehouses, and on whatsoever thou undertakest; and he will bless thee in the land which Jehovah thy God
3 giveth to thee. Jehovah will establish thee as a people holy to himself, as he hath sworn unto thee, if thou wilt keep the commandments of Jehovah thy God, and walk in his 10 ways. And all the people of the earth shall see that thou art called by the name of Jehovah; and they shall be afraid of thee.
11 And Jehovah will make thee abound in good things; in the fruit of thy body, and in the fruit of thy cattle, and in the fruit of thy ground; in the land which Jehovah swore to thy fathers that he would give to 12 thee. Jehovah will open to thee his good treasures, the heavens, to give the rain to thy land in its season, and to bless all the work of thine hand: and thou shalt lend to many nations, and thou shalt not borrow of any. For Jehovah will make thee superior 13 and not inferior, and thou shalt be above only, and thou shalt not be beneath; if thou wilt hearken to the commandments of Jehovah thy God, which I this day command thee, so as to observe and do them: And thou shalt not turn aside from any of 14 the words which I this day command thee, to the right hand or to the left, to go after and serve other gods.

But it shall be, if thou wilt not hearken 15 to the voice of Jehovah thy God, to observe to do all his commandments and his statutes which I this day command thee; that all these curses shall come upon thee, and cleave to thee. Accursed shalt thou be in 16 the city; and accursed shalt thou be in the field. Accursed shall be thy basket and thy 17 kneading-bowls. Accursed shall be the 18 fruit of thy body, and the fruit of thy land, the increase of thine herds, and the flocks of thy sheep. Accursed shalt thou be when 19 thou comest in; and accursed shalt thou be when thou goest out. Jehovah will send 20 upon thee cursing, vexation, and rebuke, in whatsoever thou undertakest to do, until thou be destroyed, and thou perish quickly; because of thine evil deeds, by which thou hast forsaken him. Jehovah shall make the 21 pestilence cleave to thee, until he hath consumed thee from off the land, which thou art going to take for a possession. Jehovah 22 will smite thee with consumption, and with fever, and with the ague, and with inflammation; and with drought, and with blasting, and with mildew; and they shall pursue thee, until thou perish. And the heavens 23 which are over thy head shall be brass; and the earth which is under thee shall be iron. Jehovah will give, instead of rain to thy 24 land, dust; and from the heavens shall dust descend upon thee, until thou be destroyed. Jehovah will cause thee to be smitten before 25 thine enemies; thou shalt go out one way against them, and flee seven ways before them: and shalt be removed into all the translators have inserted as wanting before the words of this law, was thought by Jerom absolutely necessary to justify St. Paul's quotation, in Gal. iii. 10. And it is very remarkable, that this important word is now found here, not only in the Sam. text and its version, but also in six Hebrew MSS.

CHAP. XXVIII. 5. Thy kneading troughs or bowls] The word כִּשְׂמִיתֶיךָ is rendered troughs, Exod. xii. 34, in the authorized version; and this is the sense here, and not store. The meaning is, 'thou shalt have abundance of fruits, to fill thy basket, and plenty of meal, for thy kneading-bowls.' See note, Exod. xii. 34.

7. One way, and shalt flee seven] This is a proverbial saying, to denote a complete overthrow.

13. Thou superior and not inferior] That is, chief among the nations, and not subject to any. Literally, 'thee the head and not the tail.' I have followed in sense the Bishops' Bible, 'chiefest, and not the lowest.'

22—24. The ague] So the Sept. Vulg. and Arab. render. —Drought] This is the rendering of the Sam. Vulg. and Arab. versions; and as it is classed with other calamities which affect the fruits of the earth, this is more apposite than sword. If these diseases be such as arise from a violently heated state of the atmosphere, from a want of cooling rains and refreshing dews, then we see the connexion and climax of the whole, in the following verses: 'Thy heaven—atmosphere—over thy head, shall be brass; and the earth under thee shall be iron. The Lord shall make the rain of thy land powder and dust; from heaven—the atmosphere—shall it come down on thee, till thou be destroyed.'

26 kingdoms of the earth. And thy carcase shall be food for all the fowls of the air, and for the wild beasts of the earth, and no man shall scare them away. Jehovah will smite thee with the ulcer of Egypt, and with the piles, and with the scab, and with the itch; of which thou canst not be healed. 28 Jehovah will smite thee with madness, and 29 blindness, and weakness of mind; So that thou shalt grope at noonday, as the blind gropeth in darkness; and thou shalt not prosper in thy ways, but thou shalt be only oppressed and plundered continually, and 30 no man shall save thee. Thou shalt betroth a wife, and another man shall lie with her; thou shalt build a house, but shalt not dwell in it; thou shalt plant a vineyard, but shalt 31 not gather its grapes. Thine ox shall be slain before thine eyes, but thou shalt not eat of it; thine ass shall be violently taken away before thy face, and shall not be restored to thee: thy sheep shall be given to thine enemies, and thou shalt have none to 32 rescue them. Thy sons and thy daughters shall be given to a strange people, and thine own eyes looking on, and languishing for them, yet shalt thou have no power to 33 save them. The fruit of thy land, and all thy labours, shall a nation which thou knowest not, eat up; and thou shalt be only 34 oppressed and crushed continually: So that thou shalt be mad at the sight which thine 35 own eyes shall see. Jehovah will smite thee in the knees, and in the legs, with an ulcerous sore that cannot be healed; from the sole of thy foot to the crown of thy head. 36 Jehovah shall bring thee, and thy king whom thou shalt have set over thee, to a nation which neither thou nor thy fathers have known; and there shalt thou serve 37 other gods, of wood and stone. And thou shalt become an astonishment, a proverb, and a by-word, among all the nations whither Jehovah shall lead thee. Thou shalt 38 carry much seed out into the field, and shalt gather but little in; for the locust 39 shall consume it. Thou shalt plant vineyards, and dress them, but shalt neither drink of the wine, nor gather the grapes;

for the worms shall eat them. Thou shalt 40 have olive-trees throughout all thy districts, but thou shalt not anoint thyself with the oil; for thine olive-trees shall cast their fruit. Thou shalt beget sons and daughters, but 41 thou shalt not enjoy them; for they shall go into captivity. All thy trees, and the 42 fruit of thy land, shall the locusts consume. The stranger that is within thee shall get 43 up far, far above thee; and thou shalt be far, far down below him. He shall lend to 44 thee, and thou shalt not lend to him; he shall be superior, and thou shalt be inferior. Moreover, all these curses shall come upon 45 thee, and shall pursue thee, and cleave to thee, till thou be destroyed: because thou didst not hearken to the voice of Jehovah thy God, so as to keep his commandments, and his statutes, which he commanded thee: And they shall be upon thee for a sign and 46 for a wonder, and upon thy seed perpetually. Because thou servedst not Jehovah thy God 47 with joyfulness, and with gladness of heart, for the abundance of all things; Therefore 48 shalt thou serve thine enemies, whom Jehovah shall send against thee, in hunger, and in thirst, and in nakedness, and in want of all things; and he shall put a yoke of iron upon thy neck, until he have destroyed thee. Jehovah will bring a nation against 49 thee from far, from the end of the earth, with the speed of an eagle; a nation whose tongue thou wilt not understand; A nation 50 of fierce countenance, who will not regard the person of the aged, nor show favour to the young: And they will eat the fruit of 51 thy cattle, and the fruit of thy land, until thou be destroyed: who will not leave to thee either corn, wine, or oil; or the increase of thine herds, or the flocks of thy sheep, until they have destroyed thee. And they 52 shall besiege thee in all thy gates, until thy high and fenced walls come down, in which thou trustedst, throughout all thy land: yea, they shall besiege thee in all thy gates throughout all thy land, which Jehovah thy God hath given to thee. And thou shalt 53 eat the fruit of thine own body, the flesh of thy sons and of thy daughters, whom Jehovah thy God hath given to thee, in the

27. Ulcer of Egypt] That species of leprosy called the elephantiasis, which is common in Egypt as are the other complaints. This disease first affects the feet and lower parts, and then the whole body.

29. Grope at noon day] This is proverbial, and signifies such trouble of mind, that a man does not know how to act; but errs in the plainest things.

33. Thou knowest not, eat up] This was the case in the Assyrian and Babylonish captivity; and it was so remarkable as not to be accounted for, without the immediate hand of God to fulfil these awful threatenings.

36. Hitherto the punishments threatened were to be inflicted on them in their own country. The following were to pursue them in their dispersion.

37. A proverb] This was fulfilled in their captivity;

but more especially since their dispersion by the Romans: they are a common proverb through the earth: 'you use me like a Jew, you would not have done so to a Jew,' that is, to one of the worst of men.

45. And cleave to thee] One punishment shall follow another, until thou art destroyed as a nation.

49. A nation from afar] Some of the Jewish doctors say, this is a prophecy of their destruction by the Romans, and indeed nothing is here mentioned, but what was literally applicable to that dreadful event. The soldiers in Titus's army were from France, Spain, Britain, and the ends of the earth; the eagle was their standard, and their language was unknown to the Jews, which was not entirely the case with the Chaldee language.

57. Which she shall eat] Accordingly Josephus tells us, siege, and in the strait, with which thine 54 enemies shall distress thee. The man the most dainty and delicate with thee shall grudge to give to his brother, and to the wife of his bosom, and to the remainder of his children whom he shall have left un-55 eaten: He will not give to any of them of the flesh of his children whom he will eat;

 because he hath nothing left in the siege, and in the strait, with which thine enemies 56 will distress thee, in all thy gates. The dainty and delicate woman, who would not venture to set the sole of her foot upon the ground, through delicacy and daintiness, shall grudge to give to the husband of her bosom, and to her son, and to her daughter, 57 Any part of her own offspring, even the child which she hath born; which for want of every other thing, she shall eat in secret, in the siege, and strait, with which thine enemies shall distress thee, in "all" thy 58 gates. If thou wilt not observe to do all the words of this law which are written in this book, that thou mayest fear this glorious and fearful name, JEHOVAH THY GOD; 59 Then Jehovah will make thy plagues wonderful, and the plagues of thy seed; even great plagues, and of long continuance; and diseases, painful and of long continuance.
 60 Moreover he will bring upon thee all the diseases of Egypt, of which thou wast afraid, 1 and they shall cleave to thee. Also every sickness, and every plague, which is not written in the book of this law, them will Jehovah bring upon thee, until thou be de-2 stroyed. And thou shalt be left few in number, whereas thou wast as the stars of the heavens for multitude; because thou wouldst not obey the voice of Jehovah thy 3 God. And it shall be, that as Jehovah rejoiced over thee to do thee good, and to multiply thee, so Jehovah will rejoice over thee to destroy thee, and to bring thee to nought; thou shalt be plucked from off the land which thou art going to take for a possession. And Jehovah will scatter thee 64 among all people, from the one end of the earth unto the other; and there thou shalt serve other gods, of wood and stone, which neither thou nor thy fathers have known.

 And among these nations shalt thou find no 65 ease, neither shall the sole of thy foot have rest: but Jehovah shall give to thee there, a trembling heart, and failing of eyes, and sorrow of mind: So that thy life shall hang 66 in doubt, and thou shalt fear day and night, and shalt have no assurance of thy life; In 67
 the morning thou shalt say, Would God it were evening! and in the evening thou shalt say, Would God it were morning! from the terror of heart which thou shalt feel, and from the sights, which thine eyes shall see.
 And Jehovah shall bring thee to Egypt 68 again, in ships, (for by the way of which I spoke to thee, thou shalt see it no more,) and there ye shall be sold to your enemies for bondmen and bondwomen, until there be none to buy you. These are the words 1 of the covenant, which Jehovah commanded Moses to make with the Israelites in the land of Moab, beside the covenant which he had made with them in Horeb.

CHAPTER XXIX.

B. C. 1452. Exhortation to obedience; the people enter into covenant before Jehovah; punishment of him who flattereth himself in his wickedness.

AND Moses called to all Israel, and said 2 to them, Ye have seen all that Jehovah did before your eyes in the land of Egypt, to Pharaoh, and to all his servants, and to his whole land; Those great trials which your 3 eyes have seen; those signs, and great miracles; Yet Jehovah hath not given you, 4 to this day, a heart to perceive, or eyes to see, or ears to hear. Yet "he" hath led you 5 forty years in the wilderness; your clothes upon you are not worn out, nor are your eat after eating dogs, horses, cats, &c. they ate their own children privately, and let none share with them.

 He particularly mentions a noble matron, who boiled part of her child during the siege, but the mob, smelling the meat, broke in, and to them she offered the rest.
 a) MSS.

61. Every sickness and every plague] This also is a fact, or in almost every nation they have been tortured and destroyed in a thousand ways, and exposed to all the sicknesses that hunger, nakedness, and wandering about, could bring upon them.

62. Be left few in number] This was remarkably the case when Jerusalem was taken; and some say a million perished in the city by famine and the sword, and many hundred thousands in other parts of the kingdom.

63. Plucked from off the land] Titus carried away ninety thousand captives; and the senate joined with him in a decree, that no Jew should ever come within Judea, on pain of death; this he did out of policy, but he was fulfilling the counsel of Jehovah.

64. Scatter thee] This has been most literally fulfilled.

By the decree above noticed, they were dispersed through Europe and Asia.—Gods of wood and stone] Such were the gods of the Greeks and Romans, which many of them were induced to worship. Some have applied this to the laws of Spain and Portugal, by which they have been forced to become Catholics, and to worship their saints made of the same materials.

68. Until there be none to buy you] Titus commanded all under seventeen years of age to be sold; and in such numbers, that thirty of them were sold for a small piece of money. Adrian sold them in a fair like horses, and for the same price. Such multitudes were often exposed to sale, that there were not persons enough to buy them; and they were sent into confinement, and that so strict and severe, that they died by hundreds and thousands together; and in general, they were looked upon in so contemptible a light, that men would not have them even for slaves; in so remarkable a manner have these awful denunciations been fulfilled.

CHAP. XXIX. 5, 6. The various readings are adopted as what the connexion seems to justify; for Moses is thus speaker. (v) Sept. Syr. Vulg.

- 6 shoes worn out on your feet. Ye have not eaten bread; nor have ye drunk wine or strong drink: that ye might know that
- 7 Jehovah "is" your God. And when ye came to this place, Sihon, the king of Heshbon, and Og, the king of Bashan, came out against us to battle, and we smote them;
- 8 And we took their land, and gave it for an inheritance to the Reubenites, and to the Gadites, and to the half tribe of Manasseh.
- 9 Keep therefore the words of this covenant, and do them, that ye may prosper in all that ye do.
- 10 Ye stand this day, all of you, before Jehovah your God; the captains of your tribes, your elders, and your officers, with
- 11 all the men of Israel; Your little ones, your wives, and the strangers that are in your camp, from the hewer of wood to the
- 12 drawer of water; That ye may enter into covenant with Jehovah your God, and into his oath, which Jehovah your God maketh
- 13 with you this day: That he may establish you to day for a people to himself, and that he may be to you a God; as he hath said to you, and as he hath sworn to your fathers, to Abraham, to Isaac, and to Jacob.
- 14 Nor is it with you only I make this covenant and this oath; But with him that standeth here with us this day, before Jehovah our God, and also with him that is not
- 16 here with us, this day. For ye know what happened while we dwelt in the land of Egypt; and while we came through the
- 17 nations which ye had to pass. And ye have seen their abominations, and their idols of wood and stone, silver and gold, which they
- 18 had among them: Take heed therefore, lest there should be among you, a man, or a woman, or a family, or a tribe, whose heart turneth away, this day, from Jehovah our God, to go and serve the gods of these nations; lest there be among you a root
- 19 that produceth juice like wormwood; And it come to pass, when he heareth the words of this curse, that he bless himself in his heart, saying, I shall have peace, though I walk after the inclination of mine heart, so as to gratify every desire. Jehovah will not spare him, but the anger of Jehovah, and his jealousy, shall smoke against that man, and all the curses that are written in this book, shall lie upon him, and Jehovah shall blot out his name from under the heavens. And Jehovah shall set him apart for punishment out of all the tribes of Israel, according to all the curses of the covenant which are written in this book of the law; So that the generation to come, of your children that shall rise up after you, and the strangers that shall come from a far land, shall say, when they see the plagues of that land, and the diseases which Jehovah hath laid upon it; Sulphur and salt burning the whole land; that it is not sown, nor beareth, nor can any grass grow on it; (like the overthrow of Sodom and Gomorrah, Admah and Zeboim, which Jehovah overthrew in his anger, and in his wrath :) Even all nations shall say, Wherefore hath Jehovah done thus to this land? what meaneth the heat of this great anger? Then men shall say, Because they have forsaken the covenant of Jehovah, the God of their fathers, which he made with them when he brought them out of the land of Egypt: For they went and served other gods, and worshipped them: gods whom they knew not, and whom he had not given to them: And the anger of Jehovah was kindled against this land, to bring upon it all the curses that are written in this book: And Jehovah, in anger and in wrath, and in great indignation, rooted them out of their land, and cast them into another land, as it is this day. Secret things belong to Jehovah our God: but those revealed to us and to our children for ever, that we may do all the words of this law.

CHAPTER XXX.

B. C. 1452. Great mercies promised to the penitent; the divine law plain; death and life are set before the people.

AND it shall be, when all these things are come upon thee, the blessing and the curse, which I have set before thee, and thou shalt call them to mind among all the nations, whither Jehovah thy God hath driven thee, And thou shalt return to Jehovah thy God, and shalt obey his voice according to all that I this day command thee; thou and thy children, with all thine heart, and with all thy soul; That then Jehovah thy God will reverse thy captivity, and have compass-

18. Produceth juice like wormwood] Observe that gall is an animal secretion, and therefore, is improperly attributed to a vegetable, a root; yet, as some vegetables afford a juice as bitter as gall, that juice may with propriety be associated with wormwood.

19. The inclination of mine own heart] That is, I shall be happy though I forsake God and worship idols.—So as to gratify every desire] I have given the sense the Arab interpreter, Le Clerc, and others have attributed to the text, in preference to the idiom, because I conceive it more perspicuous. The learned reader may consult Rosenmüller.

29. Secret things] Some may inquire when these awful denunciations will be executed, to whom Moses replies, 'Secret things belong to Jehovah our God, &c.' The learned Archbishop Secker observes, that he thinks the meaning is, 'the chastisements which we now undergo, are a manifestation of the secret designs of the Lord against us, in case we should in any age cease to observe his laws.'

CHAP. XXX. 1, 2. Return—with all thine heart] This expresses the nature of genuine repentance. It is calling to mind our sins and our sorrows, and full conversion of the heart of God.

3. Will again gather thee] This was fulfilled in their

sion upon thee, and will again gather thee from all the nations, whither Jehovah thy 4 God had scattered thee. Should there be any of thine driven to the extremity of the heavens, thence will Jehovah thy God gather
 5 thee, and thence will he fetch thee: And Jehovah thy God will bring thee into the land which thy fathers possessed, and thou shalt possess it; and he will do thee good and multiply thee more than thy fathers.
 6 And Jehovah thy God will circumcise thine heart, and the heart of thy seed, to love Jehovah thy God with all thine heart, and with all thy soul, that thou mayest live. And Jehovah thy God will put all these curses upon thine enemies, and on them
 7 who hated and persecuted thee. And thou shalt return and obey Jehovah, and do all his commandments which I this day command thee. And Jehovah thy God will abundantly prosper every work of thine hand; in the fruit of thy body, and in the fruit of thy cattle, and in the fruit of thy land: for Jehovah will again rejoice over thee for good, as he rejoiced over thy fathers;
 8 If thou wilt hearken to the voice of Jehovah thy God, so as to keep his commandments and his statutes, which are written in this book of the law; and if thou wilt turn to Jehovah thy God with all thine heart, and with all thy soul.
 9 For this commandment which I this day command thee, is neither above thy understanding, nor is it far off. It is not in the heavens that thou shouldst say, Who shall go up for us to the heavens, and bring it to 10 us, that we may hear and do it? Nor is it beyond the sea, that thou shouldst say, Who shall go over the sea for us, and bring it 11 to us, that we may hear and do it? But the word is very nigh to thee, even in thy mouth, and in thy heart, that thou mayest do it.
 12 See, I have set before thee this day life and happiness, death and misery; If thou do what I this day command thee, so as to love Jehovah thy God, to walk in his ways, and to keep his commandments, and his statutes, and his judgments, thou shalt live and multiply; and Jehovah thy God shall bless thee in the land which thou art going to take for a possession. But if thine heart 17 turn away, so that thou wilt not hearken, but be drawn away, and worship and serve strange gods, I denounce to thee this day, 18 that thou shalt surely perish; thou shalt not prolong thy days on the land, which thou art going over the Jordan to possess. I call 19 heaven and earth to record this day against thee, that I have set before thee life and death, blessing and cursing; therefore choose life, that both thou and thy seed may live: That thou mayest love Jehovah thy 20 God, and that thou mayest obey his voice, and cleave to him; for he is thy life, and the length of thy days: that thou mayest dwell in the land which Jehovah swore to thy fathers, to Abraham, to Isaac, and to Jacob, that he would give to thee.

And Moses wrote this law, and delivered 9 it to the priests, the sons of Levi, who bore the ark of the covenant of Jehovah, and to all the elders of Israel. And Moses com- 10 manded them, saying, At the end of every seven years, on the solemnity of the year of release, at the feast of tabernacles, When all 11 Israel cometh to appear before Jehovah thy God in the place which he shall have chosen; this law shall be read in the hearing of all Israel. Assemble the whole people, men, 12 and women, and children; and the stranger who is within thy gates: that they may hear, and learn, and fear Jehovah thy God, and observe to do all the words of this law. And 13 that their children, who have not known, may hear, and learn to fear Jehovah thy God, as long as thou livest in the land which thou art going over the Jordan to possess.

CHAPTER XXXI.

B. C. 1452. Moses encourageth the people and Joshua; gives the law to the Levites, and maketh a solemn protest to the elders.

JEHOVAH now said to Moses, Behold, 14 the days approach that thou must die. Call Joshua, and present yourselves in the congregation-tabernacle, that I may give him a charge. And Moses and Joshua went, and presented themselves in the congregation-tabernacle. And Jehovah appeared in the 15 return from the Babylonish captivity, and it is conceived, will yet have a further accomplishment.

5. Do thee good] After their return from the captivity they were great and numerous, but were oppressed by the Persians and Grecians, and at length destroyed by the Romans; so that this prophecy is yet to be fulfilled, when they shall see their crime in crucifying Christ.

6. Will circumcise] See note, chapter x. 16.

12. It is not in the heavens] There is no need of deep research or extensive travel to comprehend this precept. Ye have only to repeat it often, and to keep it in mind, and to square all your actions by it.

15. Life and happiness] The order of the Greek is more usual and natural, and Dr. Roberts prefers it to the text.

20. The length of thy days] It is he alone, who can preserve thee, and make thy days long on the earth.

9—13. I have, with Geddes, transposed these verses here from the next chapter, as clearly connected with what precedes. They have no connexion, where they stand in the common version. The order of the next chapter has been much disturbed; and as a transposition alters nothing in the text it ought to offend no one, as Kennicott has proved that many such exist in the Hebrew MSS.

CHAP. XXXI. 9. Wrote this law] This law means this book only, which contains a summary of the laws given to Israel, and most impressive exhortations to obedience. The whole Pentateuch could scarcely be read in the space of time mentioned.

- tabernacle, in a pillar of cloud; and the pillar of cloud stood over the tabernacle door.
- 23 And he gave Joshua the son of Nun a charge, and said, Be strong and of good courage; for thou shalt bring the Israelites into the land which I swore to them: and I will be with thee.
- 1 And Moses went and spoke these words to all Israel. And he said to them, I am one hundred and twenty years old this day; I can no more go out and come in. Also Jehovah hath said to me, Thou shalt not go over this Jordan. Jehovah thy God himself will go over before thee, and he will destroy those nations from before thee, and thou shalt dispossess them; and Joshua shall go over before thee, as Jehovah hath said. And Jehovah will do to them as he did to Sihon and to Og, kings of the Amorites, and to their land, whom he hath destroyed. So will Jehovah give them up before thee, that thou mayest do to them according to all the commandments which I have commanded thee. Be strong and of good courage; fear not, nor be afraid of them; for Jehovah thy God himself goeth with thee; he will not leave thee nor forsake thee.
- 7 Moses then called Joshua, and said to him in the sight of all Israel, Be strong and of good courage; for thou must go with this people to the land which Jehovah hath sworn to their fathers that he would give to them; and thou shalt cause them to inherit it. For Jehovah himself goeth before thee, and will be with thee; he will not leave thee, nor forsake thee: fear not, nor be dismayed.
- 16 Again Jehovah said to Moses, Behold, thou shalt sleep with thy fathers; and this people will rise up, and go astray after the strange gods of the land into which they are going, and will forsake me, and break my covenant which I have made with them.
- 17 Then mine anger shall be kindled against them in that day, and I will forsake them, and I will hide my face from them, and they shall be devoured, and many evils and troubles shall befall them; so that they will say in that day, Are not these evils come upon us, because our God is not among us?
- 18 And I will surely hide my face in that day, on account of all the evils which they shall have wrought, by having turned aside to other gods. Now, therefore, write this song 19 and teach it the people of Israel; put it in their mouths, that this song may be a witness for me against the people of Israel. For when I shall have brought them into 20 the land which I swore to their fathers, "that I would give to them;" a land that floweth with milk and honey; and they shall have eaten and filled themselves, and become fat; then will they turn aside to other gods, and serve them, and provoke me, and break my covenant. And it shall be when many evils 21 and troubles have befallen them, that this song shall testify against them as a witness; for it shall not be forgotten out of the mouths of their seed; for I know their disposition, by what they have done, even now, before I have brought them into the land, which I swore "to their fathers, that I would give to them."

Moses therefore wrote this song the same 22 day, and taught it the people of Israel.

And it came to pass, when Moses had 24 made an end of writing the words of this law in a book, until they were finished, That Moses commanded the Levites, who 25 bore the ark of the covenant of Jehovah, saying, Take this book of the law, and put it 26 in the side of the ark of the covenant of Jehovah your God, that it may be there for a witness against you. For I know ye are a 27 rebellious and stiff-necked people; behold, while I am yet alive with you this day, ye have been rebellious against Jehovah, and how much more after my death?

Gather to me all the elders of your tribes, 28 and your officers, that I may speak these words in their hearing, and call the heavens and the earth to witness against them. For 29 I know that after my death ye will be wholly corrupted, and turn aside from the way which I have commanded you; and evil will befall you in the latter days; because ye will do evil in the sight of Jehovah, to provoke him to anger through the work of your hands.

CHAPTER XXXII.

B. C. 1452. Song of Moses, setting forth the perfection of God; his goodness to his people; their ingratitude and disobedience.

AND Moses spoke in the hearing of the 30 congregation of Israel the words of this song, until they were ended.

2. I am one hundred] The life of Moses may be divided into three periods. He was forty years in the court of Egypt, acquiring their wisdom; and forty in Midian, preparing for his mission; and forty led and instructed and ruled the Israelites. Though the last was the most important period, yet it was in many respects the most trying. Exalted as he was in Israel, and distinguished by the greatest privileges, he found them counterbalanced by cares, anxieties, and perplexities arising from the temper and conduct of the people he had to govern. Now he was bidding them farewell, and was soon to enter into the heavenly Canaan.

19. Write this song] The song intended is that contained in the following chapter, and from its excellence, it deserved to be committed to memory, and preserved as a witness against them. 20, 21. (a) Sam. Sept.

24. This law] It is probable that this signifies the song which follows. Indeed it is this which he is charged to write, and to teach the people of Israel; it is also most

- 1 Give hear, O heavens, and I will speak ;
And hear, O earth, the words of my mouth.
- 2 My doctrine shall drop as the rain,
My speech shall distil as the dew ;
As showers upon the tender herb,
And as copious rain upon the grass :
- 3 For the name of Jehovah I will proclaim.
Ascribe ye greatness to our God !
- 4 The Creator ! whose work is perfect ;
And all whose ways are equitable ;
A God of truth, and without iniquity, Righteous and upright is he !
- 5 Corrupted are his own polluted children :
A generation perverse and prevaricating.
- 6 Is it thus ye requite Jehovah,
O people foolish and unwise ?
Is not he your father, who bought you ?
Hath not he made you and established you ?
- 7 Call to mind the days of old ;
Consider the years of every generation :
Ask your fathers, and they will inform you ;
Your elders, and they will declare to you :
- 8 That when the Most High divided the nations,
When he dispersed the sons of Adam,
He fixed the boundaries of the people,
In respect to the number of the Israelites.
- 9 For the portion of Jehovah is his people :
Jacob is the lot of his inheritance.
- 10 He "supported" them in the wilderness,
And nourished them in the sandy desert.
He protected them, he trained them up ;
He defended them as the apple of his eye.
- 11 As an eagle stirreth up her nest,
And hovereth over her young ;
Or spreadeth her wings, and taketh them up,
And beareth them on her pinions ;
- 12 So Jehovah alone conducted them ;
And with him there was no strange god.
- 13 He placed them on hilly regions,

And made them eat the produce of the field ;
He nourished them with honey from the rock,
And with oil from the flinty cliffs ;
With the cream of herds and milk of flocks ; 14
With the fattest of lambs and of kids ;
With rams and goats of the breed of Bashan
And with flour of the best wheat, [drink.
And pure blood of grapes he made them
"But Jacob ate and was satiated ;" 15
Jeshurun became fat and kicked !
Grown fat, grown thick, and satiated,
They forsook the God who made them,
And despised the rock of their salvation.
They moved him to jealousy by strange 16 gods ;
By abominations they incensed him.
They sacrificed to demons, and not to God, 17
To gods whom they knew not ;
To new gods, come from their neighbours,
Whom their fathers never feared.
The Creator, who begot them, they deserted, 18
The God, who formed them, they forgot.
Jehovah saw, and he was indignant 19
At the provocation of his sons and daughters :
And he said, I will hide my face from them, 20
I will see what their end will be :
For a perverse generation they are ;
Children in whom there is no fidelity.
They have made me jealous by what is not 21
God ;
They have incensed me by their idols :
And I will make them jealous, by an abject people ;
By a profligate nation I will incense them.
For a fire is kindled in mine anger, 22
And shall burn to the lowest Hades ;
It shall consume the earth with its increase,
And set on a blaze the foundations of the mountains.
I will heap calamities upon them : 23

probably this, that Moses gave to the priests to be laid up beside the ark of the covenant.

CHAP. XXXII. 1. How sublime is this exordium ! Isaiah has borrowed from Moses. Virgil has also the same fine apostrophe: 'Esto nunc Sol testis, et hæc mihi Terra vocanti.' After noticing the excellence of divine truth, (1—3,) Moses reproves the ingratitude of the people, (5, 6,) and then reminds them of the favours with which they had been blessed. (6—14.) Next, he foretells their settlement in Canaan, and speaks as if seeing their prosperity and defection from God to the worship of idols ; (15—18 ;) and then introduces Jehovah himself as speaking. (20—42.) The whole concludes with the praise of divine justice and mercy ; justice in rejecting his own people, and mercy in adopting the Gentiles.

4. Creator] The Sept. and Vulg. either found a different word in their copies, or gave what they deemed the sense. The term צור in the Chald. and Syr. signifies to form, to create ; and צור as a verbal noun may denote the Creator. So the two Arabs Saad. and Erpen. render. This sense best connects with what follows.

5. His own polluted children] Literally, 'His own children have corrupted themselves, by their pollution.' For the text followed, see note Hebrew Bible.

8. In respect to the] The meaning is, 'that when God fixed the boundaries of other nations, he allotted also a land sufficiently large to contain the number of the children of Israel ; and he so favoured them by revealing his will to them, and dwelling among them, that they may be said to be his own inheritance.'

10. He supported them] The present text is contrary to historical fact ; for God did not find Israel in the wilderness but brought them into it. For this reason the Sam. reading is adopted.—In the sandy desert] So the Sam. and Sept. which the connexion justifies.

11, 12. Every reader of taste must admire this beautiful comparison. The female eagle is the most attentive of all birds to her young, until they are able to provide for themselves. She has usually but two ; and as she is considerably larger and stronger than the male, she takes upon herself the defence of the nest, and the care of its contents. —With him] i. e. God alone conducted them, without the aid of any of the gods of the nations.

13, 14. See note on the 1st verse.

15. But Jacob] This hemistich is yet happily preserved in the Sam. and Sept. As for Jeshurun, Geddes thought it was a poetic abbreviation for Israel. The Syr. Onk. and Persic have Israel in the text. With Rosenmüller I consider it a poetic name of Israel, which in Arabic signifies, 'One who prospers.'

21. By an abject people] Literally, 'by a no-people ;' that is, a people of no account, sunk in ignorance and vice. The apostle applies this to the calling of the Gentiles. Rom. x. 19.

24. Emaciated] James's translators have followed the interlineary versions and rejected the apposite one of the

- Upon them I will exhaust mine arrows.
 24 They shall be emaciated by famine,
 And shall be devoured by rapacious birds,
 With the most bitter destruction :
 I will also let loose upon them the teeth of beasts,
 With the rage of serpents of the ground.
 25 Without, the sword shall bereave,
 And in secret chambers, terror shall destroy ;
 The young man together with the virgin ;
 The suckling with the man of grey-hairs !
 26 I would say, I will cut them off, [men
 And make their remembrance cease among 27 Were it not that I fear the pride of the enemy ;
 Lest their foes should become haughty ;
 Lest they should say, Our own high hand,
 And not Jehovah, hath done all this !
 28 For a nation without counsel are they,
 And in them there is no understanding.
 29 'O' that they were so wise as to discern this !
 As to consider their own latter end.
 30 How could one chase a thousand of Israel,
 And two put ten thousand to flight ;
 Unless their own Rock had sold them,
 And Jehovah had delivered them up ?
 31 (For not like our Rock is their Rock,
 Our enemies themselves being judges.)
 32 For of the vine of Sodom is their vine,
 And of the blasted fields of Gomorrah.
 Their grapes are grapes of poison ;
 Their clusters are clusters of bitterness.
 33 Their wine is the poison of serpents,
 And the cruel venom of aspics.
 34 Is not this laid up in store with me,
 And sealed up among my treasures ?
 35 For vengeance is 'mine,' and I will repay :
 At the time when their foot shall slide.
 Yea at hand is the day of their destruction,
 And what is determined rapidly approacheth.
 36 For Jehovah will judge his people
 And repent concerning his servants,

- When he shall see that their power is gone,
 And none, whether bond or free, remaining.
 Then will he say, Where are your gods ? 37
 The supporters in whom you trusted ?
 Who have eaten the fat of your sacrifices, 38
 And drunk the wine of your drink-offerings ?
 Let them arise and afford you aid ;
 Let them become your protection.
 See now that I am He ; 39
 And there is no God besides me.
 I kill, and I preserve alive ;
 I wound, and I also heal ;
 And from mine hand none can deliver.
 For to the heavens I will raise mine hand 40
 And say, Surely as I live for ever,
 When I whet my glittering sword, 41
 And mine hand layeth hold on judgment,
 I will render vengeance to mine enemies,
 And will requite those who hate me. 42
 Mine arrows I will make drunk,
 And my sword shall devour flesh ;
 With the blood of the slain and the captives ;
With flesh from the hairy crown of the enemy.
 Rejoice, ye nations, "with" his people ; 43
 For he will avenge the blood of his servants,
 And to his adversaries he will render vengeance ;
 But will be pacified to the land of his people.
 And Moses went and spoke all the words 44 of this song in the hearing of the people ; he and Joshua the son of Nun. And Moses 45 made an end of speaking all these words to all Israel ; And he said to them, Consider 46 attentively all the words which I testify among you this day ; and ye shall command your children to observe "and" do, all the words of this law. For this is not a light 47 matter to you ; yea on this depends your life : And by this ye will prolong your days on the land which ye are going over the Jordan to possess.

Greek and Vulg. Is it proper in any language to say, burnt with famine ? The effect of famine is not burning, but leanness, emaciation. This is now admitted to be the real sense of the word. Gesenius renders, burning pestilence, and rejects the rendering of the ancient versions.—Rapacious birds [Michaelis has proved that רשף signifies a bird of prey ; (see Suppl. Lex.) and this is most apposite and suitable.

29. O that they were so wise]. The Sam. reading (they are not wise) affords as good a sense, if not a better than the text : Instead of which it declares a fact, and prepares for what follows. I include the 31st verse in a parenthesis, as being the language of Moses. For the illustration of the 30th verse, compare Leviticus xxvi. 8.

32. For of the vine of Sodom]. Michaelis understands by the vine of Sodom, whose grapes yield poison, the plant called Solanus, or the Nightshade. This, according to Hasse, abounds round the sea of Sodom. Compare Isa. v. 2, where we find a similar image ; and the 7th verse explains both the image of the prophet, and of Moses, in this and the next verse. The meaning is, 'The deeds of Israel are wicked and destructive.'

34. Is not this stored up]. All the evils before mentioned God has treasured up, and is prepared to inflict them on his disobedient people.

35. And I will repay]. I have adopted this reading as best supported. The other yields a good sense. (v) Syr. Vulg. Rom. xii. 19.—But the time]. That is, when they turn from my law, and worship other gods. Compare Psa. xxxvii. 31.

36. Repent concerning]. Repent that they ever were his servants. The Greek 'will be comforted in his servants,' that is, in their punishment. In this verse Moses again speaks.

39. I am He] i.e. God. The pronoun is often thus used emphatically.

42. With flesh from the hairy]. The parallelism requires the repetition of the noun ; and it is clearly implied in the text. Moses represents God as upbraiding his people with the worship of idols, (37, 38,) and (39, 42) as vindicating his own honour in the punishment of his enemies.

43. Ye nations with his people]. Some render, 'ye nations, his people ;' but as many of the Jews believed, and were in fact the beginning of the Christian church, I prefer the reading of the Sept. If the nations were to rejoice with the believing Jews, as being partakers of the same privileges, they are assured, that though they might be persecuted, God would avenge their blood, &c. (a) Sept. Rom. xv. 10.

CHAPTER XXXIII.

B. C. 1452. The majesty of God; the blessing of the twelve tribes, and the happiness and the safety of Israel.

48 AGAIN Jehovah spoke to Moses on that 49 same day, saying, Go up to this mountain Abarim, to mount Nebo, which is in the land of Moab, that is over against Jericho; and behold the land of Canaan, which I 50 give to the Israelites for a possession: And die on the mount whither thou goest up, and be gathered to thy people; as Aaron thy brother died on mount Hor, and was 51 gathered to his people: Because ye trespassed against me among the Israelites at the waters of Meribah-Kadesh, in the wilderness of Zin; for ye did not sanctify me 52 in the midst of the people of Israel. Yet thou shalt see the land before thee; but shalt not go into the land which I give to the Israelites.

1 Now this is the blessing, with which Moses, the man of God, blessed the Israelites before his death, "when the chiefs of the people, of the tribes of Israel, were assembled:"

2 And he said,
Jehovah came from Sinai,
And dawned on them from Seir;
He shone forth from mount Paran!
The holy one came with multitudes;
Fire from his right hand was a signal to them.

3 Yea, he loved the people;
All "his" hallowed ones he "blessed":
They sat down at "his" feet,
And they received of his words: [ritance

4 The law which he enjoined us for an inheritance for the assembly of Jacob;

5 For he was king in Jeshurun.
Then of Reuben and Simeon he said;

6 Let Reuben live, and not die;
And "Simeon," let not his men be few.

CHAP. XXXIII. 2. Jehovah came from Sinai] Moses alludes to some more remarkable appearances of God; and borrows a metaphor from the sun, which first dawns, and then shines brighter and brighter, to the perfect day.—The holy one came] The meaning is, 'God led the multitudes,' or ten thousands of Israel.—A fire from his right hand] The cloud of glory is called 'the right hand,' and this was the signal to them, when to march and when to encamp. Compare Hab. iii. 5. This is the most easy sense of the text; for דבר in Syr. signifies a signal. See note, Fam. or Hebrew Bible.

3. All his hallowed ones he blessed] The Syr. has preserved the true reading, which is parallel with the first line. The context justifies the reading his feet, his words, with the versions noticed. (v) Sept. Vulg.

4. The law which he] The common text has Moses; but this is generally admitted to be an error. This verse and the next relate to Jehovah.—He commanded—he was king—the only king of Israel.

6. (a) Sept. Alex. Aldine and Complut. Edit.

8. Thy Thummim and Urim] The Urim and Thummim were appropriated to the high priest, (see Exod. xxviii. 30,) and this phrase must apply to him in its literal

And he said this of Judah, 7

And bring him back safe to his people;
Let his own hand be sufficient for him,
And be thou his help against his enemies.

And of Levi he said, [pious one 8

Who acknowledged not his own brethren;
Who had no respect to his own children;
For he observed thy word and kept thy covenant.

And make known thy law to Israel:
They shall place incense before thee,
And lay holocausts upon thine altar.

And of Benjamin he said, 12
The beloved of Jehovah shall dwell in safety;
The Most High shall ever protect him,
And he shall dwell among his mountains.

And of Joseph he said, 13
Blessed by Jehovah be his land,

With the precious dew of the heavens,
And with springs from the low-lying deep;
With the precious productions of the sun, 14
And with the precious fruits of the moon;

With the chief things of the ancient moun- 15
tains, [hills;

And the precious things of the everlasting
With the precious things of the earth and 16 and most obvious sense. So Green and Bate understood the passage. Others consider it as denoting him, of whom Aaron was only a type; and appeal to 1 Cor. x. 9, as a proof of it. See Numb. xx. 8, 12. (a) Sam.

9. Who said to his father] Moses refers here to what the Levites did to the worshippers of the golden calf. Exod. xxxii. 26—28.

12. The Most High] The conjecture of Houbigant that we should read עליו, has been adopted by later critics. The Sept. either read this or אלהים; and consider it as the nominative of the verb חפץ.—Among his mountains] Literally, 'between his shoulders.' The Targums paraphrase thus: 'and in his land, or limits, shall the majesty of the Lord reside;' alluding no doubt to the temple of Jerusalem; which was partly in the borders of Benjamin.

14. Productions of the sun—and moon] These denote annual and monthly productions; the former were such as wheat, barley, grapes; the latter, such as figs, olives, and other things of which they had many crops in a year.

16. Who dwelt in the bush] He alludes to Exod. iii. 2. Compare Gen. xlix. 26.

17. And his horns like] The possessions of the children of Joseph extended like two horns. Their pushing together

- And his horns like the horns of the rhinoceros !
 With them he shall push the people ;—
 He shall push them to the extreimity of the land !
 These are the ten thousands of Ephraim,
 And these the thousands of Manasseh !

 Rejoice, Zebulun, in thy commerce ;
 And, Issachar, in thy tents. [mount ;
 19 They shall invite the people to the holy
 There they shall offer righteous sacrifices ;
 For they shall suck affluence from the seas,
 And from treasures hidden in the sand.
 20 And of Gad he said,
 Blessed be he who enlargeth Gad.
 Like a lioness he coucheth,
 And teareth both the arm and the head.
 21 And he seeth the first parts allotted to himself :
 For an assigned portion there is secured.
 Yet he shall go at the head of the people ;
 He shall execute the justice of Jehovah,
 And his judgments in favour of Israel.
 22 And of Dan he said,
 Dan is like the whelp of the lion ;
 Like such as leap from Bashan.
 23 And of Naphtali he said, Naphtali, satisfied with favour
 And filled with the blessing of Jehovah,
 Shall possess the sea-coast, and the south.
 24 And of Asher he said,
 Asher, blessed shall he be in his children,
 And accepted among his brethren ;
 He shall dip his foot in oil :
 25 Thy bars shall be of iron and of brass :
 And as thy days, shall thy strength be.
 26 There is none like the God of Jeshurun ;
 Who, for thine help, rideth on the heavens,
 And in his excellency on the skies.
 27 The eternal God is thy refuge ;

And everlasting arms are thy support ;
 And he shall drive out thy foes before thee,
 And shall say, Destroy them.
 Israel shall dwell alone, in safety ; [wine : 28
 The fount of Jacob in a land of corn and
 For his heavens shall drop down the dew :
 Happy art thou, O Israel ! who like thee ? 29
 A people who are saved by Jehovah !
 The shield of thy help, and sword of thy glory !
 To thee shall thine enemies submit,
 And on their high places thou shalt tread.

CHAPTER XXXIV.

B. C. 1452. Moses views the promised land and dieth ; his age, and mourning for him ; Joshua succeedeth him ; his character.

AND MOSES WENT UP FROM THE PLAINS OF 1
 MOAB TO THE MOUNTAIN OF NEBO, TO THE TOP OF PISGAH, WHICH IS OVER AGAINST JERICHO. AND JEHOVAH SHOWED HIM ALL THE LAND OF GILEAD UNTO DAN, AND ALL "THE LAND OF" NAPHTALI, 2 AND OF EPHRAIM, AND MANASSEH ; AND ALL THE LAND OF JUDAH ; AND THE SOUTH, AND THE 3 PLAIN OF THE VALLEY OF JERICHO, THE CITY OF PALM TREES, UNTO ZOAR. AND JEHOVAH SAID 4 TO HIM, THIS IS THE LAND WHICH I SWORE TO ABRAHAM, TO ISAAC, AND TO JACOB, SAYING, TO YOUR SEED I WILL GIVE IT : I HAVE CAUSED THEE TO SEE IT WITH THINE EYES, BUT OVER INTO IT THOU SHALT NOT GO.

SO MOSES THE SERVANT OF JEHOVAH DIED 5
 THERE IN THE LAND OF MOAB, ACCORDING TO THE WORD OF JEHOVAH. AND HE BURIED HIM IN A 6 VALLEY IN THE LAND OF MOAB, OVER AGAINST BETH-PEOR ; BUT NO MAN KNOWETH HIS SEPUL-CHRE UNTO THIS DAY.

AND MOSES WAS ONE HUNDRED AND TWENTY 7 YEARS OLD WHEN HE DIED ; HIS EYE WAS NOT

AND THE CHILDREN OF ISRAEL WEPT FOR MOSES 8 IN THE PLAINS OF MOAB, THIRTY DAYS ; SO THE

the people around them is well illustrated by a passage in Joshua xvii. 14—18.

18 Zebulun was a commercial tribe ; and that of Issachar given to agriculture and manufactures.

19 Shall invite the people] Being richer than the other tribes, they would invite the rest to feast with them at the holy place.—Treasures hidden in the sand] From the sands of the rivers Belus and Kishon, which ran into the bay of Ptolemais, or Carmel, glass was manufactured at a very early period : and to this Jonathan, in his Targum, applies these words. Pliny attests the same fact.

20 Blessed be he who] That is, blessed be God, who has granted Gad an ample inheritance in Gilead.—Teareth the arm and the head] This tribe was particularly bold and courageous ; and, like the lion, who attacks the head of an animal, on which he rushes, this tribe should attack both kings and their people.

21 He seeth the first parts] That is, of the land. Moses refers to the settlement of this tribe beyond the Jordan.—An assigned portion] So Durell ; and without any change of the text, a suitable and connected sense is given.—Yet he shall go] This refers to the engagement of the Gadites, Reubenites, and the half-tribe of Manasseh, to assist the other tribes in the conquest of Canaan. Numb. xxxii. 16—18.

22 Dan is like the] The tribe of Dan were first settled between those of Simeon and Ephraim : but the place being found too small for them, they made an irruption into the country about Laish, toward the source of the Jordan. This irruption might well be compared to the leap of a lion's whelp. See Josh. xix. 47 ; Jud. xviii.

23. The sea-coast and the south] The inheritance of Naphtali was bounded on both sides by the lakes of Merom and Chinnereth ; and lay to the south of the northern Danites.

24. Asher] The very name imports happiness : and indeed no human felicity can be greater than what is here assigned to him. He is to be happy in his family and friends : his olive trees are to be so productive, that he may anoint even his feet with oil : (compare Job xxix. 6 :) instead of wooden bars, which are still common in the East, his were to be iron and brass : in fine, length of days and abundance of riches were to crown his posterity.

CHAP. XXXIV. 1, 2. This whole chapter was added by Joshua, or some subsequent writer ; for the concluding verses seem to indicate, that it was long after, when there had been prophets in Israel. (a) Sam. Syr.

6. He buried him] Perhaps gave him a command to go to some secret cavern, where his bones might rest in peace. Had the place been known, there is little doubt that a gross and superstitious people would have held it sacred ; as we find they afterward did the brazen serpent, which Hezekiah destroyed.

INTRODUCTION.

This is called the Book of Joshua, because it relates the events of his life. It comprises a period of near twenty-seven years, and contains an account of the entrance of the Israelites into Canaan; the conquest of that country, or at least the greater part of it, under the command of Joshua; the division of the land, by lot, among the different tribes; the establishment of religion, by erecting the tabernacle at Shiloh, and other ordinances.

It is uncertain who was the author of this book: whether it was written by Joshua, or composed from his journals at a later period. Henry supposes, that both this, and the following historical Books, to the end of Kings, were compiled by Jeremiah. I can see no ground for such an opinion; and with others I would refer it to Joshua, near the close of his life. If he read the address contained in the last two chapters, as is most probable, he must have previously written it. I admit that some additions may have been made at some later period. This book must have been peculiarly interesting to the Israelites, as it contains the history of their conquest of the promised land, and specifies what was the portion of their respective tribes. We see in this book God's promise to Abraham fulfilled.

CHAPTER I.

B. C. 1451. God's call of and promise to Joshua; and Joshua's orders to the officers.

- 11 Now after the death of Moses, the servant of Jehovah, Jehovah spoke to Joshua the son of Nun, who had been the attendant of Moses, saying, Moses, my servant, is dead; now arise, go over this Jordan, thou, and all this people, unto the land which I give to them, to the Israelites. Every place upon which the soles of your feet shall tread, I give to you, as I said to Moses, From the wilderness and that Lebanon unto the great river, the river Euphrates,* and thence westward unto the great sea, shall be your boundary. There shall not be any man able to stand before thee all the days of thy life; as I was with Moses, so I will be with thee: I will not leave thee, nor forsake thee. Be strong and of good courage: for unto this people shalt thou divide for an inheritance, the land which I swore to their fathers that I would give to them. Only be thou strong and of good courage in observing to do according to all the law, which Moses my servant commanded thee: from it turn not to the right hand or to the left, that thou mayest prosper whithersoever thou goest.
- 18 Let not this book of the law depart out of thy mouth; but meditate on it day and night, that thou mayest observe to do according to all that is written therein: for then thou shalt make thy way prosperous, and then shalt thou have good success. Do 9 not I command thee to be strong and of good courage? Fear not, nor be dismayed; for Jehovah thy God is with thee whithersoever thou goest.

Then Joshua commanded the officers of 10 the people, saying, Pass through the host, 11 and charge the people saying, Prepare for yourselves victuals; for three days hence, ye shall pass over this Jordan, to go in to possess the land which Jehovah giveth to you.*

And to the Reubenites, and to the Gad- 12 ites, and to the half of the tribe of Manasseh spoke Joshua, saying, Remember the 13 word which Moses the servant of Jehovah commanded you, saying, Jehovah your God hath given you rest, and hath given to you this land. Your wives, your lit- 14 tle ones, and your cattle, remain in the land which Moses gave to you on this side the Jordan: but ye shall pass before your brethren armed, all the mighty men of valour, and help them; Until Jehovah *our 15 God" shall have given your brethren rest, CHAP. I. 4. With Sept. I have omitted, all the land of the Hethites, because in specifying the boundaries of the promised land, it is not probable that any notice would be taken of the interjacent country; and because there seems no reason why the land of the Hethites should be mentioned exclusive of the land occupied by the other nations of Canaan.

7. Mayest prosper] Some render, so as to act wisely or prudently; and though this be the more usual sense of the word, both Schindler and Castet attribute the other to it.

- 8. Out of thy mouth] The meaning probably is, that, as the leader and commander, he should be ever speaking of the law, and giving orders according to it.

9. In the construction of the first part of this verse the Syr. version is followed.

11. (o) To possess it] Sept. Vulg. Arab. 15. (a) Sept.

as he hath given to you, and they also possess the land which Jehovah your God giveth to them: then ye shall return to the land of your possession, and enjoy it; the land which Moses, Jehovah's servant, gave to you, on this eastern side of the Jordan.

- 16 And they answered Joshua, saying, All that thou commandest us we will do, and whithersoever thou sendest us we will go.
- 17 According as we hearkened to Moses in all things, so will we hearken unto thee; only may Jehovah thy God be with thee, as he was with Moses.
- 18 Whosoever he be that rebelleth against thy command, and will not hearken to thy words in all that thou commandest him, he shall be put to death: only be thou strong and of good courage.

CHAPTER II.

B. C. 1451. Rahab receiveth the spies; the covenant between them and her; their return.

- 1 Now Joshua, the son of Nun, had secretly sent from Shittim, two men, spies, saying, Go view the land, and especially Jericho. And they went, and came into the house of an harlot, named Rahab, and lodged there.
- 2 And some one told the king of Jericho, saying, Behold, to night there came in hither, men of Israel, to search out the country.
- 3 And the king of Jericho sent to Rahab, saying, Bring forth those men who came to thee, and who entered thine house: for to search out the 'land have they come.
- 4 And the woman took the two men, and hid them, and said thus, There came men to me, but whence they came I know not:
- 5 And when it was dark, and the gate about to be shut, the men went out. Whither the men went I know not: pursue after them quickly; for ye may yet overtake them.
- 6 But she had taken them up to the roof of the house, and hidden them among raw flax, which she had spread upon the roof.
- 7 And the other men pursued after them the way to the fords of the Jordan; and as soon as they who pursued after them were gone out, they shut the gate after them.
- 8 Now before they had lain down, she went up

16. 18. This reply of these warlike tribes must have established the authority of Joshua, and greatly encouraged him.

CHAP. II. 1. An harlot] Some would derive the noun וְיָרֵךְ from וְיָרֵךְ, and render an hostess, a keeper of a house for the accommodation of travellers. So Castell and others. The usual sense is better founded; and is, in fact, that which the Sept. and the apostles Paul and James have given. Compare Heb. xi. 31; James ii. 25. There is, however, no reason to suppose that Rahab followed this practice at this time. It is a usual idiom of scripture, to denominate persons from what they had been. Thus Matthew, who was a publican, is, long after he left that employ, still called the publican, Matt. x. 3; and Simon, who had been afflicted with the leprosy, is called Simon the leper, chap. xxvi. 6. We may then suppose that Rahab had been an harlot, but had repented and was then reformed.

6. Raw flax] Literally 'flax of the wood;' that is, flax to them, on the roof; And she said to the 9 men, I know that Jehovah hath given to you the land; for the dread of you hath fallen on us, and all the inhabitants of the land are discouraged because of you. For 10 we have heard how, when ye came out of Egypt, Jehovah dried up the water of the Red Sea before you; and what ye have done to the two kings of the Amorites, who were on the other side the Jordan, Sihon and Og, whom ye have utterly destroyed. And as soon as we heard these things, our 11 hearts melted, neither did there remain any courage in any man, because of you: for Jehovah your God, he is God in the heavens above, and on the earth below. Now, 12 therefore, I pray you, swear to me by Jehovah, that as I have showed you kindness, so ye will show kindness to my father's house; and give to me a sure token, That ye 13 will save alive my father and my mother, and my brethren, and my sisters, and all that they have, and deliver our lives from death. And the men answered her, Our 14 life for yours if 'thou' utter not this our business. And it shall be when Jehovah hath given us the land, that we will deal kindly and faithfully with thee. Then 15 she let them down by a rope through the window; (for her house was on the town wall, and she dwelt on the wall;) And she said to them, Go up to the mountains, lest 16 the pursuers meet you; and there hide yourselves three days, until the pursuers have turned; and afterward ye may go on your way. And the men said to her, We 17 will be blameless of this oath which thou hast made us swear to thee. Behold, when 18 we are come into the land, thou shalt bind this scarlet coloured rope to the window, by which thou didst let us down; and thou shalt bring into thine house, thy father, and thy mother, and thy brethren, and all thy father's household. But if any of them go out of the 19 doors of thy house into the street, his blood shall be upon his own head, and we shall be guiltless: and if an hand touch him who may be with thee in the house, his blood be with its ligneous parts, or undressed flax. Rahab had her flax arranged at the top of her house: the roofs in Judea being flat. It is impossible to vindicate this part of Rahab's conduct. She told the most manifest falsehood; nor could her motive and design justify this violation of truth. We are not allowed to do evil that good may come. God mercifully forgave this sin; and accepted that faith, which she exercised in him as God, in the heavens above, and on the earth below. Rahab affords an instance of that mixture of good and evil, virtue and vice, which the best of men feel and lament.

12. Swear to me by Jehovah] From the works which Jehovah had wrought, and the dread which had fallen on the inhabitants of Canaan, Rahab concluded that he would give the land to the Israelites; and her desire to obtain an oath from the spies is a proof of her faith.—14 (v) Vulg. MSS.

15. And she dwelt on the wall] Her house not only was built by the wall, but a part of it extended over the wall.

20) on our head. And if thou utter this our business, then will we be blameless of the oath which thou hast made us swear to 21 thee. And she said, According unto your words, so be it. And she sent them away, and they departed; and she bound the 22 scarlet coloured rope to the window. And they went, and came to the mountains, and there abode three days, until the pursuers were returned; and the pursuers sought them throughout all the way, but found them not.
23 So the two men returned, and descended from the mountains, and passed over, and came to Joshua the son of Nun, and told 24 all things that had befallen them; And they said unto Joshua, Truly Jehovah is about to deliver into our hands the whole land; for even all the inhabitants of the land melt because of us.

CHAPTER III.

B. C. 1452. Joshua cometh to the Jordan; officers instruct the people respecting the passage of that river; Joshua encouraged, encourageth the people.

1 Now Joshua had risen early on the morning of the third day: and he and all the Israelites had removed from Shittim and come to the Jordan, and had lodged
2 there before they passed over. And after the three days, the officers went through the camp; And they commanded the people, saying, When ye see the ark of the covenant of Jehovah your God, and the priests the Levites bearing it, then ye shall remove 4 from your place and go after it. Yet let there be a space of about two thousand cubits by measure. between you and it: come not nearer unto it, that ye may know the way by which ye must go: for ye have
5 not heretofore passed this way. And Joshua said to the people, Sanctify yourselves; for to-morrow Jehovah will do wonders among you.
7 For Jehovah had said to Joshua, This day will I begin to magnify thee in the sight of all Israel, that they may know, that as I was with Moses, so I will be with thee.
8 And thou shalt command the priests that bear the ark of the covenant, saying, When ye are come to the brink of the water of the Jordan, ye shall stand still in the Jordan. So Joshua spoke to the priests, 6 saying, Take up the ark of the covenant, and pass over before the people. And they took up the ark of the covenant, and went before the people. Then Joshua said to 9 the Israelites, Come hither, and hear the words of Jehovah your God. By this, said 10 Joshua, ye shall know that the living God is among you, and that he will without fail drive out from before you the Canaanites, and the Hethites, and the Hivites, and the Perizzites, and the Girgasites, and the Amorites, and the Jebusites. Behold the 11 ark of the covenant of "Jehovah," Lord of the whole earth, passeth on before you unto the Jordan. Now it shall be as soon as the 13 soles of the feet of the priests who bear the ark of Jehovah, the Lord of the whole earth, shall rest in the waters of the Jordan, that the waters of the Jordan, which come down from above, shall be cut off; and they shall stand upon an heap.

And it came to pass, when the people re- 14 moved from their tents, to pass over the Jordan, and the priests bearing the ark of the covenant before the people; And when 15 they who bore the ark were come unto the Jordan, and the feet of the priests who bore the ark were dipped in the edge of the water, (for the Jordan overfloweth all its banks during the whole time of harvest,) That the 16 waters which came down from above stood and rose into an heap very far from the city Adam, which is beside Zaretan: and those that came down toward the sea of the plain, (even the salt sea,) failed, and were cut off: and the people passed over opposite to Jericho. And the priests who bore the ark 17 of the covenant of Jehovah stood firm on dry ground in the midst of the Jordan; while all the Israelites were passing over on dry ground; until the whole people had completely passed over the Jordan.

CHAPTER IV.

B. C. 1452. Twelve stones taken out of the Jordan, for a memorial; and twelve others set up in the Jordan; the people pass over; the stones are pitched at Gilgal.

AND it came to pass, when all the people 1 were completely passed over the Jordan, that Jehovah spoke to Joshua, saying, Choose twelve men out of the people, out of 2

20. Made us swear to thee] These were the three conditions, to bind the scarlet thread in the window, to have all her relations in her house, and not to tell the business on which they came, or the agreement they had made, lest others also should hang out scarlet ropes.

CHAP. III. 1. On the morning of the third day] This addition is necessary to make the text consistent with itself, and with what is said, chap. i. 11. Houbigant and Masius contend, that the order of this chapter has been disturbed; and there can be no doubt that some transpositions have been made.

6. This verse is evidently part of Joshua's address to the priests, and is connected with the eighth verse, after which it is placed.

11. (a) Syr. Arab.

12. Now therefore take you twelve men out of the tribes of Israel, out of every tribe a man — This verse in the text is wholly unconnected with what precedes or follows. It has been most probably inserted from the next chapter, 2d verse, where it seems proper. Most critics consider it as inserted here by mistake.

15. The harvest in Judea begins about the middle of April; when the Jordan is commonly high, from previous rain, and the melting of the snows of Lebanon.

- 3 every tribe a man, And command them saying, Take hence out of the midst of the Jordan, out of the place where the priests' feet stand firm, twelve stones; and ye shall carry them over with you, and leave them in the lodging-place, where ye shall this night lodge. Then Joshua called twelve men, whom he appointed from among the Israelites, out of every tribe a man; and Joshua said to them, Pass over before the ark of Jehovah your God, into the midst of the Jordan, and take up every one of you a stone upon his shoulder, according to the number of the tribes of Israel: That this may be a sign among you, that when your children ask, in time to come, saying, What mean ye by these stones? Then ye shall answer them, That the waters of the Jordan were cut off: and these stones are for a perpetual memorial to the Israelites. And the Israelites did as Joshua commanded; and took up out of the midst of the Jordan twelve stones, as Jehovah spoke to Joshua, according to the number of the tribes of Israel, and carried them over with them unto the place where they lodged, and laid them down there. [And Joshua set up twelve other stones in the midst of the Jordan, in the place where the feet of the priests, who bore the ark of the covenant, stood: and there they are unto this day.]
- 10 Now the priests who bore the ark, stood in the midst of the Jordan, until every thing was finished, which Jehovah had commanded Joshua to order the people to do. And the people passed over with speed:
- 11 And when all the people had completely passed over, the priests passed over, and the ark of Jehovah in the presence of the people.
- 12 And the Reubenites, and the Gadites, and half of the tribe of Manasseh, passed over, armed before the other Israelites as Moses
- 13 spoke to them; About forty thousand men ready prepared for war, passed before Jehovah, to the plains of Jericho.
- 14 On that day Jehovah magnified Joshua in the sight of all Israel; and they feared him, as they had feared Moses, all the days of his life. And Jehovah spoke to Joshua, 15 saying, Command the priests who bear the ark of the testimony, that they come up out of the Jordan. Joshua therefore commanded the priests, saying, Come ye up out of the Jordan. And it came to pass, 18 when the priests who bore the ark of the covenant of Jehovah, were come up out of the midst of the Jordan, and the soles of the priests' feet were placed on the dry land, that the waters of the Jordan returned to their place, and overflowed all its banks as before.

And the people went up out of the Jordan, 19 on the tenth day of the first month, and encamped in Gilgal, on the east side of Jericho. And those twelve stones, which 20 they had taken out of the Jordan, Joshua set up in Gilgal. And he spoke to the 21 Israelites saying, When your children shall ask 'you' in time to come, saying, What mean these stones? Ye shall then inform 22 your children, saying, Israel came over this Jordan on dry land. For Jehovah your 23 God dried up the waters of the Jordan before you, until ye passed over, as Jehovah your God had done to the Red Sea, which he dried up before us, until we passed over: That all the people of the earth might 24 know how mighty is the hand of Jehovah; and that ye might fear Jehovah your God for ever.

CHAPTER V.

B. C. 1452. The Canaanites afraid; circumcision renewed; the Passover kept, and an angel appeareth to Joshua.

Now, when all the kings of the Amorites, 1 who were on the west side of the Jordan, and all the kings of the Canaanites, who were by the sea, heard that Jehovah had dried up the waters of the Jordan, from before the Israelites, until they had passed over; their hearts melted, and there was no more courage in them, because of the Israelites.

At that time Jehovah said to Joshua, 2

CHAP. IV. 5. Pass over] The twelve men were to go beyond where the ark rested, and then take the stones out of the river, and carry them into the land of Canaan.

9. Set up other twelve stones] As the text stands, this is the most obvious and natural sense. Kennicott would render, 'Thus Joshua took out of the midst of the Jordan, from the place where the feet, &c.' The Syr. supports this correction; but the other versions the text. It is difficult to ascertain what purpose these stones could answer in the Jordan, unless they were so large as to form a heap which was visible. In the command given to Joshua, verse 2, 3, there is nothing said concerning twelve stones to be set up in the Jordan; and from this I suspect, that the whole verse has originated from a part of the preceding having been repeated. I have included it in brackets as of doubtful authority.

10. According to all that Moses commanded Joshua] On the authority of the Sept. I have omitted this clause. We nowhere read that Moses gave Joshua a charge respecting the passage of the Jordan; or concerning the taking from its bed twelve stones, as a monument to perpetuate the miracle wrought.

11. In the presence of the people] The people having passed the Jordan, formed on its banks and watched the march of the ark; and on its having also reached the land, saw with wonder the waters return with their usual force.

19. On the tenth day of the first month] On the fifteenth day of the first month they were sent out of Egypt; so that it was forty years within five days, according to the prediction, till they entered Canaan.

21. (v) Sept. Syr. Arab.

23. Dried up the waters] This miracle, like that at the Red Sea, was designed to show the power and grace of God towards the seed of Abraham. Some attempt to account for the fact from natural causes; but whatever natural causes might be employed, they were directed and governed by the special influence of God.

CHAP. V. 2. Make sharp knives] Literally 'Flint-knives.'

Make sharp knives, and circumcise the 3 Israelites a second time. And Joshua made sharp knives, and circumcised the Israelites 4 at Gibeah-aaraloth [THE HILL OF FORE-SKINS.] And this is the cause why Joshua circumcised them: All the males of the people who had come up out of Egypt, even all the men of war, had died by the way in the wilderness, after they had come 5 out of Egypt. Now all the people who came out of Egypt were circumcised; but all the people who were born in the wilderness, on the way out of Egypt, they had not 5 circumcised. For the Israelites had walked forty years in the wilderness, till all the people who were men of war, who had come out of Egypt, were consumed, because they had not obeyed the voice of Jehovah:
 to whom Jehovah swore, that they should not see the land, which Jehovah had sworn that he would give to them, a land that floweth with milk and honey. And their children whom he had raised up in their stead, were those whom Joshua circumcised:
 because till now they had not circumcised them by the way. And when the circumcision of all the people was completed, they abode in their place in the camp, until they were healed. Then Jehovah said to Joshua, This day have I removed from you the reproach of Egypt. Therefore the name of this place is called Gilgal [REMOVAL] unto this day.

10 And the Israelites encamped in Gilgal, and kept the passover on the fourteenth day of the month, in the evening, in the plains 1 of Jericho. And they ate of the old corn of the land on the morrow after the passover, unleavened cakes, and (on that same day)
 2 parched ears of the new. Now the manna ceased on the morrow after they had eaten of the old corn of the land; nor had the Israelites any more manna; but they ate that year of the fruit of the land of Canaan.

And it happened, while Joshua was by 13
 Jericho, that he raised his eyes and looked, and behold, there stood a man over against him with his sword drawn in his hand; and Joshua went to him, and said unto him,
 Art thou for us, or for our adversaries? 14
 And he said to him, Nay; but as captain of Jehovah's host am I now come. Joshua then fell on his face to the earth, and worshipped; and said to him, What saith my lord unto his servant? And the captain of 15 Jehovah's host said to Joshua, Loose thy shoe from off thy foot; for the place whereon thou standest is holy. And Joshua did so.

Now Jericho was so closely shut up on 1 account of the Israelites, that none went out, or came in. And Jehovah said to Joshua, 2 See, I give up to thee, Jericho, and its king, and all its men of valour. And all ye men 3 of war shall compass the city, going once around it, daily. Thus shall ye do six days.
 And seven priests shall bear seven jubilee- 4 trumpets, and shall blow them, before the ark; and the seventh day ye shall compass the city seven times, and the priests shall 5 blow the trumpets. And when they make a long blast with the jubilee-horns, and when ye hear the sound of the trumpets, all the people shall shout with a great shout; and the wall of the city shall fall down, that the people may ascend up, every one straight before him.

CHAPTER VI.

B. C. 1452. Jericho is encompassed; and must be devoted; the walls fall down, but Rahab is saved.

THEN Joshua the son of Nun called the 6 priests, and said to them, Take up the ark of the covenant, and let seven priests bear that stones may be sharpened so as to answer the purpose of iron, is established by facts which cannot be controverted.

 [Circumcise a second time] To what this refers, it is impossible to determine. Some think all the male children had been circumcised at mount Sinai; and in reference to that, this is called the second time. This is only conjecture.
 Others understand it to mean, 'a renewed observance of the rite, which had been for so long a time neglected.' Abraham was ordered to be circumcised as a token of the covenant God had made with him; and the promise of this covenant was, that he would give to him and his seed the land of Canaan. Whatever might be the reasons of neglecting this rite, it was proper that it should now be observed, when they, as the seed of Abraham, were about to inherit the land promised. 6. (v) Syr. Arab. MSS.

9. This day have I removed] Some think the reproach of Egypt, applies to circumcision: 'You reproach the Egyptians as uncircumcised, and they might justly reproach you for having so long neglected it; now I have removed his cause of reproach.' Others contend that it refers to their state of degradation in Egypt, where they were slaves; but now they were free. There they had no country, but now they had a country flowing with milk and honey.

11. Unleavened cakes] They kept the feast of unleavened bread after the passover, according to divine appointment, and ate old corn, which the inhabitants had left in their barns, when they fled to the cities, and probably also ripe standing corn, both on the same day; thus coming in harvest time they had plenty.

13—15. This divine manifestation was designed to encourage Joshua; and some Jews have interpreted it as being the Angel of the covenant, the future redeemer. Compare Exod. xxxiii. 14, 17, and 1 Cor. x. 4.

CHAP. VI. 2. Jehovah said] Namely, in his assumed form as captain of the Lord's host. This was to show Joshua that it was by his power they must conquer. By adding these verses to the fifth chapter, the design of this divine appearance is manifest, and the connexion is preserved.—[See I give it up to thee] Literally, 'I give it into thine hand.' Purver renders, 'I have delivered into thy power.' This is the sense, but the present tense seems necessary.

4. Jubilee-trumpets] So Coverdale; and Parkhurst observes, 'I cannot find that the word יביל ever signifies a ram; nor have the Sept. Vulg. or other ancient versions ever so rendered it; Exod. xix. 13, is plain against this rabbinical sense of the word.' In the next verse they are called horns, but this might be from their form. Of whatever materials they might be, they were such as were to be used at the Jubilee, according to the Vulgate.

seven jubilee-trumpets before the ark of 7 Jehovah. And he said unto the people, Pass on, and compass the city, and let him that is armed pass on before the ark of Je-8 hovah. And when Joshua had spoken to the people, the seven priests, bearing the seven jubilee-trumpets, passed on before Jehovah, and blew the trumpets: and the ark of the covenant of Jehovah followed 9 them. And a party of armed men marched before the priests who blew the trumpets, and the rest marched after the ark, they still going on, and blowing the trumpets.
 10 And Joshua had commanded the people, saying, Ye shall not shout, nor cause your voice to be heard, nor shall a word pass out of your mouth, until the day I bid you shout; then shall ye shout.
 11 When the ark of Jehovah had compassed the city, going once about it, then they came to the camp, and lodged in the camp.
 12 And Joshua rose early in the morning, and the priests took up the ark of Jehovah.
 13 And seven priests, bearing seven jubileetrumpets, went constantly before the ark of Jehovah and blew the trumpets; and the party of armed men marched before them;
 but the rest followed the ark of Jehovah, they still going on, and blowing the trum-14 pets. And the second day they compassed the city once, and returned into the camp:
 15 so they did, six days. But on the seventh day, they arose early, about the dawn of the day, and compassed the city after the same manner, seven times; on that day only they 16 compassed the city seven times. And at the seventh time, when the priests blew the trumpets, Joshua said to the people, Shout;
 for Jehovah hath given to you the city:
 17 But the city, and all that are in it, shall be devoted to Jehovah: only Rahab the harlot shall live, she and all that are with her in the house, because she hid the messengers, 18 whom we sent. And abstain ye from what is devoted, lest, by taking of what is devoted, ye render yourselves devoted also;
 and thus make the camp of Israel a curse, 19 and trouble it. But all the silver, and gold, and utensils of brass and iron, are to be hallowed to Jehovah; into Jehovah's treasury shall they be brought. So the priests 20 blew the trumpets; and when the people heard the sound of the trumpets, then "all" the people shouted with a great shout, and the wall fell down, so that the people went into the city, every one straight before him, and they took the city. And they utterly 21 destroyed all that was in the city, both man and woman, young and old, and ox, and sheep, and ass, with the edge of the sword.

 But Joshua had said to the two men who 22 had spied out the country, Go into the harlot's house, and bring out thence the woman, and all that she hath, as ye swore to her.
 And the young men, the spies, had gone in, 23 and brought out Rahab, and her father, and her mother, and her brethren, and all that she had; and they had brought out all her kindred, and placed them without the camp of Israel. And Joshua saved Rahab 24 the harlot alive, and her father's household, and all that she had; and she dwelleth in Israel unto this day, because she hid the messengers whom Joshua sent to spy out Jericho. And they burnt the city with fire, 25 and all that was therein: only the silver, and the gold, and the utensils of brass and iron, they put into Jehovah's treasury.

And at that time Joshua adjured them 26 saying, Accursed be the man before Jehovah, who attempteth to rebuild this city Jericho:
 with the loss of his first-born son shall he lay its foundation, and with the loss of his youngest son shall he set up its gates. Thus Jehovah was with Joshua; and his fame was spread throughout all the country.

CHAPTER VII.

B. C. 1452. Israelites smitten at Ai; Joshua's complaint; God teacheth him the reason of their defeat and what to do; Achar taken by lot; his confession and punishment.

BUT the Israelites had committed a tres- 1 pass in respect to the things devoted: for 'Achar' the son of Carmi, the son of Zabdi, the son of Zerah, of the tribe of Judah, had taken some of the devoted things: and the anger of Jehovah was kindled against Israel.

Now Joshua had sent men from Jericho 2

10. Ye shall not shout] The conduct of the Israelites must have appeared singular to their enemies. Their profound silence might be designed to lead them to examine the height and strength of the walls, and to recall to their minds God's former wonders.

17. Devoted to Jehovah] That is, devoted to complete destruction. See Levit. xxvii. 28.

20. The people shouted] The common text is irreconcilable with itself; and the omission of these words in the Sept. is warranted by the connexion, and the command verse 6th. See note, Heb. Bible. (a) Sept. 4 MSS.

23. Without the camp of Israel] Some refer without to the city, and render, 'without, in the camp of Israel.' The other version, which implies, that they were placed on the outside of the camp, appears to me preferable.

25. (o) House of] Sept. Vulg. Arab. and 1 MS.

26. Who attempteth to rebuild] I have followed Vatable, in this version; for rising up refers to the action of building. This idiom is frequent in Hebrew. The adjuration of Joshua does not interdict the rebuilding of Jericho, but foretells in what manner it should be done. For the fulfilment, see 1 Kings xii. 34.

CHAP. VII. 1. For Achar] That the final has been writ instead of the γ through the mistake of a transcriber is admitted by the best critics. That his name was $\alpha\chi\alpha\rho$ appears clear from the 25th verse, where there is an evident reference to the import of the word. Of this opinion was Houbigant. The text itself, 1 Chron. ii. 7. justifies this correction.

5. To Shebarim] So the Vulg. the other versions, until to Ai, (which was by Beth-aven, on the east side of Bethel,) and had spoken to them, saying, Go up and view the country. And the men had gone up and viewed Ai; And they had returned to Joshua, and said to him, Let not all the people go up; but let about two or three thousand men go up and smite Ai; fatigue not all the people by sending them thither; for they are but few. So there went up thither of the people about three thousand men, but they fled before the men of Ai. And the men of Ai smote of them six and thirty men: for they chased them from the city-gate to Shebarim, and smote them in the descent: therefore the hearts of the people melted, and became as water.

And Joshua rent his clothes, and fell to the earth upon his face before the ark of Jehovah, until the evening; he and the elders of Israel, and put dust upon their heads. And Joshua said, Alas, O Lord Jehovah, why hast thou at all brought this people over the Jordan, to deliver us into the hands of the Amorites, to destroy us? O that we had been content, and dwelt on the other side the Jordan! O Lord, what can I say, when Israel turneth their backs before their enemies! For the Canaanites and all the inhabitants of the land will hear of it, and environ us, and cut off our name from the earth: and what wilt thou do for thine own great name?

And Jehovah said to Joshua, Arise; why liest thou thus upon thy face? The people of Israel have sinned, and have also transgressed my covenant which I commanded them; for they have even taken of what was devoted; yea they have also stolen it, and put it among their own stuff. Therefore the Israelites cannot stand before their enemies; before their enemies they will turn their backs because they have incurred the curse: nor will I be with you any more, except ye destroy him who hath incurred the curse from among you. Arise, sanctify the people, and say, Sanctify yourselves against to-morrow: for thus saith Jehovah the God of Israel, There is a devoted thing, O Israel: ye cannot stand before your enemies, until ye take away the devoted thing from among you: In the morning, therefore, ye shall be brought out according to your tribes; and it shall be, that the tribe which Jehovah taketh shall come by families; and the family which Jehovah shall take, shall come by households; and the household which Jehovah shall take shall come man by man. And it shall be, that he that is taken with the devoted thing shall be burnt with fire, he and all that he hath: because he hath transgressed the covenant of Jehovah, and because he hath done a wicked deed in Israel.

So Joshua rose up early in the morning, and brought Israel by their tribes; and the tribe of Judah was taken: And he brought forth the families of Judah; and the family of the Zerahites was taken: and he brought forth the family of the Zerahites house by house; and the house of Zabdi was taken: And he brought his household man by man; and Achar, the son of Carmi, the son of Zabdi, the son of Zerah, of the tribe of Judah, was taken. And Joshua said to Achar, My son, give, I pray thee, glory to Jehovah the God of Israel, and to him make confession; and tell me now what thou hast done; hide it not from me. And Achar answered Joshua, and said, Indeed I have sinned against Jehovah the God of Israel, and so and so have I done. I saw among the spoils a good Babylonish mantle, and two hundred shekels of silver, and an ingot of gold of the weight of fifty shekels, and I coveted them and I took them away: and behold, they are hidden in the earth in the midst of my tent, and the silver undermost.

So Joshua sent messengers, and they ran to the tent; and, behold, the things were found hidden in his tent, and the silver undermost. And they took them out of the tent, and brought them to Joshua, and to all the Israelites and spread them before Jehovah. And Joshua, and all Israel with him, took Achar the son of Zerah, and the silver, and the mantle, and the ingot of gold, and his sons, and his daughters, and his oxen, and his asses, and his sheep, and his tent, and all that belonged to him: and they had routed them. Geddes, to the barriers, and supposes the rivulet or ravine, at the bottom of the hill, on which Ai stood, to be meant. The meaning of the word in Arabic supports this version. As the sense is uncertain, I have adhered to the common version.

11. This clause, and have dissembled also, though in all the versions except the Sept. I suspect to be an interpolation, and have omitted it. We do not read that any inquiry had been made, and of course no occasion had been given to lie concerning it. The deed had been done in secret; and no suspicion even attached to the person who had done it.

12. A devoted thing. Geddes renders, sacrilege, taking what was by the law devoted to God.

17. Families. It is allowed that we ought to read here כִּשְׁפָתִים. For Joshua brought all the families of Judah before the Lord, that it might be ascertained to what family he belonged, who had stolen the devoted thing. The 14th verse supports the reading of the Syr. in this. All Israel came near by tribes, and one tribe was fixed on: then, that tribe came by its families, and one family was fixed on: then came that family by its household, and one household was fixed on: and then that household coming man by man, one man was fixed on.

18. (v) Sept. Vat. Syr. and so always.

21. A good Babylonish mantle. Babylonish mantles, or robes, are famous in antiquity: they were considered marks of dignity, and worn by kings.

- they brought them unto the valley of Achar.
- 25 And Joshua said, Why hast thou distressed us? Jehovah shall this day distress thee. And all Israel stoned him with stones, and, after they had stoned them with stones, they burned himself; and all that belonged to him," with fire. And they raised over them a great heap of stones: and Jehovah turned from the fierceness of his anger. Therefore the name of the place is called, The valley of Achar, unto this day.

CHAPTER VIII.

B. C. 1452. God encourageth Joshua; the stratagem by which Ai was taken; the king hanged.

- 1 JEHOVAH now said to Joshua, Fear not, nor be dismayed: take all the people of war with thee, and arise, go up against Ai. See, I give up to thee the king of Ai, and
- 2 his people, and his city, and his land; And thou shalt do to Ai and its king, as thou didst to Jericho and its king: save that its spoil, and its cattle, ye shall take for a prey to yourselves: place an ambush behind the city.
- 3 So Joshua arose, and all the people of war to go up against Ai; and Joshua chose 'three' thousand men of valour, and sent
- 4 them away by night. And he commanded them, saying, Behold, ye shall lie in wait against the city, behind the city: go not far from the city, but be ye all ready. For I, and all the people that are with me, will approach the city, and when they come against us, as at first, we will flee before
- 6 them, While they pursue us till we have drawn them from the city; for they will say, They flee before us, as at first. And when we flee before them, Then ye shall rise up from the ambush, and seize on the city; for Jehovah your God will deliver it
- 8 up to you. And it shall be, when ye have taken the city, that ye shall set the city on fire: according to the command of Jehovah
- 9 shall ye do. See I have commanded you. Joshua therefore sent them forth, and they went to lie in ambush, and abode between Bethel and Ai; but Joshua lodged that
- 10 night among the people. Now Joshua arose early on the next morning, and numbered the people, and went up, he and the elders of Israel, before the people, towards Ai. And all the people of war that were 11 with him, went up, and drew nigh, and came in sight of the city, and encamped on the north side of Ai, and there was a valley between them and Ai. Thus an ambush 12 having been placed between Bethel and Ai, on the west side of the city, And the people, 13 the whole host, they placed on the north of the city, so that its extremity reached to the west of the city; Joshua then 'took about five thousand men,' and went that night into the midst of the valley.

And when the king of Ai, "and his people" 14 saw this, they hastened and arose early in the morning; and they went out, he and all his people, the men of the city, at an appointed time, to fight with Israel, on the open plain; but he knew not that there was an ambush laid against him, behind the city. And 15 Joshua and all Israel made as if they were beaten before them, and fled by the way to the wilderness. And all the people that 16 were in Ai were called together to pursue them; and they pursued Joshua, and were drawn away from the city. And there was 17 not a man left in Ai, that went not out after Israel: and they left the city open, and pursued Israel. And Jehovah said to Joshua, 18 Stretch out the spear which is in thine hand towards Ai; for I will give it up to thee. And Joshua stretched out the spear which was in his hand towards the city. And as 19 soon as he had stretched out his hand, the ambush arose quickly from their place, and they ran and entered the city, and took it; and immediately they set the city on fire. And when the men of Ai looked behind 20 them, they saw, and, behold, the smoke of the city ascended up to the heavens, and they had no power to flee either this way or that way: and the people of Israel who had fled to the wilderness turned back upon their pursuers. For when Joshua and all 21 Israel saw that the ambush had taken the city, and that the smoke of the city ascended, they then turned about, and slew the men

25. Distressed us] In this there is an allusion to the name of the offender: for Achar signifies distress: a proof that this, and not Achan, was his real name. (a) Syr. Vulg. Arab.

CHAP. VIII. 1. See, I give up to thee] Literally, 'I give into thine hand.' I prefer the sense of the idiom.

3. Three thousand] The text and all the versions have thirty thousand, which cannot be right. For how an army could lie in ambush a whole day, between Bethel and Ai, without being perceived, it is impossible to conjecture. And as the whole inhabitants of Ai are said to have been only twelve thousand, three thousand must have been sufficient to take it, as the chief part of the defenders had been induced to pursue Joshua. Errors in numbers have frequently occurred.

12. This verse, as it now stands in the text, is totally unimportant.

telligible. It runs thus—'And Joshua took about 5000 men, and placed them in ambush between Bethel and Ai, on the north west side of Ai.' But we learn from ver. 3, that the ambush consisted of 30,000 (read 3000) men, who had been sent thither the preceding night. By transposing some words with Houbigant, the difficulties, which, in the common order, are insuperable, are all removed.

13. Its extremity reached to the west] Joshua's main army was so posted, that the most northern part of it was within sight of the ambuscade. Compare verse 19.

14. (a) Syr.

17. The words omitted, and in Bethel, on the authority of the Sept. are an evident interpolation. The whole chapter contains no reference to Bethel, nor to its inhabitants. See note, Hebrew Bible.

30—35. Geddes transposes these verses after the 1st

22 of Ai. And the other party issued out of the city against them; so they were in the midst of Israel, some being on this side, and some on that side: and they smote them, so that none of them was left to escape. And the king of Ai they took alive, and brought him to Joshua. And when Israel had made an end of slaying all the inhabitants of Ai, who had pursued them into the fields, in the wilderness, and when they had all fallen by the edge of the sword, until they were all consumed, all Israel returned unto Ai, and smote it with the edge of the sword. And all that fell that day, both of men and women, were twelve thousand, the whole people of Ai. For Joshua drew not back his hand with which he stretched out the spear, until he had utterly destroyed all the inhabitants of Ai. Only the cattle and the spoil of that city, Israel took for a prey to themselves, according to the word of Jehovah which he commanded Joshua. And Joshua burnt Ai, and made it a perpetual heap, a desolation unto this day. And the king of Ai he hanged on a tree until evening; but as soon as the sun was set, Joshua commanded that they should take down his body from the tree, and cast it at the entrance of the city-gate, and raise upon it a great heap of stones, which remaineth unto this day.

CHAPTER IX.

C. 1452. The kings combine against Israel; the Gibeonites by craft obtain a league, and are condemned to perpetual bondage.

Now when this was reported, all the kings who were on this side the Jordan, whether among the mountains, or in the valleys, or on all the coasts of the great sea near to Lebanon; of the Hethites, and the Amorites, the Perizzites, the Hivites, "the Girgasites," and the Jebusites; They gathered rise of chapter 18th. This account of building an altar, describing the law on stones, and reading the blessings and the curses, has no relation to the narrative. The Israelites had not yet made a conquest of the people, or cities north of Ai; and it is by no means probable, that they could leave their enemies unsubdued in the rear, and advance a distance of 60 miles into the midst of them; after having performed what is here related, that they should again retrace their steps, and go and besiege Bethel. The order of the conquest of Canaan, as related in this book, shows, that these events here recorded, could not occur sooner than where Geddes has placed them. Compare Gen. xxvii. 1, &c.

CHAP. IX. 1. Now when this was reported] Some think what is here said refers not to the destruction of Ai, but to the approach of the Israelites to the Jordan; which induced the kings on the west of Jordan to make a league for their defence. Compare Deut. i. 7, 19, 20. (a) Sept. 14. They acted with subtilty also] As there is mention made of Ai, also refers to the stratagem by which Joshua had taken that city.—Wine bottles, which were made of skins, and might be rent and mended. I have preferred the reading of the versions, and MSS. prepared provisions themselves together, to fight with Joshua and with Israel, with one accord.

And when the inhabitants of Gibeon 3 heard what Joshua had done to Jericho, and to Ai, They acted with subtilty also. For "they prepared provisions for a journey," 4 and took upon their asses worn sacks and skin wine bottles, worn and rent, but bound up; And worn and clouted shoes on their 5 feet, and worn garments upon them; and all their provision-bread was dry and mouldy. And they went to Joshua, unto the camp 6 at Gilgal, and said to him, and to the men of Israel, We are come from a far country; now therefore make ye a league with us. And the men of Israel said to these Hivites, 7 Perhaps ye dwell among us; and how can we make a league with you? And they said 8 to Joshua, We are thy servants. And Joshua said to them, Who are ye, and whence come ye? And they said to him, 9 From a very far country thy servants are come, because of the name of Jehovah thy God: for we have heard his fame, and all that he did in Egypt, And all that he did to 10 the two kings of the Amorites, who were beyond the Jordan, to Sihon king of Heshbon, and to Og, king of Bashan, who dwell at Ashtaroth. Wherefore our elders and all 11 the inhabitants of our country spoke to us saying, Take provisions with you for the journey, and go to meet them, and say to them, We are your servants: therefore make ye a league with us. This our provision- 12 bread we took hot from our houses on the day we set out, to come to you; but now, behold, it is dry and mouldy! And these 13 wine bottles we filled, were new: and, behold, they are rent! and these, our garments and our shoes, are worn out, from the great length of the journey. And the chiefs of 14 Israel took of their provisions, and consulted not the will of Jehovah. And Joshua 15 treated them kindly, and made a league for a journey, to the text, which is, feigned themselves to be ambassadors.

7. Those Hivites] That is, the Gibeonites, who were a part of the Hivites.—Perhaps ye dwell] That is, in a country which we are to inhabit; in a part of the promised land.

9—13. In the reply of the Gibeonites, they avoid coming to particulars, and answer only in general terms. At length they pretend that religion was their motive, and a regard to the God of Israel; they thought this the best way to secure Joshua's favourable opinion. Puffendorf justifies this artifice of the Gibeonites, as agreeable to the law of nature; but divines, in general, consider no circumstance can justify deliberate falsehood.

14. Chiefs of Israel] So the Sept. render, and the 18th and following verses support this sense of the word.—Took of their provisions] This was considered in those times, and still is considered among the Arabs, as a certain pledge of peace and friendship.—Consulted not] This is noticed as their sin. They had the Urim and Thummim among them, and ought to have consulted God by them.

15. Treated them kindly] I suppose he made a feast for them, and treated them as persons of consequence.

16 But at the end of three days, after they had made a league with them, they heard that they were their neighbours, and dwelt among them. And the Israelites journeyed, and came to their cities on the third day. Now their cities were Gibeon, and Chephirah, and Beeroth, and Kirjath-jearim. And the Israelites smote them not, because the chiefs of the congregation had sworn to them by Jehovah the God of Israel. And the whole congregation murmured against the chiefs. But all the chiefs said to the whole congregation, We have sworn to them by Jehovah the God of Israel: we may not, therefore, now touch them. This we may do to them; we will even let them live, lest wrath be upon us, because of the oath which we swore to them. And the chiefs said to them, Let them live as the chiefs have promised them; but let them be hewers of wood and drawers of water to the whole congregation.

22 And Joshua called for them, and he spoke to them, saying, Why have ye beguiled us saying, We dwell far from you; when ye dwell among us? Now therefore ye are cursed, and there shall none of you be freed from being bondmen, and hewers of wood and drawers of water, for the house of my God. And they answered Joshua, and said, Because it was certainly told thy servants, how that Jehovah thy God commanded his servant Moses to give you all the land, and to destroy all the inhabitants of the land, from before you; we therefore were greatly afraid of our lives because of you, and have done this thing. And now, behold, we are in thy power; as it seemeth good and right unto thee to do, do to us. And so did he to them, and delivered them from the Israelites, that they slew them not. And Joshua made them that day hewers of wood and drawers of water for the "whole" congregation, and for the altar of Jehovah, even unto this day, in the place which he should choose.

CHAPTER X.

B. C. 1452. Five kings fight against Gibeon; Joshua rescueth it; and obtaineth a complete victory; twelve kings conquered.

1 Now when Adonizedek, king of Jerusa-

19. From this whole history, we learn, that promises, though got by deceit, yet when confirmed by oath, are to be kept, when they do not oblige us to any thing that is sinful. So great a regard ought believers to have for the name of God!

21. Hewers of wood. That is, for the benefit of the whole congregation; who being bound to find wood and water, for the service of God in the tabernacle, laid this burden upon them. 27. (a) Sept. Vulg.

lem, had heard how Joshua had taken Ai and had utterly destroyed it; and as he had done to Jericho and its king, so had he done to Ai and its king; and how the inhabitants of Gibeon had made peace with Israel, and were among them; "He feared" greatly, because Gibeon was a great city, as one of the royal cities, and because it was greater than Ai, and its men were all valiant. Wherefore Adonizedek, the king of Jerusalem, sent unto Hoham the king of Hebron, and unto Piram the king of Jarmuth, and unto Japhia the king of Lachish, and unto Debir the king of Eglon, saying, Come up to me, and help me, that we may smite Gibeon, for it hath made peace with Joshua and with the Israelites. So the five kings of the Amorites, the king of Jerusalem, the king of Hebron, the king of Jarmuth, the king of Lachish, the king of Eglon, assembled, and went up, they and all their hosts, and encamped before Gibeon, and made war against it.

And the men of Gibeon sent to Joshua, unto the camp to Gilgal, saying, Withhold not thine assistance from thy servants; come up to us quickly, and help and save us: for all the kings of the Amorites who dwell in the mountains are assembled against us. Then Joshua went up from Gilgal, he, and all the people of war with him, and all the tried men of valour.

And Jehovah said to Joshua, Fear them not; for into thine hand I deliver them; not a man of them shall stand before thee. So Joshua, going from Gilgal all that night, came suddenly upon them; and Jehovah discomfited them before Israel, who slew them with a great slaughter at Gibeon, and chased them along the way that goeth up to Beth-horon, and smote them to Azekah and Makkedah. And as they fled from before Israel, and were on the descent to Beth-horon, Jehovah cast down, from the heavens, great hail-stones upon them, unto Azekah, so that they died: more were they who died by the hail-stones than they whom the Israelites slew with the sword.

Then spoke Joshua to Jehovah on the 1 day when he delivered the Amorites before the Israelites; and he said in the sight of Israel,

Sun, stand thou still, over Gibeon;

And thou, moon, over the valley of Ajalon.

And the sun stood still, and the moon 1

CHAP. X. 2. All valiant] Houbigant observes that the word נָבִיִּים without the ו denotes men, but in most places has the ו inserted when it is taken adjectively, and signifies stout, valiant. (v) Sept. Vulg. 1 MS.

3. Adonizedek] Many suppose that he was the successor of Melchizedek, and that Salem, and Jerusalem did note the same city. This is probable. Compare Judg 21, and xix. 10.

stayed, until the people had avenged themselves of their enemies. Is not this written in the book of Jasher? Thus the sun stood still in the midst of the heavens, and hasted not to go down when the day was complete.

14 And there was no day like that, before or after it, when Jehovah hearkened to the voice of man! For Jehovah fought for Israel.

16 Now those five kings had fled, and hid-17 den themselves in a cave at Makkedah. And it was told Joshua, saying, The five kings are found hidden in a cave at Makkedah.

18 And Joshua said, Roll great stones upon the mouth of the cave, and set men by it,

19 to watch them: But stay ye not, but pursue your enemies, and smite their rear; suffer them not to enter into their cities; for Jehovah your God hath delivered them into

20 your hand. And when the Israelites had made an end of slaying them with a very great slaughter, until they were consumed, or that they who remained of them had en-

21 tered into fenced cities; Then all the people returned to the camp to Joshua at Makke-

22 dah in peace, none moving his tongue against any of the Israelites. And Joshua said, Open the mouth of the cave, and bring out those five kings to me from the cave.

23 And they did so, for they brought forth those five kings to him from the cave; the king of Jerusalem, the king of Hebron, the king of Jarmuth, the king of Lachish, and

24 the king of Eglon. And when they had brought out those kings to Joshua, Joshua called for all the men of Israel, and said to the captains of the men of war who went with him, Come near, put your feet upon the necks of these kings. And they drew near, and put their feet upon their necks. And Joshua said to them, Fear not, nor be 25 dismayed; be strong and of good courage; for thus shall Jehovah do to all your enemies against whom ye fight. And after- 26 wards Joshua smote them, and slew them, and hanged them up on five trees; and on the trees they hung until the evening. But 27 at the time of the sun-setting, Joshua commanded, and they took them down from the trees, and cast them into the cave in which they had hidden themselves, and laid great stones at the cave's mouth, which remain unto this day.

And that day Joshua took Makkedah, 28 and smote it with the edge of the sword; and its king he utterly destroyed, and all the persons that were therein; he let none remain: he did to the king of Makkedah as he did to the king of Jericho. Then Joshua 29 passed from Makkedah, and all Israel with him, unto Libnah, and fought against Libnah: And Jehovah delivered it also, and 30 its king, into the hand of Israel; and all the persons who were therein; he let none remain in it, but did to its king as he did to the king of Jericho.

And Joshua passed from Libnah, and all 31 Israel with him, unto Lachish, and encamped against it, and fought against it. And Jehovah delivered Lachish into the 32 hand of Israel, who took it, on the second day, and smote it with the edge of the sword, and all the persons who were therein, ac-

10. To Beth-horon] That is, by the way of the mountain on which Beth-horon was afterwards built. Compare 1 Chron. vii. 24.

11. Hail-stones] It is indubitable that hail-stones of great magnitude often fall in Judea and the mountainous parts of Arabia; and if this hail-storm happened by night, all the effects ascribed to it are natural. See Harmer, vol. iii. p. 484.

12—14. Sun, stand thou still!] It is said by a writer, posterior in point of time to this transaction, 'that no prophet was like to Moses, with respect to the signs and wonders which he wrought.' (Deut. xxxiv. 11.) But if the common interpretation of what is here said be just, this miracle far exceeds them all. In the Psalms, almost every other miracle, recorded in the historical books, is either expressly mentioned, or alluded to; and it is singular, that even the apostle, when describing the fruits of faith, notices the destruction of Jericho, and the conduct of Rahab; but is silent respecting this transaction. The prophet Habakkuk is thought to allude to this chap. iii. 11; see note there. The whole narrative, nevertheless, proves that there was something miraculous in this transaction; and the nature of the miracle depends on the words כִּי־יָמַד הַיּוֹם, which are rendered in the common version, about a whole day. If this version be admitted, the earth must have ceased to revolve on its axis for a whole day, which would have produced the effect noticed, so that the sun and moon would have appeared stationary. That Omnipotence could accomplish this, would be preposterous to deny; but if the words will bear another sense, a sense by which a miracle is maintained, and yet the great law of motion preserved, the justest rules of interpretation demand, that we should admit it. That they will admit the version I have given is not denied. I consider then the miracle to be, that when the day was complete, Jehovah, at the request of Joshua, sent the hail-storm, and by the unusual density of the atmosphere produced such a refraction of the light, that the sun and moon appeared above the horizon, 'until the people had avenged themselves of their enemies.' Nor is it an objection to this opinion, that the sun and moon are said to stand still, in the midst of the heavens. Some understand this to mean the mid-day; but when was the moon seen at mid-day? The midst of the heavens, only signifies, the place or station they occupied.—The author of this book confirms his account by a reference to the book of Jasher; but does not quote from it. The learned reader may consult notes, Hebrew Bible.

15. And Joshua returned, and all Israel with him, unto the camp to Gilgal] This verse is a manifest interpolation, and inconsistent with the narrative. For, as Dr. Wall observes, the Greek agrees with the Hebrew at verse 21; that, as soon as the battle was ended, all the people returned to Joshua, to the camp at Makkedah. Makkedah was nigh the place of battle; Gilgal a great way off. And that Joshua, who (in the next words, ver. 17.) hearing of the five kings hid in a cave, commanded that they should be shut in; yet the soldiers should not stay, but pursue the enemy—that he, I say, should, in the mean time, have led back the army to their camp at Gilgal, about fifteen miles off, is very improbable.

24. Put your feet] This treatment of enemies was usual, in those times, and even the brave Romans long after, in like manner, trampled on those they had conquered.

26, 27. Compare Deut. xxi. 23.

- cording to all that he had done to Libnah.
- 33 And Horam, king of Gezer, had come to help Lachish, and Joshua smote him and his people, until he left him none remaining.
- 34 And from Lachish Joshua passed unto Eglon, and all Israel with him; and they encamped against it, and fought against it;
- 35 And they took it on that day, and smote it with the edge of the sword, and all the persons who were therein he utterly destroyed that day, according to all that he had done to Lachish. And Joshua went up from Eglon, and all Israel with him, unto Hebron; and they fought against it,
- 37 And they took it, and smote it with the edge of the sword, and its king, and all its towns and all the persons who were therein; he left none remaining, according to all that he had done to Eglon, but destroyed it utterly, and all the persons who were therein.
- 38 Then Joshua, and all Israel with him, turned to Debir; and fought against it,
- 39 And took it, and its king, and all its towns; and they smote them with the edge of the sword, and utterly destroyed all the persons who were therein; he left none remaining: as he had done to Hebron, so he did to Debir and to its king; and as he had done also to Libnah and its king.
- 40 Thus Joshua smote all the people of the mountainous country of the south, and of the valleys and of the rising grounds, and all their kings: he left none remaining, but utterly destroyed all that breathed, as Jehovah the God of Israel had commanded.
- 41 And Joshua smote them from Kadesh-barnea even unto Gaza, and all the country
- 42 of Goshen, unto Gibeon. And all those kings and their land did Joshua take at one time, because Jehovah the God of Israel
- 43 fought for Israel. And Joshua returned, and all Israel with him, unto the camp to Gilgal.

CHAPTER XI.

B. C. 1452. Many kings vanquished at Merom; Hazor taken and burnt; the whole country subdued, and the Anakites cut off.

1 AND when Jabin king of Hazor had

41. Goshen] Some have, with little probability, imagined that this is the same with the Goshen of Egypt. I am of opinion it was the country of the Geshurites, mentioned chap. xiii. 2, and called from the city Goshen, mentioned chap. xv. 51.

CHAP. XI. 1. King of Hazor] This was situated in upper Galilee, and was afterwards given to the tribe of Naphtali, chap. xix. 36. Jabin seems to have been the common name of the kings of Hazor, Judges iv. 2. From verse 10 it appears that Hazor was the capital city of the northern parts of Canaan, and though now subdued, it must have recovered its former power, before the time of the judges.—Madan, Calmet would read Maron, with the Sept. Vat. and conjectures the land of Merez, Judg. v. 23, might be the country of Madan. Shimron fell to the lot of Zebulon; and Achshaph, by Josephus and others Ecdippe, to that of Asher, chap. xix. 25.

5. The lake Merom] Literally, 'the higher water,' by which, according to some, is meant the lake called afterwards Samechon, not far from Phiala, the source of the Jordan. Others think that Jabin and his confederates advanced as far as Tachana, by the river Kishon, and fought with Joshua, where the Israelites afterwards conquered the forces of Sisera. Judges iv. 7, and v. 19.

8. Misrephoth-maim] Houbigant would render, 'Misrephoth on the west.' The Vulg. 'to the waters of Misrephoth.' The Sept. as a proper name, whom I have followed with our last translators. See note Hebrew Bible.

9. Hamstring] That is, cut the tendons, or sinews of the ham, by which they were disabled.

heard these things, he sent to Jobab the king of 'Madon,' and to the king of Shimron, and to the king of Achshaph, And to the kings who dwell on the northern mountains, and in the plains, south of Chinne-roth, and in the valley, and on the western borders of Dor; And to the Canaanites on the east and on the west, and to the Amorites, and to the Hethites, and to the Perizites, and to the Jebusites in the mountains, and to the Hivites under Hermon in the land of Mizpeh. And they went out, they and all their hosts with them, a people numerous as the sand upon the sea-shore, with very many horses and chariots. And when all these kings were met together, they went and encamped together, by the lake Merom, in order to fight with Israel.

And Jehovah said to Joshua, Be not afraid because of them; for to-morrow about this time will I deliver them up all slain before Israel: thou shalt ham-string their horses, and burn their chariots with fire. So Joshua and all the people of war with him, went out against them to the lake Merom: and suddenly fell upon them. And Jehovah delivered them into the hand of Israel, who smote them, and chased them unto Great Sidon, and unto Misrephoth-maim, and eastward unto the valley of Mizpeh; and they smote them, until they left none remaining. And Joshua did to them as Jehovah bade him; he ham-strung their horses, and their chariots he burned with fire. And at that time Joshua turned back, and took Hazor, and smote its king with the sword: (for Hazor was the capital of all those kingdoms.) And he smote all the persons who were therein, with the edge of the sword, utterly destroying them: there was not any left to breathe: and he burnt Hazor with fire. And all the cities of those kings, and all their kings, did Joshua take, and smote them with the edge of the sword, and he utterly destroyed them, as Moses the servant of Jehovah had commanded. But the cities which stood on the hills, Israel burned none of them, save Hazor only which Joshua burned. And the whole 14 spoil of those cities, and the cattle, the Israelites took for a prey to themselves; but every man they smote with the edge of the sword, until they had destroyed them; 15 neither left they any to breathe. As Jehovah had commanded Moses his servant, so Moses commanded Joshua, and so Joshua did; he left nothing undone of all that Jehovah had commanded Moses.

16 Thus Joshua took that whole land, even all the southern hill-country, and all the land of Goshen, and the valleys, and the 7 mountains of Israel, and its valley; From mount Halak, that extendeth to Seir, unto Baal-gad in the valley of Lebanon, under mount Hermon: and all their kings he 8 took, and smote, and slew them. A long time Joshua made war with all those kings: 9 For there was not a city which made peace with the Israelites, save the Hivites the inhabitants of Gibeon: all the rest they 10 took by war. For it was Jehovah's will that they should be so courageous as to meet Israel in battle, that they might utterly 11 destroy them; that they might show to them no favour, but destroy them, as Jehovah had commanded Moses.

12 And at that time came Joshua, and cut off the Anakites from the mountains, from Hebron, from Debir, from Anab, and from all the mountains of Judah, and from all the mountains of Israel: Joshua utterly 13 destroyed them with their cities. There was none of the Anakites left in the land of the Israelites: they remained only in Gaza, 14 in Gath, and in Ashdod. Thus Joshua took the whole land according to all that Jehovah had said to Moses; and Joshua gave it for an inheritance to Israel, according to their portions by their tribes. So the land rested from war.

CHAPTER XII.

1. C. 1432. Recapitulation of the conquests of Moses and Joshua on both sides the Jordan.

Now these are the kings of the land, whom the Israelites smote, and whose land they possessed, on the other side the Jordan, towards the rising sun, from the river Arnon unto mount Hermon, and the whole eastern 1 plain. The land of Sihon the king of the Amorites, who dwelt in Heshbon, and ruled from Aroer, which is upon the bank of the river Arnon, and the interior of that river, and half Gilead, even unto the river Jabbok, which is the border of the Ammonites. And the plain, from the east side of the 3 sea of Chinneroth, unto the east side of the plain, or the salt sea; and southward by the way of Beth-jeshimoth, under Ashdod-pisgah. And the country of Og, king 4 of Bashan, (a remainder of the Rephaites,) who dwelt at Ashtaroth and at Edrei, And 5 ruled in mount Hermon, and in Salcah, and in all Bashan, unto the boundary of the "Girgasites," and the Maacathites, and half Gilead, the boundary of Sihon king of Heshbon. Those kings Moses the servant of Je- 6 hovah and the Israelites had smitten; and Moses the servant of Jehovah had given their land for a possession unto the Reubenites, and the Gadites, and the half tribe of Manasseh.

And these are the kings of the country, 7 whom Joshua and the Israelites smote on this west side of the Jordan, from Baalgad in the valley of Lebanon, even unto the mount Halak, that extendeth to Seir; whose land Joshua gave to the other tribes of Israel for a possession, according to their portions; In the mountains and in 8 the valleys, and on the rising grounds, and in the wilderness, and in the south country; the kings of the Hethites, the Amorites, and the Canaanites, the Perizzites, the Hivites, and the Jebusites.

The king of Jericho, one; the king of 9 Ai, (beside Bethel,) one: The king of Jerusalem, one; the king of Hebron, one; The king of Jarmuth, one; the king of La- 11 chish, one; The king of Eglon, one; the 12 king of Gezer, one: The king of Debir, 13 one; the king of Geder, one; The king of 14 Hormah, one; the king of Arad, one; The 15 king of Libnah, one; the king of Adullam, one; The king of Makkedah, one; the king 16 of "Bethel," one; The king of Tappuah, 17 one; the king of Hepher, one; The king 18 of Aphek, one: the king of Sharon, one; The king of "Madon," one; the king of 19 Hazor, one; The king of Shimron-meron, 20

13. Stood on the hills] Pilkington has observed, that our common version of this passage conveys no particular idea, 'As for the cities that stood still in their strength, &c.' the Sam. and Vulg. have rendered properly; quæ erant in collibus. For הר in Chal. and Arab. signifies, collis, mons, &c. The word ought to be so rendered Jerem. xxx. 18.

16. Mountains of Israel] If this be not an addition to the text, Israel must be understood as including all the tribes except Judah, as in verse 21.

18. A long time] This may be estimated from the age of Caleb. He was forty years old when sent to spy out the land. (See chap. xiv. 7—10.) Above thirty-eight of these forty-five years were spent before the Israelites passed the Jordan, which leaves from six to seven for the conquest of Canaan.

21. Anakites or Tragliutites] A hardy gigantic race, who lived in the most inaccessible parts of the country, and chiefly in dens and caves. Compare Numb. xiii. 22, and Deut. ix. 2.

CHAP. XII. 2. The interior of the river] See note on Deut. iii. 16. 5. (v) Sept. Vat.

7. Halak] Calmet proposes to render, instead of Halak, the mountains of separation, or division, because they separated Canaan from Idumea.

18. Sharon] I have followed the Vulg. and our marginal version. Jerom says it was a region between Mount Tabor and the lake of Tiberias; extending from Casarea to Joppa. It was extremely fat and fertile. 1 Chron. xxvii. 29; Cant. ii. 1.

19. (v) Maren, Sept.

21 one; the king of Achshaph, one; The king of Taanach, one; the king of Megiddo, one; 22 The king of Kadesh, one; the king of Joknean of Carmel, one; The king of Dor, in the country of Dor, one; the king of Gaim 24 in 'Galilee,' one; The king of Tirzah, one; all the kings thirty and one.

CHAPTER XIII.

B. C. 1445. The land not as yet conquered; the inheritance of the two tribes and half beyond the Jordan; Balaam slain; the sacrifices given to the Levites instead of an inheritance.

1 Now Joshua was old, and far gone in years; and Jehovah said to him, Thou art old, far gone in years, and yet there remaineth very much land unpossessed. This is the land that yet remaineth; the whole territory of the Philistines; and of the Geshurites, From Sihor which is before Egypt, even unto the northern border of Ekron which is to be accounted a part of Canaan; the five lordships of the Philistines; of the Gazathites, and the Ashdathites, the Eshkalonites, the Gathites, and the Ekronites; 4 also the Avites on the south. Also all the land of the Canaanites, and Mearah, (which belongeth to the Sidonians,) unto Aphek, to the borders of the 'Aramites;' And the land of the Gibleites, and all the eastern side of Lebanon, from Baal-gad unto mount 6 Hermon unto the entrance of Hamath. All the inhabitants of the mountains from Lebanon unto Misrephoth-maim, all the Sidonians, will I drive out from before Israel: divide thou it only unto the Israelites for an inheritance, as I have commanded thee. 7 Now therefore divide this land for an inheritance unto the nine tribes, and the half 8 tribe of Manasseh. For two tribes and a half, the Reubenites and the Gadites, and the other half of the tribe of Manasseh had received their inheritance; which Moses had given to them, on the east side of the Jordan; The land from Aroer, which is upon the bank of the Arnon, and every city on the interior of the river, and the whole plain of Medeba unto Dibon; And all the cities of Sihon king of the Amorites, who reigned in Heshbon, unto the border of the Ammonites; And Gilead, and the border of the Geshurites and Maachathites, and all mount Hermon, and all Bashan unto Salcha; The whole kingdom of Og (in Bashan) who reigned in Ashtaroth and in Edrei, who was the only one left of the Rephaites: for those kings Moses had smitten and dispossessed. But the Israelites expelled not the Geshurites, nor the Maachathites; but the Maachathites dwell among the Israelites unto this day.

*This is the division which Moses made to the Israelites in the plains of Moab, on the other side the Jordan, opposite to Jericho." And Moses gave unto the tribe of Reuben an inheritance, according to their families. And their territory was from Aroer, which is on the bank of the river Arnon, and every city on the interior of the river and the whole plain unto Medeba: Heshbon, and its cities which are on the plain; Dibon, Bamoth-baal, and Beth-baal-meon, And Jahaza, and Kedemoth, and Mephaath, And Kirjathaim, and Sibmah, and Zareth-shahar, on mount Enak, And Beth-peor, and Ashdath-pisgah, and Beth-jeshimoth; Even all the cities of the plain, and the whole kingdom of Sihon king of the Amorites, who reigned in Heshbon, whom Moses smote, with the princes of Midian, Evi, and Rekem, and Zur, and Hur, and Reba, who were dependent friends of Sihon, dwelling in the country. Balaam also, the son of Beor, the soothsayer, the Israelites slew with the sword among those who were slain by them. And the west boundary of the Reubenites was the Jordan. *This was the inheritance of the Reubenites

23. Dor, in the country of Dor] A maritime city of Manasseh, Judg. i. 27. 1 Chron. vii. 1. From this is derived En-dor, or Oin-dor, the fountain of Dor, Josh. xvii. 11; 1 Sam. xxviii. 7, written Oindor, Psa. lxxxiii. 10; also Namath Dor, or the hot baths of Dor, in the tribe of Naphtali, Josh. xix. 35; written Hamath Dor, chap. xxxi. 32, and Hamon, the hot baths of Aun, 1 Chron. vi. 76.—Gaim in Galilee. Compare Gen. xiv. 1. Isa. ix. 1. (v) Sept. the rest Gilgal.

CHAP. XIII. 1. Unpossessed] Literally, 'to be possessed.' I have given the sense.

3. Sihor] Some understand a branch of the Nile to be meant, while others the Rhinocortura.

4. Aramite] This is one of the places which must be corrected by criticism, without the aid of either MSS. or versions. It is clear from chap. ix. 3. that the Amorites dwelt in the hilly country about Hebron, but if this be correct they dwelt beyond Sidon in Syria. Admit that the letter h has been transposed, and all is plain and connected.

5. See Numb. xxxiv. 8.

8. I have followed in this verse the Sept. Syr. and Vulg. as containing the genuine text. The common one is inconsistent with itself, and with the whole history. See note Hebrew Bible.

9. Every other city] Compare Deut. ii. 36, and not there. Dathe renders, in the above place and here, as verse 16, 'And from the city which is on the island of the river, &c.' I can find nothing in Reland, or Danville, to justify this version, and I still think the sense given is that of the text.

14. This whole verse is found repeated verse 33, and is there wanting in the Sept. Modern critics reject this as an early mistake of some scribe; and contend that the 33 is its proper place. It has no reference here to what is said.

15. What is contained in the Sept. is so apposite, and introduces the paragraph following so properly, that I cannot but deem it a part of the text.

16. Territory] The word נָחַל not only denotes a boundary, but the country or territory included, as is evident through the whole chapter.

19. On mount Enak] I have followed the Sept. in considering this a proper name. The common reading is singular, the mount in the valley.

23. (v) And the border, Vulg.

according to their families, and these their cities and their villages.

- 21 And Moses gave to the tribe of Gad, an 25 inheritance, according to their families. And their territory was Jazer, and the cities of a great part of Gilead, and half of the land of 26 the Ammonites, unto Aroer, which is before Rabbah; And from Heshbon unto Ramathmizpeh, and Betonim; and from Mahanaim 27 unto the border of Debir; And in the valley, Beth-aram, and Beth-nimrah, and Succoth, and Zaphon, the rest of the kingdom of Sihon, king of Heshbon, along the Jordan, unto the extremity of the sea of Chinneroth on the other, the east side of 28 the Jordan. This is the inheritance of the Gadites according to their families; these 29 were their cities, and their villages. And Moses gave to the half tribe of Manasseh,
'an inheritance, according to their families.
30 And their territory, beginning from Maha-naim, was all Bashan, all the kingdom of Og king of Bashan, and all the sixty towns 31 of Havoth-jair, which are in Bashan: And half of Gilead, and Ashtaroth, and Edrei, cities of the kingdom of Og in Bashan, these were given to the posterity of Machir the son of Manasseh, the one half of the posterity of Machir, according to their fam-32 ilies. These are the territories which Moses distributed for an inheritance in the plains of Moab, on the other, the east side 33 of the Jordan, opposite Jericho. But unto the tribe of Levi, Moses gave no inheritance:
Jehovah the God of Israel was their inheritance, as he had said unto them.

CHAPTER XIV.

B. C. 1444. The nine tribes and half are to inhabit Canaan; Caleb receives a portion among them, by special privilege.

- 1 AND these are the territories which the Israelites inherited in the land of Canaan, which Eleazar the priest, and Joshua the son of Nun, and the chiefs of the tribes of Israel, distributed for an inheritance to them.
2 To nine tribes and a half tribe was their inheritance distributed by lot as Jehovah had 3 commanded "Joshua." For Moses had given an inheritance to two tribes and a half tribe, on the other side of the Jordan:
but to the Levites he gave no inheritance

29. (o) The half tribe of the Manassites. Sept. Arab.
CHAP. XIV. 2. Joshua] I prefer this reading of the Sept. because, though Moses commanded the land to be divided, he did not divide it; and because, there is an evident distinction between what Joshua divided by lot, and what Moses gave to the two tribes and half, mentioned in the following verse. Compare Numb. xxxiv. 17, &c. and Josh.
i. 6.—By lot] This was the best method of doing it, as it was acknowledging God's right to the land, and leaving it to his disposal; it was the way to prevent murmuring, and it would make it evident that the prophecies of Jacob and Moses concerning the situation of the several tribes were from God.

among them. For the posterity of Joseph 4 were two tribes, those of Manasseh and Ephraim: therefore they gave no part to the Levites in the land, save cities to dwell in, with their suburbs for their cattle and for their substance. As Jehovah had com- 5 manded Moses, so the Israelites did; and they divided the land.

Now the Judahites came to Joshua in 6
Gilgal; and Caleb, the son of Jephunneh, the Kenezite, said to him, Thou knowest the thing which Jehovah said to Moses, the man of God, concerning me and thee, in Kadesh-barnea. Forty years old was I, when 7 Moses, the servant of Jehovah, sent me from Kadesh-barnea to spy out the land; and I brought him a report according to my own conviction. Nevertheless, my bre- 8 thren, who went up with me, discouraged the hearts of the people; but I wholly followed Jehovah my God. And Moses swore 9 on that day, saying, Surely the land on which thy feet have trodden shall be thine inheritance, and thy children's for ever, because thou hast wholly followed Jehovah thy God. And now, behold Jehovah hath 10 kept me alive, as he said, these forty-five years since Jehovah spoke this word to Moses, during forty of which Israel hath wandered in the wilderness; and now, lo!
I am this day eighty-five years old. Yet I 11 am this day, as strong as I was on the day that Moses sent me to spy out the land.
As my strength then was, even so is my strength new, either for war, or any other business. Now therefore, give to me this 12 mountain, which Jehovah promised on that day, for on that day thou heardest. Although the Anakites are there, and although the cities are great and fortified, Jehovah being with me, as he hath said, I shall be able to drive them out. And Joshua blessed 13 him, and gave to Caleb, the son of Jephun-neh, Hebron for an inheritance. Hebron 14 thus became the inheritance of Caleb the son of Jephunneh, the Kenezite, unto this day, because that he wholly followed Jehovah, the God of Israel. Now the name of 15
Hebron was before Kirjath-arba [THE CITY OF ARBA]; which Arba was a great man among the Anakites.

6. They came to Joshua] That is, before the partition of the land, and the final reduction of Hebron.

7. According to my own conviction] Literally, 'my own heart;' but this term not only means the mind, but the affections and sentiments of the mind. In the report Caleb brought to Moses, he followed his own unbiassed judgment.

11. Yet I am this day as strong] This passage contains a striking proof of the overruling providence of God. While the whole generation of the rebellious Israelites had died in the wilderness, Caleb and Joshua survived according to the divine promise; and though the former had reached his 85th year, was vigorous as a young man.

CHAPTER XV.

B. C. 1443. The boundary of Judah's lot described; Othniel's valour rewarded, and the cities allotted to Judah.

- 1 Now when the land had rest from war, this was the lot of the tribe of Judah, according to their families. On the south, to the border of Edom, their boundary was the wilderness of Zin, from the extremity of
- 2 Teman. Thus their southern boundary was from the shore of the salt sea, from its most southern bay. And it went along the south side of Maaleh-acrabbim, and passed on to Zin, and ascended to the south side of Kadesh-barnea, and passed along to Hezron, and went on to Adar, and winded about
- 4 Karkaa. Thence it passed on to Azmon, and went along to the river of Egypt; and terminated at the "great" sea. This was
- 5 "their" southern boundary. And the east boundary was the salt sea to the mouth of the Jordan. And their northern boundary was from the bay of the salt sea to the mouth of the Jordan: And the boundary went to Beth-hoglah, and passed along north of Beth-arabah; thence the boundary went up to Eben-Bohan-ben-Reuben [THE STONE OF BOHAN, THE REUBENITE]. And the boundary went on, from the valley of Achar, to Debir, and then turned northward towards "Geliloth," which is opposite to the height of Adummim, on the south side of the torrent. The boundary then passed on to the waters of En-shemesh, and extended
- 8 along to En-rogel. Thence the boundary went on through the valley of Hinnom, to the south side of Jebus, (which is Jerusalem;) the boundary then went on to the top of the mountain which lieth at the west end of the valley of Ben-Hinnom, and at the north end of the valley of the Rephaites
- 9 [THE GIANT'S VALLEY]. And from the top of that hill, the boundary was drawn to the water-spring of Nephtoa, and went on to mount Ephron; thence the boundary was drawn to Baalah, (which is Kirjath-jearim.)
- 10 The boundary then winded westward from Baalah unto mount Seir; and passed along the north side of mount Jearim, (which is Chesalon,) and went down to Beth-shemesh, and passed on to Timnah. And the 11 boundary went on to the north side of Ekron and was drawn to Shicron, and passed along to mount Baalah, and went on unto Jabneel; and the termination of the boundary was at the sea. And the western 12 boundary was the great sea, and its coast. This was the surrounding boundary of the Judahites, according to their families. But 13 to Caleb, the son of Jephunneh, was given a part among the posterity of Judah, according to the command of Joshua: Kirjath-arba [THE CITY OF ARBA], the father of Anak, which city is Hebron. And Caleb 14 drove thence three Anakites, Sheshai, and Ahiman, and Talmi, the posterity of Anak. And he went up thence against the inha- 15 bitants of Debir; and the name of Debir was formerly Kirjath-sepher. And Caleb 16 said, He that smiteth Kirjath-sepher, and taketh it, to him will I give Achsah my daughter for a wife. And Othniel, the son 17 of Kenaz, the "younger" brother of Caleb, took it: and he gave him Achsah his daughter for a wife. And it came to pass, 18 when she was going home, that she persuaded him to let her ask a field from her father; and she alighted from her ass. And Caleb said to her, What "wouldst thou, "my daughter?" She answered, Give to me a 19 blessing; for thou hast given to me a south land; give me also water springs. And "Caleb" gave to her both upper-springs and nether springs.

This is the inheritance of the tribe of 20 Judah, according to their families. And 21 the uttermost cities of the tribe of Judah, on the south, towards the border of Edom, were Kabzeel, and Eder, and Jagur, And 22 Kinah, and Dimonah, and Adadah, Kadesh, 23 and Hazor, and Uthnan, Ziph, and Telem, 24 and Bealoth, And New-hazor, and Keriioth- 25 "hezron," (which is also called Hazor,) Amam, and Shema, and Moladah, And 26 Hazar-gaddah, and Heshmon, and Beth- 27 palet, And Hazar-shual, and Beer-sheba, 28 and Bizjothjah, Baalah, and Iim, and 29 Azem, And Eltolad, and Chesil, and Hor- 30

CHAP. XV. 1. Teman] I have followed the Arabic translators, Houbigant and Geddes, who take Teman for a proper name. Compare Gen. xxvi. 15, 34. 4. (v) Sept.

6. Eben-Bohan-ben-Reuben] I have retained the original name at length. We know nothing more of this Bohan, or his stone; which was probably a monument set up by him to commemorate some achievement.

7. Geliloth] Masius, Le Clerc, and others adopt this reading of the Syr. as genuine; for Gilgal, in the plain of Jericho, cannot be meant.—Torrent] Most probably the torrent Kedron is intended.

8. Valley of Ben-Hinnom] This valley lay to the east of Jerusalem, and was exceedingly fertile. Here the worshippers of Moloch sacrificed their children. 2 Kings xxiii. 10, and Jer. vii. 32. Josiah polluted the place; and afterwards all the filth of Jerusalem was carried thither, where fires were kept burning to consume it. Hence it became the emblem of the place of future punishment. Matt. xviii. 9; xxiii. 33.

9. (v) Cities of; Sept. Syr.

17. (v) Versions, Judg. i. 13.

18. When she was going] Not surely to him! for how could she speak to him before she had come to him? Othniel was conducting his bride to his own house, when she thus addressed him. (v) Syr.

19. Both upper and nether springs] That is, high and low land, both well watered. (v) Sept. Syr. Vulg.

25. New-Hazor] I have followed in this rendering the Vulg. and consider חזרה not a part of the name, but a mere Chaldaism for חורש; for many such have been admitted into the sacred text.—Keriioth-hezron] All the old versions, except the Arabic make this but one city.

31 mah, And Ziklag, and Madmannah, and 32 Sansannah, And Lebaath, and Shilhim, and Ain, and Rimmon: all the cities "thirty-33 six," with their villages. And in the low land, Eshtaol, and Zoreah, and Ashnah, 34 And Zanoah, and En-gannim, Tappuah,
 35 and Enam, Jarmuth, and Adullam, Socoh, 36 and Azekah, And Sharaim, and Adithaim, and Gederah, and Gederothaim; "fifteen" 37 cities, with their villages. Then Zenan, 38 and Hadashah, and Mig-dal-gad, And 39 Dilean, and Mizpeh, and Joktheel, Lachish, 40 and Bozkath, and Eglon, And Cabbon,
 41 and Lahmam, and Kithlish, And Gederoth, Beth-dagon, and Naamah, and Makkedah;
 42 sixteen cities, with their villages. Then 43 Libnah, and Ether, and Ashan, And Jiph-44 tah, and Ashnah, and Nezib, And Keilah, and Achzib, and Mareshah; nine cities, 45 with their villages. Also Ekron, with its 46 towns and its villages. And from Ekron unto the sea, all the towns near to Ashdod, 47 with their villages: Ashdod with its towns and its villages, Gaza with its towns and its villages, to the river of Egypt; and the great sea was their boundary.
 48 And among the mountains Shamir, and 49 Jattir, and Socoh, And Dannah, and Kirjath-50 ennah, (which is Debir,) And Anab, and 51 Eshtemoh, and Anim, And Gosheu, and Holon, and Giloh; eleven cities, with their 52 villages. Then Arab, and Dumah, and 53 Eshean, And Janum, and Beth-tappuah, 54 Aphekah, And Humtah, and Kirjath-arba,
 (which is Hebron,) and Zior; nine cities
 55 with their villages. Then Maon, Carmel, 56 and Ziph, and Juttaah, And Jezreel, and 57 Jokdeam, and Zanoah, Cain, Gibeah, and Timnah; ten cities, with their villages.
 58 Then Halhul, Beth-zur, and Gedor, And 59 Maarath and Beth-anoth, and Eltekon; six cities, with their villages. "Then Theco, and Ephratha, (which is Bethlehem,) and Phagor, and Elan, and Kulon, and Tatam, and Thobes, and Karam, and Galun, and Thether, and Manoch: eleven towns, and 60 their villages." Then Kirjath-baal, (which is Kirjath-jearim,) and Rahbah; two cities, 61 with their villages. In the wilderness, Beth-62 arabah, Middin, and Secacah, And Nibshan, and Ishamelach, and En-gedi; six cities, with their villages.

As for the Jebusites, the inhabitants of 63
 Jerusalem, the Judahites could not drive them out: but the Jebusites dwell with the Judahites, at Jerusalem, unto this day.

CHAPTERS XVI. XVII.

B. C. 1444. *The general boundary of the sons of Joseph:
 and then that of Ephraim; and afterwards that of Manasseh.*

NEXT came up the lot of the posterity of 1
 Joseph, whose south boundary was from the Jordan by Jericho, unto the waters of Jericho, on the east of the wilderness; and went up from the waters of Jericho, over mount Bethel. And from mount Bethel it 2 went along to LUZ [THE CITY OF BETHEL]; and passed along unto the border of Archi-Ataroth; And went down westward near 3 the border of Japhleti to the border of nether Beth-horon, and to Gezer: and its termination was at the great sea. North 4 of this boundary, the posterity of Joseph, Manasseh, and Ephraim had their inheritance.

Now this was the boundary of the Ephraim- 5 ites, according to their families. Also the boundary of their inheritance went on the east side of Ataroth-adar, to upper Bethhoron; And the boundary went along on 6 the north-west side of Michmethah; and then winded eastward to Taanath-shiloh, and passed eastward on to Janoah; And it 7 went down from Janoah to Ataroth, and to Naarath, and came to Jericho, and terminated at the Jordan. The boundary 8 went westward from Tappuah to the torrent Kanah; and its termination was at the great sea. This is the inheritance of the Ephraimites, according to their families:
 Besides all the separate cities which the 9 Ephraimites had among the inheritance of the Manassites, all the cities with their villages. But they drove not out the 10 Canaanites who dwelt in Gezer: so the Canaanites dwell among the Ephraimites unto this day, and serve under tribute.

HERE also was a lot for the tribe of Ma- 1
 nasseh; for he was the first-born of Joseph;

32. Thirty-six] The Syr. alone, in several places, has preserved the true number. The common reading, twenty-nine, is at variance with the catalogue.

36. (v) Syr. the rest fourteen.

59. As these cities are in both copies of the Sept., with Kennicott and others, I deem them genuine.

CHAP. XVI. 1. It seems plain that the historian meant to describe the south boundary of the tribes of Ephraim and Manasseh, in general, in the first four verses; and then afterwards the particular boundaries of each tribe.—Waters of Jericho] Now called 'the well of Elisha.' 2 Kings ii. 18–25.—Wilderness of Jericho] now called Quarantania, where it was said our Lord was tempted by the devil. See Matt. iv. 1, and Note there.

5. Having before drawn the general boundary that separated the children of Joseph from the tribe of Judah, from the Jordan to the Mediterranean sea, the historian now describes the whole boundary of the particular inheritance of the Ephraimites; beginning, not at the sea, or even at Gezer, because that tract remained in the possession of the Canaanites; but at Ataroth-adar, which seems to have been the most western town belonging to the Ephraimites, on the south side of their inheritance.

8. He omits mentioning the coast of the Jordan, or east boundary, from Beth-hoglah to Tappuah; but from the latter place draws the north boundary to the torrent Kana and the great sea.

CHAP. XVII. 5 Ten portions] The posterity of Abiesec,

- that is, for Machir the first-born of Manasseh, the father of Gilead, for Gilrad was a man of war, and had obtained Gilead and
- 2 Bashan. But a lot was yet to be given to the rest of the posterity of Manasseh according to their families; to the posterity of Abiezer, and to the posterity of Helek, and to the posterity of Asriel, and to the posterity of Shechem, and to the posterity of Hephher, and to the posterity of Shemida: these were the male posterity of Manasseh the son of Joseph according to their families.
- 3 But Zelophehad, the son of Hephher, the son of Gilead, the son of Machir, the son of Manasseh, had no sons, but daughters: and these are the names of his daughters, Mahlah, and Nanah, Hoglah, Milcah, and
- 4 Tirza. And they drew near to Eleazar the priest, and to Joshua the son of Nun, and to the chiefs ^aof Israel," saying, Jehovah commanded Moses to give to us an inheritance among our brethren. So according to the commandment of Jehovah, an inheritance was given to them among the brethren
- 5 of their father. ^aAnd there fell ten portions to Manasseh, beside the land of Gilead and Bashan, which were on the other side the
- 6 Jordan;" Because the daughters descended from Manasseh had an inheritance among his great-grand sons: but the rest of Manasseh's great-grand sons had the land of Gilead.
- 7 Now the boundary of Manasseh was from Asher to Michmethah, which is opposite to Shechem; and the boundary went along on the south of the inhabitants of En-tappuah.
- 8 (For to Manasseh belonged the land of Tappuah; but the city Tappuah on the boundary of Manasseh belonged to the
- 9 Ephraimites.) Thence the boundary descended to the torrent Kanah; south of the torrent, the cities of Ephraim are among the cities of Manasseh; but the boundary was on the north side of the torrent, and its
- 10 termination was at the great sea. The south part belonged to Ephraim, and north to Manasseh, and the great sea was their boundary. And they were contiguous to Asher on the north and to Issachar on the south. And Manasseh had in Issachar, 11 and in Asher, Bethshan and its towns, and Ibleam and its towns, and the inhabitants of Endor and its towns, and the inhabitants of Taanach and its towns, and the inhabitants of Megiddo and its towns, ^aa third part of Nopheth." Yet the Manassites could 12 not drive out the inhabitants of those cities; but the Canaanites would dwell in that land. Nevertheless, when the Israelites 13 became stronger, they put the Canaanites under tribute, but did not utterly drive them out.

And the posterity of Joseph spoke to 14 Joshua, saying, Why hast thou given us but one lot and one portion to inherit, seeing we are so great a people, Jehovah having hitherto so much blessed us? And Joshua 15 answered them, Since ye are so great a people, and since mount Ephraim is too narrow for you; go up to the waste land country, and clear away for yourselves there in the land of the Perizzites and Rephaites. And the posterity of Joseph said, The hill 16 country is not enough for us; and all the Canaanites who dwell in the low land have chariots of iron; those who dwell in Bethshan and its towns, and those who dwell in the valley of Jezreel. Again Joshua spoke 17 to the house of Joseph, to Ephraim and Manasseh, saying, Ye are a great people, and have great power: ye shall not have one lot only: But the mountain shall be 18 yours; and though it be wood, ye may clear it, and its boundaries shall be yours: for ye may drive out the Canaanites, though they have iron chariots, and be strong.

CHAPTER XVIII.

B. C. 1444. The remainder of the land described and divided into seven parts: and the particular lots of Benjamin, Simeon, Issachar, Asher, Naphtali, and Dan.

AND the whole congregation of Israel 1 assembled at Shiloh, and set up the congregation-tabernacle there. And the land was now subdued before them.

Then Joshua built an altar to Jehovah, 30 the God of Israel, on mount Ebal, As Moses 31 the servant of Jehovah had commanded the Israelites, as it is written in the book of the Helek, Shechem, and Shemidah, had five portions; Hephher's five daughters other five: yet equal, it may be supposed, to only a sixth part of the whole. Houbigant adopts and defends the Sept. See Note, Hebrew Bible. 4. (a) Syr.

11. A third part of Nopheth] I have followed the Sept. and Vulg. in considering נֶפֶת as a proper name. Others render, 'three tracts or districts.' Bochart considers it a third part of the territory of Dor, which was towards the sea.

16. Chariots of iron] Some interpreters suppose these chariots were armed with iron-scythes; but it is more probable, that the frame was really made of iron.

18. But the mountain] Calmet supposes the mountain to be Gilboa, which stood north of Manasseh, and extended from the country above Kishon as far as to Beth-shan.

CHAP. XVIII. 1. At Shiloh] This city was in the tribe of Ephraim, about ten or twelve miles from Shechem, according to Eusebius and Jerom. Usher places it about fifteen miles from Jerusalem in the very heart of the country. Here the tabernacle was erected, in which was placed the ark of the covenant, and it remained until the time of Samuel, about 328 years, according to Usher. The city might be called Shiloh, (tranquil, peaceful), because the Israelites were now tranquil.

CHAP. viii. 30. From Shiloh to Ebal was but a short distance; and the body of the Israelites might easily assemble there, to perform what is here related. See Note, Ch. viii. 29, whence the verses 30 to 35 are transposed, and compare Deut. xxvii. 5, &c. 31. (v) Sept. Vulg. Arab.

law of Moses, An altar of whole stones, on which no man had laid an iron tool : and on it "he" offered burnt-offerings to Jehovah, and sacrificed feast-offerings.

32 And there, upon stones, he inscribed a copy of the law of Moses, which he had

33 written for the Israelites. And all Israel, and their elders, and officers, and their judges, stood on this side the ark and on that side before the priests, the Levites, who bore the ark of the covenant of Jehovah, as well the stranger as the native ; half of them over against mount Gerizim, and half of them over against mount Ebal ; as Moses the servant of Jehovah had commanded ; that they should in the first place bless the

34 people of Israel. And afterward he read all the words of the law, the blessings and curses, according to all that is written in the 35 book of the law. There was not a word of all that Moses commanded, which Joshua read not before the whole congregation of Israel ; the women, and the little ones, and the strangers who were conversant among them.

2 There still remained among the Israelites seven tribes, which had not yet received

3 their inheritance. And Joshua said to the Israelites, How long will ye neglect to go to possess the land, which Jehovah, the God

4 of your fathers, hath given you ? Take from among yourselves three men for each tribe ; whom I will send, and they shall set out, and go through the land, and describe it for your inheritance ; and then return to 5 me. And they shall divide it into seven parts. Judah shall abide in their own southern territory ; and the house of Joseph shall abide in their more northern territory.

6 But the rest of the land ye shall describe into seven parts, and bring the description hither to me, that I may cast lots for you

7 here, before Jehovah our God. For the Levites have no part among you ; for the priesthood of Jehovah is their inheritance ; and Gad, and Reuben, and half the tribe of Manasseh, have received their inheritance

8 to them. And the men arose, and went away : and Joshua had charged those who went to describe the land, saying, Go and walk through the land, and describe it, and return to me, that I may here cast lots for you, before Jehovah in Shiloh. And the men went and passed through the 9 land and described it in a book, by cities, into seven parts, and they returned to Joshua, unto the camp at Shiloh. And 10 Joshua cast lots for them in Shiloh, before Jehovah : and there Joshua divided the land unto the Israelites, according to their portions.

And the first lot came up for the tribe of 11 Benjamin, according to their families : and the boundary of their lot fell between the Judahites and the posterity of Joseph. And their north boundary was from the 12 Jordan, and went on the north side of Jericho, and went up westward through the mountains ; and stretched forward to the wilderness of Bethaven. And the boundary 13 thence passed on towards Luz, to the south side of Luz, (which is Bethel,) and the boundary descended to Ataroth-ada, by the hill that lieth on the south side of nether Beth-horon. And the boundary was 14 drawn, and winded south-west from the hill that lieth south of nether Beth-horon ; and its termination was at Kirjath-Baal, (which is Kirjath-jearim,) a city of the children of Judah : this was the west corner. And the 15 south side from the end of Kirjath-jearim, the boundary went westward, and went on to the water-spring of Nephteah. The 16 boundary thence descended to the end of the mountain that lieth before the valley of Hinnom, and which is to the north of the valley of the Rephaites, and descended by the valley of Hinnom, to the south side of Jebus, and went on to En-rogel. And it 17 was drawn from the north, and went on to En-shemesh ; and then forward to Geliath, which is opposite the height of Adummim. Then it descended to Eben-Bohan-ben-Reuben, And passed along northward, to 18 the side over against Arabah, and went down to Arabah. And the boundary 19 passed along northward by the side of Beth-hoglah : and the termination of the boundary was at the north bay of the salt sea, at the end of the Jordan. This was the southern boundary. And the Jordan was 20 its eastern boundary. This was the inheritance of the Benjamites, with its surrounding boundaries, according to their families. Now the cities of the tribe of 21 Benjamin, according to their families, were

32. A copy of the law of Moses] Some render, the second law of Moses, and suppose the whole book of Deuteronomy is meant. This is more probable than the opinion of others, who imagine the whole law, as contained in Exodus, Leviticus, Numbers, and Deuteronomy, to be intended. The Greek and Arabic translators confine it to the last book. Some limit it to the 27 and 28 chapters of Deuteronomy.

5, 6. The meaning is, they should not at present notice the land occupied by Judah, Ephraim, and Manasseh, but should measure what remained, and divide it into seven parts. We find in the next chapter, that Judah had received a portion too large, and gave up a part to the tribes of Dan and Simeon.

11. The first lot came up] God disposed the lot, that Benjamin the brother of Joseph should join to Ephraim and Manasseh, his sons, and dwell between them and Judah, as Moses had predicted, Deut. xxxiii. 12.

Jericho, and Beth-hoglah, and Emek-
 22 Keziz, And Beth-arabah, and Zemaraim, 23 and Bethel, And Avim, and Parah, and 24 Ophrah, And Chephar-haamonai, and Ophni, and Gaba; twelve cities, with their villages.
 25 Then Gibeon, and Ramah, and Beeroth,
 26 And Mizpeh, and Chephirah, and Mozah,
 27 And Rekem, and Irpeel, and Taralah, 28 And Zelah, Eleph, and Jebus, (which is Jerusalem,) Gibeath, and Kirjath-jearim; fourteen cities, with their villages. This is the inheritance of the Benjamites, according to their families.

- 1 And the second lot came up for Simeon, for the tribe of Simeon, according to their families: and their inheritance was within the inheritance of the posterity of Judah.
- 2 And they had in their inheritance Beer-3 sheba, and Moladah, And Hazar-shual, and 4 Balah, and Azem, And Eltolad, and Bethul,
 5 and Hormah, And Ziklag, and Beth-mar-
 6 caboth, and Hazar-susah, And Beth-lebaoth, and Sharuhin; thirteen cities with their 7 villages: Ain-Remmom, "and Tachon," and Ether, and Ashan; four cities with their 8 villages: And all the villages which are round about those cities as far south as to Baalath-beer-Ramath. This is the inheritance of the tribe of Simeon, according to 9 their families. Out of the portion of the posterity of Judah, the inheritance of the Simeonites was given: for the portion of the Judahites was too much for them: therefore the Simeonites inherited within their inheritance.
- 10 And the third lot came up for the Zebu-lunites, according to their families. And the boundary of their inheritance began at 11 Sarid: And their boundary went along the west side to Maralah; and reached to Dabbasheth, and to the torrent which is opposite 12 Jokneam. And from Sarid it turned eastward, to the sunrising, unto the border of Chisloth-tabor, and then goeth on to Dabe-13 rath, and ascendeth to Japhia. And thence along on the east by Gittah-Hepher, to Ittahkazin; and thence passeth on to Remmon-14 methoar-Neah. And the boundary on the north side windeth to Hannathon, and its termination is in the valley of Jiphthah-el.

 And Kattath, and Nahallal, and Shimron, 15 and Idalah, and Bethlehem: twelve cities, with their villages. This is the inherit- 16 ance of the Zebulunites, according to their families: these their cities, with their villages.

And the fourth lot came up for Issachar, 17 for the posterity of Issachar, according to their families. And their boundary began 18 at Jezreel, and included Chesulloth, and Shunem, And Haphraim, and Shihon, and 19
 Anaharath, And Rabbith, and Kishion, 20 and Abez, And Remeth; and En-gannim, 21 and En-haddah, and Beth-pazzez. And 22 the boundary reacheth to Tabor, and Shahazimah, and Beth-shemesh; and the termination of their boundary is at the Jordan; sixteen cities, with their villages. This is 23
 the inheritance of the tribe of Issachar, according to their families; these the cities with their villages.

And the fifth lot came up for the tribe of 24
 Asher, according to their families. And 25 their boundary was Helkath, and Hali, and Beten, and Achsaph, And Alammelech, 26 and Amad, and Misheal. And westward it reacheth to Carmel, and to Shihor-libnath;
 And eastward it turneth to Beth-dagon, 27 and reacheth to Zebulun, and to the valley of Jiphthahel; on the north side it went on to Beth-emek and Neil; then more north, it passeth to Cabul, And Hebron, and Re- 28 hob, and Hammon, and Kanah, unto great Sidon. And the boundary then turneth to 29
 Ramah, and towards the strong city Tyre;
 and thence the boundary turneth to Hosah;
 and its termination was at the great sea from Hebel to Achzib. Ummah also, and 30 Aphek, and Rehob: twenty and two cities, with their villages. This is the inheritance 31
 of the tribe of Asher, according to their families: these the cities, with their villages.

The sixth lot came up for Naphtali, for 32 the posterity of Naphtali, according to their families. And their boundary was Heleph- 33 malon, (in Zaanannim,) and went on to

CHAP. XIX. 1—9. The portion of Simeon is within that of Judah. This was one of the smaller tribes of Israel; and thus shut up it was dispersed in Israel, as Jacob had foretold, (Gen. xlix. 6, 7;) while their brethren the Levites were scattered throughout all the tribes. (o) Sheba, 1 Chron. iv. 28. 7. (a) Sept.

11—16. The description of the boundaries of Zebulun is hardly intelligible: and our best geographers have been extremely puzzled how to place them. The cities mentioned could not be all occupied by this tribe. Two others are mentioned, xxi. 34, 35. According to Jacob, Gen. xlix. 13, the coasts of Zebulun were havens for ships lying on the great sea, west, and on that of Tiberias, east. Nazareth was in this tribe, where our Lord dwelt; mount Tabor, on which he is supposed to have been transfigured; and the borders of the sea of Galilee, where he wrought many miracles.

18. Boundary] This word, both here and in the description of the following tribes, is not to be understood simply of the bounding line, but also of all the towns within it. It might be rendered territory.

22. Tabor] Not the mountain, but a city nigh to it.

23. The tribe of Issachar was numerous, had the great sea west, the Jordan east, Manasseh on the south, and Zebulun on the north. In this tribe lay the fertile plain of Jezreel; Ahab's royal city of Shunem, in which dwelt the hostess of Elijah; the torrent Kishon, famous for Deborah's victory; Gilboa, where Saul fell, and the valley of Megiddo, where Josiah was slain.

26. Carmel] Mount Carmel was on the south side of the Kishon; the tribe of Asher on the north, opposite to Carmel.—Shihor-libnath, or the Belus; famous for its manufactory of glass.

31. The tribe of Asher had a rich soil; and being contiguous to Ante-Libanus had plenty of iron and brass.
 Deut. xxxiii. 25.

33. Heleph-malon] I take this to be one name. It seems

Adam, Nekeb, and Jabneel, unto Lakum ; 34 and its termination is at the Jordan. And the boundary then turneth westward to Aznoth-tabor ; and thence passeth on to Hukkok, and reacheth on the south side to Zebulun, and on the west side reacheth to Asher, and "to the banks" of the Jordan, on 35 the east side. And the fenced cities are Ziddim, Zer, and Hamath, Rakkath, and Chin-36 neroth, And Adamah, and Ramah, and Hazor, 37 And Kadesh, and Edrei, and Enhazor, 38 And Iron, and Migdol-el, Horem, and Bethanath, and Beth-shemesh ; nineteen cities 39 with their villages. This is the inheritance of the tribe of Naphtali, according to these their cities, with their villages.
 40 And the seventh lot came up for the tribe 41 of Dan, according to their families. And the boundary of their inheritance was Zorah, 42 and Eshtaol, and Ir-shemesh, And Shaa-
 43 labbin, and Ajalon, and Jethlah, And Elon, 44 and Thimnathah, and Ekron, And Eltekeh,
 45 and Gibbethon, and Baalath, And Jehud, 46 and Bene-berak, and Gath-rimmon, And Me-jarkon, and Rakkon, with the country 48 before Japho. This is the inheritance of the tribe of Dan, according to their families ; these their cities, with their villages. "But the Danites could not drive out the Amorites, who harassed them on their mountains, and suffered them not to come down 47 to the low grounds." So the boundary of the Danites, being too narrow for them, the Danites therefore went up to fight against Leshem, and took it, and smote it with the edge of the sword, and possessed it, and dwelt therein, and called Leshem, Dan, after the name of Dan their father.
 49 When they had finished dividing the land for an inheritance according to their boundaries, the Israelites gave an inheritance to 50 Joshua, the son of Nun, among them. According to the word of Jehovah, they gave to him the city which he asked ; Timnath-serah, in mount Ephraim ; and he rebuilt 51 the city, and dwelt therein. These are the inheritances, which Eleazar the priest, and Joshua the son of Nun, and the chief-fathers of the tribes of Israel, divided for an inheritance by lot in Shiloh, before Jehovah, at the door of the congregation-tabernacle. Thus they finished dividing the country.

to have been built on the place where a large turpentine-tree had formerly stood.

34. To the banks of the Jordan] In supplying 'banks,'
 I have followed the emendation of Houbigant. To Judah, must be an error, and as it is wanting in the Sept. I omit it. The tribe of Naphtali could not border on Judah in any direction.

35. Hamath] See Numb. xiii. 21, and xxxiv. 8. This was the most northern city of Canaan. Some think it was built by the youngest son of Canaan, as Sidon was by his eldest. Gen. x. 18.—Chinneroth was on the lake of Chinne-

CHAPTER XX.

B. C. 1444. Cities of refuge appointed.

AGAIN Jehovah spoke to Joshua, saying, 1 Speak to the Israelites, saying, Appoint for 2 yourselves cities of refuge, of which I spoke to you by Moses : That the man-slayer who 3 killeth any person unwarily and unintentionally may flee thither : and they shall be to you for a refuge from the blood-avenger,
 "until he have stood before the congregation for judgment." Now he who fleeth unto 4 one of those cities shall stand at the entrance of the city gate, and shall declare his cause in the hearing of the elders of that city ; who shall take him into the city unto them, and give him a place, that he may dwell among them. And if the blood-avenger pursue 5 him, then they shall not deliver up the manslayer into his hand ; because he smote his neighbour unintentionally, and hated him not beforetime. And he shall dwell in that 6 city, until the death of the high priest, who shall be in those days ; then may the manslayer return, and come to his own city, and unto his own house, unto the city whence he fled.

And they appointed Kadesh in Galilee, 7 in the hill-country of Naphtali ; and Shechem, in the hill-country of Ephraim, and Kirjath-arba, (which is Hebron,) in the hill-country of Judah. And on the other side 8 of the Jordan, eastward from Jericho, they assigned Bezer in the wilderness, in the plain-country of the tribe of Reuben ; and Ramoth in Gilead out of the cities of the tribe of Gad ; and Golan, in Bashan, out of the cities of the tribe of Manasseh. These 9 were the cities appointed for all the Israelites, and for the stranger who sojourned among them, that whosoever killed any person undesignedly, might flee thither and not die by the hand of the blood avenger, until he had stood before the congregation.

CHAPTER XXI.

B. C. 1444. Eight and forty cities are given to the Levites, by lot, out of the other tribes.

THEN came near the chief-fathers of the 1 Levites to Eleazar the priest, and to Joshua the son of Nun, and to the chief-fathers of the tribes of Israel ; And they spoke to 2 them at Shiloh, in the land of Canaan, reth, or Tiberias, and is celebrated for its gardens, and called in the New Testament, 'Geneseret.'

 here related, see Judg. xviii. 1, &c. 48. (a) Sept.

9. The cities appointed] They were all Levitical cities, as we learn from the next chapter, so that they who fled thither might find persons to instruct them, and make their confinement a blessing.

- saying, Jehovah commanded by Moses, that cities to dwell in should be given to us, 3 with their suburbs for our cattle. And the Israelites gave to the Levites out of their inheritance, at the command of Jehovah, 4 these cities and their suburbs. And the first lot came up for the families of the Kohathites: of whom the Levites, the posterity of Aaron the priest, had by lot thirteen cities, out of the tribe of Judah, and out of the tribe of Simeon, and out of the tribe of Benjamin. And the rest of the families of Kohath had, by lot, ten cities out of the tribe of Ephraim, and out of the tribe of Dan, and out of the half tribe of 6 Manasseh. And the posterity of Gershon had, by lot, thirteen cities, out of the tribe of Issachar, and out of the tribe of Asher, and out of the tribe of Naphtali, and out 7 of the tribe of Manasseh in Bashan. The posterity of Merari by their families, had twelve cities, out of the tribe of Reuben, and out of the tribe of Gad, and out of the 8 tribe of Zebulun. And the Israelites gave, by lot, to the Levites, these cities with their suburbs, as Jehovah had commanded by Moses.
- 9 And they gave out of the tribe of Judah, and out of the tribe of Simeon, these cities 10 which are mentioned by name. Which the posterity of Aaron of the families of the Kohathites, who were of the posterity of Levi, had; for theirs was the first lot. 11 And they gave to them Kirjath-Arba [THE CITY OF ABRA], the father of Anak, which is Hebron, in the hill-country of Judah, with 12 its surrounding suburbs: But the fields of the city, and its villages, they had given to Caleb, the son of Jephunneh, for his possession.
- 13 Thus they gave to the posterity of Aaron the priest, Hebron, (a city of refuge for the man-slayer,) with its suburbs; and Libnah, 14 with its suburbs; And Jattir, with its suburbs; and Eshtemoa, with its suburbs; 15 And Holon, with its suburbs; and Debir, 16 with its suburbs; And 'Ashan' with its suburbs; And Juttah with its suburbs; and Beth-shemesh, with its suburbs; nine cities 17 out of these two tribes. And out of the tribe of Benjamin, Gibeon with its suburbs; Geba, with its suburbs; Anathoth, with its 18 suburbs; and Almon, with its suburbs; four cities. All the cities of the posterity of 19 Aaron, the priests, were thirteen cities with their suburbs.

And the families of Kohath, the Levites 20 who remained of the Kohathites, even they had the cities of their lot, out of the tribe of Ephraim. And they gave to them Shechem, (a city of refuge for the man-slayer,) with its suburbs, in mount Ephraim; and 21 Gozer, with its suburbs; And Kibzaim, with its suburbs; and Beth-horon, with its suburbs; four cities. And out of the tribe of 23 Dan, Eltekeh, with its suburbs; Gibbethon, with its suburbs; Aijalon, with its suburbs; 24 Gathrimmon, with its suburbs; four cities. And out of the half tribe of Manasseh, 25 Taanach with its suburbs; and 'Beth-shan,' with its suburbs; two cities. All the cities 26 were ten, with their suburbs, for the families of the Kohathites that remained.

And to the Gershonites, of the families of 27 the Levites, out of the other half tribe of Manasseh, they gave Golan in Bashan, (a city of refuge for the man-slayer,) with its suburbs; and 'Ashtaroath,' with its suburbs; two cities. And out of the tribe of Issachar, 28 Kishon, with its suburbs; Daberath, with its suburbs; Jarmuth, with its suburbs; 29 Engannim, with its suburbs; four cities. And out of the tribe of Asher, Mishal, with 30 its suburbs; Abdon, with its suburbs; Helkath, with its suburbs; and Rehob, with 31 its suburbs; four cities. And out of the 32 tribe of Naphtali, Kadesh, in Galilee, (a city of refuge for the man-slayer,) with its suburbs; and Hammoth-dor, with its suburbs; and 'Kirjathaim,' with its suburbs; three cities. All the cities of the Gershonites, according to their families, were thirteen cities, with their suburbs. 33

And to the families of the Merarites, the 34 rest of the Levites, were given out of the tribe of Zebulun, Jokneam, with its suburbs; and Kartah, with its suburbs; Dimnah, with 35 its suburbs; Nahalal, with its suburbs; four cities. And out of the tribe of Reuben, 36 Bezer, 'in the wilderness, (a city of refuge

CHAP. XXI. 5. I have adopted the emendation of Houbigant, as it is supported by the context, referring families to Kohath, and not to the tribe of Ephraim.

16. Ashan! We have no city of this name mentioned except chap. xix. 7. See note there. In 1 Chron. vi. 59, this city is called עש and which is the same city as is mentioned chap. xix. 17, among the cities which fell to the tribe of Judah. The Sept. here read עש.

18. Almon! In 1 Chron. vi. it is called עלמית. A change of the letters from the similarity, might easily be made. The text here I think correct.

22. Kibzaim! In the parallel place it is called קיבעים. It is difficult, if not impossible, to decide which is the genuine lection. The Syr. adds, at the end of this, and after all the verses containing the number of the cities, 'with the suburbs.' This is certainly implied, as in the directions given respecting the Levitical cities their suburbs were to be included. Compare Numbers xxxv. 5, &c.

25. Beth-shan! The common reading is here erroneous: Gathrimmon was a city in the tribe of Dan, mentioned verse 24. Beth-shean, or shan, was, certainly a Levitical city; and it is happy that some copies of the Sept. have preserved this lection.

27. Ashtaroath! The Masorets read אשטרוח; and so it is read before בעשורה. Some copies of Sept. Bosoro: Vulg. Bosra. But. Syr. and p. p. 1 Chron. vi. 71, have Ashtaroath. Hence it is very probable that the true original reading was Beth-Ashtaroath. 32. (v) Sept.

Moses, the servant of Jehovah, charged you; to love Jehovah, your God, and to walk in all his ways, and to keep his commandments, and to cleave unto him, and to serve him with all your heart and with all your soul. So Joshua blessed them, and sent them away; and they went unto their own tents. And also when Joshua sent them away unto their own tents, he blessed them, And spoke unto them, saying, With great wealth, and with very much cattle, with silver, and with gold, and with brass, and with iron, and with very much raiment, return to your own tents; and divide with your brethren, the spoils of your enemies.

And the Reubenites, and the Gadites, and the half tribe of Manasseh, returned and departed from the Israelites, out of Shiloh, which is in the land of Canaan, to go unto the country of Gilead; to the land of their own possession, of which they had been put in possession, according to the word of Jehovah, by Moses. And when they came unto the banks of the Jordan, which are opposite the land of Canaan, the Reubenites, and the Gadites and the half tribe of Manasseh, built there an altar, by the Jordan, a great altar, that it might be conspicuous.

And the Israelites heard say, Behold! the Reubenites, and the Gadites, and the half tribe of Manasseh, have built an altar over against the land of Canaan, on the banks of the Jordan, at the passage of the Israelites; The whole congregation of the Israelites assembled at Shiloh, to go up to make war against them. And the Israelites sent to the Reubenites, and to the Gadites, and to the half tribe of Manasseh, into the land of Gilead. Phinehas, the son of Eleazar the priest, And with him, ten chiefs, a chief from each chief-house, through all the ten tribes of Israel; and each one was head of the house of their fathers, among the thousands of Israel.

And they came unto the Reubenites, and to the Gadites, and to the half tribe of Manasseh, unto the land of Gilead, and they spoke with them, saying, Thus saith the whole congregation of Jehovah, What trespass is this that ye have committed against the God of Israel, in turning now away from following Jehovah; in building for plains this. For the obvious sense of אל נל is over against, that is, on the eastern side of the Jordan, in their own territory. We must then give the preposition נ a rather unusual sense in this verse, to make it agree with what follows. It often signifies against, or towards. See Noldius. Had the altar been on the west side of Jordan, the other tribes would soon have destroyed it. They built it large, that it might be seen at a distance.

[12. The whole congregation] This can only mean their chiefs and rulers.

- yourself an altar, and so rebelling this day against Jehovah? Is the iniquity of Peor too little for us; from which, although there was a plague in the congregation of Jehovah, we are not cleansed, unto this day, 18 But that ye must turn away now from following Jehovah? For it will be, that as ye, to-day, rebel against Jehovah, to-morrow he will be wroth against the whole congregation of Israel! If the land of your possession be deemed unclean, pass ye over unto the land of Jehovah's possession, where Jehovah's tabernacle dwelleth; and take possession among us: but rebel not against Jehovah, nor rebel against us, by building for yourselves an altar, besides the altar of 20 Jehovah, our God. Did not Achar, the son of Zerah, commit a trespass in what was devoted? and was there not wrath on the whole congregation of Israel? For that man perished not alone in his iniquity. 21 Then the Reubenites, and the Gadites, and the half tribe of Manasseh, answered, and said unto the heads of the thousands 22 of Israel, God of gods is Jehovah; the God of gods is Jehovah; himself knoweth our design; and Israel he shall know it. If it be in rebellion, or if in transgression against Jehovah, 'let him' not this day spare 23 us. If we have built an altar for ourselves to turn from following Jehovah, or if to offer thereon burnt-offering, or wheaten-offering, or to offer feast-offerings thereon, 24 let Jehovah himself require it! But have we not rather done it for fear of this thing, saying, In time to come your posterity might speak unto our posterity, saying, What have ye to do with Jehovah, the God of 25 Israel? For Jehovah hath made the Jordan a boundary between us and you, ye Reubenites and Gadites; ye have no part in Jehovah: thus your posterity may make 26 our posterity cease to fear Jehovah. Therefore we said, Let us now for ourselves build an altar; not for burnt-offering, or for other 27 sacrifice; But that it may be a witness between us and you, and our generations after us, that we may perform the service of Jehovah in his presence, with our burnt-offerings, and with our sacrifices, and with our feast-offerings; that your children may not say to our children in time to come, Ye 28 have no part in Jehovah. For we said it shall be, if they should thus say to us or to our generations, in time to come, that we may say, Behold the pattern of the altar of Jehovah, which our fathers made, not for burnt-offerings, nor for other sacrifices; but as a witness between us and you. Far be 29 it from us, that we should rebel against Jehovah, and turn this day from following Jehovah, by building an altar for burnt-offerings, for wheaten-offerings, or for other sacrifices, besides the altar of Jehovah, our God, which is before his tabernacle.

And when Phinehas the priest, and the 30 chiefs of the congregation and heads of the thousands of Israel who were with him, heard the words that the Reubenites, and the Gadites, and the Manassites spoke, they were satisfied. And Phinehas, the son of 31 Eleazar the priest, said to the Reubenites, and to the Gadites, and to the Manassites, This day we perceive that Jehovah is among us, because ye have not committed this trespass against Jehovah: now ye have delivered Israel from the avenging hand of Jehovah.

And Phinehas, the son of Eleazar the 32 priest, and the chiefs, returned from the Reubenites, and from the Gadites, out of the land of Gilead, unto the land of Canaan, to the Israelites, and brought them the answer. And the answer satisfied the Israel- 33 ites; and the Israelites blessed God, and spoke no more of going to make war against them, to destroy the land in which the Reubenites and Gadites dwelt. And the 34 Reubenites and the Gadites called the altar Ed [A WITNESS]: for (said they) it is a witness between us that Jehovah "He" is God.

CHAPTER XXIII.

B. C. 1427. Joshua's first charge to the people, reminding them of former benefits, and of renewing the promises and threatenings.

AND many days had now passed, after 1 Jehovah had given rest unto Israel from all their surrounding enemies; and Joshua was old and far gone in days. And Joshua 2 called for all Israel, for their elders, and for their chiefs, and for their judges, and for their officers, and said unto them, I am old, far gone in days. And ye have seen 3 all that Jehovah your God hath done unto all these nations for your sakes; for Jehovah your God is he that hath fought for you. Behold, I have divided to you by lot 4 these nations that remain, to be an inherit-

17. Is the iniquity of Peor] Compare Numb. xxv. 3, 4. Building another altar for sacrifice was rebellion against Jehovah; and turning from his appointed method of worship.

19. Be deemed unclean] If ye do not consider it as part of the promised land, or as not holy because the altar of Jehovah is with us, come back and inherit among us.

20. Perished not alone] Geddes renders, 'nor was he the only man who perished for, &c.'

22. Let him not] The textual reading refers to Eleazar,

'spare thou us not.' The reading of the versions which I have adopted, refers to Jehovah, who is before mentioned. The whole of this reply to Eleazar is very affecting; and shows the deep interest the two tribes and half took in maintaining their religious privileges.

ance for your tribes, with all the nations that I have cut off from the Jordan even unto the great western sea. And Jehovah your God, he shall expel them from before you, and drive them out of your sight; and ye shall possess their land as Jehovah your God hath promised to you. Be ye therefore most strenuous to keep and to do all that is written in the book of the law of Moses, that ye turn not aside from it, to the right or to the left; That ye mix not with those nations, those who remain among you; nor make mention of, nor swear by, the name of their gods, nor serve them, nor bow down yourselves to them: But cleave unto Jehovah your God, as ye have hitherto done. Hence Jehovah hath driven out from before you, great and powerful nations; so that no man hath hitherto been able to stand before you. One man of you shall chase a thousand, for Jehovah your God, himself will fight for you, as he hath promised to you. Take good heed, therefore, to yourselves, that ye love Jehovah your God. For if ye indeed turn aside and cleave to the remnant of those nations, those who remain among you, and intermarry with them, and mix with them, and they with you: Know for certain, that Jehovah your God will no more drive out "any" of these nations from before you; but they shall become to you nets and snares: spurs in your sides, and thorns in your eyes; until ye perish off this good land which Jehovah your God hath given to you. And now behold! I am going the way of all the earth; and ye all know in your hearts and in your souls, that not one of all the good things which Jehovah, your God, promised to you, hath failed; all have come to you; not one of them hath failed. Therefore it shall be, that as all the good things which Jehovah, your God, promised, have come to you; so, if ye disobey him, Jehovah will bring upon you every kind of evil, until he have destroyed you from off this good land, which Jehovah, your God, hath given to you. When ye transgress the covenant of Jehovah, your God, which he hath commanded you to keep, and go and serve other gods, and bow down yourselves to them; then will the anger of Jehovah be kindled against you, and ye shall perish quickly from off the good land, which he hath given to you.

CHAPTER XXIV.

B. C. 1427. Joshua's second address to the whole assembly of the Israelites; he reneweth the covenant with them; his age and death.

AGAIN Joshua assembled all the tribes of Israel to 'Shiloh;' and called for the elders of Israel, and for their chiefs, and for their judges, and for their officers; and they presented themselves before God. And Joshua said to the whole people, Thus saith Jehovah, the God of Israel, Your fathers down to Terah, the father of Abraham, and the father of Nahor, dwelt, in time past, on the other side of the river, and served other gods. And I took your father Abraham from the other side of the river, and led him through the whole land of Canaan. And I promised to multiply his seed; and I gave to him Isaac. And I gave to Isaac, Jacob and Esau; and to Esau I gave mount Seir, for a possession; but Jacob and his children went down into Egypt; and they became there a great, numerous, and powerful nation. But the Egyptians afflicted them; And I sent Moses and Aaron, and I smote Egypt with the plagues which I caused among them: and afterward I brought you out. And I brought your fathers out of Egypt; and 'they' came unto the sea; and the Egyptians pursued your fathers with chariots and horsemen unto the Red sea. And when they cried to Jehovah, he put darkness between 'them' and the Egyptians, and brought the sea upon them, and covered them; and your eyes have seen what I did to the Egyptians. When ye had dwelt a long period in the wilderness, I then brought you into the land of the Amorites, who dwelt on the other side of the Jordan: and they fought with you, and I gave them into your hand, and I

4. From the Jordan] I have transposed these words, with Masius and others, to their proper place.

7. That ye mix not] I have followed the Syr. translator in this version, as best expressing the sense of the text; and so in the 12th verse, Joshua prohibits their uniting with them so as to become one nation by intermarriages.

13. Spurs in your sides] Literally, 'the prickles of the acacia thorn.' Others render, 'scourges'; but the context requires the version given; and so Castalia and Tugurine render. (a) Many MSS.

14. I am going the way] That is, to die, as all other men must. Age and infirmities reminded him, that the time of his departure was near.

CHAP. XXIV. 1. Shiloh] No reason can be assigned, why, in case the textual reading be retained, Joshua should leave the tabernacle, and assemble them elsewhere. But from the text itself they assembled, where the tabernacle was, as they 'presented themselves before God'; which uniformly signifies 'before the ark,' which was in the tabernacle.

nacle. The 26th verse confirms this remark, and proves Shiloh, and not Shechem, is the true reading.

2. River; i. e. the Euphrates.—Your fathers] The turn given to this verse is necessary; for Terah only is mentioned, to whom fathers cannot apply. Their remote ancestors, down to Terah, had lived in the east, but Terah crossed the river, and came to Haran, where he died. They, like others, had been idolaters.

5. And I promised to multiply.] The whole history requires this version, as the following words restrict the meaning of יאמר to this sense. See note, Hebrew Bible.

4. The clause retained by the Sept. renders the narrative more full, complete, and connected. 6, 7. (v) Syr. Arab.

5. You out] Many of the people to whom these words are addressed, had been brought out of Egypt; and although they were at that period under twenty years of age, they could not have forgotten what their own eyes had seen.

12. And I sent the hornet] This had been promised, Exod. xxiii. 28; and again Deut. vii. 20 Yet we do not destroyed them from before you that ye might possess their land. Then Balak, the son of Zippor, king of Moab, arose to make war against Israel, and sent and called Balaam, the son of Beor, to curse you: But I would not hearken to Balaam; therefore he still blessed you: thus I delivered you out of his hand. And ye passed over the Jordan, and came unto Jericho; and the men of Jericho fought against you as did the Amorites, and the Perizzites, and the Canaanites, and the Hethites, and the Girgashites, the Hivites, and the Jebusites; and I delivered them into your hand. And I sent the hornet before you, which drove out "twelve" kings of the Amorites from before you; for not with your sword, nor with your bow, were they vanquished. And I have given to you a land, for which ye did not labour, and in cities which ye built not, ye dwell; ye eat of vineyards and oliveyards which ye did not plant. Now therefore fear Jehovah, and serve him in sincerity and in truth: and put away the gods which your fathers served on the other side of the river, and in Egypt; and serve Jehovah. Or if it seem evil to you to serve Jehovah, choose ye this day whom ye will serve; whether the gods which your fathers served on the other side of the river, or the gods of the Amorites, in whose land ye dwell! But as for me, and my household, we will serve Jehovah. The people then answered and said, Far be it from us that we should forsake Jehovah, to serve other gods; For Jehovah is our God; he it is brought us and our fathers out of the land of Egypt, from the house of bondage, and who did those great signs in our sight, and hath preserved us in all the ways in which we walked, and among all the nations through which we passed. And Jehovah hath driven out from before us, all the people, even the Amorites, who dwelt in the land: Jehovah we also will serve; for he is our God. And Joshua said to the people, Ye cannot serve Jehovah; for he is a most holy God; he is a jealous God; he will not bear your transgressions and your sins. If ye forsake Jehovah and serve strange gods, then, after that he hath done good to you, he will turn and afflict you, and consume you. And the people said to Joshua, Nay; but Jehovah we will serve. And Joshua said unto the people, Ye are witnesses against yourselves that ye have chosen Jehovah, and engaged to serve him only. And they said, We are witnesses. Now, therefore, put away, said he, the strange gods that are among you, and incline your heart to Jehovah, the God of Israel. And the people said to Joshua, Jehovah, our God, will we serve, and his voice will we obey. Thus Joshua made a covenant, that day, with the people, and made it a statute and an ordinance in "Shiloh," before the tabernacle of the God of Israel."

And Joshua wrote these words in the book of the law of God; and took a great stone, and set it up there under a turpentine-tree, which was by the sanctuary of Jehovah. And Joshua said to all the people, Behold! this stone shall be a witness against you; for it hath heard all the words of Jehovah, which he hath "this day" spoken to you: it shall therefore be a witness against you; lest ye deny your God. Then Joshua sent away the people, every one unto his inheritance.

And after these things, Joshua, the son of Nun, the servant of Jehovah, died; being an hundred and ten years old. And they buried him in the border of his own inheritance, in Timnath-serah, which is in mount Ephraim, on the north side of the hill of Gaash. And Israel served Jehovah all the days of Joshua, and all the days of the elders that overlived Joshua, and who had known all the works of Jehovah which he had done for Israel.

And the bones of Joseph, which the Israelites brought up out of Egypt, they buried in Shechem, in a parcel of ground which Jacob bought of the sons of Hamor, the father of Shechem, for an hundred pieces of silver: and it became an inheritance of the posterity of Joseph. And Eleazar, the son of Aaron, "the priest," died; and they buried him in Gebaath; which had been given to his son Phinehas, in mount Ephraim.

read of its having happened in the conquest of Canaan. I consider the words figurative. See Note, Exod. xxiii. 28. (v) Sept. the rest two.

19. Ye cannot serve Jehovah] Some modern interpreters have supposed that the true reading here should be, cease ye not. The conjecture is ingenious, but unsupported by any MS. or ancient version: nor is it necessary. The original word does not always imply an impossibility. It here implies only a doubt, as if a general should say to his troops, ardently desirous to attack the enemy, 'ye cannot conquer them'; while he seems to doubt their valour, he, in fact, exhorts them to display it.

23. Put away the strange gods] From this it is evident, that though they worshipped Jehovah publicly, many privately had their idols.

25. Thus Joshua made a covenant] The people had three times most solemnly promised to serve Jehovah; and as God's minister, confirmed their engagement, in the usual manner, by ordering sacrifices to be offered, before the tabernacle of the God of Israel. (v) Sept. Arab. (a) Sept. 26, 27. Joshua took care that this public and solemn covenant should be recorded for the benefit of future generations. Hence a copy of the covenant was written in the book of the law of God; perhaps that which was laid up before the ark; and next he took and set up a great stone by the sanctuary, as a witness of the transaction. (a) Sept.

30. The hill of Gaash] The Sept. and Arab. add after this, "And with him in the same monument, were deposited the sharp (stone) knives, with which, as the Lord had commanded, the children of Israel were circumcised; and there they remain unto this day."

JUDGES.

INTRODUCTION.

This book is called Shophim, שופטים, which may be rendered, 'the book of the avenging deliverers.' The Judges, as they are usually called, were not only the chief magistrates, but the military commanders of the people. Their authority arose from their superior valour and prudence; and usually continued to the end of their lives. Some of them seem to have been the Judges of particular tribes only.

Who was the author is uncertain. It is generally ascribed to Samuel, who was the last of the Judges; and who, at the request of the people, resigned his authority to Saul, chosen the king of Israel. The book has been divided into two parts, the first containing an account of the Judges from Othniel to Samson, ending at the sixteenth chapter; the second containing several incidents which occurred not long after the death of Joshua, and are placed towards the end of the book, in the seventeenth and following chapters. What relates to the two last Judges, Eli and Samuel, is placed in the 1st Book of Samuel. The Chronology of this period is attended with many difficulties. If we allow 34 years, after the death of Joshua to Othniel, the first Judge, to the 21st of Samuel, the government of the Judges continued for about 317 years.

CHAPTER I.

B. C. 1425. The deeds of Adoni-bezek requited: Jerusalem and Hebron taken; the conquest of other places; a messenger comes from Gilgal.

- 1 Now after the death of Joshua, the children of Israel inquired of Jehovah, saying, Who shall go up first, to fight for us, against
- 2 the Canaanites? And Jehovah said, Judah shall go up; behold! I deliver the land
- 3 into his hand. And Judah said to Simeon his brother, Come up with me into my lot, that we may fight against the Canaanites; and I likewise will go with thee into thy lot.
- 4 So Simeon went with him. And Judah went up; and Jehovah delivered the Canaanites and the Perizzites into their hand; and they slew of them in Bezek, ten thousand men. And they found Adoni-bezek,
- 5 in Bezek; and they fought against him, and they slew the Canaanites and the Perizzites. And Adoni-bezek fled; and they pursued him, and caught him, and cut off
- 6 his thumbs and his great toes. And Adoni-bezek said, Seventy kings, having their thumbs and their great toes cut off, gathered their food under my table! As I have done, so God hath requited me. And they brought him to Jerusalem, and there he died.
- 8 The Judahites then fought against Jerusalem, and took and smote it with the edge
- 9 of the sword, and set the city on fire. And afterwards the Judahites went down to fight against the Canaanites, who dwelt in the southern mountains, and in the plains. And 10 Judah went against the Canaanites who dwelt in Hebron; (but the name of Hebron was formerly Kirjath-arba :) 'And they gave 20 Hebron to Caleb, as Moses had said; and he expelled the three Anakites,' Sheshai, and Ahiman, and Talmi, and they were slain. And thence they went against the inhabitants of Debir: (but the name of Debir was formerly Kirjath-sepher.) And Caleb said, 12 He that smiteth Kirjath-sepher, and taketh it, to him will I give Achsah my daughter to wife. And Othniel the son of Kenaz, Caleb's younger brother, took it; and he gave him Achsah his daughter to wife. And 14 it came to pass, when she was going with him, that she persuaded him to let her ask a field from her father: and she alighted from her ass; and Caleb said unto her, What wouldst thou, 'my daughter?' And 15 she said to him, Give to me a blessing: for thou hast given to me a south land; give to me also springs of water. And Caleb gave her upper springs and nether springs.

And the posterity of 'Hobab, the' Ke- 16 nite, Moses' kinsman, went up out of the city of palm-trees, with the Judahites, into the wilderness of Judah, which lieth in the south of Arad; and they went and dwelt among the people. And Judah went with 17 Simeon his brother, and they slew the Canaanites who inhabited Zephath, and utterly destroyed it. And the name of the city

CHAP. I. 1. They inquired of Jehovah] That is, through the medium of the High Priest, who put on the Urim and Thummim, and returned the answer which God gave.

5. Adoni-Bezek] Literally, 'My Lord of Bezek.' He seems to have been a considerable sovereign, and a cruel tyrant; whose capital was Bezek; a town still existing in the days of Jerom, between Shechem and Bethshan.

7. Seventy kings] Doubtless chiefs, or heads of small hordes.

8. The king of Jerusalem is numbered among those smitten by Joshua: chap. xii. 10; but either the city was not then taken, or had been retaken by the Jebusites.

Even after this sacking, it seems to have been rebuilt, and repossessed by its ancient inhabitants. See 2 Sam. v. 6.

10—15. These verses occur Joshua xv. 14—20. What is here related happened after the death of Joshua; so that in this place we have the proper order of time. They are related in the book of Joshua, because there the writer treats of the division of the land; and Caleb, according to the divine command, had Hebron and the contiguous country allotted to him. See notes, Joshua xv. 18, &c.

14. (a) Sept.

16. Hobab—the kinsman] The word חותן signifies, 'a relation by marriage;' and as it is most probable he was

- was called Hormah, [THE DEVOTED PLACE].
 18 But Judah took "not" Gaza with its territories, nor Askelon with its territories, nor Ekron with its territories. And Jehovah was with Judah; and he drove out the inhabitants of the mountain; but went not to drive out the inhabitants of the plain, because they had chariots of iron.
 21 Nor did the Benjamites drive out the Jebusites who inhabited Jerusalem; but the Jebusites dwell with the Benjamites in Jerusalem, unto this day.
 22 And the posterity of Joseph also went up against Bethel; and Jehovah was with 23 them. And the posterity of Joseph sent to desecry Bethel; the name of which city was 24 Luz. And the watch saw a man come out of the city, and they said unto him, Show to us, we pray thee, the entrance into the 25 city, and we will show mercy to thee. And when he had showed to them the entrance into the city, they smote the city with the edge of the sword; but they let go the 26 man and all his family. And the man went into the land of the Hethites, and built a city, and called its name Luz; which is its name unto this day.
 27 Nor did Manasseh drive out the inhabitants of Beth-shan and its towns, nor those of Taanach and its towns, nor the inhabitants of Dor and its towns, nor the inhabitants of Ibleam and its towns, nor the inhabitants of Megiddo and its towns: but in that land, 28 the Canaanites continued to dwell. But when Israel was strong, they put the Canaanites under tribute, and did not utterly drive them out.
 29 Nor did Ephraim drive out the Canaanites who dwell in Gezer; but the Canaanites dwelt in Gezer among them, 30 Nor did Zebulun drive out the inhabitants of Kitron, nor the inhabitants of Nahalol; but the Canaanites dwelt among them, and became tributaries.

the brother-in-law, I have rendered by a general term. See note, Numb. x. 29. (a) Sept.

18. But they took not The whole of the following history proves, that the Philistines were not now subdued, nor their cities possessed by the Israelites. Hence the reading of the Sept. is adopted.

19. But went not As the text is here elliptical, and something must be supplied, we ought to supply in such a manner as to vindicate the divine character. It has been said, that God would not so assist Judah as to expel the inhabitants of the plain, because they had iron chariots. If we adhere to the textual reading, we ought to supply a verb, and then the blame is laid on the unwise policy and unbelieving fear of Judah.

20. This verse is transposed as evidently connected with the 10th.

27. Continued to dwell The verb יָדָל denotes, to resolve, to determine, but seems here and in other places, when connected with לִשְׁכֹּת, to dwell, to signify the consequence of their resolution. For though they were harassed by the Israelites, and reduced under tribute, they still continued to dwell in that land.

36. From Selah and upwards Geddes renders, the

Nor did Asher drive out the inhabitants 31 of Acccho, nor the inhabitants of Sidon, nor of Ahlab, nor of Achzib, nor of Helbah, nor of Aphik, nor of Rehob: But the Asherites 32 dwelt among the Canaanites, the inhabitants of the land: for they did not drive them out.

Nor did Naphtali drive out the inhabit- 33 ants of Beth-shemesh, nor the inhabitants of Beth-anath; but they dwelt among the Canaanites, the inhabitants of the land: nevertheless the inhabitants of Beth-shemesh and of Beth-anath became tributaries unto them. And the Amorites confined the chil- 34 dren of Dan in the mountains; for they would not suffer them to come down to the valleys; But the Amorites continued to 35 dwell in mount Heres, in Aijalon, and in Shaalbim; yet the hand of the children of Joseph prevailed, so that they became tri- butaries. And the boundary of those Amo- 36 rites was among the heights of Akkrabbim, from Selah and upwards.

Now a messenger of Jehovah came up 1 from Gilgal to Bochim, and said to the Israelites, Thus saith Jehovah, I brought you out of Egypt, and have brought you unto the land which I swore to your fathers; and I said, I will never break my covenant with you; But ye shall make no league with 2 the inhabitants of this land, "nor worship their gods;" but "their statues ye shall break down and" their altars ye shall destroy. Yet ye have not obeyed my voice! Why have ye thus done? Therefore I also 3 say to you, I will not drive them out from before you; but they shall be as traps for you, and their gods shall be to you as snares! And when the messenger of Jehovah had 4 spoken these words to all the Israelites, the people raised their voice, and wept. And 5 they called the name of that place Bochim, [THE WEEPING PLACE.] And "there they sacrificed to Jehovah." upper Selah; and observes there were two Sela's, or Petras: one in Arabia Petrea, the other in Palestine. The latter seems here designated.

CHAP. II. 1. A messenger The Hebrew word signifies either a messenger or an angel: the context here seems to require the former; and so it is understood by our best modern critics. He was probably some prophet who resided at Gilgal. It was not usual, when an angel appeared, to mention the place from which he came.—Bochim The Greek translator supposed it to be in the neighbourhood of Bethel: and this is highly probable. Compare 2 Sam. v. 23, and 1 Chron. xiv. 14. The additions to the second verse from the old versions seem necessary. (a) Sept.

3. Traps Our version renders sides. Dathe adopts the notion of Schultens, and from the Arabic renders adversaries. Schindler renders as I have done.

5. And there they offered Hence it has been inferred, that Bochim was the same with Shiloh; as sacrifices, by the law of Moses, were to be offered only before the ark. But the law, in this respect, was not always observed, and the ark itself was occasionally carried from place to place. Compare chap. vi. 19; 1 Sam. xvi. 2, and 2 Sam. xxiv. 25.

6—9. Compare Joshua xxiv. 29—31. (v) MSS.

CHAPTER II.

B. C. 1425. What occurred on the death of Joshua; the wickedness of the new generation; the Canaanites left to punish them.

- 6 Now when Joshua dismissed the people, the Israelites went to possess the land, every 7 man unto his inheritance. And the people served Jehovah all the days of Joshua, and all the days of the elders who overlived Joshua; who had seen all the great works
8 of Jehovah, that he did for Israel. And Joshua the son of Nun, the servant of Jehovah, died, being an hundred and ten years
9 old. And they buried him in the border of his inheritance, in "Timnath-serah," in mount Ephraim, on the north side of the 10 hill Gaash. And all that generation also were gathered unto their fathers; and there arose another generation after them, who knew not Jehovah, nor yet the works which 11 he had done for Israel. And the Israelites did evil in the sight of Jehovah, and served 12 the Baals of the Canaanites. And they forsook Jehovah, the God of their fathers, who brought them out of the land of Egypt, and followed other gods, of the gods of the people who were round about them, and worshipped them, and provoked Jehovah
13 to anger. So they forsook Jehovah, and served Baal and Ashtaroth.
14 And the anger of Jehovah was kindled against Israel, and he delivered them into the hands of pillagers, who pillaged them; and he gave them up into the hands of their enemies round about, so that they could not any longer stand before their enemies.
15 Whatsoever they undertook, the hand of Jehovah was against them for evil, as Jehovah had said, and as he had sworn to them.
16 Nevertheless when they were greatly distressed, Jehovah raised up judges, who delivered them out of the hand of those who 17 pillaged them. And yet to their judges they would not hearken; but went astray after other gods, and worshipped them. They turned quickly from the way in which their fathers walked, who obeyed the commandments of Jehovah; but not so did they. For when Jehovah raised them up 18 judges, and Jehovah was with the judge, and delivered them out of the hand of their enemies all the days of the judge, (for Jehovah repented because of their groanings through those who oppressed them;) Yet 19 when the judge was dead, they returned and corrupted themselves more than their forefathers, in following other gods, and in serving and worshipping them; they departed not from their own evil deeds, nor from their own perverse way. Therefore the anger of 20 Jehovah was kindled against Israel; and he said, Because that this people have transgressed my covenant which I commanded their fathers, and have not hearkened to my voice; I also will not henceforth drive out 21 from before them any of the nations which Joshua left when he died; That by them 22 Israel may be proved whether they will keep the way of Jehovah to walk therein, as their fathers kept it, or not! For this reason Je- 23 hovah had left those nations, without driving them out hastily; nor had he delivered them into the hand of Joshua.

Now these are the nations which Jehovah 1 left, to prove Israel by them; as many of them as had not known all the wars of Canaan; Also that the generations of the 2 Israelites might learn war; at least such as knew nothing thereof: The five lordships 3 of the Philistines, and all the Sidonian Canaanites, and the Hivites that dwelt about mount Lebanon, from mount Baal-hermon unto the entrance of Hamath. And by 4 them were Israel to be proved, to know whether they would hearken to the commandments of Jehovah, which he commanded their fathers by Moses.

CHAPTER III.

B. C. 1406. The children of Israel intermarry with the Canaanites, and worship their idols; Othniel delivered them from Chushan-rishathaim; and Ehud from Eglon king of Moab.

AND the Israelites dwelt among the Ca- 5 naanites, Hethites, and Amorites, and Perizzites, and Hivites, and Jebusites; And they 6

15. Whatsoever they undertook] Literally, 'whithersoever they went.' The sense is preferred to the idiom. See Poole and Bochart.

17. Their fathers who obeyed] There is a reference here to their immediate fathers, who entered into Canaan, and who are said to have obeyed and served the Lord; and in the 19th verse to their forefathers, who perished in the wilderness.

20—23. It has been urged, that the author of this book contradicts Moses, who asserts that God commanded the Canaanites to be destroyed, lest they should be 'a snare' to his people, and promised to give them the power to do it; but here we are told he left these Canaanites, that by them he might prove his people, whether they would hearken to his voice or not. Compare Deut. vii. 16, 24, and xx. 16. Whoever reads the passages referred to, and considers their connexion, will conclude, that they were conditional; their fulfilment depending on the obedience of the people. But instead of obeying they went and served the gods of the land: hence God said, 'I also will not drive out any, &c.; but by them ye shall be proved or tried. If ye keep the way of Jehovah, ye shall prosper; but if not, they shall harass and oppress you.' In this I can see no contradiction; I see only what Moses so often urged as a motive to obedience, the calamities which would follow disobedience.

CHAP. III. 1—4. Here the author assigns another reason, why certain Canaanites were suffered to remain; that a military spirit might be preserved, and those who had not known the wars waged in the conquest of Canaan, might be trained to arms, lest the whole kingdom should be vanquished by some of the surrounding nations.

3. All the Sidonian Canaanites] Literally, 'all the Canaanites, even the Sidonians.'

took their daughters to be their wives ; and gave their own daughters to their sons and 7 served their gods. And the Israelites did evil in the sight of Jehovah, and forgot Jehovah their God, and served Baals and 8 Ashtaroths. Therefore the anger of Jehovah was kindled against Israel, and he gave them into the hand of Chushan-rishathaim, king of Mesopotamia ; and the Israelites 9 served Chushan-rishathaim eight years. And when the Israelites cried to Jehovah, Jehovah raised up a deliverer to Israel, who delivered them, even Othniel, the son of 10 Kenaz, Caleb's younger brother. And the Spirit of Jehovah came upon him, and he judged Israel, and went out to war ; and Jehovah delivered Chushan-rishathaim, king of Mesopotamia, into his hand ; and his hand prevailed against Chushan-rishathaim.
 11 And the land had rest forty years.
 12 And Othniel, the son of Kenaz, died ; And the Israelites again did evil in the sight of Jehovah ; and Jehovah strengthened Eglon, the king of Moab, against Israel, because they had done evil in the sight of 13 Jehovah. And he gathered to him the Ammonites and Amalek, and went and smote Israel, and possessed the city of palm-trees. And the Israelites served Eglon, 14 the king of Moab, eighteen years. But when the Israelites cried to Jehovah, Jehovah raised them up a deliverer, Ehud, the son of Gera, a Benjamite, a left-handed man ; and by him the Israelites sent a present 16 to Eglon, the king of Moab. Now Ehud had made for himself a two-edged dagger, of a cubit's length ; and he had girded it under his garments, upon his right thigh.
 17 And he brought the present to Eglon, king of Moab ; (now Eglon was a very fat man.)
 18 And when he had made an end of offering the present, he sent away the people who 19 had carried the present. But he himself returned from the carved idols which were

by Gilgal. and said, I have a secret message to thee, O king ! The king said, "Withdraw." So all who attended him went out from him. Then Ehud came to him, and he was sitting alone in a summer-chamber, which he had for himself. And Ehud said, I have a message from God to thee. And he arose from his seat. And Ehud put forth his left hand, and took the dagger from his right thigh, and thrust it into his belly : And the haft also went in after the blade ; and the fat closed upon the blade, so that he could not draw the dagger out of his belly ; and it went through behind. Then Ehud, when he had shut the doors of the chamber upon him, and locked them, went out through the porch. When he was gone, Eglon's servants came ; and they looked, and lo ! the doors of the chamber were locked ; and they said, Surely he reposeth in his summer-chamber. And they waited until they were ashamed ; and, behold, he opened not the doors of the chamber ; therefore they took a key, and opened them : and, behold ! their lord was lying dead on the ground. And Ehud, during their consternation, escaped, and passed beyond the carved idols, and got safe to Seirath. And when he had come, he caused the trumpet to be blown in mount Ephraim, and the Israelites went down with him from the mount, and he before them. And he said to them, Follow me ; for Jehovah hath delivered your enemies, the Moabites, into your hand. And they followed him, and took the fords of the Jordan, towards Moab, and suffered not a man to pass over. And they slew of Moab, at that time, about ten thousand men, all stout, and all men of valour ; and not one escaped. So Moab was subdued, that day, under the hand of Israel. And the land had rest eighty years.

And after Ehud. was Shamgar, the son of Anath, who slew of the Philistines, six

7. Baals and Ashtaroths] I have rendered in the plural, because I think there is a reference to the various compound images of Baal and Ashtaroth ; that is, the sun and the moon.

8. The Israelites served] This implies, at least, that they paid an annual tribute to Chushan-rishathaim ; and might be subject to other grievous exactions. So the phrase must be understood afterwards.

10. The Spirit of Jehovah came upon him] By this phrase, which often occurs in this book, seems to be meant a spirit of courage and bravery, by which Othniel and others were impelled to avenge their country's wrongs, and to maintain their liberty and independence.

13. City of palm trees] That is, Jericho. He had crossed the Jordan, and seized this city as a post, whence he might attack other parts of the country.

15. A left-handed man] The 1 Chron. xii. 2. supports the opinion, that they could sling stones, or shoot with the bow, with the left hand. It is often mentioned by the heathen poets as a qualification of their heroes, that they could use both hands alike.

17. Brought the present] This was under pretence of honouring him, and of conciliating his favour.

19. Carved idols] So both the Sept. and Vulg. render ; and there is no authority for the common version, quarries. These idols had been probably erected by Eglon ; and the sight of them might inspire Ehud with new ardour to execute his purpose.—Withdraw] The Arab. seems to have read differently, from the present text ; what follows strongly supports this reading.

20. Sitting in a summer chamber] What Shaw calls a kiosk ; a room raised above the rest, and built beyond the house for the sake of retirement and coolness.

22. And it went through behind] The Hebrew word rendered behind, is found only here. It seems not to have been in the copy of the Greek translator ; and is probably an interpolation, or corruption.

23. From what Shaw says, it appears there was usually a private passage from these rooms into the porch. When Ehud had effected his purpose, he fled by this way.

24. Surely he reposeth] Literally, 'he covereth his feet.' All our old versions understood this to mean, easing nature. Most modern critics more properly consider it as denoting, 'lying down to sleep ;' and so the Syr. and Arab. render the words, 1 Sam. xxiv. 3.

31. And after Ehud] Geddes supposes Shamgar to hundred men, with ox goads; and so he, in that quarter, delivered Israel.

CHAPTER IV.

B. C. 1316. Deborah and Barak deliver Israel from Jabin and Sisera. Jael killeth Sisera.

- 1 AND when Ehud was dead, the Israelites 2 again did evil in the sight of Jehovah; And Jehovah gave them into the hand of Jabin, a king of Canaan, who reigned in Hazor;
the captain of whose host was Sisera, who 3 dwelt in Harosheth-goin. And the Israelites cried to Jehovah; for he had nine hundred iron chariots, and for twenty years had grievously oppressed the Israelites.
4 And Deborah, a prophetess, the wife of 5 Lapidoth, at that time judged Israel. And she dwelt under the palm-tree, now called that of Deborah, between Ramah and Beth-el, in mount Ephraim; and the Israel-6 ites went up to her for judgment. And she sent and called Barak, the son of Abinoam, out of Kadesh-naphtali, and said unto him, Hath not Jehovah, the God of Israel, commanded, saying, Go and draw towards mount Tabor, and take with thee ten thousand men of the Naphtalites, and of the 7 Zebulunites? And I will draw to thee, to the river Kishon, Sisera, the captain of Jabin's army, with his chariots and his multitude; and I will deliver him into thine 8 hand. And Barak said to her, If thou wilt go with me, then I will go: but if thou wilt 9 not go with me, then I will not go. And she said, I will surely go with thee; but the expedition which thou makest will not be for thine honour; for Jehovah shall give Sisera into the hand of a woman. And Deborah arose, and went with Barak to Kadesh.
10 And Barak called Zebulun and Naphtali to Kadesh; and he went up with ten thousand men after him: and Deborah went up 12 with him. And they showed Sisera that Barak, the son of Abinoam, was gone up to 13 mount Tabor. And Sisera assembled all his chariots, nine hundred iron chariots, and all the people that were with him, from Harosheth-goin, unto the river Kishon.

And Deborah said unto Barak, Arise now; 14 for this is the day, in which Jehovah delivereth Sisera into thine hand: is not Jehovah gone out before thee? So Barak went down from mount Tabor, and ten thousand men after him. And Jehovah discomfited 15 Sisera, and all his chariots, and all his host, with the edge of the sword, before Barak;
so that Sisera alighted from his chariot, and fled on foot. But Barak pursued the cha- 16 riots, and the host, unto Harosheth-goin:
and all the host of Sisera fell by the edge of the sword; not one man was left.

But Sisera had fled on foot to the tent of 17 Jael, the wife of Heber, the Kenite: for there was peace between Jabin, the king of Hazor, and the house of Heber, the Kenite.
Now Heber, the Kenite, was of the children 11 of Hobab, the kinsman of Moses; and he had separated from the Kenites, and pitched his tent near the turpentine-tree of Zaanaim, which is by Kadesh. And Jael went out to 18 meet Sisera, and said unto him, Turn in, my lord, turn in to me; fear not. And he had turned in with her into the tent, and she covered him with a mantle. And he said 19 to her, Give me, I pray thee, a little water to drink; for I am thirsty. And she opened a bottle of milk, and let him drink, and again covered him. He then said to her, 20 Stand in the door of the tent; and should any one come and inquire of thee, and say,
Is there any man here? thou shalt say, No.
But Jael, Heber's wife, took a tent-pin, and 21 had an hammer in her hand, and went softly unto him, and smote the nail into his temples, until it was fixed in the ground, (for he was fast asleep,) and he writhed and died. And, behold, as Barak pursued 22 Sisera, Jael came out to meet him, and said to him, Come and I will show thee the man whom thou seekest. And he went with her into the tent, and, behold! Sisera, lay dead, with the tent-pin in his temples. So God 23 subdued on that day, Jabin, the king of have been contemporary with Ehud; and that while the Moabites oppressed the eastern tribes, the Philistines oppressed the western tribes.—Ox goad] In Judea this was in some respects equal to a spear, and was often employed as an offensive weapon. Maundrel measured several, and found them eight feet long, with a paddle of iron at the end, strong and massive. We are not to imagine that Shamgar alone, with one ox-goad, slew all those Philistines: but was accompanied with what Israelites he could assemble, in the quarter next to the Philistines. After all, his victory seems to have been only an occasional one.

CHAP. IV. 2. Gave them] The sense of מָכַר is to transfer property into the possession of the purchaser; and in such a connexion as this, it signifies 'to give up, to deliver to.'—Harosheth-goin] I have rendered as a proper name the latter word; for what propriety is there in the common version? All, 'not of the seed of Abraham, were Gentiles.' Compare Josh. xi. 1, 10.

3. Nine hundred iron] The strength of Jabin's army consisted in these, chap. i. 19. The ancient Britons had similar chariots, which had scythes projecting from the axle on each side. See Comment. Cæsar's.

4. Deborah a prophetess] God raised individuals to teach and instruct his people; and from what follows, it appears, that Deborah not only instructed, but judged them.

6, 7. Deborah here announces the divine will to Barak; and he is assured of victory. This must have been a great encouragement to undertake the enterprise.

19. A bottle of milk] It is supposed to have been oxygal, or sour camel's milk, which is not only very cooling, but also inebriating. If Sisera drank freely of this, Jael might with more safety destroy him in the manner stated.

21. And he writhed and died] I point with several of the ancient versions, and with them consider עָרַר in the sense of rolling, agitating, as a bird its wings,

24 Canaan, before the Israelites. And the hand of the Israelites prospered, and prevailed against Jabin, the king of Canaan, until they had destroyed Jabin, the king of Canaan.

CHAPTER V.

B. C. 1296. The triumphant song of Deborah and Barak.

- 1 THEN sang Deborah, and Barak the son of Abinoam, on that day, saying,
- 2 IN the naked defenceless state of Israel—
For the voluntary exertions of the people Praise ye Jehovah.
- 3 Hearken, ye kings! give ear ye princes!
While I, even I, to Jehovah will sing;
Sing psalms to Jehovah the God of Israel:
- 4 O Jehovah, when thou camest from Seir,
When thou didst march from the fields of Edom, [solved;
The earth trembled, the heavens were dis-
Yea the clouds were dissolved into waters!

hovah; [Israel.

- 6 In the days of Shamgar, Ben-Anath,^o
The high ways were unfrequented,
And in by-paths travellers travelled:
- 7 Deserted were the villages in Israel;
Deserted, until I, Deborah, arose—
Until I arose to be a mother in Israel.
- 8 New gods they had chosen—
Then was war brought to their gates.

Among forty thousand in Israel
Was there a spear or a shield to be seen?
My love to those leaders of Israel 9
Who willingly came among the people:
Bless ye Jehovah.
Riders on streaked asses, who sit in judg- 10

At the noise of archers between the water- 11
ing-places. [hovah,
Then they rehearsed the just acts of Je-
His just acts towards the villages of Israel:
Then went down to the gates Jehovah's people.
Awake, awake, Deborah! 12
Awake, awake, utter a song.
Arise, Barak, son of Abinoam,
And lead thine enemies captive.
Then came down a residue of nobles; 13
To me came down the people of Jehovah.
Among the mighty were the sons of 14
Ephraim,
Those settled near mount Amalek:
Next among thy people was Benjamin.
From Machir came down leaders,
And from Zebulun, sceptre-bearing scribes.
With Deborah were the chiefs of Issachar; 15
Issachar also was Barak's steady guard,
When he marched into the valley.
In the districts of Reuben
Were great deliberations!
Why abodest thou within thy boundaries. 16
To listen to the whistling herdsmen?

CHAP. V. 1. On that day] Not on the very day of battle, but soon after; probably in a solemn assembly of the people. The composition is highly poetical; and has been deservedly admired; though some parts of it are very obscure, and others in the common version, unintelligible.

2. This verse is evidently an introductory exposition of the subject of the song. Parkhurst has observed there is no authority for attributing to the word פָּרַע the sense of 'avenging.' It denotes, to be free, dissolute, exposed. He would render, 'For the deliverance wrought for Israel, &c.' but this, I think, is foreign from the radical sense.

3. This is an elegant apostrophe to the neighbouring kings, and their counsellors.

4, 5. An appeal to past times, when Israel was under the special protection of the Lord; compared with their late disastrous situation.

6. (a) In the days of Jael, 1 MS.

7. Deserted were the villages] All the unfenced towns and single homesteads; which were continually liable to be pillaged by the enemy.

8. The general sentiment is, that in consequence of their idolatry, the enemy not only ravaged the open country, but was brought to the gates of their fortified cities: nor had the Israelites spirit to defend them. See note Heb. Bible.

9. My love] Literally, 'my heart'; but the heart often signifies the affections. Cranmer's and the Bishops' Bible have, 'My heart loveth, &c.'

10. Riders on streaked asses] Harmer supposes that the asses are called צִמְרִית, white, or streaked, from their caparisons, or various coloured cloths on which they rode, as it is the present custom of the Arabs. Bochart understands asses of the zebra kind to be meant, which are party-coloured.—Who sit] I give this sense to the verb as here necessary, and consider this line as describing, by their office, those who rode on fine streaked asses. The sentiment is, 'that the nobles who rode, and the common people who walked on foot, were equally unsafe.'

11. Then they rehearsed] Their distresses led them to confess the justice of God in his conduct towards them. Then they went down to the gates; they assembled to deliberate on what might be done, to obtain deliverance, and to supplicate divine aid.

12. Utter a song] This can only signify, as its connexion verifies, rousing, animating words; for the point was to rouse the people from their supine and spiritless state. The address to Barak is beautiful, and produced the effect intended. At the call of Deborah, he collected forces and sprang to action.—Lead thine enemies] Literally, 'lead thy captivity, captive'; that is, lead those captive, whose captive thou art. So the Syr. which is doubtless the sense.

13. Then came down] Not one of the ancient translations supports our version in rendering יָרַד to have dominion. They all give the sense of the version adopted. Deborah now begins to describe the brave men who formed the army, and obtained so signal a victory.—Among the mighty] I join the last word of the preceding verse to this. See note, Hebrew Bible.—Those settled near] Literally, 'rooted, or planted.' I follow the Sept. in considering Amalek the name of a mountainous tract in the territory of the Ephraimites. Compare chap. xii. 15. It is probable it was thus called because the Amalekites had once occupied it.

14. Sceptre-bearers] The standards of the tribe, or of such as mustered the troops.

15. Were the chiefs] See note, Hebrew Bible.—When he marched] Hebrew, sent forth his feet, &c. Namely, when he went down from mount Tabor, to meet the enemy on very disadvantageous ground; having no cavalry.—Great deliberations] This is a delicate but severe irony; as appears from its repetition after, and indeed from the context. The Reubenites deliberated much, but did nothing.

16, 17. Why abodest thou] The Reubenites, Gadites, Danites, and Asherites, remained inactive, and preferred their occupations to the dangers of war. The tribes of

- 17 'Gad," too, abode beyond the Jordan;
And Dan continued among his ships.

And remained among his havens.

That ancient torrent, torrent Kishon!

To the help of Jehovah, among the mighty!
- 24 Blessed above other women be Jael,
The wife of Heber, the Kenite!
Blessed shall she be, above women of the tent.
- 25 He asked water, she gave to him milk;
In a costly bowl she brought butter-milk.
- 26 With her left hand she seized a pin,
And with her right a ponderous hammer:
And she smote Sisera, she smote his head;
She pierced and struck through his temples.
- 27 At her feet he tumbled,—he fell down;
At her feet he tumbled,—he fell:
Where he tumbled, there he lay dead.

Benjamin, Zebulun, Naphtali, Issachar, only joined the Ephraimites. Not the least mention is made of Judah or of Simeon. (v) Syr. others Gilead.

18. High places of the field] That is, in the most dangerous places. They nobly sustained the attack of the enemy, and repulsed him.

19. A fragment of silver] They expected victory, and a large spoil as the consequence, but were greatly disappointed.

20. From the heavens the stars] A most beautiful image. A tempest, meeting the enemy in the face, discomfited them; and the torrent Kishon was so suddenly swelled by the rain, that many of them were swept away by it in their precipitate flight: hence the poetess calls it the first, or prince of torrents. The whole is exceedingly poetical.

21. On the mighty] I have restored the common version as most agreeable to the present text. In this view Deborah speaks of herself as triumphing over the fallen enemies of her country, as she had been the instrument of exciting their courage.

22. Horse's hoofs broken] In those times horses were not shod; nor are they yet in many parts of the east.—Speed of his rider] So Castel renders דרך. Two nouns in construction as the text; the latter is taken as an adjective in the superlative degree.

23. Meroz] The same, perhaps, with Merom, mentioned in Josh. xi. 5.—Saith the messenger] Probably he who was sent to summon them to the standard of Barak. Some think Barak himself is meant: and so the Chaldee paraphrase understood it.—To the help of Jehovah] That is, of his people; for this cause is also his.—Among the mighty] The versions favour this sense of the preposition; and it is

The mother of Sisera gaz'd through a 29 window;

Through a lattice, she, lamenting, cried,
Why is his chariot so long in coming?
Why linger the wheels of his chariot?
'The wisest' of her ladies answered her; 29
Yea she returned these words to her:
Have they not sped, and are dividing the 30 spoil?

To every chief man, a damsel or two?
To Sisera a spoil of various colours,
A spoil of various coloured embroidery,
A spoil of coloured embroideries for the neck?

So perish all thine enemies, O Jehovah! 31
But may they who love 'thee' become Like the sun, when he riseth in his glory!
And the land, after this, had rest forty years.

CHAPTER VI.

B. C. 1256. Israelites oppressed by Midian; an angel appears to Gideon, and gives him a commission to deliver them.

AGAIN the Israelites did evil in the sight 1 of Jehovah; and Jehovah delivered them into the hand of Midian, for seven years.
And the hand of Midian prevailed against 2 Israel; and the Israelites fled from the face of Midian, and made for themselves the dens which are in the mountains, and the caves, and the strong-holds. And when 3 the Israelites sowed their land, then the Midianites and the Amalekites, and other people of the east, came up against them;
And they encamped against them, and 4 destroyed the increase of the earth, till one came unto Gaza, and left no sustenance for more natural to suppose Deborah would ascribe bravery to the victors than to their conquered enemies.

27. Geddes rightly observes, this is most beautifully expressed in the original: every word of which, to use a common phrase, tells; yet the repetition seems to me to add force to the sentiment.

28. Nothing could be more happily imagined, than this poetical transition, from Sisera, lying dead in the tent of Jael, to his mother anxiously waiting his triumphant return.

29. Yea, she returned] The common version is, 'yea, she returned answer to herself.' The sense of this line depends on the preceding; and if the reading of the Syr. Vulg. Arab. and six MSS. be adopted, the version given is the true one. Is it probable that the author would introduce all her ladies, or one of them, as giving an answer to soothe her agitated and anxious mind; and then, without telling us what they said, bring her forward again as replying to her own questions? As this does not seem probable, the various reading is preferred, and the next verse considered as the words which one of her ladies returned in answer to her.

33. A damsel or two] Females were generally taken in those days as the slaves of the conquerors.—A spoil of coloured] The spoil alluded to seems to have been rich, short mantles, which warriors used to wear.

31. So perish] In this line, remarks Bishop Lowth, the fatal disappointment of female hope and credulity, tacitly insinuated, by the sudden and unexpected apostrophe, is expressed more forcibly by this very silence of the person who was just speaking, than it could possibly have been by all the powers of language.

CHAP. VI. 3. Other people of the east] The various Arab tribes. 8. (a) Versions and MSS.

Israel, neither sheep, nor oxen, nor asses. 5 For they came up with their cattle and their tents, and they came as grasshoppers for multitude; for both they and their camels were without number: and they came into 6 the land to lay it waste. Thus was Israel greatly impoverished by the Midianites. 7 But the Israelites cried to Jehovah. And when the Israelites cried to Jehovah, because of the Midianites, Jehovah sent a prophet to the Israelites, who said to them, 8 Thus saith Jehovah, the God of Israel, I brought you up from "the land of" Egypt, and brought you out of the house of bondage; 9 And I delivered you out of the hand of the Egyptians, and out of the hand of all that oppressed you; and drove out from before you, these nations, and gave you 10 their land; And I said unto you, I am Jehovah your God; fear not the gods of the Amorites, in whose land ye dwell: but ye have not obeyed my voice. 11 There then came the angel Jehovah, and sat under the turpentine-tree which was in Ophrah, which belonged to Joash, the Abiezrite; and his son Gideon was threshing wheat by the wine-press, to hide it from the 12 Midianites. And the angel Jehovah appeared unto him, and said to him, Jehovah is with thee, thou mighty man of valour. 13 And Gideon said to him, Oh my Lord, if Jehovah be with us, why then hath all this befallen us? and where are all his miracles which our fathers told us of, saying, Did not Jehovah bring us from Egypt? but now Jehovah hath forsaken us, and delivered 14 us into the hands of the Midianites. And the angel Jehovah turned to him and said, Go in this thy might, and thou shalt save Israel from the hand of the Midianites: 15 have not I sent thee? And he said unto him, Oh my Lord by what means shall I save Israel? Behold, my family is poor in Manasseh, and I am the least in my father's 16 house. And the "angel" Jehovah said to him, Surely I will be with thee, and thou shalt smite the Midianites as one man. 17 And he said to him, If now I have found favour in thy sight, then show me a token 18 that thou speakest with me. Depart not hence, I pray thee, until I come to thee, and bring forth my present, and set it before thee. And he said, I will tarry until thou come again.

And Gideon went in, and made ready a 19 kid, and unleavened cakes of an ephah of flour; the flesh he put in a basket, and pure wine he put in a pot, and brought it to him under the turpentine-tree, and presented it. And the angel God said to him, Take the 20 flesh and the unleavened cakes, and lay them upon this rock, and pour out the pure wine. And he did so. Then the angel Jehovah put forth the end of the staff which he had in his hand, and touched the flesh and the unleavened cakes; and fire issued from the rock, and consumed the flesh and the unleavened cakes: and the angel Jehovah vanished from his sight. Gideon now 22 perceived that he was the angel Jehovah, and Gideon said, Alas for me, Jehovah! since I have thus seen, face to face, the angel Jehovah. But Jehovah said to him, 23 Peace be to thee; fear not: thou shalt not die.

Then Gideon built an altar there to Jehovah, and called it JEHOVAH-SHALOM [JEHOVAH SPEAKEETH PEACE]. Unto this day it remaineth in Ophrah of the Abiezrites. For on that same night, Jehovah said to 25 him, Take thy father's young bullock, and a second bullock, seven years old, and throw down the altar of Baal, which belongeth to thy father, and cut down the grove that is by it; And build an altar to Jehovah thy 26 God, upon the top of this rock, on which the former offering was placed, and take the second bullock, and offer for a burnt-offering, with the wood of the grove which thou shalt cut down. Then Gideon took from 27 among his servants, ten men, and did as Jehovah had said to him; and, because he feared his father's household, and the men of the city, he could not do it by day, so he did it by night.

And when the men of the city arose early 28 in the morning, behold, the altar of Baal was broken down, and the grove was cut down that was by it, and the second bullock was offered upon the altar which was built. And they said one to another, Who hath 29 done this thing? And they inquired and

11. Was threshing wheat] The word rendered threshing, seems to denote beating with rods; that the noise might be small as possible. 16. (a) Sept

17. Show me a token] The Sept. render at least, clearly, 'And do, now, what thou hast said to me.' As Gideon supposed the person addressing him to be a prophet, I prefer the version given, as explained by the words added.

19. Pure wine] The term המרק is generally rendered broth; but I think that the Syr. and Arab. have given the sense; rendering pure wine, as every wheaten-offering was accompanied with a drink-offering.

21. Vanished] The angel disappeared, so that Gideon did not see him depart.

23. But Jehovah said to him] Probably in a dream, that night; and at the same time, that he suggested to him the demolition of Baal's altar, &c. as is related ver. 25. For ver. 24 is an historical anticipation, very common in scripture narratives; which has not been always attended to by translators.

26. The second bullock] It is not said what he was to do with the other young bull or steer: but we may readily suppose he was to be offered as a simple sin-offering, or eucharistic sacrifice; the flesh of which might be eaten by the offerer and his associates.

31. Should ye preserve him] I have adhered to the order of the text, and the sense given, I am satisfied, is that in-sought, and some said, Gideon, the son of 30 Joash, hath done this thing. Then the men of the city said to Joash, Bring forth thy son, that he may die, because he hath broken down the altar of Baal, and because he hath cut down the grove that was by it.

 31 And Joash said to all that stood against him, Will ye contend for Baal? Should ye preserve him who hath contended with him, he will die ere the morning dawn. If he be a god, he will contend for himself, with 32 him who hath broken down his altar. From that day hence he was called Jerubbaal [LET BAAL CONTEND], from his father's saying, Baal will contend for himself, with him who hath broken down his altar.
 33 Then all the Midianites and Amalekites and other people of the east, assembled and passed over the Jordan, and encamped in 34 the valley of Jezreel. And the spirit of Jehovah came upon Gideon, and he blew a trumpet; and Abi-ezer was gathered to 35 him. And he sent messengers throughout all Manasseh; who also was gathered to him: and he sent messengers to Asher, and to Zebulun, and to Naphtali; and they came up to meet them.
 35 And Gideon said to God, If thou wilt save Israel by mine hand, as thou hast said, 37 Behold, I will put a fleece of wool on this threshing floor; and if dew be on the fleece only, and all the ground be dry, then I shall know that thou wilt save Israel by mine 38 hand, as thou hast said. And it was so; for he arose early on the morrow, and squeezed the fleece, and wrung the dew 39 from the fleece, a bowl full of water. And Gideon said unto God, Let not thine anger be kindled against me and I will speak but this once: let me prove, I pray thee, but this once with the fleece; let it now be dry only upon the fleece, and upon all the 40 ground let there be dew. And God did so that night: for it was dry upon the fleece only, and there was dew on all the ground.

CHAPTER VII.

B. C. 1249. Gideon's army reduced to three hundred; encouraged by the dream of a Midianite; stratagem of lamps in pitchers.

1 THEN Jerubbaal, (who is Gideon,) and tended. The common version is contradictory. It makes Joash propose, that he who pleaded for Baal, should be immediately put to death, and then assert that Baal would plead for himself. I have followed Menochius, (see Poole,) and consider the meaning to be, 'If Baal be really a god, ye need not avenge his quarrel, or desire the death of my son: Baal will speedily avenge himself; and you will see the demolisher of his altar die a sudden death.'

36—40. Gideon, by the signs requested, desired to know, whether the Lord would now fulfil his promise; and also to satisfy the people that God had sent him.

CHAP. VII. 3. Mount Gilboa] I have adopted the conjectural emendation of Houbigant and Le Clerc. Serarius, all the people who were with him, arose early, and encamped beside En-Harod; so that the host of the Midianites were on the north side of them, in the valley by the hill of Moreh. And Jehovah said to Gideon, 2

 The people who are with thee are too many for me to give the Midianites into their hands, lest Israel vaunt themselves against me, saying, Our own hand hath saved us.
 Now, therefore, go, proclaim in the hearing 3 of the people, saying, Whosoever is fearful and terrified, let him return and depart early from mount 'Gilboa.' And there returned of the people twenty-two thousand; and there remained ten thousand. And Jehovah 4 said to Gideon, The people are yet too many; bring them down to the water, that there I may try them for thee: and it shall be, of whomsoever I say to thee, This shall go with thee, the same shall go with thee; and of whomsoever I say to thee, This shall not go with thee, the same shall not go.
 So he brought down the people to the water: 5 and Jehovah said to Gideon, Every one that lappeth of the water with his tongue, as a dog lappeth, thou shalt set apart by himself; so also every one that boweth down on his knees to drink. And the number of those 6 who lapped, putting their hand to their mouth, were three hundred men; but all the rest of the people bowed down on their knees to drink water. And Jehovah said to 7 Gideon, By the three hundred men who lapped, will I save you, and deliver the Midianites into your hand: and let all the other people go, every one to his own place.
 So they took the victuals of the people, 8 and their trumpets, for their own use: he retained only those three hundred men, but sent all the rest of Israel, every one to his own tent.

Now the host of Midian was beneath him in the valley. And that same night, Jeho- 9 vah said to him, Arise, go down to the camp; for I deliver it into thine hand. But if 10 thou be afraid to go down, with thy men, go down thyself to the camp, with Phurah thy servant; And thou shalt hear what they 11 say; and afterwards thou shalt be encouraged to go down to the camp with thy men.
 Then he went down with Phurah his ser-

Menochius, and others adopt the same opinion. (See Poole.) Note, Hebrew Bible.

4. Try them] Literally, 'prove them as silver is proved by the fire.'

5. Every one that lappeth] Lapping water from the hollow of the hand was considered as a mark of sobriety and promptitude. The manly, active soldier contented himself with a passing sup of the refreshing stream; while the more dainty kneeled down to draw large draughts from the water's brim.

8. They took] That is, Gideon and the three hundred men took the provisions and trumpets of those who were sent home. I have followed the order of the text in the

- vant, to the outermost of the armed men
 12 who belonged to the camp. And the Midianites and the Amalekites and all the other people of the east lay along in the valley like grasshoppers for multitude; and their camels were without number, as the sand 13 by the sea-shore for multitude. And when Gideon had come, behold, one man was telling a dream to another, and said, Behold, I dreamed a dream, and, lo, a cake of barley bread tumbled into the camp of Midian, and came to a tent, and smote it that it fell, and so overturned it, that the 14 tent lay flat. And his companion answered and said, This is nothing but the sword of Gideon the son of Joash, a man of Israel; into whose hand God delivereth Midian, and the whole camp.
 15 And when Gideon heard the telling of the dream, and its interpretation, he worshipped, and returned into the camp of Israel, and said, Arise; for Jehovah delivereth into 16 your hand the camp of Midian. And he divided the three hundred men into three companies, and he put a trumpet in every man's hand, with empty pitchers, and lamps
 17 within the pitchers. And he said to them, Look on me, and do likewise; and, behold, when I come to the outside of the camp, as 18 I do, so shall ye do. When I and all who are with me blow the trumpet, then blow ye the trumpets also, on every side of the whole camp, and say, "The sword" of Jehovah, and of Gideon.
 19 So Gideon and the hundred men who were with him, came to the outside of the camp in the beginning of the middle watch; and they had but newly set the watch: and they blew the trumpets, and broke the 20 pitchers which were in their hands. And the three companies blew the trumpets, and broke the pitchers; and they held the lamps in their left hands, and in their right hands the trumpets, to blow with; and they cried, The sword of Jehovah, and of Gideon.
 21 And they stood still, every one in his place, round about the camp. And the whole camp was thrown into confusion; and they first clause, and transposed the latter for the sake of perspicuity.

11. Shall be encouraged] Literally, 'thine hand shall be strengthened.'

13. A cake of barley-bread] This seems to allude to the low condition of Gideon, mentioned chap. vi. 15. If a huge stone had rolled against a tent, there would have been no wonder if it overturned it; but that this should be done by a poor barley cake was wonderful indeed.—The words a man of Israel, in the next verse, appear also to have a reference to the meanness of Gideon's family. It was neither king nor chief, that was to subdue them; but a common Israelite.

16. Empty pitchers] According to Harmer, these were a part of the camp equipage. They were used to conceal the lamps, until the proper occasion. 18. (a) MSS. &c.

19. Middle watch] That is, about midnight. This stracried out and fled. And the three hundred 22 men blew the trumpets, and Jehovah set every man's sword against his fellow, throughout the whole camp; and the whole camp fled to Beth-shittah of Zererath, and to the border of Abel-meholah by Tabbath. The men of Israel then assembled out of 23 Naphtali, and out of Asher, and out of all Marasseh, and pursued the Midianites.

Gideon now sent messengers throughout 24 all mount Ephraim, saying, Come down against the Midianites, and take before them the waters at Beth-barah and the Jordan. Then all the men of Ephraim assembled and took the waters at Beth-barah and the Jordan. And they took two princes of the 25 Midianites, Oreb and Zeeb; and they slew Oreb upon the rock, from this called Oreb, and Zeeb they slew at the wine-press, from this called Zeeb, and pursued Midian, and brought the heads of Oreb and Zeeb to Gideon, on the other side of the Jordan.

CHAPTER VIII.

B. C. 1229. The Ephraimites pacified; Zebah and Zalmunna taken; Succoth and Peniel destroyed; Gideon avengeth the death of his brethren; maketh an ephod.

AND the men of Ephraim said to him, 1 Why hast thou served us thus, that thou calledst us not, when thou wentest to fight with the Midianites? And they contended with him sharply. But he said to them, 2 How little have I done now in comparision of you? Is not the gleanings of the grapes of Ephraim better than the vintage of Abiezer? God hath delivered up the princes of 3 Midian, Oreb and Zeeb; and what was I able to do in comparision of you? Then their anger was abated towards him, when he had spoken these words.

And Gideon came to the Jordan, and 4 passed over, he, and the three hundred men who were with him, faint yet pursuing. And he said to the men of Succoth, Give, I 5 pray you, some loaves of bread to the people that follow me; for they are faint, and I am pursuing Zebah and Zalmunna, kings of Midian. And the chiefs of Succoth said, 6

tagem, blowing the trumpets, breaking the pitchers, and the instant blaze of 100 lamps, must have excited fear and produced confusion through the whole camp of Midian.

22. Set every man's sword] In their hurry and consternation, they could not, in the darkness of the night, distinguish friend from foe.

24. Beth-barah] Geddes conjectures this to be the same place as Beth-abara.

CHAP. VIII. 1. Why hast thou served] The tribe of Ephraim was, after Judah, the most powerful of all the Israelites; and extremely jealous of their superiority. On this occasion, they were affronted that a mean Abiezrite, from beyond the Jordan, should have undertaken so great an enterprise without consulting them. Hence their exostulation with Gideon, whose prudent and modest answer was well calculated to pacify them. Compare chap. xi. 1—16.

Are the hands of Zebah and Zalmunna now in thine hand, that we should give bread unto thine host? And Gideon said, Therefore when Jehovah hath delivered Zebah and Zalmunna into mine hand, then I will tear your flesh with wilderness-thorns and with briars.

And he went up thence to Peniel, and spoke to them in like manner; and the men of Peniel answered him as the men of Succoth had answered him. And he spoke also to the men of Peniel, saying, When I come again in peace, I will break down this tower.

Now Zebah and Zalmunna were in Karkor, and their hosts with them, about fifteen thousand men, all who were left of all the hosts of the people of the east: for there had fallen one hundred and twenty thousand men who drew the sword. And Gideon went up by the way of those who dwell in tents, on the east of Nobah and Jogbehah, and smote the camp, when the camp was secure. And when Zebah and Zalmunna fled, he pursued after them, and took the two kings of Midian, Zebah and Zalmunna, and discomfited the whole host.

And Gideon, the son of Joash, returned from battle by the height of Hares, and caught a young man of the men of Succoth, and inquired of him; and he described to him the chiefs of Succoth, and its elders, seventy and seven men. And he came to the men of Succoth, and said, Behold Zebah and Zalmunna, with whom ye upbraided me, saying, Are the hands of Zebah and Zalmunna now in thine hand, that we should give bread to thy men who are weary? And he took the elders of the city, and wilderness-thorns and briars, and with them he chastised the men of Succoth.

And he beat down the tower of Peniel, and slew the men of the city.

Then said he to Zebah and Zalmunna, What manner of men were they whom ye slew at Tabor? And they answered, As thou art, so were they; each one resembled the son of a king. And he said, They were my brethren, the sons of my own mother: as Jehovah liveth, if ye had saved them alive, I would not slay you. And he said 20 to Jether his first-born, Rise and slay them. But the youth drew not his sword: for he feared, as he was yet a youth. Then Zebah 21 and Zalmunna said, Rise thou, and fall upon us; for according to one's age is his strength. And Gideon arose, and slew Zebah and Zalmunna, and took for himself the crescents, and pendants, and purple garments that were on them, and the collars, that were on their camels' necks.

Then the men of Israel said to Gideon, 22 Rule thou over us, both thou, and thy son, and thy son's son also; for thou hast delivered us from the hand of Midian. And 23 Gideon said unto them, I will not rule over you, neither shall my son rule over you; Jehovah shall rule over you. Gideon also 24 said to them I will make but one request to you, that ye would, every one, give to me the pendants of his prey: (for those slain, who were Ishmaelites, wore golden pendants.) And they answered, We will 25 willingly give them. And they spread a garment, and cast therein every one the pendants of his prey. And the weight of 26 the golden pendants which he had requested, was one thousand and seven hundred shekels of gold; besides the crescents, and the drops and purple garments, that were on the kings of Midian, and besides the collars that were about the camels' necks. And Gideon 27 made an ephod of it, and put it in his own city, in Ophrah; and all Israel went thither astray after it: which thing became a snare to Gideon, and to his house.

Thus was Midian subdued before Israel, 28 so that they lifted up their heads no more: and the land had rest, in the days of Gideon, forty years. And Jerubbaal, the son of 29 Joash, went and dwelt in his own house. And Gideon had twenty sons, of his own 30 body begotten; for he had many wives. And 31 his concubine who was at Shechem, also bare to him a son, whose name he called

6. And the chiefs of Succoth] It may seem astonishing that the inhabitants of Succoth and Peniel should refuse bread to their famished brethren: but having been seven years under the domination of the Midianites, they dreaded their vengeance; and deemed it highly improbable that Gideon could succeed.

13. By the height of Hares] So all the versions render, except the Vulg. which our translators followed. The route of Gideon, from Peniel, seems to have been across the mountains of Gilead, to the north-east of the Jabok, through a tract of country inhabited by Scenites or Bedouins: hence he came unexpectedly upon the camp of the Midianites, who looked for no attack from that quarter. If Jogbehah be the same with Ramoth-Gilead, as the Chaldee paraphrast supposes, the Midianites were probably encamped somewhere about Abela, called, chap. xi. 33, Abel-cheramim, that is, the plain of the vineyards. Gideon appears to have returned to Succoth by another short way; namely, by the heights of Hares, or sunhills; probably so called, because, over them, the rising sun was first seen by the inhabitants of the low country about the Jordan; and, indeed, by all the Israelites, who resided on the western side of that river.

21. According to one's age] So the Vulg. which gives the clearest sense. The words in italic, from verse 26, seem to have dropped out of the text. Most probably a line has been omitted, through haste, or inadvertency.

26. Crescents and drops] These are allowed to be what the original terms signify. See Parkhurst on the words.

27. Made an ephod] A rich sacerdotal garment; made, probably, in imitation of that worn by the high priest; and then kept at Shiloh. Whether Gideon meant this as a mere commemorative trophy; or whether he had a levitical priest in his house, it is hard to say. The latter I think more probable. Compare chap. xvii. 5.—All Israel] All those who lived in Gilead, and on the east side of the Jordan; who, having now an ephod and worship in their own country, would not so readily go over to the tabernacle at Shiloh.

32 Abimelech. And Gideon, the son of Joash, died in a good old age, and was buried in the sepulchre of Joash his father, in Ophrah of the Abi-ezrites.

CHAPTER IX.

B. C. 1209. Israel relapses to idolatry; Abimelech and the Shechemites murder all Gideon's sons, except Jotham; his parable; war between Abimelech and the Shechemites.

- 33 AND as soon as Gideon was dead, the Israelites again went astray after Baal; and they made Baal-berith their special 34 god. And the Israelites remembered not Jehovah their God, who had delivered them out of the hands of all their enemies on every 35 side; Nor did they show regard to the house of Jerubbaal, or Gideon, according to all the kindness which he had showed to 1 Israel. For Abimelech, the son of Jerubbaal, went to Shechem, to his mother's brethren, and communed with them, and with all the family of the house of his mother's father, saying, Speak, I pray you, in the hearing of all the leading men of Shechem, Whether is it better for you, that all the sons of Jerubbaal, threescore and ten persons, reign over you, or that one reign over you? Remember also that I am your own bone and your own flesh. And his mother's brethren spoke for him, in the hearing of all the leading men of Shechem, all these words: and their hearts inclined to follow Abimelech; for they said, He is our brother. And they gave to him seventy shekels of silver out of the house of Baal-berith, with which Abimelech hired vain and 4 light persons, who followed him. And he went to his father's house at Ophrah, and slew his brethren, the sons of Jerubbaal, seventy persons, upon one stone; yet Jotham, the youngest son of Jerubbaal, was left; for he hid himself. And all the leading men of Shechem assembled, and all the house of Millo, and went, and made Abimelech king, by the turpentine-tree, which stands near Shechem.
7 And when they told this to Jotham, he went and stood on the top of mount Gerizim, and raised his voice, and cried, and said to them, Harken to me, ye leading men of

Shechem! so God may hearken to you. 8 The trees went forth to anoint a king over them; and they said to the olive tree, Reign thou over us. But the olive-tree 9 said unto them, Shall I relinquish my oil, with which God and men are honoured, and go to rule over the trees? The trees then 10 said to the fig-tree, Come thou, and reign over us. But the fig-tree said to them, 11 Shall I relinquish my sweetness, and excellent fruit, and go to rule over the trees? Then said the trees to the vine, Come thou, 12 and reign over us. And the vine said to 13 them, Shall I relinquish my wine, which giveth joy to God and man, and go to rule over the trees? Then said all the trees to 14 the bramble, Come thou, and reign over us. And the bramble said to the trees, If ye 15 truly intend to anoint me king over you, come, take shelter under my shade; and if not, let fire come out of the bramble, and devour the cedars of Lebanon. Now, there- 16 fore, if ye have done truly and uprightly, in making Abimelech king; and if ye have treated kindly Jerubbaal and his house, and have done to him according to his claims upon you; (For my father fought for you, 17 and risked his life, and delivered you out of the hand of Midian: Yet have ye, this day, 18 risen up against my father's house, and have slain his sons, seventy persons, on one stone; and have made Abimelech, the son of his bondmaid, king over the men of Shechem, because he is your brother;) If then ye 19 have dealt truly and uprightly with Jerubbaal and with his house this day, then rejoice in Abimelech, and let him also rejoice in you: But if not, let fire come out from Abi- 20 melech, and devour the leading men of Shechem, and the house of Millo; and let fire come out from the men of Shechem, and from the house of Millo, and devour Abimelech. And Jotham fled with speed, 21 and went to Beer, and dwelt there, for fear of Abimelech his brother.

When Abimelech had reigned over Israel 22 three years, God sent a spirit of discord be- 23 tween Abimelech and the leading men of Shechem; and the leading men of Shechem dealt treacherously with Abimelech; That 24 the cruelty done to the seventy sons of CHAP. IX. 1. Baal-berith] A Canaanite god; supposed to be the avenger of a breach of covenant.

5. On one stone] They were beheaded like the sons of Ahab. See 2 Kings x. 7.

6. Leading men] Rendered בָּלִיָּם, because the term never denotes men in general, but conveys always the idea of rule, authority, and distinction.—The house of Millo] Millo appears to have been a fortress or citadel; and is called, verses 46 and 49, the tower of Shechem. Here those who inhabited it are understood.

8. This is the first fable or apologue which we read in the Hebrew scriptures. It is elegantly turned, and the application is strikingly sarcastical. The genuine and generous offspring of Jerubbaal had no wish to be kings; but the spurious bramble-like Abimelech eagerly grasps the regal power.

9. God and men are honoured] God was honoured by the oil used in sacrifices, to feed the lamps, and anoint the priest: and it was useful to man in food and medicine.

13. Which giveth joy] Wine was used in sacrifices: it was a part of the provisions of God's house and altar, with which he was delighted, and men were cheered. Thus all these noble trees, that is, Gideon and his sons, much better men than Abimelech, had refused the dignity of which he was so ambitious.

21. To Beer] This was a city in the tribe of Judah, or

Jerubbaal might be avenged, and their blood laid upon Abimelech, their brother, who had slain them; and on the leading men of Shechem, who had assisted him in 25 the slaughter of his brethren. And the leading men of Shechem set ambushes for him, on the top of the mountains; and they robbed all who came by them that way; and 26 it was told Abimelech. Now Gaal, the son of Ebed, came with his brethren, and went over to Shechem; and the leading men of 27 Shechem put their confidence in him. And they went out into the fields, and they gathered their vineyards, and trode the grapes; and then made a feast, and went into the house of their god, and ate and drank, and 28 cursed Abimelech. And Gaal, the son of Ebed, said, Who is Abimelech, and who the king of Shechem, that we should serve him? Have not the son of Jerubbaal, and Zebul, his officer, made the men of Hamor, the father of Shechem, slaves? yet why should 29 we be slaves to him? O that this people were under my hand! I would soon remove Abimelech: 'I would say' to Abimelech, Increase thine host, and come forth.
 30 And when Zebul, the governor of the city, heard the words of Gaal, the son of 31 Ebed, his anger was kindled. And he privately sent messengers to Abimelech, saying, Behold, Gaal, the son of Ebed, and his brethren have come to Shechem; and behold, they fortify the city against thee.
 32 Now, therefore, arise by night, thou and the people who are with thee, lie in ambush
 33 in the field; And do thou rise early in the morning, as soon as the sun is up, and rush upon the city; and, behold, when he and the people who are with him come out against thee, then mayest thou do with them as thou shalt find it necessary.
 34 And Abimelech rose up and all the people who were with him, by night, and they laid ambushes against Shechem, in four 35 companies. And Gaal, the son of Ebed, went out, and stood at the entrance of the city-gate; and Abimelech, and the people who were with him, rose up from the am-36 bush. And when Gaal saw the people, he said to Zebul, Behold, people are coming down from the top of the mountains. And Zebul said to them, Thou seest the shadow of the mountains as if they were men. And 37 Gaal again spoke, and said, See people come down from the heights; and another company come along by the turpentine-tree of Meonenim. Then said Zebul to him, 38 Where now are thy words, which thou saidst, Who is Abimelech, that we should be slaves to him? Is not this the people whom thou didst despise? go out now, I pray, and fight with them. And Gaal went out before the 39 men of Shechem, and fought with Abimelech. And Abimelech attacked him, and he fled 40 before him; and many were overthrown and wounded, even to the entrance to the city-gate. And Abimelech dwelt at Arumeh, 41 until Zebul had driven out Gaal and his brethren, from among the inhabitants of Shechem. But on the morning after, some 42 persons told Abimelech that the people went out into the field; And he took his own 43 people, and divided them into three companies, and lay in ambush in the field, until he saw, and, behold, the people had come forth from the city; and he rose up against them, and smote them. For Abimelech, 44 and the company which was with him, rushed forward, and stood at the entrance of the city-gate; and the other two companies fell upon all who were in the fields, and slew them. And Abimelech fought against the 45 city all that day; and he took the city, and slew the people that were in it; and he demolished the city, and sowed it with salt.

And when all the men of the tower of 46 Shechem heard this, they went into the strong-hold of the temple of the god Berith. And it was told Abimelech, that all the men 47 of the tower of Shechem were there crowded together; And Abimelech went up to mount 48 Zalmon, he and all the people that were with him; and Abimelech took an axe in his hand, and cut down a bough from the trees, and took it, and laid it on his shoulder, and said unto the people that were with him, Ye have seen what I have done; And all 49 the people likewise cut down every man his bough, and followed Abimelech; and they put them to the strong-hold, and with them they set the strong-hold on fire. Thus, also, died all the men of the tower

Benjamin, not far from Jerusalem. From this it appears, that the dominion of Abimelech was confined to Shechem and the places contiguous.

27. Make a feast] So the Syr. The feast was made in honour of their idol.

28. Who is the king of Shechem] This is supplied for the sake of precision. Others think by Shechem is meant the Shechemites, which does not seem probable. See Sept. and Vulg. 29. (r) Sept. the rest, He said.

36. Shadow of the mountains] Josephus represents Zebul as telling him, he mistook the shadow of the rocks for men. A commentator might be at a loss to account for this change, that had not read Doubdan's representation of some part of the holy land, in which he tells us, that in those places there are many detached rocks scattered up and down, some growing out of the ground, and others are fragments, broken off from precipices, the shadow of which, it appears, Josephus thought might be most naturally imagined to look like troops of men at a distance, rather than the shadow of mountains.

45. Sowed it with salt] In the scripture a land of salt denotes a barren land; and by sowing Shechem with salt, Abimelech showed his hatred, wishing that it might never be rebuilt. The transactions of this whole chapter resemble those of feudal times in our own history.

of Shechem; about a thousand men, and the women.

50 Then went Abimelech to Thebez, and 51 encamped against Thebez, and took it. But there was a strong tower within the city; and thither fled all the men and women, even all the inhabitants of the city; and they beset the entrance and went up to the 52 top of the tower. And Abimelech came unto the tower, and fought against it; and he approached to the door of the tower to 53 burn it with fire. And a certain woman cast a piece of a millstone upon Abimelech's 54 head; and it broke his skull. Then he called hastily unto the young man, his armour-bearer, and said to him, Draw thy sword, and slay me, that men may not say of me, A woman slew him. And his young 55 man thrust him through, and he died. And when the men of Israel saw that Abimelech was dead, they departed every one to his own place.

56 Thus Jehovah requited the wicked deed of Abimelech, which he did to his father, by 57 slaying his own seventy brethren; And all the evil deeds of the men of Shechem, Jehovah brought upon their own heads; and upon them came the curse of Jotham, the son of Jerubbaal.

1 AND after Abimelech there arose to defend Israel Tola the son of Puah, the son of Dodo, a man of Issachar; and he dwelt 2 in Shamir in mount Ephraim. And he judged Israel twenty-three years, and died, and was buried in Shamir.

3 And after him arose Jair, a Gileadite, and 4 judged Israel twenty-two years. And he had thirty sons, who rode on thirty young asses, and thirty villages, which are called Havoth-jair [THE VILLAGES OF JAIR] unto this day, which are in the land of Gilead.

5 And Jair died, and was buried in Camon.

CHAPTER X.

B. C. 1161. The Israelites are again enslaved and oppressed by the Philistines; they are reproved for their idolatry, but on their repentance, God hath compassion, and raiseth up Jephthah.

6 AND the Israelites again did evil in the sight of Jehovah, and served Baals, and Ashtaroth, and the gods of Syria, and the gods of Sidon, and the gods of Moab, and the gods of the Ammonites, and the gods of the Philistines; and they forsook 7 Jehovah, and him they served not. And the anger of Jehovah was kindled against

Israel, and he gave them up into the hands of the Philistines, and into the hands of the Ammonites. And at that time they 8 vexed and oppressed the Israelites eighteen years; all the Israelites that were on the other side of the Jordan, in the land of the Amorites, which is in Gilead. Moreover 9 the Ammonites passed over the Jordan, to fight also against Judah, and against Benjamin, and against the house of Ephraim;
so that Israel was greatly distressed.

And the Israelites cried to Jehovah, say- 10 ing, We have sinned against thee, both because we have forsaken our God, and also served Baals. And Jehovah said to the 11 Israelites, Did not I deliver you from the Egyptians, and from the Amorites, and from the Ammonites, and from the Philistines?
The Sidonians also, and the Amalekites, 12 and the 'Midianites' oppressed you; and ye cried to me, and I delivered you out of their hand. Yet ye have forsaken me, and 13 served other gods; wherefore I will deliver you no more. Go and cry to the gods 14 whom ye have chosen; let them deliver you in the time of your tribulation. And the 15 Israelites said to Jehovah, We have sinned; do thou to us whatsoever seemeth good to thee; only deliver us, we pray thee, this day.
And they put away the strange gods from 16 among them, and served Jehovah 'only,' and his soul was grieved for the misery of Israel.

The Ammonites were now gathered toge- 17 ther, and encamped in Gilead; and the Israelites assembled, and encamped in Mizpah. And the chief people of Gilead said 18 one to another, What man is he that will begin to fight against the Ammonites? he shall be head over all the inhabitants of Gilead.

Now Jephthah, the Gileadite, (for Gilead 1 begot Jephthah,) was a mighty man of valour; although he was the son of a harlot.
And the wife of Gilead bare to him sons; 2 and his wife's sons grew up, and they drove out Jephthah, and said to him, Thou shalt not inherit in our father's house; for thou art the son of a strange woman. Then 3 Jephthah fled from his brethren, and dwelt in the land of Tob; and idle men flocked to Jephthah, and went out with him.

Now, in process of time, the Ammonites 4 made war against Israel. And when the 5 Ammonites made war against Israel, the elders of Gilead went to fetch Jephthah

CHAP. X. 6. The gods of Syria] The spirit of their own law, as well as its express commands, they violated; and from this verse we learn they served the idols of the nations which were around them.

8. And at that time] The words are rendered indefinitely, as the context requires, after the Greek translators.
See note, Hebrew Bible.

12. Midianites] As we have no account of a people called Maanites, the reading of the Sept. Alex. is adopted.
From chap. viii. we know the Midianites had oppressed Israel, and that God, by Gideon, had delivered his people out of their hands. 16. (a) Sept.

CHAP. XI. 3. And went out with him] That is, made attacks upon the various hordes around them. This kind

6 from the land of Tob; And they said unto Jephthah, Come, and be our captain, that 7 we may fight with the Ammonites. And Jephthah said to the Gileadites, Did not ye hate me, and expel me from my father's house? and why do ye come to me now when ye are in distress? And the elders of Gilead said to Jephthah, For that reason we now apply to thee, that thou mayest go with us, and fight against the Ammonites, and be our chief, over all the inhabitants of Gilead. And Jephthah said to the elders of Gilead, If ye bring me home again to fight against the Ammonites, and Jehovah deliver them before me, shall I be your 10 chief? And the elders of Gilead said to Jephthah, Jehovah be witness unto us, if 11 we do not so, according to thy words. Then Jephthah went with the elders of Gilead, and the people made him chief and captain over them; and Jephthah uttered all his words before Jehovah in Mizpeh.
 12 And Jephthah sent messengers to the king of the Ammonites, saying, What hast thou to do with me, that thou art come 13 against me to fight in my land? And the king of the Ammonites answered the messengers of Jephthah, Because Israel took away my land, when they came up out of Egypt, from the Arnon unto the Jabbok, and the Jordan: now therefore restore those 14 lands peaceably. Again Jephthah sent messengers to the king of the Ammonites, 15 And said to him, Thus saith Jephthah, Israel took not away the land of Moab, nor 16 the land of the Ammonites; But when Israel came up from Egypt, and had walked through the wilderness unto the Red Sea, and were come to Kadesh; Then Israel sent messengers to the king of Edom, saying, Let me, I pray thee, pass through thy land: but the king of Edom would not consent. And in like manner they sent to the king of Moab; but he would not consent: so Israel abode in Kadesh. They then went along through the wilderness, and compassed the land of Edom, and the land of Moab, and came by the east side of the land of Moab, and pitched on the other side of the Arnon, but came not within the boundary of Moab; for the Arnon was the 19 boundary of Moab. And Israel sent messengers unto Sihon, king of the Amorites, the king of Heshbon; and Israel said to him, Let us pass, we pray thee, through thy land, unto our own place. But Sihon would not trust Israel to pass through his territory; but Sihon assembled all his people, and encamped in Jahaz, and fought against Israel. And Jehovah, the God of 21 Israel, delivered Sihon and all his people into the hand of Israel, and they smote them: so Israel possessed all the land of the Amorites, the inhabitants of that country. And 22 they possessed all the territories of the Amorites, from the Arnon unto the Jabbok, and from the wilderness unto the Jordan. So now Jehovah, the God of Israel, hath dis- 23 possessed the Amorites of that land, on account of his people Israel, and wouldst thou possess it? Wilt not thou possess what 24 Chemosh thy god hath given thee to possess? So will we possess the land of all those whom Jehovah our God shall drive out before us. And now hast thou in any 25 thing a better claim than Balak, the son of Zippor, king of Moab? Did he then contend with Israel, or did he ever fight against them? Three hundred years hath Israel 26 dwelt in Heshbon and its towns, and in Aroer and its towns, and in all the cities which are along the coasts of the Arnon? why, during that time, have ye not recovered them? We, 27 then, have not offended against thee, but thou doest us wrong to war against us: let Jehovah, the Judge, decide this day, between the Israelites and the Ammonites. Nevertheless the king of the Ammonites 28 would not hearken to the words of Jephthah, which he sent to him.

Then the Spirit of Jehovah came upon 29 Jephthah, and he passed through Gilead and Manasseh, and passed on to Mizpeh of Gilead, and from Mizpeh of Gilead he passed on towards the Ammonites. And Jeph- 30 thah made a vow to Jehovah, and said, If thou wilt, without fail, deliver the Ammonites into my hands, Then it shall be, that 31 whatsoever cometh out of the doors of my house to meet me, when I return in peace from the Ammonites, shall surely belong to Jehovah, or I will offer it up for a burnt-offering. Then Jephthah passed on 32 to the Ammonites, to fight against them; and Jehovah delivered them into his hands. And he smote them with a very great 33 slaughter from Aroer, all the way to Minnith, and unto Abel-cheramin; twenty cities.

of warfare was then common, as it is still, in those countries. See Dathe's remarks, Hebrew Bible.

11. Uttered all his words] There was a convention of the people at Mizpeh; and Jephthah repeated the terms of agreement with the Gileadites, before Jehovah; that is, solemnly ratifying it; and regulating all things necessary for conducting the war.

13—28. The answer of the king of Ammon, is certainly as void of truth as of justice; and the reply of Jephthah is distinguished by both. Were kings to listen to reason, how few wars would there be! Ambition is the principal cause of fighting.

24. What Chemosh thy god] Jephthah here argues on his own principle. He ought to be satisfied with what Chemosh gives to him.

31. Shall belong to Jehovah] That is, if it be a person or animal which cannot be offered in sacrifice, it shall be consecrated to the service of Jehovah; or if what is proper to be offered, it shall be offered. I follow our marginal version in rendering, or instead of and.

Thus the Ammonites were humbled before Israel.

- 34 And Jephthah came to Mizpeh to his own house; and behold! his daughter came out to meet him with tabours and with pipes: and she was his only child; beside 35 her he had neither son nor daughter. And when he saw her, he rent his clothes, and said, Alas! my daughter! thou hast brought me low indeed! and thou art among those who distress me: for I have opened my mouth to Jehovah, and I cannot reverse it.
36 And she said unto him, My father, if thou hast opened thy mouth to Jehovah, do to me according to that which hath proceeded out of thy mouth; forasmuch as Jehovah hath taken vengeance for thee of thine enemies, of the Ammonites. And she said to her father, Let this thing be done for me: Let me alone two months, that I may go up and down upon the mountains, and with 38 my companions bewail my virginity. And he said, Go. And he sent her away for two months: and she went, and with her companions bewailed her virginity upon the 39 mountains. And it came to pass at the end of two months, that she returned to her father, who did with her according to his vow which he had made; and she knew no man.
40 And it became a custom in Israel, For the daughters of Israel to go yearly to lament with the daughter of Jephthah the Gileadite, four days in the year.

CHAPTER XII.

B. C. 1143. A civil war between the Ephraimites and Gileadites; the former conquered; Jephthah dies, and Ibzan, Elon, and Abdon successively judge Israel.

- 1 AND the men of Ephraim assembled, and went northward, and said to Jephthah, Why didst thou pass on to fight against the Ammonites, and didst not call us to go with thee? We will burn thy house about thee
2 with fire. And Jephthah said to them, I and my people had a great contest with the Ammonites; and when I called you, ye would not deliver me out of their hands. And when I saw that ye would not deliver 3 me, I exposed my life, and passed on against the Ammonites, and Jehovah delivered them into my hand: wherefore then are ye come up to me this day, to fight against me? Then Jephthah assembled all the men of 4 Gilead, and fought with Ephraim; and the men of Gilead smote Ephraim, because they said, Ye are only fugitives of Ephraim: Gilead is a base breed between Ephraim and Manasseh! And the Gileadites took the fords

5 of the Jordan before the Ephraimites: and when any of those Ephraimites who had escaped, said, Let me go over: the men of Gilead said to him, Art thou an Ephraimite? If he said, Nay; Then said they to 6 him, Say now Shibboleth: and he said Sibboleth: for he could not rightly pronounce it; then they took him, and slew him at the fords of the Jordan. And there fell at that time, of the Ephraimites, forty-two 7 thousand. And Jephthah judged Israel six years. Then died Jephthah, the Gileadite, and was buried in "his own city," in Gilead.

And after him Ibzan of Bethlehem judged
8 Israel. And he had thirty sons, and thirty 9 daughters: those he married out, and took in thirty maidens for his sons. And he judged Israel seven years. Then died Ibzan, 10 and was buried at Bethlehem.

And after him, Elon, a Zebulunite, judged 11 Israel; and he judged Israel ten years. And 12 Elon the Zebulunite died, and was buried in Aijalon, in the country of Zebulun.

And after him Abdon the son of Hillel, a 13 Pirathonite, judged Israel. And he had 14 forty sons and thirty nephews who rode on seventy young asses: and he judged Israel eight years. And Abdon the son of Hillel, 15 the Pirathonite, died, and was buried in Pirathon, in the land of Ephraim, on mount Amalek.

34. His only child] She was therefore more dear to her father; and as he had devoted her to God, all hope of posterity by her was cut off. This accounts for his distress.

36. If thou hast opened] The reply of Jephthah's daughter shows both piety and magnanimity. Since God had made him the instrument of saving her country, she was content to die in her virgin state.

39. And she knew no man] Some suppose Jephthah offered his daughter as a burnt-offering to Jehovah; a sentiment which is unsupported by the text. Dathe has produced strong arguments against this opinion; and the remark which concludes this verse is decisive. For if she was put to death in her virginity, it is needless to inform us, she knew no man; but if she was devoted to a virgin state, then this remark is just.

40. To lament with the daughter] The marginal version is adopted; as giving the genuine sense. According to Houbigant this custom only continued during the life of Jephthah's daughter, as we find no reference to it afterwards.

CHAP. XII. 1. The conduct of the Ephraimites on this occasion shows that they affected rule and authority over the other tribes. The whole history proves their ambition and love of preeminence.

4. Fugitives of Ephraim] The Ephraimites abused their brethren. I have followed the order of the text, and supplied with Geddes, as to the sense.—A base breed] That is, a mixed breed, belonging neither to them nor to Manasseh. They intend what is reproachful.

6. Say Shibboleth] This shows that the Gileadites, though they spoke the same language, had a different mode of pronunciation; as the people of Nazareth had in the time of Jesus Christ. The word shibboleth signifies a stream; which would naturally occur to the Gileadites as a test, being an object before their eyes.

7. In his own city] I suppose the true reading to be עיר, and the vau might easily be made a jod. Sept.

15. Mount Amalek] So the Sept. Compare chap. iii. 13, 27, and v. 14.

CHAPTER XIII.

B. C. 1161. The Philistines oppress Israel; an angel appeareth to the wife of Manoah and then to him also; a son promised, and Samson born.

- 1 AND the Israelites again did evil in the sight of Jehovah; and Jehovah delivered them into the hand of the Philistines, forty years.
- 2 Now, there was a certain man of Zorah, of the family of the Danites, whose name was Manoah; and his wife was barren, and
- 3 bare not. And the angel Jehovah appeared to the woman, and said to her, Behold now, thou art barren, and bearest not; but thou shalt conceive, and bear a son.
- 4 Now therefore beware, I pray thee, and drink no wine nor strong drink, nor eat of any thing unclean. For, lo! thou shalt conceive, and bear a son; but let no razor come on his head: for the child must be a Nazarite to God from the womb: and he shall begin to deliver Israel out of the hands of the Philistines.
- 6 Then the woman came and told her husband, saying, A man of God came to me, and his countenance was like the countenance of an angel of God, very awful: but I asked him not whence he came, nor did he tell his name. But he said unto me, Behold, thou shalt conceive, and bear a son; but drink now no wine nor strong drink, nor eat any thing unclean; for the child shall be a Nazarite to God from the womb, to the day of his death.
- 8 Then Manoah entreated Jehovah, and said, O my Lord, let the man of God whom thou didst send come again to us, and teach us what we shall do to the child that shall be born. And God hearkened to the voice of Manoah; and the angel God came again to the woman as she sat in the field; but Manoah her husband was not with her.
- 10 And the woman made haste, and ran, and showed her husband, and said to him, Behold, the man hath appeared unto me, that
- 11 came unto me the other day. And Manoah arose, and went after his wife, and came to the man and said unto him, Art thou the man who spakest to the woman? And he
- 12 said, I am. And Manoah said, When thy words come to pass, how shall we train up the child? and what shall we do to him?
- 13 And the angel Jehovah said to Manoah,

Of all that I said to the woman, let her beware. She must not eat of any thing 14 that cometh from the vine; and she must not drink wine or strong drink, nor eat of any thing unclean: all that I commanded her let her observe.

And Manoah said to the angel Jehovah, 15 I pray thee, let us detain thee, until we shall have made ready a kid for thee. And 16 the angel Jehovah said to Manoah, Though thou detain me, I will not eat of thy bread: and if thou wilt offer a burnt-offering, thou must offer it to Jehovah. For Manoah knew not that he was the angel Jehovah. And 17 Manoah said to the angel Jehovah, What is thy name, that when thy sayings come to pass we may do thee honour? And the 18 angel Jehovah said to him, Why askest thou thus after my name? It is a secret. So 19 Manoah took a kid with a wheaten-offering, and offered them upon a rock to Jehovah; when a wonderful thing was done, while Manoah and his wife looked on. For when 20 the flame went up towards the heavens from off the altar, the angel Jehovah ascended amid the flame from the altar. And when Manoah and his wife saw this, they fell on their faces to the ground. And as the angel 21 Jehovah appeared no more to Manoah or to his wife, Manoah then knew that he was the angel Jehovah. And Manoah said to 22 his wife, We shall surely die, because we have seen God. But his wife said to him, 23 If Jehovah had intended to kill us, he would not have received a burnt-offering, and a wheaten-offering at our hands, nor would he have showed us all these things, nor have now told us such things as these.

CHAPTER XIV.

B. C. 1141. Samson falleth in love with a woman of Timnath; on his journey thither killeth a lion; on a second journey findeth honey in its carcass; his marriage feast and his riddle.

AND the woman bare a son, and called 24 his name Samson: and the child grew, and Jehovah blessed him. And the Spirit of 25 Jehovah began to move him at times, in the camp of Dan, between Zorah and Eshtaol. And Samson went down to Timnath, and 1 saw a woman in Timnath of the daughters of the Philistines. And he came up, and 2 told his father and his mother, and said, I have seen a woman in Timnath, of the CHAP. XIII. 1. Forty years] This was a long period of cruel oppression, but it was justly deserved.

5. A Nazarite to God] That is, separated to that service, which God designed, to weaken the power of the Philistines. The mother is commanded to live as Nazarites did. See Numb. vi. and notes there.

6. Very awful] That is, full of majesty and grace, something like the countenance of Stephen. See Acts vi. 15.

12. How shall we train up] I have preferred the sense to the idiom, with Houbigant. The words allude to what was said verse 8.

19. When a wonderful thing] Some make the wonderful thing to be, that fire came out of the rock, to consume the sacrifice; but it is clear that this is mere supposition, and that the wonder was the angel's ascending amid the flame towards the heavens.

CHAP. XIV. 1. To Timnath] Jerom informs us, that this place was on the confines of three tribes, Judah, Dan, and Ephraim, between Ptolemais and Gazah.

- daughters of the Philistines: now, therefore,
 3 get her for a wife to me. Then his father and his mother said to him, Is there no woman among the daughters of thine own brethren, or among all 'thine own' people, that thou wouldst go to take a wife from 'among the daughters' of the uncircumcised Philistines? And Samson said to his father, Get her for me; for she pleaseth me well.
 4 Now his father and his mother knew not that he was moved by Jehovah, and that he sought an occasion against the Philistines: for at that time the Philistines had dominion over Israel.
 5 Then went Samson down, and his father and his mother, to Timnath; and they came to the vineyards of Timnath; and, behold!
 6 a young lion roared against him. And the Spirit of Jehovah came mightily upon him, and he tore him to pieces as he would have torn a kid, though he had nothing in his hand: [but he told not his father or his mother what he had done.] And he went down and talked with the woman: and she pleased Samson well.
 8 And, after some time, he returned to take her for his wife; and he turned aside to see the carcass of the lion; and, behold! there was a swarm of bees and honey, in the carcass of the lion. And he took some of it in his hands, and went on eating; and when he came to his father and mother, he gave some of it to them, and they ate: but he told them not that he had taken the honey out of the carcass of the lion.
 10 So his father and mother went down unto the woman; and Samson made there a feast 'of seven days;' for it was the custom for young men on their marriage to do so.
 11 And when the Philistines saw this, they brought thirty companions to be with him.
 12 And Samson said to them, I will now put forth a riddle to you: if ye can certainly find it out and expound it to me within the seven days of the feast, then I will give you thirty shirts and thirty suits of raiment:
 13 But if ye cannot declare it to me, then shall ye give me thirty shirts and thirty suits of raiment. And they said to him, Put forth thy riddle, that we may hear it. And he 14 said unto them, Out of the eater came eatables, and out of the fierce came sweetness. And, during three days they could not expound the riddle. And it came to pass on 15 the 'fourth' day, that they said to Samson's wife, Entice thy husband, that he may declare to thee the riddle; else we will burn thee and thy father's house with fire. Have ye called us to take what we have? Is it not so? And Samson's wife wept before him, 16 and said, Thou dost but hate me, and lovest me not: thou hast put forth a riddle to the children of my people, and hast not told it to me. And he said to her, Behold, I have not told it to my father or my mother, and shall I tell it to thee? And she wept before 17 him the seven days, while their feast lasted: and it came to pass, on the seventh day, that he told her, because she strongly pressed him; and she told the riddle to her people. And the men of the city said unto him on 18 the seventh day, before the sun went down, What is sweeter than honey? and what is more fierce than a lion? And he said to them, If ye had not plowed with my heifer, ye had not found out my riddle.

And the Spirit of Jehovah came upon 19 him, and he went down to Ashkelon, and slew of them thirty men, and took their spoil, and gave suits of raiment to them who expounded the riddle. And his anger was kindled, and he went up to his father's house. But Samson's wife was given to his com- 20 panion, whom he had used as his friend.

CHAPTER XV.

B. C. 1140. Samson denied his wife; burneth the corn of the Philistines; they burn his wife and her father; he is bound and delivered to the Philistines; but routeth them with the jaw-bone of an ass.

BUT it came to pass, in a while after, in 1 the time of wheat harvest, that Samson visited his wife with a kid: and he said, I will go in to my wife into the chamber. But

3. (v) Syr. Arab. (a) 3 MSS.

6. The clause in brackets has the appearance of an interpolation. For how could Samson do this attended by his father and mother, and they not know it? And if they knew, how could he conceal it from them? Some suppose that on hearing the roaring of the young lion he went to attack him, but did not tell his father or his mother what he had done. But this seems scarcely probable.

10. Seven days] That the words added have been omitted in the text seems clear from what follows, 'that so young men did.' For it was not necessary to inform his readers, that on the marriage of a person a feast was usually made; but it was necessary to tell them, that it was the custom to keep the feast seven days. Compare chap. 12. (a) versions.

12. Thirty shirts] So our old versions after the Greek and Vulg. and Harmer has proved that this is the meaning, and conformable to existing customs, among the better sort of people.

14. Fierce came] So the word is rendered, in the common version, Isa. xix. 4, and in this connexion more proper.

15. (v) Sept. Syr. Arab, the rest seventh.

18. Before the sun went down] It is probable that they expounded his riddle, before they ate.—Plowed with my heifer] This seems to have been a proverbial expression; the purport of which is, if ye had not dived into my secret, through my petulant bride, ye would not have been able to solve my riddle.

20. Whom he had used as his friend] That is, the friend of the bridegroom, his first attendant. Samson seems to have been displeased with the treachery of his wife and the mean spirit of her relations; and on this account he departed. The conduct of his wife and her friends shows how little regard was paid to matrimonial rights in those days.

CHAP. XV. 1. With a kid] Kids were and are considered, in the east, as the most delicious food. Hence Samson intended by this present to do honour to his wife.

- her father would not suffer him to go in.
- 2 And her father said, I verily thought that thou hadst utterly hated her; therefore I gave her to thy companion: is not her younger sister fairer than she? take her, I pray thee, instead of her.
- 3 And Samson said concerning them, Now shall I be more blameless than the Philistines, though I do them a displeasure. And Samson went and caught three hundred jackals, and took firebrands, and turned tail to tail, and put a firebrand in the middle between two tails. And when he had set the brands on fire, he let them go into the standing corn of the Philistines, and burned up both the piled up corn, and also the standing corn with the vines and the olives.
- 6 Then the Philistines said, Who hath done this? And some answered, Samson, the son-in-law of the Timnite, because he hath taken his wife and given her to his companion. And the Philistines came up and burned with fire both her and her father's house." Then Samson said to them, Since ye have done this, will I be avenged of you, and then will I cease. And he smote them shoulder upon thigh, with a great slaughter; and he went down and dwelt in a cleft of the rock Etam.
- 9 Then the Philistines went up and encamped in Judah, and spread themselves in Lehi. And the men of Judah said, Why are ye come up against us? And they answered, To bind Samson are we come up, to do to him as he hath done to us. Then three thousand men of Judah went to the top of the rock Etam, and said to Samson, Knowest thou not that the Philistines are rulers over us? what is this that thou hast done unto us? And he said unto them, As they did to me, so have I done to them.
- 12 And they said to him, We are come down to bind thee, that we may deliver thee into the hand of the Philistines. And Samson said to them, Swear to me that ye will not fall upon me yourselves. And they spoke 13 to him, saying, No; but we will bind thee fast, and deliver thee into their hand; but assuredly we will not kill thee. And they bound him with two new cords, and brought him from the rock.

And when he came to Lehi, the Philistines 14 shouted against him; and the Spirit of Jehovah came mightily upon him, and the cords that were upon his arms became as flax that was burnt with fire, and his hands were loosed from off his hands. And he 15 found a new jaw-bone of an ass, and put forth his hand and took it, and smote a thousand men with it. And Samson said, With 16 the jaw-bone of an ass, I have utterly routed them; with the jaw-bone of an ass I have smitten a thousand men. And when he 17 had made an end of speaking, he cast away the jaw-bone out of his hand, and called that place Ramath-lehi [THE JAW-BONE HILL].

And he was exceedingly thirsty, and called 18 on Jehovah, and said, Thou hast wrought this great deliverance by the hand of thy servant; and shall I now die through thirst, and fall into the hand of the uncircumcised? God then opened a crevice which was at 19 Ramath-lehi, and from it water issued forth; and having drunk, his spirit was restored and revived. Hence he called the name of that well En-hakkore [THE INVOCATION-WELL], which is to this day in Ramath-lehi."

CHAPTER XVI.

B. C. 1120. Samson carrieth away the gates of Gaza; Delilah, corrupted by the Philistines, enticeth him; his eyes are put out; his strength being recovered he pulleth down the house on himself and the Philistines.

THEN Samson went to Gaza, and saw 1 there a harlot; and went in to her. "And 2 it was told" the Gazites, saying, Samson is come hither. And they surrounded him and lay in wait for him all night, near the city-

4. Jackals] It is now generally allowed that the animal meant is the jackal. It is a gregarious animal, somewhat like a fox, but far less cunning, and more easily caught. They abounded in Judea. Those commentators, who would render 'sheaves,' have surely never attended to the context. It has been thought that Samson tied one tail to another, so that the animals would pull different ways. But he might tie tail to tail, so that they might run side by side, and nothing is said to lead us to judge otherwise.

6. (a) Versions and MSS.

8. Shoulder upon thigh] That is, so thickly, that the shoulder of the one fell upon the thigh of the other. At least if this be not the meaning, I understand not the words. Dathe supposes the word to be proverbial, and the meaning to be expressed by מכה כדוריה 'a great slaughter.'—Etam] An almost inaccessible rock, in the tribe of Judah, 2 Chron. xi. 6.

15. Smite them] The Hebrew word, which we render smite, is not always equivalent to kill. It means any sort of discomfiture; and seems here to denote the total rout of those Philistines after mentioned.

16. Utterly routed them] The Sept. Chald. and Syr.

render so as clearly to prove, that they read the two last words as verbs and not as nouns, according to the present Masoretic points. They render with perspicuity and force; 'with the jaw-bone of an ass I have utterly routed them,' &c. See note, Hebrew Bible.

19. A crevice which was at Ramath-lehi] The name of Ramath-lehi was given to the place where Samson cast away the jaw-bone. To consider the word, then, as an appellative, in the next verse; and to say that, 'when Samson was thirsty, God clave an hollow place that was in the jaw, and there came water thereout,' must be through want of common attention; because they immediately subjoin, 'wherefore he called the name thereof En-hakkore, (that is, the well of him that called,) which is in Lehi, unto this day.'

20. (a) And he judged Israel in the days of the Philistines twenty years] It is probable that this com. has been inserted here through mistake; as we find it in its proper place at the end of the next chapter.

CHAP. XVI. 1. Samson must have gone to Gaza privately. His conduct in going in to a harlot cannot be justified. It was his sin, and had nearly proved his ruin.

gate, and were quiet all the night, saying, In the morning, when it is day, we will kill 3 him. And Samson lay till midnight; and at midnight he arose, and took the doors of the city-gate, and the two posts, with the bar; and having put them on his shoulders, he went away with them, and carried them up to the top of a hill which is opposite to Hebron.
 4 Now, after this, it happened, that he loved a woman in Nahal-sorek, whose name was 5 Delilah. And the lords of the Philistines came up to her, and said to her, Entice him, and see wherein lieth his great strength, and by what means we may prevail against him, so as to bind him and humble him: and we will each of us give to thee eleven
 6 hundred shekels of silver. And Delilah said to Samson, Tell me, I pray thee, wherein lieth thy great strength, and with what thou
 7 mayest be bound and humbled? And Samson said to her, If they bind me with seven green withes which were never dried, then shall I be weak, and be as another
 8 man. Then the lords of the Philistines brought up to her seven green withes which had not been dried, and she bound him
 9 with them. Now, while men lay waiting in her chamber, she said to him, The Philistines are about to fall upon thee, Samson. And he broke the withes, as a thread of tow is broken when it toucheth the fire. So
 10 the cause of his strength was not known. And Delilah said to Samson, Behold, thou hast deceived me, and told me lies; now tell me, I pray thee, with what thou mayest 11 be bound. And he said to her, If they bind me fast with new ropes which have never been used, then shall I be weak, and be as 12 another man. Delilah therefore took new ropes, and bound him with them, and while men were waiting in the chamber, she said to him, The Philistines are about to fall upon thee, Samson. And he broke the 13 ropes from off his arms like thread. And Delilah said to Samson, Hitherto thou hast deceived me, and told me lies: tell me with what thou mayest be bound. And he said to her, If thou interweave the seven locks of my head with that web, and fasten them to the pin, I shall become weak, and be as another man. So, while he was asleep, she interwove with the web the seven locks of his head," And she fastened them to the 14 pin, and said to him, The Philistines are about to fall upon thee, Samson. And he awoke out of his sleep, and went away with the pin of the beam, and with the web.

And she said to him, How canst thou 15 say, I love thee, when thy heart is not with me? thou hast deceived me these three times and hast not told me in what thy great strength lieth. Now as she pressed him 16 daily with her words, and urged him, so that his soul was vexed unto death, He told her 17 all his mind, and said unto her, There hath not come a razor upon my head; for I have been a Nazirite to God, from my mother's womb; were I shaved, my strength would depart from me, and I should become weak and be like any other man. And when 18 Delilah saw that he had told her all his mind, she sent and called for the lords of the Philistines, saying, Come up this once, for he hath showed me all his mind. Then the lords of the Philistines came up to her, and brought money in their hand. And 19 she made him sleep upon her knees; and she called for a man, and she caused him to shave off the seven locks of his head; and she began to humble him, for his strength had departed from him. And she said, The 20 Philistines are about to fall upon thee, Samson. And he awoke out of his sleep, and said, I will go out as at former times, and rouse up myself: for he knew not, as yet, that Jehovah had departed from him. The Philistines now took him, and put out 21 his eyes, and brought him down to Gaza, and bound him with fetters of brass; and he was made to grind at a mill in the prison-house.

The hair of his head after he had been 22 shaved began now to grow again. And the 23 lords of the Philistines assembled to offer a great sacrifice to Dagon, their god, and to rejoice: for they said, Our god hath delivered Samson, our enemy, into our hand. And when the people saw him, they praised 24 their god, for they said, Our god hath delivered into our hands our enemy, and the

4. Nahal-sorek] This was in the tribe of Dan, not far from Eshtaol. Delilah was doubtless a courtesan; and Samson's attachment to her proved his ruin.

6. Tell me, I pray thee] Had Samson given her a positive refusal, he would have acted more like a man of honour, than by repeatedly imposing on her. His conduct shows the influence this woman had over him; and justifies the remark of Solomon, that by such a character many strong have been cast down.

13, 14. The Sept. read here as in the other instances; and there can be no doubt but some transcriber omitted a whole line, and others have followed his faulty codex. In order to have some idea of what is here told, the reader must know, first, that the looms of Palestine were extremely simple; probably, not unlike those that are still used in many parts of Asia and Africa: secondly, that they were worked by women: thirdly, that the web was narrow, little more, perhaps, than a hand's breadth: fourthly, that the woof was driven into the warp, not by a reed but by a wooden spatula: fifthly, that the end of the web was fastened to a pin or stake, fixed probably in the wall, or driven into the ground: sixthly that Samson was, probably, sleeping with his head on Delilah's lap, when she wove his hair into the web. Compare v. 19.

20. He knew not, as yet] It was natural to expect that as he had forsaken God, indulged a most criminal passion, and betrayed a secret which he ought to have kept, God would so far forsake him as to let him know the consequence of his conduct.

27. Upon the roof] The temple of Dagon seems to have destroyer of our country, who slew so many 25 of us. And when their hearts were merry, they said, Call for Samson that he may make us sport. And they called for Samson out of the prison-house; and they set him between the pillars of the house: and he 26 made them sport. And Samson said unto the lad that held him by the hand, Suffer me that I may feel the pillars upon which the house standeth, that I may lean upon 27 them. Now the house was full of men and women; and all the lords of the Philistines were there; and there were upon the roof about three thousand men and women, who 28 beheld while Samson made sport. And Samson called to Jehovah, and said, O Lord Jehovah, remember me, I pray thee, and strengthen me, I pray thee, only this once, O God, that I may be at once avenged 29 of the Philistines for my two eyes. And Samson took hold of the two middle pillars upon which the house stood, and by which it was borne up, of the one with his right hand, 30 and of the other with his left. And Samson said, Let me die with the Philistines. And he bowed himself with all his might; and the house fell upon the lords, and upon all the people that were in it. So the dead whom he slew at his death were more than 31 those whom he had slain in his life. Then his brethren and all the house of his father came down, and took him, and brought him up, and buried him between Zorah and Eshtaol in the burying-place of Manoah his father. And he judged Israel twenty years.

B. C. 1406. Images made of the money which Micah first stole, and then restored to his mother; he hires a Levite to be his priest; Danites come and take his gods and the Levite.

1 AND there was a man of mount Ephraim, 2 whose name was Micah. And he said to his mother, The eleven hundred shekels of silver that were taken from thee, about which thou cursedst, and spakest of also in mine hearing; behold, the silver is with me; I took it. And his mother said, 3 Blessed of Jehovah be my son. And when he had restored the eleven hundred shekels of silver to his mother, his mother said, I been a round, or oval edifice. In the middle were two main posts, from which, beams diverging to the wall supported a gallery that went round the building. Samson was placed between those posts, that he might be seen, not only by those who were below, but also by those who were in the gallery. This gallery is here called the roof. So Dr. Shaw explains it, which seems most probable.

CHAP. XVII. 1. See Introductory Remarks to this Book. The things now related must have occurred soon after the time of Joshua.

3. An engraved, molten image] I agree with those critics, who consider both the words פסל ויכסה as only denoting one image; which was first cast by the founder and then had wholly dedicated the silver to Jehovah on account of my son; that it might be made into an engraved, molten image: therefore to thee I will now return it. But 4 he gave back the money to his mother, and his mother took two hundred shekels of the silver, and gave them to the founder, who made of them an engraved, molten image: and it was placed in the house of Micah. And the man Micah had a house for his god; 5 and he made an ephod, and teraphs, and consecrated one of his sons, who became his priest. In those days there was no king in 6 Israel; so every man did what was right in his own eyes.

Now there was a young man from Beth- 7 lehem-Judah, who was a Levite, and had sojourned there. And the man departed 8 out of the city of Bethlehem-Judah, to sojourn where he could find a place: and he came to mount Ephraim, to the house of Micah, as he journeyed. And Micah said 9 to him, Whence comest thou? And he said to him, I am a Levite of Bethlehem-Judah, and I go to sojourn where I may find a place. And Micah said to him, Dwell with 10 me, and be to me a father and a priest, and I will give to thee every year ten shekels of silver, and a suit of clothes, and thy victuals. So the Levite went in. And the Levite 11 was content to dwell with the man; and the young man was to him as one of his sons. And Micah consecrated the Levite; and 12 the young man became his priest, and was in the house of Micah. Then said Micah, 13
 Now know I that Jehovah will do me good, seeing I have a Levite for my priest.

In those days, there was no king in Israel; 1 and in those days the tribe of the Danites sought an inheritance to dwell in; for to that day all their inheritance had not fallen to them among the tribes of Israel. And the 2 children of Dan sent five men of their own family, men of valour, from their own boundaries, from Zorah, and from Eshtaol, to spy out the land and to search it; and they said unto them, Go, search the land. And they came to mount Ephraim, near to the house of Micah, and they lodged there. 3
 When they were near the house of Micah, they distinguished the voice of the young engraved. The verb in the end of the next verse is singular, in the text and versions, and makes it evident that only one image is here intended. For it is, not they were placed, but it was placed.

7. In the common text two words have been inserted by mistake; and had we no authority for their omission, but the general history, they ought to be omitted; for how could a man be a Levite, and yet of the family of Judah? (o) Of the family of Judah, Syr. Arab. 1 MS.

CHAP. XVIII. 1. The Danites sought] The inheritance first assigned to the Danites was too narrow for them, which forced them to undertake this expedition. See Josh. xix. 47.

man, the Levite; and they turned in thither, and said to him, Who brought thee hither? and what doest thou in this place? and 4 what is thine office here? And he said to them, Thus and thus Micah treateth me, and I am his priest. And they said to him, 5 Ask counsel, we pray thee, of God, that we may know whether our enterprise on which 6 we go, shall be prosperous. And the priest said to them, Go in peace: Jehovah is with you, in your enterprise, on which ye go.
 7 Then the five men departed, and came to 'Leshem;' and they saw that the people who dwelt in it were careless; after the manner of the Sidonians, quiet and secure; and there was nothing to molest them in the land: they possessed also riches without restraint. And they were far from the Sidonians, and had no intercourse with other
 8 men. And they came to their brethren to Zorah and Eshtaol; and their brethren said
 9 to them, What is your report? And they said, Arise, let us go up against them; for we have seen the land, and behold, it is very good: hasten therefore, delay not to go and 10 take possession of the land. When ye go, ye shall come to a secure people, and to an extensive country; a place in which there is no want of any thing on the earth; and which God will deliver into our hands.
 11 And there went thence of the family of the Danites, from Zorah and from Eshtaol, six hundred men armed with weapons of 12 war. And they went up, and encamped near Kirjath-jearim, in Judah; hence that place, to this day, is called Mahaneh-Dan [THE CAMP OF DAN]: behold, it is behind 13 Kirjath-jearim. And they passed thence to mount Ephraim, and came to the house of 14 Micah. Then spoke the five men who had gone to spy out the country of Leshem, and said to their brethren, Do ye know that there is in these houses an ephod, and teraphs, and an engraved, molten image? now therefore consider what ye have to 15 do. And they turned thitherward and came to the house of the young man, the Levite, to the house of Micah, and saluted
 16 him. And the six hundred men, armed with their weapons of war, who were of the children of Dan, stood near the en-17 trance of the gate. And the five men who had gone to spy out the land, went up, and came in thither, and took the engraved, molten image, and the ephod, and the teraphs; and the priest stood near the entrance of the gate, with the six hundred men, who were armed with weapons of war. So these men went into Micah's house, and brought out the engraved, molten image, the ephod, and the teraphs. Then said the priest to them, What are ye about to do? And they said to him, Be thou silent; lay 19 thine hand upon thy mouth; and go with us, and be to us a father and a priest. Is it better for thee to be a priest to the house of one man, or to be a priest to a tribe-family in Israel? And the priest's heart was glad, 20 and he took the ephod, and the teraphs, and the engraved, molten image, and went along with the people. So they turned and de- 21 parted, and put before them the little ones, and cattle and substance.

When they were a good way from the 22 house of Micah, the men whose houses were near to Micah's house assembled and followed after the Danites. And they cried 23 to the Danites; and they turned their faces, and said to Micah, What aileth thee, that thou thus 'criest aloud?' And he said, Ye 24 have taken away the gods which I made for myself, and the priest, and ye are gone away: and what have I more? and how can ye say to me, What aileth thee? And the 25 Danites said to him, Let not thy voice be heard among us, lest angry men rush upon thee, and thou lose thy life, with the lives of thy household. And the Danites went 26 on their way; and when Micah saw they were too strong for him, he turned and went back to his own house.

So they took the gods which Micah had 27 made, and the priest which he had, and came to Leshem, to a people quiet and secure; and they smote them with the edge of the sword, and burnt the city with fire. And there was no deliverer, because it was 28 far from Sidon, (for it was in the valley which is by Bethhoreb,) and the people had no intercourse with other men. And they rebuilt the city, and dwelt in it; And they 29 called the name of the city Dan, after the name of Dan their father, who was born to Israel: but the name of the city was formerly Leshem. And the Danites set up 30 the engraved image of Micah; and Jona-

7. Leshem] So the place is called, Josh. xix. 47, where this history is briefly related. The context leads to the version given. They lived secluded from others in a rich fertile vale; and, being unprepared for war, might easily be conquered.

21. The little ones] The text is here doubtful; and most suppose the little ones, and cattle, and substance, to belong to the Danites. I agree with Geddes in thinking they belonged to the Levite. 23. (v) Sept., &c.

30. Son of Moses] It is disputed whether we should read משה or משהו. The Jews themselves confess the latter has been inserted, or, as it is in many MSS. and editions, suspended, for the honour of Moses, to denote that Jonathan was more worthy to be the grandson of Manasseh, the idolatrous king of Israel, than of Moses the legislator. Some critics still contend for Manasseh, and among these I am surprised to find Dathe. If he had been consistent with himself (see his note on the 17th chap.) he must have admitted that the circumstance of time invalidates this opinion; and the authorities in favour of Moses being the original reading are also of considerable weight. (v) Vulg. and copies of the Sept.

than, the son of Gershom, the son of "Moses," he and his sons were priests to the tribe of Dan until the day of the captivity of the 11 land. And they set them up Micah's graven image, which he made, all the time that the house of God was in Shiloh.

CHAPTER XIX.

1. C. 1406. A Levite goeth to Bethlehem to fetch his wife; an old man lodgeth him; the Gibeahites abuse his concubine-wife to death.

AND it came to pass in those days, when there was no king in Israel, that a certain Levite who sojourned on the side of Mount Ephraim, took to him a concubine-wife out of Bethlehem of Judah. But his concubine 'disliked' him, and departed from him unto her father's house, to Bethlehem of Judah, and was there four whole months. And her husband arose, and went after her, that he might gain her affection, and bring her back, having his servant with him, and a couple of asses. And she brought him into her father's house; and when the father of the damsel saw him, he rejoiced to meet him again. And his father-in-law, the damsel's father, retained him; and he abode with him three days: and they ate, and drank, and lodged together. And on the fourth day, they arose early in the morning, and he prepared to depart; but the damsel's father said to his son-in-law, Refresh thyself with food, and afterwards depart. And they sat down, and both of them ate and drank together: and the damsel's father said to the man, Consent, I pray thee, to tarry all night, and enjoy thyself. And when the man rose to depart, his father-in-law urged him, so that he lodged there again. And he arose early in the morning, on the fifth day, to depart: and the damsel's father said, Refresh thyself, I pray thee. And they tarried until afternoon, and they both of them ate. And the man then rose to depart, he, and his concubine, and his servant; but his father-in-law, the damsel's father, said to him, Behold, now the day draweth towards evening, tarry, I pray thee, all night: behold the day vergeth to an end, lodge here, and enjoy thyself; and early to-morrow go on your way, and get home. But the man would not tarry that 10 night, but rose up and departed, and came over against Jebus, which is Jerusalem; and there were with him two saddled asses, and his concubine also was with him. And 11 when they were by Jebus, the day was far spent; and the servant said to his master, Come, I pray thee, and let us turn in to this city of the Jebusites, and lodge in it. And 12 his master said to him, We will not turn aside hither into the city of strangers, who are not of Israel; we will pass on to Gibeah. And he said unto his servant, Go on, until 13 we reach one of those places, and let us lodge in Gibeah, or in Ramath. And they 14 passed on and went forward; and the sun went down upon them when they were by Gibeah, which belonged to Benjamin. And 15 thither they turned aside, to go in to lodge in Gibeah; and when they went in, they sat down in a street in the city; for no man took them into his house to lodge.

And, behold, there came from his work 16 out of the field at even, an old man; who was likewise of mount Ephraim, although he sojourned in Gibeah: but the men of the place were Benjamites. And when he 17 raised his eyes, he saw a wayfaring man in the street of the city: and the old man said, Whither goest thou? and whence comest thou? And he said to him, We are passing 18 from Bethlehem of Judah unto the side of mount Ephraim, whence I am. And I went to Bethlehem of Judah, but am now going to the house of Jehovah; and there is no man that receiveth me to his house. Yet 19 we have both straw and provender for our asses; and bread and wine also for myself, and for thine hand-maid, and for the young man who is with thy servant: we want not any thing. And the old man said, Peace 20 be with thee; howsoever, let all thy wants lie upon me: only lodge not in the street. So he brought them unto his house, and 21 gave provender unto the asses: and they washed their feet, and ate and drank.

Now as they were enjoying themselves, 22 behold the men of the city, certain worthless men, surrounded the house, beat at the door, and spoke to the master of the house, the old man, saying, Bring forth the man

CHAP. XIX. 1. The history here recorded, is, in osepheus, placed after the expedition of the Ephraim-ites to Bethel (recorded chap. i. 22.) It is plain from hap. xx. 28, that it happened while Phinehas was high priest: and therefore is here entirely out of its place.

2. I have followed the versions in reading here, 'she disliked him'; for had she played the harlot, he would have had the right to have punished her. Besides, his going to gain her heart or affection is a proof that this is the true reading. (v) Sept. Chald.

4-9. We here see much simplicity and hospitality. The Levite succeeds in gaining the affection of his concubine-wife, and she is willing to go with him.

15. No man took them into his house] This shows that the people of Gibeah were unkind and inhospitable.

19. We want not any thing] They had provisions and necessaries with them; they only wanted shelter during the night. Such was then, and such is still, the mode of travelling, in that and other eastern countries.

22. Worthless men] This is allowed to be the sense of the idiomatical phrase, 'sons of Belial,' which I have preferred as not liable to be misunderstood. Their conduct shows the highest degree of depravity.

23-25. The conduct of the old man and the Levite reminds us of that of Lot. The same sense of the rights of hospitality is manifest.

26. Nothing can be more base than their conduct towards who came into thine house, that we may 23 know him. And the man, the master of the house, went out to them, and said to them, Nay, my brethren, I pray you, act not wickedly; seeing this man is come into mine house, do not this shameful deed.

 24 Behold, here is my daughter, a maiden, and his concubine; them I will bring out now and humble ye them, and do with them what seemeth good to yourselves: but unto 25 this man do not so shameful a deed. But the men would not hearken; so the man took his concubine, and brought her forth unto them; and they knew her, and abused her all the night until the morning: and when the day began to dawn, they let her 26 go. Then came the woman at the dawning of the day, and fell down at the door of the man's house, in which her husband was;
 27 where she lay till it was light. And her husband arose in the morning, and opened the doors of the house, and went out to go his way; and, behold, the woman, his concubine, was fallen down at the door of the house, and her hands were upon the thresh-
 28 old. And he said to her, Rise, and let us be going. But none answered. Then the man took her upon an ass; and the man 29 set out and went to his own place. And when he had come to his own house, he took a knife, and dismembered his concubine, into twelve pieces, and sent her into 30 all the districts of Israel. And whosoever saw it said, There hath been no such deed done nor seen from the day that the Israelites came up out of the land of Egypt unto this day: consider it, take advice, and speak your minds.

CHAPTER XX.

B. C. 1406. A general assembly of the Israelites; their determination; the Benjamites refuse to destroy the men of Gibeah, and twice repulse the other tribes; they are at last destroyed.

1 THEN all the congregation of Israel, from Dan even to Beersheba, with the land of Gilead, came out as one man, and held an assembly before Jehovah at Mizpeh. And the chief of all the people, of all the tribes of Israel, presented themselves in this assembly of the people of God, four hundred thousand footmen who drew the sword.
 3 And the Benjamites heard that the Israelites were gone up to Mizpeh.

Then said the Israelites, Tell us how this strangers; and they deserved that vengeance which at last fell on them.

29. And dismembered] This expresses the sense of the text, without the idiom.

CHAP. XX. 1. At Mizpeh] This was a central place, and not far from Shiloh. This general assembly proves, that all the Israelites were not like the men of Gibeah.

9. We will go up by lot] I have followed the Sept. Houbigant renders, 'We will draw lots against Gibeah;' and I doubt, whether this may not be the sense.

wickedness was done? And the Levite, the husband of the woman who had been slain, answered and said, I came to Gibeah which belongeth to Benjamin, I and my concubine, to lodge; And certain men of Gibeah arose against me, and surrounded the house where I was, by night, and me they intended to have slain: and my concubine they so abused that she died. And I took my concubine and cut her in pieces, and sent her throughout all the country of the inheritance of Israel: for they have committed most shameful lewdness in Israel. Behold, ye are all children of Israel; give here your advice, and counsel.

And all the people arose as one man, saying, We will not any of us go to his tent, nor will any of us return to his own house. But now this shall be the thing which we will do to Gibeah; 'we will go up' by lot against it; and we will take ten men of a hundred throughout all the tribes of Israel, and a hundred of a thousand, and a thousand out of ten thousand, to fetch victuals for the people, that they may do, when they come to Gibeah of Benjamin, according to the shameful deed which they of that city have wrought in Israel. So all the men of Israel were gathered and combined as one man against that city.

Still the tribes of Israel sent men through all the tribes of Benjamin, saying, What wickedness is this which hath been done among you? Now, therefore, deliver to us the men, the worthless men, who are in Gibeah, that we may put them to death, and put away evil from Israel. But the Benjamites would not hearken to the voice of their brethren, the Israelites: But the Benjamites assembled out of the other cities unto Gibeah, to go out thence to battle against Israel. And the Benjamites were numbered, at that time, out of the cities, twenty and six thousand men who drew the sword, besides the inhabitants of Gibeah, of whom were numbered, seven hundred chosen men. Among all this people there were seven hundred chosen men, left-handed; every one could sling stones at a hair, and not miss. And of the men of Israel, besides Benjamin, were numbered four hundred thousand men who drew the sword: all these were men of war.

And the Israelites arose, and went up to Bethel, and asked counsel of God, and said,

16. Left-handed] Geddes, after some others, renders 'lame of the right hand,' but observes it is hard to conceive how seven hundred men should all be lame of their right hand! Hard indeed! This should have convinced him that the common version is here doubtless right.

18. Went up to Bethel] Our translators and others render, 'the house of God.' The old versions consider Beth as meant, which lay in their way to Gibeah. Besides, the house is never called בית אל, but בית יהוה, or בית האלהים. Nor does their consulting God imply, that they had com-

which of us shall go up first to the battle against the Benjamites? And Jehovah said, 19 Judah shall go up first. And the Israelites arose in the morning, and encamped against 20 Gibeah. And the men of Israel went out to battle against Benjamin; and the men of Israel put themselves in array to fight 21 against them at Gibeah. And the Benjamites came forth out of Gibeah, and destroyed down to the ground of the Israelites that day twenty-two thousand men. 22 And the Israelites went up and wept before Jehovah until the evening, and asked counsel of Jehovah, saying, Shall we go up to battle against the Benjamites our brethren? And Jehovah said, Go up against them. 23 And the people, the men of Israel, encouraged themselves, and set their battle again in array in the place where they put themselves in array the first day. And on the second day, the Israelites drew near to fight 24 the Benjamites. And Benjamin went forth against them out of Gibeah on the second day, and again destroyed down to the ground of the Israelites, eighteen thousand men; all these drew the sword. 25 Then all the Israelites, and all the people went up, and came to Bethel; and wept and sat there before Jehovah, and fasted that day until the evening, and offered burnt-offerings and feast-offerings before 26 Jehovah. And the Israelites inquired of Jehovah, (for the ark of the covenant of God was there in those days, And Phinehas, the son of Eleazar, the son of Aaron, stood before it, in those days,) saying, Shall we yet again go out to battle against the Benjamites our brother, or shall we cease? And Jehovah said, Go up; for to-morrow 27 I will deliver them into your hand. Israel now placed men in ambush round about 28 Gibeah. And the Israelites went up against the Benjamites on a third day, and put themselves in array against Gibeah, as at 29 other times. And the Benjamites went out against the people, and were drawn away from the city; and they began to smite of the people, and kill, as at other times in the highways, one of which went up towards Bethel, and the other to Gibeah in the field, 30 about thirty men of Israel. And the Benjamites said, They are smitten down before us, as at the first. But the Israelites said, Let us flee, and draw them from the city to the highways. And all the men of Israel arose out 31 of their place, and put themselves in array at Baal-tamar; and the men of Israel in ambush came forth out of their places, out of the caves of Gibeah. Hence came against 32 Gibeah ten thousand chosen men of all Israel, and the battle was dreadful; but the Benjamites knew not the evil that was near them. And Jehovah smote Benjamin before 33 Israel; and the Israelites destroyed of the Benjamites, that day, twenty-five thousand and one hundred men: all these drew the sword. For the Benjamites saw that 34 the Israelites were smitten as before: for the men of Israel gave place to the Benjamites, because they trusted to the men in ambush, whom they had placed about Gibeah. And 35 the men in ambush hastened, and rushed upon Gibeah; and they invaded and smote the whole city with the edge of the sword. Now a signal had been appointed between 36 the men of Israel and the men in ambush; namely, that they should make a cloud of smoke to rise up out of the city. And when 37 the men of Israel retired in the battle, Benjamin began to smite and kill of the men of Israel about thirty persons; for they said, Surely, they are smitten down before us, as in the first battle. But when the cloud of 38 smoke began to rise out of the city like a pillar, the Benjamites looked behind them, and, behold the flame of the city ascended up to the heavens. And when the men of 39 Israel turned again, the men of Benjamin were confounded; for they saw that evil was come upon them. They, therefore, re- 40 treated before the men of Israel by the way of the wilderness; but the battle overtook them: and they who came out of their own city destroyed them in the mid-way. Thus they 41 surrounded the Benjamites, and chased them, and trod them down with ease, over against Gibeah, towards the sunrising. And there 42 fell of Benjamin eighteen thousand men; all these were men of valour. And the rest 43 turned and fled towards the wilderness, unto the rock of Rimmon: and they gleaned of them in the highways five thousand men!

o Shiloh to the tabernacle; for they consulted God, when they were before Gibeah, doubtless by the high priest.

21. Twenty two thousand] From the nature of the ground on which they fought, it is probable the numbers of the Israelites were of no advantage; and hence their final stratagem to draw the Benjamites away, and by an ambush take the city.

22, 23. These two verses have been clearly transposed. Modern critics transpose after the next, where they properly belong. The order of the narrative requires this change. Can it be supposed that the men of Israel were encouraged to set the battle in order, before they had consulted God, and received his command to go up again before Gibeah? By transposing the two verses all is natural and easy.

27. For the ark of the covenant] The ark was often taken from the tabernacle, as we learn in the subsequent history; and it was now at Bethel, though the tabernacle was at Shiloh.

31. Gibeah in the field] Geddes supposes this might be a village, called from its situation, Gibeah in the field. This is no improbable supposition.

33. Caves of Gibeah] So Rabbi Levi renders, and I think justly; for how could ambushes be laid in meadows?

36. These, and the ten following verses, are a more minute account of the manner in which the battle was carried on. 45 (v) Syr. Arab.

and pursued them to "Gibeon," and slew of 46 them two thousand men. So that all who fell that day of Benjamin, were twenty-five thousand men who drew the sword; all these 47 were men of valour. But six hundred men turned and fled to the wilderness, to the rock of Rimmon; and on the rock of Rim-48 mon they abode four months. And the men of Israel returned upon the rest of the Benjamites, and smote whomsoever they found with the edge of the sword, as well the men of every city, as the beasts; also they set on fire all the cities to which they came.

CHAPTER XXI.

B. C. 1406. The Israelites bewail the destruction of Benjamin; they take the virgins of Jabesh-gilead for wives to those who remained; and advise those still without to take the young women of Shiloh by surprise.

1 Now the men of Israel had sworn in Miz-peh, saying, There shall not any of us give 2 his daughter unto Benjamin to wife. And the people came to Bethel, and abode there till the evening, before God; and they raised their 3 voices, and wept much: And said, O Jehovah, the God of Israel, why is this come to pass in Israel that there should be, this day, 4 one tribe wanting in Israel? And early on the morrow, the people arose, and built there an altar, and offered burnt-offerings
 5 and feast-offerings. And the Israelites said, Who is there among all the tribes of Israel that came not up to the assembly, held before Jehovah? For they had made a great oath concerning such as came not to Mizpeh, before Jehovah, saying, They shall surely be 6 put to death. And the Israelites repented concerning Benjamin their brother, and said,
 There is one tribe cut off from Israel this 7 day. What shall we do for wives for those who remain, seeing we have sworn by Jehovah, that we will not give them for wives any of our daughters?
 8 And they said, What one is there of the tribes of Israel that came not up to Miz-peh, before Jehovah? And behold, there came none to the camp and the assembly 9 from Jabesh-gilead. For the people were numbered, when, behold there were none of the inhabitants of Jabesh-gilead there. And 11 the congregation sent thither twelve thousand of the most valiant, and commanded them, saying, Go and smite the inhabitants of Jabesh-gilead with the edge of the sword; with their wives and children. And this is 11 the thing ye shall do, Ye shall utterly destroy every male, and every woman that hath lain with man; "but the virgins ye shall preserve alive." And they found among the inhabit- 12 ants of Jabesh-gilead four hundred young virgins who had not lain with man: and they brought them to the camp to Shiloh, which is in the land of Canaan. The whole 13 congregation then sent messengers to speak to the Benjamites, who were on the rock of Rimmon, and to proclaim peace to them.

 And the Benjamites at that time returned; 14 and they gave to them for wives the women of Jabesh-gilead, whom they had preserved alive; but these were not sufficient for them.
 And the people repented concerning Ben- 15 jamin, because that Jehovah had made a breach in the tribes of Israel.

Then the elders of the congregation said, 16
 What shall we do for wives for them that remain, seeing the women are destroyed out of Benjamin? And they said, The inherit- 17 ance of Benjamin must be kept for those who have escaped, that a tribe be not destroyed out of Israel. Yet we may not 18 give to them wives of our daughters; for the Israelites have sworn, saying, Cursed be he that giveth a wife to Benjamin. They 19 then said, behold there is a yearly feast to Jehovah in a place in Shiloh, (which is on the north side of Bethel, on the east side of the highway that goeth up from Bethel to Shechem, and on the south of Lebonah.)
 They therefore advised the Benjamites, say- 20 ing, Go and lie in ambush among the vine- 21 yards; And look, and lo! when the daughters of Shiloh come out to dance in companies, then come ye out of the vineyards, and catch ye every one his woman from among the daughters of Shiloh, and go to the land of Benjamin. And it shall be, when their 22

CHAP. XXI. 3. One tribe wanting] Those who felt any regard to the welfare of their country must have deeply lamented the sad necessity which had nearly blotted out one of the tribes of Israel. They had many enemies around them, and civil war weakened them.

5. They shall surely be put to death] On solemn occasions, the Israelites, in their general assemblies, thus entered into mutual engagements, to undertake some enterprise, or to avenge some injury; and as such an assembly constituted the supreme civil power of the state, they had a right to demand aid and assistance from the nation, and to punish those who refused to give it. On principles of natural justice, the inhabitants of Jabesh-gilead deserved the treatment they received, as enemies to the state.

11. The addition now found in the Sept. and Vulg. is supported by the context; and even the cautious Dathe admits it to be genuine.

12. In the land of Canaan] These words may seem redundant, but it is probable they are added from Joshua, to intimate, that Jabesh-gilead was on the other side the Jordan, and strictly speaking in the land properly called Canaan.

13—15. The proposal of peace to the few Benjamites who remained, and the solicitude to provide them wives, shows the repentance of the other Israelites for what had occurred.

19. A feast of Jehovah] This was the feast of tabernacles, which was celebrated with rejoicing; and at this place, the young women who dwelt in Shiloh, and the cities about, used to assemble to dance when the weather permitted them.

21. Catch every one] This might easily be done, as there were only the young women together, the daughters of Shiloh. There were no men, as is the custom of the present day; nor did the married women so far forget their gravity, and regard to their families, as to go with them.

fathers or their brethren come to us to complain, we will say to them, Be favourable to them for our sakes; because we reserved not to each man his wife in the war: for as ye did not at this time give to any of them ye cannot be guilty. And the Benjamites did so, and took wives, according to their number, of those, whom they caught dancing:

and they went and returned into their own inheritance, and repaired the cities, and dwelt in them. And at that time the Israelites departed thence, every man to his own tribe and family; and they went thence every one to his own inheritance. In those 25 days there was no king in Israel: every one did what was right in his own eyes.

22. This contrivance to supply the Benjamites with wives, will recall to the classical reader, a like contrivance of the Romans. It is here supposed, that the brothers of the young women ought to have defended them; and we see this custom early established. Compare Gen. xxiv. 50. and xxxiv. 25—31, and notes there.

RUTH.

INTRODUCTION.

This book is a kind of supplement to the book of Judges, and supposed to have been written by Samuel, as it brings down the history of Israel to his time. It is called the book of Ruth, because it treats of her, and details the manner in which she was united to the Israelites. It may be considered as an introduction to the history of David, whose genealogy it contains; and designed to show that the Messiah, who was the descendant of David, sprang from Judah, by Ruth, according to the prophecy of Jacob. The Jews considered it disgraceful to David, to have derived his birth from a Moabitess; and some think Shimei alludes to this in his revilings against him. This circumstance is a striking proof of its verity; for had it not been an incontrovertible fact, a circumstance so little flattering to the most beloved of their kings would not have been recorded. It has been observed that the Evangelists have also stamped the seal of divine authority on this book, by referring to it in the genealogy of our Lord; and perhaps the union of a Moabitess with the family from which our Lord sprang, was intended to intimate, that he was to be alike the Saviour of Jew and Gentile.

CHAPTER I.

B. C. 1312. Elimelech, driven by famine into Moab, dieth; his two sons also die there; Naomi, returning to Bethlehem, persuades her daughters-in-law to remain, but Ruth attends her.

1 Now in the days when the judges ruled, there was a famine in the land. And a certain man of Bethlehem of Judah went to sojourn in the country of Moab, he, 2 and his wife, and his two sons. And the name of the man was Elimelech, and the name of his wife Naomi, and the name of his two sons Mahlon and Chilion, Ephraimites of Bethlehem of Judah. And they came into the country of Moab, and continued there. And Elimelech, Naomi's husband, died; and she was left, and her two 4 sons. And they took to themselves wives of the women of Moab; the name of the one was Orpah, and the name of the other Ruth. And they dwelled there about ten 5 years. When both Mahlon and Chilion likewise died: thus the woman was left behind her two sons and her husband. 6 Then she arose with her daughters-in-law, that she might return from the country of Moab; for she had heard in the country of Moab, how Jehovah had visited his people, by giving them bread. Therefore she 7 departed from the place where she was, and her two daughters-in-law with her; and they went on the way to return into the land of Judah. And Naomi said to her 8 two daughters-in-law, Go, return, each to her mother's house: may Jehovah deal kindly with you, as ye have dealt with the dead, and with me. Jehovah grant that 9 ye may each find rest in the house of her own husband. Then she kissed them; and they raised their voice, and wept. And they 10 said to her, Surely we will return with thee unto thy people. And Naomi said, Return, 11 my daughters: why will ye go with me? are there yet any sons in my womb, that they may be husbands to you? Return, my 12 daughters, go back, for I am too old to have a husband. Should I say there is yet hope; should I this night have a husband; and should I also bear sons; Would ye tarry 13 until they were grown up? would ye on account of them be detained from having husbands? No, my daughters! although it be

CHAP. I. 8, 9. Naomi said to her] She probably thought that their situation would be better in their own country than in Judea; and this was the reason of her advice. She had witnessed in both her daughters-in-law, prudence and kindness, and devoutly prayed that each might again be married.

11—13. From this address it seems probable that Naomi had informed them of the nature of the Levirate law, or that some such law also obtained in Moab.

13. Although it be more bitter] This is the version of the Sept. Syr. Arab. and Targums. The meaning appears to be, 'My loss is greater than yours, my affliction more bit-

- more bitter to me than to you, that the hand of Jehovah hath gone forth against me.
- 14 And they raised their voice, and again wept: and Orpah kissed her mother-in-law, "and returned to her own people;" but
- 15 Ruth cleaved to her. And she said, Behold, thy sister-in-law is gone to her people, and to her gods: return thou after thy sister-in-law. But Ruth said, Intreat me not to leave thee, or to return from following thee: for, whither thou goest, I will go; and where thou lodgest I will lodge; thy people shall be my people, and thy God my
- 17 God. Where thou diest, I will die, and there will I be buried. May Jehovah do so and so to me, if ought but death part
- 18 me from thee. When she saw that she was determined to go with her, she then ceased to reason with her.
- 19 So they both went on until they came to Bethlehem; and when they were come to Bethlehem, all the city was moved about
- 20 them, and they said, Is this Naomi? And she said to them, Call me not Naomi [JOYFUL]; call me Mara [SORROWFUL]; for with bitter sorrow hath the Almighty dealt
- 21 with me. I went out full, and Jehovah hath brought me back empty; why then call me Naomi, since Jehovah hath humbled me, and the Almighty hath afflicted me?

CHAPTER II.

B. C. 1312. Ruth gleaneth in the field of Boaz; he kindly noticeeth her, and gives her liberty to glean with his maidens.

- 22 Thus Naomi returned from the country of Moab, and Ruth, the Moabitess, her daughter-in-law, with her; and they came to Bethlehem in the beginning of the barley harvest.
- 1 And Naomi had a kinsman of her husband's, of the family of Elimelech, a man of great wealth; and his name was Boaz.
- 2 And Ruth, the Moabitess, said to Naomi, Let me now go to the field, and glean ears of corn after him, in whose sight I may find favour. And she said to her, Go, my
- 3 daughter. And she went, and came, and

ter. You have only lost your husbands; I have lost both my husband and my two sons, and am too old to expect another husband and children.

14. And returned] All the versions have the two first words, and returned; the Greek only, to her own people.

16, 17. The artless simplicity of Ruth's reply to Naomi, the tender attachment it discovers, her firm and dignified resolution to share in her fortunes in life and death, have been justly and deservedly admired. There is not in all the compass of classic literature any thing comparable to this.

21. Humbled me] So all the old versions render; for 'humbled me' is parallel with 'afflicted me,' in the next clause.

22. The beginning of barley-harvest] According to the Targum, this was at the Passover, when they began to mow the sheaf to be waved, which was of barley gleaned in the field, after the reapers; and she happened to light on a part of the field belonging to Boaz, who was of the family of Elimelech. And, behold! Boaz came 4 from Bethlehem, and said to the reapers, Jehovah be with you. And they answered, Jehovah bless thee. Then said Boaz to his 5 servant who was set over the reapers, Whose damsel is this? And the servant who was 6 set over the reapers, answered and said, It is the Moabitish damsel that came back with Naomi, out of the country of Moab. And 7 she said, Let me, I pray you, glean and gather after the reapers among the sheaves; so she came, and hath continued even from the morning, until now, that she hath sat 8 down in the shed. Then said Boaz to Ruth, Heardest thou not, my daughter? Go not to 9 glean in another field; nor go hence, but abide here, close by my maidens: Observe 9 on what field they reap, and go thou after them: have I not charged the young men not to touch thee? and when thou art thirsty, go to the vessels, and drink of what the young men have drawn. Then she fell on 10 her face, and bowed herself to the ground, and said to him, Why have I found such favour in thine eyes, that thou shouldst take notice of me, since I am a stranger? And 11 Boaz answered and said to her, All which thou hast done to thy mother-in-law since the death of thy husband, hath been fully made known to me: thou hast indeed left thy father and thy mother, and the land of thy nativity, and art come to a people whom heretofore thou knewest not! May Jehovah 12 recompense thy work, and a full reward be given to thee, by Jehovah, the God of Israel, under whose wings thou art come to take shelter. Then she said, Let me find 13 favour in thy sight, my lord; for since thou hast comforted me, and hast spoken kindly to thine handmaid, 'let me be as' one of thine own handmaids. And Boaz said to 14 her, At meal-time come thou hither, and eat of the bread, and dip thy morsel in the vinegar. So she sat beside the reapers; and he reached her parched corn; and she CHAP. II. [2. And glean] This shows both an humble soul, and a readiness to do what she could to support her aged mother-in-law.

7. Hath sat down in the shed] It was usual to raise temporary sheds in their harvest fields, to which they could retire during the extreme heat of the mid-day.

12. Thou art come to take shelter] So Purver and others; and thus the beautiful metaphor is preserved.

13. Let me be as one of thine handmaids] The common version of this clause shows that it is not without difficulty. 'Though I be not like unto one of thy handmaids.' How is this connected with the context? Neither the Sept. nor the Syr. read the negative $\kappa\alpha\iota$; and by this omission their version is appropriate, and expresses the request of Ruth, 'that she may be as one of his own handmaids.'

14. Vinegar] When Boaz is represented as having provided vinegar for his reapers, into which they might dip

15 ate, and was satisfied, and yet left. And when she rose up to glean, Boaz commanded his young men, saying, Let her glean even among the sheaves, and reproach her not: 16 And let fall also some of the handfuls, on purpose, for her; and leave them, that she 17 may glean them, and rebuke her not. So she gleaned in the field until evening; and she beat out what she had gleaned; and it was about an ephah of barley 18 And she took it up, and went into the city; and ^vshe showed^v her mother-in-law what she had gleaned: and she brought forth, and gave to her what remained after 19 she was satisfied. And her mother-in-law said to her, Where hast thou gleaned to-day? and where hast thou laboured? blessed be he who took notice of thee. And she told her mother-in-law with whom she had laboured, and said, The man's name with whom I 20 laboured to-day, is Boaz. And Naomi said to her daughter-in-law, Blessed be ^vJehovah,^v who hath not left off his kindness, to the living nor to the dead. And Naomi said to her, The man is near of kin to us, 21 one of our next kinsmen. And Ruth the Moabitess said, He said unto me also, Thou shalt keep close by my ^vmaidens,^v until 22 they have ended all my harvest. And Naomi said to Ruth, her daughter-in-law, It is good, my daughter, that thou go out with his maidens, that they meet thee not in any 23 other field. So she kept close by the maidens of Boaz; and gleaned unto the end of barley harvest and of wheat harvest; but she dwelt with her mother-in-law.

CHAPTER III.

(B. C. 1312. By Naomi's direction, Ruth lieth at Boaz's feet; he acknowledges the right of a kinsman: gives her six measures of barley.)

1 THEN Naomi, her mother-in-law, said to her, My daughter, shall I not seek rest for 2 thee, that it may be well with thee? And now is not Boaz of our kindred, with whose maidens thou hast been? Behold! to-night he winnoweth barley in the threshing-floor. Wash thyself then and anoint thyself, and 3 put on thy best raiment, and go down to the threshing-floor: keep thyself unnoticed by the man, until he have done eating and drinking. But when he lieth down, thou 4 shalt mark the place where he shall lie, and thou shalt go in, and uncover his feet, and lie down; and he will tell thee what thou must do. And she said to her, All that 5 thou sayest to me I will do.

And she went down to the threshing-floor, and did according to all that her mother-in-law bade her. And when Boaz had 7 eaten and drunk, and his heart was joyful, he went to lie down at the end of the corn-heap: and she came softly and uncovered his feet, and lay down. And at midnight, 8 the man was astonished, when he turned himself, and, behold, a woman lay at his feet. And he said, Who art thou? And 9 she answered, I am Ruth thy handmaid: take therefore thy handmaid under thy protection: for thou art a near kinsman. And 10 he said, Blessed be thou by Jehovah, my daughter: for thou hast showed more kindness in this last instance than before, inas- much as thou hast not followed young men, whether poor or rich. And now, my 11 daughter, fear not; I will do to thee all that thou requirest: for all my fellow-citizens know that thou art a virtuous woman. And now it is true that I am thy 12 near kinsman; but there is a kinsman nearer than I. Lodge this night, and it 13 shall be in the morning, that if he will perform to thee the part of a kinsman, well; let him do the kinsman's part; but if he will not do the part of a kinsman to thee, then as Jehovah liveth will I do the part of a kinsman to thee: lie still until the morn- ing. And she lay at his feet until the 14 morning; and she rose up before one could know another: for he said, Let it not be known that a woman came to the threshing-floor. Also he said, Bring the veil which is 15 their bread, and kindly invited Ruth to share with them in the repast, we are not to understand it of simple vinegar, but vinegar mingled with a small portion of oil. For even the Algerines indulge their miserable captives with a small portion of oil to the vinegar they allow them with their bread, according to the account Pitts gives of the treatment he and his companions received from them.

18. And showed her mother] The various reading is more apposite than the text, as it makes הוֹרָתָהּ the object of the verb הוֹרָתָהּ. Ruth returned to the city, and then showed her mother-in-law what she had gleaned. This order supposes Ruth the nominative to all the verbs; but the text makes Naomi the nominative to הוֹרָתָהּ, and also to the following, which is absurd and contradictory.

20, 21. (v) See Hebrew Bible.

CHAP. III. 3. Until he have done eating] The harvest being completed, it was the custom to make a feast; and though Boaz only be mentioned, I think it probable that he treated all the labourers,

7. At the end of the corn-heap] This ought to excite no surprise, when the heat of the climate and the custom of the country is recollected.

8. The man was astonished] Fluttered, agitated, is the radical import of the verb, and may doubtless apply to fear; but here I think the radical sense preferable. When the Levirate law is considered, (see Introduction, Pt. ii. chap. 3. § 3.) the advice of Naomi and the conduct of Ruth are free from all blame. They only did what the law ordered and justified.

9. Take therefore thine hand-maid] Literally, 'spread thy wing over me.' I have preferred the sense to the idiom, because the latter may be misunderstood and misapplied. She claims from him the protection and right of the Levirate law. Take me under thy protection, by marrying me, for thou art a near kinsman; or thou art the person whose right it is to redeem.

10—14 Boaz acknowledges her claim, and engages to see justice done to her. As unfavourable inferences might upon thee, and hold it. And when she held it, he measured six measures of barley, and laid it on her; and she went into the 16 city. And when she came to her mother-in-law, she said, How hast thou succeeded, my daughter? And she told her all that the 17 man had done to her. And she said, These six measures of barley he gave to me; for he said to me, Go not empty to thy mother-18 in-law. Then said she, Sit still, my daughter, until thou know how the matter will fall out: for the man will not rest, until he have this day finished the matter.

CHAPTER IV.

B. C. 1312. Boaz calleth Ruth's nearest kinsman to redeem; he refuseth, and Boaz then redeems the inheritance and marrieth Ruth, who beareth Obed, the grandfather of David.

1 THEN went Boaz to the gate, and sat down there: and, behold, the kinsman passed by, of whom Boaz had spoken; to whom, calling him by his name, he said, Turn aside, sit down here. And he turned aside,
 2 and sat down. And he took ten men of the elders of the city, and said, Sit ye down
 3 here; and they sat down. He then said to the kinsman, Naomi who hath returned from the country of Moab, hath a field to sell which belonged to our kinsman Eli-
 4 melech: So I thought it right to tell thee, saying, Buy it before the inhabitants, and before the elders of my people. If thou wilt redeem, redeem; but if thou wilt not
 5 redeem, tell me that I may know: for there is none to redeem besides thee; and I am next to thee. And he said, I will redeem. Then said Boaz, What day thou buyest the field of Naomi, thou must buy also Ruth the Moabitess, the wife of the dead, to raise up the name of the dead upon his inheritance. And the kinsman said, I cannot on this condition redeem for myself, lest I injure mine own inheritance: redeem thou for thyself my right; for I cannot redeem.
 7 Now this was the manner in former time in Israel, concerning redeeming and concerning changing, for the purpose of confirming all things; a man pulled off his shoe, and gave it to his neighbour: and this was a testimony in Israel. Therefore the 8 kinsman said to Boaz, Buy it for thyself; and he pulled off his shoe, "and gave it to him."

And Boaz said to the elders, and to all 9 the people, Ye are this day witnesses, that I have bought of Naomi all that belonged to Elimelech, and all that belonged to Chilion and Mahlon. Also Ruth the Mo-
 10 abitess, the wife of Mahlon, have I purchased to be my wife, to raise up the name of the dead upon his inheritance, that the name of the dead be not cut off from among his brethren, and from among his fellow-citizens: ye are this day witnesses. And all the 11 people who were in the gate, and the elders, said, We are witnesses. Jehovah make the woman who is coming into thy house, like Rachel and like Leah; those two who builded the house of Israel; and make her 12 an example of virtue in Ephratah, and famous in Bethlehem. And may thy house be like the house of Pharez, whom Tamar bare to Judah, through the offspring which Jehovah shall give to thee by this young woman.

So Boaz took Ruth, and she became his 13 wife; and when he went in to her, Jehovah made her fruitful, and she bare a son. And 14 the women said to Naomi, Blessed be Jehovah, who hath not left thee this day without a kinsman, whose name shall be famous in Israel. And he shall be to thee
 15 a comforter and the support of thine old age: for thy daughter-in-law, who loveth thee, who is better to thee than seven sons, hath born him. And Naomi took the child
 16 and laid him in her bosom, and became his nurse. And the women, her neighbours, 17 gave him a name, saying, There is a son born to Naomi; and they called his name Obed [ATTENDANT]. He was the father of Jesse, the father of David. Now these are 18 the generations of Pharez: Pharez begot Hezron, And Hezron begot Ram, and Ram 19 begot Amminadab, And Amminadab begot Nahshon, and Nahshon begot Salmon, 20 And Salmon begot Boaz, and Boaz begot Obed, And Obed begot Jesse, and Jesse 22 begot David.

be drawn from the manner in which Ruth had preferred her claim, Boaz adviseth her to return privately from the threshing-floor.

CHAP. IV. 1. Calling him by his name] The versions generally so render; and I cannot think it probable, that Boaz should say to a kinsman, 'Ho, such an one,' Compare 1 Sam. xxi. 2, and 2 Kings vii. 8.

5. Thou must buy also Ruth] The whole connexion leads to this sense. With the inheritance he must take the widow of the dead. So 1 MS. and the Syr.

7. How simple the mode of transferring property in those days! Witnesses and giving the shoe or sandal. Perhaps this last was preserved by the purchaser, and might answer the purpose of deeds. I take the meaning to be, that he who purchased of another might be said to put on his shoes, and occupy his place. See note, Deut. xxv. 5. 8. (a) Sept. Arab.

11. Make her an example of virtue] So the Vulg. and I think properly. Our translators refer this to Boaz, and so Dathe and others. I take it to mean Ruth, with Jerom, Houbigant and a many other divines. Nor is the imperative mood an objection, as it is often used for the future, and vice versa. See Glasius.

13. Made her fruitful] The idiom of the text is unusual, and for this reason I have rendered equivalently.

17. Michaelis and Geddes conjecture, that the reason of the name has dropped from the text. They would therefore supply, Because he will be the attendant of Naomi.

INTRODUCTION.

Whether this and the following book are called the books of Samuel, because he was the author of them, or because his history constitutes a chief part of the narrative, is uncertain. Among the Hebrews, the two books were considered as one, and the Talmudists maintain that the first twenty-four chapters were written by Samuel and the rest by Gad and Nathan. They found this opinion on what is said, 1 Chron. xxix. 29; and it is not improbable, as the prophets are generally believed to have been the historians of contemporary events. It is certain that both these books were composed prior to those of Kings and Chronicles, as many things in these last are clearly taken from them. In the Greek and Vulg. these Books are called the 1st and 2d of Kings, and the two following the 3d and 4th. The first Book of Samuel contains a space of nearly eighty years, reckoning from the birth of Samuel to the death of Saul.

CHAPTER I.

B. C. 1171. Elkanah, a Levite, and his two wives; loveth Hannah, who was barren; her prayer; Samuel born, and presented to the Lord; Hannah's song.

- 1 Now there was a certain man of Ramathaimzuphim of mount Ephraim, and his name was Elkanah, the son of Jeroham, the son of Elihu, the son of Tohu, the son of
- 2 Zuph, an Ephrathite; And he had two wives; the name of the one was Hannah, and the name of the other Peninnah; and Peninnah had children, but Hannah had no
- 3 children. And this man went yearly from his city to worship, and to sacrifice to Jehovah "the God" of hosts in Shiloh. And
- 4 "Eli and his" two sons, Hophni and Phinehas, were the priests of Jehovah.
- 5 And whenever Elkanah offered sacrifices, he gave to Peninnah his wife, and to all her sons and daughters, portions; But to Hannah he gave a special portion; for he loved Hannah, although Jehovah had given her
- 6 no children. And her rival also greatly provoked her to fretfulness, because he had
- 7 given her no children. Thus she did year by year, when she went up to the house of Jehovah; so she provoked her; Hannah,
- 8 therefore, wept, and did not eat. Then would Elkanah her husband say to her, Hannah, why weepest thou? and why eatest thou not? and why is thy heart grieved? am not I better to thee than ten sons?
- 9 Now Hannah one year, after she had eaten and drunk in Shiloh, arose, and went up to the tabernacle of Jehovah; and Eli the priest sat upon a seat by one of the posts
- 10 of the tabernacle of Jehovah. And she was in bitterness of soul, and prayed to Jehovah, and wept greatly. And she made a vow to 11 Jehovah, and said, O Jehovah, God of hosts, if thou wilt indeed look on the affliction of thy handmaid, and remember me, and not forget thy handmaid, but wilt give to thy handmaid a male child; then will I give him to Jehovah all the days of his life; and he shall not drink either wine or strong drink; nor shall a razor come upon his head. And as she continued praying before Jeho- 12 vah, Eli marked her mouth. Now Hannah 13 spoke only in her heart; her lips moved, but her voice was not heard: therefore Eli thought that she was drunk. And Eli said 14 to her, How long wilt thou be drunk? put away thy wine from thee. And Hannah 15 answered and said, Nay, my Lord; I am a woman of a distressed mind: I have drunk neither wine nor strong drink, but have poured out my soul before Jehovah. Ac- 16 count not thy handmaid a worthless woman; for from the greatness of my distress and grief, have I hitherto spoken. Then Eli 17 answered and said, Go in peace; and the God of Israel grant thy request, which thou hast made to him. And she said, Let thine 18 handmaid find favour in thy sight. So the woman went her way "to her own lodgings," and she ate "and drank with her husband," and her countenance was no more sad.

And they arose early in the morning, 19 and worshipped before Jehovah, and returned, and came to their own house in Ramah; and Elkanah knew Hannah his wife; and Jehovah remembered her. And when, 20 after Hannah had conceived, the due pe-

CHAP. I. 1. The son of Zuph] Zuph, who was originally of Ephratah of Bethlehem, had removed to mount Ephraim; where his posterity were called Zuphites: and the place where they dwelt, Ramathaim-Zuphim; or Ramath of the Zuphites.

3. God of hosts] It is probable that, originally, אלהים uniformly obtained before צבאות. The Sept. generally so render, as if they found אלהים in their copies. The order of the Sept. is followed in the latter clause as more natural. The sons of Eli officiated under him. (a) Sept. (v) Sept.

5. Had given her no children] This is the meaning of the text; which, as it is not capable of any misapplication, I have preferred to the literal rendering.

9. The clause added from the Arabic renders the narrative more full and complete. I mention once for all, that I uniformly render the phrases בית ייורה, and בית ייורה by tabernacle of Jehovah; as the terms, house or temple of Jehovah, ought to be appropriated to the temple of Solomon.

11. The addition now found in the Sept. is a part of the vow belonging to the Nazarites. Compare Numb. vi. 3, and Judg. xiii. 5, &c.

16. A worthless woman] The Bishops' and Geneva versions are, wicked woman; Purvor, ungodly woman.

18. The additions found in the Sept. are necessary to reconcile this with the following verse. For it is clear that Hannah did not now go on her way home, but abode all night at Shiloh; and that on the following day, after having performed their devotions, they all returned together.

riod had come, she bare a son, and called his name Samuel [GOD HATH HEARD]; for 21 of Jehovah, said she, I asked him. And the man Elkanah, and all his household, went up "to Shiloh" to offer to Jehovah the yearly sacrifice and votive offerings, "and 22 all his tithe." But Hannah went not up "with him;" for she said to her husband, I will not go up until the child be weaned; and then I will bring him, that he may appear before Jehovah, and there abide for 23 ever. And Elkanah her husband said to her, Do what seemeth good to thee; abide until thou have weaned him; only may Jehovah establish thy word. So the woman abode, and suckled her son until she weaned him.
 24 And when she had weaned him, she took him up with her "to Shiloh," with "a steer three years old," and an ephah of flour, and a skin-bottle of wine, and brought him to the tabernacle of Jehovah in Shiloh: and the 25 child was yet very young. And "his father slaughtered his yearly sacrifice to Jehovah," and then slew the steer. "And his mother 26 Hannah" brought the child to Eli; And said, Oh my lord! as sure as thou livest, my lord, I am the woman who stood by thee
 27 here, praying to Jehovah. For this child I prayed; and Jehovah hath granted my request which I made to him; Therefore I have also devoted him to Jehovah; as long as he liveth he shall be devoted to Jehovah. And there "they" worshipped Jehovah.

- 1 Then Hannah prayed and said,
 My heart exulteth in Jehovah:
 Through Jehovah my horn is exalted:
 My mouth is opened before mine enemies,
 Because, through thy salvation, I rejoice.
- 2 There is none holy like Jehovah;
 For there is no rock like our God;
 Yea, there is no God besides thee.
- 3 Talk no more so vain-gloriously;
 Let no arrogance come from your mouth;
 For an all knowing God is Jehovah,
 And by him are events regulated.
- 4 The bows of the mighty are broken,
 And the feeble are girded with strength.
- 5 The full have hired themselves for bread,
 And the famished have ceased to want.

21—25. In these verses the Sept. supplies what appears natural and genuine.

24. A steer three years old] Every critic must prefer the various lection to the text, because it is the usual reading in other places, and because in the following verse it is said, they slaughtered the steer, not steers.

28. (v) The, Syr. Vulg. and MSS.

CHAP. II. 1. My horn is exalted] There is through the whole of this song an oblique reference to Peninnah, and I think a direct one to the enemies of Israel. Hannah can now lift up her head and rejoice; can open her mouth with confidence in the presence of her rival. 2. See Sept.

3. For an all-knowing God] Literally, 'a God of knowledge,' but the plural noun is often used in Hebrew for an adjective in the superlative degree. 8, 9. (a) MSS.

10. But to his own king] Under the influence of the

The barren hath borne in abundance,
 And she, abounding in children, is worn out.
 Jehovah killeth, and he maketh alive; 6
 Bringeth down to the grave, and raiseth up.
 Jehovah maketh poor, and maketh rich; 7
 He humbleth, and he exalteth:
 He raiseth up the poor from the dust; 8
 The beggar he exalteth from the dunghill;
 To place them with the nobles of the people,"
 And make them possess the seat of honour.
 For Jehovah's are the foundations of the earth,
 And on them hath he placed the world.
 The footsteps of his saints he will guard, 9
 But the wicked shall abide in darkness;
 For by "his" own strength shall no one prevail.
 Jehovah will dismay his adversaries: 10
 From the heavens, he will thunder upon them:
 The ends of the earth Jehovah will judge.
 But to his own king he will give strength,
 And exalt the horn of his anointed.
 Elkanah then went to Ramah, to his own 11 house; but the child ministered to Jehovah, in the presence of Eli, the priest.

CHAPTER II.

B.C. 1165. The profligacy of Eli's sons; Samuel ministers to the Lord; Eli reproveth his sons; prophecy against them.

Now the sons of Eli were worthless men; 12 they regarded not Jehovah, Nor the duty of 13 the priests towards the people. When any one offered a sacrifice, the young priest came, while the flesh was boiling, with a three pronged fork in his hand; And he struck 14 it into the kettle, or caldron, or pot or pan; and all that the fork brought up the priest took for himself. Thus they did in Shiloh to all the Israelites who came thither "to sacrifice to Jehovah." Also before they burnt 15 the fat, the young priests came, and said to the man who sacrificed, Give flesh to roast for the priest; for he will not take of thee boiled flesh, but raw. And if any one said 16 to him, Let the fat by all means be burnt, as usual, then take for thyself what thy soul desireth; he would say, Nay; but now thou shalt give it, and if not, I will take it by force. Therefore the sin of the young men 17 was very great before Jehovah; for men were induced to abhor the offerings of Jehovah.

spirit, Hannah in this verse predicts the future victories of Israel over the Philistines, the rise of the monarchy, and according to Kimchi, the Saviour, the king Messiah, or anointed. In the song of the virgin, Luke i. 46, and of Zechariah, 69, 70. there seems to be a reference to the song of Hannah.—See note there.

12, 13. The song of Hannah ought to have concluded the first chapter, as properly connected with it. The punctuation of the Sept and Vulg. is followed; and this alone converts confusion into order.

14—16. The law authorized the priests to demand the 'breast and the shoulder' of all feast-sacrifices. The sin of those sons of Eli consisted, not only in demanding more than their right, but in taking what they chose, before that which belonged to God had been offered to him. See Leviticus vii. 23—25. (a) Sept.

18 Now Samuel, the child, girded with a peculiar ephod, ministered before Jehovah.
 19 Moreover his mother made for him every year a little robe, and brought it to him, when she came up with her husband to offer the yearly sacrifice. And Eli blessed Elkanah and his wife, and said, Jehovah give to thee seed by this woman for the gift which she hath devoted to Jehovah. And
 1 they went to their own home; and Jehovah visited Hannah, and she conceived, and bare three sons and two daughters: and the child Samuel grew up before Jehovah.
 2 Now Eli was very old, and heard all that his sons did to all Israel; and how they lay with the women who ministered at the door
 3 of the congregation-tabernacle. And he said to them, Why do ye such things? for from all this people I hear of your evil
 4 deeds. Nay, my sons, truly not good is the report that I hear: ye make Jehovah's people to transgress. If one man sin against another, then judges may decide; but if a man sin against Jehovah, who shall entreat for him? But they hearkened not to the voice of their father; because Jehovah had 5 purposed to slay them. And the child Samuel grew up, and was in favour both with Jehovah, and also with men.
 6 And a man of God came to Eli, and said to him, Thus saith Jehovah, I clearly revealed myself to the house of thy father, when they were in Egypt, in Pharaoh's
 7 house; And I chose him, out of all the tribes of Israel, to be my priest, to offer sacrifices upon mine altar, to burn incense, to wear an ephod before me; and I gave to the house of thy father all the burnt-offerings
 8 of Israel. Why spurn ye, through perverseness, at my sacrifice and my offering, which I have commanded? Yea, thy sons thou hast honoured more than me, while ye fatten on the choicest of all the offerings of Israel my people. Therefore Jehovah, the 30 God of Israel, saith, I said indeed that thy house, and the house of thy father, should minister before me for ever; but now, saith Jehovah, Far be it from me; for them who honour me I will honour, but they who despise me shall themselves be despised. Behold, the days come, "saith Jehovah," 31 that I will cut off thine arm, and the arm of thy father's house, so that there shall not be an old man in thy house. And with envy 32 thou shalt see a rival, who in every thing shall do good to Israel; but there shall not be an old man of thy house for ever. And 33 the man of thine, whom I cut not off from mine altar, shall remain only to consume thine eyes, and to grieve thy heart: for the whole increase of thy house shall die in the flower of their age. And this which 34 shall come upon thy two sons, Hophni and Phinehas, shall be a sign to thee; in one day both of them shall die. And I will 35 raise up for myself a faithful priest, who shall do according to what is in my heart and my mind; and I will firmly build up his house; and mine anointed shall minister before me continually. And every one who 36 is left of thy house shall come and crouch to him for a piece of silver and a morsel of bread, and shall say, Put me, I pray thee, into one of the priest's offices, that I may eat a piece of bread.

CHAPTER III.

B. C. 1141. Jehovah revealeth himself to Samuel; denounceth the destruction of Eli's house; Eli's submission.

AND the youth Samuel ministered to Jehovah before Eli, ²the priest." In those [17. For men. &c. to abhor] Their conduct disgusted the Israelites, and led them to disregard the tabernacle and its offerings.

[22. Who ministered] See Exodus xxxviii. 8.

[25. Then judges may decide] That is, in matters of trespass between neighbours, there is an appointed method of arbitration; the law prescribes what is to be done, that the trespass may be forgiven; but if a man sin against Jehovah himself, rebel against the sovereign, and be guilty of treason against the majesty of heaven, who shall become an intercessor for him? As the text stands, this is obviously the sense; but I suspect that the text has suffered, and that Jehovah is the genuine reading in the former part as well as the latter. The Sept. Syr. and Arab. seem to have so read, admitting this reading, the version will be, 'If one man sin against another, Jehovah may be entreated; but if a man sin against Jehovah, who shall entreat for him? Coverdale's version is excellent; "If one man sin against another, the judge in redress it; but if a man sin against Jehovah who can redress it? Such a sinner must be left to the judgment of God." It, by his language, shows the greatness of the offence of his sons.—Because Jehovah had purposed] For their many had aggravated sins already committed.

[29. Through perverseness] The term פערות is the noun with the preposition, and the sense given, without any change in the text, is suitable and coherent. Compare chap. xviii. 9.

[30. Thy house and the house of thy father] There were two patriarchal families of the house of Aaron, that of Eleazar and Ithamar. Eli sprang from the latter; but when the office of high priest was taken from the family of Eleazar, or for what reasons, is not mentioned in the scriptures. It should seem some conditional promise had been made when this transfer was made; but as Eli was not so faithful as he ought to have been, and suffered his sons to disgrace the priestly office, God now assures him, that misery and disgrace should come on his race.

[31. Cut off thine arm] That is, thy power. The Greek translator read another word; and rendered seed.

[32. Thou shalt see, with envy] We have here the same word, as in the 29th verse. It is a word of the most general signification, denoting every kind of depravity. As it is here connected with seeing, it must have the sense attributed.

[33. To consume thine eyes] What is said must be thus understood, that such should be the calamities of his house, that if he were then alive, his eyes would be consumed with weeping.

[35. And mine anointed] The faithful priest refers to Zadok, who was of the line of Eleazar, and whom Solomon made high priest, instead of Abiathar, who was the last of Eli's house who enjoyed that office. Anointed is the nominative of the verb, and refers to the high priest.

CHAP. III. 1. The youth Samuel] Josephus and others

- days the word of Jehovah was rare ; prophetic vision was not common. Now, at that time it was, when Eli lay down in his own place, and his eyes had become so dim, that he could not see ; And before the lamp of God went out in the tabernacle of Jehovah, where was the ark of God, that Samuel also lay down : And Jehovah called to Samuel : and he answered, Here I am. And he ran to Eli, and said, Here I am ; for thou calledst me. And he said, I called not ; lie down again. And he went and lay down. Again Jehovah called to Samuel. And Samuel arose and went to Eli, and said, Here am I ; for thou didst call me. And he answered, I called not, my son ; lie down again. Now Samuel did not know that it was Jehovah ; for as yet the word of Jehovah had not been revealed to him. And Jehovah called to Samuel the third time. And he arose and went to Eli, and said, Here am I ; for thou didst call me. Eli now understood that Jehovah had called to the youth. Therefore Eli said to Samuel, Go, lie down ; and it shall be if one call to thee, that thou shalt say, Speak, O Jehovah ; for thy servant heareth. So Samuel went and lay down in his own place. And Jehovah came, and stood, and called as before, Samuel, Samuel. Then Samuel answered, Speak, " O Jehovah ; " for thy servant heareth. And Jehovah said to Samuel, Behold, I will do a thing in Israel, at which both the ears of every one who heareth of it, shall tingle. In that day, I will perform against Eli, all that I have spoken from first to last, concerning his house. For I have told him that I will judge his house for ever : because, although he knew the iniquity of his sons, who made themselves vile, he restrained them not. And therefore, I have sworn concerning the house of Eli, that the iniquity of Eli's house shall never be expiated by sacrifice, or other offering. And Samuel lay until the morning, and opened the doors of the tabernacle of Jehovah. And Samuel feared to tell the vision to Eli ; But Eli called to Samuel, and said, Samuel, my son. And he answered, Here am I. And he said, What is the thing which Jehovah hath spoken to thee ? I pray thee, conceal it not from me : God do so and so to thee, and more also, if thou conceal a thing from me of all the things which he said to thee. And Samuel told him every thing, and concealed from him nothing. And he said, it is Jehovah ; let him do what to himself seemeth good. And Samuel grew up, and Jehovah was with him, and not any of his words did he suffer to fail. And all Israel, from Dan even to Beersheba, knew that Samuel was established a prophet of Jehovah. And Jehovah again appeared in Shiloh : for in Shiloh, Jehovah revealed his own word to Samuel, and " Samuel spoke it to all Israel."

CHAPTER IV.

B. C. 1141. A disastrous war with the Philistines ; the ark of God taken, the sons of Eli slain, and his own death.

" ELI was now very old, and his sons still went on, and their way was evil before Jehovah ; and the Philistines assembled and came forth to fight against Israel." And Israel went forth against the Philistines to battle, and encamped near Eben-ezer ; and the Philistines encamped in Aphek. And the Philistines put themselves in array against Israel ; and when they joined battle, Israel was smitten before the Philistines : and they slew of the army, on the field, about four thousand men.

And when the people were come into the camp, the elders of Israel said, Why hath Jehovah smitten us to-day before the Philistines ? Let us bring to us from Shiloh, the ark of the covenant of Jehovah, that it may go among us and save us from the hand of our enemies. So the people sent persons to Shiloh, that they might bring thence the ark of the covenant of Jehovah of hosts, who dwelleth between the cherubs : And suppose he was now upwards of twelve years old ; and under the direction of Eli performed such services in the tabernacle as were fit for his age.—The word of Jehovah was rare] Compare Psa. cxvi. 15, and Isa. xlii. 2. So also Poole explains, rare or scarce. The next words illustrate and confirm these, " Prophetic vision was not common." There was no publicly authorized prophet, to whom persons could apply for satisfaction in their doubts and difficulties. This contains the reason of what follows in respect of Samuel, (a) Versions, 1 MS.

7. Did not know] From this account it appears, that Jehovah revealed himself by an audible voice, but which Samuel, not knowing, thought it had been Eli who had addressed him.

10. Speak, O Jehovah] The reading of the versions is supported by the direction of Eli, in the preceding verse.

12. From first to last] Purver renders, "beginning and ending ;" and Cramer, "from the beginning to the ending," which is the literal sense, and to the same purport with that given ; and so the Syr. The Vulg. after the Sept. "I will begin and make an end."

13. Because, although] I have followed the text as corrected on the authority of the Sept. See note, Heb. Bible.

18. It is Jehovah] That is, His judgments are righteous and I ought to be resigned.

19. Any of his words] I have preferred the sense to the idiom with our old translators, and with those of James, in other places. Compare Josh. xxi. 45 ; 1 Kings viii. 36, and Esther vi. 10.

21. Spoke it to all Israel] I have adopted the correction of the text proposed in my Hebrew Bible, and supported by the Sept. Syr. and Arab. versions.

CHAP. IV. 3. Let us bring to us the ark] They might be induced to do this from recollecting that the ark was carried by their ancestors ; and they might hope that this special token of God's presence would secure their victory.

4. Two sons of Eli were there] In Shiloh ; but they went with the ark to the field of battle. It does not appear the two sons of Eli, Hophni and Phinehas, were there with the ark of the covenant of God.

- 5 Now when the ark of the covenant of Jehovah came into the camp, all Israel shouted with a great shout, so that the earth rang again. And when the Philistines heard the noise of the shout, they said, What meaneth the noise of this great shout in the camp of the Hebrews? And they understood that the ark of Jehovah was come into the camp.
- 7 And the Philistines were afraid, for they said, A god is come into the camp. And they said, Woe to us! for there hath not been such a thing heretofore. Woe to us! who shall deliver us out of the hands of those mighty gods? those gods which smote the Egyptians with every kind of plague, and did such wonders in the wilderness.
- 9 Be strong, and quit yourselves like men, O ye Philistines, that ye become not servants to the Hebrews, as they have been to you: quit yourselves like men, and fight.
- 10 And the Philistines fought, and Israel was smitten, and they fled every one to his own home: and the slaughter was very great; for there fell of Israel thirty thousand men.
- 11 And the ark of God was taken; and the two sons of Eli, Hophni and Phinehas, were slain.
- 12 And a man of Benjamin ran from the army, and came to Shiloh the same day, with his clothes rent, and with earth upon his head.
- 13 And when he came, lo, Eli was sitting upon a high seat by the "gate," watching; for his heart trembled for the ark of God. And when the man came to the city with the
- 14 news, the whole city cried aloud. And when Eli heard the noise of the cry, he said, What meaneth the noise of this tumult? And the man came in hastily and told Eli.
- 15 Now Eli was ninety-eight years old; and his eyes were so dim that he could not see.
- 16 And the man said to Eli, I come from the army; and from the army I this day fled. And he said, What hath been done, my son?

And the messenger answered and said, 17 Israel fled before the Philistines; and there hath been also a great slaughter among the people, and thy two sons also, Hophni and Phinehas, are dead, and the ark of "Jehovah" is taken. Now when he made mention of the ark of "Jehovah," Eli fell backward from off the high seat, which was by the gate, and broke his neck, and died; for he was an old man and heavy. And he judged Israel forty years.

And his daughter-in-law, the wife of Phinehas, was with child, near the time of delivery; and when she heard the tidings, that the ark of "Jehovah" was taken, and that her father-in-law and her husband were dead, she fell in labour; for her pains came upon her. And near the time of her death, the 20 women who attended her said to her, Fear not; for thou hast born a son. But she neither answered nor regarded what was said. Yet she named the child Ichabod 21 [INGLORIOUS], saying, The glory is departed from Israel: because the ark of "Jehovah" was taken, and because of the death of her father-in-law and her husband. So she said, The glory is departed from Israel: for 22 the ark of "Jehovah," "the God of Israel," is taken.

CHAPTER V.

B. C. 1141. The Philistines carry the ark to the temple of Dagon, who falls before it; they are afflicted with piles and mice; after seven months they send back the ark, with golden images of their piles and mice.

AND the Philistines took the ark of God, 1 and brought it from Ebenezer unto Ashdod. And the Philistines having taken the ark of 2 "Jehovah," they brought it into the house of Dagon, and set it beside Dagon. But 3 on the morrow, the men of Ashdod arose early, and, behold! Dagon was fallen upon his face to the earth before the ark of Jehovah. And they took Dagon, and set him in 4 his place again. But when they arose early on the next morning, behold, Dagon was that either Israel or the priests consulted God on this occasion, but acted according to their own will.

7-9. They speak as idolaters; and from their remarks we infer, that it had not been usual with them, or the people with whom they had intercourse, to carry the images of their gods to the field of battle. 8. (a) Syr. Chald.

12. With his clothes rent] These were the actual tokens of grief and distress. Compare Gen. xxxvii. 29; Josh. vii. 6, &c.

13. Sitting upon a seat] It was a sort of elevated throne, on which, most probably, Eli was wont to administer justice. (v) Sept.

15. Ninety-eight years old] So the text, Chald. Vulg. and some copies of the Sept; but the Syr. and Arab. have seventy-eight.

18. Eli fell backward] As we know not the precise form of the seat, we cannot decide in what manner this accident occurred. Excessive grief might so affect him, that falling backward, and being heavy, the high seat might also be overturned. For forty years he presided as chief, both in the administration of religious and civil affairs.

17-22. (v) Chald. Arab.

19-22. Distress of mind brought on the wife of Phinehas premature labour, which proved the occasion of her death. The name, which she gave to her son, indicates the state of her mind; and shows that she felt sensibly the loss of the ark.

CHAP. V. 1. Bishop Wilson observes, that in this chapter all the attributes of God are displayed. His justice, in punishing his own people for their sins. His goodness, in thus manifesting himself to them that knew him not. His power, in making the idols fall before him. His truth, in vindicating himself upon the Israelites for their sins, and the Philistines for their idolatry and false gods.

2. And set it beside Dagon] As a trophy of their victory, and a reproach to the God of Israel. (v) Chald.

4. Dagon was fallen] They might think the first fall was casual; but when they found the idol broken, they began to fear.—The fish form] The word clearly denotes this here. Dagon had the form of a man from the navel upwards; and below, the form of a fish. See Introduction Part iii. chap. 6.

fallen upon his face to the ground before the ark of Jehovah; and the head of Dagon and both the palms of his hands were cut off, and lying upon the threshold; only the fish 5 form of him remained. On this account neither the priests of Dagon, nor any of those who go into Dagon's temple, tread on the threshold of Dagon in Ashdod, unto this day.

6 But the hand of Jehovah was heavy upon the people of Ashdod, and he destroyed them and smote them with piles, Ashdod and its territory: "the land also swarmed with mice, and there was great confusion
7 and destruction in the city." And when the men of Ashdod saw that it was so, they said, The ark of the God of Israel shall not abide with us; for his hand is hard upon us,
8 and upon Dagon our god. They sent therefore and gathered to them all the lords of the Philistines, and said, What shall we do with the ark of the God of Israel? And the Gathites answered, Let the ark of the God of Israel be carried round to Gath.
9 And they carried round the ark of the God of Israel "to Gath." And it was so, that, after they had carried it round "to Gath," the hand of Jehovah was upon the city, with a very great destruction; for he smote the men of the city, both small and great, so that they
10 had the piles inwardly. Therefore they sent the ark of "Jehovah" to Ekron: but when the ark of "Jehovah" came to Ekron, the Ekronites cried out, saying, 'They have brought round to us the ark of the God of 11 Israel, to slay us and our people. So they sent and gathered all the lords of the Philistines, and said, Send away the ark of the God of Israel, and let it go again to its own place, lest he slay us and our people; for when the ark of the God of Israel was carried thither, the hand of Jehovah was heavy upon them, and there was a mortal destruc-12 tion throughout all the city. And the men who died not were smitten with the piles; so that the cry of the city went up to the heavens.

1 Now the ark of Jehovah had been in the country of the Philistines seven months.
2 And the Philistines called for the priests and the diviners, saying, What shall we do with the ark of Jehovah? Tell us in what manner we shall send it away to its own place. And they said, If ye send away the 3 ark of the God of Israel, send it not away empty, but certainly return him a trespass-offering: then should you be healed, it will be known to you why his hand hath not been removed from you. And said they, What

4 shall be the trespass-offering which we shall return to him? They answered, five golden piles, and five golden mice, according to the number of the lords of the Philistines: for the same plague was on you all, as was on your lords. Therefore ye shall make images
5 of your piles, and images of your mice that ravage the land; and ye shall give glory to the God of Israel; perhaps he will remove his hand from off you, and from off your gods, and from off your land. Why would ye harden
6 your hearts, as the Egyptians and Pharaoh hardened their hearts? Did they not, when he exalted himself among them, let the people go, and they departed? Now, therefore,
7 make a new cart, and take two cows, on which there hath come no yoke, and tie the cows to the cart, and bring their calves home from them; And take the ark of the "God of Is-
8 rael," and lay it upon the cart; and put the golden images, which ye return him as a trespass-offering, in a coffer beside it, and send it away that it may depart. And if ye 9 see, that it goeth up by the way of his own territory to Beth-shemesh, then hath he done us "all" this great evil; but if not, then we shall know that his hand smote us not; it was only an accident that hath befallen us.

And the men did so; and they took two 10 milk cows, and tied them to the cart, and shut up their calves at home; And they laid 11 the ark of Jehovah upon the cart, and the coffer with the golden mice, and the images of their piles. And the cows took the 12 straight road to Beth-shemesh; they went along the highway, lowing as they went; and turned not aside to the right hand or to the left; and the lords of the Philistines went after them to the boundary of Beth-shemesh. And the people of Beth-shemesh

5. Hence we learn that they were not reformed, but long after showed their respect for Dagon, by not treading on the threshold of his temple, where he had been broken.

6. Piles] Geddes renders, 'blind piles.' The word only occurs in reference to this divine correction, and Deut. xxviii. 27; but according to the best lexicographers, I have given the sense. (a) Sept. Vulg. chap. vi. 4, 5.

7—10. The removal of the ark from city to city, and the plagues which attended it, so alarmed the Ekronites, that they proposed to send it back to Israel.

9. (a) Sept. Vulg. 10. (v) Chald. Chap. VI. 2. In what manner] That is, with what gifts; for they had before agreed to send it away.

3. A trespass-offering] Thereby acknowledging they had trespassed against God, and also imploring his forgiveness.

5. And give glory] The glory of his power in conquering you, who seemed and pretended to have conquered him; of his justice in punishing you, and of his goodness if he shall relieve you.

6. When he exalted himself among them] Geddes renders, 'when he had befooled them.' I follow Parkhurst; and conceive every place where the verb is used, supports this version.

7—9. This contrivance was singular; and shows in what manner these idolaters were accustomed to form conjectures respecting the will of their gods. It would be evident, they thought, if the cows took the road to the land of Israel, undirected, and leaving their calves, that the God of Israel had brought on them their plagues.

13. Wheat-harvest] Most probably in the month of April.

CHAPTER VII.

B. C. 1140. Samuel exhorteth the people to repentance; through his intercession the Philistines are overcome, and the cities which they had taken from the Israelites restored.

were reaping their wheat harvest in the valley; and they raised their eyes, and saw 14 the ark, and rejoiced to see it. And the cart came into the field of Joshua, a Bethshemite, and stood there, where there was a great stone; and they clove the wood of the cart, and offered the cows a burnt-offering to Jehovah. And the Levites took 15 down the ark of Jehovah, and the coffer that was with it, in which were the golden images, and put them on the great stone; and the men of Beth-shemesh offered burnt-offerings and slaughtered other sacrifices,
 16 that day to Jehovah. And when the five lords of the Philistines had seen all this, they returned the same day to Ekron.
 17 And these are the golden piles which the Philistines returned as a trespass-offering to Jehovah; for Ashdod one, for Gaza one, for Askelon one, for Gath one,
 18 for Ekron one; And the golden mice, according to the number of all the cities of the Philistines, of the five lords, both of fenced cities and of country villages, even unto the great "stone," on which they set down the ark of Jehovah, (and which remaineth unto this day,) in the field of Joshua, the Beth-shemite.
 19 And Jehovah smote the men of Bethshemesh, because they had looked into the ark of Jehovah, even he smote of the people "seventy" men: and the people lamented, because Jehovah had smitten the people
 20 with so great a slaughter. And the men of Beth-shemesh said, Who is able to stand before this holy God Jehovah? And to whom shall he go from us?
 21 And they sent messengers to the inhabitants of Kirjath-jearim, saying, The Philistines have brought again the ark of Jehovah: come ye, fetch it to you. And the men of Kirjath-jearim came, and fetched the ark of Jehovah, and brought it into the house of Abinadab, "which was" on a hill; and they sanctified Eleazar, his son, to keep 2 the ark of Jehovah. Now the ark "of Jehovah" abode in Kirjath-jearim a long time; for it was there twenty years.

Now all the house of Israel lamented after Jehovah. And Samuel spoke to the whole house of Israel, saying, If ye return to Jehovah with all your heart, and put away the strange gods, the "Baal" and Ashtaroths from among you, and prepare your hearts for Jehovah, and serve him only: then he will deliver you from the hand of the Philistines. And the Israelites put 4 away the Baals and Ashtaroths and served Jehovah only. And Samuel said, Gather 5 all Israel to Mizpeh, and I will pray to Jehovah for you. And they assembled at 6 Mizpeh, and there they drew water, and poured it out before Jehovah, and fasted on that day, and said, We have sinned against Jehovah. And Samuel judged the Israelites in Mizpeh.

And when the Philistines heard that the 7 Israelites were assembled at Mizpeh, the lords of the Philistines went forth against Israel. And when the Israelites heard this they were afraid of the Philistines. And the 8 Israelites said to Samuel, Cease not to cry to Jehovah our God for us, that he may save us from the hand of the Philistines. Samuel 9 then took a sucking lamb, and offered it a whole burnt-offering to Jehovah. And Samuel cried to Jehovah for Israel; and Jehovah heard him. And as Samuel was 10 offering up the burnt-offering, the Philistines drew near to battle against Israel; but Jehovah thundered with so great thunder, on that day, upon the Philistines, and so confounded them, that they were smitten before Israel. For the men of Israel went 11 out of Mizpeh, and pursued the Philistines, and smote them, as far as below Beth-e'er." Then Samuel took a stone, and set it be-12 tween Mizpeh and Beth-shen, and called the name of it Ebenezer [THE HELP-STONE], saying, Hitherto Jehovah hath helped us.

So the Philistines were subdued, and 13

15. And the Levites took] Beth-shemesh was in the tribe of Judah; and given to the Levites. Josh. xv. 10.

18. The great stone] For Ahel, we should read Ahen, with the authorities given. This makes the narrative clear and consistent. (v) Sept. Chald. MSS.

19. Seventy men] In the common text, a clause has been interpolated. "He smote seventy men, and fifty thousand men." This is contrary to the usual order of the Hebrew, in which the greater number always precedes the less. See Kennicott, and note Heb. Bible.

21. The first, and part of the second, verses of the next chapter are added to this, as clearly connected with it.

CHAP. VII. 1, 2. (a) Versions and MSS.

3. Lamented after] They now regretted their own sin, in departing from him, and sought him by sacrifice and prayer.

3. Baals and Ashtaroths] I have ventured to give a plural termination to the latter word, as I think the context requires. Various images of these gods and goddesses were formed; and these they had worshipped, either alone or in connexion with Jehovah. They now put them away.

6. They drew water] This was a rite of humiliation, and contained an acknowledgment of their impurity. Houbigant considers it as a part of the ceremonial of fasting. Compare 2 Sam. xiv. 14.

10. And so confounded them] The storm might be in the face of the Philistines, and by occasioning disorder, render the conquest easy.

12. Beth-shen] The Syr. and Arab. read as in the 11th verse. Gesenius suspects the text to be corrupted, and reads as Josh. xv. 52. Eshcan.

16. Went yearly in circuit] This was a proper method of maintaining the honour of the law; and from this other nations derived the custom.

they came no more into the territory of Israel; and the hand of Jehovah was against 14 the Philistines all the days of Samuel. And the cities which the Philistines had taken from Israel were restored to Israel, from Ekron even unto Gath; and their territories did Israel deliver from the hands of the Philistines. And there was peace between Israel
 15 and the Amorites. And Samuel judged Israel all the days of his life. And he went yearly, in circuit, to Bethel, and Gilgal, and Mizpeh, and judged Israel in all those places.
 17 He then returned to Ramah; for there was his house; and there he judged Israel; and there he built an altar to Jehovah.

CHAPTER VIII.

B. C. 1112. Samuel's sons govern ill; the Israelites, in consequence, desire a king; Samuel sheweth the claims of a king.

1 Now when Samuel became old, he made
 2 his sons judges over Israel. And the name of his first-born was Joel; and the name of his second, Abiah. They were judges, the one in Bethel, and the other in Beer-sheba. And his sons walked not in his ways, but turned aside after lucre, and took bribes, 4 and perverted judgment. Then all the elders of Israel assembled, and came to 5 Samuel, to Ramah; And they said to him, Behold, thou art old, and thy sons walk not in thy ways: now appoint for us a king to judge us, like all the nations.

6 But the thing displeased Samuel when they said, Give to us a king, to judge us.
 7 And Samuel prayed unto Jehovah. And Jehovah said to Samuel, Hearken to the voice of the people in all that they have said to thee: for they have not rejected thee, but they have rejected me, that I should not
 8 reign over them. According to all the works which they have done since the day that I brought them out of "the land of" Egypt, even unto this day; for they have forsaken me, and served other gods; so 9 also do they do to thee. Now, therefore, hearken to their voice; yet solemnly protest to them, and show them the manner in which a king will reign over them.

10 And Samuel told all the words of Jehovah to the people who had asked of him a 11 king. And he said, This will be the manner in which a king will reign over you.

CHAP. VIII. 2. The one in Bethel] What is supplied in italic is now found in Josephus, and has all the appearance of truth in its favour. It seems improbable, that Samuel would appoint his sons judges of one place only.

3. Turned aside after lucre] Like the sons of Eli, they perverted justice to enrich themselves, and their conduct led to their humiliation.

5. Appoint for us a king] They requested him to do this as a prophet. They must have known, that Moses allowed them to choose one, under certain limitations. Deut. xvii. 14.

6—9. Samuel was grieved, not so much on his own account, as for the dishonour this step reflected on God. He was in a peculiar sense their king; and by desiring another,

He will take your sons, and appoint them for his chariots and his horsemen; and some 12 shall run before his chariots. And he will appoint of them captains over thousands, and captains over "hundreds, and captains over" fifties, "and captains over tens." And he will take of them to till his ground, and to reap his harvest, and to make his instruments of war, and the furniture of his chariots. And 13 your daughters he will take to be confectioners, and cooks, and bakers. And he 14 will take the best of your fields, and of your vineyards, and of your olive yards, and give them to his servants. And he will take the 15 tenth of your seed, and of your vineyards, and give to his officers, and to his servants.

And he will take your chosen and best men— 16 servants, and maid-servants, and your asses, and put them to his own work. He will 17 take the tenth of your sheep; and his servants ye shall be. And ye shall cry out in that 18 day because of your king whom ye yourselves have chosen; but Jehovah will not hear you in that day.

Nevertheless, the people refused to hear 19 the voice of Samuel; and they said, Nay; but we will have a king over us; That we 20 may be like all the nations; and that our king may judge us, and go out before us, and fight our battles. And Samuel heard 21 all the words of the people, and he rehearsed them in the ears of Jehovah. And Jeho- 22 vah said to Samuel, Hearken to their voice, and appoint for them a king. And Samuel said to the men of Israel, Go ye every man unto his own city.

CHAPTER IX.

B. C. 1095. Saul sent to seek his father's asses; by the advice of his servant he goeth to consult Samuel, who entertaineth him.

Now there was a man of Benjamin, whose 1 name was Kish, the son of Abiel, the son of Zeror, the son of Bechorath, the son of Aphiah, a Benjamite, a man of great wealth. And he had a son, whose name was Saul, 2 choice and goodly young man: and among the Israelites there was not a goodlier person than he: from his shoulders and upward, he was higher than any of the people. And the asses of Kish, Saul's father, 3 were lost. And Kish said to Saul, his son, Take now one of the young men with thee, they showed disrespect to him. He gave them a king, but it was in anger. Hosea xiii. 11. 8. (a) Syr. Arab. 2 MSS.

10—18. They wanted a king like the nations around them; and these were despotic. Hitherto the Israelites had had governors, who exacted no tribute, who kept no guards, nor standing army. Samuel, therefore, suggested to them, the sacrifices they must make, if they persisted in their demand. No doubt they found hereafter the truth of what the prophet had said. They however persisted in their request; and nothing would satisfy them but a king.

12. (a) The versions.

CHAP. IX. 1. A man of great wealth] This refers, I think, to Aphiah and not to Kish the father of Saul. Cover-

- and arise, go, seek the asses. "And Saul took one of the young men, and went to seek the asses of his father." And "they" passed through mount Ephraim, and through the land of Shalisha, but they found them not. They then passed through the land of Shalim, and they were not there; and "they" passed through the land of the Benjamites, but they found them not. When they were come to the land of Zuph, Saul said to his young man who was with him, Come let us return; lest my father cease to think on the asses, and become anxious for us. And he said unto him, Behold now, there is in this city a man of God, and he is an honourable man; all that he saith assuredly cometh to pass: let us now go thither; perhaps he may show us the way in which we should go.
- 7 Then said Saul to his young man, But, behold, should we go, what shall we present to the man? for the bread which was in our bags is spent, and we have not a present to bring to the man of God: what have we?
- 8 And the young man answered Saul again, and said, Behold, I have in my possession the fourth part of a shekel of silver: that 'let us' give to the man of God, that he may show us our way. Then said Saul to his young man, Thy saying is good; come, let us go. So they went to the city where the man of God lived.
- 11 And as they went up the hill to the city, they found young maidens going out to draw water, and said to them, Is the Seer in this place? (Formerly when any man, in Israel, went to inquire of God, he said thus, Come, and let us go to the seer: for a prophet was formerly called a seer.) And they answered them, and said, He is: behold, there he is before you: make haste then; for he is come to day to the city, because there is to-day a sacrifice of the people on the high place. As soon as ye come into the city, ye will certainly find him, before he go up to the high place to eat: for the people will not eat until he come, because it is he who blesseth the sacrifice; after which, they who are invited, eat. Now, therefore, go up; for about this time ye will find him. And they went up into the city; and when 14 they were come into the city, behold, Samuel met them, in going up to the high place.

Now Jehovah had revealed his will to 15 Samuel, the day before Saul came, saying, To-morrow about this time I will send to 16 thee a man from the land of Benjamin, and thou shalt anoint him chief over my people Israel; that he may save my people from the hand of the Philistines: for I have seen the affliction of my people; because their cry is come unto me. And when 17 Samuel saw Saul, Jehovah said to him, Behold the man of whom I spoke to thee! this is he who shall govern my people. 18 Then Saul drew near to Samuel in the gate, and said, Tell me, I pray thee, where the seer's house is. And Samuel answered Saul, and 19 said, I am the seer; go up before me to the high place; for ye shall eat with me to-day: and to-morrow, when I have told thee all that is in thy heart, I will let thee go. And 20 as for thine asses that were lost three days ago, set not thy mind on them; for they are found. And for whom is every desirable thing in Israel? Is it not for thee, and for all thy father's house? And Saul answered and 21 said, Am not I a Benjamite, of the smallest tribe of Israel? and my family the least of all the families of the tribe of Benjamin? why then speakest thou so to me? And Samuel 22 took Saul and his young man and brought them into the dining room, and placed them at the head of those invited, who were about thirty persons. And Samuel said to the 23 cook, Bring the portion which I gave thee, of which I said to thee, Set it apart, by thee, 'when I told thee that I had invited the people. And the cook took up the shoulder, 24 and what was with it, and set it before Saul. And Samuel said, Behold what hath been reserved for thee, set before thee; eat, for it hath been on purpose kept for thee. So Saul, on that day, ate with Samuel. They 25 then came down from the high place into dale renders, 'a valiant man.' I have followed our marginal version.

3. And Saul took] This addition to the common text is so much in the style of the Hebrew, and so agreeable to the context, that I cannot but deem it genuine. (a) Syr. Arab. 4. (v) Sept. Vulg.

5. To the land of Zuph] In which was Ramah, the place of Samuel's birth and habitation. See chap. i. 1, and note there.

7. What shall we present] It is the invariable custom of the east, on visiting a superior, to present a gift. See Harmer. 8. (v) All the versions.

9. I have transposed this verse with Houbigant after the 11th, which gives a reason for the name then given to a prophet.

15. Had revealed his will] Literally, 'had revealed to the ear of Samuel.' Geddes renders, 'had whispered in the ear of Samuel.'

19. All that is in thy heart] That is, all that thou desirest.

20. Is every desirable thing] All our old translators with Purver render as I have done with little variation. By becoming king, he would enjoy that honour and those good things which belonged to the throne.

23. I have followed Geddes in transposing the words marked from the end of the next verse. They give here a suitable sense; but as they stood they were wholly inexplicable.

24. What was with it] Dalhe renders, 'the leg with the broth;' and it is probable that וְהַלְבִּיָּהּ may refer to broth and vegetables.

25. The addition of the Sept. and Vulg. makes the narrative more full; and is supported by the next verse, which implies that Saul slept on the roof. Had Samuel communed with Saul on the roof, it is probable he would have there informed him, that God had chosen him to be king over Israel, and would also have anointed him, as he might have done both with the greatest privacy; but we find from what follows he did not.

the city, and Samuel communed with Saul on the roof of the house; "for in the roof a bed had been made for Saul, in which he slept."

CHAPTER X.

B. C. 1095. Samuel privately anointeth Saul; and predicts three things which should occur to him, and be tokens of his advancement to the throne of Israel.

- 26 Now when the morning dawned, Samuel called to Saul on the roof of the house, saying, Arise, that I may send thee away. And Saul arose, and both he and Samuel went 27 out abroad. As they were going to the end of the city, Samuel said to Saul, Bid the young man pass on before us; (and he passed on;) but stand thou still a while, that
1 I may show thee the purpose of God. Then Samuel took a vial of oil, and poured it upon his head, and kissed him and said, Is it not because Jehovah hath anointed thee chief^a over his people Israel? for thou shalt govern Jehovah's people, and shalt save them from the hand of their enemies, who are around them. And this shall be a token to thee, that Jehovah hath anointed
2 thee chief over his inheritance." When to-day thou hast departed from me, thou wilt meet two men by Rachel's sepulchre, on the border of Benjamin, at Zelzah; and they will say to thee, The asses which thou wentest to seek are found; and, lo! thy father hath no more concern about the asses, but is anxious for you, saying, What shall I do for my son? Then shalt thou pass on forward
3 thence, and thou wilt come to the plain of Tabor, and there shall meet thee three men going up to worship God at Bethel; one carrying three kids, and another carrying three loaves of bread, and another carrying 4 a skin-bottle of wine. And they will salute thee, and give to thee two "loaves" of bread; which thou shalt receive from their hands.
5 After that thou wilt come to the hill of God, where there is a garrison of the Philistines; and it shall be when thou art come into the city, that thou wilt meet a company of prophets coming down from the high place, preceded by a psaltery, and a tabor and a pipe and a harp: and themselves prophesying.
6 And the Spirit of Jehovah will come upon thee, and thou shalt prophesy with them, and be changed into another man. And when "all" these things have happened 7 to thee, then do thou as it may be necessary; for God is with thee. But thou shalt go down before me to Gilgal; and, behold, I 8 will come down to thee, to offer burnt-offerings, and to slaughter feast-sacrifices; seven days shalt thou tarry, until I come to thee, and show thee what thou shalt do.

When now he had turned his back to go
9 from Samuel, God gave him another heart; and all those tokens came to pass that day. For when "he" had come thence to the hill 10 of God, behold a company of prophets met him; and the Spirit of God came upon him, and he prophesied among them. And, when 11 all who knew him beforetime saw, and behold, he prophesied among the prophets, they then said one to another, What is this that hath happened to the son of Kish? Is 12 Saul, also, among the prophets? And one that was there answered and said, But who is his father? "Is it not Kish?" Hence it became a proverb, Is Saul also among the prophets? And when he had done prophesying, he went to the high place. And 13 Saul's uncle said to him, and to his young man, Whither went ye? And he said, To seek the asses: and when we could see them nowhere, we came to Samuel. And Saul's 14 uncle said, Tell me, I pray thee, what Samuel said to you. And Saul said to his 15 uncle, he told us plainly that the asses were found. But respecting the kingdom, whereof Samuel spoke, he told him not.

And Samuel called the people together
17 at Mizpeh before Jehovah; And said to the Israelites, Thus saith Jehovah, the God of 18 Israel, I brought up the Israelites out of Egypt, and delivered you from the hands of the Egyptians, and from the hand of all those kings who oppressed you; Yet ye have this day rejected your God, who 19 himself saved you out of all your adversities and your tribulations; and ye have said to him, Nay, but set a king over us. Now, therefore, present yourselves before 20 Jehovah by your tribes, and by your "families." And when Samuel had called all the tribes of Israel to come near, the tribe of 21 Benjamin was taken. When he had caused

CHAP. X. 1. The addition of the Sept. is so suitable to the place, that several critics deem it genuine.

5. The hill of God] Some suppose this was Gibeah, (see chap. xlii. 3,) and that it was thus called, because there was a school of the prophets.—Prophesying] Not predicting future events, but singing sacred hymns, in a style like what the prophets used. Some think they were extemporary. Harmer supposes that this company of the prophets consisted of the young men who had finished their religious education, and were now going in solemn procession, according to a custom which still prevails. See his observations, vol. ii. p. 414.

5. Into another man] That is, filled with another spirit;

a spirit of wisdom and courage, suitable to the dignity conferred on him.

9. Gave him another heart] It is not said a new heart, but another; and this explains the 6th verse. God gave him such qualifications as were suitable to his office.

12. Who is his father] They wondered how a man who was not the son of a prophet, could so suddenly prophesy. The present text has, but who is their father? without the additional words, which are only in some copies of the Greek version; but which, I am persuaded, were originally in the Hebrew.

19—22. The first king of Israel was chosen by lot; to

- the tribe of Benjamin to come near by their families, the family of Matri was taken, and Saul the son of Kish was taken; and when they sought him he could not be found.
- 22 Therefore they inquired of Jehovah further, if the man would yet come thither. And Jehovah answered, Behold, he hath hid
- 23 himself among the baggage. And they ran and fetched him thence; and when he stood among the people he was higher than any of the people, from his shoulders
- 24 and upwards. And Samuel said to all the people, See ye that there is none like him, whom Jehovah hath chosen among the people. And all the people shouted, and said,
- 25 Long live the king. Then Samuel told the people the rights of the kingdom, and wrote them in a book, and laid it up before Jehovah. And Samuel sent all the people away, every man to his own house.
- 26 And Saul also went home to Gibeah; and there went with him a band of men, whose
- 27 hearts God had touched. But some worthless persons said, How shall this man save us? So they despised him, and brought him no presents; but he regarded them not.

CHAPTER XI.

B. C. 1095. Nahash, the Ammonite, besieges Jabesh-gilead, and offers a reproachful condition to the inhabitants; they send messengers, and are delivered by Saul; his authority solemnly acknowledged.

- 1 THEN Nahash, the Ammonite, came up and encamped against Jabesh-gilead: and all the men of Jabesh said unto Nahash, Make a covenant with us, and we will serve thee. And Nahash, the Ammonite, answered and said, On this condition will I make a covenant with you, that I may thrust out all your right eyes, and lay a reproach
- 2 upon all Israel. And the elders of Jabesh said to him, Give to us seven days respite, that we may send messengers to all the districts of Israel: and then, if there be no man to save us, we will come out to thee.
- 3 Then came the messengers to Gibeah, of Saul, and told the tidings in the ears of the people: and all the people raised their voices, and wept. And, behold, Saul came, 5 following his oxen, from the field; and Saul said, What hath befallen the people that they weep? And they told him the tidings of the men of Jabesh. And the 6 Spirit of God came upon Saul when he heard those tidings, and his anger was kindled greatly. And he took the pair of 7 oxen, and hewed them in pieces, and sent them throughout all the districts of Israel by the hands of messengers, saying, Who-soever cometh not forth after Saul and after Samuel, so shall it be done to his oxen. And the fear of Jehovah fell on the people, and they came forth with one consent. And 8 when he numbered them in Bezek, the Israelites were three hundred thousand, and the men of Judah thirty thousand. And 9 they said to the messengers who had come, Thus shall ye say to the men of Jabesh-gilead, To-morrow by mid-day ye shall have help. And the messengers came and told this to the men of Jabesh; and they were glad. Therefore the men of Jabesh said 10 "to Nahash, the Ammonite," To-morrow we will come forth to you, and ye may do with us all as seemeth good to you. But on the 11 morrow, Saul having put the people in three companies, they came into the midst of the camp, in the morning watch, and slew the Ammonites until noon; and they who remained were scattered, so that two of them were not left together.

And the people said to Samuel, Who is 12 he that said, Shall Saul reign over us? bring the men, that we may put them to death. And Saul said, There shall not a 13 man be put to death this day: for to-day Jehovah hath wrought salvation in Israel. Then said Samuel to the people, Come, 14 and let us go to Gilgal, and renew the kingdom there. And all the people went to 15 Gilgal; and there they made Saul king before Jehovah; and there they slaughtered feast-sacrifices before Jehovah; and there Saul and all the men of Israel rejoiced exceedingly.

And Samuel said to all Israel, Behold, I 1 have hearkened to your voice in all that ye said prevent all disputes, and the claims of the different tribes, or of the more powerful families. (v) Versions and MSS.

25. The rights of the kingdom] Some think Samuel founded his rights on what Moses had said, Deut. xvii. 16, &c. It is clear from this, that there was a mutual stipulation between the king and the people; the rights of both were specified, and laid up in the tabernacle. Hence the Jewish kings were by no means absolute; though they often exercised a despotic power.

CHAP. XI. 1. Then Nahash] From the next chapter we learn, that the fear of this invasion was one ground of the people's requesting a king; and the condition which Nahash proposes, shows that he was cruel, and probably powerful.

7. And sent them] This method of summoning a people devoted to agriculture was natural; but yet it discovers the rude manners of the times. Like some of the brave generals of Rome, king Saul laboured in his own farm.

9. By mid-day] Literally, when the sun is hot; which in v. 11, is called the heat of the day; a common phrase among the people of all nations, for mid-day.

10. (a) Sept. Arab.

11. In the morning watch] Saul surprised the Ammonites. Not expecting an attack they were routed and slain.

14. Let us go to Gilgal] This place was near, and celebrated for the covenant Joshua made between God and the Israelites.—Renew the kingdom there] That is, solemnly confirm the choice we have made.

CHAP. XII. 1. The address of Samuel is so connected with the preceding chapter, that it ought not to have been separated from it.

2. Is your conductor] So the Targum, and more pro-

2 to me; and have made a king over you. And now, behold, that king is your conductor: for I am become old and grey-headed; yet lo, my sons are with you: and I have conducted you from my youth to this day. Be- hold, here I am: answer me before Jeho- vah, and before his anointed. Whose ox have I taken? or whose ass have I taken? or whom have I defrauded? or whom have I oppressed? or from whose hands have I received a bribe wherewith to blind mine eyes? Tell me and I will restore it to you. And they said, Thou hast not defrauded us, nor oppressed us, neither hast thou taken ought from any man's hand. And he said to them, Jehovah is witness, and his anointed this day witness against you, that ye have not found ought in my hand. And they answered, Jehovah is witness.

6 And Samuel said to the people, Jehovah, who appointed Moses and Aaron, and who brought your fathers out of the land of Egypt, "is witness." Now, therefore, stand still, that I may reason with you before Jeho- vah, on all the righteous acts of Jehovah, which he hath done to you and to your fathers. When Jacob had come into Egypt, and your fathers cried to Jehovah, then Je- hovah sent Moses and Aaron, who brought your fathers out of the land of Egypt, and made them to dwell in this place. And when they forgot Jehovah their God, he delivered them into the hand of Sisera, cap- tain of the host of "Jabin, king of" Hazor; and into the hand of the Philistines; and into the hand of the king of Moab; and they fought against them. And they cried to Jehovah, and said, We have sinned, be- cause we have forsaken Jehovah, and have served Baals and Ashtaroths: but now de- liver us out of the hand of our enemies, and we will serve thee. And Jehovah sent "Deborah and Barak, and Gideon, and Jeph- thah, and Samson," and delivered you out of the hand of your enemies on every side, and ye dwelled securely. Yet, when ye saw that Nahash, the king of the Ammonites, came against you, ye said to me, Nay; but a king shall reign over us, when Jehovah your God was your king. Now, therefore, behold the king whom ye have chosen, and and whom ye have desired! and, behold, Jehovah hath set a king over you. If 14 ye will fear Jehovah, and serve him, and obey his voice, and rebel not against the commandment of Jehovah; then shall ye "live," both ye and also the king who reign- eth over you, besides Jehovah your God. But if ye will not obey the voice of Jehovah, 15 but rebel against the commandment of Je- hovah, then shall the hand of Jehovah be against you, "and against your king."

Now, therefore, stand and see this great 16 thing, which Jehovah will do, before your eyes. Is not this the time of wheat harvest? I will call on Jehovah, and he shall send 17 thunder and rain; that ye may perceive and see, how great is the evil, which ye have done, in the sight of Jehovah, in asking for yourselves a king. Samuel then called on 18 Jehovah; and Jehovah, that day, sent thunder and rain; and all the people greatly feared Jehovah and Samuel. And all the 19 people said to Samuel, Pray for thy servants to Jehovah thy God, that we may not die: for we have added this evil, in asking for ourselves a king, to all our other sins.

And Samuel said to the people, Fear not, 20 although ye have done all this evil; only turn not aside from following Jehovah; but serve Jehovah with your whole heart; And 21 turn not aside after vain idols, which cannot profit or deliver; for vain they are. Then, 22 indeed, Jehovah will not, on account of his great name, forsake his people; because it hath pleased Jehovah to make you his people. As for me, God forbid that I should 23 sin against Jehovah, by ceasing to pray for you. I will also teach you the good and the right way: Only fear Jehovah, and serve 24 him in truth with your whole heart: for consider how great things he hath done for you. But if ye will still do wickedly, ye 25 shall be consumed, both ye and your king.

CHAPTER XIII.

B. C. 1095. Saul selecteth three thousand men; assem- bleth the people against the Philistines; weary of waiting for Samuel, he offereth sacrifices.

SAUL, when he began to reign, was "thirty" 1 years old; and when he had reigned two years over Israel, Saul chose for himself three 2 perly, as walking before does not convey, in this connexion, the sense of the text.

4. Thou hast not defrauded us] This is a noble testi- mony to the integrity of the prophet and leader of Israel.

6, 9. (a) Sept.

11. Deborah] The Syr. has preserved the historical order and the proper names of the judges. See Heb. xi. 32. (v) Syr. Arab.

12. See note, chap. xi. 1.

14. Then shall ye live] The reading here adopted is ad- mitted by the best and most cautious critics; and so in the next verse. (v) Targ. Sept. 15. (v) Sept.

16, 17. The time of wheat harvest] This thunder and rain must have been unusual, or the intention of Samuel in praying for it would not have been answered. The wheat harvest is over by the end of May, or early in June; and it is clear that the latter rain was over before harvest. Com- pare Deut. xi. 14, and the note there. In asking for your- selves a king] The evil of this request arose from the pecu- liar relation of God to them, as their civil governor, as it manifested ingratitude for what he had done, and want of confidence in his power and goodness.

CHAP. XIII. 1. Saul was thirty] I have followed Hou- bigant in admitting the reading of one Greek copy. Geddes leaves a blank: "Saul was . . . years old when he was made king; and he reigned over Israel . . . years."

- thousand men of Israel; two thousand were with Saul, in Michmash and in mount Bethel, and a thousand were with Jonathan, in Gibeah of Benjamin: and the rest of the people he sent, every man to his own home.
- 3 Now Jonathan smote a garrison of the Philistines that was in Gibeah, and the Philistines heard of it. And Saul caused the trumpet to be blown throughout all the land, saying, Let those beyond the Jordan hear.
- 4 And all Israel heard that Saul had smitten a garrison of the Philistines, and that Israel also had become detestable to the Philistines; then the people flocked together after Saul to Gilgal.
- 5 And the Philistines assembled to fight with Israel, with "three" thousand chariots, and six thousand horsemen, and people as the sand which is on the sea-shore for multitude: and they came up, and encamped in Michmash, to the east of Beth-aven.
- 6 When the men of Israel saw what distress they were in, because the Philistine people approached, they then hid themselves in caves, and in thickets, and in rocks, and in towers, and in pits; And those who dwelt beyond the Jordan, went back to the land of Gad and Gilead: but Saul as yet abode in Gilgal, and all the people followed him,
- 8 trembling. And he tarried seven days, according to the time which Samuel had mentioned; but Samuel had not come to Gilgal; and the people were scattered from him.
- 9 And Saul said, Bring hither to me a burnt-offering, and feast-offerings. And he offered the burnt-offering. But when he had made an end of offering the burnt-offering, behold, Samuel came; and Saul went forth to meet him that he might salute him. And Samuel said, What hast thou done? And Saul said, Because I saw that the people were scattered from me, and that thou camest not within the days appointed, and that the Philistines had assembled at Michmash; I, therefore, said, The Philistines will come down upon me to Gilgal; and I have not made supplication to Jehovah: hence I forced myself, and offered a burnt-offering. And Samuel said to Saul, 13 Thou hast done foolishly; thou hast not kept the commandment of Jehovah thy God, which he commanded thee: for hadst thou done so, now would Jehovah have established thy kingly power over Israel for ever. But now thy kingly power shall not continue: Jehovah hath sought for himself a man after his own heart; and Jehovah hath commanded him to be chief over his people, because thou hast not observed what Jehovah commanded thee. And 15 Samuel arose, and went from Gilgal.

"But the remainder of the people went up after Saul" to Gibeah of Benjamin; and Saul numbered the people with him, and found them to be about six hundred men. And Saul, and Jonathan his son, and the 16 people with them, abode in Gibeah of Benjamin; but the Philistines encamped in Michmash. And foragers came out 17 from the camp of the Philistines, in three companies: one company turned by the way of Ophrah, to the land of Shual: And 18 another company turned the way to Beth-horon: and another company turned towards the wilderness, by the way of that district which lieth opposite the valley of Zeboim.

Now there was no smith found in the 19 whole land of Israel; for the Philistines said, We must take them away lest they should make swords or spears. But all the Israel- 20 ites went to the stations of the Philistines to sharpen every man his plough-share, and his spade, and his ax, and his mattock; And 21 now had the edge of their plough-shares, and their spades, and their mattocks, and their axes, and the paddles of their goads,

3. Let those beyond] This is the proper version, and not 'Let the Hebrews hear.' See ver. 7. Saul collected troops from all the tribes, as the Philistines seemed to resent the insult offered in the slaughter of their garrison most highly, and prepared to avenge it.

5. Three thousand] The common reading is improbable; and the error might easily be made. (v) Syr. Arab.

6. Because the Philistine people] If the words be retained, they must be so rendered, as Oslander long ago remarked; and they afford a reason for the fear and conduct of the Israelites.

7. And those who dwell] So the Sept. and Symmachus render; and the connexion requires and justifies it. Literally, 'the trans-jordanites repassed the Jordan, to the land of Gad.'

8—13. Samuel had expressly appointed to meet Saul at Gilgal, to offer public sacrifices, and to show him what he should do, chap. x. 8. Saul, impatient at Samuel's delay, by his own authority orders sacrifices to be offered; and thus gives proof that he would not be governed by the law, but would act according to his own will and caprice. The apology he makes, under pretence of religion, shows but too plainly his hasty, tyrannical temper; and justifies God's rejection of him and his family from the throne.

14. A man after his own heart] Warburton has observed, this character is given him, not so much for his private, as for his public spirit and conduct. His knowledge of, and zeal for, the law, were uniform; and he never fell into idolatry. The phrase itself is best explained by the case of Samuel. Eli was rejected, and Samuel chosen in his place, just as David superseded Saul. On this occasion God said, 'I will raise up for myself a faithful priest, who shall do according to what is in my heart,' chap. ii. 35. And is not he, who does according to what is in God's heart, 'a man after God's heart'?

15. But the remainder] The clause retained in the two versions noticed gives light to the passage. Samuel, being displeased at Saul's disobedience, leaves him; and Saul returns to his own city, to defend that as long as possible.

19. We must take them away] So Poole and others. This was also the policy of the Chaldeans, 2 Kings xxiv. 14. Jer. xxiv. 1.

22. Neither sword nor spear] It is singular that among those brave men who abode with Saul, none had these weapons of war. This was suffered that the glory of the following victory might be given to God. In those times they had other weapons, such as bows and arrows; and even their goads served the purpose of pikes.

22 become blunt. So it was on the day of battle, that there was neither sword nor spear found in the hand of any of the people who were with Saul and Jonathan: only with Saul and with Jonathan his son such weapons were found.

CHAPTER XIV.

B. C. 1087. Jonathan, with his armour-bearer, attacketh the garrison of the Philistines; confusion ensues in their camp; and Saul and other Israelites pursue them; Saul's mad adjuration, &c.

- 23 AND the garrison of the Philistines went out to the passage of Michmash. When, one day, Jonathan, the son of Saul, said to the young man who bore his armour, Come, and let us go over to the Philistine garrison, which is opposite to us; but he told not his father. And Saul tarried in the uttermost part of Gibeah, under the pomegranate tree, which is by Migron: and the people with him were about six hundred men. And Abiah, the son of Ahitub, Ichabod's brother, the son of Phinehas, the son of Eli, Jehovah's high-priest in Shiloh, wore the ephod. Now the people knew not that Jonathan was gone.
- 4 And between the passages, by which Jonathan sought to go over to the Philistine garrison, there was a sharp rock on the one side, and a sharp rock on the other side: and the name of the one was Bozez, and the name of the other Seneh. The sharp point of the one looked northward, over against Michmash; and of the other southward, over against Gibeah. And Jonathan said to the young man who bore his armour, Come and let us go over to the garrison of these uncircumcised: it may be that Jehovah will work for us; for, with Jehovah there is no restraint, to save by many or by few. And his armour-bearer said to him, Do all that is in thy heart: march on, behold I am with thee according to thy desire. Then said Jonathan, Behold, we will pass over to these men, and we will discover ourselves to them.
- 9 If they say thus to us, Stop until we come to you; then we will stand in our place and not go up to them. But, if they say thus, Come up to us; then we will go up: for this shall be a token to us that Jehovah hath delivered them into our hands. And they both discovered themselves to the garrison of the Philistines; and the Philistines said, Behold, the Hebrews are coming forth out of the holes where they had hid themselves. And the men of the garrison addressed themselves to Jonathan and his armour-bearer, and said, Come up to us, and we will teach you something. And Jonathan said to his armour-bearer, Come up after me: for Jehovah hath delivered them into the hand of Israel. And Jonathan climbed up, upon his hands and upon his feet, and his armour-bearer followed him: and they fell before Jonathan; and his armour-bearer gave the death-stroke after him. And this first slaughter, which Jonathan and his armour-bearer made, with spears, pebbles, and flints of the field, was of about twenty men. And there was terror in the camp and the field, and among all the people of the garrison; and the foragers were also struck with terror, and the land quaked; so very great was the terror. And the watchmen of Saul in Gibeah of Benjamin, looked; and, behold, the multitude melted away, and were going "hither" and thither. Then said Saul to the 17 people who were with him, Number now, and see who is gone from us. And when they had numbered, behold, Jonathan and his armour-bearer were not there. And Saul said to Abiah, Bring hither the ephod; for he at that time wore the ephod among the Israelites. But while Saul talked to the priest, the tumult in the camp of the Philistines went on and increased: and Saul said to the priest, Withhold thy hand. And Saul, and all the people who were with him, shouted and came to the battle: and, behold every man's sword was against his fellow; and very great confusion. More-over, the Hebrew "slaves," who were before that time with the Philistines, and had come up with them into the camp; even they also turned to be with the Israelites who were with Saul and Jonathan. Likewise all the men of Israel who had hidden themselves in mount Ephraim, when they heard that the Philistines fled, even they also pursued them in the battle; so that the whole people, now with Saul, were about ten thousand CHAP. XIV. 4. Bozez and Seneh] They received these names from what grew upon them. The former signifying flower; and the other thorn. Some, from the Arabic, explain the first to denote whiteness; and the second a sharp point.

6. To save by many or by few] Doubtless Jonathan was divinely excited to this deed of valour, that he might be the instrument of saving Israel.

7—10. Jonathan desired a token of divine favour in this enterprise; and he received it. His armour-bearer was ready to second him in whatever he undertook.

14, 15. I have followed the Greek text; the Hebrew is unintelligible. It is literally, 'as in the half of a furrow of a yoke of a field.' It is probable that some of the garrison flying to the army which lay encamped on the side of the hill, threw them into great confusion, thinking that an army was coming against them. The circumstances were aggravated beyond the truth, as is usual in such cases; and they suspected treachery among themselves.

18. Ephod] The common text has ark; but this is highly improbable. The Israelites could not forget what had happened in the time of Eli. We learn that it was usual to consult God by the Ephod from the whole history of David. Compare chap. xxiii. 9; and xxx. 7, in what manner this was done, is not certainly known; but it was most probably by casting lots.

21. Slaves] The Sept. have preserved here the proper reading; and with Michaelis and Dathe it is admitted into the text. 22. (a) Sept. Vulg.

23 men." Thus Jehovah, that day, saved Israel: and the battle passed on to Beth-aven.

24 And the men of Israel were that day distressed; for Saul had adjured the people, saying, Accursed be the man that eateth food until evening, that I may be avenged of mine enemies. So none of the people

25 tasted "food until the evening." For although the whole people had to come to a wood, where was honey dropping upon the

26 ground; Yet when the people came into the wood, and, behold, the honey dropped, no man ate of it: for the people feared the

27 oath. But Jonathan had not heard when his father charged the people with the oath: he, therefore, put forth the end of the staff which was in his hand, and dipped it in a honeycomb, and ate of it; and he was 28 much refreshed. Then one of the people addressed him, and said, Thy father strictly charged the people with an oath, saying, Accursed be the man that eateth food this day.

29 Hence the people are faint. Then said Jonathan, My father hath troubled the people: see, I pray, how much I have been refreshed by 30 having tasted a little of this honey! How much better, if the people had to-day freely eaten of the spoil of their enemies, which they found? for had there not been now a much greater slaughter among the Philistines?

31 And they smote the Philistines that day from Michmash to Aijalon: and the people

32 were very faint. And the people flew upon the spoil, and took sheep, and oxen, and calves, and slew them on the ground: and the people ate the flesh with the blood.

33 They told Saul, saying, Behold, the people are sinning against Jehovah by eating flesh with the blood. And he said, Ye are transgressing: roll now to me a great stone.

34 And Saul said to the officers, Disperse yourselves among the people, and say to them, Bring hither every man his ox, and every man his sheep, and slay them here, and eat; and sin not against Jehovah, by eating flesh with the blood. And all the people brought every man his ox with him that night and slew them there. And Saul 35 built an altar to Jehovah: this was the first altar which he built to Jehovah.

And Saul said, Let us go down after 36 the Philistines by night, and spoil them until the morning light, and let us not leave a man of them. And they said, Do whatsoever seemeth good to thee. Then said the priest, Let us draw near hither to God. And Saul 37 asked counsel of God, Shall I go down after the Philistines? Wilt thou deliver them into the hand of Israel? But he answered him not that day. And Saul said, Draw near 38 hither, all ranks of the people; and know and see wherein hath been this day our sin. For, as Jehovah liveth, who hath saved 39 Israel, though it be in Jonathan my son, he shall surely die. But there was not a man among all the people that answered him. Then said he to all Israel, Be ye on one side, 40 and I and Jonathan my son will be on the other side. And the people said to Saul, Do what seemeth good to thee. Therefore, 41 Saul said, "O Jehovah," the God of Israel, give a just lot. And Saul and Jonathan were taken; but the people escaped. And 42 Saul said, Cast lots between me and Jonathan my son. And Jonathan was taken. 43 Then Saul said to Jonathan, Tell me what thou hast done. And Jonathan told him, and said, I certainly tasted a little honey with the end of the staff which was in my hand; here I am; let me die. And Saul 44 answered, May God do so and more also to me, if thou, Jonathan, do not assuredly die. And the people said to Saul, Shall 45 Jonathan die, who hath wrought this great salvation in Israel? God forbid: as Jehovah liveth, there shall not one hair of his head fall to the ground; for with God he hath wrought this day. So the people rescued Jonathan that he died not. Then Saul 46 went up from following the Philistines; and the Philistines went to their own place.

Saul now obtained the kingly power 47

24. Had that day adjured] This was a rash oath, as destitute of prudence as it was of piety. Had the people received food, they might have accomplished a complete victory. (a) Arab.

27. And he was much refreshed] After his exertions and fatigue, any thing to quench thirst or satisfy hunger would be grateful. As Jonathan was ignorant of his father's oath, he could not be criminal in tasting the honey. The literal version, 'and his eyes were enlightened,' may be misunderstood; and for this reason I have given the sense.

31-35. The consequence of Saul's rash oath was the transgression of the people, flying on the spoil and devouring flesh with the blood. Moses had repeatedly prohibited this; and they could not be ignorant of the law. Their sin was therefore committed knowingly and wilfully.

37. He answered him not] Either because Saul had offended by his adjuration, or rather to show, that however improper this was, yet when made, God would have it observed.

41. Give a just lot] The Vulg. and partly the Sept. has an addition here: 'O Jehovah, the God of Israel, [show to us why thou hast not answered thy servant Saul this day. If this iniquity be in me, or in Jonathan my son, discover it by Urim; or if this iniquity be in the people] discover it by Thummim.' The word rendered just, is Thummim; and from the use of this term here, Michaelis conjectures, that what are called Urim and Thummim, were three sacred lots contained in the high priest's breast-plate.

43. Here I am; let me die] That is, since my country is saved, and her enemies vanquished, I am content to die.

45. And the people said to Saul] Saul makes no inquiry, whether Jonathan had done this knowingly; but at once resolves on his death. The people interpose, and determine not to suffer the death of one whom God had honoured as the instrument of their deliverance.

over Israel, and fought against all his enemies on every side; against Moab, and against the Ammonites, and against Edom, and against the kings of Zobah, and against the Philistines: and whithersoever he 48 marched, he harassed the enemy. And he acted with valour, and smote the Amalekites, and delivered Israel out of the hands of those who plundered them.
 49 Now the sons of Saul were Jonathan and Ishui, and Melchi-shua: and the names of his two daughters were these; the name of the first-born Merab, and the name of the 50 younger Michal. And the name of Saul's wife was Ahinoam, the daughter of Ahimaaz: and the name of the captain of his host was Abner, the son of Ner, Saul's 51 uncle. For Kish, the father of Saul, and Ner, the father of Abner, were the sons of 52 Abiel. And there was vigorous war with the Philistines all the days of Saul: and when Saul saw any strong or any valiant man, he took him into his service.

CHAPTER XV.

B. C. 1079. Saul sent to destroy Amalek; he spares Agag and the best of the spoil; Samuel denounceth his rejection, and killeth Agag.

1 SAMUEL now said to Saul, Jehovah sent me to anoint thee king over his people, over Israel: now, therefore, hearken thou to the 2 words of Jehovah. Thus saith Jehovah of hosts, I remember what Amalek did to Israel, how he opposed him in the way,
 3 when he came up from Egypt. Now go and smite Amalek, and utterly destroy all that they have, and spare them not; but slay both man and woman, infant and suckling, ox and sheep, camel and ass. And 4 Saul assembled the people, and numbered them in Telaim, two hundred thousand men, of whom were ten thousand men of Judah.
 5 And Saul came to a city of Amalek, and laid wait in the valley.
 6 And Saul said unto the Kenites, Depart and get away from among the Amalekites, lest I destroy you with them: for ye showed kindness to all Israel, when they came up out of Egypt. So the Kenites departed from among the Amalekites. And Saul 7 smote the Amalekites from Havilah, until one cometh to Shur, which is opposite Egypt. And he took Agag, the king of 8 the Amalekites, alive; and all the people he utterly destroyed with the edge of the sword. But Saul and the people spared Agag, and 9 the best of the sheep, and of the oxen, and of the "full grown" camels, and the camel-pillions, even all that was good; and would not utterly destroy them: but whatsoever was vile and refuse, they utterly destroyed.

Then came the word of Jehovah to Samuel, saying, I repeat that I have made 10 Saul king; for he hath turned away from me, and hath not performed my commandments. And this grieved Samuel; and he cried to Jehovah all that night. And when 12 Samuel rose early in the morning to meet Saul, it was told Samuel, saying, Saul came to Carmel, and, behold, he set up for himself a monument, and then passed away, and went down to Gilgal. And Samuel 13 came to Saul; and Saul said to him, Blessed be thou of Jehovah! I have performed the commandment of Jehovah. And Samuel 14 said, What meaneth then this bleating of sheep, and this lowing of oxen, which I hear with mine ears? And Saul said, They have 15 brought them from the Amalekites: for the people spared the best of the sheep and of the oxen, to sacrifice to Jehovah thy God; and the rest we have utterly destroyed. Then Samuel said to Saul, Suffer me to 16 tell thee what Jehovah said to me this night. And he said to him, Speak. And Samuel 17 said, When thou wast little in thine own eyes, wast thou not made chief of the tribes of Israel? and did not Jehovah anoint thee king over Israel? And Jehovah sent thee 18 on a journey, and said, Go and utterly destroy these sinners, the Amalekites; and fight against them until they be consumed. Why then didst thou not obey the voice of 19 Jehovah, but didst fly upon the spoil, and do evil in the sight of Jehovah? And Saul 20

48. Acted with valour] Matthews, 'played the man'; demeaned himself valiantly. Becket and Margin, 'wrought mightily.'

CHAP. XV. 2. I remember Amalek] Compare Exod. xvii. 8; Numb. xxiv. 20, and notes there.

3. And utterly destroy] The command to Saul is express, that he must destroy all their goods by consuming them; and kill all the persons, and cattle. Nothing is to be rescued. They seem to have lived by plundering; and it became necessary to exterminate them.

6. To the Kenites] The descendants of Jethro, who formerly lived in caves and rocks, near to the Amalekites. Numb. xxiv. 21. Some of them afterwards removed and lived in Judah, Judg. i. 16; and it is probable that on the subjection of the Israelites to the neighbouring nations, they had retreated to their old abode for their safety.

9. Full grown camels] It is clear that the word כר signifies camel-pillion, Gen. xxxi. 34; and the word here is regularly the plural, camel-pillions. This fixes the sense of the preceding term, rendered in the common version fatlings; and it is probable that כר may have dropped from the text. (v) Syr. Chald. Arab.

12. Set up for him a monument] 'To set up a place,' is a singular combination of words; and however explained, improper. There is no doubt, but כר signifies a monument: compare 2 Sam. xviii. 18; and Saul seemed anxious to erect a trophy of his victory, before he had made any acknowledgment to God.

13—15. Saul boasts of his compliance with the divine will, and his performance of it. Samuel had, from what Jehovah had said to him, reason to question the truth of his declaration; and when he heard the bleating of the flocks, he was certain of his transgression.

20. Yea I have obeyed] Saul persists in defending his own conduct; and pretends that what they had preserved said to Samuel, Yea, I have obeyed the voice of Jehovah, and have gone the way which Jehovah sent me, and have brought Agag, the king of Amalek, and have utterly 21 destroyed the Amalekites. But the people took of the spoil, sheep and oxen, the choice of the things, which should have been utterly destroyed, to sacrifice to Jehovah thy God, 22 in Gilgal. And Samuel said,

Hath Jehovah delight in burnt-offerings and sacrifices,

As in obeying the voice of Jehovah?

Behold, to obey, is far better than sacrifice. And to hearken, than the fat of rams.

23 For rebellion is as sinful as divination, And stubbornness as wicked as idolatry. Since then thou hast rejected the word of Jehovah,

"Jehovah" hath rejected thee from reigning.

24 And Saul said to Samuel, I have sinned: for I have transgressed the commandment of Jehovah, and thy words: because I feared the people, and hearkened to their 25 voice. Now, therefore, I pray thee, pardon my sin, and turn again with me, that I may 26 worship Jehovah "thy God." And Samuel said to Saul, I will not return with thee, for thou hast rejected the word of Jehovah, and Jehovah hath rejected thee from being king 27 over Israel. And as Samuel turned about to go away, he laid hold on the skirt of his 28 mantle, so that it was torn off. And Samuel said to him, So hath Jehovah torn from thee this day the kingdom of Israel, and given it thy neighbour who is better than 29 thou. Nor will He who gives victory to Israel, lie or repent: for he is not a man 30 that he should repent. Again "Saul" said, I have sinned: yet honour me now, I pray thee, before the elders of my people, and before Israel, and turn back with me, that 31 I may worship Jehovah, thy God. So

Samuel turned back with Saul; and Saul worshipped Jehovah.

Then said Samuel, Bring ye hither to 32 me Agag, the king of the Amalekites. And Agag came to him pleasantly: for Agag said to himself, Surely the bitterness of death is past. But Samuel said, As thy sword 33 has made women childless, so among women shall thy own mother be childless. And Samuel hewed Agag in pieces before Jehovah, in Gilgal.

Then Samuel went to Ramah; and Saul 34 went up to his own house, to Gibeah of Saul. And Samuel came no more to see 35 Saul unto the day of his death; nevertheless Samuel mourned for Saul: but Jehovah had repented that he had made Saul king over Israel.

CHAPTER XVI.

B. C. 1063. Samuel sent to Bethlehem; he is directed to anoint David; David is influenced by the Holy Spirit; Saul sends for him.

AND Jehovah said to Samuel, How long 1 wilt thou mourn for Saul, seeing I have rejected him from reigning over Israel? Fill thy horn with oil, and go (for I send thee) to Jesse the Bethlehemite: for among his sons I have provided for myself a king. And Samuel said, How can I go? If Saul 2 hear, he will kill me. And Jehovah said, Take a heifer with thee, and say, I am come to sacrifice to Jehovah. And call Jesse 3 to the sacrifice, and I will show thee what thou shalt do: and thou shalt anoint for me him whom I name to thee. And Samuel did 4 what Jehovah commanded, and came to Bethlehem. And the elders of the town 5 trembled at his coming, and said, Comest thou peaceably? And he said, Peaceably: I am come to sacrifice to Jehovah: sanctify yourselves, and come with me to the sacrifice.

was for the purpose of religion. It is probable this was only pretence, and that covetousness had prompted Saul and the people to seize the spoil.

22. Hath Jehovah delight] Obedience to God is a moral duty, constantly and invariably necessary; but sacrifice is only a ceremonial institution. Gross disobedience is not to be compensated by offering sacrifices. Compare Hos. vi. 6; Matt. v. 24. and ix. 13, and xii. 7.

23. Is as sinful] The noun, in Hebrew, is often used adjectively; and is obviously so used in each of these lines. Rebellion against God is as sinful as divination; they are alike forbidden, and in consequence violations of the divine command, (a) Sept. Vulg. Arab. MSS.

24. I feared the people] He excuses his sin, by laying it to the charge of the people. There is reason to suspect this was not the cause. Compare chap. xi. 7, xiv. 24.

25. (a) Sept. Vulg. MSS.

26. I will not return with thee] Samuel, no doubt, spoke what he intended, but afterwards saw reason to change his mind; nor in such cases is any man guilty of lying or prevarication. Compare Gen. xix. 2.

28, 29. Samuel strongly asserts God's rejection of Saul; his house is not to be established on the throne of Israel.—He who gives victory] Saul had obtained a victory, and built, in commemoration of it, a monument to himself. Samuel tacitly reproves his ingratitude, and points out to whom the honour of the victory was due. By this language, he also intimates, that though Saul should be removed from the throne, God would still give victory to Israel.

30. (a) Sept. Vulg. Arab.

32. Pleasantly] So the Geneva version, and most modern critics render. Saul having spared his life, he now thought himself secure.

33. The conduct of Samuel has been thought indecorous; and he has been charged with cruelty. It should seem, that Agag deserved the punishment inflicted for his cruelty towards others. Harmer has shown, that it is common in the east, for the greatest emperors sometimes to put to death with their own hands, those who have merited such punishment. See vol. iv. p. 230.

CHAP. XVI. 1. For myself a king] That is, one who will do all my pleasure; who will make it the study of his life, not only to conquer his enemies, but to honour me.

2. He will kill me] This shows the spirit of Saul. He made his will the law; without any regard to God, or his institutions.

5. Comest thou peaceably] Is all well? Hath God sent thee to announce his displeasure, or Saul for some sanguinary purpose?

5. He sanctified] That is, ordered to be sanctified; for a prophet is often said to do what he orders to be done, or predicts shall be done.—Called them to the sacrifice]

And he sanctified Jesse and his sons, and called them to the sacrifice.

- 6 And when they had come, he looked on Eliab and said to himself, Surely Jehovah's anointed is before him. But Jehovah said
- 7 to Samuel, Regard not his countenance, nor the height of his stature: since I have rejected him; for Jehovah doth not see as man seeth; for man looketh at the outward appearance, but Jehovah looketh at the
- 8 heart. Then Jesse called Abinadab, and made him pass before Samuel: but he said,
- 9 Neither hath Jehovah chosen this. Then Jesse made "Shimeah" to pass by; but he said, Neither hath Jehovah chosen this.
- 10 Thus Jesse made seven of his sons pass before Samuel; but Samuel said to Jesse,
- 11 Jehovah hath not chosen these. And Samuel said to Jesse, Are all thy sons here? And he said, The youngest yet remaineth; and lo! he tendeth the flock. And Samuel said to Jesse, Send and fetch him: for until he come hither, we will not sit down to eat.
- 12 And he sent and brought him in. Now he was ruddy, with beautiful eyes, and a goodly appearance: and Jehovah said "to Samuel,"
- 13 Arise, anoint him: for this is he. Then Samuel took the horn of oil, and anointed him in the midst of his brethren: and from that day forward, the Spirit of Jehovah came upon David. Samuel then arose and went to Ramah.
- 14 But the Spirit of Jehovah had departed from Saul; and an evil spirit from Jeho-
- 15 vah troubled him. And Saul's servants said to him, Behold now, an evil spirit from
- 16 God troubleth thee. Let our lord now command his servants who wait on him, to seek out a man, a skilful player on the harp: so that when the evil spirit from God is upon thee, he may play with his hand "on
- 17 thy harp," and thou mayest be well. And Saul said to his servants, Look out, I pray, for a man who can play well, and bring him to me. Then answered one of the servants, 18 and said, Behold, I have seen a son of Jesse, the Bethlehemite, and a skilful player, a man of valour, and a warlike man; and prudent in conduct, and comely in person; and Jehovah is with him. Saul now sent messen- 19 gers to Jesse, and said, Send to me David thy son, who tendeth the flock. And Jesse 20 took a homer of bread, and a skin-bottle of wine, and a kid, and sent them to Saul by David his son. And David came to Saul, and 21 stood before him; and he loved him greatly; and he became his armour-bearer. And 22 Saul sent to Jesse, saying, Let David, I pray thee, attend on me; for he hath found favour in my sight. Now, when the evil 23 spirit from God was upon Saul, David took the harp and played with his hand: and Saul was relieved, and was well, and the evil spirit departed from him.

CHAPTER XVII.

B. C. 1063. New war between the Israelites and Philistines; Goliath defies the hosts of Israel; challengeth to single combat; David accepts the challenge, and slayeth him; women celebrate the victory, and Saul becomes jealous.

AGAIN the Philistines assembled their hosts 1 to battle, and were convened at Shocoh, which belongeth to Judah; and they encamped between Shocoh and Azekah, in Ephsammim. And Saul and the men 2 of Israel assembled also, and encamped by the valley of Elah; and set the battle in array against the Philistines. And the Phi- 3 listines stood on a mountain on the one side, and Israel stood on the mountain on the other side; and a valley was between them.

And there came from the camp of the 4 Philistines, a champion, named Goliath of Gath, whose height was six cubits and a span. And on his head was a helmet of 5 brass, and he was clothed with a brass coat of mail, and the weight of the coat was five thousand shekels. And he had greaves of 6 brass on his legs; and a lance of brass

Most suppose, that the feast of the sacrifice is here intended; to which Samuel only invited Jesse and his sons, that he might secretly anoint him whom the Lord should name.

9. Shimeah] So we have his name in 2 Sam. xiii. 3, and 1 Chron. ii. 13, and the y might easily be omitted. It is certainly proper to write the same name in the same manner.

11. Sit down to eat] Samuel would not enjoy the feast, until he had done what the Lord had commanded.

12. (a) Versions.

13. The Spirit of Jehovah] God not only appointed him to rule his people, but gave him suitable qualifications. By his Spirit he gave him wisdom, prudence, and courage.

14. An evil spirit from Jehovah] Saul, by his disobedience, had provoked God, so that he no longer directed and prospered him; but left him a prey to his own gloomy mind. Conscious guilt, foreboding the loss of his dominion, and perhaps the destruction of his house, made him jealous, sanguinary, and irritable, and occasionally melancholy. This was the evil spirit which troubled him; and his courtiers properly advised music to soothe his mind, and mitigate his complaint. Had he been possessed by a demon, music would have had no effect.

16. (a) Versions.

18. Behold, I have seen a son] David being anointed, providence opens the way for his advancement. His skill on the harp introduces him to court; and his prudence and valour gain the affection of Saul and the people.

20. A homer of bread] So the Sept.; others, an ass loaded with bread. These different versions depend on the points; and I am satisfied the Greek translators were as likely to understand the text as the Masorets. The homer, as a measure of capacity, was more likely to be mentioned, than the ass, which carried the bread. To appear before the king without a present, would have been deemed indecorous.

CHAP. XVII. 4. A champion, named Goliath] When Joshua conquered the Anakites, some of them fled to the city of Gath, Josh. xi. 22, 23. Goliath might be of this race. There have been in most ages some men of gigantic size; nor have we any reason to doubt the truth of what is here said.

5. Five thousand shekels] About seventy-eight pounds weight; and the weight of his spear's point, about nine pounds.

7 between his shoulders. And the staff of his spear was like a weaver's beam; and his spear's iron point weighed six hundred shekels, and one bearing a shield went before him. And he stood and cried to the hosts of Israel, and said, Why are ye come out to set your battle in array? Am not I a Philistine, and ye servants to Saul? Choose you a man for yourselves, and let him come down to me. If he be able to fight with me, and to kill me, then will we be your servants; but if I prevail against him and kill him, then shall ye be our servants, and serve us. The Philistine also said, "Lo!" I this day defy the host of Israel; give me a man, that we may fight together. When Saul and all Israel heard those words of the Philistine, they were dismayed, and greatly afraid.

12 [Now David was the son of that Ephrathite of Beth-lehem-judah, whose name was Jesse; and he had eight sons: and the man went among men for an old man in the days of Saul. And the three eldest sons of Jesse went and followed Saul to the battle: and the name of the three sons that went to the battle were Eliab the first-born, and next unto him Abinadab, and the third Shammah. And David was the youngest: and the three eldest followed Saul. But David went and returned from Saul, to feed his father's sheep at Bethlehem. And the Philistine drew near morning and evening and presented himself forty days. And Jesse said unto David his son, Take now for thy brethren an ephah of this parched corn, and these ten loaves, and run to the camp to thy brethren; and carry these ten cheeses unto the captain of their thousand, and look how thy brethren fare, and take their pledge. Now Saul, and they, and all the men of Israel, were in the valley of Elah, fighting with the Philistines. And David rose up early in the morning, and left the sheep with a keeper, and took, and went, as Jesse had commanded him; and he came to the trench, as the host was going forth to the fight, and shouted for the battle. For Israel and the Philistines had put the battle in array, army against army. And David left his carriage in the hand of the keeper of the carriage, and ran into the army, and came and saluted his brethren. And as he talked with them, behold there came up the champion, the Philistine of Gath, Goliath by name, out of the armies of the Philistines, and spake according to the same words: and David heard them. And all the men of Israel, when they saw the man, fled from him, and were sore afraid. And the men of Israel said, Have ye seen this man that is come up? surely to defy Israel is he come up: and it shall be, that the man who killeth him, the king will enrich him with great riches, and will give him his daughter, and will make his father's house free in Israel. And David spake to the men that stood by him, saying, What shall be done to the man that killeth this Philistine, and taketh away the reproach from Israel? for who is this uncircumcised Philistine, that he should defy the armies of the living God? And the people answered him after this manner, saying, So shall it be done to the man that killeth him.

And Eliab his eldest brother heard when he spake unto the men: and Eliab's anger was kindled against David, and he said, Why comest thou down hither? and with whom hast thou left those few sheep in the wilderness? I know thy pride, and the naughtiness of thine heart; for thou art come down that thou mightest see the battle. And David said, What have I now done? Is there not a cause?

And he turned from him toward another, and spake after the same manner: and the people answered him again after the former manner. And when the words were heard which David spake, they rehearsed them before Saul: and he sent for him.]

David now said to Saul, Let no man's heart fail because of him; thy servant will go and fight with this Philistine. And Saul said to David, Thou art not able to go against this Philistine and to fight with him: for thou art only a young man; but he a man of war from his youth. And David said to Saul, Thy servant tended his father's flock, and if there came a lion or a bear, and took a lamb out of the flock, then I pursued him and smote him, and snatched it from his mouth: and if he arose against me, I caught him by his beard and smote him and slew him. Both lions and bears hath thy servants smitten; and this uncircumcised Philistine shall be like one of them: "let me go then, and smite him, and take away the reproach from Israel; for who is that uncircumcised Philistine, that he should defy the hosts of the living God?" David said moreover, Jehovah, who delivered me from the power of lions and bears, will deliver me from the hand of this Philistine. And Saul said to David, Go; and may Jehovah be with thee.

8. He stood and cried] History furnishes many instances of single combat. Thus Paris and Menelaus in Homer, and the Horatii and Curiatii in Livy, are said to fight at the head of the army, upon condition that the party of the vanquished, should receive laws from the party conquering. Goliath might be brave, but the language is intended to insult, and strike fear, into the Israelites. 10. (a) Sept.

12-31. In these verses we have a strange and incoherent narrative; which cannot be regarded as a part of sacred writ. It is obvious to remark upon this passage, first, that after David had been of so much service to the king in causing the evil spirit to depart from him; after its being recorded how greatly Saul loved him, and that he had made him his armour-bearer; after the king had sent to Jesse, to signify his intention of keeping his son with him: all which are particularly mentioned, in the latter part of the preceding chapter: the account of keeping his father's sheep, afterwards, and being sent to his brethren upon this occasion, must appear to be somewhat improbable. Secondly,

That what is here said of the premium that Saul had first offered, to him who should conquer the Philistine, is not very consistent with the accounts afterwards given; of which we shall have occasion to take particular notice. Thirdly, That Eliab's behaviour, as here represented, is not only remarkable, but unaccountable and absurd. And fourthly, That the inquiries of a young man, who is not said to have declared any intentions of accepting the challenge of the Philistine, would scarcely have been related to the king.—But now, if this passage be supposed to have been interpolated, we must see how the connexion stands, upon its being omitted. The Vatican copy of the Sept. contains none of these verses, and Kennicott has shown, that the Alex. did not, till Origen inserted them. See Gen. Diss. p. 9. Michaelis, Dathe, Houbigant, and the best modern critics consent that the whole passage is interpolated.

36. The addition to the text here is so suitable to the narrative, that its own evidence supports its right to a place in the text. (a) Sept. Vulg.

38 Saul would now clothe David with his armour; and he put on his head a helmet of brass, and clothed him with a coat of 39 mail; And over his armour "he girded" his own sword. "Once and again" David attempted to go, but could not; for he had not been accustomed to them. And David said to Saul, I cannot go with these, for I have not been accustomed to them. And David 40 put them off him; And took his staff in his hand, and chose five smooth stones out of the brook, and put them in a shepherd's bag which he had with him; thus with a scrip and his sling in his hand, he drew near to the Philistine.

[41 And the Philistine came on and drew near unto David; and the man that bare the shield went before him.]

42 And when the Philistine looked, and saw David, he disdained him; for he was but a youth, of a ruddy and of a fair countenance. And the Philistine said to David, Am I a dog, that thou comest to me with staves, "and with stones?" And the 44 Philistine cursed David by his god. The Philistine also said to David, Come to me, and I will give thy flesh to the fowls of the air, and to the beasts of the field.

45 Then said David to the Philistine, Thou comest to me with a sword and with a spear, and with a shield; but I come to thee in the name of Jehovah of hosts, the God of the hosts of Israel, whom thou hast defied.

46 This day will Jehovah deliver thee into my hand; and I will take thy head from thee; and I will give "thy carcase, and" the carcases of the hosts of the Philistines this day to the fowls of the air, and to the wild beasts of the earth; that the whole earth may 47 know that there is a God in Israel. And all this assembly shall know that Jehovah can save without sword or spear: for the battle is Jehovah's, and he will give you 48 into our hands. And the Philistine arose, and came forward to meet David; and David ran with speed towards the list to 49 meet the Philistine. And David put his hand in his bag, and took thence a stone, and slung it, and smote the Philistine on his forehead with such force, that the stone sunk into his forehead; and he fell on his face to the earth.

39. (v) and (a) Sept. 43, 46. (a) Sept.

50. The next passage omitted in the Vatican copy, is the 50th verse of this chapter, which is a sort of recapitulation, that is entirely needless: the sense is complete, and the connexion regular, without it. The connexion, in the Vatican copy, stands thus: "The Philistine fell upon his face to the earth; and David ran and stood upon him, and took his sword," &c. 52. (v) Sept.

54. From the 54th verse of the 17th chapter to the 6th of the 18th, we have an account, first that when Saul saw David go forth against the Philistine, neither he, nor Abner, the captain of the host, knew who the young man was.

[So David prevailed over the Philistine with a 50 sling and with a stone, and smote the Philistine, and slew him; but there was no sword in the hand of David.]

David then ran, and stood upon the Philis- 51 tine, and took his sword and drew it from its sheath, and with it slew him, and cut off his head. And when the Philistines saw that their champion was dead, they fled. And 52 the men of Israel and of Judah arose and shouted, and pursued the Philistines unto "the entrance to Gath," and to the gates of Ekron. And on the way to Gath and Ekron, lay the smitten Philistines. And 53 the Israelites returned from chasing the Philistines, and plundered their camp.

[And David took the head of the Philistine, and 54 brought it to Jerusalem, and he "put his armour in his tent. And when Saul saw David go forth 55 against the Philistine, he said unto Abner, the captain of the host, Abner, whose son is this youth? And Abner said, As thy soul liveth, O king, I cannot tell. And the king said, Enquire thou whose 56 son the stripling is. And as David returned from the slaughter of the Philistine, Abner took him, and brought him before Saul, with the head of the Philistine in his hand. And Saul said to him, 58 Whose son art thou, thou young man? And David answered, I am the son of thy servant Jesse the Bethlehemite.]

And it came to pass when he had made an end 1 of speaking unto Saul, that the soul of Jonathan was knit with the soul of David, and Jonathan loved him as his own soul. And Saul took him that day, 2 and would let him go no more home to his father's house. Then Jonathan and David made a cove- 3 nant, because he loved him as his own soul. And 4 Jonathan stripped himself of the robe, that was upon him, and gave it to David, and his garments, even to his sword, and to his bow, and to his girdle. And David went out whithersoever Saul sent him, 5 and behaved himself wisely: and Saul set him over the men of war, and he was accepted in the sight of all the people, and also in the sight of all Saul's servants.]

Now the women came from all the cities 6 of Israel, singing joyfully, with tabors, and flutes, and stringed instruments. And as 7 they played, they sung responsively and said,

Saul hath smitten his thousands,

But David his ten thousands.

And Saul was very wroth, (for the saying 8 displeased him;) and he said they have ascribed to David ten thousands; and to me they have ascribed but thousands: what more can he have but the kingdom?

[And Saul eyed David from that day and forward. 9

Secondly, that Jonathan, Saul's son, instantaneously conceived a violent affection for him, loved him as his own soul, and stript himself of all his armour, and his garments, to give them to David. And thirdly, that Saul set him over the men of war—accounts which, when examined, will neither appear probable, nor consistent with the other parts of this history. There are no traces of them in the Vatican copy of the Greek version; and, leaving them out, the connexion is entire, and the whole account altogether probable and consistent.

CHAP. XVIII. 9. The Vatican copy omits all this from 11 to the 11th inclusive, and thus both the sense and connexion

- 10 And it came to pass on the morrow, that the evil spirit from God came upon Saul, and he prophesied in the midst of the house: and David played with his hand, as at other times; and there was a javelin in Saul's hand. And Saul cast the javelin; for he said, I will smite David, even to the wall with it. And David avoided out of his presence twice.]
- 11 And Saul was afraid of David. Hence Saul removed him from himself, and made him captain over a thousand people, whom he conducted out and in. And David behaved wisely in all his ways; and Jehovah was with him. Wherefore when Saul saw that he behaved wisely, he was the more afraid of him. But all Israel and Judah loved David, because he conducted them out and in.
- 12 And Saul said to David, Behold my elder daughter Merab, her will I give thee to wife: only be thou valiant for me, and fight the Lord's battles. For Saul said, Let not mine hand be upon him, but let the hand of the Philistines be upon him.
- 13 And David said unto Saul, Who am I? and what is my life, or my father's family in Israel, that I should be son-in-law to the king? But it came to pass at the time when Merab, Saul's daughter, should have been given to David, that she was given unto Adriel the Meholathite to wife.]
- 14 Michal also, Saul's daughter, loved David; and they told Saul, and the thing pleased him. And Saul said, I will give her to him, that she may be to him a snare, and that the hand of the Philistines may be against him.
- 15 And Saul commanded his servants, saying, Speak with David secretly, and say, Behold, the king delighteth in thee, and all his servants love thee: now, therefore, be the king's son-in-law. And Saul's servants spoke those words in the hearing of David: but David said, Is it in your eyes an easy thing, for one so poor as I am, to become the king's son-in-law? And the servants of Saul told him, saying, On this manner spoke David. And Saul said, Thus shall ye say to David, The king desireth not any dowry, but a hundred foreskins of the Philistines, to be avenged of the king's enemies: for Saul thought to make David fall by the hand of the Philistines. And when his servants told David these words, it pleased David well to be the king's son-in-law; and after a few days, David arose and went, he and his men, and slew of the Philistines

'a hundred' men; and David brought their foreskins; and they gave them in full tale to the king, that he might become the king's son-in-law. And Saul gave to him, Michal, his daughter, for a wife. And Saul saw and knew that Jehovah was with David, and that Michal his own daughter, and all Israel, loved him; Then Saul was yet the more afraid of David; and Saul became, at all times, David's enemy. But, whensoever the princes of the Philistines came forth, David behaved himself more wisely than all the other servants of Saul; so that his name was greatly renowned.

CHAPTER XIX.

B. C. 1063. Saul's further jealousy and persecution of David; his design to put him to death defeated by Michal, and then by a divine influence on his mind.

And Saul spoke to Jonathan his son, and to all his servants, that they should put David to death. But Jonathan, Saul's son, delighted much in David; and Jonathan told David, saying, Saul my father seeketh to put thee to death: now, therefore, I pray thee, take heed to thyself until the morning, and abide in some secret place, and hide thyself, And I will come out and attend my father in the field where thou art; and I will speak of thee to my father; and what I see, that I will tell thee.

And Jonathan spoke well of David to Saul his father, and said to him, Let not the king sin against his servant, against David; because he hath not sinned against thee, and because his works for thee have been very good. For he exposed his own life, and slew the Philistine; and Jehovah, by him, wrought a great salvation for all Israel; which thou sawest, and didst rejoice. Why then wouldst thou sin against innocent blood, in putting David to death without a cause? And Saul hearkened to the voice of Jonathan; and Saul swore, As Jehovah liveth, he shall not be put to death. And Jonathan called David, and Jonathan told him all these things. And Jonathan brought David to Saul, and he was in his presence, as in time past.

And again there was war; and David went out, and fought with the Philistines, are clear; and Saul's conduct represented to be such as might naturally be expected. That the ancient and original Hebrew copies contained no more than what we find translated in the Vatican is, I think, certain. See note Heb. Bible.

17—19. The Vatican copy of the Sept. omits this and the two following verses; in which we have an account, first, Of a proposal made by Saul to David to give him his eldest daughter Merab to wife; and, at the same time, encouraging him to valour, in hopes that he might fall by the hands of the Philistines. Secondly, Of David's modesty in declining the honour of being the king's son-in-law. And thirdly, That when this marriage seemed, on all parts, to be concluded upon, Merab was given to Adriel the Meholathite to wife. The inconsistencies that must arise from supposing this, and the other passages we have been examining, to be any part of the original text, will be evident to every attentive reader.

27, 28. (v) and (a) Sept. Vat.

CHAP. XIX. 1. Saul spoke to] What he had before purposed, he now openly avowed. His jealousy and fear excited him to this outrageous conduct.

4—7. The steady friendship of Jonathan saved the life of David; and his just eulogium on David, for once, softened the obdurate heart of Saul.

8, 9. David's success against the Philistines awakened the fears of Saul; and instead of rejoicing at the event, his and slew them with a "very" great slaughter ; 9 for they fled from him. And an evil spirit from Jehovah was upon Saul, as he sat in his house with his javelin in his hand ; and David played with his hand upon his harp.

 10 And Saul sought to smite David to the wall with the javelin ; but he slipped away from Saul's presence, and he smote the javelin into the wall ; but David fled and escaped.
 11 Saul also, on that night, sent messengers to David's house, to watch him, and to put him to death in the morning ; and Michal, David's wife, told him, saying, If thou save not thy 12 life to night, to-morrow thou wilt be put to death. Michal then let David down through a window ; and he fled away and escaped.
 13 And Michal took the teraphs, and put them in David's bed, and put a net of goat's hair at their head, and covered them with a 14 cloth. And when Saul sent messengers to 15 take David, she said, He is sick. Again
 Saul sent messengers to see David, saying, Bring him up to me, in the bed, that he 16 may be put to death. But when the messengers went in, behold ! the teraphs were in the bed, with a net of goat's hair at their 17 head. And Saul said to Michal, Why hast thou thus deceived me, and sent away mine enemy, so that he is escaped ? And Michal answered Saul, He said to me, Let me go ;
 why should I put thee to death ?
 18 And David fled and escaped ; and came to Samuel to Ramah, and told him all that Saul had done to him. And he and Samuel 19 went and dwelt at Naioth. And it was told Saul, saying, Behold, David is at Naioth 20 of Ramah. And Saul sent messengers to take David ; but when they saw the company of the prophets prophesying, (over whom Samuel presided,) the Spirit of God was upon the messengers of Saul, and they 21 also prophesied. And when it was told

Saul, he sent other messengers, and they prophesied likewise. Again Saul sent messengers, and they prophesied also. "And 22 Saul's anger was kindled," and he also went to Ramah ; and came to the great well that is in Sechu : and he asked and said, Where are Samuel and David ? And one said, Behold they are at Naioth of Ramah. And 23 he went thither to Naioth of Ramah ; and the Spirit of God was upon him also, and he went on, and prophesied, until he came to Naioth of Ramah. And he stripped off 24 his upper garments and continued to prophesy before Samuel ; and lay unclothed all that day and night. Wherefore it is said, Is Saul also among the prophets ?

CHAPTER XX.

B. C. 1062. David consulteth with Jonathan ; their mutual covenant ; Saul missing David attempteth to kill Jonathan.

AND David fled from Naioth of Ramah, 1 and came and said to Jonathan, What have I done ? what is mine iniquity ? and what is my sin before thy father, that he seeketh my life ? And he said to him, God forbid ; 2 thou shalt not die : behold, my father will do nothing, either great or small, without informing me : and why should my father hide this thing from me ? it cannot be.
 And David swore moreover, and said, Thy 3 father certainly knoweth that I have found favour in thine eyes ; and he saith, Let not Jonathan know this, lest he be grieved, but truly, as Jehovah liveth, and as thyself livest, there is but a step between me and death.
 Then said Jonathan to David, Whatsoever 4 thou desirest, I will even do for thee. And 5 David said to Jonathan, Behold, to-morrow is the new moon, when I should not fail to sit with the king at table : but let me go and hide myself in the field until the evening of the third day. If thy father at all 6 gloomy soul determined to destroy the chief instrument of it. (a) Sept. 1 MS.

11. To put him to death in the morning] Why in the morning ? It appears to have been a custom, not to execute persons by night, even when they executed them without any just cause. Compare Judg. xvi. 2.

13. A net of goat's hair] According to Dr. Shaw, something of this kind is still usual, to keep off the gnats during sleep, both in Judea, Egypt, and other parts of the east. This net was to show that some one was in bed ; and as it was the custom to sleep with the head covered, Michal covered the head of the teraphs with a cloth, or the usual bed-covering, to render the deception more complete. The women had a strange propensity to the worship of teraphs ; and from this account some infer, that these idols were half as big as a man, and probably made in the human form.

17. Why hast thou deceived me] The conduct of Michal deserves praise, in thus saving her innocent husband from the cruelty and injustice of her father. Other women have imitated her, and received the applause of all who regard nuptial fidelity and virtue.

18. At Naioth] Naioth seems to have been a sort of conventual school, in the neighbourhood of Ramah, where young men were taught to prophesy. The Chald. paraphrases, 'in the house of doctrine.'

19—24. How wonderful the influence which God has occasionally exercised over the mind ! Had Samuel or David intended to have cut off Saul, how easily might they have done it, when he lay exposed and defenceless ? He was detained by a divine influence, until David had made his escape.

22. (a) Sept. Vulg.

CHAP. XX. 1. And came and said to Jonathan] He came to Gibeah, where Saul resided, and where Jonathan then was. Compare ver. 5, 35, and 40.

2. It cannot be] Was Jonathan ignorant of his father having sent to Naioth, to take David ? or did he impute his late conduct to his disordered state of mind ? I suspect that Saul hid his design from Jonathan, knowing his partiality to David ; and he expected that David, having returned to Gibeah, would again appear as usual at court, when he might, without failure, accomplish his purpose.

5. The new moon] Which was observed by offering sacrifices, and keeping a feast. Compare Numb. x. 10, and xxviii. 11 ; Psa. lxxxi. 5. David, as one of the family, was accustomed to eat with Saul on these festival days.

6. Asked leave of me] From this, it should seem, Jonathan was chief commander, under Saul ; and had a right to grant leave of absence to other officers.

8. Covenant of Jehovah] To the stipulations of which miss me, then say, David earnestly asked leave of me to run to Bethlehem, his own city: for there the whole family have an annual sacrifice. If he say thus, It is well; thy servant shall have peace; but if he be very wroth, then be sure that evil is determined by him. Therefore thou shalt deal kindly with thy servant; for into a covenant of Jehovah hast thou caused thy servant to enter with thee; yet, if there be in me iniquity, slay me thyself: for why shouldst thou bring me to thy father? And Jonathan said, Far be it from thee: for if I certainly knew that my father were determined to bring evil upon thee, should I not then tell thee? Then said David to Jonathan, Who shall tell me whether thy father answer thee roughly?

11 And Jonathan said to David, Come, and let us go into the field. And they both of 12 them went into the field. And Jonathan said to David, Jehovah, the God of Israel, 'be witness,' if when I have sounded my father some time to-morrow, or the next day, and, behold, there be good-will towards David, and I then send not to thee, and 13 show it thee; Jehovah do so and much more also to Jonathan; but if it please my father to do thee evil, then I will show it to thee, and send thee away, that thou mayest go in peace. But when Jehovah shall be with thee as he hath been with my father, 14 Then thou, if I be 'yet alive,' shalt show me the kindness of Jehovah, that I die not: Nor shalt thou ever withdraw thy kindness from my house: no, not when Jehovah hath cut off all the enemies of David, from the face 16 of the earth. But should Jonathan cut off any of the house of David, may Jehovah require it at the hand of David's enemies.

17 Again Jonathan swore to David, because he loved him: for he loved him as he loved 18 himself. Then Jonathan said to David, To-morrow is the new moon: and because thy seat will be empty, thou wilt be missed. 19 And on the third day, still more wilt thou be missed. Go then to the place where thou didst hide thyself on the day of thine 20 escape, and remain by 'that' stone. And on that side I will shoot three arrows as though I shot at a mark. And, behold, I 21 will send a lad, saying, Go, find the arrows. If I expressly say to the lad, Behold, the arrows are on this side of thee, take them; then come thou: for as Jehovah liveth, there is peace to thee, and no harm; But if 22 I say thus to the young man, Behold, the arrows are beyond thee; go thy way; for Jehovah sendeth thee away. And as to the 23 matter which thou and I have spoken of, behold Jehovah shall for ever be witness between thee and me.

So David hid himself in the field: and 24 when the new moon was come, the king sat down to the feast to eat. And the king sat 25 on his seat, as at other times, on a seat by the wall: and Jonathan 'sat on one side,' and Abner sat on the other side of Saul; but David's place was empty. Nevertheless 26 Saul spoke not any thing that day: for he thought, Something may have befallen him; or he may not be clean; because he 'hath not purified himself.' But when, on the 27 morning, the second day of the month, David's place was empty, Saul said to Jonathan his son, Why cometh not the son of Jesse to the feast, neither yesterday nor to-day? And Jonathan answered Saul, David 28 earnestly asked leave of me to go to Bethlehem. For he said, Let me go, I pray 29 thee; for our family hath a sacrifice in the city; and my brother hath commanded me to be there: and now, if I have found favour in thine eyes, let me go. I pray thee, and see my brethren. Therefore he cometh not to the king's table. Then Saul's anger was 30 kindled against Jonathan, and he said to him, Thou perverse, rebellious man, do I not know that thou hast chosen the son of Jesse to thine own confusion, and to thy mother's shame? For as long as the son of 31 Jesse liveth upon the earth, neither thou nor thy kingdom can be secure. Therefore, send now, and fetch him to me that he may be put to death. And Jonathan answered 32 Saul his father, and said to him, Why should he be put to death? what hath he done? And Saul cast a javelin at him to smite him; 33 so Jonathan knew that his father had determined to put David to death. Jonathan 34 his name has been appealed to; it had been made before him. 12. (a) Versions.

14. If I be yet alive] I have followed the versions in this rendering; and the context requires it. The meaning is, 'If I be alive, when thou art made king, then preserve my life; but if I be dead, show kindness to my family.'—Kindness of Jehovah] Which he shows in sparing and preserving us.

16. The version given is the literal one; and without any supplement is both perspicuous and coherent.

17. Again sworn to David] So our old translators after the ancient versions; and the following words support this sense. For because Jonathan loved David he gave him the most solemn assurance of his readiness to serve him.

19. From the connexion, Jonathan seems to refer to some past transaction; and to a place well known to David, and where he had before concealed himself. We have an account of David concealing himself in some place in a field in the preceding chapter, ver. 2, 3. On these grounds I would propose to read ביום חשיתי. The text is, 'on the day of the work,' which is assuredly an error. (v) Syr. Vulg.

25. (v) Syr. 26. (v) Sept.

27. David's place was empty] From this account it appears that Saul lived in some degree of state; and at this least he had intended to despatch David.

30—34. We need not wonder that Saul should behave as he did to David, when he insulted his own valiant and dutiful son.

then arose from the table, in fierce anger; and he ate no food on the second day of the month: for he was grieved for David, and because his father had disgraced him.

- 35 Now the next morning, Jonathan went out into the field, at the time appointed with 36 David, and a little lad with him. And he said to his lad, Run, find out now the arrows which I shoot. And as the lad ran, 37 he shot an arrow beyond him. And when the lad had come to the place of the arrow which Jonathan had shot, Jonathan cried after the lad, and said, Is not the arrow beyond thee? And Jonathan cried after the lad, Make speed, haste, stay not. And Jonathan's lad gathered up the arrows, and 39 brought them to his master. But the lad knew not any thing: only Jonathan and 40 David knew the matter. And Jonathan gave his weapons to his lad, and said to him, Go carry them to the city.
41 And as soon as the lad was gone, David arose from the south side, and fell on his face to the ground, and three times did obeisance; and they kissed each other, and wept one with another, with great lamentation." And Jonathan said to David, Go in peace, forasmuch as we have sworn both of us in the name of Jehovah, saying, Jehovah be witness between me and thee, and between my seed and thy seed for ever. And he arose and departed; and Jonathan went into the city.

CHAPTER XXI.

B. C. 1062. David at Nob obtains hallowed bread, and Goliath's sword; goeth to Gath, thence to Adullam, and then to Heareth.

- 1 THEN David went to Nob, to Ahimelech, the priest; and Ahimelech was astonished on meeting David, and said to him, Why art thou alone, and no man with thee? And David said to Ahimelech, the priest, The king hath commanded me a business, and said to me, Let no man know any thing of the business about which I send thee, and which I have commanded thee: and I have appointed my servants to meet me at such and such a place. Now, therefore,
3 give what thou hast at hand, be it only five loaves of bread, or what else is present.
4 And the priest answered David, and said,

41. Rose from the south side of the stone] The preceding account justifies this version. In the last clause I have followed the usual phraseology. One word has been omitted in the text. See note, Hebrew Bible. (v) Sept.

CHAP. XXI. 1. Went to Nob] This was in the tribe of Benjamin, about twelve miles from Gibeah, and not far from Anathoth and Jerusalem. It was a city of the priests; and the tabernacle was here for some time. Compare chap. xxii. 11—19; Nehem. xi. 32; and Isa. x. 32.

2. Said to Ahimelech] This pretence of David was certainly false; and if any thing could excuse this, it was the circumstances in which he was placed. Ahimelech was

I have no common bread at hand, but hallowed bread there is at hand; if the young men have indeed abstained from women. And David answered the priest, and said, From women truly, we have been restrained these three days since I came out; and 'all' the young men were holy; but if by the way, they have become unclean, they may all, this day, be hallowed. So the priest gave him hallowed bread: for there was no bread there but the presence-bread, which was taken from before Jehovah, to put hot bread in its place, when it was taken away. (Now one of the servants of Saul was there that day, detained before Jehovah; and his name was Doeg, an Edomite, the chief of Saul's herdsmen.) David also said to Ahimelech, Hast thou not here either spear or sword? for I have neither brought my sword, nor my weapons with me, because the king's business required haste. And the priest said, The sword of Goliath, the Philistine, whom thou slewest in the valley of Elah, behold, it is here, wrapped in a cloth behind the ephod; if thou wilt take that, take it: for save that, there is no other here. And David said, There is none like that; give it me.

And David arose, and fled that day for fear of Saul, and went to Achish, the king of Gath. And the servants of Achish said to him, Is not this David, the king of the land? did they not sing of him in alternate choirs—

Saul hath slain his thousands!

But David, his ten thousands?

And David laid up these words in his heart; 12 and was greatly afraid of Achish, the king of Gath. And he changed his behaviour 13 before them, and feigned himself mad among them, and made marks on the doors of the gate, and let his spittle fall down upon his beard. Then said Achish to his servants, Lo, ye see the man is mad; why have ye brought him to me? Have I need of madmen, that ye have brought this one to play the madman in my presence? shall such a one come into my house?

David therefore departed thence, and 1 escaped to the cave of Adullam: and when his brethren and all his father's house heard, they went thither to him. And every one in 2 brother to Ahiah, and had most probably succeeded as high priest. Compare xiv. 3. and xxii. 11.

4. No common bread] The presence-bread was appropriated to the priests; but in case of necessity, this ceremonial law was superseded. Lev. xxiv. 5; Mark ii. 25

5. (v) Sept.

10. Fled to Achish] How often have brave commanders been obliged, from injustice, to fly to those for safety, whose attacks they have repulsed, and whom they have conquered.

13—15. This conduct of David must have taken rise from well-grounded apprehensions of treachery. The device succeeded, and he fled to a more secure retreat.

distress, and every one in debt, and every one discontented, flocked to him; and he became chief over them: and there were with him about four hundred men.

- 3 And David went thence to Mizpeh of Moab; and he said to the king of Moab, Let my father and my mother, I pray thee, dwell with you, till I know what God may do for me. And he brought them before the king of Moab; and they dwelt with him all the time that David was in the hold. But the prophet Gad said to David, Abide not in the hold; depart, and go into the land of Judah. Then David departed, and came to the forest of Hareth.

CHAPTER XXII.

B. C. 1062. Saul complaineth of his people; Doeg accuseth the priests, and at Saul's command slayeth them.

- 6 WHEN Saul heard that David was discovered, and the men that were with him, (now Saul was sitting on a hill, in Gibeah, under a tamarisk tree, having his spear in his hand, and all his servants were standing about him,) Then Saul said to his servants who stood about him, Hear now, ye Benjamites! will the son of Jesse give every one of you fields and vineyards? will he make all of you captains of thousands, and captains of hundreds? That all of you should conspire against me; and no one inform me that my son hath made a league with the son of Jesse! Yet none of you is sorry for me, or informeth me that my son hath stirred up my servant against me, to lie in wait, as at this day.
- 9 Then answered Doeg, the Edomite, (who was standing among the servants of Saul,) and said, I saw the son of Jesse coming to Nob, to Ahimelech, the son of Ahitub. And he inquired of Jehovah for him, and gave to him victuals; and he also gave to him the sword of Goliath, the Philistine. Then the king sent to Ahimelech the priest, the son of Ahitub, and all his father's house, the priests who were in Nob: and they all in that time came to the king. And Saul said, Hear now, thou son of Ahitub. And he answered, Here I am, my lord. And Saul said to him, Why have ye conspired against me, thou and the son of Jesse? to him thou hast given bread, and a sword, and hast inquired of God for him, to excite him to lie in wait against me, as at this day. Then Ahimelech answered the king, and said, And who is so faithful among all thy servants, as David, who is the king's son-in-law, and goeth at thy bidding, and is honourable in thy house? Did I then begin to inquire of God for him? be it far from me; let not the king impute any thing to his servant nor to all the house of my father: for thy servant knew nothing of all this, less or more. And the king said, Thou shalt surely die, Ahimelech, thou, and all thy father's house.

And the king said to the men who stood about him, Turn, and slay the priests of Jehovah; because they have assisted David; and because they knew when he fled, and did not inform me. But the servants of the king would not put forth their hand to attack the priests of Jehovah. And the king said to Doeg, Turn thou, and attack the priests. And Doeg, the Edomite, turned and attacked the priests, and slew on that day, eighty-five persons, who wore sacred ephods. And Nob, the city of the priests, he smote with the edge of the sword; both men and women, children and sucklings, and oxen, and asses, and sheep, he smote with the edge of the sword.

And one of the sons of Ahimelech, the 20 son of Ahitub, named Abiathar, escaped, and fled after David. And Abiathar told David that Saul had slain Jehovah's priests. And David said to Abiathar, I knew it that 22 day, when Doeg, the Edomite, was there, that he would surely tell Saul. I have caused the destruction of all thy father's house. Abide thou with me, fear not: for 23 he that seeketh my life seeketh thy life; but with me thou shalt be safe.

CHAPTER XXIII.

B. C. 1062. David rescueth Keilah; Saul pursuing him, he flieth to the wilderness of Ziph; the Ziphites discover him to Saul; but he is delivered from him.

THEN they told David, saying, Behold, I

CHAP. XXII. 2. Every one in distress] Or oppressed, those subject to unrelenting creditors, and those aggrieved by unjust exactions, or in other ways. They were not a lawless banditti, but a number of brave men, who suffered under the tyranny of Saul and others.

3. Mizpeh of Moab] The jod has been here carelessly omitted. It is now found in many copies, and the text before com. 1, 2, contains it. (v) Versions, 1 MS.

6. Under a tamarisk tree] The common version is equally obscure and contradictory, by making Ramah a proper name. The version of Matthews is proper. 'on a high bank.'

8. A league with the son of Jesse] Saul pretends that David had drawn Jonathan into a league against him, than which nothing could be more false. They neither stipulated any thing against him, nor ever did any thing. He was the offender, and sought David's life without cause.

9. Was standing among] Noldius thus renders, and I think justly; for it is certain that Doeg was not set over the servants, who attended Saul, but over his herdsmen.

10—16. The charge brought against Ahimelech he properly repels. He knew nothing of any difference between David and Saul; and he had only done what was proper to the king's son-in-law.

17—19. It reflects some honour on the attendants of Saul that they would not obey his unjust order. How miserable the country subject to such a cruel tyrant, who condemns without proof of guilt; and exterminates without mercy! By this act of cruelty the threatening against Eli's house was fulfilled.

- the Philistines fight against Keilah, and 2 they rob the threshing-floors. David, therefore, inquired of Jehovah, saying, Shall I go and smite these Philistines? And Jehovah said to David, Go and smite the Philistines, and save Keilah. And David's men said to him, Behold, we are afraid here, in Judah, how much more then, if we come to Keilah, against the hosts of the Philistines? Again David inquired of Jehovah. And Jehovah answered him and said, Arise, go down to Keilah; for I will deliver the Philistines into thy hand. So David and his men went to Keilah, and fought against the Philistines, and smote them with a great slaughter, and brought away their cattle. So David saved the inhabitants of Keilah.
- 7 And it was told Saul that David was come to Keilah. And Saul said, God hath delivered him into my hand; for he is shut in, by entering into a town which hath gates and bars. And Saul called all the people together to war, to go down to Keilah, to besiege David and his men.
- 9 And David knew that Saul secretly practised mischief against him; and he said to Abiathar the priest, Bring hither the ephod.
- 6 For Abiathar, the son of Ahimelech, who had fled to David, went down with David to Keilah, and had the ephod with him.
- 10 Then said David, O Jehovah, the God of Israel, thy servant hath heard for certain, that Saul seeketh to come to Keilah, to destroy the city for my sake. Will the men of Keilah deliver me up into his hands? will Saul come down, as thy servant hath heard? O Jehovah, the God of Israel, I beseech thee, tell thy servant. And Jehovah said, He will come down. Then said David, Will the men of Keilah deliver me and my men into the hand of Saul. And Jehovah said, They will deliver thee up.
- 13 Then David and his men, who were about six hundred, arose and departed from Keilah, and went whither they could go. And it was told Saul, that David had escaped from Keilah; so he gave up his expedition.
- 14 And David abode in the wilderness in strong holds; and remained on a mountain in the wilderness of Ziph; and though Saul sought him daily, yet God delivered him not into his hand: For David saw that Saul had come out to seek his life.

While David was in the wilderness of Ziph, in a wood, Jonathan, Saul's son, arose, and went to David into the wood, and encouraged him to trust in God. And he said to him, Fear not: for the hand of Saul my father shall not find thee; and thou shalt be king over Israel, and I shall be next to thee; and that also Saul my father knoweth. And they two made a covenant before Jehovah; and David abode in the wood, but Jonathan went to his own house.

Now the Ziphites had come to Saul to Gibeah, saying, Doth not David hide himself with us in strong holds, in the wood, on the hill of Hachilah, which is on the south of Jeshimon? Now, therefore, O king, come down, according to all the desire of thy soul to come down; and be it our part to deliver him into the king's hand. And Saul said, Blessed by Jehovah be ye; for ye show compassion to me. Go, I pray you, and learn, and know, and see the place which he haunteth; and who hath seen him there: for I am told that he acteth with great subtilty. See, therefore, and endeavour to know all the lurking places where he is wont to hide himself; and come again to me with certainty, and I will go with you; and if he be in the land, I will search for him throughout all the thousands of Judah. And they arose, and went to Ziph before Saul; but David and his men were in the wilderness of Maon; in the plain, on the south side of Jeshimon. For it was told David, that Saul and his men had gone to search for him; he, therefore, went down and abode in the wilderness of Maon. And when Saul heard this, he pursued David to the wilderness of Maon. And Saul and his men⁷ went on the one side of the mountain, and David and his men on the other side of the mountain. And when David hastened to get away from Saul, and Saul and his men had surrounded David and his men to take them; A messenger then came to Saul, saying, Haste, and come; for the Philistines are plundering the land. Where-

CHAP. XXIII. 1. Rob the threshing-floors] These were usually without the cities, on high ground.

2. And smite these Philistines] This is one of the noblest actions in David's life. Though he had only so few men, such was his regard to his country, that he was ready to risk all for its safety; and at the very time when Saul was seeking his destruction.

6. I have followed Goddes in transposing this verse. Most critics admit that it is out of its place. As it stands, it represents Abiathar as first coming to David at Keilah; when this historian had already related his arrival, before David undertook the expedition. In rendering the verse I have followed the Sept. See note, Hebrew Bible.

7—12. It was told Saul] Had Saul been influenced by reason, the conduct of David would have disarmed him; but the success of his rival irritated him. It reflects on the Keilahites that they would have betrayed their brave deliverer.

15—18. This private visit of Jonathan shows that his love to David was unabated, and his remark, that he should be next to him, shows pious submission to the will of God.

23. The thousands of Judah] Most probably the phrase means the districts, which were so called from the number of inhabitants they contained, as our hundreds originally were.

fore Saul returned from pursuing David, and went against the Philistines. Therefore that place was called Sela-hammahlekoth [THE DIVIDING-ROCK].

CHAPTER XXIV.

B. C. 1061. David's generosity to Saul; he sheweth his innocence; Saul acknowledges his sin; and, having taken an oath of David, departeth.

- 29 AND David went up thence, and dwelt
1 in the strong-holds of En-gedi. And when Saul had returned from following the Philistines, it was told him, saying, Behold, David is in the wilderness of En-gedi.
2 Then Saul took three thousand chosen men out of all Israel, and went to seek David and his men, among the rocks of the wild-goats. And he came to the sheep-cotes, on the way, where was a cave; and Saul went in to repose himself. Now, in the sides of that cave, abode David and his men.
4 And David's men said to him, Behold the day of which Jehovah said to thee, Lo! I will deliver thine enemy into thy hand, that thou mayest do to him as it shall seem good to thee. Then David arose, and secretly
5 cut off the skirt of Saul's mantle. But afterward, David's conscience smote him, because he had cut off the skirt of Saul's
6 "mantle." And he said to his men, Jehovah forbid that I should do this thing to my master, Jehovah's anointed, to stretch forth my hand against him; for the anointed of 7 Jehovah is he. Thus David, with these words, restrained his servants, and suffered them not to rise up against Saul. But when Saul had risen from the cave, and 8 gone his way; Then afterward, David arose and went out of the cave, and cried after Saul, saying, My lord, the king. And when Saul looked behind him, David stooped with his face towards the earth, and bowed himself.
9 And David said to Saul, Wherefore hearkenest thou to men's words, saying,
10 Behold David seeketh thy hurt? Behold, this day, thine eyes have seen how Jehovah had delivered thee into my hand, in the cave when some bade me kill thee, but I spared thee; and I said, I will not put forth my hand against my lord; for the anointed of Jehovah is he. Moreover, my 11 father, see, yea, see the skirt of thy mantle in my hand; hence, know and see, that as I cut off the skirt of thy mantle, and killed thee not, with me there is no evil or rebellion. Yea, against thee I have not sinned; yet thou huntest me to take away my life. Jehovah judge between me and thee; and 12 Jehovah avenge me of thee: but my hand shall not be upon thee. As saith the 13 ancient proverb, From the wicked let wickedness proceed; but my hand shall not be upon thee. After whom is the king of Israel 14 come out? whom dost thou pursue? a dead dog, a flea! Jehovah therefore be judge; 15 and judge between me and thee, and see, and plead my cause, and deliver me out of thy hand.

And when David had made an end of 16 speaking these words to Saul, Saul said, Is this thy voice, my son David? And Saul raised his voice, and wept. And he said to 17 David, Thou art more righteous than I; for thou hast rendered to me good, when I had rendered evil to thee. And thou hast shown 18 this day, how kind thou art to me: for when Jehovah delivered me into thy hand, thou killedst me not. For if a man find his 19 enemy, will he let him go away well? May Jehovah, then, render good to thee, for what thou hast done unto me this day. And now, 20 behold, I know well, that thou wilt surely be king, and that the kingdom of Israel will be established in thy hand. Swear now, 21 therefore, to me by Jehovah, that thou wilt not cut off my seed after me, and that thou wilt not destroy my name out of my father's house. And David swore to Saul. And 22 Saul went home; but David and his men went up to the strong-holds.

SAMUEL now died; and all the Israelites 1 assembled, and lamented him, and buried

CHAP. XXIV. 1. Wilderness of Engedi] Eusebius informs us that this was on the western confines of the Dead Sea. Solomon mentions it as abounding in vineyards, Song, i. 4.

3. To repose himself] Compare Jud. iii. 24, and note there.—Abode David and his men, &c.] Dr. Pococke informs us, that some of the caves in Palestine are very large; and that he visited one, in which David and his men might have been hid, without Saul seeing them; and conjectures that it was the very cave in which the transactions here recorded occurred.

4. Behold the day] God had promised to David the throne of Israel; and they infer that this gave him a right to cut off Saul, when he had an opportunity. In this instance David acted with more piety and wisdom; he would not do evil that good might come.

5. (a) Versions and MSS.

10. When some bade me kill] Our translators here deserted the text; and adopted the proper reading of the Syr. Chald. and Arab.

13. From the wicked] I consider the proverb as confined to these words; and the next to be only a repetition of David's resolution not to injure Saul. The meaning is, 'Had I intended thy death; had I really risen up against thee, I should have killed thee as certainly as wickedness proceedeth from the wicked.'

14. A dead dog, a flea] David, by these expressions, represents his own comparative insignificance; and how little becoming the duty of a king it was, to spend his life and harass his troops in marching after him.

19. For if a man find] This is the usual practice of men; but David did not follow the conduct of men, but obeyed the call of duty and benevolence.

CHAP. XXV. 1. The wilderness of Paran] This was him in his own house at Ramah. And David arose, and went down to the wilderness of Paran.

2 And there was a man of Maon, whose possessions were in Carmel; and the man was very great, and he had three thousand sheep, and a thousand goats: and he was shearing his sheep in Carmel. Now the name of the man was Nabal; and the name of his wife Abigail. And she was a woman of good understanding, and beautiful in form; but the man was churlish and evil in all his manners; yea he was irritable as a dog.

4 And David had heard, in the wilderness, 5 that Nabal was shearing his sheep. And David sent out ten young men; and he said to the young men, Go up to Carmel, and when ye have come to Nabal, greet him in my name: And thus shall ye say to him, 6 Peace be to thee through life, and peace be to thy house, and peace be to all that thou hast. I have just now heard that thou hast sheep-shearers. Now, thy shepherds who were with us, we hurt not, neither was there aught missing to them, all the while they were in Carmel. Ask thy young men, and they will tell thee. Therefore, let the young men find favour in thine eyes; (for we come in a good day :) give, I pray thee, whatsoever thou hast at hand to thy servants, and 9 to thy son David. And when David's young men came, they spoke to Nabal according to all those words, in the name of David.

10 But when they had ceased, Nabal answered David's servants, and said, Who is David? and who is the son of Jesse? In these days many servant men break loose from their 11 masters. Shall I then take my bread and my water, and my flesh which I have killed for my sheep shearers, and give it to men 12 whom I know not whence they are? So David's young men turned away, and went back, and came and told him all those 13 words. And David said to his men, Gird ye on every man his sword. And they girded on every man his sword; and David also girded on his sword: and there went up after David about four hundred men; and two hundred abode with the baggage.

the most southern part of the land of Judea; and here David might easily depart to any of the neighbouring states.

2. Maon . . . Carmel] Compare Joshua xv. 55.

3. Yea he was irritable as a dog] So the Sept. Syr. and Arab. render; and many among the moderns. The Vulg. and Chald. 'of the house of Caleb.' I think it is an additional remark on his temper; and therefore prefer the sense of the oldest translators.

6. Peace be to thee through life] Geddes renders, 'Prosperity through life to thee, &c.' Some MSS. omit the the before the pronoun, which renders the text clear.

7—14. David and his men had been a guard to the property of Nabal, and gratitude should have led him to have made some return. His answer showed his disposition.

17. Know and consider what] This servant's advice

But one of Nabal's young men told Abigail, Nabal's wife, saying, Behold, David sent messengers out of the wilderness to salute our master; and he railed on them. But the men were very good to us, and we 15 were not hurt, neither missed we any thing, as long as we were conversant with them, when we were in the fields. They were a wall 16 to us both by night and day, all the while we were with them keeping the sheep. Now, therefore, know and consider what 17 thou wilt do; for evil is determined against our master, and against his whole house. As for him, he is so ungodly that one cannot speak to him.

Then Abigail made haste, and took two 18 hundred loaves, and two skin-bottles of wine, and five sheep ready dressed, and five measures of parched corn, and a hundred clusters of raisins, and two hundred cakes of figs, and laid them on asses. And she said 19 to her servants, Go on before me; behold, I come after you. But she told not her husband Nabal. And she having mounted 20 the ass came down by the covert of a hill; and, behold, David and his men came down opposite to her; and she met them. Now 21 David had said, Surely in vain have I kept all that this man hath in the wilderness, so that nothing hath been missed of all that belonged to him, if he thus return to me evil for good. So and more also may God 22 do to David, if I leave of all that belong to him, by morning light, so much as a single dog. Now when Abigail saw David, she 23 made haste, and alighted off the ass, and fell before David, and bowed herself with her face to the ground. And she took hold on 24 his feet and said, Upon me, my lord, upon me, be the blame! yet let thy handmaid, I pray thee, speak in thy hearing, and hearken to the words of thy handmaid. Let not my 25 Lord, I pray thee, regard this worthless man Nabal; for according to his name is he; Nabal [FOOL] is his name, and folly is with him: but I, thy handmaid, saw not my lord's young men, whom thou sentest. Now 26 therefore, as Jehovah liveth, and as thyself livest, it is Jehovah who withholdeth thee from coming to shed blood, and from avengwas founded on just grounds, and was the means of saving the house of Nabal.

22. So much as a single dog] Most critics consider this the sense of the text; and as David uses the phrase when speaking to Abigail, verse 34, delicacy forbids us to think he would have done so, had it signified what our version implies. As De Dieu observes, this may be agreeable to European habits, but is foreign to those of the east. Compare 1 Kings xiv. 10; xxi. 21, and 2 Kings ix. 8.

24. Took hold on his feet] Literally, 'I fell upon his feet.' If David rode, the version I have given is proper; if he were on foot, we might render, 'And when she lay at his feet she said.' As I think it most probable that David rode, I have preferred the former.

ing thyself with thy own hand. And now may thine enemies, and they that seek evil 27 to my lord, be only such as Nabal. And now "take, I pray," this present, which thy handmaid hath brought to my lord, and let it be given to the young men, who follow 28 my lord. Forgive, I pray thee, the trespass of thy handmaid. For Jehovah will certainly make my lord a firm house; and when my lord fighteth the battles of Jeho-
 29 vah, may no evil ever befall thee. And should man rise up to persecute thee, and to seek thy life; then may the life of my lord be bound up in the bundle of life, with Jehovah thy God; but may the lives of thine enemies be slung out, as it were, from the 30 middle of a sling. And, when Jehovah shall have done to my lord all the good that he hath spoken concerning thee, and shall have appointed thee ruler over Israel;
 31 Then will not this be a grief to thee, or trouble of mind to my lord; either that thou hast shed "innocent" blood without cause, or that my lord hath avenged himself "with his own hand." When Jehovah shall have thus dealt kindly with my lord, then wilt thou remember these words of thy handmaid.
 32 And David said to Abigail, Blessed be Jehovah, the God of Israel, who sent thee, 33 this day, to meet me. And blessed be thy prudence, and blessed be thyself, who hast kept me, this day, from coming to shed blood, and from avenging myself with mine
 34 own hand. For in very deed, as Jehovah, the God of Israel, liveth, who hath withheld me from hurting thee, unless thou hadst come so speedily to meet me, surely there had not been left to Nabal, by the morning
 35 light, so much as a dog. David then received from her hand what she had brought him, and said to her, Go in peace to thy house; see, I have hearkened to thy voice, and have accepted thy person.
 36 And Abigail came to Nabal; and, behold, he held a feast in his house, like the feast of a king; and Nabal's heart was merry within him, for he was very drunk; therefore she told him nothing, less or more, 37 until the morning-light. But when, in the morning, Nabal had become sober, and his wife told him these things, his heart died within him, and became like a stone. And 38 in about ten days Jehovah so smote Nabal, that he died.

And when David heard that Nabal was 39 dead, he said, Blessed be Jehovah, who hath avenged the reproach cast on me by Nabal, and hath withheld his servant from evil: for the wickedness of Nabal hath Jehovah returned upon his own head. David then sent and communed with Abigail, about taking her for a wife to himself. And when 40 the servants of David had come to Abigail, to Carmel, they spoke to her, saying, David hath sent us to thee, to take thee to him for a wife. And she arose, and bowed herself, 41 with her face to the earth, and said, Behold, let thy handmaid be a servant to wash the feet of the servants of my lord. And Abi- 42 gail made haste, and arose, and rode upon an ass, and five of her damsels attended her; and she went after the messengers of David, and became his wife. And David 43 also took Ahinoam, of Jezreel; and they were both of them his wives. For Saul 44 had given Michal, his daughter, David's former wife, to Phalti, the son of Laish, who was of Gallim.

CHAPTER XXVI.

B. C. 1060. Saul again persecuteth David, who again refuseth to kill him, when he had it in his power; Saul confesseth his folly, and departeth; David goeth to Achish.

AGAIN the Ziphites came to Saul, to 1 Gibeah, saying, Doth not David hide himself "among us," in the hill of Hachilah, which is opposite Jeshimon? Then Saul 2 arose and went down to the wilderness of Ziph, having three thousand chosen men of Israel with him, to seek David in the wilderness of Ziph; And Saul encamped on 3 the hill of Hachilah, which is by the way, opposite Jeshimon. Now David abode in the wilderness; and he saw that Saul had come after him to the wilderness. (For 4 David had sent out spies, and understood that Saul had indeed come.) Then David 5 arose and came towards the place where Saul was encamped. And David saw the place

27. (a) Sept. Vulg.

23. Forgive now this trespass] This breach of decorum in a female, in thus publicly coming forth to thee. Others apply it to the blame which she had taken on herself, verse 24.—And when my Lord, &c.] Castalio thus renders; and this best agrees with the context. She expresses her confidence, that God would make him a firm house, that is, establish him and his family on the throne; and when as a king he fighteth the battles of Jehovah, she prays that no evil may befall him. This seems natural; but the common version, referring it to David's past conduct, destroys the connexion.

29. And should man rise up] I have followed Junius, Geddes, and others, in rendering conditionally and in referred to a future, and not to a past event; and the latter part of the verse requires this sense. The metaphor is derived from common usage. What things are valuable are collected and carefully preserved. Thus, may God preserve thy life, is her prayer; but may those of thine enemies be like stones put into a sling, to be cast away.

31. (a) Versions, 1 MS. (a) Sept.

36—38. Nabal appears not only weak but wicked; and while Abigail's conduct and speech show her to be a woman of good understanding, his intemperance and stupidity justify the character given him.

CHAP. XXVI. 1. The hill of Hachilah] Jerom places this about eight miles east of Hebron. (a) Sept. 4 MSS.

where Saul lay, and Abner, the son of Ner, the captain of his host : and Saul lay among the baggage, and the people were encamped round about him. Then David addressed himself to Ahimelech, the Hethite, and to Abishai, the son of Zeruiah, brother to Joab, saying, Who will go down with me to Saul to the camp ? And Abishai said, I will go down with thee. So David and Abishai came to the people by night ; and behold, Saul lay sleeping among the baggage ; and his spear was stuck in the ground, at his head, and Abner and the people lay round about him. Then said Abishai to David, God hath this day delivered thine enemy into thy hand ; now therefore, let me, I pray thee, at once smite him with the spear, even to the earth ; and I shall not need to smite a second time. And David said to Abishai, Destroy him not ; for who can stretch forth his hand against Jehovah's anointed, and be guiltless ? David moreover said, As Jehovah liveth, Jehovah shall smite him ; or his day to die shall come ; or he shall descend into battle, and perish ! Jehovah keep me from stretching forth my hand against Jehovah's anointed ; but, I pray thee, take now the spear which is at his head, and the water-jug, and let us go. So David took the spear and the water-jug from Saul's head ; and they went away, without any one's seeing, knowing, or awaking : for they were all asleep ; a deep sleep from Jehovah having fallen upon them. Then David went over to the other side, and stood on the top of a distant hill ; a great space being between them : And David cried to the people, and to Abner the son of Ner, saying, Answerest thou not, Abner ? Then Abner answered and said, Who art thou that criest to the king ? And David said to Abner, Art not thou a valiant man ? and who is like to thee in Israel ? wherefore then hast thou not kept thy lord the king ? for there came one of the people in to destroy the king thy lord. This thing which thou hast done is not good. As Jehovah liveth, ye are worthy of death, because ye have not kept your master, Jehovah's anointed. And now see where the king's spear is, and the jug which was at his head. And Saul knew David's voice, and said, Is this thy voice, my son David ? And David said, It is my voice, my lord, O king. And he said, Why doth my lord thus pursue his servant ? for what have I done ? or what evil is in my hand ? Now, therefore, I pray thee, let my lord the king hear the words of his servant. If Jehovah have stirred thee up against me, let him be appeased with an offering : but if they be men only, accursed be they before Jehovah ; for they now drive me out from abiding in the inheritance of Jehovah, saying, by this deed, Go serve other gods. Now therefore, let not my blood fall to the earth in the presence of Jehovah. Surely the king of Israel is come out to seek a flea : as when one hunteth a partridge among the mountains.

Then said Saul, I have sinned : return, my son David : for I will no more do thee harm, because my life was precious in thine eyes this day ; behold, I have acted foolishly, and have erred exceedingly. And David answered and said, Behold the king's spear ! and let one of the young men come over and fetch it. May Jehovah render to every man according to his righteousness and his faithfulness : for although Jehovah this day delivered thee into my hand, yet I would not stretch forth my hand against Jehovah's anointed. And, behold, as thy life was this day of great value in mine eyes, so may my life be of great value in the eyes of Jehovah, and may he deliver me out of all tribulation. Then Saul said to David, Blessed art thou, my son David ! also whatever thou undertakest to do, thou shalt be able to accomplish. Then David went on his way and Saul returned to his own place.

David now thought in his heart, I shall one day perish by the hand of Saul : nothing can be better for me than speedily to escape into the land of the Philistines ; and Saul, despairing of me, will cease to seek me in any of the districts of Israel : so shall I escape from his hand. And David arose, and, with the six hundred men who were with him, passed over to Achish, the son of Maoch, king of Gath. And David dwelt with Achish at Gath, he and his men, every man with his household ; David with his two wives, Ahinoam the Jezreelitess, and Abigail the Carmelitess, formerly Nabal's wife. And it was told Saul that David had fled to Gath ; and he sought no more after him.

5. Lay among the baggage] Purver, 'among the carriages,' after our marginal version. Geddes, 'in the wagon-path.' I have followed Purver in sense ; and from Harmer we learn, that it is yet the custom for the Arabs to encamp as is here stated, among the baggage, the king or leader in the midst and the people around him, with their spears stuck at their heads.

8—12. This circumstance proves either that Saul's troops, as well as himself, were exhausted by fatigue ; or that, God so ordered it, to convince Saul, and again to show David's innocence.

19. Let him be appeased] This advice was proper ; and it would have been well if Saul had sought reconciliation first with God, and then with David.

25. Whatever thou undertakest] So Houbigant and others render, which is the sense of the text without any addition.

CHAP. XXVII. 1—4. David, continually harassed and

5 And David said to Achish, If I have now found favour in thine eyes, let there be given to me a place in some town in the country, that I may dwell there : for why should thy servant dwell in the royal city with thee?

6 So Achish gave to him that day Ziklag : hence Ziklag to this day belongeth to the kings of Judah.

7 And the time that David dwelt in the country of the Philistines was a full year and

8 four months. And David and his men went up, and invaded the Geshurites, and the Gezerites, and the Amalekites : for these were of old the inhabitants of the land, as one goeth to Shur, and unto the

9 land of Egypt. And David smote the land ; and left neither man nor woman alive : and he took away the sheep, and the oxen, and the asses, and the camels, and the apparel,

10 and returned, and came to Achish. And Achish said, Whither have ye made an inroad to day ? And David said, Against the south of Judah, and against the south of the Jerahmeelites, and against the south

11 of the Kenites. For David had saved neither man nor woman alive, to bring tidings to Gath, saying, Lest they should tell of us, saying, So did David. And this was his custom all the time he dwelt in the 12 country of the Philistines. And Achish trusted David, saying, He hath made himself so detested by his own people, Israel, that he will be for ever my servant. Hence,

1 when, in those days, the Philistines assembled their hosts for war, to fight with Israel, Achish said to David, Know thou for certain, that thou shalt go out with me to battle, thou and thy men. And David said to

2 Achish, Surely thou shalt know what thy servant can do. And Achish said to David,

Truly I could make thee keeper of my head for ever.

CHAPTER XXVIII.

B. C. 1056. Saul, forsaken of God, seeketh to a necromancer ; Samuel's appearance, and address to him ; Saul's fear.

SAMUEL was now dead, and all Israel had lamented him, and buried him in Ramah, in his own city. And Saul had removed from the land necromancers and prognosticators. And the Philistines assembled, and came and encamped in Shunem ; and Saul assembled all Israel, and they encamped in Gilboa. And when Saul saw the host of the Philistines, he was afraid, and his heart greatly trembled. And when Saul inquired of Jehovah, Jehovah answered him not, either by dreams, or by Urim, or by prophets.

Then said Saul to his servants, Seek out for me, a woman skilful in necromancy, that I may go to her, and inquire of her. And his servants said to him, Behold, there is a woman skilful in necromancy, at Endor. And Saul disguised himself, and put on other garments, and went, and two men with him, and they came to the woman by night ; and he said, Divine, I pray thee, for me, by necromancy, and bring up to me the person whom I shall name to thee. And the woman said to him, Behold, thou knowest what Saul hath done ; how he hath cut off necromancers and prognosticators from the land ; why then layest thou a snare for my life, to cause me to be put to death ? And 10 Saul swore to her by Jehovah, saying, As Jehovah liveth, no punishment shall happen to thee for this thing. Then said the woman, 11 Whom shall I bring up to thee ? And he said, Bring up to me Samuel. And the 12 woman saw Samuel, and she cried with a exposed to danger, begins to fear, and flies to Gath for safety ; where, as the supposed enemy of Saul, he is kindly treated.

8. And invaded the Geshurites] These were not Philistines, nor even in league with them ; so that David's conduct was no breach of hospitality. He thought it prudent to conceal his attacks on these enemies of Israel, lest Achish should suspect he made them to obtain the favour of Saul.

11. And this was his custom] I follow the punctuation and rendering of Piscator, Junius, Houbigant, and others ; and this is doubtless the sense.

12—2. I join the two next verses to this chapter as closely connected with it. Achish, thinking David made attacks on the Israelites, trusted in him, and determined that he should accompany him in the approaching war.

CHAP. XXVIII. 4. Shunem—Gilboa] The first of these places was on the border of Issachar. Josh. xix. 18. Compare 2 Kings iv. 12, &c. Gilboa lay north of Bethshan, and east of Jezreel.

6. By dreams, or Urim, or prophets] In all these ways God was accustomed to answer his people ; but Saul having slain the priests, there was neither Urim nor prophet with him. And how could a man so wicked expect God to admonish him by dreams ?

12. And the woman saw Samuel] Equally learned and pious men are divided in opinion on the nature of what is here recorded. Some suppose that the woman, knowing the king and Samuel, personated the latter ; and by her art as a ventriloquist, held the conversation which follows. It is doubtful from the text, whether the king himself saw any thing. The woman saw Samuel ; she describes his form, his dress, &c. It must be recollected that this occurred in the night ; when imposition might be more easily practised. Supposing the woman spoke in the name of Samuel, it would be proper for her to use much such language as he would have used. And it must have been generally known, that Samuel had asserted that Saul was rejected, and David anointed to succeed him. Hence she might infer from his fears, from the distracted state of Israel, and from the numbers of the Philistines, that Saul and his army would be defeated ; and from his known courage conclude, that he and his sons would perish. She might tell him these things, to render him unhappy, for having persecuted those who practised her own art.—Others think, that God sent either Samuel, or some appearance of him, not at the will of this necromancer, but without her art, and contrary to her expectation, to reprove Saul for his sin in consulting such a character ; and to repeat the denunciations, which he had before made. Hence they lay stress on the expression, ' the woman saw Samuel and cried out, thou, &c.' ; and also on the prediction that Saul and his sons should be with him. It may be observed, that all Saul's sons did not perish ; as Ishbosheth reigned for some time. I leave my reader to choose which of these opinions he deems most probable ; for it is impossible to decide absolutely which may be right,

- loud voice ; and the woman spoke to Saul, saying, Why hast thou deceived me? for
- 13 thou art Saul. And the king said to her, Be not afraid ; for what seest thou? And the woman said to Saul, I see a chief
- 14 ascending from the earth. And he said to her, What form hath he? And she said, An old man cometh up ; and he is covered with a mantle. And Saul knew that it was Samuel, and he inclined his face to the ground, and bowed himself.
- 15 Then Samuel said to Saul, Why hast thou disturbed me, by bringing me up? And Saul answered, I am greatly distressed ; for the Philistines make war against me, and God is departed from me, and answereth me not, either by prophets, or by dreams : therefore I have called thee, that thou mayest
- 16 make known to me what I shall do. Then said Samuel, Why then dost thou consult me, when Jehovah is departed from thee,
- 17 and is with thy neighbour? For Jehovah will do to "thee" as he spoke by me ; and Jehovah will rend the kingdom from thy hand, and give it to thy neighbour David.
- 18 Because thou obeyedst not the voice of Jehovah, nor executedst his fierce wrath upon Amalek, therefore Jehovah, this day, doeth
- 19 this thing. Moreover, Jehovah will also deliver Israel, with thee, into the hand of the Philistines : and to-morrow, thou and thy sons shall be among the dead, with me : Jehovah shall also deliver the camp of
- 20 Israel into the hand of the Philistines. Then Saul fell suddenly, his whole length, on the earth ; so greatly did he fear, on hearing the words of Samuel. Besides, there was no strength in him ; for he had eaten no bread all the day, nor all the night.
- 21 And the woman came to Saul ; and she saw that he was greatly troubled, and said to him, Behold, thy handmaid hath obeyed thy voice, and I have exposed my life, and have hearkened to thy words, which thou
- 22 spakest to me. Now therefore, I pray thee, hearken thou also to the voice of thy handmaid, and let me set a morsel of bread before thee ; and eat, that thou mayest have
- 23 strength, when thou goest on thy way. But he refused, and said, I will not eat. But his servants, together with the woman, compelled him ; and he hearkened to their voice. So he arose from the earth, and sat upon
- 24 the bed. And the woman had a fat calf in the house ; and she made haste, and killed it ; and took flour, and kneaded it, and baked of it unleavened bread : And she set it before Saul, and before his servants ; and they ate. Then they rose up, and that night went away.

CHAPTER XXIX.

B. C. 1056. David sent back from the Philistine army ; Achish commends him ; he finds Ziklag burnt, and the people and property carried away by the Amalekites ; he pursues them, and recovers all, and obtains great spoil.

Now the Philistines had assembled all their hosts at Aphek ; and the Israelites were encamped by a fountain, which is in Jezreel. And the lords of the Philistines passed on by hundreds and by thousands ; but David and his men passed on in the rear with Achish. Then said the princes of Philistines, Who are these that pass on? And Achish said to the princes of the Philistines, Is not this David, the servant of Saul, the king of Israel, who hath been with me some days and years ; and I have found no fault in him, since the day of his defection to this day? And the princes of the Philistines were wroth with him ; and the princes of the Philistines said to him, Make this man return ; and let him go back to his place which thou hast appointed for him ; let him not go down with us to battle, lest in the battle he become our adversary ; for in what way can he reconcile himself to his master? is it not with the heads of these men? Is not this David, of whom they sang in alternate choirs,

Saul hath slain his thousands!

But David, his ten thousands?

Then Achish called David, and said to him, Surely, as Jehovah liveth, thou hast been upright ; and thy going out and thy coming in with me in the camp, is good in my sight : for I have not found evil in thee, since the day of thy coming to me, unto this day : yet the lords favour thee not. Therefore, now return, and go in peace, that thou displease not the lords of the Philistines.

And David said to Achish, But what have I done? and what hast thou found in thy servant so long as I have been with thee to this day, that I may not go and fight against the enemies of my lord the king? And Achish answered and said to David, I know that thou art good in my sight, as an angel of God ; yet the lords of the Philistines have said, He shall not go up with us to the battie.

17. (v) Sept. Vulg. 5 MSS.

20. Felt his whole length] What an effect had the words which Saul had heard upon him! He had lost his reason, when he went to consult this necromancer ; and now he lost his courage. How unfit was he to lead the army.

CHAP. XXIX. 3. Who are those, that pass on] So the Sept. Syr. and Arab. render ; reading the word העברים

as a participle, and not a noun ; and this is unquestionably the sense.—Some days and years] We are informed that David abode one year and four months at Gath, but he had been there before, and Achish spoke generally.

4, 5. The remembrance of his defeating Goliath, and the song of the women of Israel, excited their fears lest David should prove treacherous.

- 10 Therefore, now rise up early in the morning, with thy master's servants, who have come with thee; and, as soon as it is light 11 in the morning, depart. So David and his men rose up early in the morning to depart, to return into the land of the Philistines; but the Philistines went on to Jezreel.
- 1 AND when David and his men came to Ziklag, on the third day, they found that the Amalekites had invaded the south of Judah and Ziklag, and smitten Ziklag, and burned it with fire; And had taken the 2 "men and the" women who were in it captives; they slew not any, either great or small, but carried them off, and had gone on their way.
- 3 So David and his men came to the city, and behold it was burned with fire; and their wives, and their sons, and their daughters
4 were taken captives. Then David and the people who were with him, raised their voice and wept, until they had no more power to 5 weep. And David's two wives were taken captives, Ahinoam, the Jezreelitess, and Abigail, before the wife of Nabal, the Carmelite. And David was greatly distressed; for the people spoke of stoning him, because the soul of all the people was grieved, every one for his sons and for his daughters: but David encouraged himself in Jehovah his 7 God. And David said to Abiathar, the priest, Ahimelech's son, Apply for me, I pray thee, the ephod. And Abiathar applied the ephod for David. And David inquired of Jehovah, saying, Shall I pursue after this horde? Shall I overtake them? And he answered him, Pursue: for thou shalt surely overtake them, and without fail recover all.
- 9 So David went, he and the six hundred men who were with him, and came to the brook Besor, where two hundred abode, and were left behind; for they were so faint that they could not pass over the brook Besor.
10 But David, with four hundred men, still 11 pursued. And they found an Egyptian in the field, and brought him to David, and gave him bread, and he ate; and they gave 12 him water to drink. They also gave him a piece of a cake of figs, and two clusters of raisins; and when he had eaten he was revived; for he had neither eaten bread, nor drunk water, for three days and three nights.
13 And David said to him, To whom belongest thou? and whence art thou? And he said,

I am a young man of Egypt, servant to an Amalekite; and my master left me, because three days ago I fell sick. We made an 14 invasion on the south of the Cherethites, and on the south of Judah, and on the south of Caleb; and we burned Ziklag with fire. And David said to him, Canst thou bring 15 me down to this horde? And he said, Swear to me by God, that thou wilt neither kill me, nor deliver me into the hands of my master, and I will bring thee down to this horde. "And David swore to him."

And when he had brought him down, 16 behold, they were spread abroad over the whole country, eating, and drinking, and dancing, because of all the great spoil which they had taken out of the land of the Philistines, and out of the land of Judah. And David 17 "came upon them," and smote them from the twilight even unto the evening of the next day; and there escaped not a man of them save four hundred young men, who rode upon camels, and fled. And David recovered all 18 that the Amalekites had taken away; his two wives also David rescued. And there 19 was nothing wanting to them, either small or great, either sons or daughters, either spoil, or any thing that they had taken with them: David recovered all. And David 20 took all the flocks and the herds of the Amalekites; which they drove before the recaptured cattle, and said, This is David's spoil.

And David came to the two hundred men, 21 who were so faint that they could not follow David, whom they had also made to abide at the brook Besor. And they went forth to meet David, and to meet the people who were with him: and when David came near to the people, he saluted them. Then 22 answered all the wicked and worthless men, of those who went with David, and said, Because they went not with us, we will not give them aught of the spoil that we have recovered, save to every man his wife and his children, that they may lead them away and depart. Then David said, Ye shall 23 not do so, my brethren, with that which Jehovah hath given to us, who hath preserved us, and delivered the horde which came against us into our hand. For who can 24 hearken to you in this matter? Surely as is the share of him who goeth to the battle, shall be the share of him who abideth by the baggage; they shall share alike. And 25

CHAP. XXX. 6. Spoke of stoning him] As if he had been the cause of this calamity. David had only one refuge, on this occasion, but it had never failed him; he had God for his friend, and he encouraged himself in him. 2. (a) Syr. 9, 10. The text in these verses has suffered in its order. As the connexion and sense point out the order, I have not hesitated to adopt it.

13. My master left me] How little regard was paid to human life! he was sick, and was left by his cruel master to die, or to be devoured by wild beasts; but Providence overruled this act of inhumanity, for the destruction of the Amalekites. 15. (a) Syr. Vulg.

17. From the twilight] The text is ambiguous. The Sept. render, "From the morning twilight unto the evening, and on the morrow." (a) Sept.

22—25. The law which David now made for dividing the spoil was equitable; and it continued afterwards to be observed.

from that day forward unto this day, he made this mode of dividing the spoil a statute and an ordinance for Israel.

- 26 And when David came to Ziklag, he sent of the spoil to the elders of Judah, to his friends, saying, Behold a present for you of 27 the spoil of the enemies of Jehovah; To those who were in Bethel, and to those who were in south Ramoth, and to those who 28 were in Jattir, And to those who were in Aroer, and to those who were in Siphmoth, 29 and to those who were in Eshtemoa, And to those who were in Rachal, and to those who were in the cities of the Jerahmeelites, and to those who were in the cities of the 30 Kenites, And to those who were in Hormah, and to those who were in Chorashan, and 31 to those who were in Athach, And to those who were in Hebron, and to all the places where David himself and his men were wont to haunt.

CHAPTER XXXI.

B. C. 1056. Saul having lost his army, and three of his sons, slays himself; the Israelites fly from their cities, which the Philistines occupy; the men of Jabesh-gilead recover the bodies of Saul and his sons, and having burnt, bury them with suitable honours.

- 1 Now the Philistines fought against Israel; and the men of Israel fled from before the Philistines, and they lay slaughtered on mount Gilboa. And the Philistines closely followed Saul and his sons; and the Philistines slew Jonathan, and Abinadab, and 3 Melchi-shua, Saul's sons. The battle was then wholly against Saul, and the archers hit him; and he was grievously wounded 4 by the archers. Then said Saul to his armour-bearer, Draw thy sword, and thrust me through with it; lest these uncircumcised come and thrust me through, and insult me. But his armour-bearer would not; for he was greatly afraid. Saul, therefore, took a sword, and fell upon it. And 5 when his armour-bearer saw that Saul was dead, he likewise fell upon his sword, and died with him. So Saul died, and his three 6 sons, and his armour-bearer, and all his men, that same day together.

And when the men of Israel who were 7 on the other side of the valley of Jezreel, and they who were on the other side of the Jordan, saw that the men of Israel fled, and that Saul and his sons were dead, they forsook the cities and fled; and the Philistines came and dwelt in them. And on the mor-
8 row, when the Philistines came to strip the slain, they found Saul and his three sons fallen on mount Gilboa. And they cut off 9 his head and stripped off his armour, and sent messengers through the whole land of the Philistines, to publish it in the temples of their idols, and among the people. And 10 they put his armour in the temple of Ashtaroth; and they fastened his body to the wall of Beth-shan.

But when the inhabitants of Jabesh-gilead
11 heard what the Philistines had done to Saul, All the valiant men arose, and went all 12 night, and took the body of Saul, and the bodies of his sons, from the wall of Beth-shan, and came to Jabesh and burnt them there. And they took their bones, and 13 buried them under a tamarisk tree at Jabesh, and they fasted seven days.

26—31. The spoil which David obtained was great, as his presents prove; and his many friends show the opinion entertained of him.

CHAP. XXXI. 2. Followed closely] Geddes, 'pressed hard upon, &c.' Jonathan and those with him would doubtless acquit themselves with their usual bravery; and the force of the enemy seems to have been directed against them; and on their death against Saul.

4. Saul took a sword and fell upon it] This last deed of Saul crowns all his other evil deeds. Pride led to it; and no circumstance can justify self-murder. Had he rushed into the midst of the enemy, and fallen like Jonathan, it would have been more honourable.

10. Fastened his body] Josephus says it was affixed to a cross, by the city walls: and this is probable. The bodies of his sons were doubtless treated in the same manner. See v. 12, and 2 Sam. xxi. 12.

13. And they took their bones] If they burned their bodies, how, afterward, were the bones burned? The Hebrew word which we render, burnt, means more properly to scorch than consume. Perhaps, they waited until the sun had dried up the flesh and exhaled the stench; and then buried the body; which might properly then be called bones. Others think, that by burning is here meant only burning aromatics on them. I think the word rendered bone, might be translated remains, or burned substance; which they might put into an urn. Compare Gen. i. 25, 26, and Exod. xiii. 29.

II. S A M U E L.

INTRODUCTION.

If we admit the opinion of the Talmudists, this book was written by the prophets Gad and Nathan, as a continuation of what Samuel had begun; and for that reason called the Second Book of Samuel. This opinion is highly probable in itself; and it must be evident, that Samuel could not write a history of events which happened long after his death.

The book contains the history of about forty years; and has not improperly been divided into three parts. In the first, the author describes the happy beginning and glorious success of the kingdom of David, chap. i.—x. In the second, he relates his sin and fall, and the misfortunes and troubles which followed, notwithstanding the repentance of this monarch, chap. xi. 18. In the third, he gives an account of David's re-establishment, and the events which distinguished the last period of his glorious reign. The most interesting events of David's life are here recorded, and point out his typical relation to Christ; and also illustrate many of the Psalms.

CHAPTER I.

B. C. 1056. David, informed of the death of Saul, sincerely grieves, and composes a beautiful elegy.

- 1 Now after the death of Saul, when David was returned from the slaughter of the Amalekites, and David had abode two days in Ziklag; It came to pass on the third day, that, behold, a man came from the camp, from Saul, with his clothes rent, and earth upon his head; and so it was, when he came to David, that
- 2 he fell to the earth, and did obeisance. And David said to him, Whence comest thou? And he said to him, From the camp of
- 3 Israel I have escaped. And David said to him, How went the matter? I pray thee, tell me. And he answered, The people are fled from the battle, and many of the people also are fallen and dead; and Saul and
- 4 Jonathan also are dead. And David said to the young man who told him, How knowest thou that Saul, and Jonathan his son,
- 5 are dead? And the young man who told him, said, As I happened to be by chance upon mount Gilboa, behold, Saul leaned upon his spear; and, lo, the chariots and horsemen
- 6 closely followed him. And when he looked behind him, he saw me, and called to me; and
- 7 I answered, Here am I. And he said to me, Who art thou? And I answered him, I am an Amalekite. He said to me again, Stand,
- 8 I pray thee, upon me, and slay me: for convulsion hath seized me, so that there is
- 9 scarcely life in me. So I stood upon him, and slew him, because I was sure that he could not live, after that he was fallen: and I took the crown which he had upon his head, and the bracelet which he had on his
- 10 arm, and have brought them hither unto
- 11 my lord. Then David took hold on his clothes, and rent them: and so did all the
- 12 men who were with him: And they mourned and wept, and fasted until the evening, for

Saul, and for Jonathan his son, and for the people of Jehovah, and for the house of Israel; because they had fallen by the sword.

And David said to the young man who 13 told him, Whence art thou? And he answered, I am the son of a stranger, an Amalekite. And David said to him, How 14 wast thou not afraid to stretch forth thy hand, to destroy Jehovah's anointed? And 15 David called one of the young men, and said, Go near, and fall on him. And he so smote him that he died. And David said 16 to him, Thy blood be upon thy head; for thy mouth hath testified against thee, saying, I have slain Jehovah's anointed.

David now lamented over Saul, and over 17 Jonathan his son with this lamentation. And 18 he commanded 'it to be taught' the Judahites. Behold, it is written in the book of Jasher.

O, ANTELOPE of Israel! pierced on thy 19 high place!

How have the mighty fallen!

Tell it not in Gath: 20

Publish it not in the streets of Askelon;

Lest the daughters of the Philistines rejoice! [exult!

Lest the daughters of the uncircumcised

Ye mountains of Gilboa, on you be no 21 dew,

Nor rain, nor fields of first-fruits.

Since there hath been vilely cast away,

The shield of the mighty, the shield of Saul!

The armour of him anointed with oil!

From the blood of the slain, from the 22 fat of the mighty,

The bow of Jonathan was not held back,

Nor did the sword of Saul return in vain.

Saul and Jonathan! 23

In their lives were united in mutual love,

And in their death they were not separated.

CHAP. I. 6. As I happened by chance to be] There are always numerous strollers who follow camps; and their business is to pillage and strip the dead. This young Amalekite was most probably one of this kind.

9. For convulsion hath seized me] I have followed an ingenious conjectural emendation of the text, reading לר for לז. The common reading is at variance with the next verse, where the Amalekite says, 'he was sure he could not live,' and yet he here tells us, according to the text, that Saul said, 'my life was yet whole in me.' Now, though we know that this account was partly invented, yet surely he would not so contradict himself. Did the Amalekite thus smite Saul? It is not improbable, that he might find him before he was wholly dead, and put thus an end to his existence, that he might obtain the spoil and carry it to David in hope of ample reward.

10. I took the crown] This was probably one of those diadems, made of a bandage of linen, and ornamented sometimes with jewels, which the eastern monarchs wear, and which Saul might conceal by his helmet.

13—16. From his account David supposed the Amalekite the murderer of Saul; and perhaps suspecting that he had acted treacherously, ordered him to be put to death. This was necessary to vindicate his own innocence; for had he rewarded him, or suffered him to go unpunished, it might have been said that he had employed him.

18. He commanded it to be taught] I have followed the Sept. in this version, and consider קטש as probably introduced into the text, from standing as a title to the elegy. Michaelis and Geddes retain the word, and give it the Arabic sense, measure. See note, Hebrew Bible.

19. O antelope of Israel] It is well known, that the antelope is, throughout the east, regarded as the emblem of beauty and agility; and has always afforded an ample field of metaphor to the oriental bards.—Pierced on thine high-place] I believe it is common to all the deer-kind, when closely pursued, to run at last to their usual original haunt, and there to meet the fatal stroke. Whose heart is not deeply touched by this allusion!

21. First fruits] That is, 'may ye be so sterile as to yield neither corn, grapes, nor olives, nor other produce, the first fruits of which were to be offered to God.'

22. The parallelism is inverted, the last line corresponding with the first clause, and the third with the second. Lowth has produced many instances of this kind. See his Prælectiones.

23. In their lives] I have with Houbigant given the sense rather than the idiom; and the next line supports

- Swifter than eagles, stronger than lions, were they.
- 24 Ye daughters of Israel, weep over Saul,
Who clothed you in delightful scarlet,
Who put golden ornaments on your apparel.
- 25 How are the mighty fallen, in the midst of battle!
O Jonathan, slain on thine own mountains! [Jonathan!]
- 26 I am in distress for thee, my brother
Very dear to me wast thou:
Wonderful was thy love unto me,
Surpassing the love of women!
- 27 How have the mighty fallen!
And the weapons of war perished!

CHAPTER II.

B. C. 1055. David goeth to Hebron, where he is anointed king over Judah; his message to the men of Jabesh-gilead; battle between his troops and those of Ishbosheth.

- 1 Now after this, David inquired of Jehovah, saying, Shall I go up into any of the cities of Judah? And Jehovah said to him, Go up. And David said, Whither shall I go up? And he said, Unto Hebron. So David went up thither, and his two wives also, Ahinoam the Jezreelitess, and Abigail, formerly the wife of Nabal, the Carmelite.
- 3 And his men who were with him did David bring up; every man with his household:
4 and they dwelt in the city of Hebron. And the men of Judah came, and there they anointed David king over the house of Judah.

- When some told David, saying, Jabeshgilead were they who buried Saul; David then sent messengers to the men of Jabeshgilead, and said, Blessed be ye by Jehovah; who have shown this kindness to your lord, to Saul; and have buried him, 6 "and Jonathan his son." And now may Jehovah show true kindness to you; and I the version.—They were swifter] Swiftmess, in those days, was considered as one chief quality in a warrior. So among the Greeks, Achilles is particularly distinguished by the epithet swift-footed.

25—27. Nothing, says a late critic, can be more pathetic than this imitable stanza; which I could never read without rapture. Indeed, the whole composition is admirable, whether we consider it as a singularly fine piece of lyric poetry, or as a powerful engine to move to reconciliation even the most bitter adversaries of the royal author.

CHAP. II. 1. David inquired] Doubtless this inquiry was made by Urim, through the high priest. Compare 1 Sam. xxiii. 6, 9. David acted wisely and piously in seeking divine direction; and the answer he received should encourage us to go and do likewise.

3. City of Hebron] The common text has cities; but we never find elsewhere any mention of the cities of Hebron. And indeed this form of speaking is wholly improper.

5. (a) Sept.

6. True kindness to you] David's message to the brave men of Jabesh-gilead sheweth both his generosity and wisdom. It was calculated to win the friends of Saul, and to strengthen him in his kingdom.

7. The house of Judah] This was David's own tribe;

also will repay you this kindness, because ye have done this thing. Now therefore 7 take courage, and be valiant; for, since your master Saul is dead, the house of Judah have anointed me king over them.

But Abner, the son of Ner, captain of 8 Saul's host, took Ishbosheth, the son of Saul, and brought him over to Mahanaim; And 9 made him king over Gilead, and over Asher, and over Jezreel, and over Ephraim, and over Benjamin; even over all Israel. Ish- 10 bosheth, Saul's son, was forty years old when he began to reign over Israel, and reigned two years. But the house of Judah followed David. And the whole time that David 11 was king in Hebron, over the house of Judah, was seven years and six months.

And Abner, the son of Ner, and the ser- 12 vants of Ishbosheth, the son of Saul, went out from Mahanaim to Gibeon. And Joab, 13 the son of Zeruiah, and the servants of David, went out, and met together by the pool of Gibeon: and they sat down, the one on the one side of the pool, and the other on the other side of the pool. And Abner 14 said to Joab, Let the young men now arise, and play before us. And Joab said, Let them arise. Then there arose and went 15 over by number twelve of Benjamin, who belonged to Ishbosheth, the son of Saul, and twelve of the servants of David. And each 16 seizing his adversary by the head, plunged his sword into his adversary's side; so that they all fell together; wherefore that place was called Helkath-hazzurim [THE FIELD OF GRAPPLERS], which is by Gibeon. And 17 there was a furious battle on that day; but Abner was beaten, and the men of Israel, before the servants of David.

Now three sons of Zeruiah were there; 18 Joab, and Abishai, and Asahel: and Asahel was swift of foot as any antelope of the field. And Asahel pursued Abner; and in going 19 and now began to be fulfilled the predictions of Jacob and Moses. Become the leading tribe, the royal tribe; a scattered chief was not to depart until the Shiloh, the Messiah, came.

9. Asher] I have followed the reading of the Talmud, which is most probable. The tribe of Judah was distinguished from the other tribes long before the separation of the two kingdoms in the reign of Rehoboam.

10. And reigned two years] There is an error here which neither MSS. nor versions enable us to correct. Houbigant conjectures the true reading is six years, and the other year which David is said to have reigned over the house of Judah only; he fills up, by supposing that Ishbosheth was not established king over Israel, till a year after the death of his father Saul. That Ishbosheth reigned longer than two years, seems evident from what follows, chap. iii. 1.

14. And play before us] Dathe, whom Geddes follows, renders, and prelude the engagement. Before a general battle, in those times, this was a common custom; and indeed skirmishing generally now precedes the battle.

16. The field of grapplers] The marginal version is 'the field of strong men.' I follow the Sept. who read גִּבְעֹנִים as a participle.

after Abner he turned neither to the right 30 hand nor to the left. Then Abner looked behind him, and said, Art thou Asahel?
 21 And he answered, I am. And Abner said to him, Turn aside, to thy right hand or to thy left, and seize one of the young men, and take to thyself his armour. But Asahel would not turn aside from following him.
 22 And again Abner said to Asahel, Turn aside from following me: why should I smite thee to the ground? how then could I hold up my face to Joab thy brother?
 23 Still he refused to turn aside: Abner therefore, with the reverted point of the spear, smote him in the groin, so that the spear came out behind him; and there he fell down, and died in the same place. And so it was, that all who came to the place where 24 Asahel fell down and died, stood still. But Joab and Abishai pursued Abner; and the sun went down when they had come to the hill of Ammah, which is opposite to Giah, by the wilderness of Gibeon.
 25 And the Benjamites had gathered together after Abner, and had become one troop, and stood on the top of a hill. Then Abner called to Joab, and said, Shall the sword devour for ever? knowest thou not that it may be bitterness in the end? how long shall it be then, ere thou bid the people 27 return from following their brethren? And Joab said, As God liveth, if thou hadst so spoken, surely from the morning the people had gone up every one from following his 28 brother. So Joab blew a trumpet, and all the people stood still; and they pursued Israel no 29 further, nor fought they more. And Abner and his men marched all that night through the plain, and passed over the Jordan; and they went through all Bithron, and came 30 to Mahanaim. And Joab returned from following Abner; and when he had gathered all the people together, there were wanting of David's servants nineteen men, and 31 Asahel. But the servants of David had smitten to death of Benjamin, and of Abner's men, three hundred and sixty men.

And they took up Asahel, and buried him 32 in the sepulchre of his father, which was in Bethlehém. And Joab and his men marched all night; and they came to Hebron at break of day.

CHAPTER III.

B. C. 1053. David groweth strong; his sons; Abner revolteth to him, on certain conditions, and is slain by Joab; David lamenteth Abner.

Now there was a long war between the 1 house of Saul and the house of David; but, while David grew stronger and stronger, the house of Saul grew weaker and weaker.

And unto David were sons born in He- 2 bron: and his first-born was Amnon, by Ahinoam, the Jezreelitess; And his second, 3 Chileab, by Abigail, formerly the wife of Nabal, the Carmelite; and the third, Absalom, the son of Maachah, the daughter of 4 Talmai, the king of Geshur; And the fourth, Adonijah, the son of Haggith; and the fifth, 5 Shephatiah, the son of Abital; And the sixth, Ithream, by Eglah, David's wife.
 These were born to David, in Hebron.

And it happened, during the war between 6
 the house of Saul and the house of David, that Abner exerted himself for the house of Saul. Now Saul had a concubine whose 7 name was Rizpah, the daughter of Aiah; and 'Ishbosheth' said to Abner, Why hast thou gone in to my father's concubine?
 Then was Abner very wroth on account of 8
 the words of Ishbosheth, and said, Am I, who, in opposition to Judah, have, to this day, shown kindness to the house of Saul thy father, to his brethren and to his friends, and have not delivered thee into the hands of David, such a dog's head, that thou chargest me to day with a fault concerning this woman? So do God to Abner, and 9 more also, if, as Jehovah hath sworn to David, I do not so to him; By transferring 10 the dominion of the house of Saul, and by setting up the throne of David over Israel, and over Judah, from Dan even to Beersheba.
 And "Ishbosheth" could make no answer to 11
 Abner, because he feared him.

22. Abner seems to have been of a mild pacific disposition; who wished to avoid a civil war, and a quarrel with the opposite commander. He knew the bloody disposition of Joab; and dreaded his resentment: not without reason, as we shall soon see. Compare iii. 27.

23. With the reverted point] He thrust his spear backward, without turning his face to Asahel.

26. It may be bitterness in the end] Abner insinuates, that though they were routed, yet if driven to despair, they might still cause such a slaughter as would lead Joab to repent.

27. If thou hadst so spoken] I have followed the Vulg.
 CHAP. III. 3. King of Geshur] This name, both in Arabic and Syr. denotes a bridge; and Michaelis contends the people were so called from residing near one. There were three different people so called; some who dwelt on the east of the Jordan, Josh. xii. 5, and xiii. 13, and 1 Chron. ii. 23;
 and some who dwelt south of the tribe of Judah, Josh. xiii.

2, and 1 Sam. xxvii. 8, 10. The Geshur here mentioned was in Syria, most probably situate beyond Hamath on the Orontes. Compare chap. xiii. 37; 1 Chron. xiii. 2.

7. Gone in to my father's concubine] According to the custom of the east, the concubines of a deceased king became the property of his successor; and had Abner been guilty of the deed laid to his charge, Ishbosheth might justly suspect, that he was aspiring to the throne. It doth not appear from what follows, whether Abner was guilty or not. (a) Sept.

8. Such a dog's head] This phrase Dathe considers as denoting what is vile and abject. 'Am I become so abject, &c.'

9, 10. From what is here said, however we may admire Abner as a brave man and distinguished commander, in supporting the house of Saul, he had acted against the dictates of his own conscience, and, as far as was in his power, opposed the will of heaven. Compare verse 18.

12 Abner then sent messengers to David, on his behalf, saying, Whose is the land? saying also, Make thy covenant with me; and, behold, my hand shall be with thee, to bring over all Israel unto thee. And "David" said, Well: I will make a covenant with thee; but one thing I require of thee, that thou shalt not see my face, when thou comest to me, unless thou bring Michal, 14 Saul's daughter. And David sent messengers to Ishbosheth, Saul's son, saying, Deliver up to me my wife Michal, whom I espoused to myself with a hundred foreskins of the Philistines. And Ishbosheth sent, and took her from her husband, from Phaltiel, the son of Laish. And her husband went along with her, weeping behind her, to Bahurim. Then said Abner to him, Go, return. And he returned.

17 Then Abner spoke with the elders of Israel, saying, Ye sought for David, in times past, to be king over you: Now then, make him king. For Jehovah hath spoken of David, saying, By the hand of my servant David, I will save my people Israel out of the hand of the Philistines, and out of the hand of all their enemies. Thus also Abner spoke in the ears of Benjamin. Abner then went to inform David, in Hebron, all that had seemed good to Israel, and that had seemed good to the whole house of Benjamin. So Abner came to David, to Hebron, and twenty men with him. And David made a feast for Abner, and the men who were with him.

21 And Abner said to David, I will arise and go, and will gather all Israel to my lord, the king, that they may make a covenant with thee, and that thou mayest reign over all that thy heart desireth. And David sent Abner away; and he went in peace.

22 And, behold, the servants of David, with Joab, came from pursuing a horde, and brought with them a great spoil; but Abner was not with David in Hebron; for he had sent him away, and he was gone in peace.

23 When Joab and all the host that was with him had come, they told Joab, saying, Abner, the son of Ner, came to the king; and he hath sent him away, and he is gone in peace. Then Joab came to the king, and said, What hast thou done? behold, Abner came to thee? why hast thou thus sent him away, so that he is clear gone? Thou must know, that Abner, the son of Ner, came to deceive thee, and to know thy going out and thy coming in, and to know all that thou doest. And when Joab had gone from David, he sent messengers after Abner, who brought him back from the well of Sirah: but David knew it not. And when Abner 27 had returned to Hebron, Joab took him aside, in the gate, to speak with him secretly; and he smote him there, in the groin, for the blood of Asahel, his brother, so that he died.

And when afterwards David heard, he said, I and my kingdom are guiltless for ever, before Jehovah, of the blood of Abner, the son of Ner: Let it rest on the head of 29 Joab, and on all his father's house; and let there not fail to be, in the house of Joab, one that hath an issue, or that is a leper, or that leaneth on a staff, or that falleth by the sword, or that wanteth bread. Thus Joab, 30 and Abishai his brother, slew Abner, because he had slain their brother Asahel, in the battle at Gibeon.

And David said to Joab, and to all the people who were with him, Rend your garments, and gird yourselves with sackcloth, and mourn for Abner. And king David followed the bier. And they buried Abner in Hebron: and the king raised his voice, and wept at the grave of Abner; and all the people wept also. And the king lamented and said,

Died Abner, as a criminal dieth?

Thy hands were not bound;

Thy feet were not put into fetters:

As one falleth, before wicked men—

So, Abner, fellest thou!

And all the people again wept over him. And when all the people came to persuade David to eat bread, while it was yet day, David swore, saying, So may God do to me, and more also, if I taste bread, or aught else, until the sun go down. And all the people took notice of this, and it pleased them, as whatsoever the king did pleased

11. 13. (a) Versions.

15. Ishbosheth sent and took] David had a right to demand his wife, who had been torn from him unjustly; and he doubtless did it to strengthen his dominion, and reconcile the friends of Saul to his person and government.

17—21. Abner soon put his threat in execution. Abner seems to have stipulated for the chief command; and he engages to bring over the people on certain terms. So that David was not an absolute king; he reigned over a free people; a people who knew their rights and who defended them when necessary.

22—27. Joab even insinuated that David ought to have secured Abner, and not sent him away in peace. Unknown to his royal master he sent for Abner back, and treacherously murdered him.

28, 29. David might justly maintain his own innocence; but did he not transgress the law, Deut. xxiv. 16, in imprecating a curse on the family and children of Joab for ever?

30. Had slain their brother] This was in the war, and on the part of Abner with reluctance, and could be no just cause for this treacherous deed.

31. Said to Joab] The king commands him especially to mourn for Abner, and doubtless for his crime.

33. As a criminal dieth] To render נבל fool, does not convey the sense. I have followed several modern critics in rendering a criminal; and the next verse justifies this sense. Though this elegy is short, it is in David's usual strain of eloquence.

37 the people: For all the people, and all Israel, understood, that day, that it was not by the king's order that Abner, the son of Ner, had been slain. Again the king said to his servants, Know ye not that a prince and a great man hath this day fallen in Israel? And I am this day weak, though anointed king; and these men, the sons of Zeruiah, are too stubborn for me: Jehovah will reward the evil-doer according to his evil deeds.

CHAPTER IV.

B. C. 1048. Ishbosheth is slain, his head cut off and brought to David; who causeth his murderers to be slain and his head to be buried.

1 AND when "Ishbosheth," the son of Saul, heard that Abner was dead in Hebron, he was discouraged, and all the Israelites were in a state of confusion. For, though Jonathan, Saul's son, had a son, he was lame of his feet. He was but five years old when the tidings came of the death of Saul and Jonathan from Jezreel, and his nurse took him up and fled: and in the hurry of her flight, he fell, and became lame. And his name was Mephibosheth.

2 Now "Ishbosheth," Saul's son, had two men who were chiefs of hordes: the name of the one was Baanah, and the name of the other Rechab; the sons of Rimmon, a Beerothite, of the Benjamites; for Beeroth was now reckoned to Benjamin: As the original Beerothites had fled to Gittaim, and are sojourners there until this day.

5 And the sons of Rimmon, the Beerothite, Rechab and Baanah, went, and came about mid-day to the house of Ishbosheth, who was then lying on a bed, as it was noon:

6 And they went into the midst of the house, as if to fetch wheat; "and the woman who kept the door had fallen asleep." So Rechab and Baanah his brother went to the house, and as Ishbosheth was lying on his bed, in his bed-chamber, they smote him in the groin, and slew him, and took off his head, and escaped. And they took his head, and went all night by the way of the wilderness. And they brought the head of Ishbosheth to David, to Hebron, and said to the king, Behold the head of Ishbosheth, the son of Saul, thine enemy, who sought thy life. Jehovah hath this day avenged my lord, the king, of Saul, and of his seed.

And David answered Rechab, and Baanah his brother, the sons of Rimmon, the Beerothite, and said to them, As Jehovah liveth, who hath redeemed my soul out of every distress! If, when one told me, saying, Behold, Saul is dead, thinking that he brought good tidings, I took hold of him, and slew him in Ziklag, when he expected that I would have given him a reward for his tidings: How much more, when wicked men have slain a just person in his own house, upon his own bed, shall I not now require his blood at your hand, and destroy you from the earth? David then commanded his young men, and they slew them, and cut off their hands and their feet, and hanged them up over the pool in Hebron. But the head of Ishbosheth they took and buried in the sepulchre of Abner in Hebron.

CHAPTER V.

B. C. 1048. David anointed king over Israel; he takes Jerusalem, and carries on a successful war against the Philistines.

THEN came all the tribes of Israel to Hebron, to David, and spoke "to him," saying, Behold, we are thy bone and thy flesh. Also, in time past, when Saul was king over us, thou wast he that leddest out and broughtest back Israel. And Jehovah had said to thee, Thou shalt tend, as a shepherd, my people Israel, and thou shalt be ruler over them. Thus came all the elders of Israel to the king, unto Hebron; and king David made a covenant with them in Hebron, before Jehovah: and they anointed David king over Israel.

David was thirty years old when he began to reign, and he reigned forty years. Seven years and six months he reigned over Judah

CHAP. IV. 1. (a) Versions.

4. I have transposed with Geddes this verse hither for the sake of connexion. He justly observes that this is its proper place: they had now lost Abner; Ishbosheth was a weak pusillanimous prince; and the son of Jonathan, the next hope of the royal family, was lame. The fourth verse, which mentions this circumstance, comes, therefore, naturally in here; which it does not after v. 3; as every common reader must perceive.

2. Chiefs of hordes] These had been engaged to support and strengthen the house of Saul; and like other mercenaries were ready to take the strongest side.

3. Gittaim] There was a city in the tribe of Benjamin of this name, Nehem. ii. 33; but Michaelis suspects that this was the entrance or suburbs of Gath.

6, 7. The text here is confused, and generally admitted to be erroneous. From the connexion, with the assistance of the Sept. and Vulg. I have attempted to restore it; and my version is, at least, coherent and perspicuous. See note, Hebrew Bible.

10—12. Ishbosheth had done nothing to deserve death; and these wicked and unprincipled men met with the treatment they merited.

CHAP. V. 1. All the tribes of Israel] That is, by their elders or delegates: for it is not probable that all the men came on this occasion.—Behold, we are thy bone] This was a reason why they should choose him, and a proof that he was qualified by law, being one of their brethren. In the next verse they assign two other reasons, his valour and conduct under Saul, and God's appointment of him to tend, as a shepherd, his people. (a) Versions and MSS.

3. And they anointed David] The first anointing was only a designation of the office, and was done privately, 1 Sam. xvi. 13; the second only over the tribe of Judah, chap. ii. 4 this third over all Israel.

- in Hebron: and in Jerusalem he reigned thirty-three years over all Israel and Judah.
- 6 And the king and his men went to Jerusalem against the Jebusites, the inhabitants of the land; and they said, Thou canst not come in hither, unless thou canst remove the sentinels and patrols, thinking David could not come in thither. Nevertheless, David took the citadel of Zion, which is now called the city of David. For David said on that day, Whosoever first smiteth the Jebusites, and through the secret passage reacheth the sentinels and patrols, who detest the person of David, (because the sentinels and patrols had said, Into this house he shall not come,) he shall be chief captain." "So Joab, being the first who went up, was made chief captain." And David dwelt in the citadel, and it was called the city of David: for David built a wall round about from Millo and inward.
- 10 And David went on, and grew great, and Jehovah, the God of hosts, was with him.
- 11 And Hiram, king of Tyre, sent messengers to David, with cedar trees, and carpenters, and masons; and they built a house for David. And when David perceived that Jehovah had established him king over Israel, and that he had exalted his kingdom
- 13 for his people Israel's sake, David took more concubines and wives at Jerusalem, after he had come from Hebron; and more sons
- 14 and daughters were born to David. And these are the names of those who were born to him in Jerusalem; Shammuah, and Shobab, and Nathan, and Solomon, And Ibhar, and Elishua, "Elipelet and Nagoh," and
- 16 Nepheg, and Japhia, And Elishama, and Eliada, and Eliphalet.
- 17 But when the Philistines heard that they had anointed David king over Israel, all the Philistines went up to seek David; and David heard of it and went down to the
- 18 citadel. The Philistines had now come and spread themselves in the valley of Rephaim. And David inquired of Jehovah, 19 saying, Shall I go out against the Philistines? wilt thou deliver them into my hand? And Jehovah said to David, Go out, for I will assuredly deliver the Philistines into thy hand. And David came to Baal-perazim 20 and David smote them there, and said, Jehovah hath broken down mine enemies before me, as the breach of waters. Therefore he called the name of that place Baal-perazim [BAAL OF THE BROKEN]. For 21 there they left their idols, and David and his men burned them.

Again the Philistines came up, and spread 22 themselves in the valley of Rephaim. And 23 when David inquired of Jehovah, he said, Thou shalt not go out "to meet them:" make a circuit behind them, and come upon them over against the mulberry trees. And 24 when thou hearest the sound of a motion in the tops of the mulberry trees, then thou shalt bestir thyself: for then Jehovah will go out before thee, to smite the host of the Philistines. And David did so, as Jehovah had commanded him; and smote the Philistines from Gibeah along unto Gazer.

CHAPTER VI.

B. C. 1042. David designs to bring up the ark; Uzzah smitten, and the ark left at the house of Obed-edom; at length the ark is brought to Zion with great joy.

DAVID now assembled all the chosen men 1 of Israel, thirty thousand. And David 2 arose, and all the chief people who were with him, of the chiefs of Judah, and went "to Gibeah" of Kirjath-jearim to bring up thence the ark of God, at which is invoked the name of Jehovah of hosts, who dwelleth between the cherubs. And they set the 3 ark of God upon a new cart, and brought it from the house of Abinadab which was in Gibeah: and Uzzah and his brothers, the sons of Abinadab, drove the new cart. And 4 Uzzah walked by the ark of God; and his

6. To Jerusalem] This was formerly called Jebus; and the fortress, from its situation, seems hitherto to have withstood the efforts of the Israelites to reduce it. If the remark of the historian, Judges i. 8, be correct, the town had been taken and burnt; but from Josh. i. 21, xix. 10, it is clear the fortress had not been taken, and the city might have been rebuilt.—Sentinels and patrols] I follow Geddes in thus rendering העררים והפסדים, in the common version rendered, the blind and the lame. The meaning given, though not supported by ancient or modern versions, is fairly deducible from the sense of the verbs עור and פסד; the former of which denotes to awake, to excite, or arouse, and as a participle, one who is awake and active, which is evidently descriptive of a sentinel. The latter verb denotes to pass on, over or upon; to hop about as birds do; and nothing can better describe the duty of a patrol. The exigence of the place supports this sense of the terms, but the usual sense admits of no explication. (a) 1 Chron. xvi. 6.

9. Millo] This was a strong fortress, a royal palace, and armoury. It seems to be a general name for any strong fort or bulwark. The cxvth psalm was composed on occasion of this victory.

11. And they built] The Israelites were chiefly employed in agriculture, while the Tyrians were devoted to merchandise and the arts. 15. (a) 1 Chron. xiv. 5.

17. When the Philistines] The Philistines did not stir during their civil war, hoping they would destroy one another; but they now thought it time to stir themselves, and raised all their forces to go and fight David.

18. The valley of Rephaim] As David went into the fortress of Zion, it is evident that this vale lay near Jerusalem. Compare Josh. xv. 8; xviii. 16; and Isa. xvii. 5.

20. Baal-perazim] Compare Isa. xxviii. 21.

23. (a) Sept. Vulg.

CHAP. VI. 2. Of the chiefs of Judah] So the Sept. and Vulg. render. (a) Syr. Arab.

3. And Uzzah and his brothers] So the Sept. others render as a proper name.

4. And Uzzah] Nothing can be more evident than that the first part of this verse is a mere repetition of a part of the former, and which ought to be omitted.—Set on a new cart] This was contrary to the law, which required them to carry it on their shoulders. The Philistines had done so, 1 Sam. vi. 11, and they thought they might do the same.

5 brothers went before the ark. And David and all the house of Israel sung before Jehovah "with all their might;" and played on harps, and on psalteries, and on tabours, and on cornets, and on cymbals.

6 And when they came to Nachon's threshing-floor, Uzzah put forth "his hand" to the ark of God, and took hold of it; for the 7 oxen started. And the anger of Jehovah was kindled against Uzzah; and God smote him because he put forth his hand to the ark: and there he died by the ark of God.

8 And David was grieved that Jehovah had stricken Uzzah; and the name of the place is called Perez-Uzzah [THE STRIKING OF UZZAH]. And David was afraid of Jehovah that day, and said, How shall the ark

10 of Jehovah come to me? So David would not remove the ark of Jehovah unto him into the city of David: but David carried it aside into the house of Obed-edom, the 11 Gathite. And the ark of Jehovah continued in the house of Obed-edom the Gathite three months: and Jehovah blessed Obed-edom, and all his household.

12 And it was told king David, saying, Jehovah hath blessed the house of Obed-edom, and all that belongeth to him, because of the ark of God. So David went and brought up the ark of God from the house of Obed-edom into the city of David with gladness: "for there was with David seven choirs, and

13 victims were slaughtered." And thus it was, that when they who bore the ark of Jehovah had gone six paces, an ox and a fatling

14 were sacrificed. And David danced before Jehovah with all his might; and David

15 was girded with a precious ephod. So David and all the house of Israel brought up the ark of Jehovah with shouting, and with the 16 sound of the trumpet. And as the ark of Jehovah came into the city of David, Michal, Saul's daughter, looked through a window, and saw king David leaping and dancing before Jehovah; and she despised him in her heart.

And they brought in the ark of Jehovah, 17 and set it in his own place, in the midst of the tabernacle which David had pitched for it: and David offered burnt-offerings and feast-offerings before Jehovah. And as soon as 18 David had made an end of offering burnt-offerings and feast-offerings, he blessed the people in the name of Jehovah of hosts. He 19 then distributed among all the people, among the whole multitude of Israel, as well to the women as men, to every one a cake of bread, and a piece of roast meat, and a fritter. And all the people departed, every one to his own house.

Then David returned to bless his own 20 household. And Michal, the daughter of Saul, came out to meet David, and said to him, How honourable, to-day, was the king of Israel, who exposed himself, to-day, to the eyes of the handmaids of his own servants, as one of the vulgar is wont to expose himself! Yea, said David to Michal, in the 21 presence of Jehovah who chose me before thy father, and before all his house, to appoint me ruler over the people of Jehovah, over Israel! Hence in the presence of Jehovah I will still play the vulgar man; and will be much more vulgar and base in mine own eyes than this. And as to the 22 handmaids of whom thou hast spoken, of them shall I be had in honour. As to Michal, the daughter of Saul, she had no child unto the day of her death.

CHAPTER VII.

B. C. 1042. David purposes to build a house for God; his purpose is accepted, and a blessing promised to his deed; his prayer and thanksgiving.

Now when the king was settled in his own 1 house, and Jehovah had given him rest from all his enemies around, The king said to 2 Nathan the prophet, See now, I dwell in a house of cedar, but the ark of God dwelleth

5. With all their might] The present text has, on all the woods of fir, which is evidently corrupted; while the reading in Chronicles is as evidently right. The learned reader may consult the note, Hebrew Bible. The 68th Psalm is thought to have been composed for this occasion. (v) 1 Chron. xiii. 8.

6. (a) 1 Chron. xiii. 10.

7. Because he put forth his hand] This shows the offence of Uzzah, who did not regard the ark with sufficient reverence, and who thought that God could not take care of that special token of his presence. He seems to have dropped down dead. Compare Numb. iv. 15—20.

10. The Gathite] Not a Philistine Gathite; but an inhabitant of Gath-rimmon, a Levitical city in the tribe of Dan. Compare Josh. xxi. 24.

[12—15. We have a more full and particular account of the manner of bringing up the ark in the parallel place, 1 Chron. xv. Convinced of their former error, David and the elders adhered to the law by appointing the Levites to bear the ark. (a) Sept. Vulg.

17. In the midst of the tabernacle] The old tabernacle of Moses was still at Gibeon, compare 1 Chron. xvi. 39; xxi. 29, and 2 Chron. i. 3. So that David prepared a new one for the ark, until the temple should be built, which he now designed to build.

18. He blessed the people] Prayed for their prosperity; and on this occasion the 105th Psalm was composed and sung. 1 Chron. xvi.

19. And a fritter] So all the versions render. There is no authority for the common version, a flagon.

20. Who exposed himself] The original never means to uncover any part of the body so as to expose it to view. What shocked the pride of Michal was to see her husband putting off his royal robes, joining with the people, and exposing himself to all who went to see the procession.

21. Play the vulgar man] The word signifies, to sport, to dance, &c. to indicate joy in any way.

21. And will be yet more vulgar] His resolution was pious, as well as politic.

23. She had no child] God saw fit to mortify her pride in this way; so that, though she was a person of the first rank, she had no son to succeed David.

CHAP. VII. 2. Dwelleth within curtains] God had promised, that when the people were settled, he would choose himself a place, where his name should be invoked, and David thought this was the time. He therefore formed the

3 within curtains. And Nathan said to the king, Go, do all that is in thy heart; for 4 Jehovah is with thee. But on that night, the word of Jehovah came to Nathan, saying,
 5 Go and tell my servant David, Thus saith Jehovah, Wouldst thou build for me a house 6 to dwell in? For I have not dwelt in any house since the time that I brought up the Israelites out of the 'land of' Egypt, even 7 to this day, but have walked about in a tent or tabernacle. In all the places in which I have walked with Israel spoke I a word to any of the "judges" of Israel, whom I commanded to tend my people Israel, saying,
 8 Why build ye not for me a house of cedar? Now, then, shalt thou say to my servant
 David, Thus saith Jehovah, God of hosts,
 I took thee from the sheep-cote, from following the flock, to be ruler over my peo-9 ple Israel: And I have been with thee whithersoever thou wentest, and have cut off from before thee all thine enemies. Also thy name I will make as great as the name of the great ones, who are on the earth.
 10 Moreover I will appoint a place for my people Israel, and will so plant them, that they may dwell in their own place, and move no more; nor shall wicked men afflict 11 them any more, as formerly; As from the time I appointed judges over my people Israel. To thee also will I give rest from thine enemies. Moreover, I Jehovah declare to thee, that I will build up thy house.
 12 For when thy days shall be completed, and thou shalt sleep with thy fathers, I will raise up thy seed after thee, the offspring of thine own body, and I will esta-13 blish his kingdom. He shall build a house for my name, and I will establish the throne 14 of his kingdom for ever. I will be his father, and he shall be my son. If he commit iniquity, I will chastise him with the rod of men, and with the stripes of the children 15 of men: But my kindness 'I will not withdraw' from him as I did from Saul, whom 16 I removed from before thee. And 'his' house and 'his' kingdom shall be established for ever before 'me:—' 'his' throne shall be established for ever. According to all these 17 words, and according to all this vision did Nathan the prophet speak to David.

Then went king David into the taber- 18 nacle, and sat before Jehovah, and said, Who am I, O Lord Jehovah! and what is my house, that hitherto thou hast so promoted me? And, as if this was but a small 19 thing in thine eyes, O God Jehovah, thou hast spoken also of thy servant's house, for a great while to come. And is this the manner of man, O God Jehovah? And what 20 can David say more to thee? for thou Lord Jehovah knowest thy servant. For thine 21 own word's sake, and according to thine own heart, thou doest all those great things, which thou hast made known to thy servant. Wherefore thou art great, O God Jehovah: 22 for there is none like thee, nor is there a God besides thee; according to all that we have heard with our own ears. And what 23 one nation on the earth is like thy people Israel, whom thou, O God, wentest to redeem for a people to thyself, and to make thyself a name, and to do for "them" great and terrible things, 'to drive out' before thy people, whom thou redeemedst to thyself from Egypt, the nations and their gods? For thou hast confirmed to thyself thy peo- 24 ple Israel to be thy people for ever; and thou Jehovah art become their God. And 25 now, O God Jehovah, the word that thou hast spoken concerning thy servant, and concerning his house, establish for ever, and do as thou hast said. And let men magnify 26 thy name for ever, saying, Jehovah, God of hosts, is the God of Israel; and let the house of thy servant David be established before thee. For thou, O Jehovah of hosts, God 27 of Israel, hast revealed to thy servant, saying, I will build up thy house: therefore hath thy servant been encouraged to make this prayer unto thee. And now, O God 28 Jehovah, thou art the only God, and thy words are true, and thou hast promised this goodness to thy servant: Therefore now 29 let it please thee so to bless the house of thy servant, that it may continue for ever before design of building a temple, but first consulted Nathan the prophet. 6. (v) Syr. Arab. and MSS.

7. To any of the judges] The common reading, 'any of the tribes,' is certainly improper; and it is a happy circumstance, that the parallel place has retained the genuine word. (v) 1 Chron. xvii. 6.

12—16. Some would refer what is here said exclusively to Messiah; but in my opinion, this is to pervert rather than to explain scripture. The words have certainly a reference to Solomon, who was not yet born; and who actually performed what is here said. He built a house for God; and God gave him wisdom, wealth, and prosperity beyond all who were before him. He was an eminent type of Messiah, both in his person and in his works.

14. With the rod of men] That is, with moderation and gentleness, suited to human frailty; in such a manner as men are wont to correct their children.

15, 16. (v) Versions and MSS.

18. Sat before Jehovah] Sitting as the Arabs do was expressive of the greatest humiliation, and therefore no improper posture for one that appeared before the ark of God.

19. And is this the manner] Geddes renders, 'Such, O Lord God, is the custom of mankind.' So Houbigant and others, and they suppose that David wondered that God should show the same solicitude about his posterity, that parents do about their own children. Our version considers it as denoting that the kindness which God had shown, was far beyond what man has either the inclination, or the ability to bestow; and this seems as probable as any.

23. To drive out] Happily the parallel place retains the true reading, and shows in what manner the corrupted reading, 'thy land,' has obtained. With the reading adopted it is plain and coherent. (v) 1 Chron. xvii. 21.

thee, (since thou, O God Jehovah, hast spoken it,) and with thy blessing let the house of thy servant be for ever blessed.

CHAPTER VIII.

B. C. 1040. David's victories over the Philistines, and Moabites; over Hadadezer and the Syrians; presents from Toi; he dedicates to God the spoils.

- 1 AND after this David smote the Philistines, and subdued them: and David took 'Gath and her towns' out of the hand of
- 2 the Philistines. And he smote the Moabites; whom, being laid on the ground, he measured with a line. He measured two line-lengths; a line-length to put to death, and one full line-length to keep alive. Thus the Moabites became David's servants, and brought gifts.
- 3 David smote also Hadadezer, the son of Rehob, king of Zobah, who came to recover
- 4 his territory, on the river Euphrates. And David took from him a thousand chariots, and seven 'thousand' horsemen, and twenty thousand footmen: and David ham-strung all the chariot horses, reserving of them only
- 5 for a hundred chariots. And as the Syrians of Damascus had come to succour Hadadezer, king of Zobah, David slew of the Syrians
- 6 twenty-two thousand men. David then put garrisons in Syria of Damascus; and the Syrians became servants to David, and brought gifts. Thus Jehovah preserved
- 7 David whithersoever he went. And David took the golden shields which were on the servants of Hadadezer, and brought them
- 8 to Jerusalem. And from 'Tibhath,' and from Berothai, cities of Hadadezer, king David took very much brass.
- 9 Then Toi, king of Hamath, heard that David had smitten all the host of Hadad-
- 10 ezer. And Toi sent Joram, his son, to king David, to salute him, and to bless him, because he had fought against Hadadezer, and smitten him; for Hadadezer was at war with

CHAP. VIII. 1. Gath and her towns] This is the reading of the parallel place; and now generally admitted as what was once the reading here. (v) Chron. xviii. 1.

2. One line length to] So the Vulg. and equivalently the Sept. David found it necessary to cut off many to secure his conquest. We are not to imagine he killed one half of the people. He doubtless only cut off those who had been most active in promoting war, or might have power to excite new wars.

3. Zobah] This is supposed to be Nisibis, 1 Sam. xiv. 47, which he now attempted to recover. By the reconquest of his territory, and the subjection of the Syrians of Damascus, the Israelites were now, and not until now, in the possession of the promised land in its full extent. Compare Gen. xv. 18; Deut. i. 7; Josh. i. 4.

4. (v) Sept. 1 Chron. xviii. 4.

8. And from Tibhath] In the parallel place these names are Tibhath and Chun. I have adopted the first as most probably the true reading here, as it is in the versions mentioned; and I consider that Berothai ought to be restored there for the same reason. (u) 1 Chron. xviii. 8.

13. Meanwhile Abishai] In the parallel account Abishai is mentioned as the commander who obtained the victory; and as ארם Aram, had been already conquered, it is ob-

Toi. And Joram brought with him vessels 11 of silver, and vessels of gold, and vessels of brass: Which, likewise, king David dedicated to Jehovah, with the silver and gold that he dedicated of all the nations whom he had subdued; Of Syria, and of Moab, 12 and of the Ammonites, and of the Philistines, and of Amalek, and of the spoil of Hadadezer, son of Rehob, king of Zobah. And 13 David, on his return from smiting the Syrians, erected a monument.

'Meanwhile Abishai, the son of Zeruiah, slew of the Edomites,' in the valley of Salt, eighteen thousand men. And he put garri- 14 sons in Edom; throughout all Edom put he garrisons, and all they of Edom became David's servants. Thus Jehovah preserved David whithersoever he went. And David 15 reigned over all Israel; and David executed judgment and justice to all his people. And 16 Joab, the son of Zeruiah, was over the host; and Jehoshaphat, the son of Ahilud, was recorder; And Zadock, the son of Ahi- 17 tub, and Abiathar, the son of Ahimelech, were the priests; and Seraiah was the scribe; And Benaiah, the son of Jehoiada, was over 18 both the Cherethites and the Pelethites; and David's own sons were chief ministers.

CHAPTER IX.

B. C. 1040. David makes inquiry respecting the house of Saul; sendeth for Mephibosheth, and for Jonathan's sake admits him to his own table, and restores Saul's property to him.

And David said, Is there yet any one left 1 of the house of Saul, to whom I may show kindness for Jonathan's sake? Now there 2 was a servant of the house of Saul whose name was Ziba. And when they had called him to David, the king said to him, Art thou Ziba? And he said, thy servant is he. And 3 the king said, Is there yet one of the house of Saul, to whom I may show peculiar kindness? And Ziba said to the king, There is vious we should read אדום Edom. The vale of salt also proves that אדום Edom is meant, for this was on the confines of Edom. (a) 1 Chron. xviii. 12.

16. Recorder] The eastern princes used to record all circumstances of note during their reign, and keep a daily journal. This was an important office, as those who filled it were let into all the secrets of state.

17. Abiathar, the son of] The common text makes Ahimelech the son of Abiathar, in direct contradiction to 1 Sam. xxi. 1, and xx. 20. In the history of David we never read of Ahimelech being priest; but the name of Abiathar frequently occurs. (t) Syr. Arab.

18. Cherethites and Pelethites] These were the king's life-guards, and the ready executors of his orders. It has been thought they consisted of those brave men who fled to David in his exile, and who, for their valour and attachment, were advanced to this post of honour.—Chief ministers] So Michaelis explains the word נְתָנִים, and this sense best suits the connexion.

CHAP. IX. 3. Peculiar kindness] Literally, 'the kindness of God;' that is, great, distinguishing, peculiar kindness. Dathe supposes there is a reference to the oath and covenant which was between David and Jonathan, 1 Sam. xx. 8.

yet a son of Jonathan, who is lame of his feet. And the king said to him, Where is he? And Ziba said to the king, Behold, he is in the house of Machir, the son of Ammiel, in Lo-debar. Then king David sent and brought him from the house of Machir, the son of Ammiel, from Lo-debar.

Now when Mephibosheth, the son of Jonathan, the son of Saul, had come unto David, he fell on his face, and made obeisance. And David said, Mephibosheth. And he answered, Behold thy servant! And David said to him, Fear not; for I will surely show thee kindness for Jonathan thy father's sake, and will restore thee all the land of Saul thy grandfather; and thou shalt continually eat bread at my table.

And "Mephibosheth" bowed himself, and said, What is thy servant, that thou shouldst regard such a dead dog as I am? Then the king called to Ziba, Saul's servant, and said to him, I have given to thy master's son all that belonged to Saul, and to all his house. Thou, therefore, and thy sons, and thy servants, (now Ziba had fifteen sons and twenty servants,) shall till the land for him, and bring in the produce, that thy master's son may have food to eat; but Mephibosheth, thy master's son, shall eat bread always at my table. Then said Ziba to the king, According to all that my lord the king hath commanded his servant, so will thy servant do. So Mephibosheth ate at "his" table, as one of the king's sons. And Mephibosheth had a young son, whose name was Micha. And all that dwelt in the house of Ziba were servants to Mephibosheth. But Mephibosheth dwelt in Jerusalem; for he ate continually at the king's table. And he was lame of both his feet.

CHAPTER X.

B. C. 1037. On the death of Nahash, king of the Ammonites, David sends messengers to comfort Hanun his son; they are shamefully treated; a war is the consequence, and the Ammonites, with their confederates the Syrians, are conquered.

1 AND it came to pass after this, that the king of the Ammonites died, and Hanun,

4. Lo-debar] This was beyond the Jordan; where his friends thought he would be more safe than in any place nearer to the seat of government. Compare chap. xvii. 27.

7. Fear not] Mephibosheth seems to have been in some confusion and terror: he might not have heard of the oath between David and Jonathan his father, and therefore was afraid that this was some contrivance to ensnare and destroy him, lest he should make some pretensions to the kingdom; and therefore David says, 'Fear not.'—Restore thee all the land] The property of Saul had devolved on David, either in right of his wife, Saul's sons being dead, Numb. xxvii. 8, or as belonging to the crown.

8. Such a dead dog as I] This is the language of abasement, and expresses the low opinion he had of himself. (a) Sept.

11. Ate at his table] As the common text stands, it is Ziba, and not the king, who is made to speak. Our translators saw the impropriety of this, and inserted in italics, said his son, reigned in his stead. Then said David, I will show kindness to Hanun, the son of Nahash, as his father showed kindness to me. And David sent to comfort him by his servants, on account of the death of his father. And David's servants came into the land of the Ammonites. And the princes of the Ammonites said to Hanun, their lord, Doth David, in thy sight, honour thy father because he hath sent comforters to thee? Hath not David sent his servants to thee, to search and to spy out the city, that he may overthrow it? Hanun therefore took David's servants, and shaved off the one half of their beards, and cut off their garments at the middle, at their thighs, and sent them away. And when it was told to David, he sent to meet them, because they were greatly ashamed; and the king said, Tarry at Jericho until your beards be grown, and then return.

And the Ammonites now saw that they had made themselves odious to David; and the Ammonites sent and hired the Syrians of Beth-rehob, and the Syrians of Zoba, twenty thousand foot; and a thousand men of the king of Maacah, and twelve thousand men of Ish-tob. "And they went and encamped before Medeba." And when David heard of this, he sent Joab, and all the host of mighty men. And the Ammonites came out, and formed in battle array at the entrance of the gate; and the Syrians of Zoba, and of Rehob, and of Ish-tob, and of Maacah, were posted by themselves in the field. When Joab saw that the battle was against him before and behind, he chose out all the tried men of Israel, and formed them in array against the Syrians: And the rest of the people he placed under the command of Abishai his brother, that he might form them in array against the Ammonites. And he said, If the Syrians be too strong for me, then thou shalt help me; but if the Ammonites be too strong for thee, then I will come and help thee. Be of good courage, and let us act valiantly for our people, and for the cities of our God: and may Jehovah the king. By adopting the reading of one MS. supported in sense by the Sept. there is no need of any addition.

CHAP. X. 2. His father showed kindness to me] Nahash had been a cruel enemy to Israel, 1 Sam. xi. Saul had repulsed him, and it is probable he showed kindness to David when he was at variance with Saul, out of policy. David remembers it; and determines to return it to his son.

4. One half of their beards] Long beards and long robes were at this period considered as badges of honour, as they still are through a great part of the east. The beard is much regarded. Taking hold of the beard to kiss it, is a mark of the greatest respect. See chap. xx. 9.

5. Tarry at Jericho] At this time Jericho lay in ruins; and it is probable, that only a few houses were inhabited. They might live in obscurity here, until the marks of their dishonour were done away. Compare 1 Kings xvi. 34.

6. (a) 1 Chron. xix. 7.

8. At the entrance of the gate] From 1 Chron. xix. 7, do that which is good in his own sight.

 13 Then Joab, and the people who were with him, went on to battle against the 14 Syrians; and they fled before him. And when the Ammonites saw that the Syrians were fleeing, then fled they also before Abishai, and entered into the city. On this, Joab returned from the Ammonites, and came to Jerusalem.
 15 And when the Syrians saw that they were smitten before Israel, they assembled together. And Hadadezer sent, and brought the Syrians who were beyond the river: and they came to Helam, under the command of Shobach, the captain of the host of Hadadezer. And when it was told David, he assembled all Israel, and passed over the Jordan, and came to Helam. And the Syrians formed in array against David, and 18 fought with him. But the Syrians fled before Israel; and David destroyed seven hundred chariots of the Syrians, and "seven thousand horse," and forty thousand foot. He smote also, Shobach, the captain of their 19 host, who died there. And when all the kings who were servants to Hadadezer saw that they were smitten before Israel, they made peace with Israel, and served them. And the Syrians were afraid to help the Ammonites any more.

CHAPTER XI.

B. C. 1035. While Joab besiegeth Rabbah, David committeth adultery with Bath-sheba; Uriah sent for, to cover his adultery, refuseth to go into his wife; he is sent back with orders to Joab to be slain.

1 AND on the return of the year, at the time when kings go forth to battle, David sent Joab, and his servants with him, and all Israel; and they destroyed the Ammonites, and besieged Rabbah. But David abode still at Jerusalem.
 2 Now it happened one evening, that David arose from off his bed, and walked upon the roof of the royal palace: and from the roof he saw a woman washing herself; and the woman had a very beautiful countenance. And David sent and inquired after the woman. And one said, Is not this Bath-sheba, the daughter of Eliam, the wife of Uriah, the Hethite? And David sent messengers, and took her; and she came in to him, and he lay with her; and when she had purified herself from her uncleanness, she returned to her own house. And the woman conceived, and sent and told David, and said, I am with child.

And David sent to Joab, saying, Send to me Uriah, the Hethite. And Joab sent Uriah to David. And when Uriah was come to him, David asked him how Joab did, and how the people did, and how the war prospered. And David said to Uriah, Go down to thy house, and wash thy feet. And Uriah departed out of the palace, and there followed him a mess from the king. But Uriah slept at the gate of the palace, among all the servants of his lord, and went not down to his own house. And when it was told David, saying, Uriah went not down to his own house, David said to Uriah, Camest thou not from a journey? why then didst thou not go down to thine own house? And Uriah said to David, The ark, and Israel, and Judah, abide in tents; and my lord Joab, and the servants of my lord, are encamped in the open fields; shall I then go into mine own house, to eat and to drink, and to lie with my wife? As thou thyself livest, I will not do this thing. And David 12 said to Uriah, Abide here to-day also, and to-morrow I will let thee depart. So Uriah abode in Jerusalem that day. And on the 13 morrow, David called for him; he made him eat and drink in his presence until he had made him drunk: and at even he went to lie on his bed with the servants of his lord, but went not down to his own house.

Now the next morning, David wrote a letter to Joab, and sent it by Uriah. And 15 he wrote in the letter, saying, Set Uriah in we are informed, that it was at the entrance of the gate of Medeba that this battle was fought. This city is reckoned to the tribe of Reuben, Josh. xiii. 16. It was not far from Heshbon; and being a frontier city, it was sometimes in the possession of the Ammonites, and at others of the Moabites, Isa. xvi. 2.

9, 10. The Syrians seem to have surpassed the Ammonites in discipline, and perhaps in courage. Hence Joab selects the best troops to attack them.

16. Beyond the river] That is, the Euphrates, on or near to which river Helam was situated. The formidable preparations for war roused David; and he hastened to meet the Syrians and prevent the invasion of his own country. I uniformly read Hadadezer with Houbigant.

18. (v) 1 Chron. xix. 8. and Josephus.

CHAP. XI. 1. At the time when kings] Owing to the heat in summer, it was not usual in Judea, and the neighbouring countries, to engage in warfare until September.—Besieged Rabbah] David followed up his conquests by laying waste the country of the Ammonites, and then attacking their capital; which was at last taken.

2. In modern courts, what is here related would be considered as a mere affair of gallantry; and such conduct would scarcely be noticed as criminal, because it has become so common.

4. And when she had purified] Compare Lev. xv. 18. It is difficult to say how far she was to blame; but he was certainly the greater criminal who seduced her: if I had said forced her, the original word would bear me out, as it generally signifies an incapacity of resistance.

5. I am with child] She was in danger of death by the law of God, as an adulteress, and therefore consulted with David how they might contrive a way to hide their shame, and she to avoid punishment.

8—13. David's design to cover his own sin, and preserve the credit of Bath-sheba, seems well planned; but the manner in which it miscarried, shows a special, overruling Providence. How true is the remark of Moses, 'Be sure your sin will find you out!'

14, 15. Of what a hardening nature is sin! David seeks to hide one sin by the commission of another, and a still greater by the murder of a most loyal subject, and a brave and deserving man. Had not conscience been asleep, how could he have written this letter to Joab?

CHAPTER XII.

- the forefront of the hottest battle, and retire from him, that he may be smitten, and die.
- 16 And when Joab had observed the city, he assigned Uriah a place where he knew there were valiant men. And the men of the city went out, and fought with Joab; and there fell some of the people, some of the servants of David; and Uriah the Hethite was also killed.
- 18 Then Joab sent and told David all the occurrences of the war; And charged the messenger, saying, When thou hast made an end of telling the occurrences of the war to the king, And if so be that the king's wrath arise, and he say to thee, Wherefore approached ye so nigh to the city when ye fought? knew ye not that they would shoot from the wall? Who smote Abimelech, the son of 'Jerubbaal?' did not a woman cast a piece of a millstone upon him from the wall, so that he died in Thebez? why went ye so nigh the wall? Then say thou, Thy servant Uriah the Hethite is also killed.
- 22 So the messenger went, and came and told David all that Joab had sent him for.
- 23 And the messenger said to David, Surely the men prevailed against us, and came out to us into the field, but we drove them back to the entrance of the gate. And the shooters shot from off the wall upon thy servants; and some of the king's servants are dead, and thy servant Uriah the Hethite is also dead. Then David said to the messenger, Thus shalt thou say to Joab, Let not this thing displease thee, for the sword devoureth now one, and now another. Make a stronger attack on the city, and overthrow it. Thus encourage him.
- 26 And when the wife of Uriah heard that Uriah her husband was dead, she mourned for her husband. And when the mourning was past, David sent and brought her to his own house, and she became his wife, and bare to him a son.

18—21. It appears that in accomplishing the order sent him, Joab had sustained considerable loss. The messenger was to pacify the king by announcing the death of Uriah; and when he hears this, he calmly says, 'the sword now devoureth one, now another.' (v) Sept.

26, 27. Thus were appearances kept up, and the king's infamous conduct covered, by taking to be his wife the woman he had seduced, and whose husband he had ordered to be slain.

CHAP. XII. 1—4. There were two men This was a prudent and respectful way of reproving, and after the manner of the eastern nations, by which David was brought to condemn himself. (a) Versions and MSS.

6. Fourfold This was commanded, Exod. xxii. 1; but there was so much cruelty in the rich man's conduct that he was worthy of death.

7. Thou art the man Thou hast committed the crime stated, and art that guilty person, whom thou hast accused and condemned. Nathan now speaks as a prophet of God, and as his ambassador to David.

8. Thy master's wives I have preferred the reading adopted, because Michal was given to David, and because the wives of Saul would not have been mentioned after

B. C. 1034. Nathan's parable of the ewe lamb; David's repentance; the death of the child born to him of Bath-sheba; the birth of Solomon.

Now the thing which David had done was evil in the eyes of Jehovah; and Jehovah sent Nathan, "the prophet," to David. And he came to him, and said to him, There were two men in one city; the one rich, and the other poor. The rich man had many flocks and herds; But the poor man had nothing, but one little ewe lamb, which he had bought and nourished: and it grew up together with him, and with his children; it ate of his own morsel, and drank of his own cup, and lay in his bosom, and was to him like a daughter. Now a traveller came to the rich man, and he spared to take of his own flock and of his own herd, to dress for the traveller that had come to him; but took the poor man's lamb, and dressed it for the man that had come to him. And David's anger was greatly kindled against the man; And he said to Nathan, As Jehovah liveth, the man that hath done this is worthy of death. And because he did this thing, and because he had no pity, he shall restore the lamb fourfold. Then Nathan said to David, Thou art the man. Thus saith Jehovah, the God of Israel, I anointed thee king over Israel, and I delivered thee out of the hand of Saul; And I gave to thee thy master's "daughter," and thy master's wives into thy bosom, and gave to thee the house of Israel and of Judah; and if that had been too little, I would moreover have given to thee such and such things. Wherefore hast thou despised the commandment of Jehovah, to do evil in his sight? thou hast killed Uriah, the Hethite, with the sword, and hast taken his wife to be thy wife, and hast slain him with the sword of the Ammonites. Now therefore the sword shall never depart from thine own house; house, or family, being included in it. It is well known that the haram, or female establishment of a deceased king, always belongs to his successor. Compare chap. xvi. 21. (v) Syr. Arab.

10. Shall never depart That is, never during thy life. So Dath renders, 'The sword shall not depart as long as thou livest;' and observes that the next verse supports this sense. Compare Exod. xxi. 16. This sentence was fulfilled in the death of Absalom, Amnon, and Adonijah, who all fell by the sword, and so did many of his remote descendants, especially when the whole royal house, except one, was slain by Athalia, and Zedekiah's son was slain before his eyes.

11. I will take thy wives This refers to his son Absalom, who spread his tent probably on the very house-top whence David saw Bath-sheba, and debauched his father's wives in the sight of all Israel. See chap. xvi. 22.

13. I have sinned against Jehovah Now David owns his offence; and the Psalms he wrote on this occasion, show the deep sense he had of the guilt he had contracted, and will be an evidence of his repentance to all future ages.

14. The child shall die This was to begin the temporal chastisement threatened to David; and it soon followed.

- because thou hast despised me, and hast taken the wife of Uriah to be thy wife.
- 11 Thus saith Jehovah, Behold I will raise up evil against thee out of thine own house, and I will take thy wives from before thine eyes, and give them to thy rival, and he shall lie with thy wives in the sight of this
- 12 sun. Thou indeed hast acted secretly; but I will do this thing before all Israel, and
- 13 before the sun. And David said to Nathan, I have sinned against Jehovah. And Nathan said to David, Jehovah also hath put
- 14 away thy sin; thou shalt not die. Nevertheless, because by this deed thou hast given great occasion to the enemies of Jehovah to blaspheme, the child that is born to thee shall surely die.
- 15 And Nathan departed to his own house. And Jehovah struck the child that Uriah's wife had borne to David, and it was very
- 16 sick. David therefore besought God for the child; and David fasted, and went in, and lay all night upon the ground. And the
- 17 elders of his house arose, and went to him, to raise him up from the ground; but he would not, nor did he eat bread with them.
- 18 And on the seventh day, the child died; and the servants of David feared to tell him that the child was dead: for they said, Behold, while the child was yet alive, we spoke to him, and he would not hearken to our voice; how will he then vex himself,
- 19 if we tell him that the child is dead! But when David saw that his servants whispered, David supposed that the child was dead: David therefore said to his servants, Is the child dead? And they said, He is
- 20 dead. Then David arose from the ground, and washed and anointed himself, and changed his garments, and came into the house of Jehovah, and worshipped: he then came to his own house, and he asked, and
- 21 they set food before him, and he ate. Then said his servants to him, What is this that thou hast done? while the child was alive thou didst fast and weep; but when the child was dead, thou didst arise and eat
- 22 food. And he said, While the child was

17. Nor did he eat bread] Perhaps he was the more earnest on this occasion, partly because he considered the child's death as a punishment for his sin, and partly out of his great love to Bath-sheba.

22. God will be gracious] David did not know but the denunciation might be conditional, and while the child lived there was room for hope and for prayer.

23. I shall go to him] Some explain this passage as only meaning, "I shall die like my child." In his writings, a future state is clearly referred to; and hope of rejoining his child, in a state of happiness, might justly inspire submission, and produce solid and strong consolation.

24. (a) Sept. Arab.

25. (a) Versions.

26. The royal quarter of the city] This quarter is in the next verse called the city of waters, because situated on the river. The Israelites, having obtained possession of yet alive, I fasted and wept: for I said, Who can tell whether God will be gracious to me, so that the child may live? But now 23 he is dead, why should I fast? can I bring him back again? I shall go to him, but he will not return to me.

And David comforted Bath-sheba his 24 wife, and went in to her, and lay with her: and she "conceived, and" bare a son, and he called his name Solomon [PEACABLE]. And Jehovah loved him; And he sent by Na- 25 than the prophet; and he called his name Jedidiah [BELOVED OF JEHOVAH], because Jehovah "loved him."

And Joab fought against Rabbah of the 26 Ammonites, and had taken the royal quarter of the city. And Joab sent messengers to 27 David, and said, I have fought against Rabbah, and have taken the city of waters. Now, therefore, assemble the rest of the 28 people, and encamp against the city, and take it; lest if I take the city, it be called after my name. And David assembled all 29 the people, and went to Rabbah, and fought against it, and took it. And he took their 30 king's crown from off his head, the weight of which was a talent of gold, beset with precious stones: and it was set on David's head. And he brought forth the spoil of 31 the city in great abundance. And he brought forth the people that were therein, and put them to saws, and to harrows of iron, and to axes of iron, and made them pass through the brick-kiln: and thus did he to all the cities of the Ammonites. Then David and all the people returned to Jerusalem.

CHAPTER XIII.

B. C. 1032. Amnon loveth Tamar; he ravisheth and shamefully dismisseth her; Absalom, her brother, killeth Amnon, and flieth to Talmai, king of Geshur.

AND after this, Absalom, the son of David, 1 had a beautiful sister whose name was Tamar; and Amnon, the son of David, loved her. And Amnon was so distressed, 2 that he fell sick on account of his sister Tamar; for she being a virgin, it seemed this quarter, cut off the supplies of the enemy; and hence Joab knew they could not long hold out.

28. It be called after my name] This shows how much Joab loved his king, and endeavoured to raise his glory.

31. A heavy charge has been urged against David, from this part of the sacred history; as if it represented him sawing, and harrowing, and chopping, and burning, all the Ammonites. But a charge so severe should be well supported, before it be admitted. Happily its only foundation is a wrong translation and an error in 1 Chron. xx. 3, corrected by existing MSS. David put them as slaves to various employments and servile works.

CHAP. XIII. 2. She being a virgin] Virgins in the east are so closely watched, that it is difficult for any man to get access to them, without witnesses. Hence the distress of Amnon, and the wicked device he follows to obtain his desire.

- 3 hard to Amnon to do aught to her. But Amnon had a friend, whose name was Jonadab, the son of Shimeah, David's brother;
- 4 and Jonadab was a very subtle man. And he said to him, Why art thou, the king's son, every morning leaner? wilt thou not tell me? And Amnon said to him, I love
- 5 Tamar, my brother Absalom's sister. And Jonadab said to him, Lie down on thy bed, and feign thyself sick: and when thy father cometh to see thee, say to him, I pray thee, let my sister Tamar come, and give me food, and dress the food in my sight, that I may see it, and eat it from her hand.
- 6 Amnon then lay down, and feigned himself sick; and when the king came to see him, Amnon said to the king, I pray thee, let Tamar, my sister, come, and make me a couple of cakes in my sight, that I may eat them from her hand. Then David sent home to Tamar, saying, Go now to thy brother Amnon's house, and dress food for him.
- 8 So Tamar went to her brother Amnon's house; and he was laid down. And she took flour, and kneaded it, and made cakes
- 9 in his sight, and baked the cakes. And she took a pan, and poured them out before him; but he refused to eat. And Amnon said, Let all the men go out from me. And
- 10 all the men went out from him. And Amnon said to Tamar, Bring the food into the inner-chamber, that I may eat from thy hand. And Tamar took the cakes which she had made, and brought them into the cham-
- 11 ber to Amnon, her brother. And when she had brought them to him to eat, he took hold of her, and said to her, Come, lie with me my
